A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

Will he call him popsicle?

LOS ANGELES — A baby boy born from an embryo frozen for 7 1/2 years was described Tuesday as healthy and normal.

The 8-pound, 15-ounce infant was delivered by Caesarean section Monday.

The infant is the twin of a child that was conceived on the same day from a different egg. That boy was born in 1990.

The names of the child, his 44-year-old mother and 54-year-old father were withheld to protect their privacy.

The embryo was frozen in 1989, but forgotten about after the couple had a boy with the aid of treatments at a different facility. Last year, they received a letter asking what they wanted to do with it.

They decided to have another child, and doctors implanted the embryo.

Let's get ready to rumble

HONOLULU — A legislative committee is willing to legalize cockfighting — as long as the fighting roosters wear tiny little boxing gloves into the ring.

Illegal cockfights, normally duels to the death, are believed to be common in Hawaii and Texas. They are legal in New Mexico.

Hawaii's House Agriculture committee voted 4-2 Monday to approve a legalization bill, despite protests that cockfighting is a blood sport and approving it in any form could lead to legalized gambling.

Under the bill, game cocks would be required to wear padded protective mitts in place of sharp metal spurs they usually wear as weapons.

Immigration force grows

The INS is now the largest federal agent force, with more armed agents than either the Bureau of Prisons or the FBI.

Spurred by growing concern over immigration, the number of Immigration and Naturalization Service agents has increased by 31 percent, to a total of 12,403, the Justice Department reported Jan. 25.

Forty-seven percent of the armed INS agents work for the Border Patrol, which is heavily concentrated along the Mexican border. Based on mid-1996 figures, the total number of armed federal agents is 74,500.

Gas prices lowest since '94

The price of gasoline across the nation has reached its lowest point since spring of 1994, according to the AAA auto group.

The price of gasoline in Muleshoe has followed the downward trend with local prices actually 12 cents less than the national average.

Across town price boards have advertised 99 cents per gallon for self-serve regular unleaded throughout the past week.

"A drop in demand, along with record levels of production, increased gasoline reserves and a drop in crude oil prices has contributed to the falling prices," said Gil Teel, manager of public and government relations for AAA of Texas.

Loya earns first chair at all-state band convention

Gerardo Loya recently won high school band's version of musical chairs.

The easy-smiling Muleshoe senior attended the all-state band convention last week in San Antonio, and when the music stopped, Loya was named first chair clarinet for Class 1A-3A.

A four-year member of the all-state band, Loya worked his way from the thirteenth chair as a freshman to the top spot through determination and hard work.

"He's extremely hard-working and self-motivated," Muleshoe band director Anthony Gonzales said. "He took it upon himself to be the best."

Gonzales said his star pupil has a rare gift. "He can play any piece of music you put in front of him and makes it sound wonderful."

He is the first Muleshoe band member named all-state for four years and the first to earn first chair.

"It's quite an honor," said Gonzales, comparing it to the football team winning the state title.

Loya, who practices up to two hours a day year round, said playing the clarinet helps him relax and forget about his problems.

"Sometimes at 10 or 11 at night, all of a sudden I get the urge to play," said Loya, who has lived with his grandmother Janie Quiroz since he was five. His parents are separated and live in the Amarillo area.

"It's hard sometimes, but it's the best thing for me," he said.

Loya was a reluctant clarinet player when he took

Lazbuddie superintendent resigning

LAZBUDDIE — Lazbuddie School Superintendent Phil Warren said Thursday he is resigning to take a similar job in the Olton school system.

He will submit his official resignation Monday during a meeting of the Lazbuddie Independent School Board Monday. The board is expected to approve his resignation.

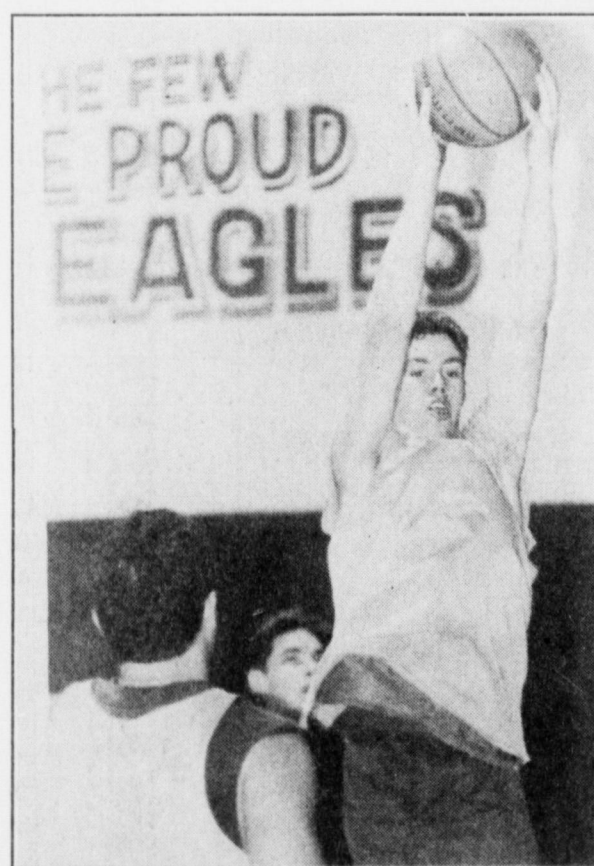

He said he's been looking for an opportunity to move up to a bigger school and now was a good time because the youngest of his two children will graduate from Lazbuddie this spring.

"It's been a wonderful place to raise children and the community has been very supportive," said Warren, finishing his eighth year at Lazbuddie.

Olton recently passed a $2.3 million bond for school improvements, which Warren said influenced his decision.

Lazbuddie has won more than 20 individual and team UIL state academic titles since Warren came to the school.

He said his wife Gwen may stay at Lazbuddie and continue as school counselor.

Three Way now has higher expectations.

After capturing its first district title in 26 years last year, Three Way was eliminated in the first round of the playoffs.

The Eagles hope for more than a token playoff appearance this year after earning a share of the District 8-1A title.

Car tax called unfair

Who says you can't fight city hall?

Despite strong objections from the mayor and city manager, the Muleshoe City Council Tuesday voted to abolish the property tax on personal vehicles.

The Council voted 3-1 in favor of eliminating the tax, which generates $60,000 to $80,000 a year. Mayor Robert Montgomery cast the dissenting vote. City manager James Fisher is not eligible to vote.

The change will take effect in 1999.

During the past two months, citizens have banded together to protest what they believed to be unfair and double taxation by the city.

Around Muleshoe, many taxpayers are pleased their councilmen have stood up for changes they wanted.

"Finally they listened to us," said Muleshoe resident Mike Lopez. "It's been along time since they've done what we wanted."

Other residents were even more pleased that they would finally be "getting a break" from taxes.

Many residents said that even though it may not save them a lot of money, having one less bill always helps.

"I'll be so glad when I no longer have to pay this car tax," said one area resident. "We can't afford to be taxed year after year on our cars. It's not like we won't still pay plenty of taxes to the city. They increased our water bills, and probably will try to do it again to make up for this. But they better realize that we have to leave us enough money to live. I know that I'm not working twelve hours a day to give most of my money to the government."

Although everyone liked the idea of fewer taxes, some residents were concerned about the city increasing other fees to make up for the loss.

"You'll here no objection from me about paying no car taxes," said a local mechanic. "But I hope the City Council doesn't turn around next year and increase all the rates just to make up for it, that would defeat the purpose of everything that happened this week.

"If they want to save us money, then next year I hope they find things to cut or at least find other ways to raise money besides raising taxes."

James Earl Jones appearing at Tech

His voice is legendary. The sound of it instantly reminds us of the infamous Darth Vader, the kind Mufasa from The Lion King, or the intelligent "voice" of CNN.

But for years as a child, James Earl Jones overcame a stuttering problem in his youth to emerge as with an unmistakable voice all his own. Lubbock will have the opportunity to hear that voice, and to see James Earl Jones in person, when he graces the stage of the Texas Tech University Center Allen Theatre on Feb. 24 at 8 a.m..

James Earl Jones began his life in rural Mississippi, where he was raised by his grandparents. He was a shy boy, who could often be found alone in the fields of the farm.

When the family moved from Mississippi to a farm in Michigan, the uprooting triggered a reaction of stuttering in young James Earl, and he withdrew into a world without speech. From the age of ten until fourteen, he didn't speak a word. Finally, he was encouraged by an English teacher and by a love for poetry to reclaim his speaking capabilities, and to eventually attempt acting.

Shortly after regaining his voice, he moved to New York to live with his father, actor Robert Earl Jones, and began acting lessons.

His first appearances were off-Broadway in The Blacks and The Blood Knot. In 1959, he began his long time association with the New York Shakespeare Festival with roles from Hamlet to King Lear. He then moved to Broadway, where he began his rise to fame in The Great White Hope, for which he won a Tony award. He also amazed audiences in his roles in Othello, Paul Robeson, and Fences, for which he won yet another Tony.

Recently, Jones has dedicated more time to film and television roles.

In 1989, he co-starred with Kevin Costner in the already classic film, "Field of Dreams." One year later, he appeared with Sean Connery and Alec Baldwin in Paramount's "Hunt for Red October."

The lecture is offered by the Nightlife Series at Texas Tech. Call 742-3610 for ticket information.

Screwworm scare in San Antonio

A reinfestation of screwworms in the United States may have been prevented by a San Antonio veterinarian. Sheryl Proctor found the screwworms in a basset hound, which recovered after treatment.

A massive campaign of sterile screwworms fly drops in the 1960s finally controlled the pest in the country.

Prior to that time, losses to ranchers from screwworms exceeded $400 million annually. The goal of the U.S. Department of Agriculture is to eradicate the screwworm plague down to Panama and establish a "biological barrier" across the small land mass of Panama.

Currently, the only screwworm sterile fly production facility in all of the Americas is located in Tuxtla Gutierrez, Chiapas, Mexico. It was shut down by a labor dispute for three weeks last year. UDA estimates put U.S. producer benefits from the program at $750 million annually.

Loya was a reluctant clarinet player when he took up the instrument in sixth grade, wanting instead to play the saxophone. He was told the band already had enough saxophone players.

But he has grown to love the sound of the mid-range woodwind

"When it's played right, it sounds gorgeous," said Loya, sheepishly admitting he hasn't always played it right.

He said his grandmother "complained a little bit" when he first started practicing, but now too appreciates the instrument's "warm" sound.

When he graduates, Loya plans to put his music career on hold and pursue a pre-med degree at Angelo State. He will minor in music though.

"It'll be something to fall back on," Loya said. "But I'm sure I'll always practice and play one way or the other."

Through the band and clarinet, Loya learned the importance of hard work.

"I used to be extremely lazy — and I still think I'm lazy sometimes," Loya said. "But I was able to get good at something because I worked hard at it." A slight in junior high, when he was lost first chair in the band, has served as his motivation.

Practice kept paying off as Loya worked his way up to fourth chair as a sophomore, and second chair last year.

"I just kept practicing more and more," Loya said.

And getting better at the game of musical chairs.

Spreading the floor and relying on the 3-pointer, Texline gave Lazbuddie fits last year in a 50-45 loss.

Warren expects a similar approach Tuesday.

"They're going to press us full court and put up a lot of threes," Warren said.

Lazbuddie is led by 6-7 senior Jason Thomas, who averages 17 points and nine rebounds a game despite being double and triple teamed. Junior Josh Morris adds 11 points and is a dangerous 3-point shooter.

Lazbuddie also features six-footers and Chris Smith (eight points) and Banger Adam St. Clair off the bench. Junior guard Brandon Foster averaged in double figures in district play.

"When need to work inside/out," Warren said. "But sometimes we lose our composure and start taking the outside shot and forget about looking inside."

The Longhorns, who started

"I think we've solved some of our problems," Warren said.

play," said Wilson, one of three returning three starters. "Hopefully, that will continue in the playoffs."

Second-year coach Shawn Harrison said last year's experience will definitely help.

"It's a different level," Harrison said. "The intensity picks up and you have to play hard for 32 minutes."

Winners of six straight and 11 of its last 13, Three Way relies on tough man-to-man defense and ball control. The Eagles are holding opponents to 49 points a game.

"We match up well with them," Harrison said. "If we play our game, we can play with (Kress). If we let them run up and down the court, it's going to be a long night."

Gerald Perez, a 6-2 junior, averages 13.6 points and 7.4 rebounds a game for the Eagles. Sophomore guard Alberto Valderas is the Eagles' top outside threat, averaging 8.9 points a game with 34 3-pointers.

Three Way beat Cotton Center 49-39 in a playoff game last week to earn the district's top seed. Perez scored 20 points and Valderas added 13.

Junior wing Jonathan Kindle said it takes time to adjust to Harrison's conservative style.

"It was kind of hard early in the year because we wanted to run," Kindle said. "But when we run the pattern offense and control the ball, we achieve a lot more."

More this year means advancing farther than the first round of the playoffs.

said. "This is the first time in my head coaching career that I've had a team fail to play up to its potential." Propelled by five 3-pointers and a 28-point second quarter, the Mules blazed out to a 46-37 halftime lead, but scored just 20 points in the second half. "We started (the second half) executing our offense, but the shots didn't fall," Mason said. "Then it seems like we panicked and started to go to the individual mode." With Aaron King (13 points) attacking the seams in Muleshoe's soft 2-3 zone and Justin Daniel (11 points) and Ellis working the high-low game, Friona erased the nine-point halftime deficit in the first six minutes of the third quarter. Daniel's circus scoop shot gave Friona a 52-51 lead heading into the fourth quarter. A force on the boards in the second half, Daniel scored twice on offensive rebounds and Ellis hit a wide-open 3-pointer to give Friona a 63-59 lead midway through the fourth quarter.

Kemp answered with a 3-pointer and Cleavinger scored in the paint to pull Muleshoe ahead one last time, 64-63. But Ellis scored along the baseline on a slick high-post from Daniel and King hit a pair of free throws as Friona regained the lead 67-64 with 1:30 left. After Muleshoe came up empty on its next two possessions, Friona sealed the eight-point win at the free throw line with the help of an intentional foul and technical foul called on Carlton Lewis with 18 sec-

Lazbuddie art students attend Amarillo event

Three Lazbuddie art students traveled to Amarillo College Feb. 7 to participate in a unique art competition called VASE, Visual Arts Scholastic Event.

This is the 3rd year that the Texas Panhandle has participated in this event. VASE is sponsored by the Texas Art Education Association and is its state-wide art competition.

This event is not like most competitions. It is an activity in which the students have opportunities to show and talk about their work one-on-one with the judges, share learning experiences with students from other schools, and receive an individualized rating on their art work.

Students competing in Division I for beginning art students were Andy Johnson, son of Fritz and Mary Friemel. Andy received a superior rating.

Laura Jo Via, daughter of Guy Walt and Jan Via, also received a superior rating.

Sarah Lea Cardona, daughter of Sara Godinez, received an excellent rating.

A Liking for Lies Is Never Very Pretty

A person who will lie to you in small matters will lie to you in large ones. Count on it.

I don't care much for cynics and I hope the statement above is not cynical. I do think it is true. The sun rises in the east. Count on it. What goes up will come down. Count on it. Liars will lie. Count on it.

Like most of the American people, I have heard about all I want to of the most recent White House

Focus On Faith
Curtis Shelburne

scandal. I don't know what the truth is or who is telling it, Bill Clinton or Monica Lewinsky. One of them must be lying. That much is clear. And both look pretty bad in my book.

This week's Newsweek paints a revealing, and ugly, picture of how truth can suffer. According to Newsweek, the New York Times broke the story reporting that the president had "secretly met with his secretary to share recollections of his meetings with Monica Lewinsky." At about 10:00 on the evening the story hit the press, the president's friend and attorney Mickey Kantor met with White House "crisis managers" and by 2:00 a.m. the team had hammered out a plan. "The secretary's own attorney would deny the story's most damaging aspects. TV spinners would denounce Starr as a partisan leaker. The president would use a photo op to declare that he was playing by the rules of an investigation—implying that Starr was not. Finally, attorneys would compile an official-looking list of other alleged "leaks." The president's chief personal lawyer . . . would release it—and then go before the cameras to gravely announce that he was filing a formal complaint."

And the strategy largely seems to have worked. Starr, the prosecutor, came off looking "like a persecutor," and at "a party for Barbra Streisand, Clinton loyalists chuckled as the White House lead spin doctor, Paul Begala, recounted his TV attacks."

Take the facts people know or think they know. Add the twist that makes your guy look best and his enemies look worst. "Spin" it. If you're really good as a "spin doctor," you can bag a fine Washington job. But I warn you, you're not suited for the job if you are a person who asks troublesome questions like these:

When does spin cross the line and become a blatant lie? Even if you tell the truth but "spin" in order to deliberately deceive, isn't that a lie? How do you feel about being paid to tamper with the truth? How can you learn not to care about what your guy does, only about how he looks? Isn't it a little difficult to be a faithful lackey for someone who doesn't seem to know the first thing about being faithful?

I don't mean to be partisan. A sad truth is that no party or group has a corner on lying. But my mother was right when she taught me that deceivers ultimately end up being deceived. Count on it.

Note to Medicare panel: reaffirm your mandate

As the national Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare begins the search for a long-term solution to ensure Medicare's future, it would do well to heed Hippocrates' advice to all physicians: First, do no harm. Medicare was created to provide affordable, quality health care to older and disabled Americans. The outcome of the commission's work should reaffirm this promise.

The possible solutions are complex. There is no magic solution or quick fix. As I stated in this column in December, the commission must not solve Medicare's problem by making things worse for others in the health-care system.

For example, some have proposed raising the age of eligibility for Medicare from 65 to 67 as a way of saving money. This proposal deserves a full and fair debate. How, for example, would proponents address the increase in the uninsured this would cause? Failure to do so adequately would add to the high number of people currently in the 55-64 age group with no insurance at a time when they need it most.

Others have suggested raising the premiums on Medicare Part B to cover even more of the costs. This idea also has consequences. If premiums rise, how will those least able to afford them be protected? Higher premiums could lead more people to forgo the Part B benefit because they could no longer afford it.

Horace B. Deets

These are but a sampling of the proposals that will be discussed. AARP members and their families, as well as those in the boomer generation and Generation X, need to fully understand the trade-offs that are involved in all of the complex solutions that will emerge from this debate. Your future health care is at stake. Make no mistake about it, that is what this debate is about. While you will hear a lot of talk about "trust fund solvency," the issue is much more than that. The commission's work must be to determine how people can receive access to affordable, high-quality health care as they get older.

The members of the commission must be creative. They must do more than "round up the usual suspects," those same solutions that emerge every time Medicare becomes an issue. They must be open to all sorts of ideas, exploring all possibilities, not crusading for or against predetermined solutions.

AARP stands ready to work with the commission to address Medicare's problems and build on its many strengths. Any solution that does not fully consider consumers' needs and the impact on the total health-care system will fall short. And none of us, young or old, working or retired, can allow that to happen.

(Horace B. Deets is the executive director of AARP.)

DPS warns of improper solicitations

Although some law enforcement associations may claim to be raising money on behalf of the Texas Department of Public Safety, they are not affiliated with the agency. The DPS does not benefit from funds the groups and their professional telemarketers raise.

"Over the years, we have gotten numerous questions and complaints for Texas citizens regarding telephone solicitations by law enforcement associations," said Col. Dudley M. Thomas, director of DPS. "The DPS does not solicit financial contribution from private citizens. We receive our funding from the Texas Legislature."

Some organizations solicit funds using names similar to those of the DPS, including "Texas Rangers," "State Troopers," "Texas Highway Patrol" or "Department of Public Safety." While some DPS officers may be members of these organizations on their own time, these associations are not affiliated with the DPS, Thomas said. They raise money to fund their own programs, some of which may benefit officers and families.

DPS has created an informational brochure about law enforcement solicitation for Texas citizens and has established a recorded informational brochure about law enforcement solicitation for Texas citizens and has established a recorded information line on this topic (512-424-5588).

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

LYDIA - EUROPE'S FIRST CHRISTIAN CONVERT!

WHEN PAUL MADE HIS SECOND MISSIONARY JOURNEY HE CAME TO THE CITY OF PHILIPPI IN MACEDONIA (GREECE). PHILIPPI WAS A LARGE CITY DUE TO THE GOLD MINING INDUSTRY IN THE NEARBY MOUNTAINS. ALTHOUGH THERE WERE JEWS LIVING HERE, APPARENTLY THERE WAS NO SYNAGOGUE FOR PAUL HAD TO GO OUTSIDE THE CITY ON THE SABBATH TO A NEARY RIVER WHERE WASHINGS, NECESSARY TO THE RELIGIOUS CEREMONIES, COULD BE PERFORMED. HERE, HE FOUND ONLY A GROUP OF WOMEN ENGAGED IN WORSHIP AND TO THESE HE BEGAN TO PREACH HIS MESSAGE. LYDIA, WHO WAS AMONGST THEM, WAS SO TAKEN BY PAUL'S PREACHING THAT SHE IMMEDIATELY ASKED FOR BAPTISM, INCLUDING HER ENTIRE HOUSEHOLD!

This devotional & directory is made possible by these businesses who encourage all of us to attend worship services.

LYDIA WAS NOT JEWISH, HERSELF, BUT WAS A FIRM BELIEVER IN GOD AND WORSHIPPED WITH THE JEWS. SHE WAS A WOMAN OF WEALTH, DEALING IN THE PURPLE-DYED FABRICS MANUFACTURED IN THYATYRA, ONE OF THE LARGE GARMENT CENTERS IN ASIA-MINOR AND FROM WHENCE SHE ORIGINALLY HAILED. AFTER HER BAPTISM, LYDIA PUT HER PALATIAL HOME ENTIRELY AT THE DISPOSAL OF PAUL AND HIS ENTOURAGE FOR THEIR ENTIRE STAY IN THOSE PARTS! (ACTS 16: 12-15)
