Those Digest Polls

On the same day—last Tuesday—the Literary Digest was handed two validations of its straw-vote polls by the people. Not only did the candidates for Mayor of New York City finish in the order indicated by the pre-election poll which the Digest conducted but North Carolina, one of the only two States which were indicated to be dry by the results of its nation-wide poll on prohibition a year and a half ago, voted against the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

It is true that South Carolina, which the Digest poll showed to be slightly wet, voted dry by a close majority, but that does not change the extraordinary resemblance of the straw vote poll to the actual result.

We wish the Digest would take a poll of the voters on the high protective tariff and war debts.—Texas Outlook.

Try This New Deal In speaking of new deals, Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer, suggests that every one should declare a new deal for his health.

In making this statement there is no idea of suggesting that one quit work and do the whole thing over. The point is to give the body a new deal.

It may be advisable to give the stomach a new deal. Not that any starvation diet is being advocated, only that if one has been habitually over-eating or under-eating, then to return to normalcy.

that it will not cost any money and money and at the same time make up for the vitality building opportunity lost during the summer.

Synopsis: Curt Tennyson has returned to Edmonton after a winter spent in the sub-Arctic hunting wolves in an airplane. He finds a note from his former superior, A. K. Marlin, asking Curt not to tie up with any proposition before seeing him. Curt goes to Marlin's rooms in the hotel, and finds pleasure-loving Rosalie Marlin, his fiancée. Then Rosalie's father comes in.

DANGEROUS JOB
The sight of his old officer sent a warm glow through Curt. During those seven years with the Police, Marlin had been his fine friend, a kind of second father to him. His engagement to Rosalie seemed a fitting climax to the understanding friendship between her father and himself.

"It's mighty good to see you again, son," Marlin greeted with a strong handclasp. "You're looking as fit as a high-power rifle. The North must have agreed with you."

Rosalie flitted into the next room to dress. As the two chatted for a few moments in the casual way of men who once had been very close to each other but had drifted apart, Marlin studied Curt searchingly.

A year ago, when Curt Tennyson resigned from the Mounted, he had been a sick man, not so much physically as in spirit. As head of Intelligence for the western divisions, he had led a hard life, fraternizing with gangster circles, following the trails to European capitals and lying for months with the narcotic traffickers on the west coast.

Three years of that work usually put a man on the rocks; but Tennyson had been in daily contact with it, and the very worst of it, for seven years. Besides nearly wrecking his health, it had distorted his whole outlook. He had seen so much of crime, he had looked down into depths of depravity so long and so steadily, that he had lost faith in human virtues.

"Thank God you've come out of it, son!" Marlin thought fervently. For he saw that Curt had completely shaken off that miasma. A year in the far North prospecting, flying, hunting the gray phantom packs, had put him in shape once more.

"Haven't had breakfast, Curt?" he asked. "Neither have I. Let's go down. We can talk there." He took a document from a locked brief case and thrust it into his pocket. "Rosalie'll excuse us; she has her work to do."

As they went down the corridor he inquired, "What sort of an offer did the Consolidated make you, son?"

"Nothing to write home about," Curt stalled, waiting to find out first what Marlin's proposition was. "It is just fair, and rather unexpected."

"When would you have to be on the job with them?"
"By the end of the week. The ice is out now, and the summer in that country is so short that every day counts."

Marlin said nothing more then. They went down to the breakfast room, found a window table to themselves. When the waiter had finally brought their coffee and taken their order (Marlin dropped a lump of sugar into his cup and thoughtfully watched the bubbles come up.

He could see that Curt was eager about the Consolidated job, and for several reasons he hated to break into those plans. As he well knew, Curt's boyhood on that bleak Manitoba farm had been harsh and exigent; he had given seven years to the Mounted Police without ever having a dime ahead or pleasures that other young men had; and his year down north had been the first sunlit period in his whole life.

His affection for Curt, his broad human sympathy, prompted him to say nothing about this other matter. But necessity left him no choice. Last September a big case had burst upon the Vancouver division, their biggest since the war, and the worst failure in their history.

The Silent Squad had worked on it all winter, he had worked on it himself, the Commissioner had sent two specials from Ottawa; but nobody had got anywhere with it. And when he thought of the brilliant jobs that young Tennyson used to turn in, of his uncanny skill, of how they all used to depend on him in hopeless cases, he felt that Curt stood at least a chance on this search, where the others had long since thrown up their hands and quit.

"Curt"—he glanced around and lowered his voice, and then plunged directly into business—"what I wanted to see you about is this. Over at Vancouver there was a man called Farrell, a speculator and promoter of the shady type. He gave out that he was an English man, but he's mad. He's a Russian, and his real name is Karakhan, Igor Karakhan. I'll give you a bit of his background. Lord knows it cost us enough work. During the Soviet Revolution in '17 he got out of Russia and went to—"

Marlin reached into his pocket for the document—and went to—
"Germany," Curt supplied laconically. He had glanced up with sudden interest at the mention of Karakhan's name. Now he smiled at A. K.'s sudden start. "In Berlin, in 1920," he went on, coolly taking the story away from Marlin.

"Karakhan had a hand in that Engelmeier money-printing scandal. In Paris he swindled his fellow-emigrants on a confidence game and then cleared out for Buenos Aires."

"Wait a minute!" A. K. gasped. "Why you must know the man! And where—when—how under heaven did you get this data on him?"

"From the Justice department of the States. I used to trade information with them."
Marlin leaned back, looked at Curt with amazed eyes. "Well! I thought I was pulling something out of the bag that would be new to you, and then you begin telling me things about it! Do you know what Karakhan did in the Argentine?" he demanded, as though he expected to stump Curt.

"Yes. I know, A. K. and I know what he did afterwards too. The League of Nations investigators got too hot after him, so he skipped to Mexico and ran whiskey to Los Angeles. The States picked him for two schooners, and he came on to Vancouver. I was keeping tab on him there when I burned out and resigned."

Marlin did not speak until the waiter had refilled their water glasses and withdrawn. Then: "I've got a departmental report on him here, but there's no use showing it to you; you know as much about him already as our men who have worked nine months on the case."
"Let me see it."

Marlin handed over a ten-page dossier.
(Copyright, 1931, M. B. Mowery)
Tomorrow, Curt takes A. K.'s request under advisement.

SEEK MOTIVE IN DEATH OF VETERINARIAN

TEMPLE DOCTOR SLAIN AND BODY FOUND IN WEED PATCH

TEMPLE, Nov. 14 (AP)—Mystified authorities groped today for a motive to explain the brutal slaying of Dr. A. M. Clifford, 58, Temple veterinarian, whose body was discovered in a patch of weeds on a farm east of Temple.

The doctor had been struck on the back of the head twice. From the gashes, investigators decided he had been hit with some heavy, sharp instrument, possibly a tire tool or an automobile spring leaf. One gash was at the base of the skull and the other near the top of the head.

Marks around the body indicated the doctor's body had been thrown twenty feet into the bushes.

Last Wednesday night Dr. Clifford was called from the boarding house where he lived by an unidentified man who described himself as a farmer. The man said his livestock needed treatment.

The man refused to meet Dr. Clifford downtown. Instead, he picked the doctor up in front of the boarding house. Dr. Clifford took with him only his medicine kit, leaving his watch and money at home.

When the body was found late yesterday by Hoyt Bundren, who had been cutting stalks on the A. J. Parker farm two and one-half miles east of Temple, it was lying face downward. Dr. Clifford's coat was up over his head and nearby was his medicine kit with his hat on top of it.

Canadian Crowd Hears Jones On Armistice Day

CANADIAN, Nov. 14—As principal speaker at Canadians celebration of Armistice Day, Congressman Marvin Jones of Amarillo lauded President Roosevelt as "the greatest leader since Washington."

Congressman Jones' address was delivered before an exceptionally large crowd.
"Those who fought and died in the world war for democracy did not do so in vain," said the speaker. "When farmers diversify and live independently at home on their varied products, America will see a new, better day."

"March 4, the nation reached the darkest day since the Revolution," he continued, "but the smile, courage, ability and sincerity of Roosevelt began to dispel the gloom and the nation has been gaining ground ever since."

"Our trouble is not international, but internal—strife between honesty and dishonesty."
His listeners were urged to join in the effort to recover from wounds of greed and gain inflicted by the unfair few upon the unsuspecting many.

"There is no danger of internal chaos," he declared.

With reference to farm relief, Congressman Jones said:

"The government in its farm program is not giving the farmer anything, but is just restoring to him what selfish groups have taken away from him. The farm program was worked out by Roosevelt and advisers and through the teamwork of congress."

Bundren was attracted to the body by his team of mules shying as they came near the weeds in which it lay. Investigators found footprints of two different sizes near the body, which led them to believe two men were involved in the slaying. A ring was on the doctor's finger. An undertaker said he had been dead about five days.

Dr. Clifford had been living at the boarding house of Mrs. Willie Querner since the death of his wife eight years ago. Among his survivors were a sister, Mrs. E. B. McDonald of Ontario, Canada, and a brother, Charles Clifford of West Ontario. His body probably will be sent to Ontario for burial.

Suicide Theory In Lawton Case Is Discredited

LAWTON, Okla., Nov. 14. (AP)—New evidence tends to discredit the murder-suicide theory in the mysterious deaths of Mrs. Robert F. Hayter and her two children, County Attorney Dwight Malcolm said today.

Malcolm said continued investigation had uncovered "just enough to keep us working on the idea that an outsider committed the murders."

The bodies of Mrs. Hayter and her children were found in their Lawton home November 1. Mrs. Hayter had been shot through the head. Near her was the body of chance," he declared.

With reference to farm relief, Congressman Jones said:

"The government in its farm program is not giving the farmer anything, but is just restoring to him what selfish groups have taken away from him. The farm program was worked out by Roosevelt and advisers and through the teamwork of congress."

Donald: "Mother, it is cold—nearly half of my class was not there yesterday." Mother: "Cold weather does interfere with school, Donald, but I'm glad you can get there—thanks to our car." Donald: "But, mother, nearly all the other boys who were absent could come in cars but their folks don't even try to use them in cold weather—'cause they can't get them started." Mother: "Maybe, dear, they don't use the right gas and oil—that's practically the only difference between our car and many others. Understand, Donald, people are careless—they fail to get penetrative oil—found only in Germ Processed Motor Oil made by Conoco. Cold oil, even winter grade, unless it is right, makes it hard for the starter to revolve the motor. Conoco Oil helps motors turn over easily and then the Conoco Bronze Gasoline acts at the first spark and the motor starts at once."

Donald: "Mother, I should think the school board would make all parents use Conoco." And I imagine they would if they knew it would save them money also."

Full motor protection, especially in cold motor starting, can be found only in Conoco Germ Processed (Paraffin Base) Motor Oil because of the penetrative oiliness, called "The Hidden Quart" stays up in your motor and never drains away. Conoco Germ Processed Oil is the highest grade motor oil obtainable... the paraffin base crude oil sources, the scientific skill and the most modern of refineries combine to make it so. Then it is Germ Processed with an exclusive Conoco formula.

Instant Starting and Lightning Pickup can best be obtained with Conoco Bronze Gasoline, and without sacrifice of Long Mileage, Greater Power and Anti-Knock advantages. For cold weather starting it cannot be excelled—all the possible fuel needs of modern cars have been fulfilled at no increase in price.

It can be easily identified by its bronze color but you must be sure it is Conoco Bronze Gasoline for only in this way can its advantages of unusual performance and greater economy be obtained.

'School Is Just As Good As Its Former Students'

A scholo is just as good as its exes. The splendid spirit shown by the graduates of Pampa High School last week, and for that matter, all the time, is proof of the place P. H. S. holds in the hearts of her students, and is a source of real pride and joy to the school. When boys and girls from colleges all over the state come hundreds of miles for a football game, when business men and homemakers lay aside their tasks to attend an ex-student meeting and a pep rally, school loyalty of the finest type is demonstrated. The student body will watch with interest the growth of the ex-student association. It was with a new thrill of pride that students heard a graduate of 1911 declare that we have but one tradition to uphold—the honor of Pampa High School.

P. H. S. SPORTS

The Harvesters will go to Lubbock this week to play their third conference game. Last week Lubbock beat Plainview 14 to 6 on Plainview's field, while we beat the Bulldogs only 6 to 0—which looks as if the game Saturday won't be an easy one. The band and pep squad and many fans will go to Lubbock to back the Harvesters.

Rain of Meteors Is Expected On Wednesday Night

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14. (AP)—Three all-night watches for meteors will be held this week—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday—by astronomers from Massachusetts to Oregon. They will look for the long-lost rain of Leonid meteors. Last year was the favored date for this outbreak of shooting stars, but not many of them appeared. So astronomers calculate that there is still a chance for them this year. Even though no great rain of five appears, they are confident that some good meteors can be seen in the northeast, after midnight, especially on Wednesday. Astronomers think this week is the last good chance for Leonids in any quantity until about 1966.

RUFUS RYAN IS WESTERNER SCORING THREAT HARVESTERS MUST BOTTLE UP

HALFBACK HAS MADE LONGEST RUNS OF YEAR

GRUELLING BATTLE IS IN PROSPECT FOR SATURDAY

A frightened Lubbock high school football team started a week of intensive training yesterday afternoon in preparation for the invasion of the Pampa Harvesters Saturday afternoon. The game will be played at Texas Tech field, starting at 2:30 o'clock. However, the Westerners believe the game favors them, that they will be hard-pressed but will win.

The Westerners became convinced Saturday that the Harvesters are actually tough. In fact, the Lubbock boys found it out Friday afternoon when they defeated Plainview by only one touchdown, the same margin by which the Harvesters won over the Bulldogs.

Coach Weldon Chapman has one of the stars of the district in Rufus Ryan, halfback. Ryan passes and punts but it is his ball toting that is dangerous. He has made several of the longest runs by any player in the district this season. When past the line of scrimmage, Ryan is a scoring threat. Ryan and Quarterback Hale are the only two Westerners who played against the Harvesters last year.

Coach Odus Mitchell decided on a light week for his charges. He will stage a scrimmage at Harvester park tomorrow afternoon but otherwise there was little activity ordered for the Harvesters following their terrific battle Saturday afternoon. The boys came through the game in good condition.

Harold Gregory, star halfback and punter who was unable to take part in the game Saturday afternoon, will be ready for the Lubbock encounter. His ankle is healing nicely. Carl Smith came out of the big game without hurting his arm and Ray Harbridge's knee is O. K. again. He wore a special brace in the game.

The team will leave for Lubbock Friday. The boys and coaches will

WITH THE— HARVESTERS

By HARRY E. HOARE

Do you know—that 17 members of the Harvester squad will be eligible for football next year? That will mean that 13 members of the squad will be playing their last game of high school football November 30, when the Borger Bulldogs come to Pampa, that is if the unexpected doesn't happen to throw the district race into a three-way tie. Coach Odus Mitchell doesn't plan to match a post-season game unless a very attractive offer is made. He says that basketball practice will start December 4 unless something happens.

But getting back to 1934, or rather up to 1934, we find that eight of the boys classed as starters this year will be lost because of graduation, the eight-semester rule, or age limit. The other five boys are substitutes. Members of this year's team who will be ranked among the missing next year will be Captain Jess Patton, Ray Eldridge, Virgil Frasier, Herbert Reynolds, Orville Feltner, Bert Stevens, C. A. Clark Jr., Harold Gregory, Philip Nolan, Roscoe Pimmell, Miles Marbaugh, Buck Mundy and Odell Walker.

Eligible for 1934 football will be Chubby Stewart, Carl Smith, Richard Montgomery, Robert McAulley, Charlie Wilson, Bill Dunaway, Raymond Elkins, Mayse Nash, Bill Parks, Leon Noblett, Hazel Mackie, J. R. Green, Monroe Owens, Gerald Maxey, Bill Haner, Lloyd Hamilton, and Fred Mumford. Eight of these boys could be classed as starters this season. Of course, that makes 16 starters, but the boys were fighting so hard and so evenly for positions on the team that some of them started every other game.

Harry Kelley will send several boys up from the ranks of the Gorillas that should make it mighty interesting for the boys who remain. Fanning, fullback Drake and Brown, halfbacks; Cartwright and Dix, ends; Wise, center or tackle; Goodwin and Perkins, guards, should be among the future Harvesters along with other Gorillas who have been looking good this year. The future Harvesters have had a successful season against some of the best Class B teams in this section. They know the ground work of Harvester plays and should be able to step right out when spring practice is called.

A little birdie has announced that several surprises will be in store for Pampa football fans when try-outs are announced next spring. They will include changes in several positions of those remaining over for another year.

REGAL AND INDIAN FLASH TO MEET IN ONE OF THREE MAIN EVENTS ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Granite Brothers, Kid Karr And Hank Alvarez Will Be In Other Attractions

Pampa fight fans are scheduled to see one of the wildest fights in "many moons" at the Pla-Mor auditorium Thursday night when Chief Paris, Oklahoma Indian, meets Pete Regal, wild man of Borger, in the last of three main events.

Old Kid Granite and Hank Alvarez of Mexico City, and Young Kid Granite and Kid Karr of Houston, will battle in the other main events.

Paris is the man who defeated Howard Scott in Amarillo a few weeks ago and later took Danny O'Brien for a beating. He will fight a main event in Oklahoma City Saturday night against Kid Cree, one of the outstanding boxers of the country. Paris, like Regal, is a puncher and can take plenty of punishment. He shaded Regal recently and the Borger boy is seeking revenge. A third man to be in the ring for the bout has not been found.

Alvarez has been meeting all comers.

Radio Act Case Is Before Jury

ABILENE, Nov. 14 (AP)—A federal court jury today deliberated the case of Rev. Sam Morris, Baptist minister accused of violating the radio act by operating an unlicensed broadcasting station at Stamford, his home city.

The main issue brought out in Judge William H. Atwell's charge to the jury was whether programs broadcast over the Morris station were heard across the state's boundaries. Government witnesses testified they picked up broadcasts in Oklahoma from the station. On the other hand, defense witnesses claimed they had tried without success to tune in on the station from points near the Texas-Oklahoma line.

The trial was begun after Judge Atwell overruled a defense motion to quash the indictment on the ground that the radio act was in conflict with the first amendment to the constitution, relating to the right of free speech.

CASES DISMISSED

COMANCHE, Nov. 14 (AP)—Court records showed today that three cases against W. D. Carroll, charged with election fraud in miscalling votes had been dismissed upon motion of the district attorney on grounds of an opinion from the court of criminal appeals which held that the ballots were illegally opened.
