Of 10 Per Cent

Pioneer Asks Boost in Gas Rate for City

Pioneer Natural Gas Co. has filed with the City Commission a request for an approximate ten per cent increase in its general rate for gas service in Pampa.

The request, just made public today, has been in the hands of city officials since the middle of August.

Pampa's current gas rate schedule follows:

- First 3,000 cu. ft. or less per month, $1.75. This would be increased to $1.90.
- Next 12,000 cu. ft. per month, 45 cents per thousand. This would be increased to 50 cents.
- Next 15,000 cu. ft. per month, 40 cents per thousand. This would be increased to 44 cents.
- Next 170,000 cu. ft. per month, 30 cents. This would be increased to 33 cents.
- All over 200,000 cu. ft. per month, 25 cents per thousand. This would be increased to 28 cents.

A hearing on the gas company's request is expected to be set within the next week or ten days.

C. I. Wall, Pioneer Gas Co. president, in his letter to the mayor and city commission, stated that the existing rate charged in Pampa was established in 1957 and was based on a test year ending Oct. 31, 1956.

Since that time, Wall stated, there has been a steady increase in operating costs such as labor, capital, materials, supplies and taxes. There also has been a substantial increase in the field cost of natural gas, Wall said.

Pioneer filed an application with the Texas Railroad Commission last year asking that a city gas rate for the West Texas system of Pioneer be established. Pampa was included in this request, and Pampa officials attended the initial stages of the hearing, asking to be excluded from the more than 60 cities and towns affected.

The City and Pioneer then joined in a motion to sever from the proceedings the question of whether Pampa is a part of the integrated system of Pioneer in West Texas. The motion was granted and the question remains before the commission for decision at a later time if necessary, according to Wall's letter.

Wall stated that Pioneer at that time advised Pampa officials that it planned to request an increase in general rates in Pampa if the motion to sever Pampa from the gas rate request was granted.

Wall stated that Pioneer believes its requested general rate increase to be easily justified.

TOASTMASTERS DEBATE — Four members of the Pampa Toastmasters Club will participate in a debate at the regular meeting of the Pampa Young Republicans today at 7:30 p.m. in the Hospitality Room of the Citizens Bank and Trust Co. The Toastmasters will present the entire program at the meeting. The topic for debate is "Should Foreign Trade Be Expanded to Include Iron Curtain Countries?" Shown left to right are Dr. S. B. Sybert, W. A. Morgan, Harry Mitchell and Dr. H. M. Kimbrough.

No Casualties Are Reported, Property Damage Is Slight

By KYLE THOMPSON
United Press International

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (UPI) — Hurricane Cindy, steadily losing strength, hit the Gulf Coast in a sparsely populated area between Galveston and Port Arthur today and quickly collapsed.

The New Orleans Weather Bureau lowered all warnings in a bulletin at 10 a.m. CST, and said that Cindy's maximum winds were 50 miles an hour — 25 miles below minimum hurricane strength.

Cindy was downgraded to a tropical storm.

No casualties were reported and there was slight property damage.

Heavy rains were forecast. Cindy collapsed as fast as she developed.

She packed gusts up to 80 miles an hour in the Gulf of Mexico. Winds as high as 74 miles an hour hit Galveston but dropped quickly to 35.

The eye of the storm passed through the tiny, evacuated town of High Island between 7:40 and 8:00 a.m. est. Sixty-to-seventy-mile winds died as the eye passed and rose again as the back side of the storm struck. Cindy swirled around the High Island area, a stretch of almost empty land.

Some windows broken. At Port Arthur and Galveston, some windows broke and power lines fell. About two inches of rain pelted Port Arthur, where 2,000 people took refuge in shelters. Another 1,700 took shelter in Galveston.

Refineries and chemicals plants in Port Arthur operated normally through the blow.

Cindy aimed first for Cameron, La., but veered west. Winds up to 40 miles an hour raked the low-lying Louisiana town, but the sea, wall contained tides.

The sheriff's office said there were no casualties and no one missing in the storm. Only a few injuries were reported in minor automobile accidents as 5,000 residents of the Cameron area fled to higher ground.

Winds up to 50 miles an hour howled through Port Arthur.

This was a far cry from devastating Hurricane Carla which struck the Texas coast two years ago and one week ago today, killing at least 17 persons and leaving damage in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

Thousands Flee Inland. Thousands of coastal residents had fled inland before the swift-developing power of Cindy. Many men stuck to their jobs at sea. Between five and 10 shrimp boats rode out the storm off Galveston.

Twenty-six men were battened down on an oil rig off the Louisiana coast. Another 40 were on a barge off Cameron, La. Eight men were on a tug having engine trouble off Galveston. One shrimp boat was unreported off Galveston.

Tides rose almost five feet above normal. Cindy's highest

Greatest Danger Period Over For Fischer Quints

BERDEEN, S. D. (UPI) — The Fischer quintuplets broke through their greatest danger period today and doctors said their chances for survival were at their brightest.

The quintts at last were given their full Christian names Monday night. Doctors switched them to a milk formula laced with vitamins and said the kicking, wiggling tots were getting along "fine."

This day marked the end of the 72-hour "danger period" which their doctor had said premature babies must endure. They came through their time-of-most-danger in gurgling triumph.

"They were turning from end to end of their soles, feet up against the wall. Turning clear head-to-toe. The most active? Oh, I think it was the boy. He was the weak one when they were first born but he has become a strong wiggler."

"He and Mary Catherine are the most active of the lot. She was really moving and waving her arms. She was really directing traffic."

Progress Encouraging. The latest progress report on the five tiny bundles of energy was "Condition fine, and all on milk formula." The fact that all five were strong enough to change from their sugar-water diets to the formula was encouraging.

When Mrs. Mary Ann Brady Fischer, 38, the mother of five previous children, began giving birth to the quintts, it was 1:58 a.m., CST, Saturday.

Budget Is Adopted By City Commission; Employees Given 5 Pct. Salary Increase

Pampa's City Commission today adopted on first reading an amended city budget totaling $1,650,386 for fiscal 1963-64 and set the city tax rate at $1.45.

The budget, which includes an approximate five per cent salary increase for some 145 to 150 city employees, is $57,384 bigger than the 1962-63 budget. The tax rate is the same as this year's rate.

Total increase in salaries for city employees, excluding city firemen and policemen, amounts to approximately $24,000 for the year.

Police and firemen were not included in the general pay increase, officials said, because they will receive approximately $9,000 in longevity pay under state law.

The city warehouse budget was reduced by $40,000 when it was decided not to construct a new building. This amount will be taken up elsewhere with the salary increase and $7,800 for renovation of Railroad Commission offices and approximately $7,900 for improvements to the Municipal swimming pool.

Actually the budget approved will not become final until two more called meetings are held.

The vote on approving the amended budget was 4 to 1, with the opposing vote cast by Commissioner Leon Holmes who said he was not familiar enough with the requests and the changes to cast a vote of approval.

It was planned to adopt the budget ordinance on an emergency basis today, but this cannot be done under the law unless the vote is unanimous.

The commission will meet again at 5:30 p.m. tomorrow to take the second vote and probably will be called into session at the same time Thursday to take the third and final vote.

The ordinance fixing the $1.45 tax rate per $100 of property valuation was passed unanimously.

The commission also asked the city's $1.45 tax rate is broken down to 97 cents for the general fund, 3 cents for Lovett Memorial Library maintenance, and 45 cents for various interest and sinking funds to pay bonded indebtedness.

In other business today, the commission rejected a request of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association to have the city assume payment of insurance premiums on an $80,000 insurance policy on equipment at Recreation Park.

The commission also:

- Approved payment of a $931.79 bill from Continental Oil Co.
- Passed on second reading an ordinance authorizing removal of three parking meters in front of 311 W. Foster to establish a cab stand for the Yellow Cab Co.
- Approved payment of $7,788.82 to Chitwood & Son for seal coating streets.
- Approved automatic salary schedule changes for city employees since May 1, 1963, and salaries of new employees since then.

The commission also asked the (See BUDGET, Page 3)

Nominating Group Named By Chamber

The five nominating committee members for Chamber of Commerce officers for 1963-64 were announced during the monthly director's luncheon meeting yesterday in the Coronado Inn.

Election committee members are H. V. Wilks, chairman; E. L. Henderson, Ed Myatt, Warren Haase and Charles B. Cook. Wilks reported on the election returns, which were canvassed and approved by the directors.

Directors will vote on the committee's slate of nominees during a called meeting next week, according to E. O. Wedgeworth, Chamber of Commerce manager. Officers and directors will be installed in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn Oct. 10.

Frank Culbertson, chairman of the industrial committee, announced Nov. 19 as the tentative date for Sinclair Oil Appreciation Day. The 60 employees of Sinclair living in the Pampa area will receive special recognition. This is the second in a series of special recognition programs. The first company honored was Skelly Oil, recognized in April, according to Culbertson.

John Wortman, chairman of the merchants activities committee, announced the committee had approved plans for Pampa to get new Christmas street decorations. The decorations will be an all gold motif with a Christmas candle in the center and decorative scrolls on either side of the candles.

Wortman reminded the group of the One Great Day of Selling scheduled Sept. 25. Fred Palmer will conduct two sales clinics, one for big items from 3 to 5 p.m. and the other for small items from 8 to 10 p.m. in the Robert E. Lee Junior High cafeteria.

Wortman reported the weekly Thursday night openings of Pampa stores have proved successful and merchants plan to continue.

Aubrey Steele, vice president of the chamber, gave a brief resume on his recent trip to the Strategic Air Command Air Force Base at Denver, Colo. He was one of 25 Panhandle civic leaders taken on a tour of the SAC base and Titan I ICBM strategic missile site.

Wedgeworth announced the Chamber will participate in the 15th annual sports and vacation show in Dallas April 11-19, 1964.

"The board will participate by furnishing slides and information on things of interest to tourists in the Pampa and Top O' Texas area," Wedgeworth said.

All Pampans are invited to attend the reception for pilots participating in the All-Texas Air (See CHAMBER, Page 3)

District Court Requests Jury Not to Appear

The petit jury members of the 31st Judicial District Court scheduled to appear in court tomorrow to hear testimony in the Enoch Fuller vs. Tri-State Insurance Co. case are not to appear, according to Helen Sprinkle, district clerk.

According to the clerk, the case was settled out of court and the court requests the jurors selected for it not to appear.

35 Indicate Plans To Attend Workshop

Thirty-five Pampans have indicated they will meet with Dr. R. J. Bradley of Texas A&M University tomorrow for the first industrial development workshop for Pampa.

Chamber of Commerce directors and members of the chamber's industrial committee will meet with Dr. Bradley in the Cibola Room of the Coronado Inn from 9 to noon and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m.

The workshop members will have an hour and a half break at noon, but no luncheon meeting is scheduled, according to chamber officials.

Dr. Bradley, who is in charge of the workshop, will explore all phases of industrial development and offer suggestions for the program being debated in Pampa.

This is an attempt to set up a systematic, organized industrial program, one that would encourage industries to seek Pampa out and establish new sites here, according to Frank Culbertson, chairman of the chamber's industrial committee.

The industrial workshop development consists of six hours of training in industrial workshop techniques. The sessions are designed to give Pampans a chance to learn and review the various facets of modern industrial development and promotion.

The research team, headed by Dr. Bradley, will discuss six major topics: "What is Industrial Development?", "Why Industrial Development?", "Types of Manufacturing Industry," "Competition for New Industry," "How Industry Picks Plant Sites" and "Preparing the Community for Industrial Development."

After the workshop, the chamber will decide if it will be necessary for the university research team to survey Pampa's industrial and economic possibilities.

The team has recently conducted surveys for Lamesa, Sweetwater, Andrews, Hearne, Navasota and Bryan-College Station.

Five Pampa Telephone Operators Volunteer For Emergency Service

Five Pampa switchboard operators of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company volunteered for emergency duty in the Texas coast disaster area that is in the wake of Hurricane Cindy.

These five operators left by plane from Amarillo at 6 a.m. today. The volunteers are Donnie Southard, Darlene Pavageau, Helen McClelland, Betty Kirkin and Jeanette Nail, according to the chief operator's office of the phone company.

The women are part of a volunteer crew of 21 operators from the Panhandle. In addition to Pampa, volunteers have gone from Hereford and Amarillo.

"We don't know yet what town they are assigned to, but they will be assigned to switchboards to help take care of the telephone service during the hurricane," Katie McConnell, assistant chief operator, said.

This is usual procedure for the Pampa office. Operators were sent to help when Hurricane Carla was running up and down the coast, according to the chief operator's office.

The Lighter Side

Bridge Columns Shouldn't Be Written By Experts

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most newspapers nowadays carry a bridge column. Which is good.

But these columns are written by bridge experts. Which is bad.

Every now and then I read one of the columns and when I do I am always amazed by how inquisitive the cards are.

I was aware, of course, of Hoyie's decree that "The cards speak for themselves," but until I started reading bridge columns I did not realize they were such gabby little things.

When a bridge columnist is analyzing a hand, the cards chatter away like so many magpies, sometimes as follows:

"East led the club nine. It told west that east was short-suited in diamonds and the spade jack was unprotectable."

West Captured Trick

West captured the trick with the club king and returned a low heart, which said that he could establish the diamond queen and would ruff the second spade lead."

This ability of cards to express themselves so fluently is altogether marvelous except that they have a basic speech defect.

Most of us bridge players limit ourselves to what is called "party bridge," or what is known in my circles as "drinking bridge."

GOLF ON GARBAGE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Since 1893, Brooklyn, N. Y., with a population of 3 million, has had only one golf course, but it recently added a second — built on garbage.

The new Marine Park course according to Golf Digest magazine, is built on land reclaimed by use of the city's waste deposited on the links site over the past 26 years. The price of the course's 278 acres isn't garbage, though. It's valued at $38 million.

Gifts Pour-In to Fischer Quints

ABERDEEN, S.D. (UPI)—The Fischer quint was assured today of everything from diapers to shoes to college scholarships.

Gifts have poured in from throughout this region of rolling plains since the news of the births was flashed around the world just before dawn Saturday.

Already the value of the gifts has been estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000.

Aberdeen's chamber of commerce Monday began acting as a clearing house for the Andrew Fischers. The office has been keeping a running list of gifts, and answering the seemingly endless telephone calls.

The list includes: an adding machine, a year's supply of packed pickles, scholarships to two colleges, a $20,000 scholarship fund to any college in South Dakota, "his" and "hers" sports shirts, one-year beauty treatment for Mrs. Fischer, bakery goods until the quint are 21 years old, haircuts for the boy for the next five years, butter, shoes, washer and dryer, honey, baby food, toys, jewelry, and diapers.

The chamber's office also said it would construct a home for the Fischers according to the Fischers' specifications.

Chamber officials said the house would cost "a great deal."

The latest chamber list carried the names of 79 firms and individuals who had called to offer gifts. Others called later Monday and they will be added to the list today. The chamber is storing some of the gifts in a room in its office.

"In August, we had 58 accidents, with 19 persons injured. In the same month last year, we had 43 accidents and seven persons injured," he said.

In the statistics on ages of drivers involved, he said most accidents involved drivers under 20 years old. Drivers under 20 had 39 accidents, those 20 to 24, 14 accidents; 25 to 34, 12; 35 to 44, 14; 45 to 54, 13; 55 to 64, seven; 65 to 75, two.

"Statistics of attributing circumstances included, following to too closely, 12; failure to yield right of way, 11; speeding, five; improper turn, three and improper driving, 15," Chief Conners said.

"Most accidents, 12, happened on Wednesday, with Saturday running a close second with 10. Tuesday, Thursday and Friday had a nine each, Monday, eight and Sunday, one.

"We had a tie for time periods with most accidents," he said. "The hours between 5 and 6 p.m. and 9 and 10 p.m. had eight each. The hours between 4 and 5 p.m. and 8 and 9 p.m. had six each. We had four each in the hours between 11 and noon, one and two p.m. and six and 7 p.m.," he said.

day "like ants," fleeing to higher ground. Toward dawn, Cindy swung west.

The Red Cross put up 2,000 in 10 shelters in Port Arthur and hotels in Houston, 50 miles inland, were crowded.

Tug Radioes Distress
The 126-foot tug Myra White with eight persons on board and towing a World War II LST (landing ship tank) rapped a distress call off Galveston.

The skipper said his engines were failing and he was in danger of hitting an oil rig.

Torrents of rain thundered down on the coast. Five and ten inches were forecast for extreme east Texas and west portions of Louisiana.

The weather bureau had advised small craft from the Mexican border to Pensacola, Fla., to stay in port. They expected to lower warnings later today.

Ride Out Storm
The Coast Guard said as many as 10 shrimp boats rode out the storm off the Galveston jetties. Three asked for help but none was in immediate danger. Forty men rode out the storm on a barge south of Cameron.

Galveston reported wind gusts of 74 miles an hour before 8 a.m. EDT.

Coast Guard reports indicated that the ill-defined "eye" of Cindy may already have crossed land at Sabine Pass, at the Texas-Louisiana border.

The Coast Guard at Sabine Pass said that at 6:30 a.m., EDT, the wind almost stopped. There was almost a calm for 20 minutes and the wind rose to 65 miles an hour.

It rained hard at Port Arthur and with the storm 30 miles east of Galveston, the wind velocity was 50 miles an hour. The wind broke a big plate glass window.

Schools Shelter People
Several schools opened in Port Arthur and Beaumont to shelter people who had decided to leave home in the low-lying areas without dike protection. But there was no general evacuation as there was in 1961 when Hurricane Carla hit.

Texas City, below Houston, showed some signs of damage. Plate glass was taped up in Galveston, Texas City and as far north as Houston, 80 miles inland.

Schools were closed at Galveston, La Marque, Texas City, Alvin and through most of Galveston and Jefferson (Port Arthur-Beaumont) counties. La Marque's electric power failed briefly today.

EDITORS: Following is another in the series of dispatches on nations of the world written by United Press International correspondents who have lived and worked in them.

Nations of the World No. 26: Indo-China

By ARTHUR DOMMEN
United Press International

HONG KONG (UPI)—South of China and east of India lies an S-shaped line of coast backed up by forest-covered mountains and river plains in which the separate influences of the two great Asian civilizations have mingled over the centuries.

This region was named Indo-China by the French, who landed on its shores in the heyday of 19th Century colonialization.

Indo-China consists of Viet Nam, known through history as the "Smaller Dragon" because of its traditional tribute-paying relationship to the "middle kingdom" of China, along with Cambodia and Laos. The whole area totals about 300,000 square miles.

Today, as in the past, it is a troubled land. It is trapped in the fierce struggle between East and West for the souls and minds of its inhabitants. Although the people are easy-going and peaceable, they have been caught up in various struggles down through the centuries.

While Confucian influences are predominant among the Vietnamese, whose Mandarin rulers fought a long series of wars to wrest their independence from China, and who in the 19th Century constructed a bold new capital for their court on lines of imperial Peking, the two kingdoms of Cambodia and Laos are areas of strong Buddhist belief.

When the first European missionaries landed on the coast of central Viet Nam — they were not French, but Portuguese from the China coast trading outpost of Macao — they discovered the vestiges of a once-flourishing civilization which had been swallowed up by the jungle. This was the civilization of the Chams, inhabitants of a defunct kingdom known as Champa, whose old stone towers still look out over the blue sea from hilltops near Tourane and Qui Nhon.

It was soon discovered, also, that the Chams were related to another people who lived further west and whose ancestors, the Khmers, had possessed a great capital of imposing grandeur complete with an intricate system of reservoirs and irrigation canals. This capital, constructed at tremendous expense beginning in the ninth century A.D. and abandoned in the early 15th Century, was Angkor Wat, now a popular tourist attraction in Cambodia.

The rulers of Viet Nam greeted the arrival of European missionaries with suspicion, and the implantation of Catholicism in Viet Nam was not without bloodshed. The empire was ruled by the benevolent autocracy of a succession of Mandarins from the throne at Hue.

The Mandarinate was incredibly backward. It prided itself on its lofty isolation from the currents of Western technical progress which were then lapping round its stone fortifications.

In 1833 an edict which declared that the profession of Christianity was a crime punishable by death. A number of missionaries were imprisoned, executed or exiled, and their houses and places of worship were destroyed.

In 1836 a further edict closed Vietnamese ports, with the exception of Tourane, to all European shipping.

Finally, in the 1860's, French military squadrons arrived in nearby seas, and under the guise of affording protection to French citizens, they succeeded in compelling the local rulers to assent to a protectorate. The day of French colonial rule had arrived.

French protectorates followed in short order in both Cambodia and Laos, the latter consisting of a number of separate feudal principalities which were not joined together under the unified rule of the King of Luang Prabang until as late as 1947.

The man who was mainly responsible for the extension of French protection to Laos, then largely unexplored, was Auguste Pavie. He has left us a colorful written account of his travels through the jungles and across mountains just before the turn of the century.

As late as 1920 the journey from Luang Prabang to Bangkok, partly by river boat, partly by walking and partly by elephant, took 25 days; from Savannakhet to Quang Tri, 20 days; and from Attopu in south Laos to Qui Nhon on the central Viet Nam coast 15 days by fast horse or horse-and-elephant relay.

All these distances are now calculated in terms of minutes of flight by light plane, which has come to be the every-day form of transport in the roadless hinterland of the mountains.

Today, the royal houses of Laos and Cambodia have both survived the 90-odd years of French protectorate. In Cambodia, Prince Norodom Sihanouk stepped down from the throne and took the title of head of state. But the last successor of the Hue emperors, Bai, abdicated in 1945 and now lives on the French Riviera while Viet Nam is under republican government.

Few neighboring monarchies are more different in character, then Cambodia and Laos. Prince Sihanouk of Cambodia is an extrovert, a modern temporal statesman who attends sessions of the United Nations at the head of his country's delegation and tirelessly travels about his own small land in search of new facts and new possibilities for raising living standards.

King Savang Vatthana of Laos, on the other hand, is a retiring ascetic, little given to his politics or enjoying life as Sihanouk is. King Savang Vatthana succeeded to the throne in October, 1959, on the death of his father, King Sisavang Vong, who at that time was the longest reigning monarch in the world (34 years).

President Ngo Dinh Diem in South Viet Nam and President Ho Chi Minh in North Viet Nam both aspire to the goal of reunifying the country, divided along the 17th parallel. The North Vietnamese, are as effectively separated by the present partition as the people of East and West Berlin.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst
MADRID, Spain (UPI)—Spanish officials emphasize that maintaining close relations with the United States is a keystone of Spanish foreign policy.

They say this will continue to be true regardless of the current outcome of Washington negotiations for the renewal of the U.S.-Spanish base agreement.

The agreement, concluded in 1953 and due to expire this Sept. 26, covers U.S. Strategic Air Command bases at Torrejon outside Madrid, Moron outside Seville and Zaragoza midway between Madrid and Barcelona, and the Mediterranean naval base at Rota. Other, smaller, installations also are involved.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco's government called for a re-examination of the treaty terms on the grounds that after 10 years changing conditions justified certain changes.

Talks in "Delicate" Stage
Government officials here are wary of describing the exact changes sought or the progress of the negotiations, which they describe as being in a "delicate" stage.

But they say that since 1953 the Soviet Union has achieved parity with the United States in nuclear warfare and that a cover of fighter planes is no longer sufficient for Spain's defenses. Therefore, they say that Spain is taking an even greater risk now than before in permitting the bases in her soil.

Such an argument lends weight to reports that, among other things, Spain believes that further U.S. military aid should be given in the form of modern weapons and that it should be free.

The U.S. position, according to these reports, is that further modernization of Spanish armed forces should be Spanish expense.

Terms of the Agreement
Under terms of the agreement, negotiations for renewal may continue six months after the expiration date and if no agreement is possible then the bases should be vacated by the end of the year.

No one expects this to happen.

Although Spain is known to believe she should have membership in NATO, Spanish officials deny vehemently that NATO membership also is a condition of further use of the bases.

This correspondent, who arrived in Spain as a guest aboard an inaugural flight of Iberian Air lines, has spent the better part of a week talking to Spanish officials and diplomats in Madrid, San Sebastian and La Coruna, where Franco held his last cabinet meeting.

Policy Outlined

From these conversations, other facets of Spanish foreign policy may be thumbnailed thusly:

Spain has applied for associate membership in the European Common Market and regrets the coolness which has developed between Britain and France as result of the French veto of Britain's application for full membership in the organization.

Spain knows she is not yet ready for full membership in the organization and meanwhile will await the direction Europe is to take.

Officially, Spain has done no more than keep herself informed on Portuguese difficulties in Angola and other areas of Portuguese Africa.

The two nations are, however, on divergent courses. Spain already is talking autonomy with Spanish Guinea and announced it at almost the same moment Portugal was proclaiming its firm determination to retain its African provinces.

Mrs. Elbert Walker Entertains During First Horace Mann Meet

Members of the Horace Mann Parent-Teachers Association met recently in the school auditorium for the first meeting of the new school year with Mrs. Elbert Walker, speech therapist, active civic worker, and teacher, giving the program, "Teach Him Gently, If You Can", an account of a mother's feelings at sending her child to school for the first time.

Mrs. Earl O'Neal, president, led the opening prayer, followed by the singing of "America", and group singing of "America". Mrs. Foster Whaley, vice-president, presented the speaker, Mrs. James Lewis who is state budget and finance chairman. She gave a brief discussion on the manner in which PTA dues from local units are used on the State level. She urged members to take advantage of the study courses that are offered PTA members, and stated that, in her opinion, there should be a closeness between home, school and the church to make well-adjusted children and adults.

NEW WAY TO BE SUDDENLY SLIM

Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look better? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight, then this idea is not for you. If your weight problem falls within this range, then you can realize a new, smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.

Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of solution fibers. One startling innovation is the sheer nylon front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A featherstitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem. The girdle itself is of a "wonder" Lycra spandex blend. It's a new power net consisting of nylon, acetate and spandex. It feels like nothing on but has such slimming strength, it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.

Dear Abby... Fight Fire With Fire, End Up Burned Up!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR-ABBY: I know what THINNER AND Madder is going through. I lost 45 pounds in the last six months and I feel better and look younger and prettier for it. Everyone I know tells me how great I look — except one person. She insists that I don't look like myself, and that she preferred the old fat me! Incidentally, her husband is one of those who complimented me. Well, this woman who preferred the old fat me recently got contact lenses, so when I saw her, I told her she didn't look like herself and that I preferred the "old bespectacled her!" She got the message and now she isn't speaking to me any more. I don't feel that I've lost a friend — I just showed her up for the jealous cat she was.

THIN AND HAPPY. DEAR THIN AND HAPPY: If you wanted the last laugh, you got it, but people who fight fire with fire eventually make ashes of themselves.

DEAR-ABBY: I am almost 16 years old and have been wanting a private telephone in my bedroom ever since I was 12. My mother keeps using the excuse that she doesn't have the money. Well, my boy friend told me that he would put the telephone in my room as a gift, and that he would also pay my telephone bill every month. Now my mother says that I still can't have it, but she won't give me a reason. Do you think that's fair? What can I do about it?

WANTS A PHONE. DEAR WANTS: There is more than a telephone involved here. Tell your boy friend you appreciate his generosity, but you aren't allowed to accept such costly gifts.

DEAR-ABBY: What is the right thing to do in this situation? We had planned for over a month to put supper together at a friend's house on a certain evening. That evening arrives, you are ready to go — the food you are taking is ready, and the friends expect you in half an hour. Then your husband's mother and father walk in unexpectedly with an aunt and uncle. They stay and stay. Finally you sneak away from them for a minute and phone your friend and say, "We can't come and I'll tell you why later, goodbye." The next day I phoned my friend and explained why we couldn't come. She said that was no excuse and she was PEEVED like I've never known her to be. Did she have a right to be peeved?

DEAR STUCK: YES! You should have greeted your unexpected callers with the regret that they had not telephoned first as you were on your way out to a planned get-together, then taken your food (the hostess was no doubt counting on it) and departed!

What's on your mind? For a

Old College's 'New Look' Amazes, Pleases Alumni

By ALLAN PRIAULX
United Press International
HANOVER, N.H. (UPI)— Dartmouth College, founded in 1769 to "tame" the Indian, now is in the midst of a 20th century cultural explosion.
And the prime movers in the new project are proud of their success.
It's a certainty that a comeback-to-earth alumnus of founder Eleazar Wheelock's days wouldn't know the place today; it's also a good bet that a graduate of even a few years ago would be startled at the changes.
The college on the hill still is the haven of the traditionally husky athlete in his bulky green sweater and Dartmouth's prowess was proved last year by an undefeated football team. But returning alumni find today's Dartmouth man is of a different ilk, perhaps smarter.

The loyal alumni apparently approve, because they just gave a record $1,378,497 to the 1963 fund drive.
The most astounding change is that there are GIRLS studying on campus, at least for the summer. Nearly two centuries passed in which the only girls on campus were being escorted by a Big Green man.

Hopkins Center, a $10 million cultural show place virtually started the new burst of artistic and performing endeavor.

Dartmouth people point out the school always was active in these fields. But they admit there never was anything like the developments of the past few years.

The modernistic center, designed by New York architect Wallace Harrison and entirely unlike the traditional colonial campus, is perhaps the biggest all-purpose "cultural palace" under one roof anywhere.

Among other facilities, it has six art and sculpture galleries, seven art studios, two theaters, three music auditoriums and 28 large and small rehearsal rooms. There are even a soda shop and a ballroom.

Dartmouth turns away about three out of every four boys who apply and more and more of her students are going on to graduate work, a recognized "status symbol" among colleges.

A summer arts program initiated this year and called by some the epitome of Dartmouth's "new look" has kept the Hopkins Center bustling with 12 symphony and chamber concerts and continuing performances of three repertory plays ranging from Shakespeare to Shaw.

"It's surprising and more than marvelous," said center director Warner Bentley in a recent interview.

"We were taking a chance by refusing to present 'light' music and 'John Loves Mary' type drama during the summer. And although we had about half-houses at first, we're now playing to full houses."

Bentley imported Broadway performers John Tanner, Claude Harz, Carol Teitel and Nancy Cole as the nucleus of the repertory group. He recruited some top summer stock and off-Broadway actors for supporting roles.

Hanover area residents are as pleased as most of the students, the college reports. And the alumni appears more than satisfied, judging from their financial response.

"It's an unusual feeling to see some big football player working in a sculpture studio," said one returning alumnus, "but it's a warm feeling too and I wish we'd had the same thing when I was here."

THIS IS AUDREY?—Yes, indeed. It's Audrey Hepburn, costumed for role of Eliza Doolittle in "My Fair Lady," now filming. Costarring: Rex Harrison, as Prof. Henry Higgins.

Phillips Hawks Small, But Tough Aggregation

By LEO DROMGOOLE
PHILLIPS (Sp1) — The little but proud Phillips Blackhawks will probably better last season's 4-5-1 record by a game or two and with a little luck are destined for a much better ranking come time to hand out district 1-AAA standings.

Coach Joe Means' crew is small in size, again, but has a lot of agility and enough speed and up-take to make them tougher than they look at first glance.

Opening workouts gave rise to some hope for the improved season and barring further injury, the young Blackhawks should stand at an even 500 by the time they tackle Frederick, Okla., on Sept. 28 in the homecoming clash.

Shamrock, whose Irish fell to the '62 Hawks by a 28-0 score were a little tougher this year but the Means crew handled them capably, if not too easily.

Frederick, Okla., is untried in so far as area schools are concerned by posing no great threat at this juncture. They will be the first opponent to invade Blackhawk sod this year.

Canyon, the always tricky and always formidable foe could slip up with a going machine, but from this point it is a toss up and perhaps leans to the Phillips side of the fence.

Elk City, Okla., bowed to the Hawks last year by a 20-8 margin and doesn't look any stronger than they did in 1962.

Then, here comes the district race with Hereford, a pushover opening week for Tulia who seems sure to bow again to the Blackhawks in an Oct. 25 tussle in Hereford.

Levelland, which tied Phillips in last year's round are again facing much the same problems as faces the Hawk aggregation so here again, Lady Luck will have to take a hand.

Perryton, who handily won their opener, is again one of those clubs that can move at will when the mood strikes them. The Hawks need some more help here.

Dumas, the AAA state champion of 1962 and 1961 seem destined to take the district again this trip. There is little to say here since the pride of the Hawks probably won't give them the necessary push to overcome insurmountable odds. One thing for sure however, it doesn't look like anything like last year's 40-2 episode in Blackhawk stadium.

We'd shave a couple or three touchdowns off that margin and should give Means' team a good chance of scaring old Billy out of the Demons.

Littlefield, the season curtain for the Blackhawks, looks like a tough one again. It will be a good ball game and the Hawks are tougher than they look and can sail this one away, if opinions this early mean anything in high school grid predictions.

The team attitude at Blackhawk land is good again this year and added experience which came with the opening of drills this year, the team looks better. It is apparently better balanced.

Richard Reneau a big boy with a lot of heart is lost to the Hawks for at least another week because of a reinjured knee.

This will hurt, but Means said this week that "the kids are going to have to go both ways. They'll have to dig deep."

"We've got some good kids and they are ready to play. Most of those who aren't ready will come around—I hope in time," the head mentor said.

Workouts standouts the past week have included Bill Killian, who appears to be among the more dependable linemen. He's almost sure to have a tackle-guard slot nailed down.

Mike Webb, fullback is moving with good speed and hitting 'em hard out of the fullback slot and should see a lot of action both this week and for the rest of the season.

Lynn Johnson at halfback is another smooth operator in drills, and Bob Wakefield, a guard, is real sharp in workout pads.

The youngsters are pushing the veterans too, which puts a lot in the Blackhawk's favor.

Means noted today that the team is not as much in manpower as it has been in some previous years and as he put it, "Some of the boys just don't want to pay the price to play. We'd rather they quit during drills than on the playing field when the chips are down."

But, the coach, while worried over his team's chances is at the same time giving the Hawks an even chance at that improved record.

"There's lots of work to be done, but we'll get it done," was his comment.

The Hawks may not be a big threat, but they are capable of giving any eleven a run for the money with a balanced offense and a good looking defensive unit which grows stronger every day.

HARVESTER OF THE WEEK — Donnie Rexroad was named the "Harvester of the Week" at today's Jaycee luncheon. Big "Number 63" was outstanding in leading Pampa blocking against Wichita Falls from his pulling guard spot, while the 185-pounder made six unassisted tackles despite being double-teamed on every play. ### Sporting Sidelines

by JEFF COHANE

INTERESTING CONVERSATIONS telephone-wise with Putt-Putt Powell, the poison pen of Amarillo, and Leo Dromgoole, the drummer-boy of Borger, produced some printable information.

Putt-Putt wanted to know how our down in Pampa way didn't like him... whatever had he done? Explaining that every slam at Pampa was taken personally, Putt exclaimed that that was not an adult way to look at it. Wonder if drooling over the Amarillo-Sandies of 1925 instead of the football teams of 1963 (of course, when one considers what happened to the '63 Sandies in their opening game, maybe it IS better to reminisce about the Sandies of 1893 or 1777 or something) is an adult attitude? Also sniping at anything concerning Pampa just because it is Pampa is not what would win medals from Dr. Freud.

★ THE DRUMMER BOY ★ was seeking leading remarks for a column and was provided one by the statement that after their win over San Angelo, the Bulldogs must be considered the team to beat in District 3-AAAA. Asked where the conclusion came, the obvious reply that it was due to a 14-2 victory over the team rated as best in the state blew off a long drum-roll.

The Lip said, quote, that he could name 20 teams in the state that could beat San Angelo, that the Bobcats were not tough in the least, etc., etc. (Greatest case of poor-mouthing since Dinnie Goode said Lefors couldn't beat Groom).

Another opinion ventured was that the winner of the Borger-Dumas game could well provide a possible state champion, upon which Mr. D said that it would be Dumas, which would beat Borger by at least 12 points. This was too good to pass up, maybe some lost milkshakes can be recouped.

Dromgoole also reported that the Phillips Blackhawks had looked very impressive in their opener against Shamrock, and were definitely going to be no pushover for Pampa Friday night.

ates should come out and watch the game films at tonight's Quarterback Club meeting. For the first three quarters, the Harvesters played the Coyotes on completely even terms, despite the almost irresistible Alexander, who had to be gang-tackled to be brought down, and still would fall forward for two or three more yards after being hit. Best power back we've seen except Charles Wilson of Port Arthur. It was sheer size, weight and depth that finally wore the Harvesters down... and it was a great Wichita Falls team. Pampa fans have nothing to be ashamed of... and plenty to look forward to.

Bishop-Ingleside Top Class AA Tilt

By United Press International
 Bishop and Ingleside, two of the better clubs in their respective classes, collide at Ingleside this week in the feature game involving Class AA Texas schoolboy football teams.

Bishop has played touted Sinton to a 4-4 tie and whipped Taft 28-0 to establish itself as a factor to be reckoned with in the AA ranks. Ingleside, a state finalist in Class A last year, has whitewashed a pair of AA foes already, Rockport 13-0 and Gregory-Portland 30-0.

Another feature is far away to the north in the lower Panhandle where point-a-minute Dalhart invades Canyon in a battle of unbeaten teams.

And, Anson, also a two-time victor, travels to Albany to provide a rugged test for the pre-season Class A title favored Lions. Anson is in the same powerful district with such talented teams as Haskell, Hamlin, Baling, Winters and Stamford.

Haskell meets AAA Burk Burnett in a headliner and Winters meets high-scoring Brady, but Baling is idle and Stamford plays weak Seymour. Hamlin faces Spur in a Saturday game.

Decatur, averaging 37 points a game, moves up against AAA opposition this week in Diamond Hill, while Katy, averaging 44 points, drops down to Class A ranks to meet dangerous Waller.

Roger Maris Series Doubt

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roger Maris may be through for the season and there is even some question whether he will be ready to play in the World Series.

The injury-plagued 29-year-old rightfielder for the New York Yankees left the club and returned here Monday for further examination of a back condition.

Dr. Sidney Gaynor, the Yankees' team physician, will examine Maris at Lenox Hill Hospital and may order him to remain in the hospital for observation.

"Maris has a sacroiliac condition and he's in real pain," said Yankee manager Ralph Houk. "I have no idea when he'll be ready to play."

Card Streak Snapped, Dodgers Up Lead To 2

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — It's beginning to look like the elated Los Angeles Dodgers won't have to wait until next year because they won "the big one" despite a boner that rarely even is seen on the sandlots.

They not only survived that "rock" Monday night, but increased their shriveled National League lead to two games by snapping the St. Louis Cardinals' 10-game winning streak with a 3-1 victory.

The setback for the Cardinals was only their second in 21 games, and even ultra-conservative Walt Alton conceded "things look a little better."

"One game better, anyway," he hedged, smilingly.

It was the first time the Dodgers manager had smiled in days and he had ample reason after southpaw Johnny Podres and Ron Perranoski collaborated in a three-hitter.

Podres, who pitched perfect ball for 5-13 innings and was credited with his 14th victory, was the hero beyond any doubt in the victory, and his battery-mate, catcher John Roseboro, nearly wound up the goat.

Connects For Triple

Roseboro, whose three passed balls figured prominently in a 6-1 loss by the Dodgers at the hands of the Phillies last Sunday, connected for what appeared to be a triple off Cardinal starter Ernie Broglio in the second inning.

Roseboro's blow hit the right field screen and barely missed being a home run. The Dodger catcher made it all the way to third and was dusting himself off when four Cardinal pitchers, sitting in the St. Louis dugout, frantically began waving to Broglio, urging him to throw the ball to second base.

Shortstop Dick Groat didn't know what it was all about either but he finally took Broglio's throw and tagged second.

The Cards then appealed to the umpires, insisting that Roseboro had neglected to touch second. First base umpire Ed Sudol agreed and declared the Dodger catcher out.

After the game, Roseboro admitted he hadn't touched second.

Musial Hits Homer

Tommy Davis singled home the first run of the game in the sixth inning, and Stan (The Man) Musial tied the score in the seventh with his 12th homer of the season and 475th of his career.

Musial's wallop stirred the capacity crowd of 32,442 at Busch Stadium into a near frenzy, but hopes for a Cardinal victory were short-lived because the Dodgers cracked through with two runs in the ninth.

Little Bobby Shantz took over the pitching for the Cards in the ninth after Broglio had yielded for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

Ron Fairly hit Shantz' second pitch off the right field screen for a double and after Roseboro struck out, Willie Davis singled to score Fairly with the winning run. The Dodgers added an insurance run when second baseman Julian Javier threw wildly to second on a double play ball hit by Moose Skowron, pinch hitting for Podres.

Thrashers Kick Off Season Saturday

The Pampa "Thrashers" will inaugurate the first C team season in the history of Pampa football Saturday morning when they play the Clarendon B team at Clarendon.

With the largest number of candidates in history out for the varsity and Shocker squads, coach Otis Holladay and his staff set up the C team in order to give all the boys a chance to play.

"It will give more boys a chance to play," said Holladay, "and also give the coaches a chance to get a second look at some of our younger players. Boys doing well on the Thrashers will have a good chance to see varsity action later on."

The probable starting lineup will be: Right end—David Camp

The rest of the team will be made up of non-seniors who do not see varsity action against Phillips Friday night, and Shockers who do not play against Borger Thursday night.

Hurricane Upsets SWC Work Plans

By United Press International
 Hurricane Cindy threatened today to throw a monkey wrench into workout plans of some Southwest Conference coaches.

Coach Jess Neely of Rice put his squad through an earlier than usual workout Monday to beat the rains. Practice began at 3 p.m., and the Owls suffered two minor casualties. Tailback Gene Fleming broke a blood vessel in his leg and end Dave Oden pulled a leg muscle.

The Owls are idle this week-end.

Rains Hamper Practice
 Rains are expected to reach as far inland as College Station, Waco and Austin.

Texas plays Tulane Friday night in New Orleans and any delay in workouts would hurt the Longhorns. Coach Darrell Royal said Monday that Jim Hudson, a junior letterman from La Feria, has a sore knee and may not start against the Green Wave. The Longhorns ran through a light no-contact drill.

Best Leg Forward

The American Automobile Association has come up with what it apparently regards as a new reason for girl watching—or at least leg looking.

Automobile headlights, says the AAA solemnly, pick up the stockings or bare legs of women pedestrians at night, and thus help drivers to prevent accidents.

We have one more nagging thought about this matter. You don't suppose, do you, that some smoothie at AAA put out that news release with the thought in mind that it just might grab off some mention of AAA in the papers?

Well, we've got news for him. Nobody is going to fall for a corny trick like that. In this day of moonshots and big thinking, who cares about a girl's legs?

Except possibly 100,000,000 or so men up to the age of 104.

Meals A La Front Porch

In our constant endeavor to point out the changing aspects of life in America, the spotlight should now move to:

Meals on the Front Stoop. For, you see, in addition to food coming to the dining room from the kitchen, it is now moving into an increasing number of homes through the front door.

In Houston, Texas, for example, 150 families have five-course meals delivered at dinner time six days a week.

In Miami, Fla., there are two firms which cater individual meals at the home. Each attends the needs of 2,000 families daily. It is especially popular in this city, due to Cuban refugees who were familiar with such a service, popular back home.

Dew On The Mountains

For those who bemoan the passing of so-called rugged individualism in America and lament what they regard as sheeplike submission to daily tax shearing by local, state and federal governments, there may be encouraging news in the Treasury Department's report on how its war against the moonshiners went in fiscal 1963.

A total of 3,092,000 gallons of illegal liquor or mash was seized between July 1, 1962, and June 30, 1963. This was a decline of almost 10 per cent from fiscal 1962, indicating there were fewer illegal operators. But 3,000,000 gallons is still a respectable figure (if you can call it that).

More than 8,500 persons were arrested in the one year for federal liquor law violations, 2,400 vehicles were seized and more than 6,200 stills destroyed. Property was confiscated to the tune of $2 million-plus.

Convicted violators are now serving jail sentences of three, four or five years, but there seems to be no lack of volunteers to take their places.

Every year since George Washington sent the militia into Pennsylvania to enforce the first liquor tax against the farmers, the story of moonshiner vs. "revenuer" has been repeated until it is a part of American folklore.

If you want, you might look upon it as proof of man's natural-born, plain cussed resistance to taxation — or to laws.

Lives Of Usefulness

Department of Agriculture has come up with some longevity figures for household appliances which will interest many people — and probably make some of them mad and others feel superior.

With normal use, washing machines should last 11 years; electric sewing machines, 24 years; vacuum cleaners, 15 to 18 years; toasters, 11 years; refrigerators, 16 years; and television sets, 11 years.

By that time, most of them should be paid for.

Pull Up A Chair

By Frank J. Markay

The U. S. Post Office handles more than 70 billion letters and packages annually, takes in $4 billion and employs 600,000 men and women in its 35,000 postal offices. The volume of mail is constantly mounting and experts say automation on a huge scale must be introduced as rapidly as possible because soon human hands alone will be inadequate to move the mountains of postal traffic.

Another harbinger of automation is the fact the Japanese have designed a tanker with a crew of 31 men, half the normal complement. The 29,000-ton vessel is 810 feet long and 102 wide. The 31 men will be distributed as follows: 14 on deck, 10 in the engine room, and 7 in the galley.

Since the early days of radio broadcasting, the telephone industry has helped bring entertainment into American homes. Telephone lines were first brought together in a network in the mid-20's so that radio stations could broadcast the same program. Now the phone companies provide channels for TV. Last year they maintained more than 90,000 channel miles of TV network serving 500 stations in 320 U. S. cities.

Country Editor speaking: "Life is like shopping in a supermarket. Just when you think you've got everything in the bag, the bag breaks." Joe Mansfield, United Artists' publicist, tells us we'll enjoy the new film, "For Those Who Think Young", simply because the cast includes three of our favorite screen veterans, Allen Jenkins, Robert Armstrong, and Jack LaRue. We look forward to seeing this one.

An indication of how automation is spreading is shown by the International Business Machine balance sheets: First-quarter sales this year totalled $486,657,085 as against $453,226,278 in 1962's same period.

Here's another example: machines have displaced 14,000 out of 17,000 clerical workers in the U. S. Veterans Administration.

Memory Lane: Remember when everyone listened from 8 to 9 on Thursday evenings to Rudy Vallee's Variety Show on radio? Rudy is still one of the "hottest" names in show-business, and has made "How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying" the best show on Broadway for the past two years. A real champ.

The first swimming school in the U. S. opened in Boston in 1827. Vincent Lopez, who took a three-month booking for his orchestra at Manhattan's Hotel Taft in 1940, has remained there for 23 years. Must be a record for a single engagement on Broadway.

The paper industry will produce 38 million tons this year, according to the U. S. Dept. of Commerce, an increase over the past two years.

Two presidents, James A. Garfield and Harry Truman, were born left-handed, but both became ambidextrous. We never knew "til now that a group of Canadian businessmen wanted the U. S. to annex Canada in 1849, but no one in Washington was interested. Too bad.

Uncle Sam is going to supply surplus turkeys for junior's school lunch program. More peanut butter sandwiches, Mom. Most folks believe sunlight and heat make tomatoes ripen, but research studies at Cornell University show warm days and cool nights are best in developing the red color.

American consumers owe $50-billion, with nearly half tied up in auto loans.

Today's smile: We know a father who had a 50-foot extension cord put on his phone this summer so his teen-age daughter would stay outdoors more.

After the story appeared, the Atomic Energy Commission confirmed that an explosion in Russia had been detected, but their terse announcement downgraded the discovery by claiming that there was no evidence to pin-point the blast as being a nuclear explosion.

Two of the three explosions recorded by the U.S. detection instruments occurred on June 12, just two days after President Kennedy gave his American University speech stating that the U.S. would not test again in the atmosphere so long as Russia did not do so.

The third Soviet nuclear test occurred in July while Under Secretary of State Averell Harriman was in Moscow negotiating the partial test ban accord now before the Senate. All three explosions were in the kiloton range. A kiloton is the explosive equivalent of 1,000 tons of TNT.

According to nuclear experts who analyzed the tests, their findings show that the Russians are

3 Soviet Atmospheric Nuclear Tests Confirmed; Recorded Before and During Moscow Talks on Ban

WASHINGTON — U.S. nuclear scientists have confirmed that three explosions detected in the Soviet Union in June and July are definitely nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

Their analysis of radioactive debris recovered from the blasts supports earlier acoustic, or sound, signals from the explosions that resembled those from other nuclear shots.

U.S. air patrols, watching closely for radioactive clouds, collected the tell-tale debris but in amounts considerably smaller than those recovered from previous Soviet tests.

This new finding, along with other intelligence data, has convinced these scientists that the Russians tested a new type of "clean" weapon, probably a warhead for their anti-missile missile, in these unannounced experiments.

The size and exact location for the explosions have been calculated but this sensitive information cannot be published, since the details would give the Russians information on our detection methods.

Although the Atomic Energy Commission is withholding its announcement of these findings, the explosive information is now in the hands of Senators who plan to reveal the startling news before the Senate votes on the nuclear test ban treaty later this week.

What effect this disclosure of secret Soviet nuclear testing will have on the final Senate vote is conjectural. The best guess is that it will swing a few of the "uncommitted" senators against the treaty, but not block ratification.

THE INSIDE STORY—The first public disclosure that the U.S. had detected an explosion in the Soviet Union that looked suspiciously like a nuclear test was published by the Washington Star on June 30.

The newspaper's information came from a highly reliable government official who was deeply disturbed over a White House order suppressing the information so as not to upset the test ban negotiations which Soviet Premier Khrushchev had just secretly agreed to.

After the story appeared, the Atomic Energy Commission confirmed that an explosion in Russia had been detected, but their terse announcement downgraded the discovery by claiming that there was no evidence to pin-point the blast as being a nuclear explosion.

Two of the three explosions recorded by the U.S. detection instruments occurred on June 12, just two days after President Kennedy gave his American University speech stating that the U.S. would not test again in the atmosphere so long as Russia did not do so.

The third Soviet nuclear test occurred in July while Under Secretary of State Averell Harriman was in Moscow negotiating the partial test ban accord now before the Senate. All three explosions were in the kiloton range. A kiloton is the explosive equivalent of 1,000 tons of TNT.

According to nuclear experts who analyzed the tests, their findings show that the Russians are near the development of a "clean" nuclear weapon that will be undetectable by the U.S. even when fired in the atmosphere. Several U.S. military-intelligence experts believe that this may now be the case.

TEST BAN FALLOUT—The debate over the nuclear test ban treaty isn't helping to improve the strained relations that now exist between some members of the Senate.

Senate Russell Long, D-La., on the outs with leaders of his party in the Senate, took advantage of the debate to huddle Senate Democratic Whip Hubert Humphrey, Minn., about his recent trip to Russia.

Constantly interrupting Senator Humphrey during his speech in support of the treaty, Senator Long startled the Minnesota Democrat by inquiring:

"I should like to ask the senator a question about his trip to Gorky Park and his discussion of the treaty with Russians. Was that female blonde interpreter a Russian or an American?"

"She is the wife of an American political officer at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow," replied Senator Humphrey.

"I am happy to hear that," said Senator Long. "My general impression is that the senator with her help obtained more publicity out of his connection with Mr. Khrushchev than anyone else in the American government. Can my friend name anyone in American history who has ever had more publicity... from his connection with the Russians, and Mr. Khrushchev in particular, than the senator from Minnesota?"

"I have never tried to keep an accurate record of press clippings," Senator Humphrey retorted. "But I have one unique distinction. The Premier of the Soviet Union at one of the Communist party conclaves took time out to denounce me as a vicious anti-Communist. I feel that my trip was worthwhile."

"I say to the senator, the Russians like you and they don't like me," needed Long. "A man from the Russian embassy came to see me last week. What he had to say was parallel to what the senator has been saying in his speech. Those fellows have given the senator from Minnesota a billion dollars' worth of publicity. They have given the senator more than anybody else on earth has received."

At this point Senator John Sparkman, D-Ala., a friend of both senators, interrupted the exchange, when he noticed that Senator Humphrey's face was becoming red with anger. Another Democratic senator took Senator Long by the arm and led him from the floor.

A thought for the day — former American President Dwight Eisenhower said: "In the final choice a soldier's pack is not so heavy a burden as a prisoner's chains."

WHAT HAPPENED TO US?
By Raymond C. Baker
American Way Features
Correspondent

America's economy is operating at a staggering $583 billion, with economists forecasting a continuing increase through 1964 of $50 billion for a gross national product of $633 billion.

This is all to the good for people who are living in want and fear during last year's business stalemate — and even better for politicians who will stand for re-election in 1964.

But the all-important questions are: How solid is the foundation on which the current boom is built? How long will it last?

There are sound reasons for these questions. For instance, the stock market, a sensitive barometer, has failed to move upward at the same pace as the business rise. Can it be that investors see flaws not generally apparent?

Moreover, President Kennedy still wants a deep slash in taxes, but for a different reason. In January he asked for a cut to ward off a recession. Now he wants it to give the rising economy a harder push upward. At the same time, he wants to continue spending at a rate $7 to $9 billion greater than the amount of money the government will collect in taxes. Can it be that the Administration also is aware of business weaknesses?

Headed For Trouble
If the nation is in a true business boom; then neither the stock market reaction nor the Administration's fiscal policies make any sense.

Perhaps a former German immigrant, now an important American industrialist, knows the answer when he predicts that our economy is headed for serious trouble, not in 1964, but in 1970.

Herman Menck left his native Hamburg as a young engineer with a flair for industrial production. Now, as vice president in charge of foreign operations of an important employer, the Harnischfeger Corporation of Milwaukee, Mr. Menck is well-informed on the relationship of America's heavy machinery industry to world markets.

In his opinion, by 1970 the nation will be faced with the full, disastrous effects of a laggard national policy on plant modernization.

"This is America's biggest industrial problem," he states unequivocally, "one that should be corrected before more business is lost to foreign competitors who have better plants than ours."

Stumbling Block
He says foreigners do not have better plants through greater knowledge or more advanced technology, but because American policy on depreciation taxes away part of profits that should be going into new plants and new jobs.

"When a manufacturer in Hamburg can depreciate his plant in seven years and one in the United States must take 22 years," he points out, "a situation is created which has an inevitable impact on competition of the two. Germany has allowed the Hamburg firm to use its earnings to replace its plant after seven years. In this country the process takes three times as long."

The American Economic Foundation feels that the problem goes even deeper, since depreciation of the tools of production must be limited to original and not replacement costs.

Landis Tax Case Brings Enforcement Scrutiny

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Echoes are still bouncing around on the 30-day imprisonment of former Harvard Law School dean James M. Landis for failure to file income tax returns for five years.

Tax experts recognize there is an important moral principle here, as well as a legal question. The successful functioning of the American voluntary income tax assessment system is based on the assurance of people who do pay their taxes that those who evade payment are forced to pay up and given just punishment.

Landis' excuse for not filing returns from 1956 through 1960, when he had average income of over $70,000 a year, was that he was so busy with his clients' business he didn't have time to take care of his own. Also, it was brought out in court that he was under psychiatric treatment.

When formal charges were filed against the former high government official, he admitted guilt, paid up $94,000 in back taxes, penalty and interest due in full. So the government lost nothing in the long run.

In the light of this record, the question being discussed now is whether the sentence handed down by Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan in New York district court was fully justifiable, too heavy or not heavy enough? And is it comparable to sentences handed down to others found guilty in similar cases?

Internal Revenue Service enforcement officials say frankly they don't know whether the Landis decision has any precedents or not. They don't keep their records that way. Neither does the Department of Justice, which does the prosecuting. Nor do the courts keep records nationally.

Every case of delinquency, fraud or other evasion of federal tax liability taken to court is tried before one of 400 district judges. Circumstances and amounts involved in each case vary and so do the judges who hear them. There is no uniformity in the decisions they hand down, except those imposed by the limits of the law.

In 1961 Department of Justice recommended the first judicial seminar in Boulder, Colo. The purpose was to get judges, in closed sessions, to come to some agreement among themselves on sentences they hand down in various types of cases.

Obsolescent plant capacity forms a roadblock to an even more rapid economic growth than we are now experiencing despite benefits brought about by the 1962 changes in depreciation allowances and tax incentive policies, the AEF states. "It is important to remember that the recent rise in spending for new plant and machinery began when industry already was saddled with more than $95 billion of obsolescent plant capacity."

Thus the facts are: (1) the 1962 changes in depreciation were beneficial to the economy, creating jobs, spurring growth; (2) the huge backlog of obsolescence still burdens industry.

These reasons point to the need for completing the job of depreciation reform promised by the presidential candidates of both parties in 1960. If this essential overhaul is not finished promptly, then as Mr. Menck predicts for 1970—only six years hence — Americans will be asking:

"What happened to us?"

Any combination that interferes with every individual on the face of the earth, whether on a local, state, national or international level, retards human progress. Any combination of workers, employers or businessmen that interferes with individuals receiving information that will be helpful to them or interferes with them competing with others, is harmful and retards progress. It retards the well-being of mankind on this earth.

If we could get people to believe that all men must have an equal right to help create values, both spiritually and materially, we wouldn't have long periods of unemployment, almost continuous wars, ill will, hate, envy, and a gradual loss of our freedoms. When the government interferes in the lives of men by preventing them from making their own decisions or by making the decisions for them, this also interferes with all men having an equal right to help create values.

Temperature affects the development of color in cats, especially Siamese cats. In cold climates, the entire animal darkens more than normally. Siamese type of coloration is also found occasionally in rabbits and other animals, in which it is often known as "Himalayan."

With normal use, washing machines should last 11 years; electric sewing machines, 24 years; vacuum cleaners, 15 to 18 years; toasters, 11 years; refrigerators, 16 years; and television sets, 11 years.

By that time, most of them should be paid for.

VIET NAM: Land of the Long War

U.S. Army Ranger gives Vietnamese trainees pointers in use of bayonet in intensive program to counter Viet Cong guerrillas.

Moments before this photograph, a Communist terror bomb exploded at helicopter exhibit in Saigon, killing seven people.

Helmeted soldier, armed with a rifle, stands at a main intersection of Saigon as martial law reigns in the unhappy land.

Like France before it, America has found itself drawn deeper and deeper into the jungles of Viet Nam. U.S. military advice and $1 million a day in equipment and supplies have seriously hurt but failed to stop the Communist guerrillas, who are armed and directed by North Viet Nam. Besides the guerrillas, President Ngo Dinh Diem, hardly renowned as a champion of Western-style civil rights, has had to contend with popular resistance to his rule, military coups and outright Communist terrorism. Now, threatening to succeed in toppling the government where the Communists have failed, the nation's Buddhists, who make up the overwhelming majority of the population, are reacting against what they charge is unjust repression of their religion.

Spectacular suicides by Buddhists, sit-down strikes and student riots have aroused the sympathy of the world. The embattled Diem regime, apparently having won the first rounds of this new crisis, is currently forced to maintain nationwide martial law. The long war of the Vietnamese for freedom goes on.

Gettysburg Chat Gives Reporter Eisenhower's Current Moods, Manner

EDITORS' NOTE — Merriman Smith, who has reported the activities of four presidents for UPI, recently paid an informal visit to an old friend and news subject, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. They chatted for about two hours in Eisenhower's Gettysburg office. No notes were made, no records kept, but here is Smith's report on Eisenhower's current mood and manner.

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter
GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UPI)—It was more of a friendly chat than an interview. We compared notes on children and grandchildren, on aches and pains, trends in presidential news conferences, reading tastes and the 1964 political outlook. After about two hours, I asked him how he would describe our conversation.

"Just say you dropped in for a talk with the old farmer," replied former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower will be 73 years old next Oct. 14. He seems a bit heavier than when he left office in 1961, particularly around the face and middle. This may be because he has not been getting as much exercise as he did.

Works On Review
His principal preoccupation these days is completion of the second volume of his massive review of eight years in the White House, plus occasional articles for a national magazine.

He keeps in close touch with politics, particularly those involving the GOP. But more and more, Eisenhower shies away from the role of chief party spokesman. He is convinced this is a job for promising new Republican leaders.

Sitting in his small, cheerful office on the second floor of a building at the edge of the Gettysburg college campus, Eisenhower seemed quite relaxed. It was 9 a.m. and he had been in his office for nearly an hour.

A visitor to Eisenhower's office punches a doorbell. The disembodied voice of Brig. Gen. Robert Schultz, military aide to the five-star general, asks the visitor's business through a small combination microphone-speaker embedded in a wall.

The locked door was opened by a buzzing contraption and moments later the visitor was escorted into Eisenhower's sunny office. The former president was studying the preliminary draft of a magazine article.

His first conversation, however, was about his grandchildren. David was en route to his second year at Exeter, but like, as the kids call their grandfather, was more talkative about their jobs this past summer. David worked in a college book binding plant; Anne was Mother Goose in a local amusement park pageant and Susie got a job as a restaurant helper.

Roars With Laughter
The general rocked with laughter as he described the levels of their wages. David, 15, made 75 cents an hour. Anne, 14, made only 15 cents an hour less. Susan, 11, received 50 cents an hour. The talk of his literary career led to discussion of the presidential news conferences — past and present. Eisenhower feels that television cameras and radio microphones have a strong and permanent right at such occasions.

Eisenhower shies away from saying anything that could be construed as direct, personal criticism of President Kennedy. But he recently told friends on an eastern newspaper who had inquired that he thought over-use of political or administration propaganda in a presidential news conference tended to tarnish the integrity of the event.

Television In Review

BY RICK DU BROW
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — ABC-TV Monday night unveiled the season premiere of its new 90-minute version of "Wagon Train," expanded from an hour in length, and the main difference is this:

In the old version, you could say, "They went thataway." In the new one, you have to say, "They... went... that... a... way."

Another ABC-TV debut Monday night was "The Breaking Point," for one hour each week of psychiatry dramas. How bad is "Breaking Point"? Let me count the ways. The premiere dealt with a cute kid who plays clarinet at church funerals and hates his father and suffers, I'm not much on the clarinet, but I can suffer, and I did. Like "The Eleventh Hour," the other psychiatry series, this is a tawdry, pretentious excuse for entertainment. If you enjoy watching others suffer, go to it, pal.

Leslie Stevens is a playwright who became a large success in New York with such shows as "Bullfight" and "Marriage-ground." Now he is trying to become a very large success in Hollywood. He has his own company, which is called Daystar. It not only produces, but takes surveys and has an international division (I only know what I read in the trade papers).

Last year, Mr. Stevens tested us with a series on ABC-TV called "Stoney-Burke," a Western with such a phony he-man approach that even the mass audience that was being catered to could spot it, and it is with us no more. Monday night, Mr. Stevens tested us again, with the debut of a weekly one-hour science-fiction anthology on ABC-TV called "The Outer Limits"; and if he only credited us with the same maturity and intelligence that he did in his New York plays he might have had a real dandy of an opener.

As executive producer, writer and director of the premiere, Stevens displayed everything he needed except trust and respect for his audience. He set the stage wonderfully for his weird story—about the operator of a small radio station who makes contact with a friendly, faceless being from outer space on a television monitor through microwave experiments. Cliff Robertson enacted the operator, and William O. Douglas, son of the Supreme Court justice of the same name, portrayed the galaxy being.

Writer Takes Look Backward

By DICK WEST
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — While thumbing through my files just now, I came upon a copy of an old speech by Under Secretary of Agriculture Charles S. Murphy. Not to seem boastful about it, but I have one of the largest collections of old speeches by under secretaries of agriculture in the Western Hemisphere.

What attracted me to Murphy's speech was his bold assertion that there are two fields in which virtually all Americans are experts. He listed them as quarterbacking a football team and solving the farm problem.

Actually, of course, there are three fields. Murphy neglected to mention that most of us also are expert casting directors.

I estimate that I spend approximately 25 per cent of my waking hours casting movies and plays. When I am asleep, the percentage is even higher.

Unexpected Thrill
I never read a novel without visualizing certain actors playing the parts of the main characters. And this week I got an unexpected thrill.

I made the acquaintance of Herbert Tarr, a New York rabbi who has written a novel titled "The Conversion of Chaplain Cohen." And he invited me to help him cast his book.

"The main female character is a girl who hates men," Tarr said. "I think I'll cast that one myself."

"Good," I said. "Whom do you see in the part?"

"Elizabeth Taylor," Tarr said. I must have had a funny look on my face because Tarr immediately went on the defensive, which is a fatal flaw in a casting director.

"You will have to admit it would be a challenging role for her," he said.
