World Series Near End Unless New York Loses

MEADOWS IS OUSTED IN 7TH

Ruth Hits Homer, and Two Score Ahead of Him

(By Associated Press)
YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Oct. 7.—In a game featured by sensational pitching by Herb Pennock, who won his fifth world series game without a defeat, and a home run by Babe Ruth, the New York Yankees made it three-straight from the Pittsburgh Pirates by winning today, 8 to 1, before a crowd of more than 60,000.

Score by innings:
Pirates: 000 000 010 1 8 8
Yankees: 200 000 60x 8 9 0

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The Yankees and Pirates returned to New York today to resume the world series.

The Yanks won the first two games of the series played at Pittsburgh.

Manager Bush sent his ace, Meadows, to the box in an effort to stop the Yankees. He was opposed by Pennock of New York.

The Yanks got away to a flying start by scoring two runs in the first inning.

First Inning
PITTSBURGH—Waner was out, Koenig to Gehrig. Ryan flied out to Meusel. P. Waner flied out to Meusel. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning
NEW YORK—Combs singled over second. Koenig scratched a hit across second, Combs going to second. Ruth flied out to Wright. Gehrig was out attempting to make a home run. He was credited with a three-base hit. Combs and Koenig scored on the play. Meusel fanned, swinging. Two runs, 3 hits, no errors.

Third Inning
PITTSBURGH—Wright was out to Combs on a shoe-string catch. Traynor was out, Lazzeri to Gehrig. Barnhart was out, Lazzeri to Gehrig, on a hot grounder. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning
NEW YORK—Lazzeri fanned, swinging. Dugan was out, Wright to Harris. Grabowski was out, Traynor to Harris. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning
PITTSBURGH—Harris flied out to Koenig. Gooch fanned, with his bat on his shoulder. Meadows grounded out, Lazzeri to Gehrig. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning
NEW YORK—Pennock went out, Ryan to Harris. Combs flied out to L. Waner. Koenig hit a Texas leaguer to Wright, who made a sensational run into center field. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning
PITTSBURGH—L. Waner was out, Lazzeri to Gehrig. It was a short hit, and Lazzeri came in fast. Ryan popped out to Koenig. P. Waner hit a hot liner to Dugan. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning
NEW YORK—Ruth fanned, swinging. Gehrig walked. Meusel hit a grounder to Traynor, who overthrew first. Gehrig went to third and Meusel to second. Lazzeri fanned. Dugan was out, Traynor to Harris. No runs, no hits one error.

LIFE TERM FOR GIN

Because Fred Palm, 29, had a pint of gin in his home he has started on a life sentence at hard labor in the Michigan state prison. Palm, a Lansing resident, was the first man in whose case violation of the liquor law was construed as a felony under Michigan's new criminal code which has just gone into effect. The code makes the sentence mandatory after a fourth conviction of felony.

Fighting Parson Formerly Was a Prison Chaplain

When this Kid Swanson, the fighting parson, steps into the ring Monday night at the Pampa Athletic club with Rusty Cahill, he is likely to talk the Pampa boy out of a decision. The parson is a follower and personal friend of Billy Sunday.

Sunday afternoon, Swanson will give a lecture in the high school auditorium on his experience as a prison chaplain. He has death confessions signed by some of the most noted criminals in the United States, who paid the penalty.

The final bout is due to be a surprise as Kid Granite is to be up against one of the fastest boys in the ring. Jimmie Carter has made a name for himself that is known far and wide. He is fast, a slugger, and a boy who can take punishment, while Granite is just as clever.

"Dutch" is sure to give the crowd a good exhibition, if he has enough wind to last the four rounds. He has been getting into condition lately and says he is ready to give Davis a battle in the special event.

The youngsters will provide the entertainment for the early birds.

Duds Perplex Airmen Debombing old Range

(By Associated Press)
SAN ANTONIO, Texas.—The problem of removing all unexploded bombs, buried in the old bombing range at Kelly Field here, so that the land may be returned to its owners in as good condition as it was before the government took it over, is puzzling air service executives.

The range, roughly between 200 and 300 acres of mesquite, contains many unexploded bombs, some of which are eight feet below the surface. The lease has expired and the air service is trying to devise a method of "de-bombing" the range.

An investigation of the problem has been made by the board of officers and its recommendations are before air service chiefs in Washington.

There is little danger that the bombs themselves will explode, officers say, as they disintegrate rapidly in the ground, but the detonators which do not disintegrate, are a source of danger to anyone handling them.

ALL-SOUTHERN AFFILIATION IS TO BE ASKED

Central High Meets All Requirements for Rating

BOARD MUST SUPPORT PLAN

Primary and Second Grades to Have Half-Sessions

A resolution to make application to the State Department of Education placing Central high school in the All-Southern group of colleges and secondary schools was passed by the board of education at a meeting last night.

The local school measures up to all standards of requirement. Super Campbell has the application made out and plans to send it to Austin today.

The requirements necessary for affiliation with that body are that three-fourths of the teachers of the high school must be graduated of approved senior colleges, that 40 per cent of the teachers in the grades below high school must be college graduates, that no teacher may conduct classes of more than 150 pupils a day, and that the local board of education must approve the affiliation and support it if granted.

It was also decided at the meeting to purchase a new International truck, which will be the third purchased this year. When the new truck arrives, there will be ten trucks in use to transport the rural pupils to and from school. The present buses are carrying more than their capacity.

Two of the primary grades and one of the second grades with classes in the Central high school, will hold a half-session until the new building is completed. Half the classes will attend school in the morning and the other half in the afternoon.

Local Suspects Charged With Bank Robbery

Panhandle Talent Shows Up Well in Chanters' Minstrel

The minstrel and musical revue to be given here tomorrow evening at the Crescent theatre by the Chanters of Khiva Temple, Amarillo, is said to eclipse any like production ever attempted in the Panhandle.

The first part is a replica of the old-fashioned minstrel shows, with "cross-fire" between the interlocutor and the end-men, interspersed with ballads and sentimental songs. Following this part will come the brief skits of individual performers, where the highlights in Shrine talent appear. A chorus of men, dressed as ladies, of course, dance to popular melodies.

The costumes, according to Albert S. Brown, the director, have been made to order for the two Amarillo appearances, the local one, and one to be given later in El Paso early in November. Complete orchestras Freshman at the University of Oklahoma have passed at least one examination this year—their taste for beauty seems to grade about 100 per cent. They chose Miss Marguerite Croy (above) of Drumright, Okla., as class queen.

Brother of de la Huerta Killed Today by Federals—Gomez Takes Stand on Slopes of Large Hill

(By Associated Press)
NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, Oct. 7.—The bullet-riddled body of Alfonso de Huerta, brother of Adolfo de la Huerta, former provisional president of Mexico, was brought here today by General Augirre, Mexican federal army officer sent to hunt for de la Huerta yesterday when the latter was seen in Mexico.

The general reported that he came upon de la Huerta and nine companions, one of whom was general Baron Medina, several miles east of Nogales. The other eight were Yaqui Indians.

De la Huerta and his officer companion gave battle and were littered. The Indians fled at the approach of the federals.

Houston Man Dies of Wounds Said to Be Accidental

HOUSTON, Oct. 7.—O. C. Bracewell, 35 years old, died in a hospital here today of wounds which his brother, J. A. Bracewell, said were accidentally inflicted.

Ed Frasier, 38 years old, is also in the hospital here in a critical condition. He was shot through a lung with the same weapon. The accident occurred while the men were at work on the Trinity river near Liberty, when one of the workmen found a gun in a boat and began handling it, according to reports received here.

Extra scores have been secure for every number. All selections are harmonized. Mr. Brown, the director, was until recently director of the Chanters in New York City, and is said to have made a fine showing with Panhandle talent.

MIST BLAMED FOR TRAGEDIES NEAR DALLAS

Santa Fe Passenger Train Strikes Car Today

3 HURT—ONE VERY BADLY

Austin Man Killed As Automobile Goes Into Ditch

(By Associated Press)
DALLAS, Oct. 7.—Three persons are dead and three are injured, one perhaps fatally, as the result of a railroad crossing accident near here today.

The dead are Mildred Carrol, 18 Mrs. D. V. Wilson, 35; and her son, James Wilson, 9. Another son of Mrs. Wilson's is believed to be fatally injured.

The accident occurred when a Santa Fe passenger train struck the automobile near Cedar Hill, where all the occupants lived.

The women were bringing the children to school in Dallas. It is believed a mist kept the driver from seeing the train.

(By Associated Press)
AUSTIN, Oct. 7.—Kenneth Bryson, 27 years old, was killed, and Leroy Mundt was injured when their automobile went into a ditch near here on the Austin-Georgetown highway today.

Both men were from Austin.

Laborers Needed In Cotton Fields—And Other Work

Reports received here are that cotton is opening rapidly in the majority of sections in the Panhandle, and especially so at Clarendon and Shamrock, where pickers are scarce. Shamrock has issued a call for nearly a thousand pickers for Collingsworth and Wheeler counties.

Scott Barcus, manager of the local Chamber of Commerce, received a letter from the Clarendon Chamber of Commerce this morning asking for 50 cotton pickers if any available men could be secured in Pampa.

There seems to be a scarcity of workmen in this section of the country, as the Cabot Co., Western Union, Stuckey Construction company and other company's here are in need of laborers.

Markham

minable deliberation, his eyes resting steadily on hers. He smoked placidly until her gaze dropped. Then he stepped nearer to her, and said firmly:

"If you tell the truth no harm will come to you. But if you refuse any information you will find yourself in trouble. The withholding of evidence is a crime, y' know, and the law will show you no mercy."

He made a sly grimace at Markham, who was watching the proceedings with interest.

The woman now began to show signs of agitation. She drew in her elbows, and her breathing quickened.

"In God's name, I swear there wasn't anybody here." A slight hoarseness gave evidence of her emotion.

"Let us not invoke the Deity," suggested Vance carelessly. "What time was the lady here?"

She set her lips stubbornly, and for a whole minute there was silence in the room. Vance smoked quietly but Markham held his cigar motionless between his thumb and forefinger in an attitude of expectancy.

Again Vance's impressive voice demanded: "What time was she here?"

The woman clinched her hands with a spasmodic gesture, and thrust her head forward.

"I tell you—I swear it—"

Vance made a peremptory movement of his hand, and smiled coldly.

"It's no go," he told her. "You're acting stupidly. We're here to get the truth—and you're going to tell us."

"I've told you the truth."

"Is it going to be necessary for the district attorney here to order you placed in custody?"

"I've told you the truth," she repeated.

Vance crushed out his cigaret decisively in an ash-receiver on the table.

"Right-o, Mrs. Platz. Since you refuse to tell me about the young woman who was here that afternoon, I'm going to tell you about her."

His manner was easy and cynical, and the woman watched him suspiciously.

"Late in the afternoon of the day your employer was shot, the door-bell rang. Perhaps you had been informed by Mr. Benson that he was expecting a caller, what? Anyhow, you answered the door and admitted a charming young lady."

"You showed her into this room . . . and what do you think, my dear madam!—she took that very chair on which you are resting so uncomfortably."

He paused, and smiled tantalizingly.

"Then," he continued, "you served tea to the young lady and Mr. Benson. After a bit she departed, and Mr. Benson went upstairs to dress for dinner. Y' see, Mrs. Platz, I happen to know."

"He lit another cigaret."

"Did you notice the young lady particularly? If not, I'll describe her to you. She was rather short—petite in the word. She had dark hair and dark eyes, and she was dressed quietly."

A change had come over the woman. Her eyes stared; her cheeks were now gray; and her breathing had become audible.

"New, Mrs. Platz," demanded Vance sharply, "what have you to say?"

She drew a deep breath.

"There wasn't anybody here," she said doggedly. There was something almost admirable in her obstinacy.

Vance considered a moment. Markham was about to speak, but evidently thought better of it, and sat watching the woman fixedly.

"Your attitude is understandable," Vance observed finally. "The young lady, of course, was well known to you, and you had a personal reason for not wanting it known she was here."

At these words she sat up straight a look of terror in her face.

"I never saw her before!" she cried; then stopped abruptly.

"Ah!" Vance gave her an amused leer. "You had never seen the young lady before—eh, what?"

"That's quite possible. But it's immaterial. She's a nice girl, though, I'm sure—even if she did have a dish of tea with your employer alone in his home."

"Did she tell you she was here?"

The woman's voice was listless. The reaction to her tense obduracy had left her apathetic.

"Not exactly," Vance replied. "But it wasn't necessary. I knew without her informing me. . . . Just when did she arrive, Mrs. Platz?"

"About a half-hour after Mr. Benson got here from the office."

She had at last given over all details and evasions. "But he didn't expect her—that is, he didn't say anything to me about her coming; and he didn't order tea until after she came."

Markham thrust himself forward.

"Why didn't you tell me she'd been here, when I asked you yesterday morning?"

The woman cast an uneasy glance about the room.

"I rather fancy," Vance intervened pleasantly, "that Mrs. Platz was afraid you might unjustly suspect the young lady."

She grasped eagerly at his words.

"Yes, sir—that was all. I was afraid you might think she—did it. And she was such a quiet, sweet-looking girl. . . . That was the only reason, sir."

"Quite so," agreed Vance consolingly. "But tell me; did it not shock you to see such a quiet, sweet-looking young lady smoking cigarets?"

Her apprehension gave way to astonishment.

"Why—yes, sir, it did. . . . But she wasn't a bad girl—I could tell that. And most girls smoke nowadays. They don't think anything of it, like they used to."

"You're quite right," Vance assured her. "Still, young ladies really shouldn't throw their cigarets in tiled, gas-log fireplaces, should they now?"

The woman regarded him uncertainly; she suspected him of jesting.

"Did she do that?" She leaned over and looked into the fireplace.

"I didn't see any cigarets there this morning."

"No, you wouldn't have," Vance informed her. "One of the district attorney's sleuths, d' ye see, cleaned it all up nicely for you yesterday."

THIS HAS HAPPENED

A woman's gloves and handbag, found at the scene of the murder, are traced to Miss St. Clair. When Markham threatens her with arrest she is flippant and unconcerned. Vance later insists she could not have killed Benson and by means of measurements demonstrates that the murderer was six feet tall or thereabouts and a good marksman.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI

Once more Vance went to the door and summoning Snitkin, returned the pistol.

"The District Attorney thanks you," he said. "And will you be good enough to fetch Mrs. Platz. We wish to chat with her."

Turning back to the room, he smiled amiably at Markham.

"I desire to do all the conversing with the lady this time, if you don't mind. There are potentialities in Mrs. Platz which you entirely overlooked when you questioned her yesterday."

Markham was interested, though sceptical.

"You have the floor," he said.

(Saturday, June 15, 5:30 p. m.)

When the housekeeper entered she appeared even more composed than when Markham had first questioned her. There was something at once sullen and indomitable in her manner, and she looked at me with a slightly challenging expression.

Markham merely nodded to her, but Vance stood up and indicated a low tufted Morris chair near the fireplace, facing the front windows. She sat down on the edge of it, resting her elbows on its broad arms.

"I have some questions to ask you, Mrs. Platz," Vance began, fixing her sharply with his gaze; and it will be best for everyone if you tell the whole truth. You understand me—eh, what?"

The easy-going half-whimsical manner he had taken with Markham had disappeared. He stood before the woman, stern and implacable.

At his words she lifted her head. Her face was blank, but her mouth was set stubbornly, and a smouldering look in her eyes told of suppressed anxiety.

Vance waited a moment and then went on, enunciating each word with distinctness.

"At what time, on the day Mr. Benson was killed, did the lady call here?"

The woman's gaze did not falter, but the pupils of her eyes dilated.

"There was nobody here."

"Oh, yes, there was, Mrs. Platz," Vance's tone was assured. "What time did she call?"

"Nobody was here, I tell you," she persisted.

Vance lit a cigaret with inter-

DENVER, Oct 7 (AP)—The University of Colorado today announced that one of its football players, Jack Howland, has been elected captain of the team for the 1927 season. Howland, who was a member of the 1925 squad, is a member of the University of Colorado's all-conference football team. He was named captain of the team by Coach Arms. Howland is a member of the University of Colorado's football team. He was named captain of the team by Coach Arms. Howland is a member of the University of Colorado's football team. "UTES" ARE CENTER OF RUGGLE IN ROCKY MOUNTAIN FOOTBALL

Jack Howells (left) all-conference halfback of the championship University of Utah team, is one of the mainstays of the team this season. The coach of the "Utes" is Ike Armstrong (center). Captain Babcock of Montana State (right), which completed its schedule last year without losing a game, thinks his chances are good this year for annexing a championship.

DENVER, COLO. (AP)—Intersect in Rocky Mountain football centers this season on the possibility that one of the eight eastern slope colleges will be able to bring back the championship now held by the University of Utah.

Last year Coach Ike Armstrong and his huskies from Salt Lake City finished with a clean slate and took the championship across the continental divide. With the loss of only two of the regulars from last year's squad, the "Utes" bid fair to repeat the performance this year.

Jack Howells, half-back and star of the conference, the most consistent ball-carrier of last season, with an average of 123 yards per game, will be back in uniform.

Cox, who was lost to the team last season, but was the mainstay of the 1925 squad, will be back in uniform this year to replace Whiting, all-conference guard. With the addition of several good prospects from last year's freshman squad, Coach Armstrong has nothing to worry him this season.

Besides winning the conference title by annexing five conference games, the Utahans last year, at the conclusion of the regular schedule, journeyed to Honolulu where they succeeded in defeating the strong University of Hawaii team—a feat that two previous conference champions were unable to accomplish.

The powerful Utah Agricultural College eleven of Logan, has developed during the past few seasons into a constant threat for championship honors. With but few losses last year and the addition of several last year's freshmen, the team will be in the running again this year.

The third Utah team, that of Brigham Young, University at Provo, presents a more formidable appearance this season than in many past years. Although not having figured in the championship race during the last two seasons the Mormons have upset championship hopes of several of the leading contenders.

Montana State finished last year with a percentage of 1,000 but failed to share the championship honors with Utah because of the conference games. This oversight has been corrected this year and the Montanans with their team of last year virtually intact, must be given consideration in this year's figuring.

The University of Wyoming at Laramie, has never seriously figured as a championship contender.

The Colorado Agricultural College

1925 champions, the University of Colorado and the University of Denver all are expected to push the 192 champions in their dash for their second championship. The Aggies and the University of Colorado fought it out for the title in 1925, but during 1924, 1925, and 1926 the University of Denver "Pioneers" were failures.

With the accretion of three or four good men from last year's freshman squad the Denver outlook this year under the captaincy of Al Panek, stellar ground-gainer of last season, is the best it has been for several years. Both the University of Colorado and the Colorado Aggies have been augmented materially by the eligibility of stellar performers from last year's freshman teams. At Boulder, Coach Myron Wigham of the University eleven is forecasting a "team that will take the lead and be hard to overtake."

The Colorado School of Mines and the Colorado college aggregations both are facing a more roseate outlook this season than in many years past. Coach William T. Van de Graff, of the Colorado college team, starting his second year, has many of last year's mainstays still in the fold and several helps from the first year squad. At the Mines, where last year Ray O. Courtwright, now with Yost at Michigan, had had luck, Erwin O. Hinds, former Colorado Aggie star is expected to put his squad into the running.

The Colorado Teachers' College at Greeley and the Western State College at Gunnison, both with the standing of the average normal school, have good prospects for this season but aside from furnishing "good work-outs" for the stronger teams, are not considered of championship calibre.

Football of the Rocky Mountain brand, heretofore rarely displayed outside the confines of the conference is to be presented to the country at large during the coming season. The largest number of inter-sectional games ever scheduled by the colleges of the conference, have been arranged by the twelve schools which make up the intermountain conference.

Included in the out-of-conference games scheduled are:

University of Wyoming vs. Creighton College at Omaha, Oct. 1. University of Utah vs. Northwestern at Evanston, Oct. 8.

Brigham Young University vs. California Aggies at Sacramento, Oct. 15.

University of Denver vs. Iowa University at Iowa City, Oct. 29.

Montana State vs. Purdue at Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 29.

Regis College vs. Loyola at Los Angeles, November 12.

University of Colorado vs. Southern California at Los Angeles, Nov. 12.

The world's tiniest portrait which would require enlarging 150,000 times to make a picture about the size of a half dollar, has been stolen from the Royal Photographic Society in London.

Lyle Messner of Grand Rapids, Ia. 14-year-old confessed slayer of a 6-year-old girl has been sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor.

A hotel at Charlotte, N. C. has ordered twenty special beds six inches longer than the average, so that tall guests will sleep comfortably.

BILLY EVANS Says

Will Scouting Continue?

Is the abolition of the scouting system, to which a number of the leading colleges have agreed, going to purify the game of football?

I don't think so. As a matter of fact, it is my belief that the rule is going to breed deception, make for hypocrisy. Just how valuable the scouting system in football really is only the coaches can answer. A majority are keen for it, while few if any, say it has no particular value. Therefore, it must be more or less worth while.

Once upon a time, football scouts tried to conceal their identity, but seldom got away with it. Some years ago the leading coaches decided to be above board in all things pertaining to scouting.

When a coach sent several men to scout a team, he would inform the opposition of his intent, requesting they be supplied with seats, and so forth. The scouts would then be welcomed by the rival college and given every consideration.

Hypocrisy is sure to enter into preparation for the various big games, since dope is sure to be slipped the coaches from various sources and it will be a difficult matter for them to discriminate as to what advice they should or should not accept.

More Aid to Batter

Despite the fact Babe Ruth hit 60 home runs the past season and his teammate, Lou Gehrig, was runner-up with 46, there are still those who believe the pitchers are again getting the upper hand.

Some years ago, when such a condition really existed and most games were pitchers' battles, the lively ball and the ban on freak deliveries were introduced to handicap the pitchers. The reform desired was accomplished.

Recently, I receive a suggestion from R. W. Williams, an attorney of Wytheville, Va., relative to the fast strike rule. It is interesting because he doesn't want to make any radical change, other than that the first foul shall not be counted as a strike. Here is his suggestion:

"Do not count the first foul hit by a batter a strike. You no doubt have often noticed a batter compelled by the exigencies of the game to let one in the 'groove' go by. He fouls off the next one. As a result he is in the hole and forced to swing at any ball that is doubtful for fear of being called out."

Curve ball pitching is benefited by the use of resin because it enables the pitcher to get a better grip on the ball. Perhaps that explains why that style pitching is more popular in the National than the American.

I have no doubt that the suggestion of Mr. Williams would make for more battling, since it would have a tendency to prolong the batter's time at bat.

Thirty-nine years of experience has shown Dunlop how to design a tread that gives maximum traction and slow, smooth wear.

This Dunlop tread is the toughest development of rubber known. And this same tough tread-rubber is carried clear around the sidewall to give maximum protection against rut wear.

You get the full benefit of all this extra tread-mileage because each Dunlop is built with the famous trouble-free cable-twist Dunlop carcass, to provide the high-strength and elasticity so vital to long tire life.

ABOUT FIRES—Weeks dedicated to some cause have become something of a national joke. There are all kinds of weeks—from kiss-your-wife week to one on homes for anaemic cats.

This period will last from October 9 to 15, and will be observed with fire drills, lectures, newspaper publicity, and other means of impressing upon the American mind the awfulness in destruction of life and property—of the fire demon.

T. M. Campbell, state fire insurance commissioner, has provided the Daily News with the latest figures on Texas and national fire losses, a resume of which will be given here and will be repeated in different form during the next week.

The dollar loss from fires in Texas in 1926 was approximately $20,000,000 and for the United States, $560,584,624. The best estimate obtainable for the period from January 1 to September 1 of this year is $11,621,446.74.

The loss of lives in fires in Texas is much greater than one would suppose. The statistics for the last few years show: 1922, 260 deaths; in 1923, 240; in 1924, 228; in 1925, 284 in 1926, 231; thus far in 1927, 126.

It is conservatively estimated that 85 per cent of fires in Texas are preventable, and this same per cent also applies to the entire nation. Only 10 per cent of them are believed to be of incendiary origin.

What does this mean? First, it means that Carelessness is the chief cause for conflagrations. Second, it means that the homes, where poverty most often strikes, are heavy sufferers. It is estimated that more than 60 per cent of all fires are in private homes.

Stated differently, this means that a home bursts into flames every four minutes. Each day of the year, on the average, five schools, five churches, fifteen hotels, one hospital, four warehouses, 96 farm homes, 6 department stores, two theatres, eight public garages, three printing plants, and three dry-goods stores are burning.

It is an adage that where there is smoke there is fire. Considering the fire losses, it appears the WHERE THERE IS SMOKING THERE IS APT TO BE A FIRE. For matches and cigars and cigarettes are the most potent factor in blazes.

Property loss was huge in the unpreventable St. Louis tornado, yet Carelessness is a greater danger, being largely responsible in 1926 for a property loss of $560,548,624. Poor flues, defective wiring, and other items indirectly classified with Carelessness cause the bulk of the remaining loss.

Fire Prevention Week is also significant because it is an effort to halt the increasing loss in proportion to population. In 1870, the fire loss average $19 a minute; now the average is $1,066 a minute.

With these facts as a stimulant, enter Fire Prevention Week with a serious purpose to avoid the habits of careless which make fire danger great. Remember that the week has but two purposes: saving of human lives and saving of millions of dollars in property values.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

Hon. Dwight Morrow arrives in Mexico as our ambassador the chief matters which will occupy his interest will be:

1—The Mexican oil land laws.

2 The payment of interest on Mexican bonds held in this country.

3—The Mexican presidential election.

All these problems are more or less tied up with each other and are of considerable interest to the people of the United States.

The petroleum laws question, which caused a nasty exchange of notes and considerable talk of intervention less than a year ago, has subsided to a diplomatic deadlock between the two governments which is still shot with possibilities.

If the Mexican supreme court decides that the laws are unconstitutional, the issue will be dead. But if it decides the other way and the Calles government seizes American property, it is still likely that the arms embargo will, by design, be plunged into chaos.

The situation has been saved to date by President Calles' various concessions and his failure to confiscate any oil lands. Unless he commits some unexpected overt act it may be that, with Morrow in Mexico City, the situation eventually will be solved by arbitration as recommended or overwhelming by the United States Senate.

Incidentally the big reason that this government feels it can't allow Mexico to enforce her oil land laws is that a precedent would be established for northern countries of South America where we have huge oil stakes. By providing for the 50-year concessions, the Calles government has demonstrated that it doesn't intend to prevent our companies from getting the oil out.

The reader may recall one or two reports within the last year concerning the doubtful ability of Mexico to make her annual bond interest payment, amounting to nearly $15,000,000. These reports were not exaggerated.

Her internal religious troubles and her row with foreign oil interests have not left Mexico in excellent financial condition. The oil companies have drastically curtailed Mexican production, putting a crimp in tax collections.

Mexico came through last year with her first payment since the fall of Porfirio Diaz. She has continued to just about make the grade. The Pani-Lamont agreement calls for monthly $500,000 payments, the balance due to be made up at the end of the year.

Morrow's presence in Mexico City will be so much added insurance for continued payments. If Mexico falls down on them, her credit is virtually ruined throughout the world. Morrow undoubtedly will be interested in keeping Mexico in a position where she can pay and his financial mind will also consider the possibilities for eventual repayment of the bonds' $500,000,000 principal.

The Morrow appointment also seems to improve Alvaro Obregon's chances for the presidency. In the first place

Obregon would surely maintain a stronger government than any other candidate now in the field. Secondly, Obregon was the Mexican sponsor of the Payne-Warren and Pani-Lamont agreements.

PRESS FORUM

The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, modernist pastor, is out with the declaration that on "any fine issue the majority is sure to be wrong."

Jazz, he said, would win over Chopin. Many cheap scribblers would win over Tolstoy. A prizefighter will get a bigger crowd, larger gate receipts and more newspaper publicity than any revelation of goodness, truth or beauty. It is the old race of the tortoise and the hare over again, Doctor Merit advances slowly, because it is seldom or never employs the ballyhoo that is essential to less worthy objects. But in the long run merit wins, just as the tortoise won.

Jazz lasts but a little while and then it goes on its way forgotten; a cheap novel is a ten days' wonder, and then disappears; a prizefighter lives only in the record books. But Chopin, Tolstoy and John Wesley will go on forever.

The majority isn't always wrong, but it is oftener wrong than right. That is the fault of leaders and not of the mass.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY

BREAKFAST—Cantaloupe, cereal, cream, broiled lamb chops, creamed potatoes, marmalade, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON—Toasted combination sandwich, sliced peaches, crisp cookies, cocoa.

DINNER—Pork roast with sweet potatoes, apple sauce, lima beans in cream, tomato and pineapple salad, grape sherbet, milk, coffee.

Sweet potatoes are delicious roasted with pork. Pare them and put them into the roaster with the meat about an hour before the roast is done. Season the potatoes with salt and pepper and baste with the drippings in the pan.

Toasted Combination Sandwich
Cut bread 1-2 inch thick. Allow 2 slices of bacon, 2 slices of tomato 2 thin slices of full cream cheese, 2 crisp lettuce leaves and a spoonful of mayonnaise for each sandwich. Broil bacon two minutes. Pare and cut tomatoes in slices 1-2 inch thick. On half the slices of bread put first the partially cooked bacon, then the tomatoes and cover the tomatoes with cheese. Cover with remaining bread and fasten together with long wooden tooth-picks. Place on a baking sheet on the middle grate in a hot oven. Toast about ten minutes. If the oven is not of uniform heat it will be necessary to turn the sandwiches with a bread spatula to brown both sides of bread. The cheese melts and the bacon becomes crisp during the toasting. Serve each sandwich between two lettuce leaves, butterfly fashion, with a spoonful of mayonnaise in one leaf and a celery heart or tiny pickle or stuffed olive in the other leaf.

Paris Raises Charges On Street Publicity

(By The Associated Press)
 PARIS—The city of Paris has started to levy real tribute on street advertising and the use of the sidewalks. There always has been a charge for space occupied by cafe tables on the sidewalks and for billboards around buildings under construction, but the rates have been small. Some of the charges have been multiplied forty times.

All sorts of business signs, canopies and even upper bay windows that extend beyond the lot lines are to be charged according to the space used and the rental value of the location. Paris has been divided into six classifications, on a sliding scale. Billboard space on a building that was leased for 75,000 francs a month by the contractor recently paid only 2,216 francs to the city. The new charge would be 125,000 francs, which still would leave plenty of profit for the billboard owner.

French Wheat Crop Is Heavy But Poor

(By The Associated Press)
 PARIS—France's 1927 wheat crop will be almost sufficient to supply her demands if the calculations of Ernest Picot, agricultural statistics expert, prove correct. He estimates the yield at 253,000,000 bushels as against 192,000,000 last year. This unexpectedly fine result he attributes to the use of new varieties of seed wheat. But for the bad summer, he is convinced the crop would have been nearly 270,000,000 bushels. It will still be necessary, however, he says, to import a certain amount of foreign wheat to make up for the defective quality of the native product.

Paris Experiments With One-Man Cars

(By The Associated Press)
 PARIS—One-man street cars of the "Pay As You Enter" type are being operated out of Paris on a suburban line as an experiment. This is an extension of the successful experiment with express autobuses, introduced two years ago.

Several safety devices have been added to the cars to meet public criticism. The doors are closed automatically before the car can start and they are opened automatically in case of accident.

If this trial, which economizes one man, is satisfactory the car will gradually be put into general use.

Women Win The Right To Gamble Like Men

(By The Associated Press)
 PARIS—Women have broken down another barrier. They are now admitted to the baccarat room at the Pavillon Royal Casino in Biarritz, a room where heretofore men were able to gamble to their heart's content—or their pocketbook's capacity—far from the eyes of wives or other females possessing ideas of how much a man ought to be allowed to lose at one sitting.

The gambling fever is so high at Biarritz—society's autumn rendezvous in France—that three casinos are prospering here. One is conducted by the municipality. The other two are privately owned.

Cavalry Still Useful Says General Weygand

(By The Associated Press)
 PARIS—The idea that cavalry is a thing of the past is a delusion. Such is the conclusion reached by General Weygand Foch's most brilliant pupil, after a close study of the lessons learned at the Army manoeuvres in Lorraine which have just concluded. He is convinced that a cavalry force, if kept perfectly mobile, has immense tactical value. Cavalry divisions, however, need to be supported by a far larger amount of mechanical transport. Machine gun detachments, tanks and field artillery must all follow the light cavalry divisions so as to keep in the closest touch. General Weygand has embodied his views in a report, which it is expected will be taken into consideration when the next appropriations are being prepared.

Dogs Are Night-Watch In National Library

(By The Associated Press)
 PARIS—Dogs now are the night watchmen in France's great library, the Bibliotheque Nationale, in the palace Cardinal Mazarin built for it, and its additions.

One man commands the three dogs that roam the dark or dimly lighted corridors and rooms, some of them half a block long. Economy was the motive of the young librarians, Roland Marcel, but the patrol has proved to be efficient. The dogs cover every corner and run fifty times the distance of the elderly watchmen whose places they have taken. Also, they see and they smell and they have no fear.

Two of the dogs are from the home of Edouard Herriot, Minister of Public Instruction, who has control of the library. The dogs were trained by Madame Herriot and are thoroughly house-broken.

Woman Cook Is Tried For French Army Chow

(By The Associated Press)
 PARIS—Good, home cooking for the boys who go to war is being tried out in the French army.

The first "lady cook" is bossing the job of preparing the army "chow" in the 31st Infantry regiment. She has a crew of kitchen police to help her and even their work is lightened by a mechanical potato peeler.

Army food never has shared the high reputation usually accorded the best French cuisine. It is a tradition in the army, say popular critics, that shoemakers and carpenters are detailed to cook the food while the professional cooks, doing their military service, are created regimental tailors.

Carry American Soil For Soldiers' Graves

(By The Associated Press)
 NEWPORT NEWS, Va.—Newport News soldiers sleeping in Flanders Field soon will rest beneath the sod of their native land although their graves are on French soil.

For Mrs. Carter Perkins and R. H. Mitchell, representing the Braxton-Perkins Post No. 25, American Legion, at the Paris reunion, carried with them a box of American soil to place over the graves of the heroes.

Mrs. Perkins is the mother of Lieutenant Robert Perkins, the American flyer who lost his life battling German airplanes over the German lines in France.

Germany Licenses Woman Air Pilot

BERLIN—Thea Rache is no longer Germany's only "Flying Fraulein." Miss Margaret von Etsdorf of Berlin has just gained her first pilot's certificates at the Staaken Flying School, and intends making a specialty of advertising air stunts.

"Flying is the only job with any prospects for women," Fraulein von Etsdorf says. "There is not that terrible competition that makes it so difficult for women to earn a living."

The new German aviatrix, who is about 20, took the first opportunity to enter the Staaken school from which she qualified in four months.

"Piloting airplanes calls for certain faculties which are hardly common in women generally," she said. "But all my family love flying and I find I am thoroughly suited to it."

Finds Europe Kind To Women Lawyers

PARIS—More courtesy is shown women lawyers in European courts than they receive in the United States says Miss Grace H. Brown, Detroit lawyer who pleaded a case for an exiled Armenian involving $500,000 before the Reparations commission. She also handed a case in the London court.

Women lawyers in Europe, Miss Brown finds, are not subject to the petty annoyances which they occasionally undergo in courts of the United States. They enter upon their practice before the bar in Europe, she says, on an equal footing with their male colleagues.

Use of Resin Ball

American League pitchers are wondering what action will be taken on the resin rule after the retirement of President Johnson.

During his long connection with the American League he founded, Mr. Johnson has always been against deception. He so regarded the permitting of the pitchers to use resin.

While baseball rules permit the pitcher to use resin, American League twirlers have never once asked for it and, as a result, only pitchers who actually had it on their person used it.

No doubt the thought of the successor to President Johnson will determine the policy of the American League next season relative to the much discussed resin bag.

You can brine some of the late vegetables and green tomatoes for making pickle late on. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will tell you how.

Markets

Meat food animals pass through three principal channels; their production, their marketing and turning the raw product into meat foods and their by-products, followed by distribution to the consuming public.

The outlets represented by the metropolitan consuming centers of the country are of great importance to the producer. The growth of consumer demand on the Pacific Coast has made itself felt in livestock producer circles as far east as the Missouri river, and the Coast states have changed from exporters of meat food animals to importers.

An immense meat packing center is taking shape in Los Angeles to meet the requirements, the extent of which may be gauged by considering that the population has more than doubled in the past ten years, with now in excess of five million people in the state to supply.

There are many reasons for the gathering together of meat packing plants at a chosen point. The principal one is that through centralization of packing plants adjacent to a central livestock market and with the proper strategic location as to best serve the needs of consumer demand, the movement of meat food animals may best be sustained in a regular flow. This accomplishes distribution and conversion into food products to the best advantage of the producer, the packer and finally the ultimate consumer.

Through bringing together many packing plants at a central point, the value of by-products can best be utilized in the building up of a sufficient volume to make their value of consequence. Whereas, if the operation were attempted at widely scattered points, much of this advantage would be lost.

A feature worthy of consideration by the livestock producer is that the outlet in this territory is not limited to local consumption, although that is increasing annually through the coming of hundreds of thousands of new residents.

The local packing industry in the future is destined to grow steadily in the volume of products handled, not only to meet local requirements, but from increased business in stocking ships and in supplying the trade of Pacific Ocean Points, as well as shipments of dressed meats by water to the Atlantic Seaboard.

Tennessee Debates Old Hickory Victory

(By Associated Press) NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Whether Andrew Jackson's victory over the British at New Orleans on January 8, 1815, was analogous to a knockout scored after the final gong is a question Tennessee is attempting to settle.

The chief complaint brought before the legislature, which appointed a commission to investigate the matter, is that school histories "convey the impression that the battle was a needless one, in that it occurred 15 days after the treaty of peace had been signed at Ghent."

Jackson scholars claim, as did "Old Hickory" himself, that if the "knockout" had not been delivered another fight would have started. They say the British intend to conquer New Orleans and to hold the Louisiana territory, the Treaty of Ghent notwithstanding, on the point it did not belong to the United States, cession by Spain to France in 1800.

England recognized neither the renor the conveyance by Bonaparte to America in 1803, these students assert, and veiled reservations to this effect were made at the peace conference.

Jackson declared this information had been confirmed by "diplomatic sources of unquestionable authority." Since Jackson was a Tennessean, Tennessee students of history and the legislature desires to learn the "true significance" of the battle.

Reau Folk, former state treasurer; John T. Moore, state historian; Claude G. Bowers of New York, Dr. John S. Kendall, professor of history Tulane University, and Judge John DeWitt of Nashville are on the commission.

Frequent cleaning of pens, sheds, shelters, and hog lots, as well as troughs and feeding floors, is an important prevention. It is imperative that the premises be disinfected following outbreaks of infectious diseases. In addition to thorough cleaning at regular intervals, a liberal amount of slacked lime should be applied.

Muck soils that are underlaid with hard or some form of material bearing calcium carbonate are considered best for early growth.

O. C. MALONE, Assurance Sec'y, Vice, Phone 251.

SIDE LIGHTS OF COMMERCE

Chinese business men now are positive Sherman was right, for as a result of taking too seriously differences in political opinion, as evidenced by the recent hostilities, business has been bad. July exports generally decreased 34 per cent from last year, customs receipts fell off 10 per cent during the first seven months of this year and in some sections trade has been almost at a standstill. Notes of the Central Bank of China at Hankow at one time were quoted at 235 to 100 Mexican dollars, with no transactions on the market.

Strap Hangers in Spain

The commuter and competition have combined to cause the transportation business pay a profit in Barcelona, Spain. Ten years ago the tramways carried all the people that cared to go anywhere and the fare registers rang up only 14,000,000 pesetas a year. Today there are the tramways, two subway systems and an autobus line and the conductors ring up nearly 35,000,000 pesetas. Fares are low and service is better.

Italy Cuts Hotel Rates

Those who have failed to visit Italy in the past are assured of a saving in expenses. Hotel men have agreed to cut accommodations rates 10 per cent and to make a like reduction in the price of Italian wines and liquors served.

Chile's Nitrate Mines

American methods are being used in Chile to demonstrate to the natives that 90 per cent of the nitrate contained in caliche, a form of rock, can be recovered. Under the old hand-mining method, 15 to 25 per cent was left in the ground and only 65 per cent of the rest was marketable.

Engineers Reverse Rivers

Engineers developing a hydroelectric power plant near Stao Paulo Brazil, caught a couple of rivers which had the habit of flowing westward, reformed them to flow east and then led the waters by a series of dams and syphons up over a mountain range to the penstocks. Now the plant has an effective head of 708 meters, produces 100,000 horsepower and can generate 800,000, and the annual rampages of the rivers, which once resulted in flooding 10 square miles of valuable land within the city, have been squelched.

Milan Builds Subways

Milan, Italy, as bitten by the subway bug recently when means were sought to relieve traffic congestion in the city that has grown from 600,000 people in 1914, to 900,000 this year. The Podesta, however, decided the cost of building subways like those of New York was too great and approved a plan for the construction, at an expense of about $270,000 of two tunnels

Traffic Din Dooms Street Car Gongs

(By Associated Press) CLEVELAND, Oct. 7.—The street car gong, once the champion noise maker of city streets, has been bested by the automobile horn.

It can no longer make its clanging heard above the din of a hundred barks, honks and snarls of motor car warning signals, a committee reported today to the American Electric Railway association, and a substitute must be found, better adapted to modern traffic conditions.

The committee, headed by S. E. Emmons of Baltimore, suggested that chas be equipped with aid whistles and electric horns in place of the time-honored gongs.

Advertising their food value has increased domestic consumption of prunes and the establishment of all-water transportation from the Pacific coast to European countries has greatly aided exportation. Commercial prune culture is located principally in Santa Clara and Sonoma counties, California, and in Oregon, Washington, and Idaho. Total production of dried prunes in the United States has been established at approximately 167,900 tons annually.

which will carry the four principal tramways under the most congested section. The present cars will be used.

Earrings Returning

Now that shortened tresses have restored the ears as a visible attribute of the women, earring manufacturers are looking for a busy season. They expect that earrings will be much shorter and probably of the Creole type.

WHEN I WAS TWENTY-ONE
BY JOSEPH KAYE

At 21—David Starr Jordan Taught a University Curriculum for $25 a Week.

AT TWENTY-ONE without any worldly experience, and ignorant and more or less scornful of the social duties supposed to be incumbent on tutors, I arrived at Lombard college, Galesburg, Ill., to begin my work as professor of natural science.

"I worked very hard at Lombard, did some excellent teaching and developed a certain degree of enthusiasm in the small body of students of whom there were not over a hundred in the entire collegiate department, with only eight in the graduating class.

"Natural Science," I found, was an expansive subject. My chair demanded classes in zoology, botany, geology, mineralogy, chemistry, physics, political economy, Paley's 'Evidences of Christianity' and, incidentally, German and Spanish. I also had charge of weekly 'literary exercises' and in off hours I served as pitcher of the student ball team.

"My salary was $1,300 a year.—David Starr Jordan."

TODAY—Mr. Jordan is perhaps grateful for those multitudinous duties of his early days; they gave him a most extensive experience in the teaching of the sciences which he has since utilized to good advantage, for David Starr Jordan is one of the greatest teachers of the natural sciences that this country has, accomplishing his work both at university classes and through the medium of numerous books.

"CORPORATIONS HAVE NO SOULS"

IN THE same sentiment as "the public be damned," which, fairly or unfairly, is the attitude often attributed to corporations, we frequently hear the saying that "Corporations have no souls."

Although the words have no alien sound to American ears, it is in England that the saying had its origin, its first recorded usage being in a famous lawsuit that was fought in the English courts.

Its authorship is credited to Sir Edward Coke, who during the proceedings in the case of Sutton's hospital, is recorded to have said: "They (corporations) cannot commit treason nor be outlawed nor excommunicated, for they have no souls." Subsequently this was affirmed by Lord Thurlow, who is recorded as having said: "You never expected justice from a corporation, did you? They have neither a soul to lose nor a body to wick."

Lincoln Refusal Of Rail Job Told

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK.—A story that Abraham Lincoln once declined a position as general counsel for the New York Central railroad, because he feared the effect of the $10,000 salary it carried upon the morale of his family, has been substantiated by Parker Corning, grandson of the man who made the offer.

In the spring of 1860 Lincoln came to New York to deliver a political address at Cooper Institute, and one of his auditors was Erastus Corning, president of the New York Central, the story runs as related by Corning's grandson to John W. Starr who tells it in a volume on Lincoln and the Railroads.

The next day Corning called on Lincoln and asked: "Would you entertain an offer from the New York Central to become its general counsel at $10,000 a year?"

Lincoln, amazed at the offer, pondered it.

Then, the story goes, he replied: "What could I do with $10,000 a year? It would ruin my family to have that much income. I don't believe that I had better consider it."

House Recalls Memory of Barbara Frietchie

FREDERICK, Md. (AP)—Although more than three score years have passed since the last shot of the Civil War was fired, the patriotic fervor of Barbara Frietchie is still fresh in the memories of her hometown folks.

The home of Maryland's Civil War heroine was restored this summer. Hundreds of tourists visited the quaint little brick structure, with its dormer windows and low pitched ceilings.

Articles that tradition says were Dame Frietchie's property, form most of the furnishings of the house. These include her rocking chair, spinning wheel, clock, china ware and even the flag that she is said to have waved in defiance at Stonewall Jackson's southern troops.

Persimmon and dogwood, essential to the manufacture of shuttles in the textile industry of the world, are rapidly becoming more difficult to obtain. As yet no satisfactory substitute, native or foreign, has been found for these two woods. Many owners of dogwood timber, because of its small size, have not realized its value and have either made no efforts to market it or have allowed dogwood and persimmon to be injured when the larger timber associated with it was removed.
