Release of DNA results upsets lawyer

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
 Staff Writer

An attorney for Henry Watkins Skinner wrote a letter last week protesting District Attorney John Mann's release of DNA test results to local media and asking him to open the process and establish protocols for the testing.

The Pampa News received a faxed copy of the letter to Mann written by Douglas G. Robinson, a Washington, D.C., attorney. He is representing Skinner with appeals of his conviction for capital murder in the deaths of his girlfriend, Tivla Busby, and her two sons, Elwin Caler and

The Washington attorney now criticizes the local DA's release of DNA test results that indicate Skinner's blood stained hair found in the murdered woman's hand. Robinson also wants to know what results were obtained from testing 14 other pieces of evidence reportedly sent to the lab.

Randy Busby, on New Year's Eve 1993.

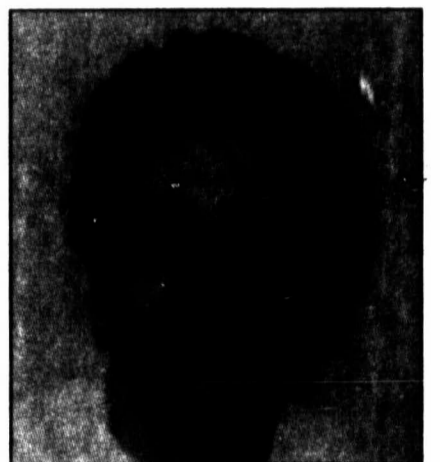

Robinson reminded Mann in the letter of two previous letters, one written on July 12 and the second on Aug. 16, objecting to Mann's testing of previously untested evidence in the mur-obtained from testing 14 other pieces of evidence reportedly sent to the lab.

Telephone calls to both Robinson's and Mann's offices were not returned by press time Saturday.

Mann previously told The News that he had received a preliminary report from Gene Screens, a private laboratory in Dallas, that indicated Skinner's blood was on hairs clutched in Busby's hand.

The DA said blood from two people was found on the hair samples - Busby's own and Skinner's. At the time Mann spoke to The News, he said he had not received mitochondrial

Holidays can also be season for more crime

After a relatively quiet October, Pampa police predict the holidays will bring an increase in assaults, traffic accidents, and burglaries.

"The holidays are when we see an increase in assaults because of the partying," said Pampa Police Chief Charlie Morris.

Aggravated assaults dropped dramatically in October from eight reported in September to three, according to police records.

"July 4 is usually high, and we see more around Thanksgiving and Christmas," Morris said. "The exception is Valentines and Easter. We don't see a lot of assaults then."

He said police are called to more domestic disturbances during the holidays, also.

Domestic disturbance calls decreased almost by half in October with 14 calls compared to 27 in September, police records show.

These numbers are for calls only, and do not include calls where an offense occurred, explained Lt. John Goes. Domestic calls where offenses such as assault or disorderly conduct occurs are listed by the offense.

Morris warned local citizens to be careful of burglars and thieves who take advantage of the confusion and stress that often accompanies Christmas shopping.

"As we get closer to the holidays we're going to see an increase in forgeries, theft by check, credit card abuse and theft in general," the police chief predicted.

Auditor: County's financial status good

Tax rate must be kept up, he says

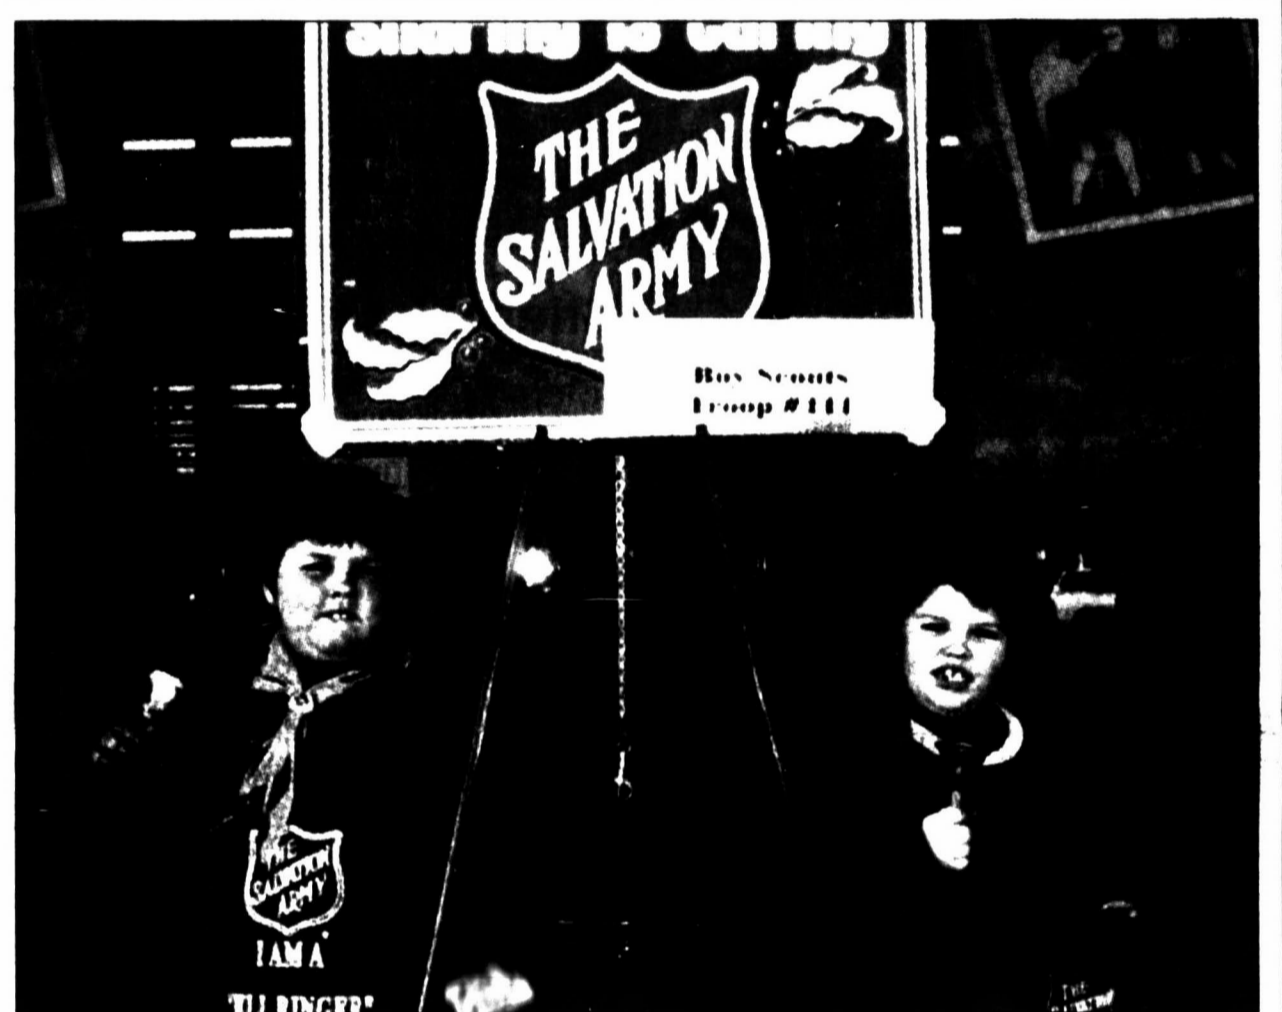

By NANCY YOUNG
 Managing Editor

"The financial status of Gray County is very good as long as the tax rate is kept up," said Danny Bishop of Doshier, Pickens & Frances, PC, a firm of certified public accountants in Amarillo. He recommended to the commission they keep a rate which is the effective tax rate plus three percent.

Bishop made some recommendations recently to improve the county system when he presented the audit report of the county's financial statements to the Gray County Commissioners Court.

"The Commissioners' Court should review the fiscal year period in which the county operates," said Bishop. He said a change to a Sept. 30 year end would provide a better match to the operating cycle. "By this, we mean that it would match the collection cycle of the county's property taxes which begins in October of each year," he said.

Big Red Kettle funds help local citizens all year round

By NANCY YOUNG
 Managing Editor

The familiar bell ringing and the presence of the Big Red Kettle at the entrance of stores is a signal that the holiday season has arrived. The Salvation Army is acutely aware that need knows no season.

Representative Warren Chisum and the Pampa High School Jazz Band helped kick-off the kettle campaign locally Friday morning in front of Wal-Mart.

Many local individuals, organizations, school groups, families and churches are volunteering their time to man the kettle for the local Salvation Army, which in turn helps their local neighbors. The Big Red Kettle is a collection point for contributions to benefit the local people who need help year-round.

Money from the kettle drive helps to fund many projects sponsored by the Salvation Army throughout the year. The local Salvation Army, which is an international movement, is an evangelical part of the universal Christian church.

hair was found in Busby's hand. "You must be aware, however, that the DNA results that you are selectively releasing to the press, and the conclusions you are asking the press to draw from them, are inconsistent with the evidence you presented at trial," Robinson wrote.

He said discovery of Skinner's blood on the hair contradicts Mann's trial summation where the DA said there was no blood evidence on the murder weapon because Skinner must have killed Busby first before injuring his hand trying to stab Randy Busby.

Robinson also said that if mitochondrial testing shows the hair to be Skinner's, it would "directly contradict" the state's crime lab witness who testified that a carpet is "really bad" about retaining hairs that have been dropped by persons living in the house, making such a result "of little evidentiary significance."

Mann was providing information "piecemeal" to the media, Robinson wrote, adding, "But the fact that the results released to date tend to undermine the State's case, but are being spun to create the opposite impression only underscores the need to conduct the DNA testing under rules that assure confidence in the results."

Testing of the previously untested evidence gathered in the triple murder seven years ago resulted from pressure placed on Mann following an investigation by a group of students from Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism in Chicago last spring.

"Here is a case where the physical evidence begs to be tested, to find out whether Hank Skinner deserves to be on death row or a free man," Protes said in an Associated Press article last June.

Last summer, Mann, saying the students had never spoken with him during their study of the case, invited the journalism school's head, Professor David Protes, to meet with him and go over the facts of the case. Protes declined to meet with the local DA face-to-face.

Robinson closed the three-page missive by asking Mann to extend the "same courtesy" he had offered Protes "at least with regard to the DNA testing that is now occurring."

He asked that Mann open the process by which the tests are being conducted, review with him the results obtained to date, and to establish "appropriate" protocols for completing the testing.

HOLIDAYS

"Don't leave packages in your car where they can be seen. Don't leave anything of value in your vehicle," he said. "There's nothing between the person intent on theft but a window."

He recommended that all gifts and valuables be placed in the trunk.

"There's a lot that can be done to protect yourself," Morris said. "Keep your packages from being seen, even at home. Don't place the tree and packages in front of a window."

Morris suggested that persons shopping over the telephone or Internet to use care when giving credit card information. "Be sure your checks are secure," he added.

"This time of year is when we see an increase in daytime burglaries," the police chief added.

An boost in burglaries is already apparent, police reports show. Officers investigated 27 burglaries in September and 35 in October.

Holiday shopping also means more traffic on city streets and a greater number of vehicle collisions.

Police investigated 18 auto accidents in September and 20 in October. Seven injury accidents were reported in September, the majority on Hobart Street, and four in October — three occurring on Hobart.

"Hobart (Street) is the most dangerous," Morris said, adding that Cuyler Street can also be hazardous.

"We have a problem, particularly on Cuyler which is designated by city ordinance as a single lane of traffic, where people drive side by side on the street and then someone backing out of a parking space backs into them because they don't have room," the chief explained.

"Take a little extra time to get where you want to go. Be careful; be prepared to stop," Morris said. "Nobody ever got a ticket for waiting until it's safe."

"This is a time to enjoy our families and friends and renew old acquaintances, but be cautious," he said.

AUDITOR

He said by adopting a new budget year period it would eliminate the need to defer the recognition of tax revenues as is currently done by the county. Bishop also said the county commission would have nine or 10 months of the current year's financial information when working on the budget instead of six or seven months.

Bishop also said at one time all taxing entities were on the calendar year system, but that most all had changed their operating year to Oct. 1-Sept. 30.

Precinct 2 County Commissioner Jim Greene expressed his concern about a hypothetical possibility of an outgoing official not submitting an appropriate budget during the budget process if the budget year was changed. He referred to the current method which provides the new budget year begins the same day as new officials are sworn-in, both on the first day of January.

County Judge Richard Peet said since commissioners court is responsible for approving the final budget that it would be the responsible party to guard against such incidents. "That is part of our checks and balance system," said Peet.

Recommendation was also made that the District Attorney's office maintain separate bank accounts for pending seizures and forfeited seizures.

Under the present system it is combined and Bishop said it makes it difficult to separate returned seizures and the actual forfeiture. He said expended forfeited seizures are what would be budgeted by the commissioners court.

"The forfeiture fund should be included in the General Ledger as should the D.A.R.E. Fund so that they may be presented to the commissioners court and compared to budget," said Bishop. "If the court has no interest in reviewing these funds, then they probably could be unbudgeted funds."

Bishop also said during the audit report the firm became aware of matters involving internal controls and other accounting issues that the firm believes can be improved as well as strengthening the county's systems.

He said that currently the county does not maintain accounting records for its property and equipment, and it is strong urged the county compile a list of its assets.

"It would best be accomplished by maintaining a detailed record of these assets which discloses a description, cost, date of acquisition and location of each asset," he said. He said this information would not only provide the court with a means of control and safeguards, but also the information necessary for insurance reporting, equipment operation and maintenance programs as well as capital expenditure programs.

Another suggestion was to include an accounting for the long-term liabilities of the county which would include capital lease obligations and accrued compensated absence costs, said Bishop.

Other suggestions include changes in procedures of monthly bank reconciliation procedures in the tax assessor/collector's office. Also the accounting firm noted that social security and Medicare are not being withheld from the District Judge's payroll checks. He said that procedure has been corrected.

Bishop told the commissioners court the Gray County officials and employees were very helpful to him during his audit of the county.

"The World's Greatest Democracy?"

1. Imagine that we read of an election occurring anywhere in the third world in which the self-declared winner was the son of the former prime minister and that former prime minister was himself the former head of that nation's secret police.
2. Imagine that the self-declared winner lost the popular vote but won through a colonial mechanism heldover from the nation's pre-democracy past which deliberately and intentionally biases the vote.
3. Imagine that over 2 percent of the nation's people voted for a third person whose policies were much closer to those of the self-declared winner's opponent than to those of the self-declared winner, but their votes were discarded because the electoral system ignores all second preferences.
4. Imagine that the self-declared winner's 'victory' turned on disputed votes cast in a province governed by his brother.
5. Imagine that six million people voted in the disputed province and that the self-declared

Kate B. Dickson

associate publisher/editor

winner's 'lead' was only 300 votes. Fewer, than the vote counting machines' margin of error.

6. Imagine that the poorly drafted ballots of one district, a district heavily favoring the self-declared winner's opponent, led thousands of voters to vote for the wrong candidate.
7. Imagine that people who realized they had made a mistake in voting on this poorly drafted ballot were refused the right of a replacement ballot.
8. Imagine that the self-declared winner and his political party opposed a more careful by-hand inspection and re-counting of the ballots in the disputed province or in the district favoring the self-declared winner's opponent.

9. Imagine that the person in charge of the electoral process in the disputed province had publicly supported the self-declared winner.
10. Imagine that when the self-declared winner's opposition to the manual recount was overruled by the courts, this person in charge of the electoral process prevented the results of the manual recount from being taken into account by insisting on an impossibly short deadline for the results to be submitted.
11. Imagine that the self-declared winner, himself a governor of a major province, had the worst human rights record of any province in his nation and actually led the nation in executions.

None of us would deem such an election to be representative of anything other than the self-declared winner's will-to-power. All of us, I imagine, would wearily turn the page thinking that it was another tale of a pitiful pre- or anti-democracy peoples in some sad elsewhere.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
 Today is Sunday, Nov. 26, the 331st day of 2000. There are 35 days left in the year.
 Today's Highlight in History:
 On Nov. 26, 1943, one of the least-known American catastrophes of World War II took place as the HMT Rohna, a British transport ship carrying U.S. soldiers, was hit by a German missile off Algeria; 1,138 men were killed, including 1,015 American troops.

 On this date:

In 1832, public streetcar service began in New York City. The fare: 12 1/2 cents.
 In 1825, the first college social fraternity, Kappa Alpha, was formed at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y.

In 1940, the half-million Jews of Warsaw, Poland, were forced by the Nazis to live within a walled ghetto.
 In 1942, President Franklin Roosevelt ordered nationwide gasoline rationing, beginning Dec. 1.

Texas Editorials

By The Associated Press

A sampling of editorial opinion around Texas:
 Longview News-Journal on juvenile justice needs improvements:

State lawmakers should take a harder look at Texas juvenile justice system. There are a number of indications that things are amiss.

A recent study by Texas Appleseed, an Austin-based nonpartisan group studying criminal justice systems, concludes that the system emphasizes extracting guilty pleas from youths more than providing them a quality defense. Further, many poor teen-agers accused of crimes don't see a lawyer until just before their court appearance. Texas ranks last among the states in funding for legal aid.

The report also says that alternative sentences such as treatment for drug or mental-health problems that could keep youths out of state schools are routinely overlooked by judges.

In fact, some juvenile courts are like an assembly line. The kids meet their counsel a few minutes before the hearing, the counsel recommends a plea of guilty, the judge accepts the plea, the child is sentenced and the court moves on to the next case.

Thus, juvenile courts become the gateway to the adult criminal justice system. We label youths as criminals rather than trying to divert them into productive, stable members of society.

This study wasn't conducted by a bunch of loose cannons. The American Bar Association, the University of Houston Law Center, the National Juvenile Defender Center, Northwestern University Legal Clinic and the Southern Poverty Law Center all participated in the study.

The cause of this situation may be attributed to the fact that Texas ranks last in funding. That's because there isn't any. The counties, which operate on local taxes, have the main responsibility for juvenile crime and alternative programs.

But the Texas Legislature, in its get-tough-on-juvenile-crime spree during the past several legislative sessions, has contributed to the problem. For example, juvenile sex offenders names, addresses and other personal information are posted on the Internet by the Texas Department of Public Safety because of laws that have been enacted.

Some 1,389 of the 26,769 sex offenders the DPS has posted on the Internet are between 11 and 16 years old. The author of the bill that requires this, state Rep. Ray Allen, R-Grand Prairie, says he regrets this aspect and says lawmakers didn't think about the effects on juveniles.

In Texas, the names of juvenile offenders are generally kept confidential. The reason for that is so that children can have a chance to learn from their mistakes. Posting the name of an 11-year-old as a sex offender puts a permanent mark of punishment on that child.

Certainly, children must be held accountable for serious crimes and the punishment must be appropriate. However, there must be a better way to handle juvenile crime by trying to find alternatives that move more toward rehabilitation, rather than treating kids like adult criminals. And, the state needs to kick in some money to ensure that children get proper legal representation. It's the right thing to do.

America: Losing the academic race

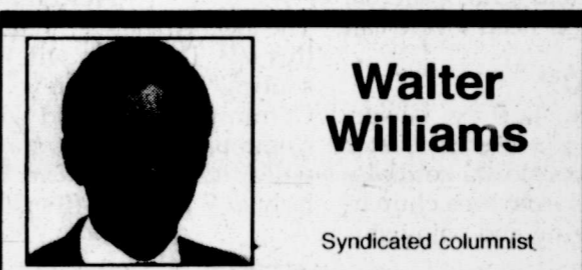

Here are just a few of the facts: One study asked middle-class black, white and Asian high school students what was the lowest grade their parents would tolerate their bringing home? Asian students replied A-minus. Blacks said their parents would accept grades lower than both white and Asian students.

Nationally, 74 percent of black students fail to graduate five years after entering college. Black students have the lowest grade point averages both entering and leaving college.

John H. McWhorter, a linguistics professor at UC-Berkeley, offers an explanation in his new book, "Losing the Race: Self-Sabotage in Black America." It's a culture of anti-intellectualism among blacks. That's not a very flattering explanation, but to the extent that it has any truth it demands confrontation.

McWhorter argues that black anti-intellectualism is a result of victimology and separatism. Black politicians, civil-rights leaders and white liberals have peddled victimhood to black youngsters, teaching them that racism is pervasive and no amount of individual effort can overcome racist barriers. Peddling victimhood is not new. Booker T. Washington said: "There is a class of colored people who make a business of keeping the troubles, the wrongs and the hardships of the Negro race before the public. Some of these people do not want the Negro to lose his grievances, because they do not want to lose their jobs."

McWhorter says victimhood leads to sepa-

Walter Williams

Syndicated columnist

ratism and anti-intellectualism follows from separatism out of a sense that educational excellence is a "white" endeavor. Thus, the "black Cult of Anti-intellectualism casts top scholarly achievement as treachery." Black anti-intellectualism is not a poverty phenomenon. It is observed in sons and daughters of middle- and high-income blacks living in well-to-do neighborhoods attending good suburban schools.

McWhorter tells of typical experiences with his black Berkeley students: many do not attend classes, don't or poorly perform classroom assignments and fail to show up for examinations. McWhorter is black, and even though he makes a special effort to help black students they don't use his generous office hours.

During my 33 years teaching, I've encountered similar experiences. I've aired my criticisms to black students, often getting the response, "Some white students do the same thing." I've typically responded by saying: "A white student goofing off might have a father who's a doctor, lawyer or CEO who can make a phone call to get him a job. Who does your father know?"

McWhorter doesn't argue there is no longer any racial discrimination in the United States, but racial discrimination is not the major problem for blacks today. Instead, it's self-sabotage — and he's right. Let's look at it. A black illegitimacy rate hovering around 70 percent is devastating but it's not caused by whites. Black people have the nation's highest victimization rates for murder, assault, rape and other violent crimes, but it's not whites who are culpable.

Black students have the nation's lowest academic achievement. That can't be blamed on racism because academic achievement is the lowest in cities where the mayor, superintendent of schools, and most principals and teachers are black, such as Washington, D.C., Philadelphia and Detroit. Academic achievement is also the lowest where the most money is spent on education. Washington, D.C., ranks second in spending and ranks 49th in achievement.

John H. McWhorter's "Losing the Race" draws attention to serious problems that black Americans must confront. I, for one, have confidence that if black youngsters spent as much time and effort studying math and English as some of them spend playing basketball, they'd produce the same excellence in math and English. The fact racism kept blacks out of college and professional basketball and football years ago doesn't stop us from today's domination. And the reason isn't affirmative action, it's excellence.

My long-term and short-term predictions

This morning I woke up with a sick feeling in my stomach. A feeling that wasn't normal. The realization that in this country, where justice usually ranks high, there exist countless injustices and that I may be suffering the effects of a big one.

I've been active in this, now historical, presidential campaign for almost a year to help elect Gov. George W. Bush. I'm fascinated by the intricacy of our political process and proud to be an American. Not far into adulthood myself, I'm already excited about the possibility of sharing "war stories" about this campaign with my own kids when they are studying American history in school. (That is, if I am blessed to have a wife and family some day.)

As excited as I am about the future, I do worry that disillusionment, especially among young voters, may grow out of the realization that the electoral system can't prevent injustices from being committed.

More people are watching the news of the vote recount in Florida than viewed the Monica Lewinsky scandal, the Gulf War, the Olympics, the World Series or Princess Diana's funeral. I believe this proves wrong those critics who argue Americans don't care about the political process. Even those who want the Florida recount (and court hearings) to be over, most people want the count to accurately reflect the collective will of the people by following the rules and laws that have been established in the past to govern elections.

For those of us who are still on the edge of our seat and still interested in seeing who our next president will be, I would like to share some insight from my experience and make two small predictions — one near and one far.

Let me preface these predictions by saying that it now seems clear, no matter who wins, the news stories will continue to center around the question: Should Bush or Gore really have been elected president? The news media will focus on this just as they did with the current question: Who will the next president be? And, as with the present question, the degree of speculation and the intensity of the coverage will hurt more than they help.

Democrats and Republicans are divided as to what should be done in Florida regarding the "recount," but I think they agree that the major network television coverage was not handled well election night and that the intensity of coverage thereafter has foreclosed any opportunity there may have been for either candidate to graciously or easily concede to the other, or simply commend the other for playing by the rules.

J.B. Horton

As we all know, Vice President Gore was declared the winner of the state of Florida early on the evening of Nov. 7. So early, in fact, those residents in the Panhandle of Florida were still voting because they are in a different time zone! Networks should not be allowed to "call" any state until the polls are closed in that state, and should not be able to declare an overall winner until polls are closed in the West. Voters there have been telling us that for years.

When the first network, CBS, called Vice President Gore the winner of Florida, only 1 percent of the votes had been reported. Gov. Bush and Vice President Gore each had 49 percent. How in the world could they call the winner of a state with only 1 percent reporting and the vote a tie?

Then, as we all recall (after all the polls were closed in the Florida Panhandle), the networks, one by one, pulled the state of Florida back into the "to close to call" category. Democrats should have been outraged because voters on the west coast who heard Florida, Pennsylvania and Michigan were going for Gore, thinking Gore had won, could have decided not to vote, or to vote for Nader with no regrets because they thought Al Gore was going to win.

Republicans should have been even more furious because Republican voters in the Florida Panhandle who had heard the news, but not yet voted, may well have decided not to vote for a man they thought had already lost. Some people were standing in line to vote when they heard the announcement. What was their incentive to wait in line? Republican voters in the west also may not have bothered to vote for the same reasons — they thought there was no hope left. California had a much lower Republican turnout than expected.

This premature "call" by the media must certainly have had a huge cumulative effect on the popular vote total. With Florida's electoral votes in question, the national vote total has become the trump card for the Gore campaign. The networks have apologized. But make no mistake, a continuing story that affects the entire population increases the number of viewers, and that increases revenues for these networks. The point is that the networks aren't suffering from their mistakes — quite the contrary — but the American people are the ones adversely affected by the controversy. I am not saying the network media orchestrated this confusion intentionally, but they will be hard-pressed to make reforms if their mistakes benefit their own bottom line.

If the news media doesn't change its ways with regard to national election coverage, what can be done to prevent the premature declaration of winners that results in the large number of voters who are discouraged from casting their ballots — votes that may have been decisive in this election?

The short-term prediction I promised earlier is one answer to this question. I believe we will see legislation from the new 107th Congress proposing changes to the polling times for elections. If all polls were opened and closed nationwide at the same time — making the adjustments from one time zone to another, the apparent importance of an individual's vote would not be reduced based solely on his or her place of residence.

If the polls opened on the East Coast at 10 a.m. and closed at 10 p.m., for example, the polls on the West coast would open at 6 a.m. and be closed at 6 p.m. (Hawaii and Alaska may have to remain the exceptions.) People would be voting at the same time relative to each other. And the projected "winners" in the east would not affect peoples' votes on the west coast.

My long-term prediction is that this election will produce at least 100 trivial pursuit questions. Maybe my knowing a lot of the answers to those future questions will ease my stomach pains. For now, however, I am suffering from a feeling, as bipartisan as the flu, that a big injustice has been done.

Supreme Court ... New factor in election equation

By DAVID ESPO
AP Political Writer

The long, labored recount dragged on into the weekend in Florida's presidential election, with George W. Bush clinging to a lead and Al Gore gaining slowly. The U.S. Supreme Court decision to step in was the new — and perhaps finishing — element in a White House contest unlike any other.

Amidst the tumult, the state's top elections official served notice she will again attempt to declare a winner on Sunday evening. "This will be done publicly regardless of the outcome, which is, of course, unknown at this time," said Ben McKay, the top aide to Florida Secretary of State Katherine Harris.

McKay's delicate phrasing — "of course unknown" — didn't begin to describe events surrounding an election unsettled 17 days after the nation voted. Whomever wins Florida's 25 electoral votes wins the White House.

Gore was picking up votes as officials in Broward and Palm Beach Counties pressed ahead with manual recounts triggered by the Democrats.

"I feel we're racing against the clock but I feel we're going to make it," Palm Beach board member Carol Roberts said as Democrats hinted they may challenge the results in court.

Two senior members of Gore's legal team, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Saturday the vice president is seriously considering challenging the Palm Beach results, where election officials are using a standard for approving votes that is stricter than Gore wants. Gore wants all dimpled ballots — those indented but not punched through — counted, though the three-member board is only counting them when it's clear the voter had trouble punching the rest of the ballot, too.

The Gore team already has said it will contest results in Miami-Dade, which suspended its hand recount because the county couldn't meet the Sunday deadline, and, almost certainly, Nassau County, where the canvassing board decided to use the Nov. 7 vote totals instead of the results of a machine recount that missed about 200 presidential ballots. The decision resulted in a gain of 52 votes for Bush.

The maneuvering churned on against the backdrop of Republican running mate Dick Cheney's release from a Washington hospital. The 59-year-old vice presidential candidate said doctors had placed him under "no restrictions" that would interfere with him taking office.

Cheney told reporters he and Bush had talked by phone and chatted about his health. But he added, they also spent a lot of time talking about Florida, "which is what we usually talk about these days."

They weren't alone in that. Especially on a day when the U.S. Supreme Court said it would hear arguments on Dec. 1 on Bush's attempt to shut down the manual recounts that threaten his tenuous hold on the state that stands to pick the next president.

Bush found additional support when a spate of counties heeded his plea to reconsider overseas military absentee ballots originally rejected for faulty postmarks.

Going into Saturday, Bush held a lead of roughly 700 votes — down from 930 when the manual recounts began — with a 5 p.m. EST Sunday deadline set for the counting to stop. After that, Harris is permitted to certify a statewide winner under a Florida Supreme Court ruling.

Both campaigns said they might not accept that as final, though, and Gore's aides underscored the point.

"We believe we stand on both strong political and legal ground for fighting beyond Sunday," said Ron Klain, a Gore legal adviser, who cited an abrupt decision Wednesday by officials in Miami-Dade County to abandon their recount.

"We need a fair count of the ballots in question and that must include freedom from intimidation," said Gore's running mate, Sen. Joseph Lieberman of Connecticut.

Lieberman's annoyance with the Republicans' street protest tactics drew a Republican rebuttal.

"I don't recall Senator Lieberman opposing Jesse Jackson's organized protests orchestrated with the AFL-CIO in Palm Beach County," said Bush campaign spokesman Ari Fleischer.

In a letter to the Justice Department, Democratic members of Congress argued that protests that took place earlier in the week in Miami — cited by the canvassing board when it shut down its recount — "could amount to voter intimidation of federal law."

But former Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole shot back: "Members of Congress write letters by the hundreds. Some of them are even read."

The Supreme Court's decision to accept Bush's appeal was a surprise in some quarters because elections are often seen as state business, and an earlier Bush challenge had been turned back to the state by a federal appellate court.

The court set up a breakneck schedule for next week: legal briefs are due on Tuesday and responses Thursday, then 90 minutes of oral arguments starting at 10 a.m. Friday.

Bush sought the court's intervention after the Florida Supreme Court ruled unanimously to continue the state counting deadline from Nov. 17 to Nov. 26, and to allow election officials to consider a voter's intent in the case of disputed ballots.

Gore's lawyers had argued that the Florida process of recounts, punctuated by state court disputes over how to conduct them and whether to include disputed military ballots from abroad, was a state matter.

"The petition for a writ of certiorari is granted," the Supreme Court said, announcing it will hear the appeal next Friday, Dec. 1.

The court did nothing that would deter Harris from certifying the outcome of the election Sunday, scheduled for sometime after 6 p.m. EST. A strong Bush supporter, she had been to the brink of certification at least once before, when a different court intervened to stay her hand.

The Florida Supreme Court had ruled that the tally should include any recounted ballots certified by 5 p.m.

The winner stands to receive Florida's 25 electoral votes, enough for either Bush or Gore to gain the nationwide majority of 270 needed to claim the presidency.

The state's 25 electors must be chosen by Dec. 12.

And state Rep. Tom Feeney, a Republican and the new speaker of the Florida House, said GOP legislative leaders were seeking to intervene in the case before the high court to make sure the state wasn't disenfranchised by the lingering legal dispute.

Cam Knows Best among 20 horses killed in New Jersey farm barn fire

By JEFFREY GOLD
Associated Press Writer

MANALAPAN, N.J. (AP) — A banned electric water heater is being blamed for starting a barn fire that killed 20 horses, including world record-holder Cam Knows Best, the runner-up in the 1998 Little Brown Jug.

The fast-moving fire at Gaitway Farm is being investigated as a likely accident, and no criminal charges were expected.

Portable electric water heaters, used to prepare hot mash to feed horses, have been prohibited at Gaitway since one caused a minor fire three years ago, farm manager Timothy Hundertpfund said Friday.

"It's not permitted on the farm, but it's impossible to police everything," he said. "They must have left it in a bucket of water. The water evaporated, and the rest is history."

He stood next to the charred posts of Barn No. 5 as a front-end loader scooped carcasses from the mud and ash into a truck for disposal.

One horse was rescued from the fire at the 14-barn farm in central New Jersey, where hundreds of standardbreds train for races.

The Monmouth County prosecutor's office is attempting to contact the last person known to have been in the barn before the fire broke out late Thursday. Officials would not give his name.

"At this point we believe this is an accidental fire so we don't anticipate criminal charges," Deputy Monmouth County Fire Marshal Richard Hogan said.

Hogan said the electric heater was placed in a plastic bucket, despite a manufacturer recommendation that it should only be used in metal containers. Officials recovered the remains of the 2-foot-long metal coil, which had melted plastic stuck to it.

The device was also not to be left unattended, Hogan said. The bucket was against a wooden wall, where the fire started, he said.

The barn did not have fire or smoke alarms, or a sprinkler system, but none of those items were required, Hogan said.

The fire was roaring when firefighters arrived six minutes after the first call. "It went up very quickly. We could see flames miles away," Hogan said.

Barn No. 5 at Gaitway was a one-story wood-frame structure containing 30 stalls, county Fire Marshal Timothy J. Smith said. Horses are typically bedded on straw or wood chips, which readily fuel fires.

A passing motorist, Jeff Webster, saw the flames and ran into the burning barn. Webster, who has horses at a nearby farm, got one horse out of its stall, but the heat kept him from rescuing others.

Police Chief John G.

McCormack said his officers told him the dying horses were screaming in agony.

Five-year-old Cam Knows Best was co-holder of the world record for a mile on a five-eighths mile track. The horse had won $592,015 in 96 career starts, including 24 first-place finishes. He finished sixth in his last race, Nov. 13 at Dover Downs in Delaware.

As a 3-year-old, the horse lost the 1998 Little Brown Jug, the second of pacing's Triple Crown events, by a head to Shady Character. Pacing is a form of harness racing.

"He was good from the moment I had him," said his owner, Robert Glazer of New York. "It's really a tragedy for the sport and for humanity."

Man indicted in 1985 slaying on basis of DNA

ROSENBERG, Texas (AP) — A 37-year-old man has been indicted on murder charges in the 1985 slaying of his sister-in-law after DNA evidence led to his arrest, officials said.

Martin Charles Tonn Jr. of Destin, Fla., is accused of killing Cathy Keith, 20, in the Houston suburb of Rosenberg by cutting her throat. In September, Rosenberg police arrested Tonn at his mother's funeral in Alabama in connection with the 15-year-old crime.

He was indicted on murder charges Monday by a Fort Bend County grand jury, according to Friday editions of the Rosenberg newspaper, The Herald-Coaster.

The arrest was made after police discovered DNA evidence they believed linked him to the slaying of Keith and her mother, Peggy Keith, 44. Rosenberg police Lt. Brad Rollins said Tonn has not been charged in connection with the death of the mother because the DNA evidence was found only on the daughter's body.

Son, FBI probe death in Randall Co. jail

HOUSTON (AP) — Federal authorities have joined a Houston-area man in probing the death of his father, a retired truck driver with a history of alcohol and mental problems, in a Panhandle jail this summer.

The FBI is investigating how Edward J. Fancher, 47, of Fritch, died July 19 in the Randall County jail in Canyon, where he had been held for two weeks on a charge of misdemeanor theft by check. The U.S. Department of Justice will review the investigation to determine if criminal charges are warranted, the Houston Chronicle reported Saturday.

The Lubbock County Medical Examiner's Officer ruled that the retired trucker died from hyper-tensive heart disease. Hepatitis C and chronic alcoholism were listed as factors and the autopsy also found Fancher suffered from cirrhosis of the liver. It also lists more than two dozen bruises.

A coroner's photograph shows Fancher with a bloody face, his eyes swollen shut, large bruises on his face and a 3-inch dent in his forehead.

Jail and county officials claim Fancher's injuries were self-inflicted from beating his head against his cell floor and falling off a bunk bed.

His son, John Fancher, 24, of Clear Lake City, says that doesn't explain his father's badly bruised face or the bruises on his arms, legs and chest.

"I'm not denying anything about him having cirrhosis or heart problems. But why was he in this shape?" John Fancher said.

Pesticide applicators need CEUs to renew licenses

AUSTIN — As the deadline approaches, Agriculture Commissioner Susan Combs reminds pesticide applicators to obtain the necessary continuing education units (CEUs) to renew their licenses. Many private applicators, as well as all commercial and noncommercial applicators, face a Feb. 28, 2001, renewal date. Private certificate holders face a Dec. 31, 2000, deadline.

Applicators should be sure TDA has their correct address to avoid a delay in receiving their renewal and keeping their license current. Call 1-800-TELL-TDA or e-mail changes to rrivera@agr.state.tx.us.

"There are many options for obtaining the required CEUs," Combs said. "Applicators can attend CEU courses, complete a self-study course at home, or even obtain CEUs over the Internet."

"The information provided in the CEU classes helps applicators stay informed of changing regulations as well as new products and new application methods. Education is vital for proper and safe pesticide use," Combs said.

Applicators will receive a certificate of completion at the end of each course. They should hold onto these for a year after they have renewed their license. The certificate contains the course number and CEU hours completed. The applicator transfers this information to the renewal form he or she receives in the mail in December or January.

This renewal cycle will be especially large, Combs said. "More than 26,000 private applicator licenses or certificates will be due for renewal, which is more than twice the normal number."

Private applicators must renew their license every five years and obtain 15 CEUs during that period. Two credits must be in integrated pest management and two in laws and regulations.

All private applicators may earn the required credits by passing a comprehensive recertification exam. This test costs $50 for each attempt. After passing, an applicator will receive a certificate of completion for 15 CEUs.

Licensed private applicators cannot retake the private applicator training course and test to renew their license in place of getting the CEUs. A license must have been expired for a year before an applicator can retake the private applicator training test.

Private certificate holders must also obtain 15 CEUs to keep their certificate current. While the certificate never expires, an applicator cannot purchase or apply restricted-use or state-limited-use pesticides or regulated herbicides unless the CEUs are kept up-to-date. A certificate holder who has never obtained a private applicator license may take the private applicator training and obtain a private applicator license instead of earning the CEUs. However, they will be required to earn 15 CEUs over the next five-year cycle.

Commercial and noncommercial applicators renew each year and must earn five CEUs annually, including one CEU in each of two of the following categories: laws and regulations, integrated pest management and drift minimization.

Applicators can obtain a list of approved courses or other information on CEU courses by calling 1-800-TELL-TDA or (512) 463-7622 or by logging on to TDA's website www.agr.state.tx.us/pesticide/ceuhome.htm.

Study says hog industry can afford lagoon elimination

By ESTES THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Companies that buy hogs from farmers contribute to the problem of foul-smelling waste lagoons and should not shirk helping to finance alternate technology to handle hog wastes, an environmental group contends.

Environmental Defense studied alternate technology and pork company finances before drawing the conclusion that the processing industry can afford the expense. The pork industry questioned the findings as premature.

"The question is always asked, 'Is this affordable?' Since no one has gotten beyond the rhetoric of cost, we're trying to provide an answer," said Dan Whittle, an attorney with Environmental Defense.

On major hog farms, waste from hogs falls into channels in the barn floor, then are mixed with water and piped to ponds called lagoons. Natural processes break down the waste, and the liquid is drawn off and applied to fields as fertilizer.

The average cost for changing from lagoons to new technology would be 2 cents to 3 cents per pound of pork, said Kathy Cochran, an economist with the group.

Critics of the lagoon system complain of the smell that permeates nearby areas and of potential dangers to the environment when lagoons burst. The most notorious case in North Carolina was the breach of a lagoon in 1995 at an Onslow County farm in the state's eastern part and sent 25 million gallons of feces, urine and water into the New River.

North Carolina State University is studying feasible alternatives to lagoons to handle the 50,000 tons of waste generated every day by the state's 10 million hogs. Smithfield Foods donated $15 million to the research and has offered to help its farmers install new technology once it is identified.

Beth Ann Mumford of the North Carolina Pork Council said the Environmental Defense study overlooks efforts already under way to deal with the problem.

Agreements between the state and Smithfield and other producers "pretty much recognize that we don't know whether there are cost-effective and viable alternatives out there," she said. "Any conversation now as to who should pay for what is irrelevant until we know what we're looking at."

Whittle said the Environmental Defense study showed companies can afford to take a larger role in paying for the conversion from lagoons to other waste disposal methods. He said the study showed the $2 billion pork industry is robust even when pork prices are down.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The number of farms being sold is expected to continue increasing as development pressures raise farmland's value and as aging farmers approach retirement with few of their children wanting to take over.

More than 15,000 homes have been built in Oldham, Shelby, Spencer and Bullitt counties in the past decade, making them among Kentucky's fastest-growing spots. In all, close to 70,000 acres of farmland have disappeared in the counties in the 10 years before 1997, the latest figure available.

The building boom comes as development land in Louisville's Jefferson County is fast depleting. The county's population grew by only 1.2 percent in the past decade, which leaves farmers in surrounding counties with a major role in determining the speed and location of the area's growth.

"For a long time, people said they would never sell. But that has changed in the last two to three years," said Kevin Jeffries, an Oldham County farmer. "A lot of the farms in Oldham County have a lot of history. It kind of tears at people."

Groups pushing veggie production in N. Dakota

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — A group that helped bring a potato processing plant to the state now is working with irrigators and others to bring onions, carrots and cabbage to North Dakota fields.

Central Dakota Growers, a farmer cooperative formed in 1991 primarily to spearhead the Aviko french fry plant project, is working with the North Dakota Irrigation Caucus, the High Value Irrigated Crops Task Force and economic development groups in several cities.

The goal is to develop the production of other vegetables to complement the already strong potato industry in the state, said Maynard Helgaas, president of Central Dakota Growers.

"We started with potatoes because that was where the (market) interest was," the farnestown farmer and equipment dealer said. "Our mission is to add other high-value crops."

Members of Central Dakota Growers plan to expand the group's focus, become a statewide organization and change its name to Commercial Vegetable Growers.

Cattle on feed report ...

AUSTIN — Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in Texas feedlots with capacity of 1,000 head or more totaled 3.03 million head on Nov. 1, up 3 percent from a year ago. According to the monthly report released by the Texas Agricultural Statistics Service, the estimate was up 4 percent from the Oct. 1 level. Producers placed 670,000 head in commercial feedlots during October, down 17 percent from a year ago and down 4 percent from the September 2000 total.

Texas commercial feeders marketed 530,000 head during October, unchanged from a year ago. Monthly marketings were down 4 percent from the September 2000 total.

On Nov. 1, there were 2.45 million head of cattle and calves on feed in the Northern High Plains, 81 percent of the state's total. The number on feed across the area was up 4 percent from last year and from the October total.

October placements in the Northern High Plains totaled 544,000 head, a drop of 4 percent from the September total. Marketings were down 4 percent from last month to 433,000 head.

Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market in the United States in feedlots with a capacity of 1,000 head or more totaled 11.9 million head on Nov. 1, 2000. This inventory was 3 percent above Nov. 1, 1999.

Placements in feedlots during October totaled 2.83 million head, 9 percent below October 1999. During October, placements of cattle and calves weighing less than 600 pounds totaled 1.07 million head; 600-699 pounds totaled 755,000 head; 700-799 pounds totaled 531,000 head; 800 pounds and greater totaled 477,000 head. Marketings of fed cattle during October totaled 1.92 million head, 4 percent above October 1999 and 8 percent above 1998.

Feeders in the historical seven monthly states with feedlots having a capacity of 1,000 head or more reported 10.2 million head on feed on Nov. 1, up 4 percent from last year and 11 percent above Nov. 1, 1998.

October placements totaled 2.39 million head, 9 percent below 1999 and slightly below 1998. Marketings during October, at 1.65 million head, were 5 percent above 1999 and 7 percent above 1998.

Dry conditions frustrate farmers down South

By ELLIOTT MINOR
Associated Press Writer

SYLVESTER, Ga. (AP) — Jerald Carter struggled to keep his peanuts and cotton alive during the summer drought. Now that those crops are almost harvested, he has another concern: Will his land receive enough rain to germinate winter wheat seed.

It's extremely dry from southwestern Virginia to eastern Louisiana, forcing producers to feed cattle the hay they would normally use during the coldest winter months and hindering the planting of winter wheat and other cover crops.

"The pastures are in bad shape," said Becky Walton, a spokeswoman for the South Carolina Department of Agriculture. "They're feeding their hay now, and South Carolina is a hay-deficit state. When we have a shortage — when it doesn't rain and we don't get the growing season we need — they have to use what they have stored for winter."

Winter wheat is a relatively minor crop in the South, compared with tobacco, peanuts and cotton. Eighteen states, mostly in the West and Midwest, produced the bulk of the crop last year. The leading Southern states were Texas, with 6.2 million acres, North Carolina, with 650,000 and Tennessee with 500,000.

Southern farmers are expected to devote about 11 million acres to the crop this year, including 8.5 million acres in Texas, 720,000 acres in North Carolina and 580,000 acres in Tennessee.

The National Agricultural Statistics Service reports that rain has held up planting in Texas and low moisture has stressed the crop in North Carolina.

Carter and other Georgia farmers are expected to plant 250,000 acres of winter wheat, worth between $30 million and $40 million.

Carter has a plastic rain gauge mounted to a fence post near his office in a weathered, 75-year-old farm house with three rocking chairs on the front porch. His 2,000-acre farm is located near a southwestern Georgia community called Anderson City, about 10 miles south of Sylvester. Farmers gather at Carter's Grocery, built by his father in 1947, to sip coffee and chat.

Carter, 58, and his 27-year-old son, Joel, grow winter wheat to protect their land from wind and soil erosion. They reap a small profit from it in the spring, when few other crops are mature.

"There's not much money in it to begin with. If you have to water it, you're backing up," said Jerald Carter, who has irrigation but is reluctant to use it because it increases production costs.

Some of the Carters' ponds ran dry during the summer, leaving 120 acres of cotton and 160 acres of peanuts to wither in the intense heat and sunshine.

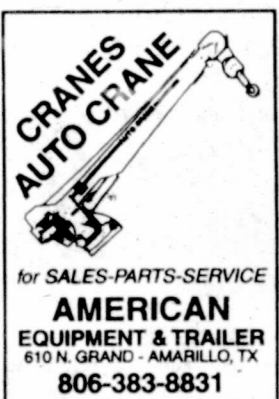

Joel Carter, who has been farming six years, said low commodity prices and the drought have made him question his choice of occupations.

Dewey Lee, a University of Georgia grain agronomist, said higher fuel prices and low commodity prices probably will mean fewer acres of wheat in Georgia during the current planting season.

Wheat is especially popular with farmers who practice conservation tillage, also known as limited-till farming. They harvest the wheat or kill it with herbicides in the spring and plant cotton or peanuts in the stubble. Instead of plowing the field, they use a tool that makes a small groove in the soil, just large enough for the seed.

"It increases organic matter, helps with erosion and increases the water holding capacity (of the soil)," said extension agent Scott Monfort. "It saves time and trips across the field."

Big Spring needs help spreading holiday cheer

BIG SPRING — Big Spring State Hospital patients celebrate the Christmas holidays with a whirlwind of festivities, parties and presents, but the holidays aren't filled with hordes of family members. Instead volunteers are ever present to make this a special time of year for people who are receiving intensive, psychiatric care away from home.

"Spending the holidays in the hospital can be depressing for many people," said hospital director of Community Relations Billie Russworm. "Many of our patients are separated from family and friends. Receiving a new, wrapped gift Christmas morning can mean the difference to many between having a good day or a bad day."

Big Spring State Hospital is run under the auspices of the Texas Department of Mental Health Mental Retardation. The state only pays for necessary services; all the extras which make a patient's stay more pleasant are provided by the hospital's Volunteer Services Council.

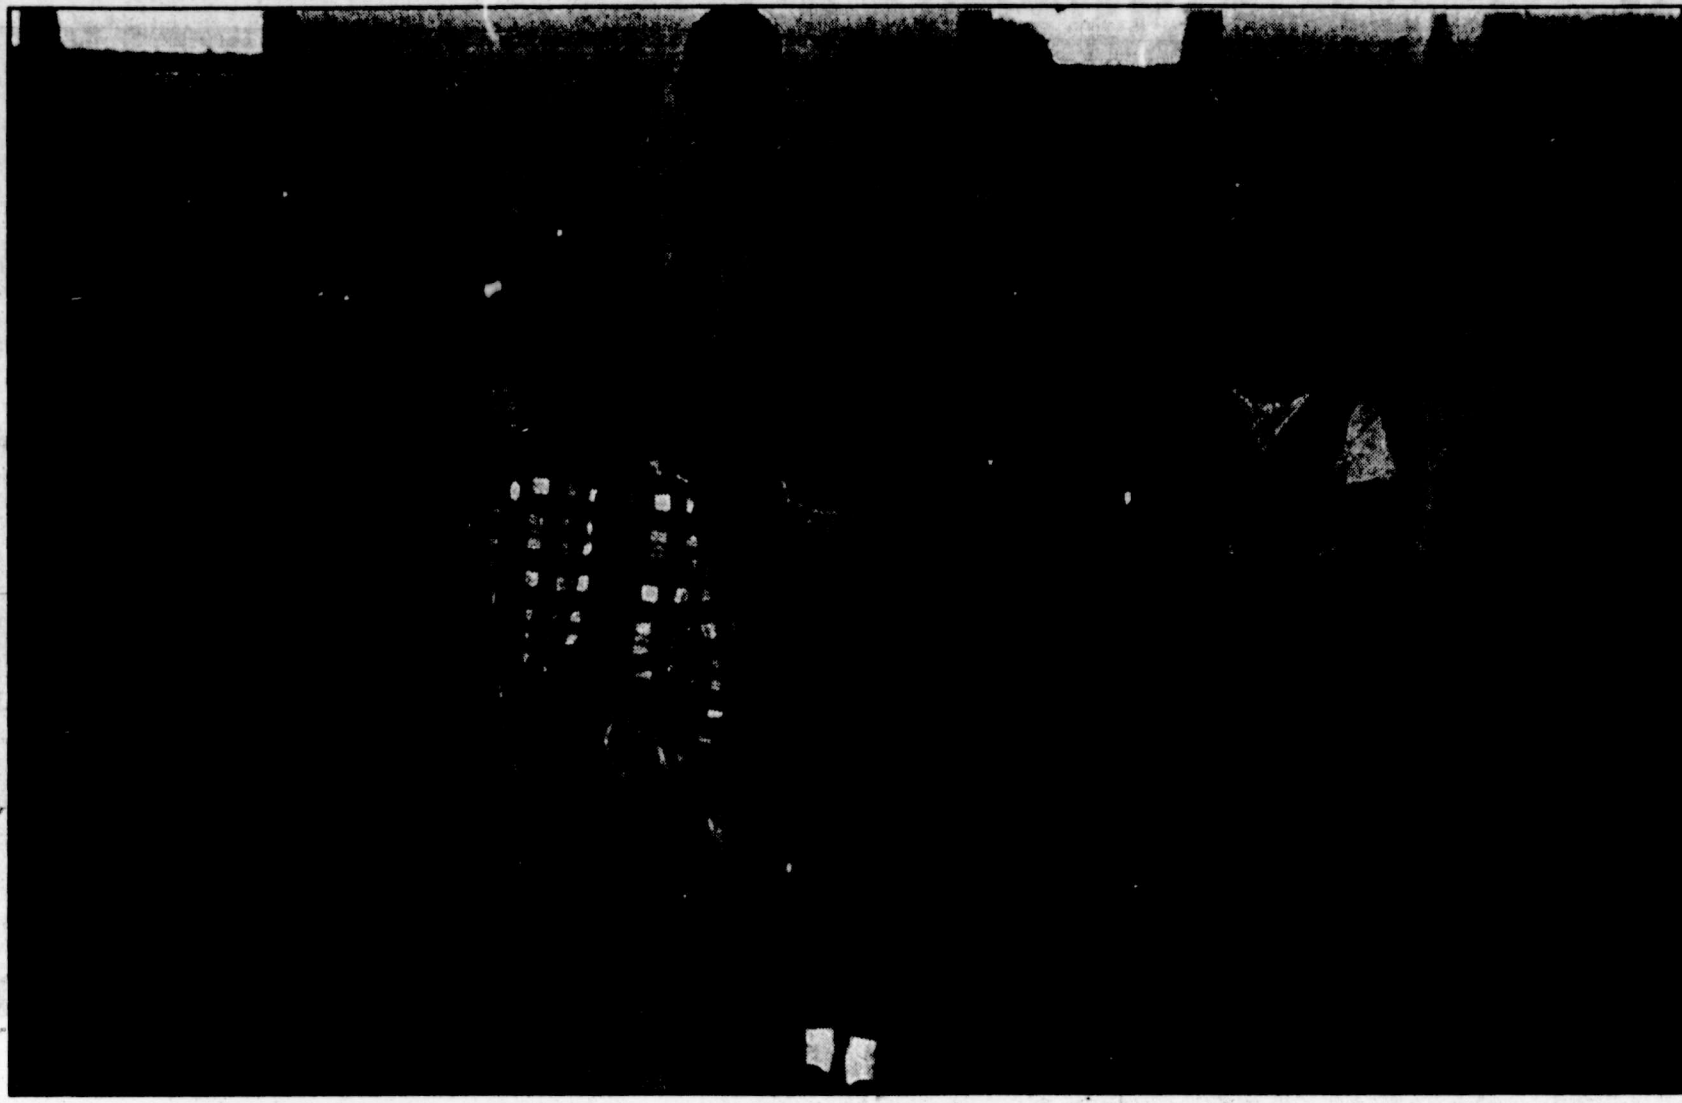

The 240 volunteers shop, wrap and donate gifts for the 202 patients. Last year, patients were given new jogging suits which were made available by $15 donations. Patients will receive jogging suits this year, but only if donations are received to purchase the outfits.

"We are suggesting that groups, maybe Sunday school classes purchase suits for an entire unit," Russworm said.

Although cash donations are always needed, other new items are in demand to provide two presents on Christmas morning for the patients. Grooming supplies, card games and house shoes are always popular with patients.

Big Spring State Hospital serves people in 78 counties from the Texas Panhandle to West Texas. For more information or to make a donation, call (915) 268-7535 or (915) 268-7533.

Fourth annual Ultimate Drive is success

AMARILLO — Organizers of the fourth annual BMW Ultimate Drive breast cancer fund-raiser held recently at the Autoplex in Amarillo reported a total of 2,313 miles driven with BMW of North America donating $1 for every mile to the Susan G. Komen Foundation.

One hundred and forty-two participated in the Ultimate Drive in Amarillo racking up 262 test drives of the new 2001 BMW cars. The event was sponsored by The Autoplex, the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center, the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation and BMW of North America.

Over $3 million has been raised so far this year.

Following the fund-raiser in Amarillo, Harrington Cancer Center volunteers drove 11 vehicles to Oklahoma City, site of the next Ultimate Drive, bringing the total to 5,329 miles and resulting in $5,329 going to the Komen Foundation.

During this year's Ultimate Drive, local "Hero" Melonye Curtis was recognized for her contributions toward the fight against breast cancer. Her picture was affixed to the "signature" vehicle along with over 200 other photos of local community "heroes."

In addition, participants in the Ultimate Drive were encouraged to sign their name to the signature vehicle.

TDH to hold Toy Sweep

AUSTIN — The time from peeking at a carefully drawn up wish list to filling out a shopping bag is a short one, often crammed into hectic hours of scanning store shelves to find just the right item to make a child happy.

Product Safety Division inspectors at the Texas Department of Health want those selections to be not only good matches to fulfill desires but safe ones as well. Awareness is the key.

To emphasize that awareness, TDH inspectors make the rounds of retail stores several days each fall, looking for children's items that have been recalled. The 2000 Toy Sweep is set for four days at the end of November and the beginning of December. Each inspector will have a list of 10 items geared toward children that have been listed as recalled items since the first of the year by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC).

"The toy sweep is a reminder to both consumers and retailers that some items are not safe for children and have been recalled," said Charles Branton, director of the TDH Product Safety Division. "These recalled items should not be out on shelves for sale."

This year the list includes two items that are meant to ensure safety — bicycle helmets from Rand International and Cycle Express, Inc. Other items include Fisher-Price's Lift & Lock Swing and Get Up & Go Walkers; Knart children's decorative lamps; Playskool Klackeroo toys; Galoob Toys, Inc., Sky Dancers flying dolls; Today's Kids Music & Lights Kidaround Spinner; Playtex Classic Patterns Cherubs and Soft Comfort latex pacifiers; Shelcore, Inc., Stand-Up 'N Play Tables; and Playskool Busy Poppin' Pals toys.

These items are 10 out of hundreds recalled annually, and TDH's product safety inspectors investigate problems and head off potential dangers year round. Reasons for recalls include head injuries, falls, bruises and cuts, choking, eye injuries, broken teeth, broken bones, mild concussions, lacerations and fire hazards.

"We check for dangerous children's products all the time," Branton said.

CPSC sends its recall notices to major retail stores across the country. Store managers then are to remove these recalled items and return them to the manufacturer. Some stores also post notices to inform consumers who may have bought the item before the recall.

"We do find items still for sale from time to time," Branton said. "The retailer may not have received the recall or the items may have been overlooked. Most retailers are happy to have our help getting unsafe items off the shelves." Inspectors who find a recalled item still for sale will ask the store manager to remove the item and return it to the manufacturer.

Even with toys manufactured correctly, problems may arise when a child is not the right age for the item. What may be safe and appropriate for children of one age group may be uninteresting or dangerous for youngsters of different ages or skill levels.

Labels help answer many questions about a toy's safety and suitability. "Consumers should take manufacturer recommendations seriously," Branton said. "If the label says the item is not recommended for a child under 3 years of age, then it isn't. It may have parts or strings that can choke or strangle a young child."

A good toy should be:
—Safe for that child's age, well constructed and durable.
—Appealing and interesting to the child.
—Suited to the child's physical capabilities.

Letters to the editor

Society as a whole must make better choices ...

To the editor,
Recidivism rates are at an all-time high. One out of every three offenders is returned to prison within five years of release. Who bears the blame for our nation's prisons being filled to capacity? The break-down of the family unit and society's changing attitude toward crime and punishment, while certainly major factors, are far from being the only ones.

The problem is an epidemic and will require the concerted efforts of all of society to control. Programs which address the social problems that oftentimes lead to prison are desperately needed. We must strengthen the programs all ready in place which encourage reform. We must address the issues which face those newly released from prison. And, we must educate society as a whole; not least of which are the individuals who repeatedly return to a life of crime.

"Get tough on crime" attitudes in the past five years have resulted in more offenders being incarcerated than ever before. However, what can be said of a society which locks up its children? Surely the money being spent on incarcerated youthful offenders would be better spent on programs designed to counteract the problems which are destroying our nation's most precious natural resource.

In recent years, it has become clear that rehabilitation within the prison setting does not always work. The very atmosphere of prison is detrimental to everything conducive of being a productive member of society.

More rehabilitation should be done outside the prison environment through alternative sentencing which targets young law-breakers who might benefit from rehabilitative efforts. Undoubtedly, responsible parents have the strongest influence on a child's development, but according to statistics, social influence is a close second.

Society must therefore produce more mentors, more role models and more volunteers to participate in programs designed to guide youths who've gone astray. Locking our children up with hardened criminals who have nothing better to offer them than socially unacceptable behavior is not the answer. The children we are allowing to slip through the cracks today are as much a part of our future as the ones we manage to save.

No one expects prisons to compete with institutions of higher learning, but there are serious flaws in the prison education system. Existing programs designed to prepare incarcerated offenders for life in a free society are few and far between.

Many of those which do exist are merely store-fronts propped in place as a means of artificially boosting budget requirements. Others are poorly administered. More emphasis is put into filling some programs with warm bodies than into their proper administration and operation.

Correctional facilities must do more of what their name suggests — correct. More effort must be put into accomplishing all four goals of the corrective process: Retribution, deterrence, protection of society and rehabilitation.

Much more needs to be done to help re-integrate the hordes of men and women released from prison daily back into the folds of society. However, the lion's share of an offender's rehabilitative success resides with the individual and greatly depends upon his or her need or desire to change.

Although it's true that in many cases the only education readily accessible in prison is of a stock not digestible by society's standards, there are tens of thousands of incarcerated individuals who will attest to the hundreds of sources which offer educational and self-improvement opportunities to those willing to seek them out.

Certainly the X used by society to identify ex-felons makes obtaining suitable employment, among other things, nearly impossible. However, there are millions of ex-cons who choose not to re-offend. Although we can't always control the things that happen to us, we can all choose how we react to them.

In essence, that's what it's all about, the choices we make. Society as a whole must make better choices if we ever hope to see a decline in prison population.

Theater group includes many talented performers

To the editor,
I want to take the time to tell the people of the Pampa area about a wonderful group of people. The ACT I people. "The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940" was an excellent play!

I don't think the people of Pampa realize what talented people we have in this area. This was the first time I had attended a play. In fact, I went twice! It was very funny and well done.

I encourage the people in the Pampa area to see the plays that ACT I performs. I intend to see every play they have! So, to the cast and workers of "The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940," you did a superb job and were "simply divoon!" (Those of you who saw the play know what that means!)

Dalmatian movie puts breed in spotlight's harsh glare

To the editor,
Starting this Thanksgiving, moviegoers will be bombarded with spots — Dalmatian spots — as "101 Dalmatians" opens in movie theaters across the country. While the on-screen pups will be doing all sorts of amazing and adorable things, Pampa's Animal Control is urging Pampa and the surrounding communities to think carefully before acquiring a Dalmatian puppy.

With the timing of the release so close to the winter gift-giving season, a Dalmatian puppy is sure to top the list of children everywhere. But parents beware — the dogs you see in the movie aren't typical Dalmatians. The breed is prone to skin allergies and deafness, and they aren't the best dog to have if there are children in the household. They are an extremely active breed and require a large amount of exercise and attention. Training is essential and not always easily accomplished.

According to the Humane Society of the United States, within a year of the 1996 movie release of "101 Dalmatians," animal shelters and humane organizations nationwide were bombarded with Dalmatians purchased on a whim then later turned over when people found out what a Dalmatian is really like. Animal control received a large number of Dalmatians that year, and nationwide, HSUS estimates that Dalmatian relinquishments increased on average of 25 percent after "101 Dalmatians."

"People buy these dogs without knowing anything about the breed other than what they look like," said Sandy Burns, local Animal Control supervisor. "Most people aren't prepared for a dog that sheds all year round and can be destructive when left alone for long periods. These dogs don't just sleep all day."

Humane organizations have tried to work with Disney executives to educate moviegoers about the true nature of Dalmatians, and Disney officials have told HSUS that a statement will appear after the closing credits, but by then most people will have left the theater, perhaps with the thought of buying a Dalmatian.

"We are disappointed that Disney is not making more of an effort to protect these dogs who have created a huge profit for the company," Burns concluded.

Plan would better serve Gray County taxpayers

To the editor,
I'm an inmate in Gray County Jail. I would like to talk about inmates and tax money. I've been here for 27 days and I had a thought.

I had a talk with some of my fellow inmates about just sitting here in jail, about going out to work and doing work in the communities. I'm an inmate here at this jail. It's Nov. 7, 2000, and I'm cleaning. I had a thought in the summer — what about if every inmate who wanted to be put on a work program be able to?

What I mean when I say every inmate is those who have been to court and even those who have not. Now, you may be thinking what does this have to do with your tax dollars?

Well, this: If your tax dollars are going to be spent on this jail and feeding, clothing, cable TV, heat, air conditioning, doctors, trips to the hospital, medicines and so many other things, would you as taxpayers like to see inmates work? Because we sure want to do something besides sit here and get fat at your cost.

I asked a few inmates this question. How would you feel about getting up at 5:30 a.m. or 6 a.m. every morning for six days a week and going out on the highways, cutting grass, six- to eight-hours a day? A lot of them said "I think you have a good idea. It would make our judgment go a lot quicker and take our minds off a lot of other things."

So with this kind of response, I think something should be done. I asked another question now that it is snowing and we have the elderly and disabled, what about shoveling snow out of their driveways, trash, cutting grass in summer and getting snow off walkways in winter to make the communities cleaner. Again the inmates had no problem.

There are a lot of old houses all over this town that need to come down, so to save more of our taxpayers' money let's put the Gray Co. inmates to work on this. Instead of spending all this big money let's save and put that money to work elsewhere. That's how I feel.

Notebook OBITUARY

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Texas Coaches Hall of Fame member Richard Marler from Port Arthur has died in a Houston hospital. He was 57.

A Floydada native and Texas Tech graduate, Marler had been in a coma the past three months since being hospitalized for an Aug. 20 heart attack. He died Wednesday.

The executive director and founder of the six-year-old Southeast Texas High School Coaches Association, Marler received statewide recognition for pushing legislation to reduce the original no-pass, no-play penalty in half — to three weeks from its original six-week disqualification of students from any extracurricular activities.

Marler led Port Arthur Austin and Jefferson high schools to 11 playoff berths in 26 head coaching seasons, leading two teams to the 3A state semifinals and compiling a .589 winning percentage.

He had been head football coach at Jefferson since 1998, and coached at Port Arthur Austin from 1975 to 1997.

HOCKEY

DALLAS (AP) — Ed Belfour's recent shutout streak has him on pace to shatter one of the NHL's longest-standing modern goalie records.

Belfour made 23 saves in the Dallas Stars' 3-0 victory over the Columbus Blue Jackets on Friday night giving him third straight shutout, and a league-best six in 21 games.

Chicago's Tony Esposito holds the modern single-season record of 15, set in 1969-70.

"He's a tremendous goalie, probably a Hall of Fame goalie," Columbus coach Dave King. "And he's on a team that plays a great team concept and great team defense. So he's got a chance."

Belfour extended his scoreless streak to a career-high and franchise-record 190 minutes and 44 seconds as the Stars remained unbeaten in five straight.

"Eddie's making big saves with the game on the line and we're able to protect leads," coach Ken Hitchcock said, "When he smells it, he really hunkers down."

The shutout was the 54th of Belfour's career, and moved him into sole possession of 14th place on the NHL's career list.

"I'm getting a few breaks right now and I'm seeing the puck really well," Belfour said. "Sometimes you get on a roll in the nets and you get some shutouts. Right now our team is playing really well in front of me, very consistent."

The record for shutouts in a season is 22 by George Hainesworth of the Montreal Canadiens in 1928-29.

Belfour's toughest test came with 5:05 to play when he stopped Robert Kron on a breakaway.

With three straight shutouts, Belfour matched the franchise record set by Cesare Maniago with the Minnesota North Stars in December 1967. Belfour also broke Maniago's franchise-record shutout streak of 188:38.

Jamie Langenbrunner and Joe Nieuwendyk scored first-period goals for the Stars, who are 4-0-1 in their last five.

"We're playing with a lot of confidence, and it seems like Eddie's got that playoff mentality," Langenbrunner said.

Mike Modano added his seventh goal of the season with 8:50 remaining.

Columbus lost its fourth in a row.

The Stars took a 1-0 lead at 4:22 of the first on Langenbrunner's third goal, a one-timer from the slot off a feed from Nieuwendyk.

Dallas made it 2-0 at 15:52 of the first when Nieuwendyk converted Langenbrunner's centering pass six seconds after the Stars began a power play.

The Stars are 9-0-2 when they score first.

Wheeler falls to Springlake-Earth

AMARILLO — Wheeler's season came to a heartbreaking end Friday afternoon in a Class 1A Area playoff game in Dick Bivins Stadium.

Springlake-Earth slipped past Wheeler 23-21 by scoring a safety with just 1:35 remaining in the game.

The two teams were tied 14-14 at halftime. Caleb Finisterwald scored on an 82-yard run and Justin Chapman slipped over from the 1-yard line for the Wheeler touchdowns.

S-E jumped in front in the third quarter as Chance Furr threw a 36-yard scoring pass to Slade Quisenberry.

Wheeler knotted the score in the fourth quarter at 21-21. Chapman scored another touchdown on a 1-yard run.

With just 4:14 left, it looked like the contest might be headed into overtime until the two-point safety dashed Wheeler hopes.

Finisterwald was Wheeler's leading rusher with 124 yards on 20 carries while Chapman added 100 yards on 25 carries. Chris Gallagher added 46 yards on eight tries.

Chapman, Wheeler's quarterback, completed one of two pass attempts, a 15-yarder to Gavin McQueen.

Furr, S-E's quarterback, paced his team in rushing with 85 yards on 19 tries. He also scored twice. Josh Maddox chipped in 51 yards on seven tries.

Wheeler led in total yardage, 270 to 185. Wheeler also had a 14-11 edge in first downs.

Wheeler closes its season at 7-5 while S-F (9-2) advances to the regional round of the playoffs. It was the first time in four years that the Mustangs failed to reach the regional round.

Simms quarterbacks Longhorns to victory over Aggies

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chris Simms had been waiting for a breakout game since he first stepped on the Texas campus as the nation's most-heralded high school quarterback.

Two seasons later, he finally got it. That he did it on national television against archrival Texas A&M made it even sweeter.

Simms passed for 383 yards and three touchdowns Friday as No. 12 Texas beat the No. 22 Aggies 43-17 in a victory that erased some bad memories for the Longhorns and their sophomore QB.

Texas and Simms started their season with promise and high expectations. The Longhorns were ranked in the top 10. Simms started the first game after an intense preseason battle with Major Applewhite.

Halfway through the season, Texas was unranked and Simms, the son of former New York Giants QB Phil Simms, was on the bench.

Simms got the start Friday because Applewhite was hobbled by a knee injury. Coming into the game, he had thrown more interceptions (7) than touchdowns (5) and four of his pickoffs had been returned for touchdowns.

"This year's been ups and downs and bumps and bruises," Simms said. "I knew I had to learn from everything that was happening. It was part of growing up. Today was a real big redemption."

Simms got his first career start against A&M last year when Applewhite got sick with a stomach virus on game day. Simms led Texas to a 16-6 lead in that game before he was pulled for Applewhite and A&M rallied for a 20-16 win.

This time, Simms was spectacular. And in total control.

With Texas clinging to a 10-7 halftime lead, he was a perfect 8-for-8 passing for 234 yards and threw all of his touchdown passes in an explosive third quarter in which the teams combined for 37 points.

"Chris played awesome," said B.J. Johnson, whose 187 receiving yards broke the Texas freshman mark of 175 set earlier this season by Roy Williams.

"He stepped up in a big game and played his heart out. Today, he showed what he can do and what kind of power he has on the football field," Johnson said.

Texas (9-2, 7-1 Big 12) opened the decisive third quarter by driving 71 yards on four plays. Williams' 40-yard TD run on a reverse capped the drive.

After forcing the Aggies to punt, Texas quickly struck again when Simms finished an 81-yard drive with a 20-yard scoring strike to Williams that made it 24-7.

The Aggies (7-4, 5-3) rallied behind 25-year-old quarterback Mark Farris to pull to 24-14 on a 56-yard scoring pass to Mickey Jones. Jones beat two defenders and tightroped down the left sideline for the score.

Farris finished with 290 yards and set A&M's single-season record with 2,551 yards but had three turnovers.

Unlike previous games, when Simms would try to force a pass into coverage with his strong arm, he never wavered. Instead, he quickly turned the momentum back to Texas.

On the Longhorns' next drive, he hit Sloan Thomas on a deep out pattern. Thomas broke a tackle and turned it into a 55-yard touchdown play.

Simms struck again later in the quarter when he pump-faked on another out pattern and launched a 70-yard bomb to Johnson that made it 37-17.

"I focused all week on playing smart and not making any mistakes. In knew we were good enough to beat these guys. The game went on and I was starting to see things more clearly," he said.

"I never felt like I was going to throw a pick. I was real comfortable," Simms said.

Although it can't win the Big 12, Texas has won six straight since a 63-14 loss to Oklahoma. The win also gave the Longhorns their third consecutive nine-win season under coach Mack Brown, the first time the Longhorns have accomplished that feat since 1981-83.

It is also likely to put Texas back into the Top 10 for the first time since early September.

"How does this win stack up? Tonight, it's the biggest I've ever had," Brown said.

Farris, who came to A&M after a stint playing minor league baseball and had been praised by Aggies coaches for his poise this season, made two critical mistakes.

His first pass of the game was picked off by Greg Brown, who returned it 10 yards for a 7-0 Texas lead in the opening minutes.

"It's not the way you want to start," said Texas A&M head coach R.C. Sluicum.

A&M was driving for the go-ahead touchdown in the second quarter when Farris fumbled the ball on the Texas 9.

The game was the kind of shootout the 106-year-old rivalry needed.

State bragging rights were overshadowed last year by the A&M bonfire tragedy. Twelve people were killed and dozens more injured when the log stack for traditional pre-game blaze collapsed.

Still up in the air are bowl options for both teams. Although Texas can't win the Big 12, the Longhorns haven't yet been released by the Bowl Championship Series. The Holiday and Cotton bowls are possible destinations.

The Aggies are most likely destined for the Alamo, Insight.com or Independence bowls.

Pampa Pacers lose overtime game vs. Amarillo Bible Heritage

AMARILLO — The Pampa Pacers lost a close game in overtime to Bible Heritage of Amarillo 71-68 in recent boys' basketball action.

Leading Pampa was Bryce Taylor with 39 points and 15 rebounds. Chad Sublett and Coy Devoll had 12 and 10 points, respectively, while Marlon Echols had 7.

The Pacers met Bethel Baptist of El Paso in the first round of the Faith Temple Invitational Tournament. Bryce Taylor dominated the scoring and rebounding to lead Pampa to its second win of the season 49-42. Taylor scored 24 points and pulled down 21 rebounds. Coy Devoll had 12 points, Chad Sublett 10 and Marlon Echols a 3-pointer.

In the tournament semifinals, Pampa lost to Conquerors of Faith Temple 83-51. Talented depth on the bench led to the Conquerors win. Taylor had 21 points while Echols had 10, Sublett 9, Devoll 8 and Luke Raber 2.

In the consolation game, Pampa met the Amarillo Homeschool Flames. The Pacers got off to a slow start against the Flames and were never able to gain the lead.

Raber each had 2 baskets to give the Pacers 39 points compared to 81 for the Flames.

Foul trouble hurt the Pacers in a 75-45 loss to McLean on Tuesday night.

Taylor led Pampa with 19 points and 20 rebounds. Sublett had 7 points and 10 rebounds Devoll had 10 points and Echols put in 9.

The Pacers host Bible Heritage Christian Academy on Dec. 4.

Cowboys hope Smith's concussion just a scare

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Once again, Emmitt Smith was having a huge game against the Minnesota Vikings. Once again, it ended with an injury.

Smith was knocked unconscious on his second carry of the third quarter Thursday, leaving him motionless on his back for several minutes. He eventually walked off the field with help and was laughing before reaching the locker room.

The team announced Smith suffered a concussion. Although he was slightly dizzy later, doctors did not bother checking the severity, known as "grading." Instead, they sent him home, indicating the incident looked worse than it was.

"He's fine," running backs coach Clarence Shelton said after the game, which Dallas lost 27-15. "He was knocked out before he hit the ground. He was up and moving around. I don't think there's going to be any lingering effects."

Seeing Smith go down was a big scare to the Cowboys (4-8). Then again, Dallas players and coaches are practically numb to injuries by now. Eight starters were missing Thursday, six with season-ending injuries.

Considering Smith has missed only three games because of injuries in his 11-year career, expect him to return as soon as next Sunday when Dallas plays at Tampa Bay.

"Emmitt is a warrior, a guy that can play a number of years still in his career," Dallas coach Dave Campo said. "Hopefully he'll be around the rest of the season."

Monday's Game

Pointing the way

Pampa head coach Jerry Schaeffer points the way in the Harvesters' 73-61 win over Tascosa last week. Pampa meets Tascosa again Tuesday night in the first home game of the season.

Pampa Middle School girls win three games against Dumas

DUMAS — Pampa's 7th and 8th grade girls' basketball teams traveled to Dumas last week and left with victories in three of four games.

Trailing Dumas by one point, Pampa's Erin Winegeart picked up a loose ball after an inbound pass with two seconds remaining in the game under her own basket and scored as the buzzer sounded, giving the Lady Patriots a 40-39 win in the 8th grade A game.

A stunned Dumas team and crowd watched as Pampa (2-0) overtook the Demons, who led most of the game. Despite the win, the Lady Patriots suffered a huge loss in what appears to be a season-ending injury to Becca Gindorf, who fell hard to the floor on a rebounding attempt in the second quarter. According to a family report, Gindorf had a broken wrist, cracked elbow and a possible arm fracture.

"The Patriots played hard and kept the game close after Becca's injury to get the win for us," said coach Janyth Bowers.

Pampa's leading scorer was Lindsey Ammons with a team-high 11 points, followed by Chera Chevedois with 10. Winegeart had 7, including the game-winner. Whitney Roden and Brittany Adams had 4 each while Wendi Miller and Gindorf added 2 each. Rebounding leaders were Roden with 7 and Adams 5.

Pampa's 8th grade B team played earlier and couldn't overcome turnovers and missed free throws in a 32-25 loss.

"We just didn't take advantage of the gimmies when we had the chance," said coach Bowers.

Pampa B (1-1) trailed Dumas B by only two at the half, but never got any closer to lose their first game of the season. High scorer for Pampa was Diedra Warden with 10 points. Others who scored were Heather Diddy and Autumn Schaub, 5 each; Payton Baird 3 and Lauren Boles 2. Leading rebounders were Diddy and Jerrica Timmons with 6 apiece. Baird grabbed 5 to add to the total.

In 7th grade action, the Patriot A and B girls totally dominated the Demons and easily won both games.

Morgan Meharg hit a game-high 15 points as the Patriots 7th A (1-1) blasted Dumas 51-12. Others scoring were Mariza Scott with 12 points, Felicia Urban, Callie Cobb and Jackie Gerber 6 each; Autumn Darden 4 and Destinee Manhart 2.

The 7th grade B team also controlled the game and coasted to a 50-10 victory.

Highlighting the Pampa B team was Kylie Winegeart's game-high 18 points.

Others who scored were Ashlee Lucus with 12, Courtney Crawford 8, Audrey Duph, Ragan Meeks and Amy Youree 4 each.

With the win, Pampa B improves to 1-1.

The Pampa Middle School girls return to action on Nov. 30, traveling to Canyon. The Canyon junior high gyms are located at 606 Eighth Street. Game times are 5:30 and 6:45.

Smith sparks Pistons by T-Wolves

By The Associated Press

Joe Smith averaged a point per minute in his debut with Detroit.

Not bad for a player who hadn't played in a month.

"I think you have to be impressed with what kind of shape he was in," Pistons head coach George Irvine said after Smith helped lead the Pistons to a 118-96 victory over Vancouver on Friday night. "The fact that he has not played in a month and has only benefited from a couple days of my coaching, he was pretty remarkable."

It was a big relief for Smith to finally take to the floor. NBA commissioner David Stern nullified Smith's contract with the Timberwolves after Minnesota was caught signing a series of secret contracts with Smith.

Smith chose Detroit after a short free-agency period that saw him courted heavily by the Pistons and Dallas Mavericks.

"It's amazing what having a guy like that does to the other guys," said Jerry Stackhouse, who had 31 for Detroit. "They see him out there and they feel like they have to pick it up."

In other games, it was Boston 103, Orlando 98 in overtime; Cleveland 85, Miami 80; Philadelphia 76, Atlanta 67; Indiana 99, Washington 87; Charlotte 106, Milwaukee 90; Denver 102, San Antonio 92; Phoenix 80, Golden State 74; Utah 97, New Jersey 85; Seattle 98, L.A. Clippers 81; and L.A. Lakers 115, Minnesota 108.

Smith's highlight came in the third quarter when he caught a miss by Chucky Atkins in mid-air. He slammed the ball through, energizing the crowd and his teammates. Smith came down with fists swinging, drawing a technical foul for hanging on the rim too long. But, at that point, it didn't matter as the game was too far out of reach for the Grizzlies.

"That (dunk) was a lot of emotion and a lot of frustration,"

Smith said. "It was everything just coming out. It's just a big relief to get back out onto the floor."

"I was very nervous. I had just one day of practice. I really haven't had much time to blend with this team."

Smith provided Detroit with the emotional and physical presence it had been lacking inside — the one it was seeking when signing Smith to a one-year $2.25 million deal last week.

Celtics 103, Magic 98, OT
At Boston, Paul Pierce scored a career-high 41 points and Antoine Walker added 24 as the Celtics sent the Orlando Magic to their fifth straight loss.

Pierce and Walker scored nine of Boston's 14 points in overtime as Boston won for the fourth time in six games.

Tracy McGrady led the Magic with 26 points while John Amaechi and Darrell Armstrong contributed 16 each.

Cavaliers 85, Heat 80
At Cleveland, Clarence Weatherspoon had 16 points and 12 rebounds and Chris Gatling added 15 points and three hustle plays in the final minutes as Cleveland beat Miami for the second time in three days and improved to 6-0 at home.

Eddie Jones led Miami with 19 points and Tim Hardaway added 17.

76ers 76, Hawks 67
At Atlanta, Allen Iverson bounced back from a miserable first half, scoring 15 of his 21 points in the third quarter.

The 76ers (11-1) were coming off their first loss of the season Wednesday at Charlotte.

Pacers 99, Wizards 87
At Indianapolis, Jalen Rose scored 23 points and the Indiana Pacers made two changes to their starting lineup to end a four-game losing streak — their longest in almost seven years.

Derrick McKey and Jonathan Bender moved into the starting lineup for the Pacers, who hadn't lost four in a row since January, 1994.

Hornets 106, Bucks 90
At Milwaukee, David Wesley scored 24 points and the Hornets used a 28-2 first-half run to win their fourth straight.

Jamal Mashburn added 20 points and Baron Davis had 11 assists for the Hornets, who travel to Cleveland on Saturday night for a matchup of the top two teams in the Central Division.

Nuggets 102, Spurs 92
At Denver, Nick Van Exel had 27 points, 13 assists and nine rebounds and Antonio McDyess added 20 points to lead the Nuggets to their fifth straight home win.

Van Exel was 11-for-17 from the field, including 5-for-6 on 3-pointers. McDyess had 12 of his points in the third quarter when the Nuggets began taking control.

Suns 80, Warriors 74
At Phoenix, Jason Kidd got the last six of his 18 points on free throws in the final 27.8 seconds.

Shawn Marion had 19 points and a career-high 16 rebounds, and Cliff Robinson had seven of his 13 points in the fourth quarter when the Suns completed their comeback from an 11-point halftime deficit.

SuperSonics 98, Clippers 81
At Seattle, Gary Payton had 23 points, 11 assists and eight rebounds.

The Sonics pulled away early in the second half and coasted to the victory on a relatively calm night for the tumultuous team.

Jazz 97, Nets 85
At Salt Lake City, John Stockton tied John Havlicek's NBA record for most games played with one team, scoring 10 points with 12 assists in his 1,270th game for Utah.

Danny Manning scored 12 points off the bench, including six straight in the fourth quarter to help Utah extend its winning streak over the Nets to 11 games.

TCU rips Mustangs

DALLAS (AP) — Defensive tackle Chase Schavrdra was disappointed in 1997 when Southern Methodist, needing a victory to be bowl eligible, lost to winless Texas Christian.

So how did he feel Friday night after the Mustangs closed their first season in their new $54 million stadium with a 62-7 loss to the Horned Frogs?

"I'm embarrassed," said Schavrdra, a senior. "I hope this sticks with the younger guys so they won't let it happen again."

The three-year turnaround by No. 13 TCU was underscored by this blowout, the biggest in the 82-game history of the local rivals.

The Horned Frogs (10-1, 7-1 WAC) scored on nine straight drives. The first six were touchdowns. After a field goal, so were the last two.

Casey Printers threw four touchdown passes and ran for another and LaDainian Tomlinson capped his brilliant career with 174 yards, including a 74-yard touchdown, and several major milestones.

LaTarence Dunbar had the final score: a 108-yard kickoff return for a touchdown early in the fourth quarter after the Mustangs (3-9, 2-6) scored their only points. College statistics only credit Dunbar with a 100-yard return.

"The turnaround that we have made in the past three years has been unbelievable," said Tomlinson. "I am glad that we were able to pull it together for my senior year. I still can't believe all that we have accomplished."

How about what he accomplished: 2,158 yards this season, fourth-best in major-college history; and 5,263 career yards, sixth-best. He also won his second straight national rushing title.

"He's the greatest player I have ever been around, no doubt," TCU coach Dennis Franchione said. "He did everything this year that a young man can do to be considered for a Heisman."

The Horned Frogs won 10 games for the first time since 1938, when they won their last national championship, and clinched a share of the WAC title for the second straight year. They're headed to the Mobile Bowl on Dec. 20.

SMU had one of its most humiliating performances since coming off the death penalty — although it wasn't their largest margin of defeat since then. Texas A&M beat the Mustangs 65-6 in '91 and Houston won 95-21 in '89.

What made this one so bad was that SMU did not get a first down for the first 22 minutes, 10 seconds. It took another nine minutes for the next one. The Mustangs had just 10 in the game, or two fewer than TCU had touchdowns.

"They just chewed us up," said SMU coach Mike Cavan, who earlier this week was told he would be returning next season. "They can throw the ball down the field. That's where they really hurt us."

SMU's only highlight was seeing Eric Dickerson get his No. 19 jersey retired at halftime.

"This was the most embarrassing thing in my life," said running back Kris Briggs. "I am crushed."

While many of the Mustangs' woes were self-induced, the Horned Frogs' defense still put an exclamation point on their claim as the country's stingiest defense. TCU lowered its already national-best numbers to 9.6 points and 245 yards per game.

The Horned Frogs outscored opponents 235-30 over the second and third quarters, including 91-3 in the third.

This was the last time the teams met as conference rivals because TCU is joining Conference USA next season. The schools have agreed to continue playing through at least 2004.

The Horned Frogs' band even got in on the fun, dropping fertilizer in the shape of the letters TCU on SMU's new $54 million stadium during its halftime show.

Duke wins NIT championship

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlos Boozer and Jason Williams simply would not let No. 2 Duke lose to unheralded Temple in the championship game of the Preseason NIT.

The two sophomores kept the Blue Devils close and Duke finally prevailed Friday night, beating the tenacious Owls 63-61.

Williams hit the 3-pointer that gave Duke the lead for good with 2:05 to play, then scrambled to recover a loose ball for a crucial possession in the final minute. Boozer, who had 13 of his 26 points down the stretch and was named the tournament MVP, then scored the clinching basket with 17 seconds to play. Temple still had time to tie, but Duke's defense never allowed the Owls a decent chance at the 3-pointer they needed.

Temple's last gasp came as Lynn Greer went to the foul line with 1.6 seconds left. He made the first shot, then deliberately missed the second. The ball squirted out of bounds. That gave Temple another chance but Kevin Lyde's wild shot was not close.

Duke won its first Preseason NIT championship since the inaugural event in 1985-86. Temple was making its first appearance in the tourney's title game.

Texas defeated Indiana 70-58 in the consolation game for third place.

That Night

A Christmas Spectacular

Rick Smith and Paul Helms, far left, portray Jesus and Peter in That Night. Jesus, upper right, portrayed by Smith is nailed to the cross. Caitlin Walker and Lauren Smith, bottom right, are part of the Wisemen's Courts in the pageant. Bottom right, Joseph and Baby Jesus are portrayed by Brian Frost and Audrey Hopkins.

Pampa residents welcome a Christmas tradition as the spectacular production of "That Night" will be presented on Dec. 2, 3, 4 and 5.

The Central Baptist Church of Pampa will present the story of Christmas as the true meaning of Christmas is depicted.

While the format remains the same as in past years, as always there are new songs, new characters and new scenes to celebrate this holiday season.

"We have appreciated attendance from other congregations in the past, and we have worked extra hard to help you celebrate Christmas like never before. It is our hope that through the portrayal of the birth, death and resurrection of God's Son, we all will be made more aware of the greatest gift ever given to man — Jesus Christ," said Pageant Coordinator Zan Walker.

He said the cast, choir and crew extend an invitation to residents of Pampa and the surrounding area to view the production at the Central Baptist Church Auditorium at Starkweather and Browning to celebrate Christmas and the beautiful dramatic portrayal of the life of Christ.

"It may just be November, but we have been preparing since August for our annual pageant production," said Walker.

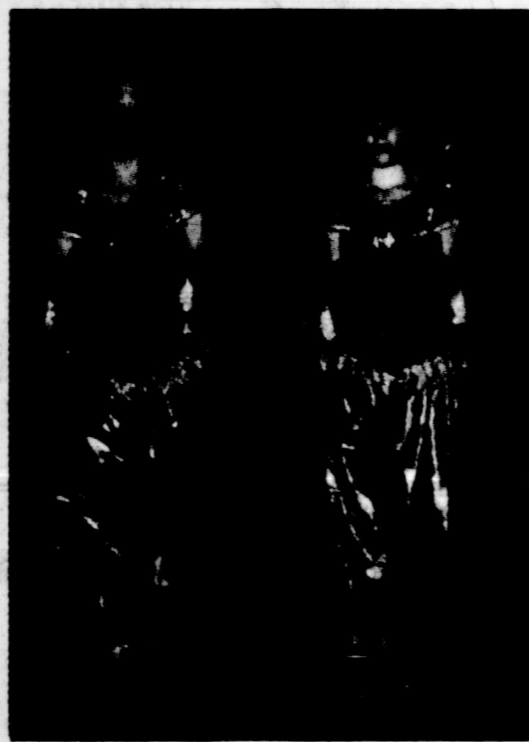

Pre-pageant music will begin at 6:45 p.m. prior to each presentation at 7 p.m. Each person attending the production needs to have a free ticket which is available at no charge by calling the church office at 665-1631.

"We are expecting capacity crowds at all performances," he said. "Because of this, we suggest you notify us as soon as possible with the approximate number of tickets needed."

He said the Saturday, Monday and Tuesday night presentations are especially suited for those from other churches and does not take away from individual Sunday night services.

"We look forward to seeing you the first week in December as we help you celebrate in beautiful, dramatic style the real meaning of Christmas," said Walker.

"Merry Christmas...from the cast, choir and crew of 'That Night'," said Walker.

Bonds to earn 6.49 percent when bought between now and 2001

WASHINGTON — The United States Treasury Department recently announced the earnings rate for I Bonds bought from November 2000 through April 2001 will apply for the first six months after their issue. The earnings rate for I Bonds is a combination of a fixed rate, which will apply for the life of the bond, and the inflation rate. The 6.49 percent earnings rate for I Bonds bought from November 2000 through April 2001 will apply for the first six months after their issue. The earnings rate combines the 3.40 percent fixed rate of return with the 3.04 percent annualized rate of inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index for all Urban Consumers (CPI-U). The CPI-U increased from 171.1 to 173.7 from March 2000 to September 2000, a six-month increase of 1.52 percent.

Treasury's inflation-indexed I Bonds are designed to offer all Americans a way to save that protects the purchasing power of their investment by assuring them a real rate of return over and above inflation.

I Bonds have features that make them attractive to many investors. They are sold at face value in denominations of $50, $75, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 and earn interest for as long as 30 years.

I Bond earnings are added every month and interest is compounded semiannually. They are State and local income tax exempt, and Federal income tax on I Bond earnings can be deferred until the bonds are cashed or they stop earning interest after 30 years. Investors cashing I Bonds before five years are subject to a 3-month earnings penalty.

Series 1, inflation-indexed savings bonds purchased from November 2000 through April 2001 will earn a 3.40 percent fixed rate of return over and above inflation. The 3.4 percent fixed rate applies for the 30-year life of I Bonds purchased during this six-month period. Information about savings bonds is available at Public Debt's website at www.savingsbonds.gov. Check out the new Savings Bond Calculator to see how easy it is to find out what your bonds are worth, what they're earning and even keep track of them. Or, download the free Savings Bond Wizard to keep track of your savings bond portfolio. An Earnings Report, which contains rate and yield information for bonds is available by mail. Send a postcard asking for "Earnings Report" to Bureau of the Public Debt, 200 Third St., Parkersburg, WV 26106-1328.

Almost $5.3 million in tax refunds remain unclaimed in Texas, IRS says

DALLAS — Return to sender. That's the message the Internal Revenue Service received when it tried to send more than 8,000 tax refund checks to Texans this year. The post office returned the checks to the tax agency because they were undeliverable.

According to the IRS, the 8,046 checks returned to the agency were worth a total of $5,279,989. There are 50 tax refund checks each totaling $10,000 or more. The biggest unclaimed check in Texas is $71,617.74 and the smallest is $1. The average unclaimed refund is $674.

Nationally, 91,827 federal tax refunds totaling $67.9 million were returned to the IRS this year. California had the largest number of unclaimed refunds (14,648) in the nation, followed by New York (8,519), Florida (8,208) and Texas (8,046).

The IRS urges Texans who are still waiting for their tax refund to call 1-800-829-1040 to learn how they can claim the money.

Refund checks usually go unclaimed because people move without notifying the IRS. Another reason refund checks go undelivered is because the return address information is wrong. Often, numbers are transposed or information is incomplete.

A death or marriage can result in a returned check. The IRS encourages estate executors to check whether a refund check might be involved. Newly married taxpayers are urged to notify the IRS promptly if there is a change of name or address.

Taxpayers can file IRS Form 8822, "Change of Address," to let the IRS know of address or name changes. The form is available by calling 1-800-829-3676 or is accessible at www.irs.gov on the World Wide Web.

To reduce the chances of a lost or stolen refund check, the IRS can deposit tax refunds directly into a taxpayer's bank account. This year, more than 30 million taxpayers chose Direct Deposit by including their required bank account information on their tax return.

Julia Child opens her kitchen once again

By SAMANTHA CRITCHELL Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The one TV trick Julia Child has learned since the first episode of "The French Chef" aired in 1963 is to always make a spare dish ahead of time, just in case that hollandaise sauce doesn't quite work out. "You want to have something that you can show the audience and say, 'This is what it's supposed to look like, not like the one I just made,'" explains Child in that familiar singsong voice, which is accompanied by a hearty laugh. Child, the original TV chef, seems to remember every kitchen mishap, including the collapsed desserts and the broken bowls, from her seven cooking series. But she also remembers the successes, and those are the ones featured in "Julia Child's Kitchen Wisdom," a two-hour retrospective that will air in December on PBS (check local listings). "People like her for her shoot-from-the-hip truthfulness," says producer Geoffrey Drummond. His company, A La Carte Communications, also produced the Emmy award-winning series "Julia and Jacques:

Cooking at Home" and "Baking With Julia," her two most recent shows. Drummond and his team screened about 350 of Child's 850 cooking-show episodes for the special, drawing on the memories of Child, her co-workers and devoted viewers to pick out the best moments. "This is a retrospective, not a chronology that moves beginning to end, because she's still going," he explains. Chefs Emeril Lagasse, Jacques Pepin and Alice Waters; Charles Gibson of "Good Morning America"; and Martha Stewart are among the fans who appear in the special, praising Child for blazing the food-television trail they have all traveled. "I started watching Julia not because I thought I'd be a chef but I was interested and she was funny," says Lagasse, one of the Food Network's top stars. Child says she is flattered and grateful for her friends' kind words but doesn't see herself as a TV star. "I'm a cook and a teacher. The use of the word 'chef' is loose in this country, but a chef is supposed to be the chief of a kitchen. I don't have a kitchen to be chief of," she says. "We called the first show 'French Chef' because we wanted chefs to come on the show as guests, but that never happened. "I'm a cook, which is an honorable word, who happens to go on TV sometimes." Yet Child sees some perks to having a television presence. "It is very convenient in a restaurant to have people recognize you. You usually get a table," Child says in a tone that indicates she doesn't know there isn't a maitre d' in the country who would dare to keep her waiting 45 minutes. "I might have been the first because I happened to appear at the right time. The Kennedys were in the White House and they had a French chef, which raised interest. And you could fly to Europe for the first time in a few hours instead of a few days. We were ready for some sort of food revolution." Child says she's thankful her shows aired on public television because it gave her the freedom to feature foods like tripe and brains, which might not have gone over well with commercial networks and their advertisers. "I always wanted it to be passionately entertaining but it also would be technical. My audience was people who wanted to learn how to cook. I didn't have to worry about a gas-station attendant."

However, she did turn her TV crew on to some of those more unusual foods. After a taping, the food was always up for grabs. There would be flocks of people around if a dessert was served, and some crew members embraced fresh asparagus and artichokes, she recalls, but when the show featured snails, "a great number of the crew seemed to disappear." At 88, Child says she probably won't do another TV series but that's not because the audience doesn't love her. During a recent taping of "Emeril Live," the audience gave her a standing ovation and cheered her as she coached Lagasse on the proper cooking techniques for cheese soufflé and apple tart. Child, who splits her time between Cambridge, Mass., and Santa Barbara, Calif., says she doesn't have much time to watch television but she'll "take a peek" now and then at her old shows, which are still aired in reruns. "Seeing a 'French Chef' brings it all back again. Everyone, the camera crew, we were part of a family. We always had a good time." So did we. On the Net: http://www.alacartetv.com/home/index.htm

Hosts Are in the Doghouse For Providing an Outhouse

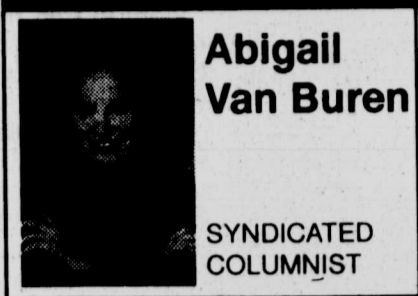

DEAR ABBY: A couple we know threw a birthday party this past weekend. A large number of guests were invited. When we arrived, everyone was directed to the back yard. I was appalled to see a portable toilet, the kind typically used at construction sites.

This couple has a beautiful home with at least three bathrooms. What a slap in the face to be invited to someone's home, only to find that we had actually been invited to their back yard and were expected to use an "outhouse"!

My husband and I disagree on whether or not this was an insult. Your opinion, please.
APPALLED IN POMONA, CALIF.

DEAR APPALLED: Before you conclude that this was an insult, ask your hosts why they did it. Perhaps they were having plumbing problems. Or, the party was so large the hostess didn't know all of the guests well, and preferred they didn't tromp through her house. She might have been afraid her carpets would be damaged by dirty shoes, or had experienced some petty thefts during prior large parties.

Whatever the reason the house was off-limits and the portable toilet was provided, you owe it to your hosts to hear them out before you judge them.

Abigail Van Buren

SYNDICATED COLUMNIST

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old female who has not had a boyfriend in more than two years. I am desperately lonely and want a guy I can trust and share my life with. I have one particular guy in mind, but I'm afraid if I let him know how I feel, he will reject me. I need someone who makes me feel "complete," and I feel he is the one.

My problem is that he hangs out with the popular group and probably won't even try being an "us." Is something wrong with me? What should I do?
LONESOME TEEN IN KENTUCKY

DEAR LONESOME: There is nothing "wrong" with you. Many women feel they need someone to make them feel "complete." However, it's a huge mistake. The only person who can truly make you complete is you. Rather than concentrating on how lonely and needy you are, instead focus your energies outward on activities that interest you. It will make you a far more interesting person to be around.

Are you interested in art? Go to the library and read up on it. Visit museums and art galleries. (You might meet a nice guy there who's also trying to prove his mind, or some budding artists who are on the brink of recognition.) Are you interested in photography? Inquire if a local photographer could use an assistant during the late afternoons or on weekends.

You'll feel better about yourself if you allow yourself less time to brood. The most successful people I know were usually not part of the "in" crowd in high school.
P.S. That includes my twin sister and me!

DEAR ABBY: Your recent comments to "Fashion-Confused in L.A.," who asked what "casual dress" means for the office, reminded me of the answer I recently gave to a new employee.

During the interview she asked me if the company had any "casual dress" days. I said, "Yes, we have two. We call them Saturday and Sunday."
LOOKIN' GOOD IN NEVADA

DEAR L.G.: Thanks. You're a hoot!

Automakers drop ashtrays, lighters from new cars

NEW YORK (AP) — Sitting in the showroom at Martin's Manhattan Honda, Declan Walsh flipped through a glossy brochure for the Odyssey mini-van, noting that it seemed to have everything his family could need. Well, almost everything.

"It doesn't come with a lighter?" Walsh asked a salesman.

"My wife's a smoker and that would be a problem," he explained. "You have someplace (in the van) to store matches?"

Actually, the best place to keep matches in the Odyssey is probably the cup holder in the center console, a place once reserved for an ashtray in many cars. Honda and other manufacturers are designing ashtrays and lighters out of many new models, both to please consumers and cut costs.

The move to smokeless cars started at Chrysler, whose 1995 Cirrus and Dodge Stratus sedans were the first to be sold without ashtrays as standard equipment. Other car makers have seized on the idea, and even in cars still equipped for smoking, ashtrays are smaller than ever.

"You respond to consumer demand," said Art Garner, a spokesman for American Honda Motor Co., the Torrance, Calif., subsidiary of the Japanese manufacturer. "Consumers say, 'I don't need an ashtray. What I would like is a little storage place here. I don't need a lighter. What I would like is a place to plug in my cellphone."

Eliminating lighters and ashtrays as standard equipment on millions of cars also saves money for automakers, most who now sell optional "smoker's packages" for $15 to $100 for items once included with every new car. In the Odyssey and other Hondas, buyers can order an ash container that drops into cup holders and a lighter that pops into the socket now called a "power point."

"We're always looking to cut costs and eliminate things people don't want," said Bill George, a spokesman for Ford Motor Co., which has eliminated the accessories as standard equipment in only a few of its models. "We don't want to put anything in there that people don't want or aren't going to use."

The changes reflect a continuing evolution in auto dashboards and interiors, said Jeffrey Rose, vice president of technology at Textron Automotive Co., a Troy, Mich., company that is one of the leading providers of interior components for new cars.

Travelers in the 1950s and '60s were never far from an ashtray — many cars came with both lighters and ashtrays fitted into every door. But that was before the arrival of multiple cup holders and storage spaces, switches for power windows and door locks, outlets for cell phones and amenities like garage-door openers fitted into sun visors.

In the future, car interiors will be fashioned of materials that customers can choose according to their preferences, not just for color but for texture and even smell, and will be designed with Global Positioning Systems and computer interfaces, Rose said.

The host of new electronic amenities puts the squeeze on space, and ashtrays are partly a casualty, he said.

"The truth is, not a lot has been taken out, and just tons more has been put in," Rose said. "That's what everybody is concerned about — information overload in the interior."

Removing ashtrays and lighters as standard equipment has been made easier because of the decline in the number of people who smoke, now a little more than one in five adults.

Even some nonsmokers have noticed the disappearance of lighters and ashtrays.

When Rob Malkin, a computer programmer from Saratoga, Calif., replaced his 1993 Toyota with a new Saab in late October, he thrilled at its amenities. His one disappointment was the black oval depression in the wood-covered dashboard, a spot where brochures showed a covered ashtray.

"I'm not a smoker but I did like having the ashtray to stick stuff in, like gum wrappers and parking receipts," Malkin said. "I was kind of sorry to see that go."

Other consumers say the lack of ashtrays and lighters is fine by them.

"If I had people who smoked in the car with me I wouldn't let them smoke anyway, so it's no loss to me at all," said Dan Hollywood of New York City, who was picking up his family's new Odyssey at the Manhattan dealership.

Salesmen at the dealership say the lack of ashtrays also reinforces their message to customers, particularly those who lease, that the smell and burn marks left by cigarettes depresses the resale or trade-in value of their cars. For the most part, they've had few complaints.

"They (smokers) accept it," salesman Vinicio Galarza said. "They don't complain because they understand."

Walsh, the car-shopper whose wife smokes, said a lighter and ashtray remain essential in a world where smoking is increasingly off-limits.

"You know, given that there are so few places to smoke," he said, "the car is the place."

Royal image makeover? Prince Charles takes up late princess' causes

LONDON (AP) — Princess Diana once captured hearts and headlines by befriending the homeless, hugging the sick, comforting the dying. These days, it's Prince Charles who can be found chatting with a young mother at a shelter or cuddling a baby at an AIDS center.

Royal watchers call this embrace of causes associated with the late princess — together with an unusual public tribute by the prince Thursday — a bid to soften the standoffish image that has long plagued Charles, Britain's 52-year-old king in waiting.

Charity work is the royal family's stock in trade, and Charles has always done his part. He is patron to more than 500 charitable organizations and makes hundreds of appearances a year on their behalf.

But more and more, the heir to the British throne seems to be taking style cues from the late princess, who shattered the mold of rigid formality on royal visits to the poor, sick and disadvantaged.

"Until recently, Prince Charles has not much strayed into ... the touchy-feely areas ... that for so long were dominated by Diana," the Times of London wrote Thursday in a story headlined "Prince of Hearts: How Charles is Adopting Diana's Role."

"When he felt people's pain, he tended to do so privately," said the story, written by royal watcher Andrew Roberts. "Now, with that slot in British public life permanently vacated by the princess, he is increasingly to be found attending the sort of occasions that used to be her special province."

Thursday was a case in point. Visiting a homeless charity, Charles cradled a crying infant and soothed her to sleep. The baby's mother called him a "natural" — and then proceeded to confide in the prince about the hardships she had suffered when she was homeless and pregnant.

Later, at a day-care center for the children of AIDS patients, he chatted with a 29-year-old HIV-infected woman and cuddled her 3-month-old son. He then settled himself in a low child's chair and drew pictures with two toddlers.

Lately, the prince also has broken a tacit royal taboo on speaking in public about Diana, who died with her lover three years ago in a Paris car crash only months after her messy, drawn-out divorce from Charles.

At an AIDS center linked to a hospice that often was visited by the princess, he told the crowd Thursday: "Coming here today has reminded me of all the work that Diana did before she died. ... I'm sure she would be very pleased that I was here today."

How Charles is perceived by the public, of course, has a strong bearing on the question that has hung over the royal family for years now: when he will be king. His mother, Queen Elizabeth II, has sat for nearly half a century on the British throne.

Diana's death marked a dangerous moment in the prince's public life. Amid an enormous nationwide outpouring of grief, the prince's longtime mistress, Camilla Parker Bowles, was cast as the villainess in the royal saga.

Gradually, Camilla's image has improved. For many here, the crushing sense of bereavement has eased; the third anniversary of Diana's fatal crash was marked this year by low-key tributes and gatherings of relatively small crowds of admirers.

After freeing out the prince's mistress for years, the queen met Camilla earlier this year, and Camilla and Charles often appear together in public now.

It helps that Charles is universally regarded as a devoted father to his sons, Prince William and Prince Harry.

No one missed the symbolism of Thursday's royal appearances. "Since the princess' death, no one has taken on her mantle," said an AIDS patient identified only as Mr. Edwards. "His visit is very welcome."
