French Leader Installed

PARIS (UPI) — Valery Giscard d'Estaing opened a new chapter in French history today, playing down traditional pomp and ceremony at his lowkey inauguration as the nation's 20th president.

The pro-American leader stunned protocol officials by choosing a business suit instead of a tailcoat and deciding to walk a half-mile to the Elysee Palace rather than ride in a bulletproof limousine.

Pledged to carry out a peaceful revolution in France's rigid habits, the new 48-year-old chief of state started out by stamping his inauguration ceremony with simplicity instead of grandeur.

More than 1,000 police turned out to insure Giscard d'Estaing's safety during his midmorning walk to the Elysee Palace and a stroll later in the day to the Arch of Triumph to lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Giscard d'Estaing also rejected the inauguration tradition of having the Great Cross of the Legion of Honor placed around his neck with a heavy golden chain. He decided instead to receive the award in a leather case.

In another departure from tradition, he replaced the Republican Guards — dressed in plumed helmets and white breeches — at the ceremony with khaki-clad servicemen from the 2nd Dragons, the unit he served in during World War II.

Day Off for Kids

In his first executive decision, the new president gave children a day off to watch the inaugural ceremony on television. Leftwing teachers' unions and some working mothers condemned the move, however.

Giscard d'Estaing was elected by a narrow 1.6 per cent margin in a May 19 runoff election against Communist-backed Socialist Francois Mitterrand, 57.

FOR MINICONVENTION

Democrats Foiling Wallace Delegates

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Democrats across the nation apparently are foiling Gov. George Wallace's attempt to gain control of the party's miniconvention, and Wallace's aides have begun downplaying the importance of the Dec. 6-8 meeting at Kansas City, Mo.

Early returns from caucuses and elections in several states, mainly in the South, show Wallace's delegate candidates faring poorly, and observers predict now the governor will end up with only 25 to 30 per cent of the delegates.

Wallace had hoped to carry a majority of the delegates to the miniconvention and force the party to write his views on racial busing and tax reform into the Democrats' first national charter.

But early returns from caucuses in South Carolina

Nixon Sees Chance For 'Lasting Peace'

KEY BISCAYNE, FLA. (UPI) — President Nixon, warning against isolationism, said today that for the first time in this century "a real chance exists for lasting peace."

In a nationwide radio Memorial Day address, delivered from the Florida White House, Nixon said that "In 1974 our hopes for a lasting peace are brighter than at any time in living memory because we now have a structure of peace and we are carefully working to strengthen it."

"A momentum has been created that makes it easier for the leaders of the major powers to settle differences peacefully, in negotiation instead of armed confrontation," he added.

He paid tribute to Americans who have given their lives in wars dating back to Valley Forge and said "It should inspire us with a determination to keep America great and free by keeping America safe and strong in our own time, the time of unique destiny and opportunity."

Nixon said that Americans were called away to war "under trying and sometimes bitter circumstances" four times in this century, the last time in Vietnam.

"Only today, for the first time in this century, do we live in a time when, thanks to past sacrifices, a real chance exists for lasting peace—peace built not on vain hopes and good intentions, but on solid realistic grounds."

He urged that peace not be taken for granted and said that when this happens "its survival is in jeopardy."

"Lasting peace can be achieved only through lasting awareness, lasting preparedness, and lasting strength, both physical and moral."

He said that there are some people in America "who would like to turn inward and away from the world's problems," who believe America has enough problems of its own without intervening in others'.

But he said that America must continue to be a part of a larger world.

"We may seek to ignore the world," he said, "but the world will not ignore us."

Apparently referring to India's detonation of a nuclear device, the President said in a day when atomic weapons are spreading, when famine stalks parts of the earth and when parts of the world are a tinderbox "to turn our backs on our responsibilities for world leadership, would, in the long run, be disastrous, not for only us, but for all the people in the world who seek peace."

"Today, America's isolation can only lead to the world's destruction," he said.

He stressed that the Atlantic Alliance is the cornerstone of the nation's foreign policy and pointed out the United States' role as a "peacemaker in explosive areas like the Middle East."

He said that the United States has had diplomatic successes in the last five years while he has been President but said such policies must be backed up by military strength.

As he has said repeatedly, Nixon asserted that America must never become the "second strongest nation in the world" and added that it must remain strong if successful negotiations for reductions in weapons are to continue.

"Only a strong America, in concert with its allies, can be a strong force for peace," he said.

He praised the votes in the House last week which defeated an amendment which would have forced the secretary to resign.

A Syrian statement after the talks began this morning said: "There are still a number of points concerning the subject of troop separation which are under discussion."

It added: "There are points which Syria rejects or refuses to discuss such as the commandos."

Meanwhile, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was flying to Damascus this evening, but was not expected to arrive until Kissinger had left.

Kissinger twice during his month-long mission — once in Geneva and once in Cyprus — met Gromyko to inform him about the talks and try to prevent any Soviet hostility or obstruction. Gromyko visited Damascus once before since Kissinger's shuttle started.

The secretary flew to Syria Sunday night, with a high American official reporting the talks near a solution to the major remaining negotiating issue — the thinning of forces along the new cease-fire line.

Kissinger Meets Negotiation Snag

DAMASCUS (UPI) — Syria today refused to discuss the Palestinian guerrilla attacks on Israel as part of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's effort to bring about Syrian-Israeli troop disengagement on the Golan Heights.

The Syrian refusal was reported in an official statement as Kissinger met Syrian President Hafez Assad in another attempt to untangle new snags that have appeared in the past 48 hours.

The Syrian statement was the first official sign that the Palestinian guerrilla issue may have been raised in the Kissinger talks.

Kissinger and Assad met for 5 1/2 hours until 2:20 a.m., met again at 10 a.m. for two hours and 15 minutes, took a 45 minute break and then met for another 45 minutes before recessing again.

They then scheduled a meeting with other Syrian and American negotiators before Kissinger was to take off for Israel at 6:30 p.m. (10:30 a.m. CDT).

An American spokesman said Kissinger would spend the night in Israel and return to the United States on Tuesday.

A high American official said on Kissinger's way here Sunday that the talks with Assad were decisive for the secretary's mission.

A Syrian statement after the talks began this morning said: "There are still a number of points concerning the subject of troop separation which are under discussion."

It added: "There are points which Syria rejects or refuses to discuss such as the commandos."

WANTS THE FACTS OUT

Ford Criticizes Nixon's Handling Of Watergate

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford says he has warned President Nixon that refusal to turn over more White House tapes and documents requested by the special Watergate prosecutor could increase the chances of impeachment.

"I want the facts out," the vice president told newsmen here Sunday.

Ford, noting that he and the President differ on the question of handling the Watergate affair, said he urged the President to modify his "stonewalling" defense against requests for further White House evidence.

He did not reveal Nixon's response to his advice. However, the vice president said he expected Nixon would deliver more tape recordings if the President was directed to do so by a "definitive" ruling from the Supreme Court.

At his meeting with Nixon last week, Ford said, "I indicated that this ('stonewalling') could lead to an emotional, institutional confrontation that doesn't necessarily relate to impeachable offenses, and sometimes important facts are overlooked. I want the facts out."

Wants the Facts

"Any relevant information, tapes, transcripts, other documents — relating to impeachable offenses — I think should be made available," he said. "I do not think that the White House doors ought to be opened for all the snoopers — and some of them are — to go in there and ransack the White House."

Pampans Join In Memorial Day Activities

Flags were raised and then lowered to half-mast at dawn today at both Memory Gardens and Fairview cemeteries as Pampans joined others across the nation in honoring deceased servicemen.

Memorial Day is also a day on which families have come to remember other loved ones who have died, whether servicemen or not.

Flags of armed service veterans at both Pampa cemeteries at 6:30 a.m. today. Veterans of Foreign Wars placed the flags at Memory Gardens and auxiliaries of the American Legion, VFW and World War I organizations placed the flags at Fairview.

No other services for war dead were scheduled today. The annual service in their memory will be held on Veterans Day in October. City, county, state and federal offices are closed today. There will be no residential or rural mail delivery. Post office windows are closed but there was service for box patrons.

Most retail businesses in the area are closed although some grocery stores and convenience stores remained open.

Taking advantage of the holiday, many residents have planned picnics, trips to area lakes or visits to family and friends. Traffic on the roads has increased because of the traveling, with deaths accelerating due to the heavier load.

Band To Open Carnival Today

The midway at the annual Pampa High School band carnival will open today at 5 p.m. for a six-day run, band director Jeff Doughten has announced.

Booths for the carnival were set up yesterday at the Coronado Center parking lot and the rides were being set up today.

The carnival will open at 5 p.m. and stay open until 11:30 p.m. today through Saturday, Doughten said.

Besides the rides, attractions include food booths, dunking board, bingo, ring toss, spinning wheel and bottle throw, all run by members of the band and the band Boosters.

The annual carnival is one of the ways the band raises funds to finance its spring band trip. All are urged to come out and enjoy the fun, Doughten said.

FLORAL TRIBUTE — David Burkhardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Al Burkhardt, lays a wreath of flowers on a relative's grave in observance of the Memorial Day tributes today. Millions throughout the nation are joining in honoring the memory of deceased servicemen and others on the national holiday.

ON MEMORIAL DAY

Holiday Highway Deaths Continue Upward Climb

The number of persons killed on the nation's highways climbed today as warm weather and ample gasoline supplies brought more travelers out to enjoy the Memorial Day weekend.

The National Safety Council had estimated between 450 and 550 persons would be killed in traffic accidents during the 78-hour period. The council also said 25 per cent of those lives could be saved if motorists used safety belts.

The death toll climbed past 200 by Sunday afternoon and neared 250 early today. Many persons also lost their lives in drownings as the warm weather attracted thousands to beaches and lakes.

A United Press International count at 8 a.m. EDT showed 375 persons had died in roadway accidents since the holiday period began at 6 p.m. local time Friday.

A breakdown of accidental deaths:
Traffic 275
Drownings 49
Planes 17
Others 34
Total 375

California had the highest number of traffic fatalities with 29. Georgia and Pennsylvania each had 15 traffic deaths while Texas had 14 and Wisconsin reported 13.

In one of the worst accidents of the holiday weekend, four young men and a woman, returning from a high school social, were killed in a two-car collision near Altha, Fla. The victims included Celinda Gail Palmer, 17, a finalist in the Calhoun County, Fla., Junior Miss Pageant, and her fiancé, Steven Williams, 22. Miss Palmer's family had only recently announced the couple's engagement.

A fiery truck-car collision near North Manchester, Ind., Sunday killed two 16-year-old youths and a 35-year-old truck driver.

Criminal charges could be filed today against the driver of a pickup truck that slammed into a car killing a California pilot in Texas.

Arthur Oliver Soltwedel, 54, of Northridge, Calif., was the only person killed in Sunday's accident that slightly injured six other persons.

A United Press International survey showed 22 persons died in violent accidents during the Memorial Holiday period. Soltwedel, who flew for the Flying Tiger Line, was dead on arrival at Dallas' Parkland Hospital after his car was hit by the pickup.

The impact of the collision spun Soltwedel's car into an adjoining lane where it was hit broadside by another car.

Police said they are investigating and charges could be filed.

James Wilson Brown, 56, of Dallas was killed in the most freakish accident of the holiday period.

Pressure Growing On Tape Subpoena

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee may step up pressure on the White House this week to provide subpoenaed tapes and evidence President Nixon says he has no intention of giving up.

Despite Nixon's apparent decision Saturday to provide the panel with access to his income tax records, committee members are still angry over his stand on the tapes. They may take action, in the form of either more subpoenas or a citation for noncompliance, if he continues to deny them the evidence they need.

Most of the impeachment panel's 38 members were away from the capital during the long Memorial Day weekend when the break came in the tax matter. Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced from the Florida White House that Nixon had ordered his lawyers to work out with Judiciary Committee counsel John Doar some way to turn over the tax records.

The committee, which had tried and failed to get the records from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS), is investigating to determine if any wrongdoing was involved in Nixon's $467,000 debt for back taxes.

Committee members disclosed last week the IRS had refused to release the records on grounds the panel had no legal authority to see them. Attorney General William B. Saxbe ruled Saturday there were various technical procedures that could be used to get around that barrier.

Hearing This Week
The committee may decide to issue at least two more subpoenas for the tapes or formally declare Nixon in noncompliance with the three previous subpoenas at a public hearing Thursday or Friday.

The new subpoenas probably will cover 46 tapes of conversations dealing with dairy industry campaign contributions and 20 covering the ITT case. Nixon wrote committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., D-N.J., last week, saying that he not only would refuse to honor two earlier subpoenas but would also would reject any new ones.

Rodino, however, still is against any effort cite Nixon for contempt of Congress or to use the courts to enforce the subpoenas.

Man Injured During Fight

A 44-year-old Borger man was treated at Highland General Hospital Saturday afternoon for a broken nose and jaw suffered in a fight at Short's Lounge, 100 block of E. Craven.

Willard Paul Cox was taken to Highland General by Metropolitan Ambulance, where he was treated for the injuries before being taken to Amarillo's Northwest Texas Hospital by his wife.

Five other men were involved in the fight, reports said. One, Randall Lynn Taylor, was arrested and placed in city jail for intoxication. Charges had not been filed on any of the others as of this morning.

Police are investigating the breaking of a showcase window at Addington's Western Wear, 119 S. Cuyler, sometime Saturday. It is not known if anything was taken from the window.

and Londonderry and a number of gasoline stations throughout the province.

An army statement said troops would protect the installations and assist in the distribution of gasoline. By sending in the troops, the British government risked confrontation with Protestant militants and a total shutdown of the province.

The Ulster Workers Council, the group that called the strike, has said that if troops were permitted "so much as to lift a dustbin lid, Northern Ireland will come to a standstill."

Northern Ireland Secretary Merlyn Rees ordered police and troops to do "everything necessary" to maintain law and order. He said sectarian violence "of the worst kind" was a real possibility.

McLEAN COUPLE INJURED Clarendon Man Killed In Head-On Collision

CLARENDON — James Buford Gillespie, 51, of Clarendon was killed and a McLean couple injured in a head-on collision 3.8 miles north of here Sunday on Texas Highway 70.

Clayton B. Peabody, 69, and his wife Eva, 73, were taken to Groom Memorial Hospital following the accident where they were listed as stable and in fair condition this morning.

Gillespie was also taken to the Groom hospital where he died at 4:50 p.m. yesterday.

The collision was the first of the Memorial Day weekend resulting in a fatality in the Panhandle.

According to the Department of Public Safety patrolman who investigated the accident, Gillespie was driving north on Highway 70 in a pickup while the Peabodys were southbound in a sedan. The vehicle driven by Gillespie was reportedly on the wrong side of the road.

The victim was a former Amarillo police officer and Potter County sheriff's deputy. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Third finger, left hand, has been the proper location for wedding rings since the times of the ancient Egyptians.

The Palmer family will leave Tuesday for Washington and will return on approximately June 12.

Be week plans include Monday and Tuesday, tours of Washington landmarks; Wednesday, all day spelling; Thursday, final rounds of spelling and presentation of winners; and Friday, White House tour and awards banquet.

Top speller in the nation will receive $1,000 and a trip to New York City. The top 18 winners will win money and the final top eight contestants will receive a larger amount of prize money.

Palmer received $50 and a gold pin for winning the regional bee and for competing in the national spelling bee.

Palmer's 16-year-old brother, Tim, won the Gray County title in 1972 and Nancy, 18, went to Washington, D.C. for national competition four years ago.

Ron Palmer To Compete In Spelling Bee

After trying since 1972, Ron Palmer, 14, will advance to the national spelling bee in Washington, D.C., June 3.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Palmer of 2232 N. Sumner, Palmer won the junior Gray County title in 1972 and the Gray County championship in 1973.

Winning the county title this year, he advanced to the regional competition in Amarillo April 27. He won there and also won the right to compete on a national scale.

The Palmer family will leave Tuesday for Washington and will return on approximately June 12.

IN CANCER BATTLE Pneumonia Claims Life Of Columnist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "beast" of cancer has overtaken columnist Stewart J.O. Alsop, who since 1971 had stoically and eloquently recounted for readers his battle against a acute myeloblastic leukemia, a rare blood disease.

Alsop, 60, died Sunday afternoon at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., near here. Pneumonia was the immediate cause of death, according to Joseph Alsop, his brother and one-time writing colleague.

"A dying man needs to die, as a sleepy man needs to sleep," Stewart Alsop wrote in a recently published book "Stay of Execution," and there comes a time when it is wrong, as well as useless, to resist."

Alsop, for the past six years a columnist for Newsweek magazine, first wrote that he had the disease in a column Sept. 6, 1971.

TAX ADJUSTMENTS

Price Introduces Bill To Aid Inflation Battle

WASHINGTON — Congressman Bob Price has introduced legislation which he says would help taxpayers cope with inflation.

The bill calls for annual adjustment of the personal exemptions, low-income allowance and the limits of the tax brackets to reflect the rate of inflation during the year.

Thus, individuals would pay federal income taxes, not on actual dollar amount income, but actually on purchasing power, Price said.

"Such action, if taken over a period of years, will force government spending down and act as a brake on inflation," Price said.

"As inflation goes up, an individual's purchasing power is likely to go down, and if this is the case, the income taxes for the individual would also go down if this bill is enacted. This would mean less money for the federal government to spend, and less government spending would serve as a brake on inflation."

The bill would help low and middle-income families most, it is already receiving bi-partisan support in both houses of Congress.

Price notes that if the bill is enacted and the amount of funds available for federal spending goes down as inflation goes up, "those with new programs for spending large sums of government money will, for a change, have to consider where the money will come from."

"As Congress would undoubtedly have to face up to a responsibility of publically voting a tax increase to support new programs, new programs would have to be both sound and have a broad-based support in the electorate," the Texas Congressman said.

Death Takes Donald Crisp

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — Donald CRISP, a pioneer movie actor who made 500 films, died Saturday at 91.

A former director in silent films, the native Scotsman turned to acting with the coming of the talkies and won an Oscar in 1941 for his supporting role in "How Green Was My Valley."

He also played Gen. U.S. Grant in "The Birth of a Nation" and was in "The Mark of Zorro," "The Return of Sherlock Holmes," "Wuthering Heights," "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Oil for the Lamps of China," "Dr. Jeckyl and Mr. Hyde," "National Velvet," "Charge of the Light Brigade" and "The Life of Emile Zola." He also appeared on radio and television.

In his later years, he lived in retirement at the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital in suburban Woodland Hills, Calif.

Crisp was born July 27, 1882, in Abberfeldy, Scotland, the son of a doctor, and retained the burr of his native accent throughout his life although the family had moved to England when Crisp was a boy.

After a few appearances on the London stage, Crisp came to New York in 1906. One of his first jobs was in the chorus of an opera company. He later worked as a stage manager, and accepted a few roles in the infant movie industry, becoming an assistant to the late D.W. Griffith in 1911.

Griffith moved to Los Angeles in 1912 and in 1914 filmed "The Birth of a Nation." Crisp portrayed Grant in the picture and also directed battle scenes.

Pampan Jimmie Dacus Heads WT Organization

AMARILLO — Jimmie Dacus, Pampa freshman, has been elected president of the Afro-American Association on the West Texas State University campus in Canyon.

Miss Dacus is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Dacus, of 1013 S. Somerville, Pampa. She is a journalism major, writes for The Prairie, the university newspaper, and is employed by the Public Information Department at WT.

Other officers include Johnny Darden, Borger freshman, vice-president; Debra Savannah, Fort Worth freshman, secretary; and Sandra Brown, Amarillo freshman, treasurer.

The Afro-American Association has been active on the WT campus for about six years. It is an organization designed to promote achievement in all collegiate areas in which black students are involved.

AAA members conducted their Afro-American Black Recognition Week March 25-30. During the week interested students attended a variety of activities including seminars, fashion show, corn rowing sessions, talent show and banquet.

This Week In Review

United Press International
Patricia Hearst, herself a kidnap victim three months ago, was charged with 20 crimes this week, including kidnapping.

Los Angeles District Attorney Joseph Busch, convinced the newspaper heiress was now "acting of her own free will," said "This is the first time I have ever heard of a kidnap victim becoming a kidnap suspect."

Most of the offenses charged against Miss Hearst and two other members of the Symbionese Liberation Army allegedly took place a week earlier as they robbed and shop up a sporting goods store and fled through Los Angeles, commandeering cars and taking hostages.

The state charges carry a penalty ranging to a life sentence.

In addition, the FBI classified Miss Hearst as "armed and dangerous." A federal charge, carrying a penalty of up to 15 years, was filed.

Miss Hearst was kidnaped on Feb. 4 by the SLA. Subsequently she has issued statements saying she has joined her captors' organization and renounced her father, editor Randolph Hearst of the San Francisco Examiner.

Cecil Poole, a former U.S. attorney who met with the Hearsts, said the family was outraged at Busch's statement that Miss Hearst was acting of her free will.

Law enforcement officials should conduct themselves in such a way as to give her a fighting chance to live," Poole said.

In another development, FBI director Clarence M. Kelley defended police involved in a Los Angeles shootout a week earlier that resulted in the deaths of six SLA members. The SLA suspects had fired first, he said, and the officers and agents returned the fire to protect themselves.

In other news this week: PARIS — Conservative Valery Giscard d'Estaing was narrowly elected president of France in a runoff election with Socialist Francois Mitterrand.

BELFAST — Protestant leaders of a general strike made some concessions after the British government threatened to move troops into power stations. The strike by 350,000 workers virtually halted normal life in Northern Ireland.

JERUSALEM — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger made "considerable progress" in overcoming obstacles to arrange a military disengagement between Israel and Syria, a U.S. official said.

VATICAN CITY — Pope Paul VI asked governments to mark the Holy Year in 1975 by helping poor nations and granting amnesty to political prisoners.

BANGKOK — Thai Prime Minister Sanya Dhamassak ended a four-day government crisis by agreeing to form a new cabinet.

WASHINGTON — Jeb Stuart Magruder, deputy director of President Nixon's 1972 campaign, was sentenced to 10 months in prison for his role in the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

WASHINGTON — The Labor Department reported an unusual decline in food costs. As a result the consumer price index for April was up only .6 percent, the smallest increase since last September.

UPI Followed Policy At Wounded Knee

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — U.S. prosecutors have furnished an FBI report to the defense in the Wounded Knee trial containing information obtained in an interview with Bruno Torres, a United Press International photographer.

However, the report has not been introduced as evidence at the trial, in which American Indian Movement leaders Russell Means and Dennis Banks are charged with felonies in last year's 71-day occupation of Wounded Knee, S.D.

The report is on file in the clerk's office of the U.S. District Court in St. Paul and it became available Friday.

Torres, then St. Louis newspaper manager for UPI, took pictures from March 3-13 during the occupation. He is now Chicago bureau manager of UPI newspaper.

The FBI report said agents interviewed Torres March 26, 1973, after he returned to his St. Louis office.

In the interview, Torres was quoted as saying he saw some Indians carrying automatic weapons at Wounded Knee but was unable to identify most of the Indians.

Torres also was quoted as saying he observed numerous Molotov cocktails inside Wounded Knee.

According to the FBI report, Torres said he could identify only three men who were AIM leaders at Wounded Knee — Banks, Means and Carter Camp. Of the three, he said in the interview, Banks was the only one he observed carrying a firearm — a small revolver carried on the hip.

Torres said he took pictures during the time he was in Wounded Knee but did not interview anyone.

The prosecution turned over the FBI report to the defense in accordance with an order by U.S. District Court Judge Fred Nichol that the government show evidence to defense attorneys.

Another news service photographer, James Mone of the Associated Press in Minneapolis, was listed last month by the FBI as a "confidential source" at Wounded Knee. Mone said he gave the FBI and U.S. marshals some information.

Investment Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Institutions apparently have stockpiled cash reserves at record levels "more from uncertainty about the immediate direction of stock prices than from any pronounced bearish attitude," says Argus Research Corp. The doubt over the near future of the market stems from monetary and credit conditions, the firm continues, which provide no clue at the moment as to whether they are easing or tightening. "Nevertheless, we believe that the time is fast approaching for a basic downturn in interest rates and an accompanying sharp rise in stock prices," it adds.

bility of credit," says Wright Investors Service. Signs the Fed is beginning to loosen the monetary screws and a better inflationary picture should soon result in a peak in interest rates, according to the Bridgeport, Conn., firm. Once interest rates moderate, the stock market should experience a long and massive recovery.

The final 1972-1974 bear market low may emerge as soon as June if the market falls to about 700 on the Dow Jones Industrial Average, according to William X. Scheinman's Timings. The Dow established a new bear market low May 10 when it broke below its December-May bottom, thus reinforcing the letter's belief the average will drop to at least 700. "The most important job to be done between now and June is tracking the stock market to a possible ultimate bar market low," it adds.

Con Edison's dividend omission and application for financial relief coupled with Franklin National Bank's sharp drop in deposits "can only bring pressure to bear upon the Federal Reserve Board to relax its stranglehold on the avail-

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, MAY 28
 Your birthday today: Now comes a time to discard everything that does not contribute to your welfare and prosperity. Your own limitations can be transcended once you know what they are and learn to live with them. Relationships have to be taken seriously, lived out thoroughly in candor and mutual self respect. Today's natives are ambitious, apt to enjoy competition, somewhat impatient.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Work encounters snags, failures of cooperation. You have the chance to show what you can do under stress. No matter how rushed you are, do it right!

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Confusion and contradictions are the orders of the day. Family or group ventures are open to endless rounds of criticism. Don't take on any special responsibility.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Come to agreement with your own set before you act on their behalf. Home conditions tend to distract you from your work. Asking favors adds to existing complications.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: You'll be better off for having checked out what you sign—read the fine print. Discussions about work, vacation should go directly to the point.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Financial affairs are sensitive, require all your attention. Be self-reliant; influential people aren't likely to volunteer their help. Stay clear of speculation.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: In spite of gaps in cooperation, resolve that you're going to prosper from your own initiative and enjoy doing it. A full schedule demands a deliberate pace.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Calmly see the benefits in what first seems to be unhappy news. Take a good look at your health maintenance programs. Avoid secret moves; pursue unfinished business vigorously.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Friends and finances are both delicately balanced now. Mixing them won't do. Where you can work alone do so. A bright idea is well worth patient, detailed development.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: To profit by strenuous vocational adjustments is an art today. Nobody agrees beyond a fairly narrow range. Whatever else, adopt a definite, forthright approach.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Stay on the job instead of trekking off in search of the rainbow's end. Close figuring enables you to meet exceptional demands, much to the surprise of all concerned.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Speculative maneuvers are more risky than usual, likewise your fascination with them. Pray for guidance! Even very important people give out misguided advice.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Family issues spread out and you have a field day of explanations, extra pros and cons, which may get in the way of the business you're trying to wrap up. Patience!

Transparent plastic eyeglass frames are back in style in soft tones of champagne, brown and orchid. These muted colors look well with single-tone fashions or classic tweeds.

Dear Abby

Respect for one's self is rule for relationship

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "Normal girl" who wanted to know why you replied, "Lovely" to the 16-year-old girl who was saving her virginity for her husband, may I comment?

I am a male, 55, who has been a social worker for 18 years. I don't know how mature "Normal girl" considers herself to be, but if (as she claims) all that is necessary for a beautiful and guilt-free sexual relationship between a guy and a girl is that they "love" each other, it's a wonder we are not all in bed by the time we are 13.

Children, by their own immature standards, start "falling in love" very early in their lives. What keeps most young girls from going all the way is respect for the standards of their parents, teachers, and community.

CLEVELANDER

DEAR CLEVELANDER: As I view it, of equal importance to respect for the standards of one's parents, teachers and community is respect for one's self. But according to my mail, what keeps most young girls from going all the way is fear of pregnancy, fear of V.D., and fear that the boy might tell a few dozen of his closest friends—and in that order.

DEAR ABBY: Norton's wife, who complained that Norton never opened his mouth in company, and consequently everybody thought he was unfriendly or mad, reminded me of a cousin of mine. Her husband also was a very quiet man, but it was beautiful to watch her draw him into the conversation by saying, "Larry, why don't you tell the folks about the night watchman who found the cat locked in the office."

That gave Larry a chance to talk without making him feel self-conscious. I've always admired my cousin for the consideration she showed for her quiet husband.

KISSIN' COUSIN

DEAR COUSIN: She deserves to be kissed. The world could use more wives like her, and fewer wives who make a practice of interrupting their husbands to finish a story he's telling.

DEAR ABBY: The mother who labeled her son and his wife "selfish" because they were denying her the pleasure of being a grandparent should have applied that label to herself. She apparently wants them to add to an already overcrowded world, regardless of their feelings, simply for her own selfish pleasure.

While the Bible does say, "Go forth and multiply," a more timely quotation is, "Thou hast multiplied the nation and not increased the joy" [Isaiah 9:3].

The last thing the world needs is children whose parents were high-pressured into such a serious and permanent decision. There should be a national organization to assist parents who are being pressured to have children, and to inform those well-intentioned but misguided people who try to make couples feel guilty or abnormal for remaining childless.

FOR POPULATION CONTROL

Karpin On Bridge

By FRED KARPIN

All serious bridge players, versed in the theory of the game, dream about certain book plays that they would love to make in actual combat. Unhappily, one sometimes can wait a lifetime in vain for one of these plays to arise.

In today's deal, our East defender encountered one of these plays. His dream came true when he handled it perfectly. Sitting East Was Ed Peterson of Vancouver, Canada.

Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

West's opening lead of a low diamond was captured by dummy's king. Declarer then entered the South hand via the ace of hearts, after which he led the deuce of clubs. When West followed suit with the nine, dummy's queen was finessed. Peterson now came up with the play that he had been waiting a lifetime to make — he allowed the queen to win the trick!

You and I know that id declarer had played the ace of clubs at this point, he would have felled East's King. Seven club tricks would then have been there for the taking.

But at the table our South declarer did not have the advantage of seeing all four hands. As he viewed the set-up, when the queen of clubs won the trick, West rated to be the possessor of the club king. So declarer now returned to the South hand via the king of hearts, to lead his remaining club.

When West followed suit with the ten-spot, declarer confidently inserted the board's jack. Great was his consternation when East captured this lead with the king.

As is evident, dummy had no outside entry — and the five clubs in dummy languished on the board for the duration of the play. After the thirteenth trick had been played, declarer was down four tricks.

Had Peterson taken his club king on the initial club lead, declarer would have fulfilled his contract with ease. In this case, the defenders would have made, at most, one club trick, two spades, and the diamond ace. But Peterson's "calculated risk" play talked declarer into adopting the losing line of play.

Pampans' Fun Adventures Related In Book

By TEX DEWEESE
The story of a Pampa family of ten who left a comfortable and secure life in their hometown to establish an uncertain homestead on a section of untractable sage-brush in a remote part of northern Nevada has just come off the press in book form and soon will be available in bookstores.

It is a true-life saga of one highly unusual year in the lives of Quenton and Elleta Nolte, who reside at 2004 Williston in Pampa. The book, titled "Westward, Ha!" was authored by Mrs. Nolte. The time element in the book covers the one-year period from August 1961 to August 1962.

It is Mrs. Nolte's first book, a heartening narrative of the trials and struggles involved in taking an individualistic gamble into a barren area where there was neither telephone nor electricity, 32 miles from the nearest town, Battle Mountain, Nev. There wasn't even water until they dug their own well.

Mrs. Nolte relates the story of how they overcame the obstacles of heat, dust, wind and errant cattle which threatened the first important crop on new land.

The Noltes and their eight children, says the book's jacket, had no premonition of the real price they would have to pay for their venture.

Mrs. Nolte says she has been assembling and writing material for her book, "Westward, Ha!", for 12 years, and especially during the past two years.

The move to Nevada in that spot 450 miles north of Las Vegas and the urge to become pioneers all came about, Mrs. Nolte explains, when they saw an offer by the government of a land grant at $1.25 an acre.

"It seemed to be a very reasonable price," she said, "so we applied for the grant in 1960 and suddenly became owners of 640 acres of land 1400 miles from home and wondering what to do about it."

The challenge finally was accepted. Her husband went ahead in March. Later he was joined by sons Quenton, Jr., David and Dale. And in August the rest of the family went out.

Quenton Sr. and Quenton Jr., with Dale and David, lived in a vacation trailer, winter and summer, while according to Mike Troy, station manager.

The book's publisher, Apubco of Amarillo, said books were being shipped during the weekend and soon will be available in bookstores.

Friends of Mrs. Nolte are planning an autograph party June 9 in St. Vincent's parish hall for the new author to introduce her book.

Mrs. Nolte currently is employed as a secretary in the Research and Development Department of Cabot Corp. Her husband operates his own bookkeeping and tax service in Pampa.

Roosevelt to combat the depression. In 1941, the German battleship "Bismarck" was sunk 400 miles west of Brest, France, in World War II. In 1968, the U.S. nuclear submarine "Scorpion" was lost with 99 men aboard. In 1972, Mark Donohue won the Indianapolis 500 auto race with an average speed of 163.465 miles an hour, setting a record which still stands.

A thought for the day: American author Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) said, "Let us be thankful for the fools; but for them, the rest of us could not succeed."

Both shirt and sweater combinations and romantic Victorian designs are maternity dress design trends. The Victorian look calls for high waists, puffed long sleeves and antique-style laces and other trims.

VENTURE SPAWNS A BOOK — Mr. and Mrs. Quenton Nolte of Pampa reminisce a bit about the year in their life that prompted Mrs. Nolte to write a book, titled "Westward, Ha!". The true story of a family-of-ten's migration into the wastelands of Nevada, it depicts in a highly interesting writing style their trials and struggles and the real price one can pay for acceptance of challenge.

Memorial Day Reminder The history of our Nation is a history of courageous men who put personal liberty above all else — and who were willing, if need be, to lay down their lives for it. From the War For Independence to, and including the recent Vietnam War, whenever Americans have seen the dignity of the individual endangered by totalitarianism, they have not hesitated to take up arms to protect the precious freedoms on which our America was founded.

ALL THAT GLITTERS Nixon and Spiro Whatsizname

By VIC GOLD The diplomatic opening with Communist China never would have occurred without the highest secrecy. Nobody knew about the overtures save the President, Henry Kissinger, and a few aides sworn to secrecy. Mr. Nixon was asked: Did his Vice President know? "Agnew?" The President seemed incredulous. "Agnew? Oh, of course not."

INSIDE LABOR $300 A Day Hospital Room?

By VICTOR RIESEL NEW YORK — Last November the voices of Cesar Chavez and the late Martin Luther King, Jr.'s widow, Coretta, were raised here at the founding convention of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees. Today, exactly 15 years after the first massive hospital strike in the land, that union's husky local affiliate is pounding the table, demanding what appears to be a $100 million increase in wages and fringes during a one-year contract with the 50-member League of Voluntary Hospitals.

INSIDE WASHINGTON Are Leftists Eligible To Pass Judgment?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN WASHINGTON — Certain leftist members of the House Judiciary Committee may be in for a jarring surprise. Their eligibility to sit in judgment on President Nixon may be challenged — on the ground they have disqualified themselves by publicly evinced bias, prejudice and political and ideological hostility toward him.

term Sen. George McGovern is literally touching all bases when it comes to ringing the belkin on leftist issues — but there is one subject on which he has yet to say a word. This is his lucrative moonlighting, which netted him $28,700 last year. On this profitable sideline, the South Dakota radical is keeping his constituents completely in the dark. And well he might, because the way he racked up this lush income is by frequent absences from the Senate.

Can't Find Work
"I'm broke and didn't learn anything in prison except how to push a wheelbarrow. I'm in pitiful shape and can't find work."

For the last seven years, Mills worked on the prison's poultry farm. His job was to feed the chickens. He learned only a few months ago he was going to become a free man again. It happened April 19.

Man Freed From Prison After 35 Years, No Trial

By RICHARDS BOGGS

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Eloyd Mills was picked from a crowd, accused of a murder he did not commit and kept in the Oklahoma State Penitentiary for 35 years without a trial.

He was arrested after a woman was killed and her body was set on fire outside her home. Mills, 26 at the time, was standing near the body, an axe over his shoulder, and someone pointed at him.

"There he is, that's the one," the person shouted.

"I guess I was the youngest one there," Mills says today. "I was just a spectator. I was watching them standing around and then those police grabbed me."

Mills said the police beat a confession out of him and told him a life prison sentence was better than standing trial and risking the electric chair.

Never Sentenced
There was never any formal sentencing. The case first came before civil authorities last year, when fellow inmates drafted a crudely phrased letter about the case to an appeals court.

Court records show Mills was denied benefit of legal counsel until the 10th U.S. Court of Appeals in Denver remanded the case to the Western Oklahoma District Court last year for a hearing. On Jan. 30, U.S. District Judge Stephen S. Chandler ordered Mills released from the prison at McAlester.

Mills, now 61, said he hopes he can find work.

"But a convict my age doesn't have much of a chance, especially when you think about all the people out of work right now — younger men than me."

"I lost my wife and family — everything I had. My wife divorced me and my daughter has her own people now."

"I'm broke and didn't learn anything in prison except how to push a wheelbarrow. I'm in pitiful shape and can't find work."

Man Sees Spaceship Earth Running Down

By BRUCE E. HICKS

UPI Science Writer
HOUSTON (UPI)—Photo expert Dick Underwood sees the planet Earth as a fragile spaceship rapidly running out of room and clean air and water.

hundreds of thousands of pictures taken by American astronauts circling the globe. Few areas have escaped his scrutiny and his armchair-bird's eye view of the world has shown him how the earth has been changed by man — very often harmfully altered.

"In this country, we have been exploiting the land for more than 300 years and we still have a hangover from it," he said.

No Fanatic
Underwood, 46, a short, stocky man is no fanatic. But he rides his bicycle to work and around the sprawling space center complex each day and shuns cigarettes and alcohol.

His view of earth as a spaceship has been expressed by orbiting astronauts.

"When we send guys up in space, say for 10 days, we provide them with all they will need in the way of water, oxygen and food for as long as they'll be there and a little extra margin," said Underwood.

"Earth is like that, but the only problem is that each day we have 180,000 more astronauts aboard. And, unfortunately, we don't know how long we have supplies for."

Underwood, who spent 15 years with the Defense Department intelligence, studied aerial photos of nearly every populated segment of the earth. Since then he has viewed even the unpopulated, unmapped areas. He prides himself on being able to identify the location of any land mass of at least 60 square miles in an aerial photo.

Has Favorite Photos
"From Skylab, because we took so many pictures of ocean currents, I think I can at least tell which ocean is pictured," he said. "They all look different. The South Atlantic looks different from the North Atlantic and so forth."

Of all the many thousands of black and white and color pictures Underwood has seen, he has two favorites.

"I guess the one that rates the most is a single picture of a lone footprint on the moon," he said. "That footprint broadened the dimensions and horizons of mankind."

"On earth, the one that turned me on the most is a view of the Nile Delta taken on Gemini 4. That is where the foundation of western culture began. It was a fertile land where food was plentiful and man didn't have to scrounge from daylight to dusk and had time to think."

Underwood said while he viewed the picture of the Nile, NASA officials were looking—at pictures of astronaut Edward White floating outside the craft on America's first spacewalk.

Photos Prove Valuable
"That was important, too, and meant that we could probably survive on the moon and other planets if we could survive out there, but I was enchanted by a few strips of land no one had ever seen before from that angle."

The space pictures have proved valuable to earth scientists repeatedly, he said, and could help ease the energy crunch in coming years.

A synoptic view of the earth—several pictures of the same area—shows a lot of things missed looking on the ground or even from an airplane, he said.

Geological structures are more easily spotted from the air because overall trends show up better than do the smaller segments. The thousands of pictures taken during the three Skylab flights are helpful because they were all taken from the same altitude, same cameras, nearly the same angle and processed by the same equipment, thus removing many of the variables in past aerial photography.

Earth resources photography from space began with a simple experiment on Apollo 9 in which four cameras were strapped together and pointed out a window. Each camera was loaded with different kinds of film or used different light filters.

That showed the potential for remote sensing and the things that could be seen," Underwood said. "The infrared pictures of the Salton Sea and Imperial Valley were the precursor to Skylab."

The Woman's View

By GAY PAULEY

UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—

Some observations on the American scene:

The only thing going down in the supermarket is courtesy. It should be the other way; it's the only thing free.

At least courtesy is going down as prices go up in the supermarket where our family shops in the heart of Manhattan.

I'm no longer aghast when a staple item I'm replacing from a week or so before suddenly is marked three, four and five cents higher. The other afternoon I replaced some bottled salad dressing to find the price had jumped from 35 to 49 cents in one week.

Not much we can do about food costs except boycott, bake, and bargain hunt. But I hope to do something about improving manners of many shoppers by airing the situation here.

No matter how crowded the stores, there simply is no excuse for ill behavior. It is completely inconsiderate in a crowded store, for instance, for a couple of women to park their carts in traffic lanes while they discuss the PTA meeting or Watergate. (You rarely see men doing this).

It also is discourteous to consider oneself the only shopper in a store, whether it's reaching over several others to get to a product or parking a cart and then scurrying from one area to the other grabbing items.

But the ultimate happened to me the other evening in a jam-packed store. A woman ran her cart right over me.

"Hey," I said as I rubbed potential bruises. "Was that trip necessary?"

The answer came with a scowl and foul language.

"Why in the (expletive deleted) don't you get out of the way!"

Later I ponder this. If it's "Why don't you get out of the way!" in the market, how much must carry over to other areas. Consider it, for instance, as drivers bear down on the horns in traffic jams. "Out of my way."

Or, say, as drivers mow down pedestrians because they were in the way.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT Us New Yorkers Talk Funny

By EARL WILSON
NEW YORK — Us New Yorkerstalk funny. I say us New Yorkers loosely but I also mean us here Easterners.

A cab driver in Los Angeles gave it to me straight. "You get people who get in our cabs and they say they want to get a bus to go to San Josey," declared this citizen able to pronounce it "San Hosay?"

"But it's spelled 'San Josey,'" I pointed out. "It's nearer San Josey than anything else."

He brushed off my alibi. "Then they say they want to go to get a tour to the Yose-a-might."

I parried that one. "The Yose-a-might?" I repeated just to make sure.

"The Yosemite Mountains and the Yosemite Valley!" He spat with contempt out the window of his chariot. "Yose-a-might!"

"Listen," I said, "if I were to come upon Yosemite in another world without having studied it in geography, I think I might call it Yose-a-might..." "We got a street here called Sepulveda," the cabbie announced fearlessly.

"Know it very well," I said. "Suh-pul-vuh-duh..." "No, no! Suh-pul-VEE-duh..."

"Suh-pul-VEE-duh! That's not right!" I said. "Of course it ain't but that's the way you Easterners say it."

"You're acting very superior about our enunciation," I said. "What about Rio Grande?"

"Rio Grandy," he said. "How about Arkansas?" "Arkansaw!"

"But it's spelled ARKANSAS..." And have you heard about the woman in Boston whose daughter told her she was marrying a boy from the Middle West and would live in Ohio? The mother said, "But just remember dear, here in Boston we pronounce it 'Iowa'?"

The Middle West can be very confusing, too. In the neighborhood of my revered birthplace (Rockford, O.), there was a Versailles (pronounced Ver-sails) and a Cairo (pronounced Care-oh) and Lima is pronounced Lie-muh and not Lee-ma. Paul Lynde says in Ohio they say "Whurz it at" and "Yud better bubbleve uhl" and "Yer tars are on far" meaning, "Your tires are on fire."

The cabbie didn't believe me so I had to retell my favorite chestnut concerning my difficulty of getting my first name, Earl, understood here in New York, especially in Brooklyn.

A reporter in Brooklyn phoned me once with a horrendous account of an erl explosion in Flatbush.

The blazing erl was running in the streets, the loss in erl would be in the hundreds of thousands of dollars, and he wishes I could be there to witness this erl disaster.

Finishing the story, he said, "Well, 'Boodbye, Oil, and hung up."

I'D RATHER BELIGHT Today's Best Laugh: "My watch was gaining so I had it fixed," writes Robert Braunt. "Now it's losing. I'm gonna have the same guy fix my bathroom scale."

Wish I'd Said That: There are two times when a man shouldn't gamble — when he can't afford it, and when he can.

Earl's Pearls: A lot of people didn't foresee the coming of the automobile. Be careful crossing the street or you can still be one of them.

Remembered Quote: "Married life in the old days was simpler. If a man had a fight with his wife he just went out and got drunk. Today if he has a fight he checks with his lawyer, sees his psychiatrist, spends an hour with his marriage counselor — and then goes out and gets drunk."

A man just back from a European tour gave this unhappy report: "He stayed at this year's hotel — with last year's food and next year's prices."

That's earl, brother. All Rights Reserved.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Transferring Vaginitis Infection

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can a male transfer vaginitis from an infected female to a noninfected female? If so there is a certain amount of time between sexual partners that would be considered "safe"? Please answer as soon as possible.

—L.B.
Can't tell from your initials whether you are male or female, but if you're in such a hurry, the quick answer is no, there's no "safe" interval between partners.

And now to explain why not. Vaginitis is an inclusive term which can mean any sort of infection or inflammation of the vagina.

That includes venereal diseases. The venereal diseases are transmitted primarily through sexual contact; there are other forms of vaginitis which can be acquired without sexual contact. Or may be transmitted either with or without it.

The commonest vaginitis that is not usually considered V.D. is trichomonas, an infection from a micro-organism known as a protozoan. Although this causes a discharge and irritation in the female, the male can carry the same infection yet have no symptoms — he is totally unaware that he has it.

A wife may, for example, be treated and have the trichomonas entirely cured. But if her husband (or other sexual partner) unknowingly has the infection, he will promptly give it back to her. Or to some other sexual partner.

That, in fact, is a continuing problem among doctors treating trichomonas. Too often the husband insists that there's nothing wrong with him and he refuses to be treated when the wife is being cured.

But there is no "safe" waiting time between partners. He will continue to have the infection and be able to transmit it. (Remember, though, that trichomonas can be acquired other than by sexual contact.)

The opposite situation, we are learning, can be true of gonorrhea. The male usually (although not always) will develop a discharge in about three to five days after catching gonorrhea, and knows he needs to be treated.

Unfortunately, many (but not all, of course) females can have gonorrhea without having any symptoms. Such ladies can be a hidden source of infection for their gentlemen partners.

In the case of syphilis, a man (same is true for women) may not be aware of the infection until the chancre (sore) appears, and that may not occur for several weeks.

To sum up: if one is going to play the field, the only reliable protection against passing disease organisms in either direction is the condom, properly used.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In the wintertime the skin on my legs becomes extremely dry so they itch till I scratch them. I've used hand lotion, body lotion, baby oil, etc., but finally used castor oil on them as I had a bottle on hand.

This worked better than all the lotions put together. My legs do sting right after I put it on, but it works wonders. What is your opinion of using it?

—Mrs. M.L.
Can't see any harm in it. If it works, it works. Don't know as I'd ever heard of it for that purpose before.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How long should one wait between X-rays? I had one two months ago for arthritis or bursitis in my shoulder, but now am changing doctors and don't want to have it X-rayed again if the time is too short. —Mrs. A.A.

There's no minimum time required between X-rays, and I would say it is obvious that your new doctor will need an X-ray in order to help you. So you can just go ahead without worry on that score.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level that best suits your individual needs. For a copy, write to him, care of Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120, enclosing 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Under Twenty

By KURT LASSEN
We were introduced during the intermission at the performance of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus.

"My cousins are here tonight," she said. "They still can't believe I'm a clown." Janice Gillespie paused for a moment, then said, "Sometimes I can't believe it either."

With her bulbous red nose and brightly colored face, Janice ran off to show her cousins that it was, indeed, true. She is a clown, a female clown (one of the few in the world) and during the performance she is most often found in and around the center ring, the top spot for a circus entertainer.

"The last thing in the world I ever thought I'd be," said 24-year-old Janice, "was a clown. I was going to NYU studying to become a teacher and specializing in children's theatre as a way of getting to them."

Then I heard about Ringling Brothers' Clown College and I began to call and write. I really wanted the training to help me with children, not to actually become a clown. Well, I kept calling and writing and finally they interviewed me. I think they did it just to get rid of me. But they accepted me and I went to Florida to study clowning as part of my University classes."

Janice, who stands a thin, graceful six-foot tall is a clown one can't miss. Her arms and legs seem to be made of rubber and she looks almost suspended from a string as she cavorts around in front of the audience.

"This is my second season," she told us. "But this is the first time I've been in Madison Square Garden. It's so huge and there are all those thousands of people out there watching. When they respond, when they laugh, it really makes you feel good and then you work even harder to please the people."

Janice hasn't given up teaching, however. "There are a lot of foreign groups in the circus and I started by teaching the children to read and write English," she told us. "I found that by amusing them I could get their attention and they learned a great deal. Now I'm helping their parents with English, too."

A somewhat shy and serious young woman, Janice doesn't know how long she'll remain a circus clown.

"I've always wanted to act," she said, "and this experience has been just wonderful for me. There is something about being a clown that permits you to let go of yourself. As a matter of fact it actually helps you to get to know yourself. There is a great deal of psychology involved in being a clown."

Janice had nothing but praise for the older clowns. "There are so many young ones now," she told us, "and there are less and less of the real old-timers. But to see them work is simply amazing. It's a whole art in itself. They've accepted the younger clowns and there is really no problem in being a woman clown. We're accepted."

Not at all the baggy pants variety of clown, Janice was a part-time model while she went to college. "I work at making my character feminine," she says. "I wear baby doll dresses and feather boas and count on my face and my movements to make people laugh. I invented my own makeup—I had to put this bulb of a nose on because my nose is long and thin and it didn't work out at all for a clown. I like being a silly character and at the same time I feel I'm developing my own personality."

Janice, before becoming a clown, taught disadvantaged children during the summer. She feels her career as a clown is an opportunity of a lifetime, yet one senses that there is still very much of the concerned teacher behind the laughing, garish clown's face.

NEW YORK (UPI) — High intensity street lighting is an approved crime deterrent but it has a drawback. The stronger light keeps some people awake nights. Many people solve the problem with room-darkening window shades, says the Window Shade Manufacturers Association.

The main ingredients of fluid whiteners include a vegetable fat which usually is coconut oil. The dry, instant-dissolving whiteners are made up of ingredients similar to the fluid products. The whiteners contain about the same number of calories as light cream.

Today's Sports Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN UPI Sports Editor

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — There are two kinds of race drivers: the honest ones who come clean and admit the hazards of the profession make them kick around the idea of quitting now and then, and the other kind—the pure bluffers.

Johnny Rutherford, the new Indianapolis 500-mile champion, belongs in the first group. He's not a bluffer. He gives it to you straight.

The question was one frequently asked—every new Indy champ who has been on the circuit a long time as Rutherford has been. Had he ever, because of all the injuries he had suffered, and all the hazards involved, ever thought of chucking the whole thing overboard, simply quitting auto racing, just like that?

Yes, said Johnny Rutherford, he had. "There were a couple of times," said the pleasant, 36-year-old veteran from Fort Worth. "I had two broken arms once (in 1966) and then there was a time we had a rash of accidents in sprint cars which I was doing a lot with then. The thought occurred to me maybe it wasn't all worth it."

Rutherford paused a moment and smiled. "Then I thought, 'what in the world would I do?'"

Racing in Blood The fact is most fellows like Johnny Rutherford would rather run race cars for nothing, if they had to, than work at some desk job for $50,000 a year. It's trite, but true—racing is in their blood, it's some kind of opiate, and privately they boil when people write them off as a bunch of lunatics, risking their necks needlessly.

Rutherford had something to say about that, too, when a comparison was drawn between Sunday's smooth and relatively uneventful race in which everybody walked away in one piece, and last year's disaster which claimed driver Swede Savage, a one-time

A.J. Falters, Rutherford Captures 1st

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Johnny Rutherford got well in a hurry.

He felt "sick," he said, when he missed the first day of the Indianapolis 500 time trials May 11 and had to settle for starting No. 25 in the field of 33, but he certainly showed signs of health by winning the million-dollar race.

And tonight he will be acclaimed as the Speedway's new champion at the traditional victory banquet when track owner Tony Hulman splits the world's richest auto race purse.

Rutherford, the affable speedster from Fort Worth, Tex., was expected to share at least $250,000 with his crew from McLaren Ltd., of England.

Despite his poor starting position in what turned out to be one of the safest "500" races on record, it became apparent from the second of the green flag fell Sunday that Rutherford would be a charger.

He blasted through the field from the very start, was fourth after the first few laps, and remained among the leaders the rest of the day.

Unofficially, he led 122 of the 200 laps and took the lead for good with 25 tours around the 2 1/2-mile oval remaining when former winner Bobby Unser made his last pit stop for fuel.

Rutherford, the record polesitter last year and ninth in the race, led four times as he won his first Indy race.

time he was called in because of engine trouble, and drove right into the garage area—visibly upset and disappointed that victory, which he hasn't tasted here since 1967, eluded him again.

Unser led six laps and finished second. Billy Vukovich, son of two-time 500 winner and runnerup last year, was third, and defending champion Gordon Johncock fourth.

Rounding out the top 10, in order, were England's David Hobbs in fifth, Jim McElreath, rookie Duane "Pancho" Carter Jr., Bob Harkey, Jerry Grant, and Bill Simpson, another rookie.

Twelve cars were running at the finish. Although the days leading up to the 500 were filled with controversy, including court action brought by owners who sought to stop the race because their machines did not get a chance to qualify, not a single driver was hurt in practice, the time trials or in the race.

Player Grabs Memphis Cash After 'Close Play'

MEMPHIS (UPI) — The umpire called Gary Player safe on a close play Sunday while the intense little South African forged from way behind to win $35,000 in the Memphis Golf Classic.

That was between me, Gary and the official," said a disappointed Hubert Green, who went into Sunday's final round of the $175,000 tournament leading Player by four strokes. "It is my duty as a professional player to make sure a fellow player plays by the rules of golf," Green added, referring to a PGA official ruling which may have cost him a crack at the championship on the 16th hole.

Player, the magnificent little shotmaker from Johannesburg, fired a final 5-under-par 67 without a bogey over the 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club course to defeat Greene and Lou Graham by two strokes. Green had a 72 and Graham 70.

Player, who recovered from 1973 surgery to win his second Masters title this year, finished with a sparkling 15-under-par 273.

He took a one-stroke lead over Green when he blasted from a sand trap into the cup for a birdie two on the 203-yard 12th hole. And that set the scene for a brief tiff near the 16th green with Player still leading by a stroke.

A chill rain had fallen on the course during the day and Player hit into a sloppy area which entitled him to a free drop. PGA official Pete Sessa gave Player two drops on a technicality.

Because of a further technicality, Player was then allowed to place the ball down by hand.

Miami-Dade Stops Top-Ranked Team GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (UPI) — A devastating batting attack and one-hit pitching helped Miami-Dade of Miami demolish the No. 1 junior college team in the country during the second round of the National Junior College Baseball Tournament Sunday.

Miami-Dade sent San Jacinto of Pasadena, Tex., to the loser's bracket in the game called after six innings because of the 10-run rule with the score at 14-0.

Also sent to the loser's bracket for the first time was Anne Arundel of Arnold, Md., a 7-5 victim of Meramac College of St. Louis, Mo.

In the consolation bracket games, Mitchell College of Statesville, N.C. disposed of Kankakee, Ill., 10-4, and Mesa College of Grand Junction, Colo., beat Scottsdale Ariz., 7-4.

Darwin Slugs Minnesota Past Texas Rangers, 6-1

United Press International It's time to rewrite the pitching book on Minnesota's Bobby Darwin.

Breaking balls are usually his nemesis but he deposited a Ferguson Jenkins curve ball 515 feet from home plate Sunday into the second deck at Metropolitan Stadium in Bloomington.

"The pitch I hit was a pretty good curve," Darwin said. "It's kind of interesting since everyone has been getting me out recently with breaking pitches."

The towering homer—a two-run blast in the seventh—helped the Twins down the Texas Rangers 6-1 behind the eight-hit pitching of Joe Decker.

Darwin said he knew the ball was a homer as soon as it left his bat but "I didn't think it would go that far."

He added, "I really didn't think that anyone would ever hit the ball into the second deck again. I never did it even in batting practice and I never saw anybody else do it."

The only other ball ever to reach the second deck at Met stadium was a 1967 shot by Harmon Killebrew off Lou Burdette that went 522 feet.

"It's really a great honor to have my name in the record books with Harmon," Darwin said.

Rod Carew, who went 3-for-5 to raise his average of .409, also hit a normal sized homer to start the seventh. Steve Braun singled and then Darwin unloaded.

It's somewhat symbolic that on a day that Carew raised his average to .409, he was again overshadowed. Carew's now working on his fourth American League batting title but he gets little recognition.

Decker boosted his record while Jenkins, who's fading after a fast start, is now 7-5.

In other games, New York beat Baltimore twice 6-5 and 7-5. Boston topped Milwaukee 4-1, Detroit nipped Cleveland 2-1, Kansas City beat Chicago 4-1 and Oakland edged California 6-5.

In the National League, Montreal downed Philadelphia 5-1, New York nipped Pittsburgh 5-3, St. Louis beat Chicago 7-1, Cincinnati topped San Diego 4-1 and Los Angeles rapped San Francisco 9-5. The Houston at Atlanta game was rained out.

A's 6, Angels 5 Oakland rallied for five runs in the sixth inning but still needed a sacrifice fly by Sal Bando in the seventh to subdue California and stop a two-game losing string. The five-run rally made it 5-2 but a three-run pinch homer in the bottom of the sixth by Charlie Sands tied it 5-5 before Bando's fly won it. Rollie Fingers gave up Sands' homer but still got the win in relief.

Yanks 6-7, Baltimore 5-5 It was like old times for the Yanks as they swept a Sunday doubleheader from Baltimore. But instead of being in first place, the Yanks are in last place. Two-run homers by Thurman Munson and Bill Sudakis carried New York to the first game victory. A five-run fourth inning rally, including two-out, run-scoring hits by Bobby Murcer, Ron Blomberg and Graig Nettles sparked the team to the second game victory.

Tigers 2, Indians 1 Mickey Lolich isn't finished yet. The portly Detroit left-hander reeled off his fourth straight complete game triumph to even his record at 5-5 with a five-hitter against Cleveland. He struck out 11. Earlier this year, it seemed as if Lolich had lost it when his record was 1-5 but he's been effective again in his last four starts.

Louisiana Tech Falls To Texas In Dist-6 Action

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Longhorns, as expected, have advanced to the College World Series. What was not expected was that Texas had to play Louisiana Tech three times to advance past the District Six playoffs.

Apan American, the team Texas has battled every year since 1970 for the district title, was supposed to be Texas' biggest hurdle again this year. Whenever Louisiana Tech was mentioned, it usually came right after the words lightly regarded.

But the playoffs began Friday with the Bulldogs knocking off Pan American and Friday night the Longhorns eliminated the Broncos.

Then Saturday afternoon Tech, edged Texas 5-4 and the Longhorns had to win the next two games to advance to the series. Sore armed Rick Burley pitched and the sloppy Louisiana Tech fielding helped Texas to an 8-0 rain-delayed victory in Saturday night's contest.

And on Sunday the Longhorns dashed Tech's dreams quickly with a five-run second inning outburst and went on to a 12-2 rout.

David Reeves ignited the fateful second inning fireworks with a two-out single. Pitcher Randy McGilberry, credited with the Bulldogs' two playoff victories, walked two to load the bases. Terry Pyka followed with a single to right scoring two runs. Blair Stouffer got an infield hit to score a third run and move Pyka to third. Stouffer stole second and both he and Pyka scored on Keith Moreland's double.

First baseman Rick Burley added a solo home run in the third making the score 6-0 and all but dashing the hopes of the Southland Conference champion making its first appearance in a post-season baseball tournament.

Texas will go into the series with a 52-6 record. The Longhorns are the second ranked team in the nation, according to College Baseball magazine, behind Arizona of the Western Athletic Conference.

Pearson Wins 600 Auto Race Saturday

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — For once David Pearson was happy to see Cale Yarborough around near the end of Sunday's World 600 stock car race.

Pearson's Mercury hit an oil slick in the fourth turn with 16 laps remaining in the race but a nudge from the left front side of Yarborough's Chevrolet straightened him out and he went on to win the Second World 600 of his career.

"I was sliding pretty bad," said Pearson, who pocketed $31,250 for the victory. "He (Yarborough) helped me from going on around."

Yarborough was sent behind the wall after the crash, dropping him from 3rd place to 12th.

"We went into the turn side-by-side and hit the oil from James Hylton's engine and Pearson slammed into me knocking me into the wall," said Yarborough. "It wasn't anybody's fault. It was just one of those things."

But Pearson didn't have the race put away after Yarborough was knocked out of the field. He fell behind Richard Petty's Dodge after the green flag was put out 11 laps from the end.

He and Petty then staged a classic duel, riding side by side around the mile and one-half track four laps from the finish. But Pearson moved ahead in the third turn and held on to take a three-car length victory over Petty, who has not won a World 600 during its 15-year history.

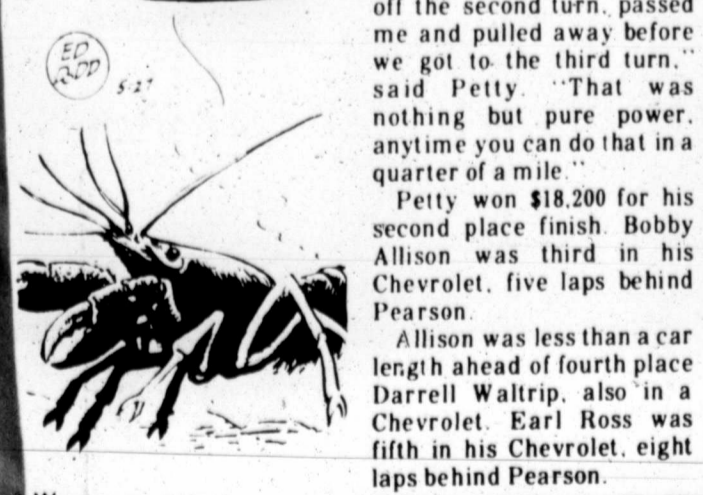

"When it got right down to the nitty-gritty of the thing, I'm talking about when things started to count, Pearson pulled out coming off the second turn, passed me and pulled away before we got to the third turn," said Petty. "That was nothing but pure power, anytime you can do that in a quarter of a mile."

Petty won $18,200 for his second place finish. Bobby Allison was third in his Chevrolet, five laps behind Pearson.

Allison was less than a car length ahead of fourth place Darrell Waltrip, also in a Chevrolet. Earl Ross was fifth in his Chevrolet, eight laps behind Pearson.

Evangelist Movement Growing

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

For the past several years, a small but growing band of conservative evangelical Protestants has been attempting to end the assumed connection between theological and political conservatism.

These evangelicals are trying to make it clear their involvement in politics, while liberal and sometimes even radical, will not follow the same line as that of the more theologically liberal mainline Protestant denominations.

The classic view of the conservatives has been that contemporary religious social activism, founded on the Social Gospel movement of the early 20th century, has abandoned the question of an individual's relationship with God in its attempt to fashion social change.

Conservative Defenders
In the past, conservative Christians have been seen—sometimes inaccurately—as little more than conservative defenders of the political status quo.

Now, however, as theologian Richard Mouw pointed out at the second "Conference on Christianity and Politics" held recently on the campus of Calvin College, Grand Rapids, Mich., "there are other crucial matters on the unfinished agenda of the North American evangelical community."

Mouw, professor of philosophy at Calvin, lauded his evangelical forebearers for their role in leading evangelicals out of the bitterness of the fundamentalist-modernist debate (symbolized by the clash over evolution) earlier in the century toward more responsible social involvement.

"We have devoted much energy to the discussion of the so-called 'Gebesis question,' which has to do with the relationship between creation and evolution," he said.

"Apply Our Beliefs"

"But now we must find ways in which we can apply our orthodox beliefs concerning the creation of our first parents in God's image and their subsequent rebellion against the Creator to an understanding of the heresies that lie at the roots of racism, sexism, militarism and the exploitation of the natural order."

Evangelicals, Mouw said, "have rightly talked much about the virgin birth of Christ, his deity and his future return."

But now, he said, conservative Christians must address such problems as "the political and economic lifestyles and strategies that might be appropriate responses to (Jesus') unique Lordship and kingship."

At the same time, Mouw stressed that new involvement must be with "a sense of our continuity with evangelical concerns and programs of the past" aimed at avoiding "the pitfalls of Protestant liberalism."

"The Legitimate Heirs"

"We will differ from Protestant liberalism in its approach to social-political matters," he said, "to the degree that we view ourselves as the legitimate heirs of those evangelical Christians who refused to side with theological titubationarianism in this country during the early decades of the 20th Century."

In the conservative Christian approach to finding new forms of social-political engagement, "we must not be thought of as siding with Protestant liberalism, but rather as expanding the evangelicalism that nurtured us and brought us to a saving knowledge of the Lordship of Jesus Christ," he said.

Mouw and his evangelical intellectual colleagues are attempting to define a biblical "view of reality" that has as its consequence a radical impact on the social-political sphere while at the same time making sure it is not a matter of expressing "Marxism within the household of evangelical faith."

At this point, they have been largely successful in laying the theological and intellectual groundwork for a renewed evangelical presence in politics. Whether this can be transformed from theorizing to action—political action that will include the grassroots of the evangelical movement—remains to be seen.

... with a business of his own!

We'd like for you to meet the Executive Officer of a thriving business... the boy who delivers your daily newspaper.

As the owner and operator of his newspaper route, this Junior Independent Merchant must solve problems and shoulder responsibilities, just like all other businessmen.

He buys his product, your newspaper, at wholesale and then retails it to his customers. He must make daily deliveries, do his own accounting, billing, and even struggle with a collection problem here and there.

He is discovering, through actual experience, the rewards for promptness, dependability, self-reliance and initiative.

One of the rewards is his profit, the difference between the wholesale and retail prices of the paper. His route means money for a savings account for college, a new bicycle, a week in camp, many things.

But he is earning even greater rewards. As he learns about sales and salesmanship, he is equipping himself for the future. From boys who learned the principles of business as newspaperboys have come presidents, governors, mayors, industrialists and professional men... those who determine the quality of our civilization in their generation.

It's his world to conquer... and he's off to a good start.

If you have a son that you think might be interested in a newspaper route, why not write or phone us.

The Pampa Daily News

Why should our son have a newspaper route?

The living is good. Plenty of money, nice home, nice furnishings, another salary raise in sight; we've never had it so good. Why should our son manage a newspaper route?

Most any educator or businessman will tell you why in three simple words: it builds character.

Oftentimes the youngster who grows up in comfortable circumstances and who gets his weekly "handout" from dad never realizes the value of money or the efforts required to make it and manage it, until he's on his own. By then attitudes and habits are difficult to reverse.

But the newspaperboy quickly learns valuable lessons that stick. While making money on a newspaper route is important, the experience of getting-the-job-done-no-matter-what is more important. When through route management, responsibility and self-confidence are acquired at this early age, a newspaperboy has an advantage over other youngsters that no amount of money can buy.

If you're still wondering whether your son would benefit from newspaper route management, ask a community businessman or civic leader, or better still, phone our Circulation Department.

FELLOWSHIP DINNER
A fellowship dinner was enjoyed by some 50 people from the congregations of the Briscoe, Gageby and Mobeetie Methodist Churches Sunday in the Mobeetie Fellowship Hall, following the Morning Worship Service. A birthday gift was presented to Rev. L.V. Grace by his church members. The North Wheeler County Singing Festival was held in the Mobeetie Methodist Church, from 2 until 4 p.m. and there was good attendance with singers from Briscoe, Gageby, Allison and Mobeetie participating.

CHRISTIE TRIMBLE HONORED
Mrs. Eula Johnson has received word of honors bestowed on her granddaughter, Christie Trimble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Trimble of Bovina, earned the honor of Valedictorian of her senior class, was listed in Who's Who in High Schools and received the Betty Crocker Family Leader of Tomorrow award and will be competing for state honors and scholarships in this.

Today, it is said, man is the only animal that preys upon other members of its own species.

According to Ardrey, there is a radiating fracture on the top of the skull of Homo habilis discovered by Louis Leakey in Olduvai Gorge.

Until convincing evidence is offered to the contrary, Ardrey wrote, "the supposition must remain that the earliest known specimen of our probable ancestry died from a blow by a probably weapon in the hands of another of our probable ancestors."

It seems logical to assume that as man developed, he lived in small family groups. Members of each group had to cooperate in order to survive. As one group came into contact with another, perhaps they discovered that it was often easier to take what they wanted from the other family than to scrounge for it themselves. So it became a habit to knock someone in the head if he had something one wanted.

Eventually, some men began to specialize. Some became better hunters than others. Some became better makers of weapons. Some became better at knocking heads. Some eventually learned to cultivate food crops and domesticate animals.

A primitive barter economy developed as men began to trade — the soldier exchanging his spoils for the weapons he needed, the farmer exchanging food he produced for tools from the toolmaker.

Perhaps, as more efficient methods of defense were invented, intended prey outside the family group was not always willing to be the victim. So men began to learn that it is more efficient and safer to offer something in exchange for the goods they need — even when dealing with other tribes. Intertribal and international trade began.

But some human predators could not learn the voluntary exchange way of life, so they continued their predatory ways — they just refined their methods.

Mankind accepted the belief that some superhuman authority controls individuals. Some men claimed to be the earthly representatives of that Supreme being, and called themselves kings or emperors. They ruled over other men, and lived in high style from the tribute they collected, called taxes.

As the predatory system was further refined, the majority became the supreme authority. The majority found that it could force its will upon the tribe, and began to levy taxes for any purpose, with the threat of punishment if the subjects failed to comply with their edicts.

So today the belief in authority is so strong in most men that they accept the will of those who claim to represent the majority, regardless of how it affects them. Most men still believe that by working harder to get more people on their side, they will become the authority, and be among the rulers.

But there is yet hope. Many have learned that preying on other men is not the way to get things done. They have learned that voluntary trade, each individual doing what he can do best, is the kind of society that yields the most satisfaction for individual men and therefore for mankind. It is also the kind of society that leads to peace.

In wonder how many

BATTIN' AROUND

Man Preys Upon Members Of His Species

By C.R. BATTEN
"From his beginnings... the evolution of man has brought him to his present estate: he is the world's most successful predator, and the richest of all the world's prey," wrote Robert Ardrey in "The Territorial Imperative."

Some millions of years ago, man became a meat eater. At first he may have scavenged from the kill of lions or other predators, but eventually he became a skillful hunter, and meat became a major part of his diet. He lived in a hunting and scavenging society.

As William James wrote, "Our ancestors have bred pugnacity into our bone and marrow, and thousands of years of peace won't breed it out of us."

Today, it is said, man is the only animal that preys upon other members of its own species.

According to Ardrey, there is a radiating fracture on the top of the skull of Homo habilis discovered by Louis Leakey in Olduvai Gorge.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Everyone quite naturally is wondering how the Watergate case will come out in the end.

I personally have no idea how it will turn out in real life. But I can tell you how it ends in "Top Dog," the first feature length movie based on the Watergate case.

When I say "based" on the Watergate case, I am perhaps being imprecise. It might be more accurate to say the film pounces on the Watergate case and splatters it all over the audience.

The flick is billed as "the outrageous Watergate comedy that goes beyond bad taste." But that is a typical Hollywood overstatement.

Exact Level
Actually, it doesn't exceed bad taste at all. It opens at the exact level of bad taste and remains there until the end.

The ending, as I was saying, is surrealistic. In the climactic scene, Martha Mitchell douses President Nixon with a glass of water and he, like the Wizard of Oz, dissolves.

I mention this because I suspect that scene will appeal strongly to those members of Congress who have been urging Nixon to resign in hopes of avoiding a vote on impeachment.

But such things only happen in the movies.

As far as I know, there is no provision in the Constitution under which the President might vaporize.

In this connection, it might be advantageous to look southward for a moment to Brazil. In Brazil, politicians who fall from favor sometimes are turned into "Cassados," or "annulled ones." Meaning they must refrain from all political activity for specified periods of time.

I'm not necessarily recommending that the United States adopt this system. But with resignation and impeachment both rather drastic, and with vaporization out of the question, annulment might be a good compromise.

Shun Politics
As I envision Yankee-style "Cassado," the impeachment proceedings would be dropped and Nixon would remain in office for the rest of his term — but with the proviso that he shun politics completely.

Democrats would like this arrangement because it would eliminate any possibility of their candidates encountering White House opposition in 1974 and 1976.

More important, Republicans would like it because it would eliminate any possibility of their candidates "encountering" White House support.

Louise unintentionally became involved in a "boudoir triangle." So her jealous husband began to criticize her excessively. Yet she didn't even realize what was wrong. All widows and divorcees should memorize this case!

CASE A-643: Louise J., aged 27, is a sex victim.

"Dr. Crane," she tearfully confessed, "I was married to an auto racer for 4 years.

"We had a very exciting life and I loved him very much.

"But he was killed on the track.

"It was a shock, though most wives of auto racers (like policemen's wives, too) subconsciously realize they may thus become a widow without any warning.

"Well, it took me a year to get adjusted, and then I met a very attractive accountant at an automobile factory.

"We harmonized so beautifully that we became engaged and in 3 more months, we were married.

"Everything seemed wonderful at first.

"But within a few weeks of our return from the honeymoon, he began to criticize me unduly, over even very minor things that most men would ignore.

"In fact, he is now so hypercritical that he drives me to tears almost every night.

"Yet I try my best to be a good wife, for I loved him dearly when we were married and had hoped to have a baby.

"But he goes out of his way to affront me in public and even walks a step or two ahead of me when we are on the street, as if to indicate his total disdain for me.

"Dr. Crane, why does he hate me so? And is there any chance for us to avoid divorce?"

divorcee and then marries a second time, becomes involved in a boudoir triangle.

For her present husband watches her like a hawk to see if she shows even the slightest diffidence or evasive behavior toward his love-making.

Since women are created to be primarily mothers and only secondarily sweethearts, normal wives are frigid as measured by the male viewpoint.

But most husbands have been educated via lewd stories to imagine that ALL women are wildly passionate creatures.

This attitude has been foisted on mankind by the clever salesmanship of "Call" girls and prostitutes, who merely feign that great show of erotic
