Prison trial may take years to complete

HOUSTON (AP) — The first round is over for the nation's longest running prison trial in which the Texas Department of Corrections is accused of violating the civil rights of inmates, but both sides say the case may take years to finish.

The initial trial, which ran just two weeks short of a year long, ended Thursday with U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice ordering that all inmates who testified against the TDC be moved to federal prisons at their discretion.

It began Oct. 2, 1978, after Justice consolidated several suits filed by TDC inmates against the prison system alleging it violated their civil rights through brutality and poor housing, food and medical care.

Attorneys said it probably would be several months before Justice ruled in the case. But they all agreed his decision, no matter which side it favored, probably would reach the U.S. Supreme Court. David Vanderhoof, who was the head attorney for the Justice Department, said his agency intervened in the case after a study of conditions in the Texas prison system substantiated many of the inmates' allegations.

Vanderhoof, who called this case the longest civil rights ever conducted, said the Justice Department decided there was a "continual default by Texas officials with compliance of their own state laws and the dictates of decency and morality."

"People should not be treated as they are in the Texas prison system," he said.

The lead attorney on the state's defense team, Assistant Attorney General Ed Idar, said he was confident Texas would prevail on all issues once the appeals began.

"I am very concerned that what is considered a highly disciplined, well-organized prison system may yet be torn wide open by well-meaning people who, as the good Lord said, know not what they are doing," Idar said.

"May God forbid that TDC ever lose control of its institutions because it will be the inmates who will be the first to suffer at the hands of such inmates as David Ruiz, who would love to be in position to organize their own following," he said.

Ruiz was one of the inmates who filed the suit. Justice signed the order allowing the inmates who testified during the trial to choose whether they would stay in the TDC or transfer to a federal prison after Vanderhoof said the inmates faced retaliation from state prison officials.

The Justice Department attorney objected, but was overruled.

when five inmates who testified for the TDC were included in the order at Idar's request.

Idar said the state was concerned those inmates would face retaliation from other prisoners.

The trial covered 161 days of testimony from 349 witnesses, and included 1,530 exhibits from the state, the Justice Department and inmates.

During the trial, TDC Director W.J. Estelle admitted there were 1,000 inmates throughout the 15-unit prison system sleeping on the floors of their cells because of serious overcrowding. The TDC currently houses about 25,000 inmates.

Estelle said the overcrowding should be alleviated by April 1, however, following the completion of a new prison unit and the renovation of another.

Harvesters forfeit contest to Dumas

By GREG HARDIN
News Managing Editor

The Pampa High Harvesters were handed a stunning blow this morning when it was announced that their victory against Dumas last Friday night had been nullified.

Paul Payne, Pampa High School Principal, said the game will be considered a forfeit since Pampa played an ineligible player during the game.

"What happened is that we stuck in a player that was not supposed to play," Payne said in a telephone interview Friday morning. "We caught the mistake ourselves and reported the infraction."

Payne said the forfeit of the game will have no effect on the future contests Pampa has this year.

"We got the minimum penalty," Payne said. "If we had tried to stonewall the fact of using the player we could have been penalized a lot worse, but we didn't."

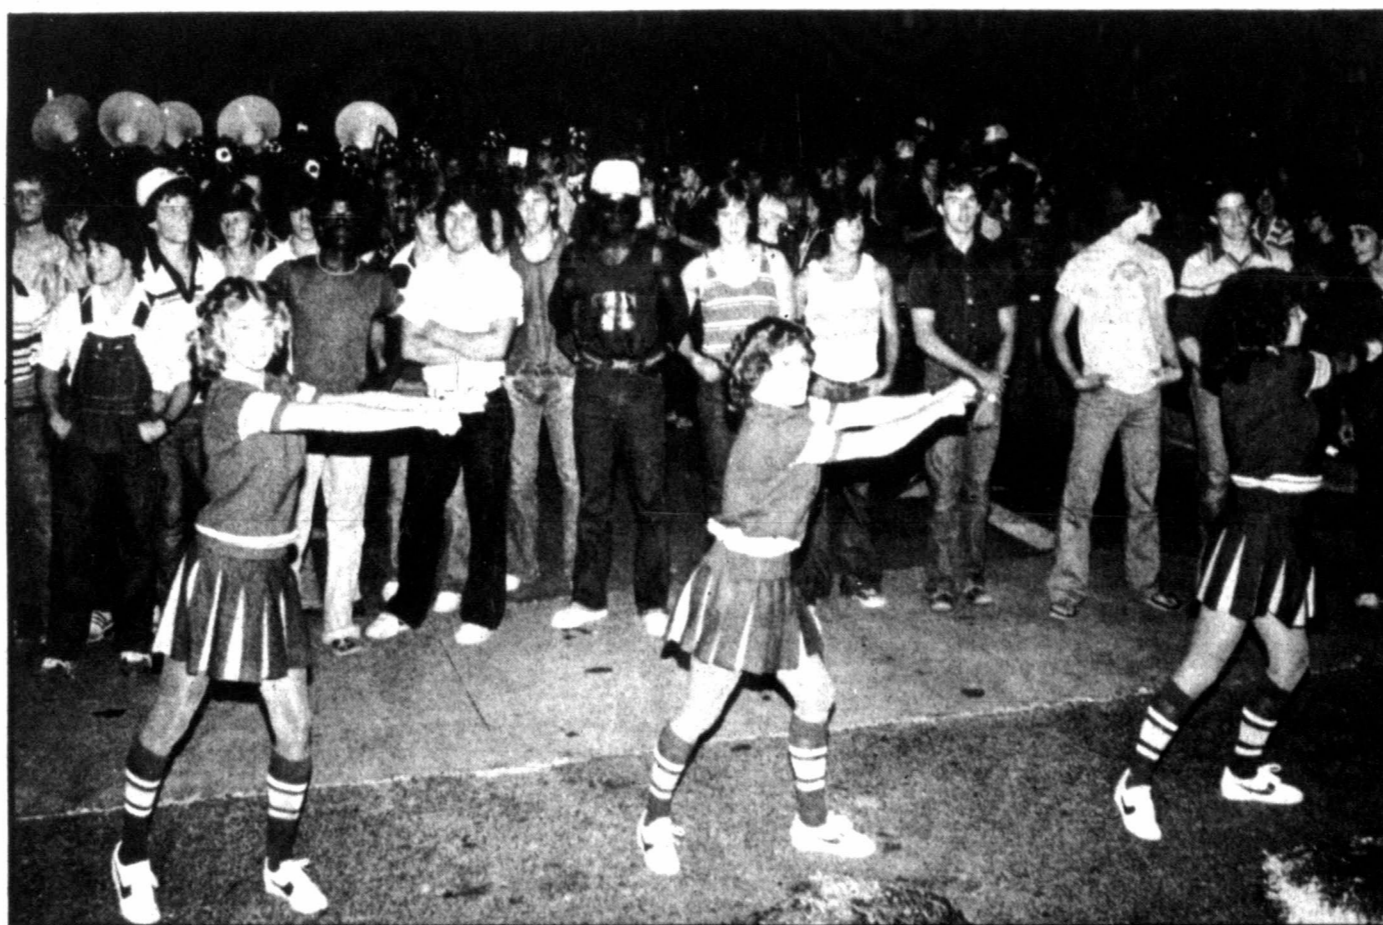

Payne explained that on paper the Harvesters record will stand as one and one. "If Dumas wants to consider the game a forfeit that is all right. We know we won it and that is all that counts."

The infraction came in the final quarter of the Dumas game when Head Coach Danny Palmer substituted a junior varsity player into the game who had played the night before in the junior varsity game.

Palmer said in an interview Saturday night that he had caught the infraction himself and was making plans to notify UIL of the infraction.

Athletic Director Ed Lehnich said that the violation was "just a technicality."

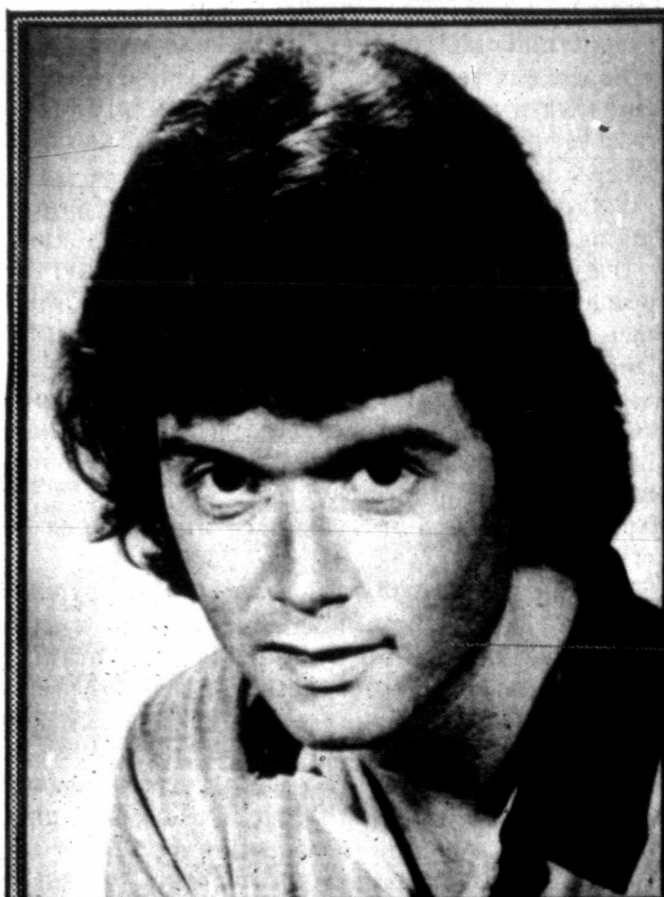

The Harvesters face the Altus Bulldogs tonight at home.

Photographer found slain

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas Morning News staff photographer found shot to death in his car in the parking lot of a hotel may have been the victim of a would-be robber, homicide investigators theorized late Thursday.

Larry Provart, 25, who had been sent to an assignment at the Loew's Anatole on Wednesday night, was found with a gunshot wound in the chest, police said.

Homicide inspectors speculated he may have been killed when he surprised a prowler at his car. The photographer's body was found Thursday afternoon slumped in the front seat with his hand near the microphone of his shortwave radio.

Police spokesman Bob Shaw said the photographer was sent to the hotel Wednesday night to take pictures of Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland and a civic leader receiving an award.

Landscapers who found the body said the doors of the car were shut, and there were no holes in the windows. A .25-caliber shell casing was found near the rear window, and officers theorized an automatic pistol was used.

Shaw said officers were not sure of the motive. It depends on whether he surprised somebody breaking into his car or someone breaking into someone else's car, Shaw said.

A member of a police detail assigned to Bergland said he saw Provart at about 7:15 p.m. Wednesday at a cocktail reception for Bergland, who was in town to give a speech.

Police said an assortment of camera equipment — including one camera slung around Provart's neck — was found in the car. A clip with money in it was found in his pockets. Officials said they did not find a wallet, but Provart might not have carried one.

Weather

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and cooler today and turning warmer Saturday. The high is expected in the mid 70s and the low in the lower 50s. Saturday's high will be in the low 80s. Winds will be northeasterly from 10 to 15 mph.

SEN. EDWARD KENNEDY, D-Mass., leaves his office on Capitol Hill Thursday accompanied by members of the U.S. Secret Service after President Carter ordered protection for the Senator by the agency.

(AP Laserphoto)

Threatened Kennedy under Secret Service protection

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, facing increased threats in the two weeks since he said he might challenge President Carter, is under Secret Service protection ordered by the president.

Neither White House aides nor Kennedy's staff would discuss whether the threats received by the senator's office had increased, but it was learned that the number was sharply higher since Kennedy disclosed he is considering running for president.

Dispatched by Carter, several agents appeared at Kennedy's office on the second floor of the Dirksen Senate Office Building shortly before 6 p.m. Thursday.

They accompanied the senator when he left his office about an hour later, heading down a stairwell and driving off in a three-car caravan.

Carter ordered the protection after receiving what the White House described as a Secret Service analysis of the senator's safety. There also were discussions between administration officials and members of Kennedy's staff.

"I have accepted President Carter's generous offer of Secret Service protection and my family and I deeply appreciate his action on this matter," Kennedy said in a statement issued by his office.

Asked about the Secret Service analysis and the conversations with the Kennedy staff, White House press secretary Jody Powell said, "I just really don't want to talk about that sort of thing very much."

A Kennedy spokesman acknowledged that the Massachusetts senator regularly receives threats and that an average of one a week is considered serious enough to be referred to authorities.

Tom Southwick, the Kennedy press aide, declined comment when asked whether there has been an increase in the number of threats since Kennedy disclosed Sept. 7 that he is considering challenging Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination.

However, a source who asked not to be identified said the number of threats received by Kennedy's office had increased sharply in the last two weeks.

Powell said the president was acting under authority given him in the Constitution rather than under any specific statutory power — an apparent reference to federal law which authorizes protection for presidential candidates.

That law was passed in 1968, after the assassination of Robert F. Kennedy, the senator's brother. Another brother, President John F. Kennedy, was assassinated in 1963.

In an interview Thursday with The New York Times, Kennedy said he expected to form an exploratory committee for a presidential campaign "sometime in early November." The Times said such action is usually the final step before a candidate formally announces candidacy.

Reporters were in Powell's office when he talked by telephone with Southwick.

"We're glad to do it," said Powell. "Tell them the most important thing to say about security is nothing."

Then Powell read the following announcement to reporters:

"The president, based on Secret Service reports and on conversations with the Treasury Department by members of Sen. Kennedy's staff, directed the Secretary of the Treasury to contact Sen. Kennedy and take whatever steps are necessary to provide for the senator's protection."

Powell indicated that similar protection could be given other potential presidential candidates.

Under federal law, presidential candidates become eligible for protection when they qualify for matching funds from the Federal Election Commission. Protection under those provisions would not begin before January.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Home on the range: the feds are coming

Historically, American cattlemen have been an independent, self-sufficient breed, in good times and in hard times, in fair weather and in storm. Traditionally, they have met their problems head-on and resolved them by themselves.

No one can scan the full field of American agriculture today and note that of all the phases of it, cattle production has seemed the most secure against governmental encroachment, so determinedly independent the cattlemen have been.

But now, this whole picture may change. Some in the industry are asking the government for a crutch.

One has seen the citrus people, the carrot people, the onion people, the grain people, the lettuce people, the tomato people, the melon people, the goat people, the filbert people, the sheep people, the cranberry people, the cotton people, and many other commodities people turn to the government for assistance in running their industries through marketing and or checkoff orders, but one has just simply felt it was un-American for a cowman to turn to Uncle Sam for anything. Cattlemen have been the symbol of American strength and resourcefulness, even in the darkest hours of the economy.

Now, somewhere down the road to this nation's total surrender to government's paternalism which can swiftly become cruel, oppressive and dictatorial, there is in the making a referendum for cattlemen to depart from their traditional American independence.

The referendum, which would be conducted by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (which handles many of the handout programs of the United States Department of Agriculture), if it comes about, will be held under the authority of the Beef Research and Information Act.

In it, beef producers may vote to authorize the federal government to withhold a fixed amount from each cattle sale to be used for research and promotional purposes.

Under an amendment to the act passed last year, the number of producers needed to approve such an order was reduced from two-thirds to a majority of producers in a referendum. This would mean the program would be effective without the permission of all the producers, just part of them, and that money could be taken from those opposing the program without their permission, by the government.

If a referendum is held and such a program is approved, the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service would be responsible for monitoring the program. Thus the federal bureaucracy would become more bloated.

If we recall correctly, a check-off program for cattlemen was acted upon in another referendum sometime ago and was defeated — because there was not a two-thirds majority. That would explain the recent amendment. The proponents apparently hope for at least a slight majority, and the amendment will assure the program's becoming effective, in that event.

Thus the last major stronghold of full freedom on the American agricultural front would surrender to the sweet song of the siren called Big Government, the true-grit John Wayne image so widely identified with this nation's cattle production will have faded into a faint and sickly picture of Caspar Milquetoast, and disappointed red-blooded Americans who still feel independent will look with hurt upon the cast-off cowboy boots covered with cobwebs while the bright sheen of the black-patent shoes of the federal bureaucrat blinds the old cattlemen to what he is giving up.

Do doves fly?

Hunting Season is upon us once again as those folks who live in the country can attest to. The pop pop of distant shotguns often grows to the roar of cannon when a particularly large flock of doves attempt to attack some group of hunters.

Mr. Buck Williams our local game protector has mentioned that he may have a class in bird identification for those hunters that can't seem to tell the difference between a dove, a quail or a turkey. Buck gave these brief definitions that he thought might aid the hunter: The dove is a small bird with a pointed tail that usually flies quite ways above the ground (you didn't know doves could fly?). Quail have a more square tail and fly close to the ground; and the turkey looks like a B-52 bomber compared to either the dove or quail. Buck also said if you have any trouble identifying what you have shot just bring it on by his home and he would be glad to help you. On the same note some of our area ranchers have mentioned that quite often hunters aren't observing the no hunting signs they have posted. Now guys and gals these ranchers have gone to a lot of trouble to check out these areas and have found nothing to hunt so they posted signs to tell you of this situation so you wouldn't spend a lot of time wandering around on this land when you could go someplace else where there was some hunting. Why not stop by the ranch house and ask where you might hunt. It just might make your hunt more enjoyable and possibly a whole lot less costly.

Oh Buck said to remind everyone that a steer doesn't look anything like a dove — everyone knows that don't they — don't they.

House wreckers

If the Chinese and Soviets wanted to start a dialogue on a subject with good prospects of finding common ground, they might consider a recent development in China.

According to fragmentary but apparently well-substantiated reports, fights between Chinese and foreign students have disturbed the academic calm at a number of educational institutions.

The clashes are revealing in several respects. The foreigners are for the most part from African countries. The fighting has been touched off by essentially trivial incidents, such as overloud radios. But complaints are that it has taken a racist turn, an overt expression of long-standing hostility toward the foreign students.

The clashes suggest that People's China has not shed the xenophobia that characterized its imperial predecessor. And they recall similar unpleasant incidents in the Soviet Union and its Eastern European satellites.

Moscow, with its Lumumba University as the primary showcase, continues to make much of educational opportunities offered to guest students from the less-developed countries. But the effort, according to Western analysts, is at best a propaganda draw. Once exposed to the socialist system and lifestyle, the guests are as likely to return home badmouthing as praising their hosts.

What all this may be demonstrating is that societies that live in glass ideological houses might be better off not having overnight visitors.

On praising the constitution

by Thomas G. West

Dr. West is Assistant Professor of Politics at the University of Dallas.

How should Americans celebrate their Constitution? Many academics, even those who are most firmly attached to our constitution, praise it with half a heart at best.

The excellence of the Constitution, in their minds, resides in the sobriety of its expectations from human nature. They like to quote the famous words of the "Father of the Constitution," James Madison, to illustrate the very practical foundation on which American government rests: "Ambition must be made to counteract ambition. The interest of the man must be connected with the constitutional rights of the place." These words of Madison are taken to mean that, the working principle of our limited, constitutional system of government is the mutual cancellation of self-interested passions. The low motives of politicians keep each other in check, and keep them from violating the people's rights to life and liberty.

Watergate is the inevitable example: Sam Ervin's petty courting of publicity elicits John Dean's cowardly attempt to save his own skin at Nixon's expense, and so the Republic is saved from the excesses of a supposed imperial president.

This sensible, though hardly noble, scheme is said to be in good measure responsible for the moderation of American political life, which stands in such stark contrast to the excesses of the other revolutionary regimes of this century. Such a system may well be choiceworthy, especially in light of the alternatives afforded today. But it is not likely to inspire enthusiasm, embodying as it does such a low view of human nature and such a prosaic vision of political life. Half-hearted praise is perhaps all that the Constitution of such a system would deserve.

Still, we cannot but object to this manner of praising the Constitution. We must object because it tells a half-truth at best, and the other half of the truth is far worthier of being heard.

When Abraham Lincoln praised the Constitution, he did so in much more elevated terms. He spoke of it as being inseparable from the Declaration of Independence and the noble principles proclaimed therein.

He expressed the relation of Declaration to Constitution in the lofty words of Proverbs 25:11: "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver." The principle of liberty for all which inspired the Revolution, said Lincoln, was "the word 'fitly spoken' which has proved an 'apple of gold' to us. The Union, and the Constitution, are the pictures of silver, subsequently framed around it. The picture was made, not to conceal, or destroy the apple, but to adorn and preserve it. In the words of one distinguished scholar, "according to Lincoln, the relation of the famous proposition (that all men are created equal) to the Constitution and Union corresponds to the relation of soul to body." The soul of the American regime is expressed in the Declaration's statement of the equality of all men and the consequent rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. And, we may add, like the human soul, the meaning of this statement is dark and difficult of access. The Constitution, in turn, being like our human body, suffers from the imperfections of earthly nature. The imperfections are evident in the compromises that had to be made, particularly those with slavery, in order to secure its adoption.

But we should not, on that account, feel contempt for that noble instrument. Nor should we fly like cowards to other-worldly ideals because human affairs in this world do not admit of the rule of pure reason and justice. Our experience in the things of the world teaches us that soul without body is as lifeless as body without soul: without a constitution, the Declaration would remain an impotent bauble.

What, then, is the meaning of this famous proposition enshrined in the Constitutional temple? "All men are created equal?"

Throughout the early nineteenth-century, in the course of a struggle between fanatical egalitarian abolitionists, on the one side, and Southern master-race theorists on the other, the Declaration of Independence was scrutinized with the greatest care. The master-scutinizer, Abraham Lincoln, saw that the Declaration could not be understood in terms of mere "self-interest." Justice to the enslaved blacks would not permit it. And if slavery were ever to become legitimated in the public mind, the people's fidelity to freedom would be endangered.

Democracy, or self-government in the political sense, presupposes moderation, or self-government in the moral sense, and so a due respect for the liberties of each is the only safety for the liberty of all. Yet Lincoln's devotion to the principles of equality did not lead him to indulge in the politically destructive fancies of the utopian abolitionists. He understood that their boundless hope for human perfection on earth—the achievement of the literal equality of each by the reign of reason in both public and private life—could only culminate in an angry, tyrannical imposition of the reformers' private convictions on the well-intentioned but always passionate body of the citizens.

Tyranny is the enslavement of some men by others, and it arises not only from governments based on the supposed inherent inferiority of one race to another, but also from the egalitarian attempt to liberate human nature once and for all from passion and prejudice. Lincoln, aware of the defect of these alternatives, returned again and again to the plain words of the Declaration—"all men are created equal"—for his guide through the political thickets of the slavery question. And the first consequence of that equality is each man's right to life and liberty.

The Constitution, then, is as worthy of our reverence today as it was when Lincoln advocated a political religion of devotion to it. But just as the body cannot survive without the soul, so the Constitution lives only through its soul of "equal justice under the laws."

The new retailers

by ART BUCHWALD

NEW YORK CITY—Where have all the radicals of the late Sixties and Seventies gone? Well, those who aren't working for IBM and for Chase Manhattan Bank are in retailing. You can walk down the main street of any large city now and see hundreds of outdoor stands set up where this generation of merchant princes are selling leather belts, carnations, jewelry, towels, art work and pressure cookers. They have not only joined the capitalist system but have learned to beat it.

I was walking past Saks Fifth Avenue the other day and stopped in front of a stand with a sign stacked on the card table: "Max's Fifth Avenue—Established Since June 1978."

Max was selling T-shirts for $4 apiece. He was doing a good business and I had to wait a long time before I could have a word with him.

Finally, his girlfriend took over for him and we could chat.

"What does the fall look like?" I asked him.

"I'm optimistic in spite of the recession," Max said. "Our inventories are down and I believe the consumer is in a buying mood. Volume-wise we're ahead of spring, but profit-wise we're being squeezed by the high cost of card tables and pushcarts."

"Well, you certainly have a good location."

"Yes, we did a survey of the various sidewalks in Manhattan and decided that Fifth Avenue and 50th Street had a class clientele.

"We were first attracted by Saks Fifth Avenue's alluring window displays. They also have an excellent advertising department. We looked over Bloomingdale's but discovered that Alexander's, which is located next door, was underselling us.

"For a while we were set up on 34th Street, but we decided to upgrade our merchandise and appeal to the more affluent shopper. My girlfriend wanted us to put up our stand in front of Bergdorf Goodman, but I like to be in the shadow of St. Patrick's Cathedral."

"How does Saks Fifth Avenue feel about you selling-shirts right outside their front door?"

"They haven't welcomed us with the enthusiasm you'd expect. Every hour Mr. Saks comes out and screams at me that he pays taxes and rent and provides air-conditioning and heat and we're competing unfairly with him. I try to explain that we're good for his business. Our T-shirt stand attracts many upwardly mobile customers, and if they don't find what they want with us they'll go into his store. I don't know how many people we've sent into Saks, but it's certainly more than they've sent out to us."

"Nobody likes competition," I said.

"I don't understand him," Max said. "For years people complained because we were trying to overthrow the system. They said we were a bunch of bums that didn't know what it was to earn a living. So now we're part of the system and it's driving them up the wall. I've even offered to give Saks a discount on my T-shirts, but this only gets him madder. He wants me to move to Lord & Taylor's, but I told him I felt the location was too far down Fifth Avenue and they didn't have adequate parking facilities for my type of customer. I offered to merge with Saks on the condition they opened their books to me, but I was turned down. Frankly, I wasn't disappointed because I'd like to leave this piece of sidewalk to my son."

"Did you ever dream when you were trashing the Dow Chemical Co. in 1970 that some day you'd have a business of your own?"

"No, but that's what the American dream is all about. Any person who is willing to work can start out on a slab of concrete in front of Woolworth's, and by perseverance and good luck wind up with his own card table in front of one of this country's finest department stores."

Hog farmers stepping up production

WASHINGTON (AP) — New surveys indicate hog farmers are continuing to step up production about in line with earlier projections by the Agriculture Department.

Although the increased output will provide abundant supplies of pork at least through mid-1980, hog farmers may see the huge supply depress their market prices.

Department economists say much will depend on what happens to the cattle market in the coming months, and how feed prices will be affected by the record corn crop this fall.

The department said inventories of hogs and pigs on farms in the 14 major pork states Sept. 1 totaled 57 million head, up 16 percent from a year ago.

That was the highest Sept. 1 inventory figure 1970, officials said.

The 14 states produce about 86 percent of the nation's total pork supply.

Hog producers, responding to rising prices triggered by declining supplies of beef, began stepping up output sharply earlier this year. Market prices have come down from their peaks of last winter, but the production momentum has continued.

The report said the pig crop in June-August in the 14 states was an estimated 22.3 million head, up 16 percent from the same period in 1978.

Further, producers indicated they will have 3.16 million sows farrow in September-November, up 13 percent from last fall.

Pigs born in the six-month period June through November provide the hogs going to slaughter in the first half of the following year.

Robert Remmele, a livestock economist in USDA, told a reporter the latest figures were virtually on target with his agency's earlier projections for a 15 percent increase in the June-November pig crop.

The report said the Sept. 1 inventory included 8.24 million hogs for breeding, up 10 percent from a year earlier and that the market hog inventory, at 48.8 million head, was up 17 percent.

Looking toward the winter pig crop, the report said farmers' intentions were to have 2.93 million sows farrow in the December-February quarter, up 10 percent from the year-earlier rate, which then was on the rise.

In a related report, the USDA said total red meat production by packing plants last month was about 3.33 billion pounds, up 2 percent from a year earlier.

But beef output in August, at 1.92 billion pounds, was down 8 percent from the same month of last year. Pork output was 1.35 billion pounds, up 23 percent from a year earlier, it said. Further declines were reported for August production of veal, lamb and mutton.

In August, according to other USDA figures, prices of slaughter hogs at the major markets averaged about $38 per 100 pounds, compared to almost $49 a year earlier.

Recent projections by USDA showed that hogs are likely to edge even lower this fall as slaughter increases seasonally and perhaps average in the range of $33 to $35 per 100 pounds in the fourth quarter.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Market prices for oats again have climbed high enough so farmers can redeem their grain stored in the government's reserve program, says the Agriculture Department.

John Goodwin of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said Thursday the most recent five-day average of prices for oats was $1.29 a bushel, the level at which farmers can, if they choose, redeem oats from the reserve and sell or otherwise dispose of the grain.

Farmers initially put about 39 million bushels of oats in the reserve, a program intended to keep grain off the market for up to three years or until prices rise enough to trigger their release.

Bandido sentenced on firearms charge

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A former member of the Bandidos motorcycle club, considered a "prime suspect" in the Nov. 21 attempted assassination of a federal prosecutor, has been sentenced to three years in prison on an unrelated federal firearms charge.

But Timothy Kenneth Larson, 34, said at his sentencing hearing Thursday that he was innocent of both the gun charge and the attack on Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr.

"The only reason the gun charge was brought up is the FBI thinks I had something to do with the Kerr thing. They said they were going to put me away for life," Larson told U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears. "I'm not guilty on the Kerr thing and I'm not guilty on the gun charge."

Kerr, 38, who had spearheaded a massive investigation into a massive narcotics smuggling ring centered in El Paso, escaped with only minor injuries after his car was riddled by a hail of automatic rifle fire outside his home. He has since left the U.S. Attorney's office here.

U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., known as "Maximum John" for his stiff sentences in drug cases, some of which were prosecuted by Kerr, was assassinated May 29.

The federal investigations into the drug smuggling and the two ambushes have focused on the Bandidos.

Larson was identified by an FBI special agent in a bond hearing as "a prime suspect" in the Kerr attack.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne Speck said during Thursday's sentencing hearing that Larson remains a leading suspect in the Kerr attack.

Before passing sentence, Spears said the government's allegations about the Kerr shooting would not influence the punishment he gave. He told Larson, "It goes without saying that if I had any proof in the Kerr case I would give you as much time as I had the power to give. But I am going to give a sentence I believe is appropriate."

Larson, a convicted felon, was convicted July 21 of charges he illegally received and possessed a .45-caliber semiautomatic pistol.

Spears sentenced Larson to three years in prison for possessing the gun and two years for receiving it. The judge suspended the two-year term and ordered Larson to remain on probation for five years after the end of the three-year sentence.

Priscilla attack point of Davis defense attorneys

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Defense attorneys have opened their campaign to link Priscilla Davis to an elaborate scheme they say was used to frame defendant Cullen Davis.

Lead defense attorney Richard "Racehorse" Haynes told jurors in opening arguments Thursday he intends to prove Priscilla was unhappy with the way her divorce settlement with Davis was shaping up, and that was her motive for framing him.

Priscilla was the first defense witness Thursday.

Davis, 45, is charged with soliciting the murder of his divorce judge, Joe Eidson, and others, including Priscilla. He was arrested Aug. 20, 1978. No one was actually killed.

"It was good to see her up on the stand again," Davis quipped to reporters after Priscilla left the witness stand. When asked how he felt about seeing the woman it took him five, bitter years to divorce, he said: "It gives me a 'deep' feeling, very deep."

Priscilla, 38, responded tersely to Haynes' questions, often pausing before answering. She said she was only vaguely aware of the legal actions in her divorce suit during the summer of 1978.

"Were you aware of a correspondence between your counsel and the counsel for Mr. Davis concerning a possible settlement, at least of the property issues?" Haynes asked.

"Yes, sir," she said.

Mrs. Davis said, "There was a figure of $10 million and a figure of $20 million" discussed in the settlement offer.

Haynes, who in opening statements called the case "the $20 million gamble" tried repeatedly to get Mrs. Davis to name the higher figure.

"Was the amount brought up $10 million or $20 million?" he asked.

"I really didn't care," Priscilla said calmly.

"Yes, but was the amount $10 million or $20 million?" he pressed.

"From my point of view, I really didn't care," she said.

Haynes also set about connecting Priscilla and Pat Burleson, a former Fort Worth karate instructor

Second Crime Stoppers Seminar to be held

The Retail Trade Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce with the cooperation of the Pampa Police Department will conduct a Crime Stopper Seminar beginning at 8:00 a.m. on Oct. 9 and 10.

The August Crime Stopper seminars were evaluated by the participants as being "very much worthwhile," according to the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

Chief of Police J. J. Ryzman and County Attorney David Martindale will be conducting the seminars to help area merchants and their employees reduce such crimes as shop lifting and theft by check. Information will be given on shop lifting, bad checks, counterfeit money and legal information to benefit employers and employees in the apprehension and recovery of stolen items.

Unofficial surveys of some of the stores will be taken by the police department to help point out faulty security.

Seminars No. 1 and 2 will be for employees and will begin at 8:00 a.m. to 10:00 a.m. on Oct. 9 and 10, respectively. At 10:00 a.m. to noon, a seminar will be held for employers.

A registration fee of $2 will be taken at the door, but merchants are urged to register in advance with the registration form enclosed in the letter they will soon receive in the mail.

Whaley speaks to Democratic Club

By TINA MCCLOY
Of The Pampa News

A special legislative session on initiative, referendum and wiretapping is unnecessary and would cost $1.5 million, said State Representative Foster Whaley in an informal talk Wednesday that opened the new year of the Tri-County Democratic Women's Club.
"I am for initiative and referendum but the version Bill Clements said he would accept is so watered down that we already have that power," said Whaley, who explained that Gov. Clements wants a version that is nothing more than a petition asking the legislature to do something.
"You've got that right now," said Whaley, "and to spend a million and a half bucks on something we couldn't resolve in 140 days, what makes him think we could in a special session?"
Clements wants a restricted form of referendum, pertaining only to tax matters, said Whaley.

On local wiretapping, he said he had talked to a lot of former district attorneys and others in the House who were opposed to any form of wiretapping, feeling it easily could be misused.
"If it would invade the privacy of John Q. Public, the private citizen, then I'm opposed to it," said Whaley.
Whaley served on the government organizations committee, which reviewed some 25 government agencies under the Sunset legislation.
Under the Sunset bill, passed in the 66th Legislature, every state agency and government entity automatically goes out of existence at a predetermined time unless it is reactivated by a new law.
Many agencies were set up to protect business interests against competition and regulation, said Whaley, and need to be reviewed.
Of those considered in the past session, some 20 were renewed and six written off the books, he said.
Others were combined and all of the agencies put lay members on their boards, giving consumers some representation where once only professionals were board members.
Whaley, a freshman in the 66th legislature, said a new legislator has to learn the standard procedure of doing things in Austin or he will stick his foot in his mouth.
"But it does afford a freshman legislator an opportunity to fight bad legislation," he said, adding that he depends on the advice of legislators in whom he has confidence if the subject matter of a bill is unfamiliar to him.
"People have the wrong impression about lobbyists, he noted, and added that he only ran into one lobbyist who gave him wrong information.
"Every professional lobbyist knows if he lies to you one time you have a right to vote against him from then on," he explained.
During a short business session of the club, conducted by president

Vicki Moose, members voted to donate an item to the Kinney Foundation auction and discussed plans for the State Board Meeting for Democratic Women, to be held next month in Austin. About 30 members and guests attended.
The next luncheon will be Oct. 17.

United Fund meetings slated

Two extremely important orientation and training meetings have been scheduled by United Fund volunteers, according to Dick Stowers, 1979-80 General Campaign Chairman. "These meetings, being held preparatory to the Community - Wide - Kick - Off being held on Oct. 1 in collaboration with the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, will concentrate primarily on workers in the EMPLOYEE, SPECIAL and GENERAL gifts," Stowers said.
An Employees' Luncheon was held today, while the other meetings will be conducted later in September.
The first meeting, the Special Division, is set for Monday, Sept. 24 at the First United Methodist Church at 12 noon and will be co-chaired by Gary Stevens and Luther Robinson. The second, the General Division, under the leadership of Darville Orr and Reed Echols, had scheduled their information luncheon on Friday, Sept. 28 at 12 noon at the First Baptist Church also.
Campaign workers will receive assignments at these meetings and will also be directed as to the procedure for contacting volunteers in the United Fund's over - all campaign to attain $182,537 for the annual operating budgets of 13 voluntary human service agencies.

Horace Mann parents night

Horace Mann Parents were entertained by a delightful program featuring the student body before going to their children's rooms for a brief speech from the teachers in the annual Parents' Night last evening.
The musical "extravaganza" included the combined talents of all the children, an invisible dog, and a jukebox. The theme was "Put another nickle in the Nicleodeon", with the students performing numbers requested by teachers and fellow students.
A special guest at the program was Gladys Eades, 82, from Auburn, Nebraska, who composed two of the selections, "Trot, Little Pony" and "I like to sing".
After the entertainment, the parents adjourned to their respective children's classrooms and listened to a brief outline of the year's goals by the teachers.

Lovett offering career development course

Responding to requests for self-improvement programs, Lovett Memorial Library is offering Volunteer Career Development, a course designed to help women assess their skills and set personal goals using those skills.
"Young women today should know that they will very likely spend their final years alone—through death of a spouse or divorce—and should prepare for that eventuality," writes Susan Epstein in the April, 1979 issue of McCall's magazine.
"They should be constructing a role outside of the home, through a career, volunteer work, or an avocation. Not only will this enrich their lives, but it will provide a contact with society and a sense of identity when their roles as homemakers have ended."
Volunteer Career Development was originally designed for the 238 member Association of Junior Leagues and is funded by a Kellogg Foundation grant. Its purpose is to help women find potential career areas, with an emphasis on the need for volunteer work at every stage of life.

The course is an outreach project of the Amarillo Junior League and will be presented on five consecutive Tuesdays from 10 a.m. until noon beginning October 2 through October 30. Two specially trained instructors from the Amarillo Junior League will lead the classes.
Pre-registration begins at 9 a.m. Friday, at the library, and will be limited to 30 persons.
While the course itself is free, a $2.50 workbook must be purchased by each participant.
Volunteer Career Development is co-sponsored by the Lovett Library Board and the Friends of the Pampa Library. For further information about the course, call the library at 665-3981.

Carter prepared to take action on troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is prepared to take "whatever actions are appropriate" to settle the issue of Soviet troops in Cuba to the satisfaction of the United States if new, high-level negotiations don't do the job, the White House says.
The president's options are believed to include a variety of economic, trade and diplomatic initiatives. A White House official who asked not to be named emphasized that no military action is contemplated against either Cuba or the Soviet Union.

Carter told congressional leaders Thursday he will not accept the continued Cuban presence of a Soviet combat brigade. That situation could be changed through negotiations, the president was quoted as saying, "or by action on our part."

Leisure Lodge holds dinner

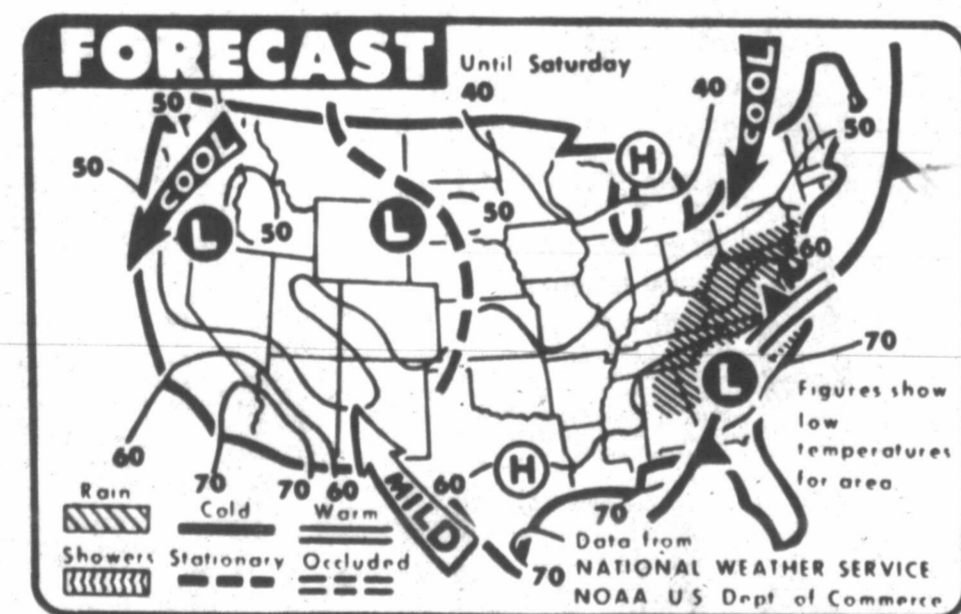

A family night supper was held Thursday evening at 6:00 p.m. at the Leisure Lodge.
Every three months, the residents take this opportunity to entertain their family at their "home". After an excellent dinner, a local gospel group will provide music and lead in a sing - a - long.
The night has become extremely popular with everyone involved.
The menu for the evening was: roast, baked potato with sour cream, English peas, jello salad, chocolate pie, hot rolls, tea or coffee.

Tax increase hearing today

There will be a public hearing today at 5:00 p.m. in City Hall concerning a tax increase due to re-evaluation and annexation of property.
Also to be considered is a bid for rubber tired tractor with a backhoe and loader attachments.
The public is invited to attend the hearing and discuss these matters with the City Commission.

NATIONAL

By The Associated Press
Heavy rains fell from Louisiana to the Carolinas early today after a day of flooding and tornadoes along the central Gulf Coast that left at least three people injured.
Four tornadoes touched down in southeastern Mississippi on Thursday, damaging some homes and farm buildings in an area ravaged last week by Hurricane Frederic. One person was slightly injured.
At least two people received minor injuries in Alabama when tornadoes touched down, damaging mobile homes and houses.
Flash flood watches were posted for much of the west-central part of the state and tornado warnings were posted for several counties, including Mobile, one of the areas hardest hit by Frederic.

RAIN IS EXPECTED in the forecast period from northern Alabama and Georgia to southern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and southern New York.

Mexico: power and the promise

EDITOR'S NOTE — Emiliano Zapata was killed in 1919, but the legend of Mexico's revolutionary hero and his battlecry — "land and liberty" — are being revived today. This is the final article of a five-part series on Mexico.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
ANENEUILCO, Mexico (AP) — They say in Mexico, where the affection for the land is strong, that you're not a man and you have no future without your land.

And nowhere is that feeling more powerfully felt than in this adobe village in Morelos where the storied revolutionary hero Emiliano Zapata was born 100 years ago, and where his surviving sons and grandchildren live his legend.

It was from the canefields around Aneneuilco that Zapata, a small farmer, stable master and village chief, recruited the first members of his insurgent army in 1910 to join the Mexican revolution and overthrow the dictator Porfirio Diaz.

Nine years later, unwilling to accept the new rulers he had helped gain power, he was killed by the army after being led into a trap.

But by then, with his ammunition bandoliers crossed over his chest, silver buttons flashing on a black jacket, floppy hat shading his dark face and black moustache, Zapata had ridden into history.

Unlike the numerous other revolutionary heroes whose bronze statues anonymously grace plazas and boulevards, the "Attila of the South", cut down in his prime at 40, occupies a special place in Mexico.

President Jose Lopez Portillo and a full retinue of cabinet ministers and state governors crowded into the memorial built over the crumbling walls of Zapata's birthplace to pay homage on the centenary. It was tacit recognition that Zapata's battlecry "land and liberty" still echoes across Mexico and is potent politics.

The revival of the Zapata legend comes at a time when millions of Mexicans are again landless because an explosive birth rate has overcrowded their small farms. Many make their way to the slums of Mexico City. Millions move north to illegal entry into the United States.

But many others remain on the land because they have learned of the hopelessness of city life and the dangers of crossing the border. "There are at least 20 million people out there, a third of the country, who have been pushed under our carpet," said Victor Urquidi, president of the College of Mexico. "We have an industrial class, a middle class, and a modern agricultural class. But we have forgotten the peasants, the campesinos."

In recent years there have been small peasant revolts against bankers and agricultural middlemen. The government has come down hard on the offenders. "The Mexican people have an enormous capacity for violence," warned newspaper publisher Manuel Decerra Acosta. "One million people died in the revolution. It should not be forgotten."

Gold might make more fools than millionaires

NEW YORK (AP) — It has made men wealthy and it has made of them fools, and if you want to see how it works you'll probably get your chance over the next few weeks. Perhaps you might even be an exhibit.

You would have company. Uncle Sam decided some time ago to auction government supplies of the metal because, among other things, he sought to depress the price by increasing the supply.

That goal seemed logical for many reasons. First off, the sales would benefit the dollar, whose value had been moving inversely to that of gold. Uncle Sam wanted to promote the notion that his paper money was just as good, even better, than gold.

He also wanted to help attract foreign funds in order to help correct to some small degree his imbalance of international payments. He figured that many of the buyers would be foreigners, maybe Arabs.

It didn't work out as planned. Gold buyers bid prices to record highs, indicating demand far exceeded supply, regardless of how much the U.S. Government put up for sale. Auction prices reached $378 this week.

When you match that price against those of less than two months ago, when the inert yellow commodity sold for less than $300 an ounce, you realize the extent of Uncle Sam's miscalculation.

True, he made profits and he attracted foreign funds, but he didn't help the dollar much.

Uncle Sam's experience notwithstanding, you too might have notions about gold that you cannot suppress. Be advised that it is available, but that it can bring you anxiety as well as the security you seek.

You can buy coins. The South African kruggerand, a pure troy ounce, can be obtained from coin dealers at a minimum premium of about 5 percent over bulk prices. You may have to pay a state sales tax too.

You can buy in larger quantities as well. Bullion in 400-ounce ingots can be had at wholesale prices if five are purchased together, but that might cost you more than $750,000, plus a sales tax in some states.

CONVENIENCE is the word at this local Allsup's store as they place the gas pumps next to the door so you can't miss them on the way out. The store is actually replacing their gas pumps and placed these out of the way of their customers. (Staff photo)

OVERSEAS

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Gale force winds blew down a canvas and metal platform which Pope John Paul II, his entourage, and more than 200 bishops and priests were to use in Dublin.

The Archbishop of Dublin, Dr. Dermot Ryan, and the Papal Nuncio, Dr. Alle Brandi, narrowly escaped injury as the 200-foot-long structure in Dublin's Phoenix Park crashed in a heap of tangled girders and fabric Wednesday just a few feet away from where they stood inspecting the site.

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet specialists "expect a considerable increase" in output from Soviet oil wells between 1981 and 1985 by using steam to help pump out the crude, Tass reported.

Vyacheslav Mitov, a leading Soviet specialist on steam plant design, told the official Soviet news agency Wednesday the first steam-pumping machine is already being built. He was quoted as saying the use of steam will be "most effective" in Western Siberia, the Soviet Union's oil-rich region.

TEXAS

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Public Utility Commission hired Shafrick Jagtiani of Troy, Mich., on Wednesday as its director of economic research.

He replaces William Averá who resigned to teach economics at the University of Texas.

Jagtiani has been a financial planner for American Natural Resources Co. since 1977. He holds degrees in engineering and business and has taught at Detroit Institute of Technology.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Senate Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs will convene a hearing in Dallas on Sept. 28 to consider more specific guidelines for the state fire marshal.

Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, said the Dallas hearing will be the first of several around the state. Garland is chairman of the subcommittee.

The subcommittee study was prompted by state legislators' concerns about the increasing loss of life and property to fire in Texas.

State Fire Marshal Ernest Emerson and representatives of several firefighters' and builders' associations are scheduled to testify at the Dallas meeting.

DALLAS (AP) — A traffic consultant hired to find cheap ways to ease city traffic congestion has recommended a businessmen's blitz to encourage car pooling.

The firm of Barton-Aschman presented its recommendations at a seminar Tuesday.

Encouraging employees to carpool, and aiding them by providing flexible working hours could put a big dent in congestion without much money outlay, the firm's report said.

Armed with the recommendations, a businessmen's task force geared up for a major effort aimed at putting the suggestions into practice.

Task force chairman Walter Humann said implementation of the program could delay or eliminate some major street expansion programs now planned by the city.

CELINA, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys cheerleaders will join civic and school groups Saturday in a program to raise money for a high school cheerleader who broke her neck last month while performing a stunt.

Cindy Morris, 17, remains in serious condition at a Dallas hospital, where doctors say she likely will be paralyzed the rest of her life.

"Cindy Morris Day" will be sponsored by the local chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes in this town of about 1,400 in North Central Texas.

Cindy's mother, Mrs. Verna Lee Morris, said her daughter's spirits "have been really good."

"She hasn't been told by the doctors the extent of her injuries, but she knows," Mrs. Morris said.

DALLAS (AP) — The confessed leader of an insurance fraud scheme has testified in federal court that a claims representative in Hunt County knowingly approved 62 fake accident claims totaling more than $300,000 and involving 58 persons from 1976 to 1978.

Herman Holley charged that representative Richard Crane was the main character in the scheme.

Fifty-six participants have been convicted and sentenced in the scheme, including two former Greenville police officers.

Crane and auto repairman Charles Crow are the last two to stand trial in the affair.

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — Resident of an area that U.S. Navy computers say is a high-risk area for plane crashes have commissioned their mayor to take their complaints to the Navy.

Mayor Weldon Parkhill has been told to take a resolution to Washington asking the Navy to aid residents near the Naval Air Station in selling or upgrading their homes.

A Navy study showed that about 135 homes were in a computer-described accident path and recommended that the homes be either zoned out of existence or purchased by the Navy.

No date was set for Parkhill's trip to Washington.

DALLAS (AP) — Saying "hallelujah and Amen, brother," County Auditor Joe Jack Mills thinks Dallas County won't run out of operating funds this year — the first time in 25 years that help from banks won't be necessary.

"To the best of my knowledge, we've had a shortfall every year for at least the last 25 years," Mills said Tuesday.

In the past, the county has asked banks to cover its checks until October's tax collections.

Mills tempered his enthusiasm a bit, saying that avoiding the shortfall would be "close" and would require some "fiscal gymnastics."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Jim Collins, R-Texas, President Mario Ramirez of the Texas Medical Association and President-elect Robert Hunter of the American Medical Association will speak at a leadership conference for doctors Saturday.

Almeta Cooper of the AMA will discuss "problems doctors face when federal agencies pry into patients' records."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Attorney General Mark White announced Wednesday that Vernon McKaskle, who does business as Discount Auto Sales, has agreed not to roll back automobile odometers.

White said the agreed judgment was reached in Judge B.B. Schraub's court in Seguin on Tuesday.

White had alleged that McKaskle misrepresented the mileage of a 1970 Oldsmobile he sold to a customer. McKaskle was ordered to pay $500 in civil penalties, and he made restitution by repurchasing the car for $3,894, White said.

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee investigating the shortage of home mortgage money has scheduled its first meeting for Friday.

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, is chairman of the five-member committee.

"We hear and read that home ownership is still a major goal of most Americans," said Parker. "This committee hopes to make that goal a reality for more Texans."

Neighbor to Neighbor Sunday is Good Neighbor Day, an annual observance that began in Montana in 1971. Each year, students in many parts of the country mark Good Neighbor Day by working on special projects to promote understanding and appreciation for other people in their communities. The day's founders hope the idea will grow. According to Becky Mattson, who helped originate Good Neighbor Day: "If we can get the idea to catch on, it has the possibility of spreading from day to day, neighbor to neighbor, nation to nation, and generation to generation. And then maybe the world will be a better place to live."

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the first president to proclaim National Good Neighbor Day in 1973?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Yom Kippur marks the end of the High Holy Days.

Child becomes third pedestrian victim

A four-year-old Pampa child, became the third victim of a car-pedestrian accident within a week Monday afternoon.

Marhonda Phillips, of 720 N. Banks sustained only slight injuries when she was struck by Susan Kane, 25, of 625 N. Russell. Kane was crossing at 700 N. Banks in her 1968 Pontiac Catalina when she hit the four-year-old.

The Phillips child was taken to Highland General Hospital Emergency Room where she was treated for a skinned forearm and released. No charges are being filed in the mishap.

When asked about a possible reason for three accidents in one week, Chief Ryzman replied that this often happened "just as school begins or just after it ends," and that the department will "continue using computer print-outs to anticipate accident areas" and then provide extra surveillance in these places.

Ryzman also said the police department was continuing its traffic safety program in the area elementary schools.

It was pointed out to the police chief that Marhonda Phillips and Jimmy Dale Johnson, a car-pedestrian fatality on July 26th, were both four years old and could not have benefited from the elementary programs. Chief Ryzman commented that the department was also making safety presentations to the area day care centers in which Puffy the Bear and other teaching aids geared to pre-kindergarten children were used.

Wall Street Journal runs false advertisement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Readers of the Wall Street Journal were treated to an eye-catching full page advertisement last week that featured a line drawing of the White House with some walls stripped away to show the interior.

The headline at the top of the page said the ad's text "tells how Johnson Controls gives you total control of the new energy regulations."

A series of lines linked the text to specific sections of the White House, such as a basement boiler room or a wall where one might expect to find a thermostat.

The unstated implication seemed to be that products of Johnson Controls, Inc., help keep President Carter and his family comfortable while conserving energy.

When Michael H. Cardozo, senior associate White House counsel, saw the layout, his first thought was about the policy of discouraging commercial exploitation of the presidency or the White House.

Then Cardozo checked further and discovered, as he told a reporter, that there is not a single product of Johnson Controls in the section of the White House pictured in the advertisement.

Without checking the rest of the White House complex for the presence or absence of the devices, Cardozo telephoned the Milwaukee firm and won a quick agreement that the ad would not be used again.

Chalk up a new role for White House press secretary Jody Powell: good Samaritan.

When Carter's staff photographer, Karl Schumacher, was pinned between two motorcade vehicles during the president's visit to Steubenville, Ohio, Powell not only was among the first to rush to the aid of the fallen cameraman but hopped into an ambulance and accompanied Schumacher to a hospital.

X-rays revealed no fractures but Schumacher's shins are still tender.

Remember when a youthful driver crashed roadside into the presidential limousine when Gerald R. Ford visited Hartford, Conn., in 1976?

When Carter went to Hartford last week, local police thoughtfully placed a tow truck in the presidential motorcade.

Decorate attic for space

By Joanne Schreiber
If your house is suffering from a bad case of space squeeze, it's time to take a look at the attic.
Chances are there's enough space to spare for a pretty little bedroom, made to look larger with space-stretching decorating ideas.
Designer Shirley Regendahl tells us that tiny rooms call for clear, bright colors and uncluttered decor. She begins with a fresh blue - and - heliotrope pattern in matching fabric and wallpaper and area accents of solid color.
The window is left uncurtained, to show off its painted frame and Joanna's Bombay - textured shade in a soft heliotrope. Raised, it admits bright shafts of sunlight. Lowered, it creates a cozy nighttime corner. Rows of fringe are added to pick up the blue in the wallcovering.
The bed fits nicely into an alcove and curtains are hung to frame the sleeping area. A quilted comforter and dust ruffle match the wallcovering. The curtain treatment depends on two slender brass rods hung above the alcove. The softly gathered valance acts as a topper for the tied - back curtains which may be pulled across the alcove for further privacy. The curtain is lined in heliotrope.

The blue is picked up in the headboard, night - shelf and rocking chair, and in the frames of the needlepoint pictures. Space - stretchers include the hanging yarn basket and the cane storage trunk which serves as window seat and coffee table.
The floor is painted lime green, with a white area rug. Toss pillows on bed and chair complete the picture of a tiny room, made to seem far larger than it really is.
For easy instructions on making draperies, valances, pillow covers, bedspreads and dust ruffles, send for "Sewing For the Home" a booklet available exclusively to readers of this newspaper. Write to Stitchin' Time, Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Send $1.25 and be sure to include your own name, address and zip code.

A TINY ROOM can be decorated with a single pretty print and coordinated window shade.

DEAR ABBY Ease promotes phone misuse

By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: A mother wrote complaining that her daughter preferred calling relatives long distance to thank them for Christmas, birthday and graduation gifts rather than write thank - you notes. You said, "A letter is better, but a telephone call is better than nothing."
Well, I work for the telephone company, and more and more I am faced with the unpleasant task of disconnecting the telephone service of a parent or grandparent for non - payment of a large telephone bill because some child or grandchild has made long - distance calls all over the country without the slightest thought of the cost involved.
Perhaps we have made it too easy to dial long distance or even overseas, promoting the idea of long - distance calls because it's more profitable for us.
If a phone bill is not paid because of indiscriminate calling by irresponsible children (or adults), the responsible paying customers will end up paying the bill in higher monthly rates. Please let your readers know this, Abby.
DOING MY JOB
DEAR DOING: Consider it done! Readers, did you get the message?
DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a super dude, but he has one very bad fault. Bad breath. Abby, you couldn't ask for a nicer guy, but this one fault is really hard to take - especially when we kiss.

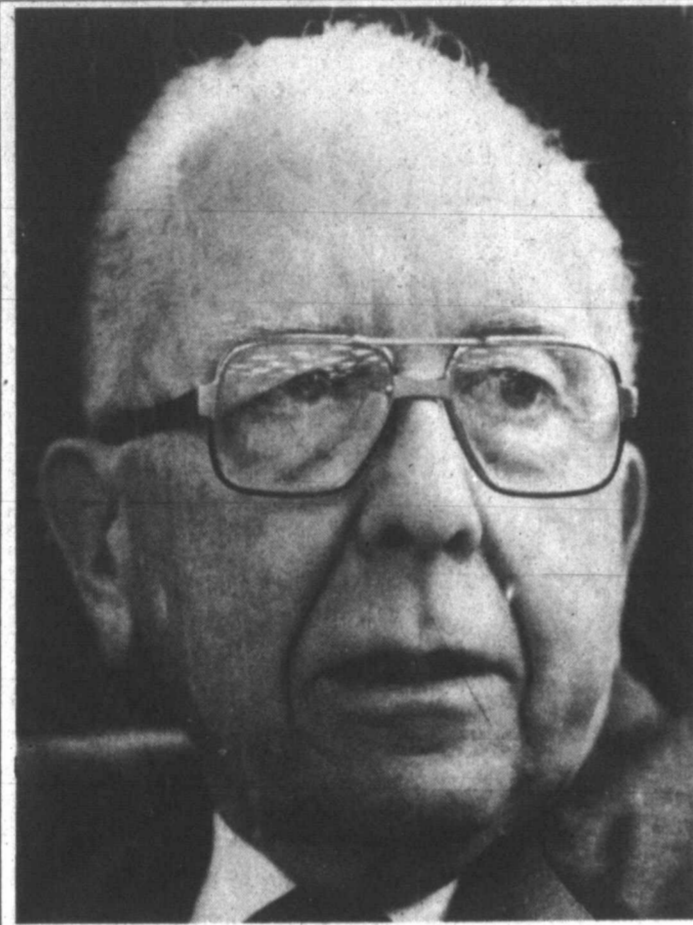

It's not just after he's eaten onions or garlic. It's all the time.
I have an idea he knows his breath is bad because he's always sucking on mints or chewing gum, but it doesn't help. He's a very sensitive guy and I wouldn't hurt his feelings for the world. Somebody should tell him. But who?
CHICKEN IN DETROIT
DEAR CHICKEN: You! It would be an act of kindness. If a dentist can't help him, he should see a doctor. Chronic bad breath can be a symptom of a serious physical ailment, and masking it with breath - fresheners, mints, mouthwashes or chewing gum is NOT a proper solution. If you love him, tell him!
DEAR ABBY: My husband wears a hearing aid, and when we're at a cocktail party he turns it off and sits in a corner all by himself. Many people think he's anti - social or snobbish, but it's not true. He says that when some folks (especially women) get a few drinks in them, they tend to laugh and shriek extra loud, and the sound, when amplified through his hearing aid, feels like a "knife" in his ear.
Abby, you would be doing people who wear hearing aids a big favor if you asked your readers to be a little more considerate.
SANDIEGO
DEAR ABBY: I can ASK, but I fear than my plea will fall on deaf ears.

PEOPLE

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 16-year-old girl. My parents have been divorced for four years and my dad has custody of me, my 15-year-old brother and my 10-year-old sister because my mother financially can't afford us.
My dad has already remarried, been divorced and now has a new girlfriend. Between his job and girlfriend, he isn't home much so I became the leader of the house. I baby-sit, cook, clean house, go shopping and at times act as counselor to my brother and sister. My dad thinks that as long as he keeps the bills paid, he is free from all obligations.
Before school was out for the summer, I asked my dad if it was all right if I got a job at a restaurant in town about four miles away. He agreed, but after about three weeks on the job, he informed me that he was no longer going to provide transportation for me and that I must find my own ride or quit the job.
Thinking that he no longer cared what I did, I called my mom and Mom talked to my aunt who said that I could live with her which was ideal because I could walk to work.
My aunt, my mom and my dad had a meeting and my dad was supposed to buy me a car, and I would return home but my dad has not even called since the meeting.
Meanwhile, my brother and sister are without supervision and I feel guilty. I love my job and the independence it provides, but I feel like my brother and sister are getting cheated.
If I quit my job and go back home, I feel that I am getting cheated.
My question is this: Should I quit my job and go back home or should I stay at my aunt's house and continue working? — Kelli, Columbus, Ohio
Kelli: It's tragic when parents place children in near impossible situations due to the parents' inability to be parents.
Kelli, this is a big decision and only you can make this choice, but my advice would be to keep your job and stay at your aunt's until your father makes it right.
Dr. Wallace: I'm a 14-year-old girl who has two older brothers, 15 and 16. My parents use one bathroom and we kids use another.
My problem is that our bathroom has no lock so my brothers walk right in, even if I am taking a bath. I've told them to keep out but they say that I've got a hang-up and that we are all family. When I tell my parents, they only laugh.
I think I deserve privacy, don't you? — Carol, Florence, Ala.
Carol: Yes, I do. Your parents are very negligent in allowing this to happen.
Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TWEEN 12 AND 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DR. LAMB Calcium and dissolving bones

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have not been drinking milk regularly for the last few years and I've had quite a few fractured bones. I was wondering if they become weak from lack of calcium. If so, and I start drinking milk regularly, will my bones become strong again?
DEAR READER — I don't know how old you are or what has caused your fractures but it's certainly true that older people and women after the menopause tend to develop dissolving bones, called osteoporosis. These are particularly prone to fractures. That's why a lot of older people have fractured hips and other fractures with minor falls. At a younger age the bones wouldn't have fractured. Some people call these brittle bones.
It's also well established that people who are on a calcium deficient diet are more likely to develop osteoporosis. In fact, the figures are that women on a calcium deficient diet are five times as likely to develop osteoporosis as those who are getting enough calcium.
I strongly advise everyone to get enough calcium in their diet. This is particularly important for women after the menopause, and especially for women of small build.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 6-10 on Osteoporosis to give you more information about this problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents in check or coin with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.
As The Health Letter I'm sending you points out, increasing the calcium in your diet won't necessarily correct the disorder once it has occurred but it's an important measure in helping to prevent progression of the disease.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to ask if a woman has a lump in her breast and the doctor tells her the lump is suspicious, what does he mean? Should the breast be removed if it is suspicious? If it's not malignant, is there any other treatment to save the breast?
DEAR READER — Suspicious means the doctor doesn't know for sure what the lump is. He's concerned that it might be malignant but he can't tell. The truth is in most instances doctors have to guess what the lump is as long as all they can do is feel it through the skin.
The obvious solution when there is a lump in the breast, and you can't be absolutely certain what it is, is to remove the lump.

Women with lumps in their breast or a tendency to having lumps in the breast should be particularly careful about using female hormones at the time of the menopause and afterward.

Carter trying to rebuild connection with church groups

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

President Carter, whose strong religious convictions give him a ready-made appeal in that sphere of the populace, is working to reinforce the connection.

His recent speeches, among other things, radiated it. And the religious ranks reciprocated in some ways.

With rumblings of the 1980 presidential election in the air, Carter also has taken concrete steps lately to bolster his links to the religious constituency, including:

—A White House reception for clergy Tuesday, observing the 20th anniversary of the installation of American Greek Orthodox Archbishop Iakovos.

—A breakfast meeting last week with a big delegation of clergy. Protestants, Catholics and Jews, on hand to help persuade senators to approve SALT II accords on limiting strategic arms.

—Assignment of a White House staff member, a clergyman, to facilitate contacts and exchanges with the religious community.

—Efforts to soothe strains between blacks and Jews resulting from the resignation of Andrew Young from his United Nations ambassadorship because of his talks with a representative of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

—Inclusion of religious leaders among consultants in his review last month at Camp David of the nation's status prior to his address emphasizing a "spiritual malaise" in the nation.

—Appointment of two Roman Catholics to his cabinet in the wake of controversy over his recent cabinet shakeup, including departure of its then only Catholic, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Joseph Califano.

—The conscience of America is built into our institutions and it is rooted in the ethics of the Judeo-Christian tradition," Carter said recently at United Methodist's Emory University in Atlanta.

Just as a spiritual revival brought Americans out of a moral slump in will and purpose in the 1700's and produced the nation's independence, he said a similar awakening is needed today to "rejuvenate the spirit" of the country. He added:

"And then may history record that our generations of America heeded the word of Isaiah 61: that we brought good tidings to the afflicted... that through us the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all nations."

Malpractice insurance offered to ALC clergy

NEW YORK (AP) — What amounts to "clergy malpractice insurance" is being offered by the Lutheran Church in America to its pastors.

Called "professional liability insurance," it is being offered by the church to protect pastors against claims or suits "alleging actionable wrongs in the performance of pastoral counseling."

"It represents a trend of the times to have to provide for this type of insurance," says James J. Bryson, an official of the church's administration and finance office, noting that pastors potentially can be sued because of advice given troubled members.

He said he knew of none of the church's pastors being brought to court in such cases, but he said such suits have occurred in other denominations in such areas as marital counseling.

Pastor copes with impending death
COLORADO SPRINGS (AP) — Facing the prospect of death "can be a very victorious experience for the Christian," says the Rev. Norman Blake, pastor of Heritage Baptist Church, whom doctors say will die of cancer by the year's end.

"Most Christians in situations like this find a strength beyond themselves," says Blake, 44, adding that his knowledge of impending death has given him a clear understanding of what's important and what's not important.

He says most people take an unrealistic view of life, never really admitting to themselves that they're going to die someday and failing to recognize death as a part of life. "Now the problems seem so unimportant and insignificant," he says. "The fusses and battles people have are so unnecessary."

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life:
in thy presence is fulness of joy..."
PSALM 16:11

HERE IS THE PATH

SEASONS CHANGE

For a time leaves are green, then in early fall they become brilliant with many colors. Finally they turn brown and fall from the trees, leaving them drab and lonely looking.

God never changes, he is an ever present help.

"For I am the Lord, I change not"

Attend church and learn more of God's wonderful and never changing love.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Union wages - jumping guidelines

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's wage guidelines have taken a battering from organized labor in the past year. They've been defiled by machinists, stretched nearly to the breaking point by teamsters, simply ignored by auto workers.

But as an unusually crowded year of contract bargaining nears an end, the administration says its wage standards — which are voluntary — have done well in the face of strong union defiance and rampant inflation.

Labor Secretary Ray Marshall says the guidelines have reined in large wage settlements without provoking a year of punishing labor strife that had been predicted for 1979.

Carter's 7 percent annual wage ceiling was expected to provoke a disruptive auto strike to close out 1979's bargaining schedule. Instead, General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers, the last major union to negotiate national contracts in 1979, settled last weekend on a new industry pattern agreement without a strike — the first time that has happened in 15 years.

Labor peace at GM apparently was achieved at the expense of the guidelines. Administration officials believe the settlement will boost wages and benefits by more than 30 percent over three years.

And this follows national contract agreements that gave Teamsters above a 9 percent yearly increase in wages and benefits, airline mechanics 34 percent over three years, rubber workers 35 to 40 percent in a three-year contract, construction workers 10 to 11 percent a year, and electrical workers 30 percent over three years.

Overall, an estimated 3 million workers are affected by these major contracts.

One presidential inflation adviser estimates that wage settlements this year are averaging 8½ percent — well above the guidelines — even though weak unions and unorganized workers generally have been held to increases within the voluntary 7 percent pay ceiling.

Despite the many large settlements won by big unions, the government has declared only two national contracts to be above the guidelines. In the other cases, notably the Teamsters settlement — the government stretched the guidelines through special exemptions.

And, the administration refuses to let the GM settlement and the other big increases dampen its praise for the voluntary guidelines.

"Without the program, wage settlements would have been higher by at least a percent or two," said the inflation adviser, who asked not to be identified.

"Despite a lot of bruises and batterings, the wage standard really did have a decelerating effect on overall wages," he said. But Marshall said there still were fewer and less disruptive walkouts than had been feared last fall, when tough-talking administration inflation fighters urged companies to take strikes rather than give in to excessive union wage demands.

Spokesmen for organized labor agree that the guidelines suppressed wages, a trend that has angered them.

"On balance, they have restrained worker wages, but in a sense that they weren't ever intended to," said AFL-CIO research director Rudy Oswald.

WHITES HOME & AUTO ADVERTISING POLICY
Our every intention is to have all advertised items in stock and on our shelves. If, for any unforeseen reason, an advertised item is not available, Whites will cheerfully issue a RAIN CHECK on request, for the merchandise at the sale price when it becomes available, or Whites will offer a comparable item at a similar reduction in price. This does not apply to special purchases, clearance and closeout sales where quantities are limited.
If a stock item is not advertised as reduced or as a special purchase, it is at its regular Whites' low price. A special purchase item, though not at a reduced price, represents an exceptional value.

Division race simple mathematics

The American League divisional races have become a matter of simple mathematics for managers Earl Weaver of the Baltimore Orioles and Jim Fregosi of the California Angels.

Weaver prefers multiplication. "We're on our way home, trying to start a one-game winning streak," he said after the Orioles defeated the Detroit Tigers 8-7 Thursday night. "That's all we need: two more one-game winning streaks."

Two times one is two, which just happens to be Baltimore's "magic number" for clinching the East Division crown. If multiplication isn't your strength, try subtraction: every time the Orioles win or the second-place Milwaukee Brewers lose, subtract one from Baltimore's magic number.

Fregosi's forte is addition by subtraction. His first-place Angels arrived in Kansas City three games ahead of the Royals, then played four games, and left exactly as they arrived: three games up.

"And that's four more games off the schedule," he noted, even if three of the Angels' remaining nine contests are against Kansas City.

"I'd say if we win five out of nine, we've got it," said California's Bobby Grich, an advocate of long division.

Kansas City's George Brett wouldn't divulge the specifics of his favorite equation. After the Royals lost an 11-6 decision to the Angels Thursday night, he put it this way: "From now on, each game becomes more important than the last. We need a little help from Texas (which visits California next). We need to sweep in Oakland."

It remains to be seen if that's as simple as it sounds.

In the other games on an abbreviated schedule Thursday, the Toronto Blue Jays bopped the Boston Red Sox 6-2 and the Minnesota Twins trimmed the New York Yankees 3-1.

Blue Jays 6, Red Sox 2

Tony Solaita and Rick Cerone hit two-run homers and Roy Howell hit a solo shot to back Balor Moore's four-hitter as Toronto beat Boston.

Twins 3, Yankees 1

John Castino drove in all the Minnesota runs with a single and a two-run homer, powering the Twins over the Yankees.

In the National League the Montreal Expos have been so busy playing double-headers this month it's a wonder they've had the energy to do anything else. After moving back into first place, however, Montreal found time for a little celebrating.

The Expos swept their second consecutive twinbill from the New York Mets with 6-3 and 2-0 victories Thursday. With the Pittsburgh Pirates falling to Philadelphia 2-1, the Expos — who lost a pair of games to the Pirates in Montreal earlier this week to fall two games back — moved a half-game ahead of Pittsburgh. It was the biggest first-place margin for Montreal since Aug. 4.

"I think we've got a right to be whooping and hollering a little bit," said Expos Manager Dick Williams in the exuberant Montreal locker room. "It's great. We've really battled."

They've battled through six double-headers this month, winning 10 of the 12 games. They still have two more to go, including one during a four-game visit to Pittsburgh next week.

Phillies 2, Pirates 1

Randy Lerch, 10-12, struck out a career-high nine batters and pitched a nine-hitter. Manny Trillo's RBI single in the seventh off Pirates relief ace Kent Tekulve, 10-8, provided the decisive run and Pete Rose had two hits to extend his consecutive-game hitting streak to 18.

Reds 8, Padres 5

A five-run explosion in the eighth inning by Cincinnati gave it the victory over the Padres. Johnny Bench had a two-run double in the inning and Dan Driessen doubled in the go-ahead run.

Astros 7, Braves 1

A pair of fielding errors by Darrel Chaney and Terry Puhl's two doubles keyed the Houston victory. Ken Forsch, who threw his first complete game since July 28, pitched a nine-hitter.

Dodgers 3, Giants 0

Bob Welch and Joe Beckwith combined on a seven-hitter. Welch, 5-6, winning his first game since May 15.

Cardinals 2, Cubs 1

Silvio Martinez, 15-7, hurled a six-hitter to outduel Dennis Lamp, 11-9, who had a five-hitter. The unearned winning run was scored by Keith Hernandez, who reached on an error.

Orange Machine gets overhaul; leaves Braves in vapor trail

HOUSTON (AP) — The Big Orange Machine of the Houston Astros, which had sputtered to three victories in 11 games, suddenly got an overhaul in the Astrodome Wednesday night and left the Atlanta Braves in a vapor trail with a 7-1 victory.

Now comes the Big Red Machine of the Cincinnati Reds, which motors into the Dome for an all-important three game series that could make or break either team's chances of winning the National League Western Division race.

Houston Manager Bill Virdon, whose contract was extended through 1980 shortly before the game, was delighted to hear the hum in the Astros' offense, which returned to what it does best against Atlanta — hit singles and line drives and steal bases.

Houston, which set a club record seven stolen bases against the Braves on Aug. 5, picked off six thefts against frustrated Atlanta catcher Joe Nolan.

The Astro team, which trails Chicago's Dave Kingman in home runs, punched out enough singles and doubles to start the thievery against the Braves. The Astros have 46 home runs while Kingman has 47.

"You don't steal bases against Johnny Bench as easily as you do against some other teams," Virdon said. "But we'll be trying and we hope to get on base enough to try."

Virdon suggested a safe approach for tonight's series opener when J.R. Richard goes against the Reds' Tom Seaver.

Longhorns begin season Saturday

The University of Texas, nearly everybody's pick to capture the Southwest Conference football title this fall, is the last team in the nation to kick off Saturday night and All-America defensive back Johnnie Johnson says the waiting may be the hardest part of the season.

"I hope I never have to wait this long between practice and actually playing a game again," said Johnson.

The Longhorns, who are 17-point favorites over Iowa State of the Big Eight Conference at Memorial Stadium, don't play until 7 p.m. By that time, the Ivy Conference schools, who have been idle, will have played.

Texas must play 11 straight weeks.

"I wish we could have gone ahead and played, we might need an open week later," Johnson added.

There are no conference games scheduled but the SWC may be hardpressed to improve on its 6-2 record against outside foes.

Penn State is a 10-point favorite over the Texas Aggies in a day game. Alabama is a 17-point choice over Baylor, Tulane is a 6-point nod over Texas Christian, Texas Tech at Arizona was rated even.

Arkansas was an 11-point selection over Oklahoma State. Louisiana State was an 18-point nod over Rice, and Southern Methodist was an 8-point pick over North Texas State.

"We'll have to throw it at least 18 or 20 times to do well against Alabama," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "They are just too physical of a team to run against as much as we have done in our first two games."

Rice Coach Ray Alborn said he welcomes the challenge of going against LSU and Oklahoma on back-to-back weeks.

"That's what it is all about," said Alborn. "Play the best and you get instant top attention when you can knock off one or more of 'em."

The Texas Aggies face an imposing record by Penn State Coach Joe Paterno. He's not lost to an SWC team in six games.

"Texas A&M is a home run-oriented offense," Paterno says. "They are reckless and aggressive on defense."

Oilers lose Stensrud

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have lost for six to eight weeks the services of their top draft choice for 1979, defensive lineman Mike Stensrud, who tore cartilage in his left knee during practice last week.

The Oilers said Thursday he was being placed on injured reserve and his spot on the roster given to Richard Ellender, a 5-foot-11 wide receiver and kick return specialist from McNeese State.

Lefty-righty event set at Pampa CC

The Pampa Country Club will be the scene of a lefty-righty golf tournament this weekend.

Left-handed golfers from all over the state are expected for the event. They'll be paired with right-handed golfers for the 36-hole event, which began with a practice round today.

Saturday's round will be a best-ball competition, while Sunday's wrapup will be decided by a total team score.

Altus to present Harvesters with biggest test yet

On paper — and on film — the Altus Bulldogs appear to be the biggest challenge yet for Danny Palmer and the unbeaten Pampa Harvesters.

But Palmer, never one to back down from a challenge, says his outsized team should give Altus, rated third in Oklahoma's Class 4A rankings, a hard run for its money.

"I think Altus (2-0, with wins over Vernon and Lawton, Okla.) has some momentum and we have some momentum," Palmer noted after viewing films of the potent Bulldog offense. "But I think we're evenly matched football teams in talent, although we're not equal to them in size."

"Our offensive and defensive linemen are going to have their work cut out for them," he said. "I expect Danny Buzzard to have his best game." Palmer added, intimating that the 6-3, 220-pound senior and his fellow linemen would have to rise to the occasion.

If Palmer is concerned about the Bulldogs putting the first mark in Pampa's loss column, he has good reason. Altus returns several members of the cast that blanked Pampa 21-0 in Oklahoma last year.

And while running back Steve McKeaver (who amassed 122 yards and scored a touchdown against Pampa last year) has been lost to graduation, a junior by the name of Eddie Goodlow is doing his best to make Altus fans forget all about McKeaver.

The 5-11, 187-pound tailback sat out last year because of scholastic ineligibility. But he made up for lost time on his first carry of the season.

After taking a pitchout, he raced 76 yards for a touchdown against Vernon and wound up with 156 yards on 15 carries. Last week, he ripped Lawton for 130 yards on 17 attempts while scoring three touchdowns. With 4.5 speed in the 40-yard dash, he's a bruising runner and is hard to stop one-on-one.

"We're just going to play our defense," Palmer said. "Their quarterback, fullback, split end and Goodlow are all good football players and we know it. We've concentrated this week on tackling. We've emphasized it."

The Harvesters can hardly key on Goodlow, because the Bulldogs boast a balanced offense that features the passing of junior quarterback Todd Tims. A part-time starter last year, he keeps defenses honest by throwing quick slant passes to split end Richard Goodlow, Eddie's cousin.

On defense, the Bulldogs are anchored by three-year starter Tom Flemms, a 6-2, 220-pound senior who is at the top of several college recruiting lists. The defending Class 4A heavyweight wrestling champion, his outstanding ability caused the Altus coaching staff to change from a 5-2 to a 4-3 defense. They figured that was the best way to use his talents.

"We're not going to try and attack him (Flemms)," Palmer said, "but we're not going to run away from him either. We know he's a good football player, and we know we'll have to block him some time."

But the key to Pampa's success against Altus could lie in its passing game. No one has tried to pass on the Bulldogs this year, according to Keith Floyd of the Altus Times-Democrat. But Palmer, playing it as close to the vest as possible, says the Harvesters won't necessarily try an aerial blitz.

"It's just according to how the game goes," he said, "according to what we can do."

Kickoff at Harvester field is scheduled for 7:30.

Harvies hold back Bulldogs in volleyball

Pampa spikers held a feisty Borger Bulldog team at bay last night, defeating the visitors 15-9, 15-10 in the Harvester Fieldhouse.

Coach Lynn Wolfe felt her charges were overconfident going into the game, "because we've beaten Borger before pretty easily in their tournament. And we just weren't mentally ready for the game."

The Harvester overconfidence was spurned when senior Tina Robbins served 12 straight points to open the local offense, most of which were not returned.

Then Bulldog Lori Witt came back with seven straight serves of her own, posing the biggest threat of the first set, however. Pampa sewed up the win with three straight points, ending the scoring at 15-9.

The second set was slowed to a walk, differing totally from the fast-paced first set, as both teams could take only a slight advantage of their offensive attacks.

Resounding spikes from seniors Mamie Laycock, Dorinda Gray, and Sharon King drew rounds of applause from the highly partial Pampa crowd, but there was little else to cheer about looking at the scoring.

The Harvies began to move midway through the final set, as King served four points for Pampa. A point here by Pampa, and a point there by Borger kept the game inching along, but with 1:55 left Borger began to make a stand.

Bulldog setter Leslie Cook added two points to the visiting cause, making the score 13-8. Pampa's King then found a bare spot on the Borger side of the floor with a booming spike to break Cook's streak, but senior Alecia Flemming lost the ensuing serve with :48 left.

Borger's Lori Witt then tacked on another tally when teammate Cheryl Murphy blocked a Harvester spike attempt. Borger scored once more to bring the score to 13-10 when Witt's serve went out at :20.

It was King who served Pampa's next two points; the first came when the Dogs hit the ball four times and the second when the ball was knocked foul.

Jeanne Porter was cited by Wolfe for her play in the backcourt.

The junior spiker kept the sometimes faltering Pampa attack alive with her passing.

Wolfe also praised Robbins, who served 12 straight Pampa points.

"We are going to have to work on our serving," Wolfe said.

The girls next contest is against Perryton Monday night in the Harvester Field House with the junior varsity getting underway at 6:30 p.m. followed by the varsity play.

Umps cry 'foul' in labor dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — "Foul" says the Major League Umpires Association about labor practices involving salaries and fringe benefits in the National League. "Fair" says the National League.

Richie Phillips, counsel for the umpires association, met Thursday with NLRB representatives for six hours and charged the NL with five separate counts of discrimination against union umpires.

The NLRB must now conduct an investigation into the charges.

Earlier in the season, the umpires association struck both the National and American leagues, but the games went on, with most of them worked by non-major league umpires.

Thursday's charges were denied by Blake Cullen, supervisor of umpires for the National League.

No charges were filed against the AL, but Phillips said it "has been guilty of some of the same infractions, but the pattern of conduct has not continued throughout the season. The American League did not grant extra vacation time to the non-union umpires and didn't deduct rental car expense charges from the paychecks of the regular umpires."

The umpires association specifically charged the National League with discrimination in the areas of guaranteed salaries, advancement opportunities for minor league umpires who honored the strike, vacation time, umpire evaluation and expense money.

"Until this year, no union employee has ever been given more than a one-year contract and there was never any salary guarantees for umpires," Phillips told The Association Press by telephone. "Yet the replacement umpires who worked during the strike were rewarded with three-year guaranteed contracts. The league gave them more than it ever will give us."

Phillips also said there was discrimination against minor league umpires who refused to work during the strike and that the league had failed to provide the union with evaluations of umpires that are routinely made by supervisors, managers and general managers. The evaluations were part of the settlement that ended the strike last May, Phillips said.

Lye shares Napa lead with Wadkins

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Anywhere else, 26-year-old Mark Lye would be brushed off as one of those tour "unknowns" holding a first-round lead and not to be taken seriously.

But Lye, whose 6-under-par 66 Thursday tied him with the more successful young pro Bobby Wadkins, was sure to have an enthusiastic gallery of golf fans cheering for him today in the second round of the $300,000 Napa stop on the tour.

"I think local knowledge helps quite a bit," said Lye, hoping to make this weekend a triumphant homecoming event.

He's a product of the wine country, and an old buddy from his Napa High School days, Brian Dozier, is toting Lye's golfbag in the tournament at the Silverado Country Club.

Wadkins, winner of $95,000 on the tour this season, had six birdies and no bogeys for his 66 Thursday.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

September 22, 1979

Explore further the possibilities of putting some of your more creative ideas to work for you this coming year. You have the potential to derive large material rewards from them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You're entitled to do something nice for yourself, so a small shopping spree might be the answer. See if that item you've been wanting could be worked into your budget. Discover with whom you best get along romantically by sending for your Astro-Graph Letter, which begins anew with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
This is one of those days where you have that extra something which enables you to light up a room when you enter. It'll be difficult for you not to be admired.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Today you are likely to feel it is better to give than to receive. However, because of your unselfishness you may rake in far more than you give out.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Persons you associate with today will be inspired by your realistic hopefulness. You'll enable them to see things as they could be, not just as they are.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Your intuitive perceptions are very keen today, especially in matters affecting career or status. Couple them with your logic, and move onward and upward.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Through personal experiences today you may learn a very valuable lesson. File this knowledge away to be used wisely at a later date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
In joint ventures today, be more supportive than assertive. This will encourage your counterpart to use his or her best abilities and talents for your mutual benefit.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Your greatest asset today is your willingness to cooperate and to share any good things that may happen to you. Others will reciprocate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Chores challenging your artistic ability and creativity will be the ones to please you the most today. If imagination is required, it becomes a labor of love.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You are able to deal with others very effectively today. This will do much to win you new allies. Let charm dominate your actions.

CANCER (June 21-July 23)
The wants and needs of loved ones will take precedence over your own interests today. Fortunate are those you care for. You feel no sacrifice is too great.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
In situations where you're required to manage or control others, do so today with gentle words and compassionate gestures. The results will be rewarding.

MOVIES

North Dallas Forty stars Nick Nolte and Mac Davis in a lazily paced football yarn about the impersonality of big time pro football. Nolte turns in a great performance as the aging running back whose attitude leaves something to be desired. If you think you've had your fill of sports movies—if you haven't seen a football flick since "Son of Flubber"—you still don't want to miss this one.

Alan Alda, star of "Mash," wrote and starred in The Seduction of Joe Tynan, an interesting study of political corruption and life in the ghettos of Washington D.C. Alda is the liberal senator, and Melvyn Douglas turns in one of the best performances of the century as an aging Southern senator.

If you want to see Woody Allen get serious, see Manhattan, a black and white movie which fits the ambience of that black and white burrough of the Big Apple.

For diehard "Saturday Night Live" fans Bill Murray—hardly a wild and crazy guy—provides the mellow lead for a movie about summer camp called Meatballs. But the choice Amarillo offering is A Little Romance, starring Laurence Olivier in a very funny film about very little people.

BOOKS

On Monday, Sept. 24 at 7 p.m. CST, the Public Broadcasting System (Channel 11) will telecast Verdi's opera masterpiece, "Otello," live from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York City.

In order to increase the enjoyment of those who will be viewing this glittering opening night event, Lovett Library has gathered together several recordings, tape cassettes and books giving the story and background of "Otello."

Especially recommended is the RCA recording featuring Placido Domingo as Otello and Sherrill Milnes as Iago—both members of the Met cast—and Renata Scotto as Desdemona.

The tape cassette is a copy of

TELEVISION

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Victoria Principal had given up her film career and was about to enter law school when "Dallas" lured her back to acting full-time again.

Miss Principal plays Pamela Barnes Ewing in the hit CBS series, which she calls "elegant soap." Pamela is the daughter of oil baron Jock Ewing's embittered former partner, and her marriage to Bobby Ewing puts her in the enemy camp.

She left acting four years ago to become an agent because she was dissatisfied with the way her career was going. Later, when she decided to enter law school, she accepted a role in the pilot of "Fantasy Island" to pay for her first year's tuition.

Then she took another role to pay for her second year. "I enjoyed it so much I said why go to law school when I didn't know what was ahead," she said. "I felt now I could return to acting, which I had never enjoyed before. I had started as an adolescent and I didn't have time to mature. I became a composite of what I thought other people wanted me to be."

It was "Dallas" that brought her all the way back to acting.

"It was a fluke," she said. "A friend read the very first script of 'Dallas,' not even knowing I wanted to act again, called me and said here was a part that sounds like me."

"He dropped the script by and it sat for two days. The third day I casually picked it up; read the first two pages and couldn't put it down."

TEXAS

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — El Paso County Sheriff Ray Montes has asked two Texas Rangers to investigate charges that officers allegedly stole items from buildings where they were investigating burglaries.

Two officers from Anthony, a town near the Texas-New Mexico border, were charged last weekend with stealing from an auto parts store while conducting a burglary investigation.

The officers allegedly gave statements implicating sheriff's department patrol officers.

"If my men are implicated, let the ax fall where it may," Montes said.

He asked the Rangers to report directly to the district attorney when the investigation is complete.

Anniversary of a burial

POMPEII, Italy (AP) — More than 2,000 years ago, the volcano Vesuvius dumped on Pompeii, buying one of the Roman Empire's swiftest cities under 12 feet of molten ash and lava.

Forty-four pizza houses, according to some authorities, bit the dust in that historic eruption, along with dozens of bordellos, boisterous inns, wine shops, dice parlors, orgy-configured bath houses and other places of popular amusement, including a huge amphitheater where Christians wrestled lions and cobras bare-handed for the honor and glory of the Emperor Titus.

In case you failed to observe the anniversary by getting plastered, the exact date was Aug. 24, A.D. 79.

Pliny the Younger, who survived the First Century disaster that killed his famous uncle, Pliny the Elder, wrote an eyewitness account of the eruption in two letters to the historian Tacitus. He speaks of a huge "umbrella-pine shaped cloud" appearing over the tip of Mt. Vesuvius about noon on a day of "yellowish sunlight," before the torrent of flaming liquid lava, hissing hot rocks and poisonous sulphur fumes engulfed the towns of Pompeii, Heraculaneum and Stabiae. The mosaics unearthed and featured in recent exhibits in London, Copenhagen, Boston, Dallas and New York depict a seaside town jumping with dancers, actors, dice players, musicians, gladiators, inn keepers tossing out-drunks and travelling carnival.

Graffiti, scrawled in red on Pompeii's white walls, spell out the scene in even greater detail: "The fruit dealers unambiguously urge the election of Marcus Holconius Priscus..."

"If upright living is considered any recommendation, Lucretius Fronto is well worthy of office."

Even this: "The petty thieves support Atia for the aedileship..."

And this (from a non-aligned voter?): "I wonder, o wall, that you have not fallen in ruins from supporting the stupidities of so many scribblers."

And on watered liquor: "May your lies fail you, landlord, you sell water and drink the good stuff yourself."

Death came down the mountain to this vibrant town on a hot summer's day, leaving the victims just as they were to posterity and museums 2,000 years later, sprawled on their hands and knees, caught by the poisonous fumes and buried under the burning ashes and lapilli.

NATIONAL

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — A Mobil Oil Co. refinery that processes 123,500 barrels of crude oil daily will be out of operation for less than a week after a fire and explosion, officials say.

"Damage was kept to a minimum," Mobil spokesman Edward Fulham said Wednesday. Five people were injured in the fire late Tuesday, but only one, a Mobil employee who inhaled toxic gas, was hospitalized.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Striking grain handlers have reached tentative agreement with two elevator companies, leaving five Duluth-Superior companies that still haven't settled in the 11-week strike.

Federal Mediator Wayne Horvitz said agreements were reached here Wednesday by Local 118 of the American Federation of Grain Millers in disputes with Cargill Inc. and ConAgra.

Strikes against eight companies have halted all Lake Superior grain shipments from the twin ports. The millers earlier reached agreement with the Farmers Union Grain Terminal Association.
