Sex scandal explodes at Pantex bomb plant

AMARILLO (AP) - The Pantex nuclearweapons plant was one of several Department of Energy plants around the nation with security problems including allegations of sexual misconduct, a Seattle newspaper reported.

But officials at the plant, located northeast of Amarillo and about 35 miles west of Pampa off U.S. 60, deny the report, which appeared in a copyright story in Thursday's editions of the Seattle Times.

The newspaper reported the problems were revealed during a closed hearing by the U.S. House Committee on Energy and Commerce in March.

The newspaper said the problems included: ☐ Guards at Pantex, the DOE's highest-security weapons production facility, were found to have taken sex partners up to watch towers.

☐ Several pounds of plutonium, used to make hydrogen bombs, were "lost" in a mock terrorist raid at the department's Savannah River, S.C.,

As many as 30 workers at the DOE's Oak Ridge, Tenn., weapons production plant were found to be drug users.

Clyde alley, Pantex assistant plant manager, said the allegations of sexual miscenduct were

"That was investigated, and there is no substantiation at all for that," he said.

Alley said the rumor was started by a man who never worked at the plant. He refused to identify

The Times said the information came from a recently declassified copy of a special oversight and investigations subcommittee's transcript.

SPS to rebate lower fuel cost

Area residents will see smaller December elec-tric bills if the Public Utilities Commission grants a request by Southwestern Public Service Co. to rebate past fuel savings to retail customers.

Falling natural gas prices and a recent conversion to coal has enabled SPS to save $12 million in fuel costs, and the electric company plans to pass these savings on to the customers.

Thursday, the electric company filed a request with the PUC seeking permission to credit past past fuel savings to its retail customers in Texas.

If the PUC approves the request, SPS residential customers can expect rebates in December, according to Bill Helton, SPS vice president of corporate services. Hel-ton said the typical household, which uses 600 kilowatts of electricity, would get a $13 credit on its bill.

Pampa SPS District Manager Jim Morris said Pampa and area customers will receive the re-

Last year, SPS returned about $19 million to its customers after realizing savings in fuel costs. The company attributed most of the savings to its decision to switch from natural gas to coal-fired plants. The company saved even more when natural gas prices fell, according to Helton.

The company also reported an increased fuel efficiency through engineering efforts.

Utilities must obtain approval from the PUC before they can pass along lower costs for fuel used to generate power.

Pampa prepares for Saturday's Country Fair

By LARRY HOLLIS Staff Writer

Saturday is the day all the preparations come together as the second annual Pampa Chamber of Commerce's Country Fair opens at 5:30 p.m. in the M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Planning and work for the fair have been going on for months, but now all the labor will be coming to fruition with a dinner, two auctions, food, entertainment and a dance

"If they aren't going great, we're not aware of it," said Mike Keagy, general chairman. "We're really pleased.

A new addition to the fair — and to the auditorium — is a portable ramp that can be extended from the stage into the audience.

The ramp is the result of a cooperative effort among the chamber, Celanese Chemical Co. and city employees, and the M.K. Brown Foundation, said chamber President Bill Duncan The project was conceived after last year's au-close enough to the audience during the Live Auction bidding. The chamber decided to see what could be done A. Morgan and Tyson Schindler went to work nd came up with a basic design. Celanese en-ctioneer expressed some concern about not being gineers Peter Berzanskis and Terry Walters then did the final design and drafting. In late August, the chamber took the specifications to the city, which volunteered the labor for the construction. M.K. Brown Foundation provided most of the money for the materials, which ost about $1,800. City employees building and painting the ramp were Robert Herring, Jimmy Smith and David Keegy praised the cooperative venture, noting the volunteers "really put a lot of work into it" to get the ramp ready for the fair. She said the ramp already has been used for a style show and the recent Community Concert opening.

Duncan said the ramp has been donated to the auditorum for use at other shows and events.

At the fair, the ramp will be placed at center stage to extend about 25 feet into the audience. allowing auctioneer Denzil Tevis to get the audience more involved in the bidding for at least 36 donated items.

Tickets for the fair have been going fast in the past couple of days, the chamber reported this morning. There may or may not be tickets available at the door, depending on how many tickets are sold today

The evening will get under way with a dinner at 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Food booths in the Heritage Room will offer shish kebab, tacos, barbecue, pizza, vegetables and dips, and cobbler. The choices of food were arranged by Virginia Wilkerson and her Food Committee.

The Silent Auction, with more than 200 items available for bidding, will be under way at the same time, with the materials set up in the Heritage Room and lobby for viewing. The auction will close in stages beginning at 7:15 p.m. and closing out about 9:45 p.m.

Entertainment will be provided in the auditorium from 7:30 to 8 p.m. The Live Auction will begin at 8 p.m. and continue for about an hour

Afterwards, the Wells Fargo Band will play in the Heritage Room for a dance lasting from about 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

Julia Sparkman and her Decorations Committee are busy today placing the decorations in the auditorium, featuring picket fences, cowboy boots and bandanas. An antique car, complete with passengers, will be an added addition for the stage.

The fair has been the result of hundreds of hours of volunteer labor. Other committee chairman have included Doug Lockwood, solicitations; Bill Harris, tickets; Richard Stowers, drawing tickets; Gerald Sims, banking; Bob Chambers, security, and Dona Cornutt, Silent Auction.

Also overseeing all the preparations have been Roy Sparkman, tables; Jerry Noles, Gold Coats; Charles Buzzard, gift pick-up; Floyd Sackett, auction catalog; and masters of ceremony Doug Carmichael, Bill Hite and Robert Wilson, Live Aucthat the facilities could withstand a baseline terrorist attack," said Dingell. "That was a lie. It was not a question of judgment or a question of differences of judgment — they knew that their statements were not true. Dingell pointed out that systems at the plant officials that claimed were adequate had failed a mock attack exercise miserably

"The 'aggressors' were able to disappear into the woods with significant quantities of plutonium because one machine gunner was not trained to load his gun," he said. "Another had not been trained to unjam his machine gun, and a helicopter was dispatched with no weapons aboard.'

'It has always been my contention that our biggest threat is not from nuclear war, but from freelance nuclear terrorists," said another subcommittee member, Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., adding that months after the March 6 hearing, the DOE had still not confirmed that security problems at the plants had been resolved.

Wyden has introduced a bill that would establish an independent, outside agency to monitor DOE safety and security at its nuclear plants. "As it is now," he said, "The same people who produce (weapons materials) are the ones who assure you it is safe.

The hearing last spring did not discuss operations at the Hanford nuclear resevation, where plutonium handling was criticized in internal audits. Hanford will be the subject of a separate series of safety, health and security hearings next year, according to subcommittee staff members. Though Dingell alluded to sexual activities in the Amarillo guard towers, all other references to the incident were apparently edited out of the document. However, some of the details of drug activity at Oak Ridge came out in testimony by former deputy assistant secretary for security affairs, Edward Badolato, whom the DOE announced Thursday had been replaced by former Air Force Col. Michael Seaton

One employee at Oak Ridge was arrested for drug dealing, while some users were disciplined and others were fired. Civilian employees of a DOE contractor at Amarillo were also allowed to forego drug tests by claiming they were unable to urinate, though they were later required to undergo testing.

In his testimony, Balodato referred to maps of the DOE's Livermore, Calif., Los Alamos, N.M., and Savannah facilities, pointing out to subcommittee members areas where security systems were still "unsatisfactory." He described conditions at the Rocky Flats, Colo., and Amarillo plants as "marginally satisfactory," or adequate until permanent changes could be made in the security Wyden said Wackenhut Corp., which holds a $40 million contract to manage security at the Savannah River plant, apparently was tipped off about a mock raid to test the contractor's rating.

Reagan closes Washington; federal government broke

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House ordered the government to shut down today after Congress failed to approve needed spending leg-

"It's finally come to the point where we can't put it off any longer," said Ed Dale, spokesman for the Office of Management and Budget.

'We can't keep people in place if we can't pay them," Dale said, after OMB director James C. Miller III sent notice to government agencies to start sending employees home. Essential personnel, such as the military and air traffic controllers, would remain on the job.

Four times since the fiscal year began Oct. 1 Congress has approved stopgap bills to tide things over because of stalemates over the long-term legislation — a massive half-trillion-dollar piece of legislation. The last stopgap bill expired at midnight.

'Congress has not passed any appropriations," Dale said. "This has nothing to do with government being broke. There is plenty of money in Treasury but we can't spend it because there's no

The House approved the $576 billion year-long bill Wednesday night and President Reagan has endorsed it, but the Senate was snarled today in squabble over buying a new trainer plane the Air

"Once again, Congress has shown it has the discipline of a group of school children before recess," said Sen. Bill Roth, R-Del., echoing the frustration of a body that had already overstayed its intended term by two weeks. Red-and-white buttons reading "Free the 99th Congress" sprouted on lapels throughout the Capitol.

"I don't think that reflects well on the political institution in general," said Senate Appropriations Committee Chairman Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore. 'These all-night sessions and threats of the government shutting down are not befitting the dignity of the Senate.

The largest of more than half a dozen items on the lawmakers' list of unfinished business, the $576 billion spending bill represents more than half of all federal spending for 1987.

A bill eight inches thick and weighing 1814 pounds, it rolls together all 13 regular spending bills needed to run various federal agencies because none of the individual measures had been passed by the start of the fiscal year.

The Senate on Thursday adopted the core of the compromise bill — passed by the House a day eatlier — and began debating a series of unresolved issues that were left open for separate votes.

It was there that the dispute over the trainer aircraft arose. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Anz., offered an amendment prohibiting the use of $151 million in the bill's defense section for the purchase of T-46A trainers, triggering a five-hour protest from Sens. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., and Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y. The trainer is built by Fairchild Republic Co. in Farmingdale,

Tr Ho

po cor lot Cle

"I am not going to sit quietly and allow millions of dollars to be committed to a program which the administration and the Pentagon say they do not want," Goldwater said, charging that the item had been put into the bill for political reasons.

"You want to talk about political pressure? D'Amato fumed. "Let's understand where it's coming from," he said in an apparent reference to Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., whose state is home to Cessna, a rival aircraft maker which would like to win the trainer contract.

As it worked through other disputed items, the Senate:

- Agreed to House language that would impose a cap of $250,000 per farmer on agricultural subsidies, a response to reports of multi-million-dollar payments to some producers under the nation's new farm law. Even backers said the measure was mostly symbolic and would save very little of the record amounts being spent on farm programs.

- Rejected a House provision designed to prevent building contractors from setting up subsidiaries to evade union labor hiring requirements The administration has threatened to veto any bill that contains the House language.

- Turned down, 63-31, a House section that would require oil rigs off the West Coast to be built with at least 50 percent American steel and manned by at least 50 percent U.S. labor.

Israeli pilot Moslems capture

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — A missing crewmen from an Israeli fighter-bomber shot down during a raid on Palestinian guerrilla bases was reported alive today and in the hands of Shiite Moslem

'The captive has a fractured arm. Otherwise he is well," said a spokesman for Justice Minister Nabih Berri's mainstream Shiite Amal militia. who refused to be identified further.

The spokesman also declined to disclose where the Israeli airman shot down Thursday was being held, although sources said he had been moved to Beirut overnight.

It was not immediately possible to verify the claim. Berri had denied in a statement Thursday that Amal was holding any Israeli.

Israeli jets raided the bases near this ancient port city earlier that day, apparently in retaliation for a grenade attack Wednesday in Jerusalem that killed one Israeli and wounded 69. A shoulder-fired missile downed the Israeli Phantom F-4E and its two crewmen bailed out, landing in an olive grove four miles southeast of Sidon, and 25 miles south of Beirut. Israel's military command in Tel Aviv said helicopter-borne Israeli troops landed in the rugged terrain southeast of Sidon and rescued one of the two crewmen of the downed jet. The Israeli command listed the other flier as missing, and vowed to retrieve him. Initial reports from Lebanon had said the second airman was dead.

Old man guilty of raping child

MERIDIAN, Texas (AP) - A 61-year-old man was convicted of sexually abusing a child and sentenced to 10 years in prison by a Bosque County jury that listened to the victim's testimony on videotape

The jury of 11 men and one woman deliberated 45 minutes before finding R.W. Taylor of Meridian guilty of aggravated sexual assault. Defense attorney John Hastings Jr. says he will appeal the verdict while Taylor remains free on a $7,000 bond. Hastings objected to use of the 12-minute videotaped interview with the girl.

"I just don't think a 3-year-old girl is competent to give testimony," he said.

Taylor was accused last April of sexually assaulting the girl. He is a World War II veteran and Purple Heart recipient who taught school for 32 years before retiring.

Gov. Mark White fired some heated words about utilities toward challenger Bill Clements while Treasury Secretary James Baker said the White House maintains a cool attitude toward the gov-

White charged Thursday that Clements has shown a "callous disregard for consumers and working Texans," by suggesting that the lawyer that represents citizens before the Public Utility Commission is expendable.

'Additionally, the pubic counsel has served to point out utility waste and mismanagement so that consumers no longer pay for executive bonuses, lobbying and advertising as they did under Bill Clements," White said.

Baker, making a Clement's campaign appearance Thursday in Dallas, said White has a reputation for writing letters to the White House that are not well received.

The present governor is fond of writing letters up there that have a political slant to them," said

Asked his view of Clements' oft-quoted statement that White's calls to Washington "find nobody home," Baker laughed and said: "I do agree

He said he and Clements have enjoyed "a close personal friendship going back 16 years" and that the former Republican governor is well connected at the White House.

"It's much better for the chief executive of a stomparing the gubernatorial records of White and Clements "would lead any thinking Texan to vote for Bill Clements.

White maintains that 94 percent of Texans are

The federal government is technically on the verge of running out of money as Congress wrestles with the omnibus budget bill for the fiscal year that-started Oct. 1.

Congress can pass a bill on Thursday that would keep the federal bills paid for 24 hours, but Baker said the White House feels no pressure to sign other legislation just to keep the government gears

"If Congress doesn't send us a continuing resolution to authorize the funds, we will shut down the government," he said, adding that the administration did close the government in 1982, forcing Congress to return and pass appropriations. 'We'll go though that again, if necessary," said the secretary Baker blamed a divided Texas oil industry for President Reagan's decision not to support an oil He said many in the industry are reluctant to let the government create the new agency that would be needed to administer an import fee. Refiners, he said, also are strongly opposed to the import fee.

An import fee for oil has been suggested as a way to make foreign-produced oil more expensive, in this country, thereby forcing it to compete more equally with domestically-produced oil. Proponents of the fee say it would encourage more domestic drilling and help reverse the Texas oil industry slump

'Choker rapist' convicted of strangling teen-ager

HOUSTON (AP) - An ex-convict known as Austin's "choker rapist" faces up to 99 years in prison after a jury convicted him of strangling a 17-yearold Kingwood girl 10 months after being paroled from a 123-year sentence.

After two days of testimony, jurors in State District Judge Ted Poe's court took just over two hours Thursday before convicting Thomas Earl Grettenberg of burglary and intent to commit aggravated assault in the July 11 attack on Lisa Kilgore. The jury knew nothing of Grettenberg's past criminal record.

The punishment phase in the trial of Grettenberg, 33, was scheduled for today.

Wearing a neckbrace because of injuries she allegedly received during the attack, Miss Kilgore said Grettenberg harassed her at the Kingwood restaurant where she worked for several months and once followed her to another restaurant where he stared at her while she had dinner with friends. 'He told me he was going to kill me,'' Miss Kilgore testified in tears. "I was scared, I thought I was going to die. After Grettenberg allegedly choked her during the early morning hours at her parent's northeast Harris County home, Miss Kilgore said she black-

Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earl has criticized state parole officials for releasing Grettenberg after he served only eight years of a 123year prison sentence for rapes and burglaries that occurred in Austin in the late 1970s. The victims in each case were choked.

"I couldn't believe it," Miss Kilgore said of Grettenberg being on parole. "I didn't understand how if they (parole board) knew he had the capabilities of doing these things how they could just let him do Grettenberg also is accused of choking a Humble teen-ager in her bed Aug. 18.

Miss Kilgore's mother, Marie Martin, testified Wednesday that Grettenberg came to her door once posing as a marketing surveyor, repeatedly called the house and left a note atop the family's mailbox before the attack.

Mrs. Martin also said she once found Grettenberg staring through a window of the restaurant where her daughter worked and told him that "if he didn't leave my daughter alone, he'd have to

"He looked at me like I wasn't there," she said. "Then he walked away.

Miss Kilgore was attacked as she slept on a living room couch. She was to have entered the Miss Teen Houston Beauty Pageant that night.

Her parents said they were awakened early July 11 by their daughter's screams. They found her with apparent rope burns on her neck, bulging eyes and bruises on her body.

Under questioning by defense lawyer Stan Schneider, Mrs. Martin acknowledged she never saw Grettenberg commit a crime.

, bank take over West Texas winery

AUSTIN (AP) — Operation of the St. Genevieve winery in West Texas has been taken over by the University of Texas and the Bank of America while UT and the bank look for a new operator for the facility, according to an attorney for the school.

W.O. Schultz, UT's associate general counsel. said the university canceled the winery's lease Oct. 7, but he declined to say why the 30-year lease, with a 30-year renewal option, was terminated

The winery, the largest in Texas, operates on 1,000 acres of university land in Pecos County. It had projected sales of 150,000 cases of wine in 1986.

The winery, which began shipping wine in the summer of 1985, sells a variety of wines under the Ste. Genevieve label.

In mid-September, the winery introduced its first 1986 vintage wine — Texas First Blush — produced from the season's first harvest of premium grapes.

Bob Simpson, Ste. Genevieve's general manager, said the company was preparing a statement concerning the situation.

The Bank of America has repossessed Ste. Genevieve's wine-making facility, Schultz said. The $15 million winery was completed in 1985.

The company has placed current production capabilities at more than 500,000 cases a

"The Bank of America loaned them the money to build the winery and to purchase equipment," Schultz said. The bank had a lien on the property. A lien gives a lender the right to take, hold or sell the property as a debtor as security or repayment of a debt.

The land was leased to S.G.R.C. Inc. and an affiliated company known as S.G.R.C. Limited Partnership, Schultz said.

S.G.R.C. was formed by Texas oilmen Tony Sanchez Jr. and Richardson "Dick" Gill; Henri Bernabe, president of the Richter Corp., a French vineyard concern; and Cordier Inc., the largest commercial wine producer in France. At present, UT is overseeing the operation of the vineyard and the winery, said Michael Patrick, UT executive vice chancellor for asset management.

School district rejects drug testing

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The attorney for the Beaumont Independent School District said if trustees had not rejected a schoolwide drug testing plan, they would have faced many lawsuits and probably lost

But trustees Thursday rejected the plan to require administrators, teachers and students in sixth through 12th grade to test for drug use and instead elected to ask a drug abuse task force to find another way to deal with the problem.

Superintendent Mike Taylor proposed the plan last month amid positive and negative response from parents, teachers and students. U.S. Department of Education officials in Washington D.C., described the proposal as the most encompassing anti-drug plan ever considered by a public school

But the district's attorney Tanner Hunt raised four legal issues as he urged consideration of an alternative plan.

He said adoption of Taylor's proposal could lead to violations of the Fourth Amendment, the Fifth Amendment, due process and equal protection provisions of state and federal law and contractual agreements with school employees.

Hunt said under certain conditions the district could ask students to submit to drug testing, but under no circumstances could the district force its employees to submit to drug testing. Hunt said no provision exists in the district's contract with teachers that allows for drug testing. He also emphasized there is no history of drug usage among district employees.

He said the district cannot test students unless a reason exists to do so. Hunt urged district officials to investigate and adopt a written policy prior to implementing any kind of drug-testing program. His advice followed protests against the plan from dozens of citizens. Dr. Leon Stertz, a local physician and president of the Sabine chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the tests could violate individual rights to privacy "The test discloses other details about a person's life, such as whether the subject is being treated for a heart condition, depression, epilepsy or diabetes," Stertz said. "Neither the school principal nor the school board has a right to that.

Toxic tide sloshes to South Padre

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Texas (AP) — Since arriving on the Texas coast in January Mark Hamner has survived spring break and a busy summer as acting general manager of the Hilton Inn on

But he's not sure how he'll handle the toxic red tide that kept hotel visitors away from the beach Thursday because of its searing effects on the eyes, lungs and nasal passages.

"Now, we've got something I don't know how to deal with," Hamner said, his eyes reddened by the tide as he surveyed a desolate beach. "What can I do? What can this whole island do?'

The red tide washed into South Padre late Wednesday and by Thursday afternoon dead catfish littered the beaches of the coastal resort.

The red tide began near Galveston in late August and slowly has moved south. Thousands of fish have been killed by the heavy concentration of marine micro-organisms.

Officials in Corpus Christi, 120 miles to the north, have been forced to close beaches to swimmers. The Texas Health Department has suspended oyster harvests for 300 miles of coast from San Louis Pass to the mouth of the Rio Grande because the organism that causes the red tide builds up in shellfish, said Hector Herrera, regional engineer for the health agency in Harlingen.

Small fish began washing ashore on beaches in this South Texas resort late Wednesday. Don Hockaday, an educational assistant at the Pan American University's coastal studies laboratory, said large fish can also be killed.

The beaches were deserted Thursday afternoon as toxins from the the red tide caused people to complain of burning eyes, numbness of the mouth or extremities, and irritation of the nose, throat or

Market should set value of the dollar

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker recently announced magisterially that the value of the dollar in comparison to other currencies has fallen far enough, and that "further adjustment" is not necessary. U.S. Treasury Secretary Baker, however, has said that without appropriate steps to speed up economic growth abroad, the dollar needs to fall still

The fact that the two men disagree so radically should alert citizens to the fact that neither man has anything more objective to back up his hunch than what might be observed in a dime-store crystal ball. In babbling about the "true value" or "correct value" of the dollar compared to other currencies, both men demonstrate not the slightest understanding of some of the most elementary principles of economics.

When people who know a little bit about economics get into policy-making positions in government, a common tendency is for them to take unto themselves a guru-like mantle of near-infallibility. Clear-eyed observers, however, more often note that the longer an economist stays in government, the more subjective, less rigorous, and less defensible his or her pronouncements on economic matters become. It's almost as if one is required to forget anything on the public payroll, or at least not to embarrass others by uttering simple Volcker's and Baker's public squabble over the "true value" of the dollar is an example of a public controversy that could be discussed or sustained only in an atmosphere of profound ignorance on the part of the disputants and most observers.

As any freshman economics student could tell you, in a reasonably open marketplace there is no such thing as "right" price. Prices are set through voluntary transactions among buyers and sellers, and are not only subject to the subjective preferences and perceptions of all parties, but are subject to constant

Government agencies, through policies wise or foolish, may influence prices, either through direct controls or through regulations that influence the perceptions of buyers, sellers and traders. To suggest that a new price set in response to a new government initiative is the "right" or "true" price, however, is ridicu-

So why do people like Volcker and Baker utter such absurdities? The main reason is because they have different policy preferences. Baker wants the U.S. government to push other governments toward more 'stimulation' of their economies, and Volcker thinks our government has done about enough of that for the time being. They talk claptrap about the "true value" of the dollar because it sounds dramatic and assured and because they know that few people in government or the media know enough about economics to call them on it.

The whole flap — with officials solemnly defending policies on the basis of utter ignorance - provides one more reason for ordinary citizens to be skeptical about permitting government officials to have as much influence over the economy as they do.

A system after apartheid

There are two principal questions concerning South Africa, one easy and one hard. The easy one is whether the white supremacist system of apartheid ought to be preserved, to which the only answer is no. The hard one is what ought to replace it. As the South African government's power erodes, finding an answer to the latter becomes increasingly urgent.

The American debate over imposing trade sanctions against Pretoria has been almost entirely preoccupied by the easy issue. Proponents, pointing to a long and damning list of crimes by the white racist government, think the U.S. is morally obliged to do what it can to cripple the regime. They show an insouciant lack of interest in what happens afterward.

This is roughly the same approach the U.S. took toward Rhodesia when its white minority government was embroiled in a civil war with black revolutionaries. The immediate goal of establishing majority rule was realized. But the aftermath has been less agreeable.

The government that rules Zimbabwe today is not a black democracy but a black dictatorship, and one whose savage repression of opposition has earned condemnation from international human rights groups. In the congressional debate over South African sanctions, the inconvenient example of Zimbabwe was ignored.

There is ample reason to worry that South Africa will fare no better. The outlawed African National Congress, the most influential political organization among South Africa's blacks, long has been allied with the South African Communist Party. The ANC gets arms from the Soviet Union

The Pretoria government claims that 23 of the 30 members of the group's executive committee are communists. Even impartial experts put the number at about 13. If the ANC gains power, communism is a live possibility.

Whites fear that more than the loss of their privileged status. They predict bitterly that the new South Africa will be brief experiment in democracy, featuring "one man, one vote, once." And they worry that whites will be treated as badly by the governing blacks as blacks have been treated by the white regime.

Their apprehensions are not irrational. Even the liberal New Republic magazine, which has argued vigorously for sanctions, rejects the idea that a unitary state, with elections carried out on a one-man, one-vote basis, would inaugurate a new era of freedom.

"After that happy demonstration of majoritarianism," an editorial argued last year, "South African politics would be more like the civil violence that afflicts the rest of the African continent, where warring tribes are locked in bloody national embrace thanks to lines drawn on maps by ignorant and capricious men in faraway Europe. A successful black revolution most likely would turn out the same way.'

The problem is how to dismantle an oppressive white government without installing an oppressive black one. On this issue, the most important contribution comes from two white South Africans, whose new book, "South Africa:

The Solution," has become a bestseller there. Leon Louw and Frances Kendall have devised a complicated system to safeguard the interests of both blacks and whites.

They understand that the danger is not majority rule, but unlimited government power. Their remedy is decentralization, with basic rights guaranteed by the central government but with other powers and responsibilities dispersed among some one hundred "cantons," along the lines of the Swiss model.

The intent is to allow a South Africa as diverse as its people. Louw and Kendall envision that some cantons would practice socialism, others white or black separatism, others libertarian laissez-faire. Instead of battling for control of powerful national government, distinct ethnic and political groups would tend to concentrate in particular cantons, where they would have wide latitude to govern themselves as they

This plan is not the last word, but it emphasizes the right themes: democracy, protection of fundamental rights, local autonomy, checks and balances. Like the original American constitution, it builds unity out of a respect for differences.

Ideas like this ought to be debated in the U.S. as they are in South Africa. Having elected to exert economic pressure against the status quo, Americans now have a moral obligation to use their influence to promote freedom and prosperity. The end of apartheid is not the end of the

Harder to make ends meet

You keep hearing that inflation is in remission, that prices are less than when this year

But is your cost of living going down? You hear and read about fluctuations in "The Consumer Price Index' as though this were an absolute measure of our cost of living. It is not.

While wholesale prices of goods have actually been going down — you are paying 7.8 percent more for college tuition.

What's happened is that our nation's economy has divided itself into two tiers - goods and services. And while the price of "things" has been on hold, the cost of "services" has increased 5 percent in the past six months. The cost of eating food at home last year increased 1.9 percent

The cost of a restaurant meal increased 3.8 percent.

The difference is what you paid for "service." The extent to which inflation has been brought under control in the United States is laudable. Six years ago our dollar had cancer, appeared

The cancer is in remission.

Our dollar is healthy again. In this we are the envy of the world.

Yet, understandably you want to know how it is that every payday you have more trouble making ends meet.

The service sector of the American economy is your going expense.

Tough competition among law firms has sharply increased starting salaries for topnotch attorneys.

A shortage of skilled nurses in most areas has lifted their wages.

And it is virtually impossible in most cities to hire employees for household duties. The bidding for a good cook, housekeeper, maid or gardener has escalated to the income level of 3 corporation executives.

Services are in short supply. And in our affluent society the demand for services is ever : increasing.

If the Federal Reserve Board is reluctant: further to stimulate our economy by making borrowing easier, it is because the inflation fire is still smoldering. You are paying less for pizza but more for having it delivered.

Dealing with danger for 80,000 years

By Robert Walters

PRESCOTT, Ore. (NEA) - The Trojan nuclear power plant, on the banks of the Columbia River in northwestern Oregon, has functioned well for a decade and presumably will continue to operate for an additional 25 years. But when the plant's useful life comes to an end early in the next century, its owners are likely to have neither adequate funds nor a secure method to decommission or dismantle the highly radioactive facility. Trojan is hardly unique. Among the 100 commercial nuclear power plants in operation across the nation, scores rely upon potentially unsafe decommissioning plans or unsuitable funding mechanisms. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission allows utilities to choose among three decommissioning alternatives:

· Decon: By far the safest approach, it calls for all radioactive equipment and structures to be mechanically or chemically decontaminated, fully dismantled and shipped to a burial ground. The process is so thorough that the property is then safe for unrestricted public use.

· Safstor: This calls for preliminary decontamination before the plant is stored for 50 years to allow shortlived radioactive isotopes to decay. Full dismantling follows.

Services.

· Entomb: The least safe method, it involves preliminary decontamination followed by entombment of all radioactive materials and components in a semi-permanent shroud of steel-reinforced concrete.

However, some isotopes will remain highly radioactive long after the concrete blanket disintegrates. Nickel 59, for example, has a half-life of 20,000 years, while niobium 94 has a half-life of 80,000 years.

A report issued earlier this year by the Worldwatch Institute, an independent research organization based in Washington, D.C., says: "Although once viewed as the cheap and easy way out, entombment is no longer considered a realistic option because of the longevity of several radioisotopes. The protective structure would decay long before the radioactivity within

Yet the owners of the Trojan facility say they plan to rely upon entombment, as do the owners of nuclear power plants in several other states.

Undoubtedly the most secure method of financing heavy decommissioning costs involves prepayment of all expected "back end" expenses when the plant first becomes operable. These costs are then amortized during the facility's life.

Almost as reliable is the establishment of a separate decommissioning fund, using money collected from the utility's customers during the life of the plant. The fund is managed by an outside trustee.

Somewhat less reliable is internal segregated funding, which allows the utility to retain control of the decommissioning money.

Finally, there is the option that provides by far the least financial integrity yet is overwhelmingly the most popular - internal unsegregated funding

Under that system, a portion of the customers' monthly payments is credited to the utility's decommissioning account, but the money goes into the company's general fund, when it can be used to pay expenses wholly unrelated to decommissioning. "This approach is best characterized as 'phantom funding,' since the funds disappear after they have been collected," notes a report issued last 1 year by Public Citizen and Environmental Action, public interest groups in Washington, D.C.

The NRC, in a 1983 report, says that option "is so fraught with uncertainty as to be of marginal adequacy unless coupled with insurance or other surety arrangements.'

Yet it is the financing option of choice not only for Trojan but also for almost two-thirds of the nation's other nuclear power plants.

Bar owner, named in Feazell case, found slain

WACO, Texas (AP) — Police said they had no leads in the shooting death of a lounge owner alleged to have paid McLennan County District Attorney Vic Feazell a $1,000 bribe.

And Feazell, who claimed his indictment by a federal grand jury was inspired by his involvement in the Henry Lee Lucas case, said there appeared to be no connection on the surface between his case and the death.

Richard Bowers, 66, who in September was named in the federal indictment charging Feazell with taking bribes, was found by his wife, Nora, early Thursday morning "as if he had just gotten out of his car," said Justice of the Peace John Cabaniss, who put the time of death at about 4:15

Waco police spokesman Larry Murphy said Bowers, the owner of the Clifton Street Lounge, was shot at least once in the left side of his chest.
"It could have been more than once," Murphy said. "All we can say is that it doesn't appear to be a shotgun. The autopsy will clear up all that for us."

Murphy said Waco police had no motive in the shooting death and no evidence of a connection with the Feazell case.

"I don't know anything about the shooting. It's going to take some investigating," Feazell said. "There does not appear on the surface to be any connection, but in light of the recent burglary of my office and some other events, nothing would surprise me."

In the federal indictment against Feazell, Bowers was alleged to have paid Feazell a $1,000 bribe in 1984 in connection with his arrest for possession of hydromorphone, synthetic heroin.

Bowers told the Waco Tribune-Herald in September he paid attorneys Don Hall and Dick Kettler $12,000 in legal fees and was placed on probation for the charge. He denied bribing Feazell and said he had never met him.

FBI agents questioned him three times since September 1985, Bowers said in the interview.

Feazell was indicted by a federal grand jury on Sept. 16 on two counts of racketeering and 10 counts of mail fraud. In 1985, when a McLennan County grand jury failed to indict Henry Lee Lucas in two local slayings, Feazell predicted he would be an indictment target because his work on the Lucas case embarrassed the Texas Rangers.

Lucas at one time confessed to hundreds of murders nationwide but later recanted saying he had been trying to make law enforcement officers look foolish by making bogus confessions.

Meanwhile, Assistant U.S. Attorney Jan Patterson Thursday filed a motion asking U.S. District

Judge James R. Nowlin to deny Feazell's request to have tapes seized Sept. 17 from his office and home placed in a depository.

Ms. Patterson said the tapes contain evidence of "ongoing criminal activity," including conversations with local attorneys.

Ms. Patterson has said the tapes will help prove Feazell's guilt, and has compared them to former President Richard Nixon's Watergate tapes.

"There's nothing incriminating in those tapes," Feazell said Thursday. "To the contrary, they prove my innocence. That's why I'm worried about her having them. I'm afraid I'll never get them back."

Feazell's request for access to the tapes through a depository was made after the 5th Court in New Orleans suggested a depository as a method of making the tapes available to both sides.

Geriatric hospitals up for vote

AUSTIN (AP) — A growing population of the elderly in Texas makes it feasible to establish specialized geriatric treatment centers at Kerrville and San Angelo, says Midland businessman Pete Snelson.

"This is an excellent opportunity for us to do something about specialization in the treatment of geriatrics," said Snelson told the Sunset Advisory Commission Thursday.

The Sunset commission, which periodically reviews the operations of state agencies, was scheduled to vote on Snelson's proposals today.

In addition to considering staff recommendations for changes in the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, the commission also was to consider changes in the Texas Department of Corrections and the Department of Human Services.

Snelson's proposal would designate the Kerrville State Hospital as the Geropsychiatric Hospital for Texas for patients more than 65 years of age who have been in a state hospital for five or more years.

He proposed that San Angelo State School be made into the Geriatric Treatment Center for the Retarded, also for those over 65.

The proposals by Snelson, a former state senator who is the Democratic nominee for Congressional District 21, would replace a staff recommendation of the Commission that called for transfer of long-term geriatric patients in state hospitals and schools to be transfered to community nursing homes.

"This has been widely misunderstood," said Kathy Hutto, program analyst of the Sunset staff. "We had no intention of shifting everyone to nursing homes and walking away from them."

Snelson said his proposals would not close geriatric divisions in other state hospitals but would allow physicians to transfer patients over 65 to Kerrville and San Angelo where it was considered best for the patient.

"The geriatric population in the state schools will increase in the years ahead and by designating these schools as the primary provider of services to this age group, a greater degree of specialization will be possible," Snelson told the commission.

Earlier the Sunset commission agreed Thursday to hold a public hearing on proposals to release some non-violent prisoners and keep track of them with electronic monitoring advices.

"This would cost about $9 a day and would be an alternative to expensive parole and probation services," said Bill Wells, head of the commission staff. "It would save a considerable amount of money."

Wells said a subcommittee of the commission suggested the monitoring program, which would work through regular parole and probation offices, should be tried first in metropolitan centers "where most come back to from the Texas Department of Corrections."

It costs an estimated $27 a day to keep a person in the state prison system.

Governor's subpoena recalled by defense

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An attorney for Henry Lee Lucas said a subpoena served on Gov. Mark White was recalled and his testimony won't be needed at a pretrial hearing.

Lucas is charged with capital murder in the May 1983 slaying of 72-year-old Librada Apodaca at her El Paso home. Lucas gave a confession to that slaying — and about 600 others — then recanted hem all.

In a hearing that started Sept. 8, his attorneys are trying to have state District Judge Brunson Moore rule the Apodaca confession inadmissible.

Defense attorney Doris Sipes said she had planned to call White to the witness stand to obtain some records on a grant made to the Texas Rangers task force, which coordinated the investigation into the Lucas case.

"The governor didn't have anything to do with the Lucas investigation," Ms. Sipes said.

The records were obtained, making White's testimony unnecessary, she said.

"I have recalled the subpoena this morning," she said Thursday.

Reagan: U.S. will seek arms cuts despite Soviet 'Star Wars' stance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration intends to push for nuclear weapons cuts at the negotiating table despite a new Soviet warning that "Star Wars" cannot be separated from an overall settlement.

We hope to clarify this point in our discussions in Geneva," a State Department spokesman, Pete Martinez, said Thursday. U.S. weapons specialists, meanwhile, worked on a package of proposals based on the Iceland summit.

Following President Reagan's approval, the proposals will be submitted by chief U.S. negotiator Max Kampelman in the Geneva talks with the Soviets. Two preliminary sessions were held in the Swiss city Wednesday and Thursday, but U.S. officials described them as routine.

They were not held in the context of the Iceland summit," an official, who demanded anonymity,

The administration's performance at Reykjavik came under attack, however, by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., one of Congress' arms experts, who said the U.S. offer to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev was confused and would leave the United States at a disadvantage

"It is obvious that this proposal has not been thought through adequately," said Nunn of Reagan's offer to get rid of ballistic missiles.

Eliminating all strategic offensive nuclear arms over the next decade would put the United States at a serious disadvantage because of the substantial edge the Warsaw Pact nations hold over Western Europe in conventional military forces, Nunn said.

Reagan told a group of junior high school students bound for the Soviet Union that the summit was a crossroads, not between having and not having an agreement, but rather between believing that nothing can change and believing in a future that offers hope that our world will some day be free of the awesome fear of nuclear attack.

Pentagon finds 1,500 AIDS cases among active personn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The military has tested 1 million men and women on active duty for exposure to the disease AIDS and encountered the same 0.15 percent "positive rate" seen earlier in the testing of recruits, Pentagon sources say.

As a result, roughly 1,500 men and women have been identified as having been exposed to an antibody associated with the deadly disease. Of those, just over half have begun showing "symptoms indicative of progressive clinical disease," grounds for a medical discharge, the sources say.

In a related development, Congress - in approving the Pentagon's fiscal 1987 budget authorization inserted language forbidding the use of information obtained from medical interviews "to support any adverse personnel action," including dis-

That directive would overturn part of the Pentagon's confidentiality policy. Currently, if a serviceman acknowledges drug use or homosexual activity in the course of AIDS screening, that information is not supposed to be used as the sole grounds for punitive actions such as courtsmartial. But it can be used as grounds for a dis-

At the same time, Pentagon officials say they have begun debating whether the department been too lenient toward active-duty personnel who test positively for exposure but who show no signs of the actual disease.

Such individuals are now allowed to remain on active duty, although they face continuing medical screening and restrictions on duty assignments and overseas deployments. Some military leaders argue the policy should be changed and any individual testing positively be given an honorable discharge, the sources say.

AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is a fatal disease that destroys the body's immune system. It has been confined largely to homosexuals, intravenous drug users and individuals receiving tainted blood transfusions, although there is some evidence the disease is spreading to the general population.

The blood screen employed by the Pentagon can only indicate whether an individual has been exposed to a virus associated with the disease, not whether he will contract it.

The results of AIDS testing among active-duty personnel were provided Thursday by officials on the condition they not be identified. The Pentagon regularly releases results of tests on new recruits.

The sources asserted the failure to release such information stems from computer problems and not a deliberate effort to keep it secret.

Although the test results have not been consolidated, one source added, the Pentagon has seen sufficient results from each service to better appreciate the problem it faces

Soviet dissident free but happiness marred

ing dissident freed by the Soviet Olga, who remains in Moscow Union calls his sudden release a miracle but says his happiness is incomplete while his daughter and her family remain in

David Goldfarb arrived here with his wife, Cecilia, on Thursday evening, more than seven years after he first requested permission to leave the Soviet Union for Israel.

His release was granted despite his refusal to leave without his wife, or to make a deal with the KGB to frame American journalist Nicholas Daniloff, his son

The couple flew from Moscow aboard Armand Hammer's private jet after the American industrialist arranged permission for their departure through a former Soviet ambassador to the United States.

'Yesterday a miracle happened," Goldfarb, a 67-year-old geneticist, said after he was taken off the jet on an stretcher.

"But, as they say, there is no complete happiness without misfortune and no luck without problems," he said in Russian with his son, Alexander, translating. 'The problem is that I left behind in Moscow my daughter and her

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — An ail- The elder Goldfarb's daughter, with her husband and their 9- and 4-year-old daughters, said she was delighted and stunned by her father's departure.

"This was all so quick," she said. "We said farewell and it was very emotional. Now we're just sitting here and thinking what will happen next.'

After landing at Newark International Airport, Goldfarb was taken immediately to Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York, where a spokesman said he was in stable condition and would be evaluated for a heart condition and diabetes.

His son said Goldfarb, who lost a leg in the Battle of Stalingrad in World War II and had part of his foot amputated due to diabetic gangrene, would be hospitalized at least two days.

"My father should have been out seven years ago and not in this condition," he said.

Alexander Goldfarb and his father's sister, Nina Shurkovich of Rockville, Md., boarded the plane to greet him. They were joined by Daniloff, a friend of Goldfarb's, himself recently released by the Soviets after being accused of spying.

Debate Honduran Contra role

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) - The capture of an American flying supplies to Contra guerrillas in Nicaragua has revived debate about the presence of the U.S.-supported rebels in Honduras. Many say it is time for them to go.

Just as in neighboring El Salvador, where the Contras' use of Ilopango Military Base is an open secret, the presence of the Nicaraguan rebels is something the government would rather not dis-

American Eugene Hasenfus said at a news conference organized by the leftist Sandinista government last week in Managua, Nicaragua's capital, that he participated in 10 supply runs to the Con-

Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., was captured in southern Nicaragua Oct. 5 after the plane he was aboard was shot down.

He said that of the 10 runs, four originated from the Aguacate air base in Honduras and six were from Ilopango. Aguacate is near Catacamas, about 70 miles east of Tegucigalpa.

Honduran President Jose Azcona Hoyo immediately denied that his government lets national territory be used for clandestine flights. Maj. Jorge Alberto Arguello, the armed forces' spokesman, did the same.

The leader of the National Assembly, Carlos Montoya, of the Liberal Party now in power, said the time has come for the Contras to leave Hon-

In addition to the clandestine flights believed to be concentrated at Aguacate, the Contras have maintained bases in southern Honduras near the Nicaraguan border since the start of their 41/2-year

Honduran military sources say about 18,000 Contra rebels operate from their bases on Honduran

We do not agree with the policy or ideology of the Sandinista government, but but as soon as they (the Contras) leave Honduras, the better for us, Montoya said one day after the plane carrying Hasenfus and three other people was shot down.

Manuel Zelaya, a congressman from rural Olancho province where the air base is located, called for the government to expel all Contras from Hon-

"There are 35,000 Honduran citizens living in fear because of the Contras stationed in Catacamas and El Aguacate," Zelaya said in a speech this

President Reagan and other U.S. officials have denied that the American government was involved in the Contra supply flights, which would have been in violation of congressional restrictions. They say there was only private American involvement.

Since the start of the Contra insurgency, U.S. economic aid to Honduras has risen from $32.7 million in 1982 to an expected $158.8 million for the 1987 fiscal year.

American prisoner to face 'people's tribunal'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) -A "People's Tribunal" that a human rights group says has a 99.8 percent conviction rate will try an American captured when a rebel supply flight was shot down. Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell reportedly agreed to defend him

The U.S. State Department said a fair trial was impossible, and that it would be a propaganda

Eugene Hasenfus, 45, of Marinette, Wis., was captured Oct. 6 after a C-123 transport he was aboard was shot down over southern Nicaragua. The plane was on a supply mission to Contra rebels fighting the leftist Sandinista government.

A statement issued Thursday by the Nicaraguan Justice Ministry said Hasenfus would be tried by a "People's Anti-Somocista Tribunal" instead of a regular court. The government gave no reason for the decision.

The statement said Hasenfus will appear before the tribunal Monday to hear charges of violating the law of maintenance of order and public security, part of a national emergency package of regulations the government imposed four years ago in response to the insurgency The statement said the charges would be "within the context of the aggression that the government of the United States of America imposes on the Nicaraguan people.'

If convicted, Hasenfus faces up to 30 years in prison.

At a press conference last week in Managua, Hasenfus said he had taken part in 10 rebel supply flights from bases in El Salvador and Honduras and said they had been coordinated by two CIA

In 1984, Congress imposed restrictions on U.S. government aid to the Contras, and CIA involvement would be illegal. President Reagan and other U.S. authorities have denied any governmental role in the supply runs, claiming Hasenfus made his allegations under duress.

State Department press officer Pete Martinez said Tuesday the Sandinista government is using the case for "maximum internal and external propaganda advantage" and that a fair trial under those conditions was impossible.

Since his capture, Hasenfus has been allowed one 10-minute visit by U.S. Consul Donald Tyson at the offices of State Security, Nicaragua's secret police.

Attorney Ernest Pleger said by telephone from Marinette that the Atlanta firm of King and Spalding, of which Bell is a partcounsel with Hasenfus' Nicaraguan lawyer.

Pleger, retained earlier by Hasenfus' wife, Sally, said Bell and Bell's partner, J.B. Haynes. will be co-counsels, but declined to say who would pay the law

Scripture: Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever. (Hebrews 13:8

My grandmother lived from 1895 to 1986. I've often thought I'd like to write a series of books for children chronicling the advances made by civiliza tion during her lifetime.

Her family moved by covered wagon into Oklahoma while it was still Indian territory. She lived to watch men walk on the moon and go and come from outer space in space shuttles.

Her family used kerosene lamps; she lived to enjoy television, to watch the beat of her heart on a heart monitor, and to love refrigerated Coke and ice cream floats.

She told me once about a man who died when she was a girl. I asked her why he died; she shrugged and answered, "He just took sick and died." She lived to know of organ transplants, radiation treatments, and the virtual eradication of whooping cough, small pox and polio.

When young, she picked cotton and did chores on the farm. She watched an entire country go from primarily rural to vastly industrialized and urbanized.

She was more fortunate than many of her generation; she learned to read and write. Her granddaughter now writes with a computerized word processor. And businesses, using complicated duplicating machines, can transmit exact copies of documents to any place in the world in a matter of seconds.

She could remember when selling firearms to the Indians was a hanging offense. She lived to see young people die in four wars. Her final years saw the development of nuclear weapons capable of annihilating the human race.

And we wonder why our older citizens can't keep up with the times! All these things and infinitely more have happened in one short generation - less than one century. Imagine what lies ahead!

How comforting to know Jesus Christ is the same loving, reigning Lord through all generations.

o 1986 Charlotte Barbaree

Local Catholic Women to host Diocesan Council's convention

The Diocesan Council of Catholic Women will celebrate its 50th anniversary as members gather in convention in Pampa Tuesday,

Hosted by the Pampa Deanery, the convention will feature three speakers in morning and afternoon sessions at St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church

The sessions will be on the 1986 theme, "One Heart, One Mind, in One Spirit." During the day the theme will be delivered in relation to the Renew process (the Renew Program will be starting in the diocese this Bishop L.T. Matthiesen of Amarillo will concelebrate the Eucharistic Liturgy with parish priests in attendance.

Every women's organization in the diocese, which includes the Texas Panhandle and part of the South Plains, has received a detailed 'Call to Convention' and registration form. Details about the speakers will be released later.

Representation from each women's organization makes the DCCW a working force. Policy statements are sent to the diocese and from there to the National Council of Catholic Women, making women's voices heard throughout the nation.

Handicapped seek fuller church life

CINCINNATI (AP) - Jo Ann Ballinger, who has had cerebral palsy since birth, wants fellow church members to remove barriers she says make it difficult for disabled people to participate in congregational life.

Associated Press Writer

It's a problem troubling churches generally, Protestant and Roman Catholic, and Jewish synagogues. Many have worked at modifying facilities and services to meet needs of the handicapped.

But generally, congregational operations remain mostly suited to the fit and firm.

'A few parishes are beginning to look like scenes from the New Testament, with the kinds of people that surrounded Jesus blind, deaf, retarded, physically disabled," says an article in the monthly St. Anthony Messenger.

But this "is still a rare scene," the account adds. "In fact, in most churches, on most Sundays, an observer would get the impression" there are no disabled people among the members.

The goal of Ms. Ballinger, a Roman Catholic, is to whittle away at both physical and attitudinal barriers which she says keep handicapped Catholics from feeling they are a part of their chur-

She wrote an article for the July issue of Catholic Update, a Cincinnati-published newsletter distributed nationally, in which she urged parishes to be more open to the handicapped.

"I would like to be involved in my own parish," said Ms. Ballinger, 54, of Cincinnati. "I would like to be able to do the various lay ministries, whatever I was physically able to do. ... What's important is that we can participate in the way that we choose to, rather than sit there.

separate way

Split looming in new Lutheran church

By JERRY SCHWARTZ Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Even as three conventions representing 5.3 million Lutherans were meeting to forge a new church, a splinter group was laying plans to go its separate way.

A group of conservative pastors and laity, unhappy with aspects of the proposed Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, said if the merger goes through they will set up a rival denomination.

No one knows how many congregations will affiliate with the splinter group, to be known as the Association of American Lutheran Churches. But even the suggestion of a schism caused pain for Lutheran leaders.

"I think it will be tragic if it happens," said Bishop David W. Preus of the American Lutheran Church. "It is a pattern that has occurred in the past, and it does not need to be repeated."

In fact, the history of American's Lutherans has been a centuries-long series of combinations and breakups. Most recently, the Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches broke off from the conservative Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod 10 years ago in a dispute over church teachings

The AELC, from the start, had as its chief aim a merger with larger, centrist Lutheran bodies. Their argument was simple: there were little or no doctrinal differences among the churches. and by uniting they could present a single force for evangelism and other efforts.

After years of negotiations, that union appears to be certain; the AELC, the ALC and the Lutheran Church in America held simultaneous conventions last month, where they approved the merger by near-unanimous margins.

Waterloo, Iowa, had long been an opponent of aspects of the proposed merger, and he is among the leaders of the faction that would break off from the new church.

The group's major complaint, Lindberg said, is with the statement of faith contained in the new church's constitution. It is not stringent enough, he said; it does not preserve ALC language that says the Bible, in whole and in part, is the divinely inspired, inerrant and infallible word of God.

Nor does the new church's bylaws carry over ALC statements regarding homosexuality and abortion. "It's all up for grabs again," Lindberg said.

Preus, on the other hand, said the 70-member commission that fashioned plans for the new church over four years was devoted to producing documents of such "confessional strength and flexible breadth" that all parts of the three churches could live with

Chaplain sees to needs of VA patients

By LYNN BULMAHN Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO, Texas (AP) - Ministering to the spiritual needs of a diverse group of people is a special challenge to the new chief chaplain at the Waco Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Chaplain Wendell A. Russell, an eight-year veteran of the center, is no stranger to patients or staff members.

His ministerial charges, mostly from Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, come from a variety of religious backgrounds

"That's the beauty of America," Russell said. "It used to be regarded as a melting pot. But everybody continues with his own tradition, his own ethnicity. We still get along and work together. I've never known anywhere else where you can worship together with people of all backgrounds."

The VA chaplain's service is set up, he said, so that patients are reminded "that God did not leave them when they come through the front gate here.'

The VA chapel is symbolically located at the center of the medic al center grounds. It has Protestant, Catholic and Jewish services and is adaptable to the different faiths, with crosses, crucifixes and Star of David symbols that can be displayed during the appropriate service. Russell said that during Protestant services, patients from different denominations may worship, study and have Communion together.

Chief Chaplain Wendell A. Russell

A chaplain's mission, Russell said, is to help people use their own faith, even if it differs from the chaplain's.

'We don't try to change anybody's religion," he said. "We try to help them use their own faith through the crisis they're facing.

'We're so fortunate here in the VA, in our staff," he said. "We've got people who do appreciate the pluralism of America, and they appreciate the patient's right to his own faith.

Russell himself is a minister in the Church of the Nazarene, and is certified in clinical pastoral education

"It's a tremendous place to do your ministry if you don't have a particular denomination," Russell said. "You do get honesty from the patients. They're not nearly as protective of the feelings of the staff and the chaplains as other people. If they disagree with a sermon, they'll let you

Although there is plenty of opportunity for preaching and teaching, a chaplain's job does not end there.

Chaplains are also an important part of the team concept of treating patients, he said. "Our forte is the personal encounter."

But he said there are differences in being a chaplain at the Waco VA center and serving other institutions

"All of our patients are veterans and almost all of them are psychiatric patients," he said. Because of that, there are special needs you find only on certain wards in ordinary or general hospitals. You can expect abnormal behavior here that you seldom see elsewhere Mentally ill patients may suddenly become violent or angry, particularly in the locked wards, he said. "You have to be watching very closely.

During his days as a church pastor, Russell said he sometimes escorted parishioners to the state mental hospital. "The feeling was to take them down there and leave them until they get well," he said. "I've seen that attitude change drastically.' Local pastors, in particular, do visit patients, and Russell believes the clergy is better trained to help mentally ill parishioners than in the past.

"We covet the visiting of pastors," he said. "When they come in to see a parishioner, they're miles up the road where we are.

WASHINGTON (AP) - U.S. Christian leaders joined with Jewish officials in expressing outrage and sorrow at the terrorist slaughter of 21 Jewish worshipers at a synagogue in Istanbul, Turkey

Bishop James Malone, president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, called the slaying of "innocent people at prayer" a "callous assault on all that is sacred to humanity."

In New York, the Rev. Arie R. Brouwer, general secretary of the National Council of Churches, embracing Protestant and Orthodox denominations, called the "abominable and inhuman massacre" an act of "mindless anti-Jewish terrorism.

"Barbarous," said conservative political activist the Rev. Jerry Falwell.

Seminaries feel confident after Vatican investigation NEW YORK (AP) — Put under view on release this week of the for the first time in history, U.S. Roman Catholic seminaries at first were uneasy about being subjected to external pressures. But their confidence steadied as they themselves assumed a big hand in the process, giving it an American inter-academic

The "initial apprehensions" faded as the evaluation proceeded and its actual nature became clear, says Bishop John A. Marshall of Burlington, Vt., overseer of the huge, extraordinary project for the last five years. So far, it has given the seminaries mostly high marks. "Overall, they're doing a good job, and deserve the appreciation and support of the church," Marshall said in a telephone inter-comprehensive Vatican scrutiny a Vatican's 10,000-word summary of the results to date.

Some scattered inadequacies were cited, such as blurring distinctions between the priestly role and that of lay ministry and 'confusion'' on some moral issues between official teaching and theological opinions.

But U.S. seminaries "are generally satisfactory," says the report from Cardinal William Baum, an American who heads the Vatican's Congregation for Catholic Education, summing up findings by U.S. teams

For Marshall, 58, a forthright, Massachusets-born New Englander who organized the big project with wide U.S. consultations after Pope John Paul II picked him for it in 1981, said it has kept him "pretty well tied up.

KANKAKEE, Ill. (AP) — Paul is a 42-year-old ironworker whose life came apart in 1981 after he hurt his back on the job.

For four years, he endured excruciating pain, sleepless nights, back surgery, costly treatments — all to no avail.

The pain, along with the emotional turmoil of being disabled, finally drove him into guilt, alcoholism and despair. He was not surprised when his wife of 20 years left him.

Paul was facing a quandary that an estimated 40 million

The program, which began in March, was proposed by Pam Duchene, director of rehabilitation nursing at Riverside, who became interested in pain management after encountering it in her work as a doctoral candidate.

"It is an interesting phenomenon," said Mrs. Duchene. 'There seems to ze no reason for the pain to exist — no underlying pathology — and yet it can totally consume someone's life for Names change in various ways, sometimes intentionally and other times by accident. In the late 1700s and during the census years when much of the population could not write, you will find multiple spellings for the same name.

For example, I have been tracing the NETHERLAND family for several years and have found the name spelled NEATHER-LAND, NETHERLIN, NEATH-ERLIN, and NETHERLAND in Mississippi. Moving into Texas, the spelling changed to NUTHERLAND as well as the other spellings. In trying to locate marriages, I found the name WEATHERLIN and METHER-

These spellings might have been just the transcriber reading the name wrong on the original documents but it has been confusing to find the women in the family. Recent information indicates that the name was actually LEATHERLIN but I have not been able to prove or to connect the family. Anyone with information on the surname as it is spelled in the article, please send it to me. Remember to cite your sources! Verbal history, family Bible, published source, etc.

much information as possible. Who told you the "story?" What is the relationship between the family? How did they learn about the event? Include the address and phone number of the individual, and date the material.

Bible information should include the publisher and date of publication, the original owner and the name and address of the present owner. List the information with notation as to handwriting, ink and, if known, who made the entries. Does it appear that the entry was made at the time of the event or are several entries made at the same time? This might indicate the purchase of the Bible by the family or a marriage and then new wife recording the family data. Where possible, keep the same grouping as found in the Bible. This helps identify relationships when the surname is different.

Published material should include publisher, date, author, the Library of Congress call number, the page number of the material and if the book is privately owned the name and address of the owner. FRANKIE FRISCH, who guided the 1934 St. Louis Cardinal Gas House Gang to the World Series championship, used to moan, "Oh, dem bases on balls." Football's counterpart to baseball's walks is turnovers. And Harvester football coach John Kendall must fear for the safety of his gridders when they pick up a knife or fork at a team meal.

Through the first five games, all losses, the Harvies have gifted the football to their opponents 23 times, 11 interceptions and 12 fumbles, an average of nearly five times per contest. That will shut down a lot of scoring opportunities, and present some momentum and easy chances for alert foes. Worst of all, the incidence of error has been on the increase. Seventeen of those miscues have come in the last three games.

Of the five defeats, none has been of the blowout variety, placing even greater importance on inability to protect the pigskin. Only 31 points separate the Harvesters from five ties, 36 points from five victories. Kendall and his staff must want to torch the game films when they realize just how close to a total record reversal it could be as the Green and Gold prepares to start the second half of the season tomorrow night at Lubbock Dunbar.

Things haven't been all roses in recent seasons for the Panthers, either. After making the playoffs in 1984, Dunbar slipped to 6-4 last season, and stands at 1-5 (0-4 in District) at this point. Worse still, is the inability to perform either offensively or defensively. Replacing the Jones boys (Brian and Stacy) has thus far left no firepower, Coach Jerry Lee's ball-club managing only six TDs while giving 175 points.

Again, both teams see the game as a possible "W", with the only other real hope for both being future opponent Dumas. which like PHS, is winless after five starts. Adding to Pampa's woes are losses to grades after the first six weeks. Further complicating the problem is the game is in Lubbock. Pampa's last road victory was at Canyon, eight games ago. The last victory in a regularly scheduled district game in Lubbock was on November 4, 1966, twenty years ago, against Lubbock Coronado. Prior to that a Nov. 1, 1963 win over Lubbock High School took place. but that was not at Lowrey Field. which has been a nemesis. Pampa has never defeated Monterey there, since has been beaten twice each by Coronado, Estacado and Dunbar on that field. In fact, the Harvesters have never defeated Estacado or Dunbar in football. Pigskin sojourns to the Hub City have never been a lot of fun, as a trainload of fans who backed the Harvesters in 1951 can recall.

But two decades without a win there is enough. If for no other reason, the 1986 Harvesters can notch themselves a spot in the record book alongside the 1931 squad (first to whip Amarillo High), the 1965 team (first to down Palo Duro), the 1974 team (first to trip Tascosa), and the 1978 team (first to beat Monterey). Until those special victories, the Green and Gold had a combined 0-46-2 record against those four schools!! A line still waits in the record book for the first PHS football team to beat Dunbar and District-wise, the next two weekends could clarify the postseason picture for the two playoff spots. Estacado (3-0-1) is at Canyon (3-0) tonight; Canyon is at Hereford (4-0) next Friday. It might take until the Oct. 30 Hereford at Estacado affair before things are clearer, the Levelland 14-14 tie with Estacado muddying the picture. And who knows what other team might find a surprise waiting for them when they play Gene Mayfield's Loboes. At 1-2-1 about all that remains for them is a spoiler role, and the two-time Texas HS Coach of the Year is certainly capable of that act. In fact, that aforementioned tie with the Matadors could knock that team out of the playoffs after being pre-seasoned No. 1, and holding that spot the first month of the season.

CHAFF: Other district games tonight have Hereford at Dumas and Borger at Levelland. # Harvesters favored over Dunbar

By L.D. STRATE Sports Editor

The Harris Rating System projects Pampa as the winner by a point over Lubbock Dunbar Saturday night, but the Harvesters would take a win by even a fourth of a point if that would be enough to break a frustrating 5-game losing streak.

None of those losses came close to being a blowout, something unexpected of a 0-5 team. Pampa hasn't lost game by more than two touchdowns (13-0 to Borger) and have lost two by two points or less (14-16 to Amarillo High) and Frenship (14-13).

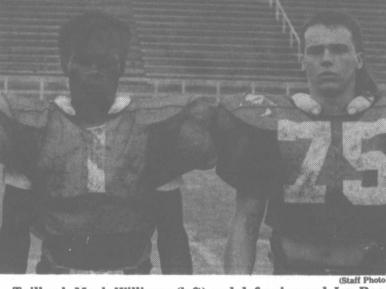

What's been Pampa's main problem? A lack of talent, depth, speed or size? Nope. None of these. The problem has been much too obvious, right out there in the open for everyone to see. It's that loose football that eventually winds up in enemy hands.

"We've had far too many turnovers. "We just can't seem to take it to people and stay ahead of them," said Pampa head coach John Kendall. "When we do get ahead, we make mistakes that let people stay in the game with us."

The Harvesters have been averaging five turnovers per game and most have come in crucial situations.

Last week's 14-13 loss to Frenship is a perfect example. The Harvesters turned the ball over five times (4 fumbles, 1 interception) with the last miscue leading to Frenship's winning score.

Those mistakes really hit home after statistics revealed that tailback Mark Williams and fullback Rodney Kelly had combined for almost 250 yards rushing. Williams had 146 yards on 23 carries and a touchdown. Kelly also carried 23 times, rushing for 101 yards. "Anytime you have two backs with over 100 yards, you should win the game," added Kendall.

Pampa's defense, led by senior end Jon Roe, held Frenship to 169 yards rushing for the game and only three first downs the first half.

"Jon has had super games the last two weeks," Kendall said. Roe, 180-pounder, had two quarterback sacks and blocked a punt against Frenship.

Dunbar has a young club with a turnover problem much like Pampa.

"They'll probably have more speed than we've seen all year. "They've got a tremendous wishbone offense if they don't fumble," Kendall said. "They should have beat Hereford a couple of weeks ago, but they fumbled inside their own 30 a couple of times and it cost them." Hereford won, 28-15.

Dunbar head coach Jerry Lee said his young club was tested early with a tough schedule and the Panthers are still trying to shake off the aftereffects.

"We faced the toughest part of the district right up front," Lee said. "It was a heckuva way to start for a bunch of of sophomores and juniors."

Dunbar enters Saturday night's game with a 1-5 record overall and 0-4 in district play. The Panthers' most recent loss was to Borger 19-0 last week.

Lee looks for a rugged battle with the Harvesters.

"Pampa has a good ballclub. They've been hurt by mistakes," added Lee.

Saturday night's game kicks off at 7:30 p.m. at Lubbock's Lowry Field. Probable lineups are listed

World series preview

Hurst draws starting assignment for Red Sox

By DAVE O'HARA AP Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Bruce Hurst will start Game 1 of the World Series for the Boston Red Sox. After that, nobody knows.

Boston Manager John McNamara announced the start for the left-hander Thursday after a brief conference with pitching coach Bill Fischer.

"Bruce Hurst will pitch on Saturday, Amen," McNamara said.

That the Red Sox need a starter for a World Series game is surprising at all. Boston was one strike from elimination in Game 5 when it rallied from a three-run deficit in the ninth inning, the first team to ever do that in post-

Who will follow Hurst in the rotation was not revealed by McNamara, but he did say 300-game winner Tom Seaver will not be on the Series roster.

be on the Series roster.
Seaver, acquired from the Chicago White Sox in exchange for outfielder Steve Lyons on June 30, is hobbled by a right knee injury suffered in Toronto on Sept. 19. Seaver was a cornerstone of the Mets' two other World Series teams, 1969 and 1973.

Hurst is rested for his assignment at Shea Stadium.

Except for routine throwing on the side, he has not pitched since going six innings against the Angels in California last Sunday. So who goes in Game 2 in New York, with Monday off before Games 3, 4 and 5 in Boston?

Right-hander Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd was the winning pitcher in Game 6 of the American League playoffs Tuesday and right-hander Roger Clemens nailed down the pennant with seven innings Wednesday night. Both Boyd and Clemens pitched on three-days rest, something they hadn't been called upon to do during the regular season.

McNamara would love to have Clemens, a 24-game winner during the regular season, available to pitch three games in the series. But he may not have that luxury unless there is a postponement along the way.

Clemens pitched three times during the playoffs and, fighting off the flu, reached deep to win his first game ever in October in the deciding game against California.

Declining to name a pitcher for Game 2, McNamara said he was undecided on whether to stick with the three-man rotation he went with in beating the Angels. "It all depends on the first two ballgames," McNamara said.

After splitting the first two playoff games in Boston, McNamara went to a three-man rotation. He announced in California that he had planned right along to give Clemens three starts. McNamara said he came up with that idea after Seaver was injured.
The three-man rotation also sent a fifth starter, Al Nipper, to the bullpen for use in long relief.

Clemens still could start in the second game against the Mets, depending on his health. It might be wiser, though, to give him a longer rest.

Falcons still trying to prove themselves

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

Having disposed of one divisional challenger last week, the Atlanta Falcons look to further prove they belong atop the NFC West this Sunday against the San Francisco 49ers.

The surprising Falcons, coming off a 4-12 season, are 5-1 and have beaten Dallas and the Los Angeles Rams during their quick start, the best in team history. After they dropped the Rams from a tie for first in the division last Sunday, the Falcons turned their attention to the other NFC West power, the 49ers. San Francisco dropped a game behind when it was upset by Minnesota in overtime last weekend.

"I think we have shown we can compete with anybody, but we must compete with everybody," Atlanta Coach Dan Henning said. Henning came into this season with little job security after two 4-12 campaigns. But he's had the Falcons flying from the first week.

Led by Gerald Riggs' four 100yard games and the guidance of quarterback David Archer, the Falcons are tied for fourth in the league's overall offensive statistics. They are ninth in defense.

"This will be a big test for us," Henning said. "The 49ers are explosive on offense and present the best balance we have seen."

And San Francisco is one of the league's best road teams, with 30 victories in its last 37 games away from Candlestick Park. Jeff Kemp has been sensational as a replacement for injured Joe Montana at quarterback and wideout Jerry Rice has 34 receptions for a 21.3-yard average and eight touchdowns. But the running game, hampered by injuries to Roger Craig and Wendell Tyler, has struggled.

"In the past years, we were one of the best running teams in the league," Coach Bill Walsh said. "This year, it's just non-existent. We're just depending too heavily on the pass."

Running against the Falcons is no picnic, as the Rams' Eric Dickerson discovered last week. The NFL's leading rusher was held to 73 yards.

eld to 73 yards. "
The other key divisional matchup on Sunday has unbeaten Chicago at Minnesota in the NFC Central. The Vikings are 4-2.

Attractive inter-division and inter-conference games include the Los Angeles Raiders at Miami, Detroit at the Rams and the New York Giants at Seattle.

Also, it's Dallas at Philadelphia; Green Bay at Cleveland; Houston at Cincinnati; Indianapolis at Buffalo; New England at Pittsburgh; St. Louis at Washington; Tampa Bay at New Orleans; and San Diego at Kansas City.

The teams with the best records in the AFC meet Monday night, with undefeated Denver at the New York Jets, 5-1.

Two weeks ago, the Bears were devastating in a 23-0 blitzing of Minnesota, sacking quarterback Tommy Kramer seven times and holding the Vikings to 159 yards. "They have a very fine defense," Minnesota offensive tackle Gary Zimmerman said. "It's going to be a challenge just to keep them off Tommy. When you get behind the Bears, the defense can control you and not let you breathe."

Gamblers favor Mets

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — "Everything is Mets, Mets, Mets."
That's how Mel Exber, owner of the Las Vegas Club, described the betting action on the World Series, which begins Saturday with New York hosting the Boston Red Sox.

"It's like an election, it's a landslide."

The National League champions have been made a prohibitive 12-5 favorite, the most lopsided opening odds since 1950, when the Yankees swept the Phillies, who were 3-1 underdogs.

"The Mets are obviously the superior team, there's almost no comparison," Exbur said. "The starting pitchers for the Red Sox can't compare to the Mets' starters, and the Red Sox haven't seen pitching like this in the American League."

Legal sports book operators here say the odds could go higher as the betting public lines up to place money on the Mets.

College football roundup Iowa, Michigan best matchup Saturday

By BILL BARNARD AP Sports Writer

Bo Schembechler built his coaching reputation at Michigan with strong defenses. Hayden Fry at Iowa is making no apologies for his defense this season.

Fry takes his eighth-ranked Hawkeyes to Ann Arbor, Mich., to meet the No. 4 Wolverines on national television Saturday. Although Iowa has won only seven of the 37 meetings between the two teams, Michigan has lost the last two.

Both teams are 5-0 this year, and the Hawkeyes rank fourth nationally in total defense, allowing only 218.4 yards a game. They also are tied for first in rushing defense (43.0 yards) and second in scoring defense (8.8 points a game).

"Our defense looked super and they kept us in the game against Wisconsin," Fry said of Iowa's 17-6 victory last week. "No one has crossed the goal line against us rushing and that is a great tribute to the defense."

'It's going to be a real physical battle, you can count on that. The one thing that bothers me more than anything is their tremendous size and strength. They'll be the strongest team physically that we've faced.'

— Schembechler

In other games involving Top 20 teams, it's No. 1 Miami, Fla., at Cincinnati in a night game; No. 2 Alabama at Tennessee; Missouri at No. 3 Nebraska; Oklahoma State at No. 5 Oklahoma; Syracuse at No. 6 Penn State; Georgia Tech at No. 7 Auburn; Bowling Green at No. 9 Washington; No. 10 Arizona State at No. 15 Southern California; No. 20 Baylor at No. 11 Texas A&M; No. 12 Louisiana State at Kentucky in a night game; No. 13 Mississippi State at Tulane at night; No. 14 Arkansas at Texas at night; Oregon State at No. 16 Arizona at night; Duke at No. 17 Clemson; North Carolina State at No. 18 North Carolina; No. 19 UCLA at California; and Houston at Southern Methodist, tied with Baylor at No. 20.

The Michigan defense has struggled some, yielding 316 6 yards per game, but the Wolverines have an uncharacteristically strong passing offense featuring quarterback Jim Harbaugh, who is ranked second in the nation in passing efficiency. Har-baugh has completed 67 of 103 passes for 1,061 yards, six touchdowns and only two interceptions.

But Schembechler is worried about the Iowa defense

"It's going to be a real physical battle, you can count on that," Schembechler said. "The one thing that bothers me more than anything is their tremendous size and strength. They'll be the strongest team physically that we've faced."

Despite the great play of his defense, Fry is more than a little worried about injuries. Fifteen 15 first-and second-stringers are hurt.

"It's the worst it's ever been since I've been at Iowa," Fry said. "For us to be this wounded makes me mad. When I'm like this I don't have any friends. I stay mad all the time and I don't even want to see my dog."

Among the injured Iowa players are quarter-backs Mark Vlasic, who started Iowa's first three games, and Tom Poholsky, who started the last two after Vlasic was injured but has a sore thumb. Freshman Dan McGwire is the other Iowa quarterback.

"I don't think it makes a lot of difference which one plays," Schembechler said. "They're all alike. They either hand the ball off or throw it effectively. They're not going to gain a lot of yardage running the football themselves."

Arizona State, 2-0-1 in Pacific-10 Conference play, take a half-game lead over 2-1 Southern Cal into their game at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The Sun Devils are led by quarterback Jeff Van Raaphorst, who has completed 54 of 97 pass attempts for 798 yards and seven touchdowns.

Arizona State beat Oregon 37-17 last week, with Van Raaphorst completing 13 of 18 passes for 244 yards and three touchdowns. Over his last two games, he has completed 29 of 37 pass attempts. Last week's 34-14 loss to Washington State drop!

ped Southern Cal from ninth to 15th in the national rankings. In spite of that defeat, the Trojans, 4-1 overall, are off to their best start since 1982.

Tennessee, 2-3 this season after winning the Southeasternp0 year, plays host to an undefeated Alabama team itching to break a four-game losing streak against the Volunteers.

"Our 6-0 record goes back to the winter, spring and summer. We didn't go through that punish and summer. We didn't go through that punishment in the weight room during the off-season so we could come out and have an average team," Alabama noseguard Curt Jarvis said.

Surprising SMU, which had no scholarships this year because of NCAA probation, got into the Top 20 with a 27-21 victory over Baylor. The Mustangs play host to Houston at Texas Stadium, but the Cougars are 4-1 on SMU's home field since joining the Southwest Conference, while SMU is 4-1 in the Astrodome.

New Zealand's winning streak comes to an end

FREMANTLE, Australia (AP)

— Dennis Conner and Stars & Stripes ended New Zealand's nine-race winning streak today in the first round of the America's Cup challenger series.

Racing in the first heavy weather of the series, with winds of about 25 knots, Conner fell behind early, but took command on the first windward leg and wound up winning by 49 seconds, handing New Zealand its first loss in the opening round-robin series.

Dickson appeared to have the upper hand during the first four tacks as he lengthened his lead to a full boat-length. But Conner was the recipient of a favorable wind shift, and crossed ahead of New Zealand to gain the lead per-

The victory moved Stars & Stripes and America II, which defeated Azzurra today, into a three-way tie for the lead with New Zealand. All are at 9-1 with two races remaining.

With first-round victories worth only one point each, Stars & Stripes' victory means little to the final outcome point-wise. But psychologically, it figures to be a setback for New Zealand and its 24-year-old skipper, Chris Dickson and an edge for Conner, who has been criticized in some circles for not bringing his syndicate here sooner. Second-round victors are awarded five points, and in the all-important third round, each race counts 12 points.

dramatic battle takes place tonight in the battle over New Zealand's fiberglass boat.

Yacht Club Costa Smeralda, which is in charge of the America's Cup elimination series, has called a meeting of the 13 challengers to see if they wish to change the conditions in regard to the fiberglass requirements.

If the challengers committee, agrees, it will mean that New Zealand will have to have its hull remeasured.

Conner and his syndicate have demanded that core tests of the fiberglass New Zealand boat be made. They had threatened to protest today's race, but decided against it after two meetings Thursday with Commodore Gianfranco Alberini and representatives of the Italian yacht club.

Mookie for mayor?

HOUSTON (AP) — Mayor Kathy Whitmire will hang a trick photograph of herself with Mets outfielder Mookie Wilson to pay off a bet with talk show host David Letterman.

Letterman and Mrs. Whitmire initially agreed that if the New York Mets beat the Houston Astros in the National League baseball play: offs, the mayor would hang a huge picture of Wilson in her office.

The Mets won the National League Championship Series on Wednesday after a marathon 16-inning game against the Astros in Houston; Mrs. Whitmire lost bets to Letterman and New York Mayor Ed Koch. The late-night television show host called the smaller picture of the

"Mookie and the Mayor, it sounds sort of like an ABC sitcom," he said Thursday.

Cockrell places in McLean rodeo

Amy Cockrell of Pampa was seventh in barrels (17.973) and fourth in breakaway roping (10.799) in a Tri-State High School Rodeo last weekend in McLean.

River Road is next on the Tri-State schedule.

DALLAS (AP) - Multi-million dollar losses and declining profits for major Texas banks are an indication that the economic drain of the oil industry may be spreading through the Texas economy, experts say.

Allied Bancshares Inc. and Texas American Bancshares posted third quarter losses in the tens of millions while MCorp and Interfirst Corp. showed meager profits for the third quarter

Sandra J. Flannigan, an analyst with PaineWebber Inc. of Houston, said the loan problems appear to be spreading from energy and real estate into the general business portfolios of the banks. This indicates, she said, that the effect of the depressed energy prices is now rippling into other economic sectors.

Georgia L. Head, a banking analyst with Rauscher Pierce Refsnes Inc. of Dallas, said troubling times may continue for Texas banks into next year.

"I would say that because nonperforming loans are going up, we are going to see these large provisions and charge-offs for the rest of the year and into next year," she said.

Allied Bancshares reported income losses for the quarter ending Sept. 30 of $46.4 million. Texas American Bancshares showed losses for the same period of $84.1 million.

Houston-based Allied in the same quarter last year had a net income of 30.3 million, while Texas American of Fort Worth had third quarter net income last year of $7.6 million.

Texas MCorp of Dallas reported earnings were down by $25 million over the same period last year. For the third quarter of this year MCorp showed a profit of $7 million.

Interfirst Corp. of Dallas reported net income was down by 87 percent from one year ago. The company showed income of $2 million for the third quarter of 1986 while the company had $16 million in income for the third quarter of 1985.

Both Allied and Texas American had heavy loan losses charged against the quarterly income. Many of the troubled loans were on the energy or real estate investments, but other sec- C-14 tor loans also were represented.

MCorp chairman and executive officer Gene H. Bishop said a significant increase in non performing assets and declining asset values struck a severe blow to the bank's income.

Zakharov reportedly admitted to spying

WASHINGTON (AP) - Gennadiy Zakharov, after admitting he was a Soviet spy, named a KGB station chief at the United Nations and the head of Soviet military intelligence in New York, administration officials say

One official said Thursday that Zakharov identified Valery Savchenko, listed as a Soviet U.N. mission counselor and said to be the KGB station chief at the mission, and Vladislav Skvortsov, a senior counselor said to be the New York chief of the GRU, the Soviet military intelligence.

Zakharov fingered three Soviet spies in all, but the official, who spoke only on condition of anonymity, was uncertain who the third Soviet was.

All three were among the 25 Soviets at the U.N. the United States recently ordered to leave the country, the official said. The last of the 25 Soviets, who worked at U.N. headquarters in New York, left the United States on Tuesday

On Wednesday, another U.S. official said Savchenko and Skvortsov were among the last five of the 25 Soviets to leave, along with Gennadi Tarasov, a Mideast specialist reputedly in the KGB; Viktor Sbirunov, a first secretary; and Valery Anikeyev, a counselor.

ABC News on Thursday night said Zakharov, who until his arrest was a scientific affairs officer for the Soviet Union at the United Nations, made the admissions during a four-hour interrogation. 'He sang like a tweetie bird,' one U.S. official told The Associated Press. Zakharov, 39, was questioned following his arrest on Aug. 23 on a New York subway platform as he allegedly tried to pay an FBI informant $1,000 for classified documents on military jet engines. Within a week after Zakharov's arrest on spying charges, the Soviets arrested American journalist Nicholas Daniloff in Moscow on espionage

Earthquake to cause influx of Salvadorans, officials say

Associated Press Writer

SAN BENITO, Texas (AP) - A devastating earthquake in El Salvador will trigger an influx of Salvadorans to a new Catholic Church-sponsored shelter that is busting at the seams even before it reopens, church officials said.

Casa Oscar Romero, a shelter for Central Americans first opened in December 1982, was forced to relocate from a residential area following complaints from neighbors.

Thousands of Central Americans, most of them from El Salvador, have made the shelter their temporary home on their way into the United States.

Last month, Catholic Church officials separated the men, women and children as they prepared for a move to a new facility, whose location will be announced soon, said church spokesman Hernan

The women and children stayed in the white wood-frame shelter and the men were moved to a barn used for a livestock show.

"I do think the earthquake might be a further impetus for them to come here," Gonzalez said. 'But we've certainly known that regardless of what kind of facility we can put up that it wouldn't be enough to meet the needs."

The earthquake that struck El Salvador last Friday demolished buildings in the capital city of San Salvador, claiming nearly 1,000 lives and leaving tens of thousands homeless, the latest figures indi-

Jose Mario Celaya Cruz, 30, said he arrived in this South Texas community on the day the earthquake struck in San Salvador and he has not been able to get any word about his family. He said, however, that many of his countrymen will journey to the United States. "There are a lot of Salvadorans who have family and friends here and that's why I think they will be coming soon," he said. Celaya Cruz and hundreds of other Central Americans are restricted to a nine-county area in South Texas that church officials have called a giant detention center. The travel restriction has caused overcrowding at the church facility.

The Central Americans have been documented by U.S. Immigration and Naturlization officials, but they are not able to leave the area without posting a $1,000 cash bond that most do not have. They are not allowed to work while they are out on their own recognizance. Church officials, attorneys for Central Americans and immigration officials will meet on Friday to try to work out a solution to the bond problem, said Silvestre Reyes, chief of the Border Patrol sector in McAllen.

The McAllen sector annually records the highest number of arrests of Central Americans trying to enter the United States.

Most of those arrested during the last fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, were from El Salvador, Reyes

He said the earthquake in El Salvador would trigger an eventual influx of illegal aliens, much like the earthquake in Mexico City last year caused thousands of Mexicans to go north.

"Barring some other occurrence, for instance, additional turmoil within the country, politically, I don't think we're going to see an immediate impact from the earthquake itself," Reyes said.

"I think it will probably be several months down the road. Six months is a good estimate," he said. Casa Oscar Romero, named after the slain archbishop of San Salvador, gained notoriety over the last two years because of trials involving its Former director Jack Elder served five months in a San Antonio halfway house in 1985 on a conviction for transporting Salvadorans. Also in 1985, Elder's replacement, Lorry Thomas, was sentenced to two years in prison after pleading guilty to transporting a Nicaraguan in the trunk of her car.

Shelter volunteer Stacey Lynn Merkt is appealing a 1985 conviction of conspiring to transport Salvadorans. Her 1984 conviction on transporting charges was overturned and those charges were Casa Romero now houses between 700-800 Central Americans a month, Gonzalez said.
