

"If ordinary economic law has anything to do with it, the increased competition for the expanded energy dollar must, at some point, lead to lower, not higher, retail prices."

Energy costs push consumer prices higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher energy costs continued to surge through the economy in August, pushing consumer prices up 1.1 percent, the government said today.

The sharp rise was the eighth consecutive monthly increase near or above 1 percent, the Labor Department said. And it occurred despite a leveling-off in food prices, which showed no change in August.

If there is no break in the price pattern, the nation will end the year with an inflation rate above 13 percent — the worst since World War II, economists said.

The Labor Department today also introduced its new energy report, which gives monthly price statistics on gasoline, fuel oil and other energy costs.

The report showed the impact on families of the 60 percent rise in crude oil prices enacted by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries since the start of the year.

Among the statistics — The average price for a gallon of gasoline last month across the nation was 96.7 cents, up 28.2 cents since the start of the year.

— The average price of fuel oil was 80 cents per gallon, up 25.5 cents since December 1978.

In another report, the Labor Department said Americans' average weekly earnings were badly eroded by inflation in August, falling 0.8 percent in the month. Spendable earnings, which are weekly earnings after Social Security and federal taxes are deducted and adjustments are made for inflation, fell 0.9 percent in August, the third consecutive monthly decline.

The Carter administration has been hoping for a turnaround in inflation before the end of the year.

But Labor Department economist Patrick Jackman said signs of that turnaround are not yet visible in the Consumer Price Index.

The report said "about two-thirds of the (August) increase was due to higher energy and home ownership prices."

Transportation prices were up 1.5 percent for the month, with most of the rise blamed on a 4 percent surge in gasoline prices. Public transit costs also rose.

"In the 12 months ended in August, gasoline prices increased 46.1 percent," the report said.

Housing costs also reflect higher fuel costs, with a 7.1 percent August rise in fuel oil costs (56.4 percent for the year) pushing the cost ahead rapidly.

"In August, home prices rose 1.5 percent," the report said. "Home financing costs rose 3 percent, reflecting increases in both mortgage interest rates and house prices."

Although food prices held, continuing a pattern begun in June, clothing prices rose 0.7 percent after two months of decline and the miscellaneous category went up a full percentage point.

The Consumer Price Index in August stood at 221.1, meaning that goods that cost $100 in 1967 cost $221.10 last month.

The figure was 12.7 percent ahead of August 1978, a record for a one-year increase. The previous record was 12.2 percent in 1974.

Yet Carter administration officials are optimistic that 1974's rate of 12.2 percent, the post-war period's worst, won't be broken this year.

Anthony M. Solomon, Treasury Department undersecretary for monetary affairs, told a news conference Monday there is a "good possibility" inflation will fall below an annual rate of 10 percent by year's end.

Solomon's prognosis echoed a recent statement by Stuart Eizenstat, the presidential domestic affairs adviser, that "we will be under double-digit rates by the end of this year."

One reason for the predictions is that much of the 60 percent increase in crude-oil prices approved by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries earlier this year has already made its way through the economy.

But economists warn that more "pass-through" effects of the oil-price hikes are likely in the future. In fact, energy prices got part of the blame for July's significant increase in wholesale prices, which generally are rapidly passed along to consumers as higher retail prices.

Solomon also predicted Monday that the United States should have a surplus in its international balance of payments of as much as $10 billion next year.

That would be a dramatic turn-around from last year's record $14 billion deficit.

City authorizes firm as tax attorneys

The Pampa City Commission approved the authorization of Perdue, Brandon, Blair, Shiever and Fielder as Delinquent Tax Attorneys for the City of Pampa.

The Amarillo firm also handles the delinquent accounts of the Pampa Independent School District, according to Mack Wofford, City Manager. He states this will be a savings in time and money to Pampa citizens since the firm will serve as a "common attorney" for the school district and City of Pampa.

Also authorized was a Utility Joint Use Agreement with the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation which allows the City to leave water and sewer lines where the improvement on McCullough Street is being made. Wofford said this is a "routine matter" which is done whenever the improvement on state roads is done.

The following ordinances were approved on first reading by the city commission:

(a) the 1979-80 Budget for the City of Pampa

(b) the ordinance setting the tax rate at $2.13 per $100 of assessed value

(c) ordinance amending the water rate

The City wishes to increase the water rate from $5.37 to $6.00. This is an approximate increase of 14 percent.

(d) ordinance amending the sanitary sewer rate

Another 14 percent increase has been requested on the sewer rate from $3.90 per 1000 gallon to $4.55 per 1000 gallon charge.

(e) ordinance amending residential solid waste removal rate

A 4.4 percent increase has been requested by the city manager on the garbage disposal rates, bringing it up from $5.27 per month to $5.50. A 23 cent increase per month.

Wofford commented that the total increase per month per resident due to these changes would be approximately $1.50, with the total increase per year coming to approximately $18.

(f) ordinance amending commercial solid waste disposal rate

Wofford stated that the rates would be assessed by the amount of times the waste had to be removed from the commercial boxes, and that the lowest rate would not be lower than a residential rate.

The next item on the agenda was the first reading of an ordinance creating the Office of Civil Defense for the City of Pampa.

Steve Vaughn, coordinator of the Civil Defense Program made a report to Mayor Ray Thompson on how he was working closely with the County Civil Defense Program and the hospital in order to not overlap any responsibilities.

Former official says U.N. filled with Soviet spies

LONDON (AP) — At least half the 300 Soviets employed by the United Nations are spies and one is a special assistant to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, said former Soviet U.N. official Arkady Shevchenko, who defected last year.

"There is a saying that they consider the U.N. the tallest observation tower in the Western world for intelligence activity," said Shevchenko, who left his post as under-secretary-general for political and security affairs in April 1978 for U.S. asylum.

A special assistant to Waldheim is an officer of the KGB, the Soviet secret police, Shevchenko said Monday on the British Broadcasting

Corp. morning television show "Panorama."

BBC said it could identify only one Soviet special assistant to Waldheim, Victor Lessiovski. He was not available for comment at U.N. headquarters in New York.

"They consider it as the best place for the propaganda, and later discover that it's one of the best places for their intelligence activities, and actually the U.N. has become one of the most important bases for the KGB or GRU," he added. GRU is Soviet Military Intelligence.

Another top-ranking Soviet agent fingered by Shevchenko was Geli

Dneprovsky, the new chief of personnel at the U.N.'s Geneva headquarters, Waldheim, acting on allegations by Britain and other Western powers, last year ordered a probe into charges Dneprovsky was a KGB agent, and "Panorama" reported he was appointed under heavy Soviet pressure.

Some 300 Soviet citizens work as U.N. professionals and interpreters, said Shevchenko. The organization has 10,595 employees.

"I would say it would be a fair guess it would be the minimum that half are KGB or GRU officers," he said.

Jackson's political call, Syrian jets shot down

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson heads into another round of political meetings today after the Israelis shot down his call for recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization and four Syrian jets over Lebanon.

Jackson and his 15-member group have meetings scheduled with Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek, opposition Labor Party leader Shimon Peres, and political leaders in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

The American black activist leader arrived Monday and told Kollek and former Israeli U.N. Ambassador Simha Dinitz that Israel should "relieve America of its gag policy and recognize the PLO."

But Dinitz called the PLO "the enemy of the peace process" and said, "Every person in Israel has lost a relative in either the Nazi holocaust or the Arab holocaust. And you want these people to show tolerance?"

Jackson replied, "America must not be bound by your agony."

The discussion took place at a roundtable conference organized by Kollek, who disagreed with Prime Minister Menachem Begin's refusal to meet with Jackson, as well as with a Southern Christian Leadership Conference delegation that met with PLO chief Yasser Arafat in Beirut last week.

After the roundtable, and at Kollek's suggestion, Jackson visited hospitalized victims of a PLO bombing that killed one Israeli and wounded 51 in Jerusalem last week.

Jackson offered his services as a mediator between Israel and the PLO after U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young resigned under fire for an unauthorized meeting with the PLO's U.N. representative, Zehdi Labib Terzi. But the Israelis refuse to deal with the PLO, branding it "a gang of terrorist murderers."

Pampa police use radar to protect city residents

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

The Pampa Police Department is using a speed radar and careful surveillance to help protect city residents from injury or death due to an erring motorist.

This particular afternoon, Patrolman Ronnie L. Duke was "working" the 900 block of Duncan. On the dashboard of the police cruiser was a small black box, emitting strange high-pitched noises, with two bright red numbers, changing incessantly, on its face.

The box, according to Patrolman Duke, is a radar, the little gadget that determines when a motorist is going over the speed limit.

The radar runs on a short wave radio frequency. The patrolman sets the range for a particular landmark not too far in front of him. When a vehicle passes the landmark, the speed is registered as numbers on the front of the radar box. The noises are the sound of the vehicle's motor mechanically reproduced by a transmitter.

If a vehicle passes the landmark going faster than the speed the officer has set the radar for, it will immediately lock on the speed the car was going when it passed the spot. This speed is what the officer puts on the ticket, when he cites the offender.

Patrolman Duke is in favor of using the radar because he feels, "It makes people aware of when they are speeding." According to Duke, the radar is used in areas of Pampa where the speed limit is often abused.

Moving from the Duncan area, Duke parked the cruiser at the intersection and cross walk at Stephen F. Austin Elementary School. Duke says patrolmen go to different areas everyday. This helps, he states, because "hopefully, people are watching out...being aware that we may be in the area."

Duke is watching the red light, particularly hoping to catch a careless driver running the light. Patrolman Duke feels if he can keep just one child from being hit by patrolling these schools so carefully, it is worth the often boring times of vigil. "It is not funny," he comments, "to see a child smacked by a car."

The patrol car's lights come on, as Officer Duke sees a station wagon clearly run the red light. After a brief note from the siren, the wagon's taillights come on and it pulls to the curb. In the back seat are the happy faces of three blonde-haired boys.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

A VATful of snake oil

Whenever the politicians start talking about "tax reform," watch out. The latest scheme is called the value added tax (VAT). It is the best example yet that tax reform is often a well-concealed attempt to increase taxes. This measure would not only increase the government's power to tax; but it also would have some very serious side effects on American business.

A value added tax would, simply put, add a tax to the price of every product sold in America. The figure being talked about today is the addition of 10 percent tax to the price of everything you buy, food included.

Political support for the tax has already reached ominous proportions. Chairmen of both House and Senate tax committees have endorsed the VAT. Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, says the new tax could be levied as early as 1981. Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, supports the idea and predicts it will be enacted.

Before you get too upset about paying 10 percent more for everything you buy, it should be explained that both of the abovementioned congressional leaders stress that VAT would replace some of the current taxes you are paying. They call VAT a "replacement tax." Ullman was quoted as saying, "We don't want one dollar of new taxes for the American people under today's conditions."

You can rest assured that "under today's conditions" the VAT will not be used to collect any new tax dollars from you. You can also count on the fact that Ullman will be the first one to decide that the conditions have changed and then, without telling you, start using the VAT to wring more money out of the already taxed-to-oblivion American worker.

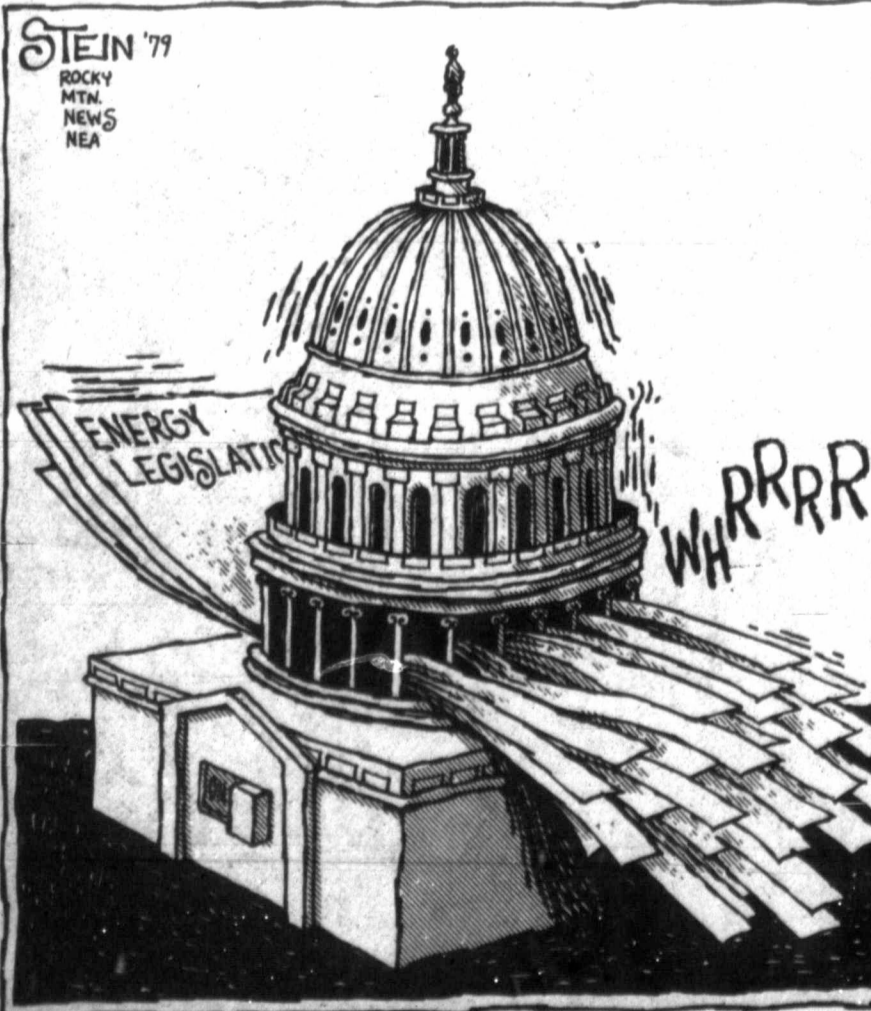

There is already ample indication Ullman's intention is to raise taxes, despite his assurances to the contrary. He is quoted as saying implementation of VAT, would help solve the problem of financing the nation's Social Security retirement system. If there are no new tax dollars generated by VAT, how can it help finance anything new, much less the massive Social Security retirement system deficit?

There are a number of taxes supporters of VAT claim would be reduced if the new tax proposal is accepted. Reductions in the taxes would be, as they say, written into law. If anybody buys that argument, we suggest they stay away from anyone offering them a great deal on the purchase of costume jewelry. We have no doubt that VAT will, in the end, increase taxes, which is exactly what it is intended to do. The tax increase, when it comes, will be hidden in the prices of the things you buy.

Hidden tax increases are only part of the problem with VAT. It would also have a very serious long run effect on patterns of business ownership. Because of every transaction between business results in an added tax, VAT would encourage further centralization of business ownership. Today a company might sub-contract out much of its work. VAT would encourage in-house, rather than sub-contract work, because the tax would be added on to the price of all work done "outside" the company.

VAT would not only freeze out the small sub-contractor, but it would encourage the vertical integration of major companies. For example, an auto company that owned its own steel mill would not pay ten percent tax on the steel in its cars. This would make it profitable for many companies to merge into one very large company. Douglas Aircraft under VAT might find it profitable to eliminate sub-contract work, and on top of that acquire companies that produce electronic equipment, metals, plastics, etc. The result would be a massive, bulky, bureaucratic monster.

We do not need tax reform. We do not need VAT. What America needs is honest tax reduction. In the coming months you can expect to hear a host of Washington snake oil salesmen trying to tell you VAT is the deal of a lifetime. We suggest you take a second look, and walk away.

Inflation results of political policy

By OSCAR COOLEY

Once a week I go to the supermarket to buy groceries. Every week I find many prices changed — upward. Some creep, others take such long jumps I lose them in the clouds.

So again I write about inflation. Sorry, for it is a dismal subject and not the easiest to understand. But it is a result of political policy, a part of the "managed economy," and in a country governed by the people it is important for the people to understand what government is up to.

The thing "inflated" is the quantity of dollars in circulation. When there is an excessive quantity of anything, its price per unit falls. This is just as true of dollars as of corn, shoes or cars.

When the price or value of the dollar falls, each dollar will buy less goods. The goods rise in price per unit.

Since dollars are spent for all kinds of goods, a fall in the value of the dollar means that all goods rise in price. That they do not rise evenly is because other forces are acting on them, different forces on each.

Why have we too many dollars? Because too many have been produced. The cure, then, is to produce fewer. What eager beaver is overproducing dollars?

Some people, familiar with coins and paper money, assume these constitute the nation's money supply. If you ask them, "How about the money in the banks?" they will probably opine that this is just paper money that has been deposited in the banks. They see all of our money as having originated on a printing-press or in a mint.

But this is not the case. Relatively little of it originated that way. Most of the nation's money is the checkbook kind, which people spend by writing checks. Some bills and coins are converted into checkbook money by being deposited. Merchants do this when they get more cash in their registers than they need to make change. Most of our checkbook money has an entirely different origin. It is created in the act of bank lending.

Banks do not lend the money in their vaults. They lend only new money, which is simply an addition to the borrower's checking account balance. By writing a check to "cash" he can convert this into currency in his pocket — that is, withdraw it from the bank. But he does not because it is safer and more convenient to leave it in the bank and draw checks on it.

If most of our money is the checkbook variety, created by the banks, does it follow that the banks originate the inflation? They take part in the action, but the U.S. government, not the private banks, is responsible for the result.

The government, through the Federal Reserve board, controls the rate of bank lending. Every bank must have reserves in order to lend. These reserves are cash, or deposits in other banks that can be quickly converted into cash, with which to meet heavy withdrawals by borrowers. Most banks must maintain a certain ratio of reserves to deposits.

The Federal Reserve has ways of contracting or expanding these reserves and thus contracting or expanding bank lending power. Thus the Federal Reserve board of governors, a government agency, controls the money supply.

The government also gets in the act when it borrows to pay its bills. Much of this borrowing is from the private banks, and this, as I have noted, increases the money supply.

When the U.S. Treasury wants to borrow more, the Federal Reserve expands the banks' ability to lend. Thus, the two — Treasury and Fed — work together to expand the money. It is they, that are responsible for overdoing the act and causing inflation.

Do these government agencies intentionally generate inflation? One would assume not. They, as well as you and I, can see its evils. But they, too, are run by human beings, and there is seldom agreement among their people on what the policy of the moment should be.

Then, too, they are not wholly their own master. Undoubtedly the secretary of the Treasury would often like to see the government operate more nearly on a cash basis. But the president and Congress have many projects and causes for which they want to spend money. So, deficit financing has become a habit.

Clearly, the federal government manages our money. When the dollar changes in value, upsetting all prices, the government has mismanaged it. This frequently happens, but we continue our system of government-managed money.

Should we do so? Or should we quit money management and let money manage itself? That is a $64 question you seldom see discussed but which most emphatically should be.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Sept. 25, the 268th day of 1979. There are 97 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On this date in 1789, the first United States Congress, meeting in New York, adopted 12 amendments to the Constitution. Ten of the amendments became the Bill of Rights.

On this date:
In 1513, Spanish explorer Balboa crossed the Isthmus of Panama and discovered the Pacific Ocean.

In 1555, the Peace of Augsburg in Germany granted Lutheran states the same rights as Roman Catholic states.

In 1775, the American Revolutionary War hero, Ethan Allen, was captured by the British and Indians as he led an attack on Montreal.

In 1890, Yosemite National Park in California was established by an Act of Congress.

In 1940, during World War II, the collaborationist Quisling government was established in Norway.

In 1957, U.S. Army troops armed with rifles and bayonets escorted nine black children into Central High School in Little Rock, Ark.

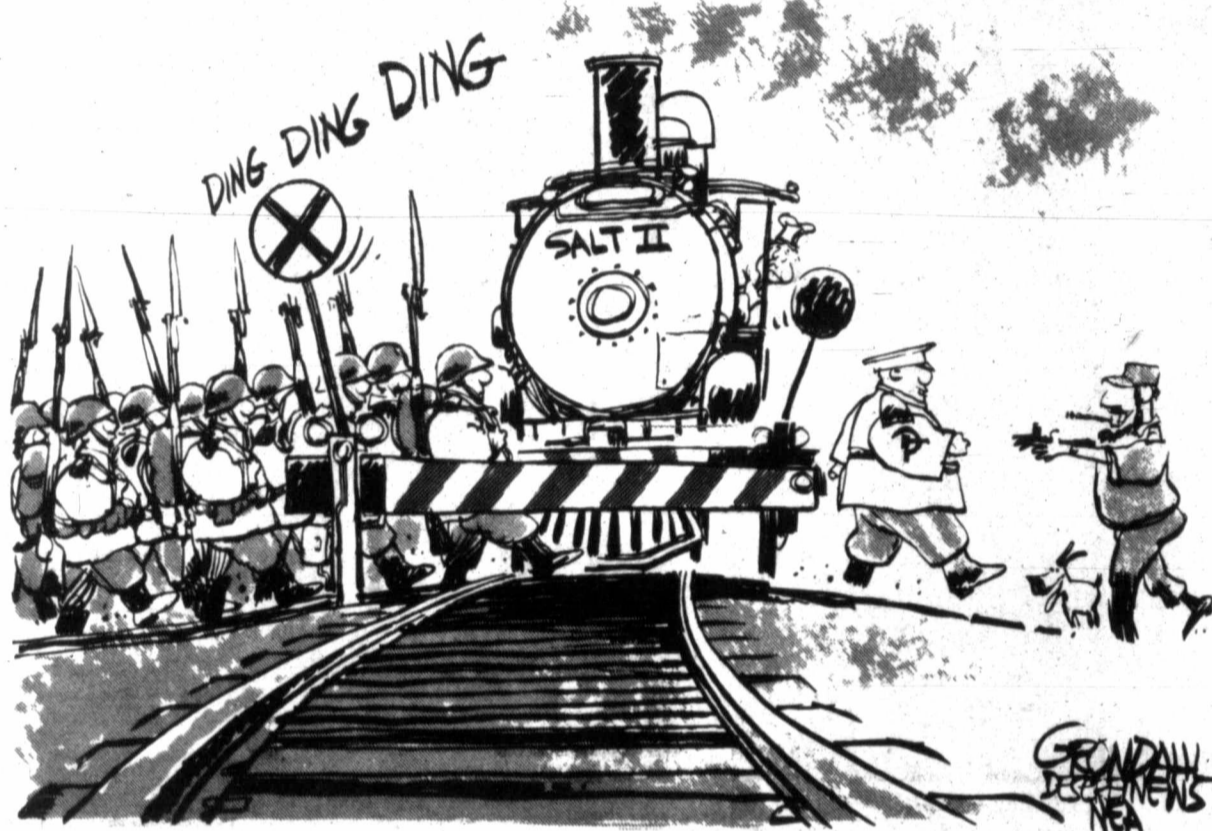

Ten years ago: Five persons were injured and nine arrested in Chicago as white construction workers barred black leaders from testifying at a federal hearing on discrimination in the building trades.

Five years ago: It was disclosed that former President Richard Nixon, hospitalized for phlebitis in Long Beach, Calif., had developed a potentially dangerous blood clot in his right lung.

One year ago: A total of 150 persons were killed when a jetliner collided with a private plane in the air over San Diego.

Today's birthdays: Prime Minister Eric Williams of Trinidad and Tobago is 68 years old. Former baseball star Phil Rizzuto is 61.

Thought for today: It wasn't until quite late in life that I discovered how easy it is to say, "I don't know." — Somerset Maugham, English writer, 1874-1965.

The new status

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON—Your status in Washington is no longer based on your title in government, nor how much entertaining you do, nor even if you come from Georgia. You are now judged strictly on real estate.

I attended a party recently and my hostess was all aglow. "I want you to meet the most divine couple," she said. "These are the Schmerztzes."

The name didn't ring a bell. "They bought a house in Georgetown in 1965 for $14,000 and it is now worth $350,000," she explained.

I got excited. "Forgive me," I apologized. "I didn't know you were (ital) those (unital) Schmerztzes. I've been reading about you in the real estate pages. Didn't you get a mortgage for 4 1/2 percent?"

"It was actually 4%," Schmerztz said modestly. "You know how real estate reporters tend to exaggerate."

Everyone gathered around the couple, while Sen. Teddy Kennedy stood in a corner all by himself. I looked around the room and couldn't believe my eyes. Coming in the door was Ziggy Wintermelon. I went over to my hostess. "Marion, how did you ever get Ziggy Wintermelon, the condominium king, to come to your party?"

She just grinned mysteriously. "I told him Sam Freed might be here tonight. Wintermelon has been dying to meet him ever since Sam sold his mobile home in Potomac for $750,000."

"Is Freed coming?" I asked.

"He's already here, darling. He's talking to that man with the glasses and frizzy hair over there—I forget his name."

"That's Henry Kissinger," I told her.

"It's funny I don't remember inviting Kissinger. He really doesn't fit in with these people," she said.

"You certainly turned out the stars," I told her. "Isn't that Vic Orsini who just bought a million-dollar townhouse in the Kalorama section of Washington?"

"Yes, he closed on Friday. I believe he told me he's paying 12 percent for a 25-year mortgage which the bank insists it wants to renegotiate every five years. Vic's not too bright, but he's fun to have around."

"Why isn't anyone talking to Vice President Mondale and his wife?"

"They get free housing at the Naval Observatory. What could you talk to them about?"

"Marion," I said, "is it true the Stauntons sold their house in Alexandria for what they paid for it five years ago?"

"I'm afraid so. They seemed like such a nice couple. I don't know what got into them. Most people have dropped them, but I still say hello to her when I see her at Bloomingdale's."

Marion surveyed the room. Suddenly I saw her eyes stop. "I told Chief Justice Burger not to bug Charley Smith about buying a house in Mount Vernon," she said. "Warren knows perfectly well Charley can't discuss his projects while they're still being developed."

"Maybe Burger forgot," I said.

Marion took out her guest list. "Perhaps you can help me with the seating protocol. I have three Supreme Court justices, the Vice President of the United States, six senators and Carey Winston, the mortgage banker. Should I put Carey on my left or my right?"

Effective intelligence

America's continuing defeats in the global arena highlight the breakdown of the nation's intelligence apparatus. The United States has no effective means of dealing with subversive warfare against itself, its friends and allies.

Debilitating political attacks against the CIA and the FBI have crippled these agencies' effectiveness in countering revolutionary political activity at home and abroad. National security has suffered enormously.

The task now is to rebuild the capability of the CIA and FBI and to free them of unwise restraints imposed in the post-Vietnam era: A sensible guideline to what must be done has been issued by the Intelligence Advisory Subcommittee of the Council on National Security and International Affairs of the Republican National Committee. This subcommittee, headed by Richard V. Allen, has done a superb job of drafting sound, non-partisan recommendations.

The subcommittee points out that "a national consensus is emerging on the need for invigorating and making our intelligence capability more reliable."

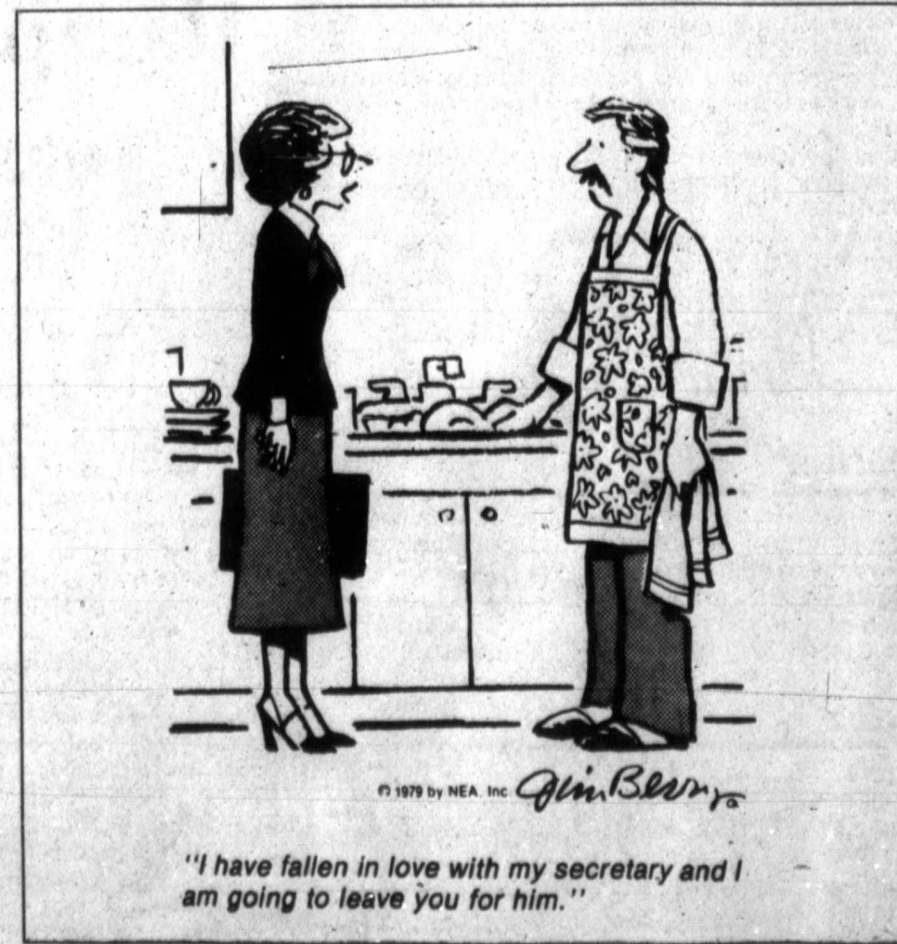

However, it terms the administration's proposal—the "National Intelligence Reorganization and Reform Act of 1978"—wholly inadequate and unacceptable. Instead, it recommends that the rebuilding of intelligence services be within the framework of the National Security Act of 1947, which has worked well for 30 years. The administration plan has been drawn up by a small group that wants to continue its vendetta against the CIA. The left-liberals in the administration see the main threat to Americans as coming from our own government.

The subcommittee's plan is too detailed to present in this space. Its provisions, however, would assure effective action against enemies of the United States. It would put the United States government fully behind counter-intelligence action to protect U.S. interests.

The report also points out that the Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act "have had a definite adverse effect on how both law enforcement and intelligence agencies operate." These acts have contributed to the virtual dismantling of the federal loyalty-security program. As a result, it's impossible to make meaningful security checks on people in sensitive government positions.

Second reservation chief fired

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The "second chief" of the financially strapped Alabama-Coushatta Reservation — a former Rusk football coach who served as superintendent at the East Texas reservation since 1972 — has been asked to resign his $19,600 post.

The Texas Indian Commission told Emmet Battise Monday that the reservation's financial losses forced them to make a change.

Commissioner Jack Stallings predicted that Battise would not understand the decision.

He was right.

"The commission, all they look for is the bottom line, not the feeling of the people. I talk about warm bodies. They talk about cold cash," Battise told reporters.

Stallings said tribal enterprises at the 540-resident reservation are expected to lose $95,000 this fiscal year. He said residents of the reservation — including Battise's brother, the housing administrator — are $78,000 behind in their rent.

"This is a management problem the commission was forced into facing. This doesn't mean you are a failure," Stallings told Battise.

Battise, 57, was named second chief of the tribe in 1970. His 1972 appointment as superintendent was endorsed by the tribe. But Stallings said the tribe was not consulted about the resignation request.

"We would have never got a concurrence. They just would not have understood," Stallings said. He added he did not think the council would take action against the commission.

"They've received about $10 million since the inception of this commission. I don't believe they would cut that off. But if that's their decision we'll have to abide by it," he said.

Battise charged that the commission and its staff do not understand Texas Indians.

"I have been attacked by different ones. I wish I knew how much they know about Indians. ... Only blacks know blacks and only Indians know Indians," he told the commission.

After the meeting Battise said Walter Broemer, commission executive director, is "trying to get complete control of both reservations (the Alabama-Coushatta and Tigua)."

"They told me to write a letter (of resignation), but I'm not going to write a letter yet," he said. He added he might go to court.

The commission approved a resolution accepting Battise's resignation as of Oct. 15.

The squabble between Battise and the commissioners expanded when he refused to fire his brother Gemar as housing administrator. Commissioner Frank Heldenbrand said Gemar Battise is about $1,500 behind in his rent.

Heldenbrand, a Cherokee, said Battise's brother was setting a "bad example for my people."

Luncheon kick-off opens drive

The kick-off luncheon of the Special Gifts Division of the United Fund was opened today by Chairman Gary Stevens.

The Special-Gifts Division is in charge of collecting donations of $50 and over from small businessmen in the city.

Dick Slower, Chairman of the United Fund for Pampa, gave a brief welcome to the volunteers and reminded them of the United Fund Kick-off Banquet to be held in M. K. Brown Auditorium, Oct. 1, at 6:30 p.m.

Joe Chambers presented a slide program about the United Fund in the city and the agencies it will be helping, entitled: "THE PAMPA UNITED FUND: A closer look"

After the program, Chairman Stevens reminded volunteers of their goal of $36,231, and for each committee chairman to set a goal of $3,600 for their committee.

Committee chairmen for the Special Gifts Division are: Joe Gidden, Joe Chambers, Phil Gentry, Floyd Sackett, Phil Vanderpool, Bill Balcom, Bob Douthit, Kathy Pratt, Benny Kirksey, and Judy Edwards.

Davis named Hightower assistant

Congressman Jack Hightower has named Bob Davis of Amarillo as a new assistant working in the district and headquarters in Amarillo effective October 1st.

Davis, 44, graduated from Amarillo High School in 1952, then attended Amarillo College prior to graduating from West Texas State University in 1956 with a degree in biology. He has done post-graduate work in psychology and English.

Married to the former Rose Ann County of Amarillo, Davis has served Amarillo civic interests as a member of the board of directors of the Downtown Kiwanis, as a member of the Speaker's Bureau for the United Fund, and as an active member of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

"Bob has traveled the northern counties of the district from Childress to the top of the district in his former occupation as a representative of Searle Laboratories," Congressman Hightower said. "He knows the area well and will give our constituency the kind of professional service they have come to expect."

"I am delighted to be associated with Congressman Hightower and his staff and am looking forward to expanding the availability of services offered by the district offices that comes from having someone in the field," Davis said.

He and Rose Ann have three sons, Kirk, 22, Todd, 21, and Craig, 20. The family attends the Polk Street Methodist Church.

Murder charges lodged

GUYMON, Okla. (AP) — First-degree murder charges were filed in district court here Monday afternoon against two young ranch hands accused in the shooting death of Texas millionaire rancher Ben Stokes.

Texas County District Attorney Don Woods said the murder charges were filed against 18-year-old Michael Wayne Taylor and 20-year-old Rex Bryan McCubbin.

He said the pair was being held without bond after being arraigned on the charges in district court. Their preliminary hearing was set for 10 a.m. Oct. 9.

Taylor and McCubbin were arrested after the body of Stokes, 73, of Borger, Texas, was found Friday evening near in a rugged area near the Palo Duro River.

Krueger may be on job soon as special Mexican ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — An ambassador-at-large for Mexico, confirmed by the Senate, may be on official duty by the time Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo arrives at the end of the week for talks with President Carter.
The Senate Foreign Relations Committee cleared the way Monday by voting 96 in favor of Bob Krueger's nomination for the new position.
The last hurdle remaining for the former Texas congressman is confirmation by the full Senate, with a vote expected to be scheduled as quickly as possible.
Most opposition came from Republican committee members. Krueger lost a tight, bitter Senate race last year to incumbent Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.
Carter nominated Krueger as ambassador-at-large and coordinator of U.S.-Mexican relations in June, but word of the choice first circulated in the spring.
Krueger moved into State Department quarters in July while waiting for Senate action. The nominee took an active part in the natural gas negotiations that led to an agreement announced Friday.
He received an angry response from Lopez Portillo by suggesting that the U.S. was interested in discussing liability for the oil soiling Texas beaches from a runaway Mexican offshore well.

Krueger testified on his own behalf last week before the committee, but some senators skeptical of the need for a precedent setting title requested an additional meeting with Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher before the vote.
The title "ambassador-at-large" apparently never has been given to an official nation.
Christopher told the committee that the appointment of a second ambassador for Mexico would not push the U.S. toward creating equivalent posts for other nations.
He said relations with Mexico are different because more agencies in the Washington bureaucracy have a say in issues affecting them.
"More issues span the dividing line between foreign and domestic concerns, more domestic departments and agencies are involved and more issues directly involve domestic concerns," Christopher said.
One of Krueger's main responsibilities would be to supervise U.S.-Mexican groups that discuss problems involving energy, trade, finance, industry and development, migration, border issues, law enforcement and tourism.

Christopher said the title "ambassador-at-large" would make Krueger's position more effective and would not interfere with the status of the ambassador in Mexico City.
"Rather, the coordinator's function would be to develop a coherent and coordinated U.S. policy toward Mexico," the deputy secretary of state said. "He would be responsible for working closely with a high-ranking Mexican official of equal rank and would serve as chairman of a special interagency group of cabinet and sub-cabinet level officials here in Washington."
Krueger did not attend the committee's session Monday. He said in a telephone interview he was not surprised by the vote.
The nominee added that Senate confirmation will make some parts of his job easier but his duties had started without it.
"When we concluded the natural gas deal in Mexico... I said in my judgment we have now removed the biggest symbolic obstacle in the relations between the two countries," Krueger said.

'Lifeline' rates could be costly

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Special "lifeline" telephone rates — designed to give a price break to the poor — could cost talkative Texans more than normal rates under a Public Utility Commission staff proposal.
That was the admission of staff economist Julie Parsons during cross-examination Monday at the PUC hearing on Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s request for $145.2 million in rate increases.
Several persons involved in the hearing, which began Sept. 14, gave it a good chance of concluding today after Bell produces five rebuttal witnesses.
Ms. Parsons drew up PUC staff recommendations for allocating the rate increases among different classes of Bell customers, with a large chunk falling on residential consumers.
Her recommendations would raise monthly household bills by from 90 cents to $1.20, depending upon how much of Bell's revenue needs are met by other customers.
She also said "lifeline" or measured rates should be based not only on the number of calls made in a month but also on how long they last. Under the present system, a lifeline customer pays less than the normal rate but must also pay eight cents per call if he or she makes more than 25 calls a month.
If duration of the call is added to the lifeline equation, Bell has suggested allowing $2 worth of free calls each month, based on four cents for the first minute and one cent for each additional minute.
"What if somebody made 25 10-minute calls?" asked Carol Barger, attorney for the Consumers Union and the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now.

Ms. Parsons replied the result would be to add $2.50 to the customer's bill and make it higher than if he or she obtained regular telephone service.
"If they made 25 three-hour calls, the result would be even worse," she said.
Ms. Barger later said business measured rate customers have longer "holding times" than residential users, yet Ms. Parsons limited her recommendation for duration charges to households.
"It was wholly arbitrary. She demonstrated a complete insensitivity to residential users, in my opinion," said Ms. Barger, who had urged the lifeline concept on the PUC last year.
Child welfare board to meet
The Gray County Child Welfare Board of Directors will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Gray County Courthouse annex.
A closed session will be held to discuss case reports and monthly foster care board billings.
Fund to help injured youth
A fund to help offset the expenses of Larry Kelly's family has been established at Citizen's Bank & Trust.
Kelly, a newcomer to the Pampa area, was injured while playing softball recently and is recuperating in the intensive care unit at Highland General Hospital.
He will not be able to work for some time, so donations to help with the family expenses will be greatly appreciated.

Legal battle has begun over tapes of alleged death plot

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — The legal battle has begun over whether jurors in the civil disbarment trial of Hidalgo County District Attorney Oscar McInnis will hear tapes of conversations in which the prosecutor allegedly plotted a man's death.
"We're getting into the meat of this," District Judge Joe Evans said late Monday before sending lawyers on both sides scurrying to their law books to research the critical question.
The State Bar of Texas claims the tapes of McInnis' conversations with a jail inmate will support its allegation that the district attorney engaged in professional misconduct by trying to arrange a murder.

McInnis, who faces the possible loss of his law license, claims he was framed on the tapes by a "courthouse conspiracy" aimed at forcing him out of office.
Evins said he will let jurors listen to the controversial conversations unless lawyers for McInnis can cite laws or previous court decisions today against use of the tapes.
Criminal murder-conspiracy charges against McInnis were dropped after state and federal judges ruled the tapes could not be used in the courtroom as evidence. Those rulings do not apply in the civil proceeding, which is in its second week.
Jurors got a brief look at three of the tapes Monday when they identified by Hidalgo County Sheriff Brig Marmolejo as being the same ones he took from inmate Daniel Rodriguez in the spring of 1978.
The sheriff had given Rodriguez a tape recorder to get proof McInnis was talking seriously about wanting Noe Villanueva killed.

DECA members travel to Lubbock

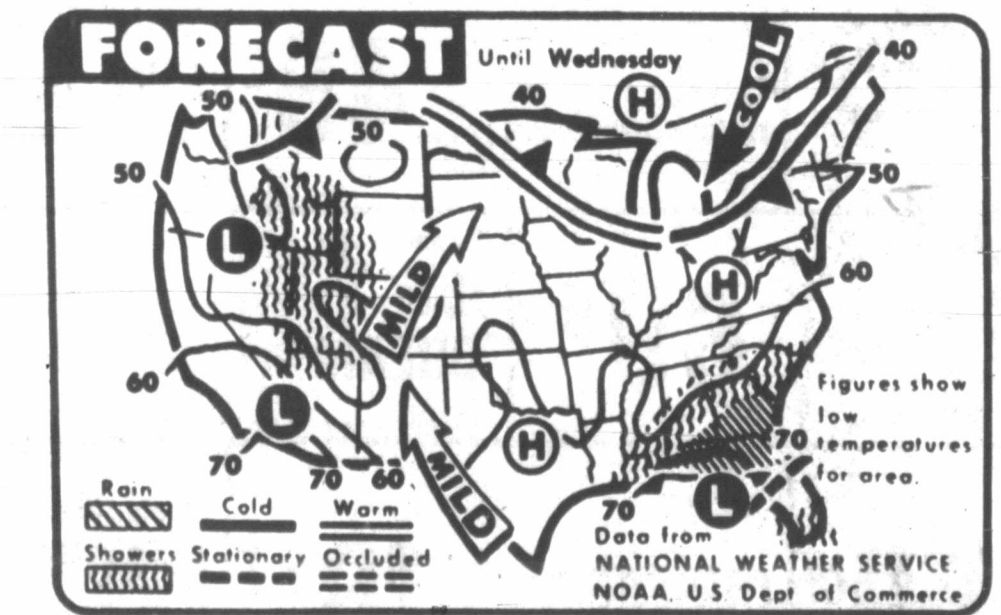

Area VI Leadership Lab in Lubbock recently. Nickita Kadingo, historian of the Pampa Chapter, was an assistant in teaching the lab.
The purpose of the areawide leadership lab was to train students in leadership techniques and allow them to meet other DECA members from the Panhandle and South Plains of Texas.
The Pampa Chapter recently elected 1979-80 officers at its first professional meeting. The slate of officers for the chapter will be Lisa Schaub, president; Tena Cotham, honorary president; Tammy Minard, vice-president; Nickita Kadingo, historian; Sandy Warner, secretary; Kim Gattis, parliamentarian; Cary Raulston, reporter; and Jerry Little, photographer.

Texas

By The Associated Press
A weak cold front pushed into the Texas Panhandle early today, but forecasters said it wasn't expected to cause much change in the Texas weather scene.
Forecasts called for continued mostly fair skies and warm temperatures statewide.
Highs were to range from the 80s in Northeast Texas, along the coast, in the Panhandle and the mountains of Southwest Texas to the 90s elsewhere.
Some early morning fog was reported in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and along the coast, but most of the state had clear skies and temperatures mostly in the 50s and 60s.
Early morning temperature extremes ranged from 47 at Marfa to 70 at several locations in South Central Texas.

RAIN AND SHOWERS are expected in the forecast period for the Southeast and for the western plains and eastern Rockies. Mild weather is forecast for most of the nation. (AP Laserphoto Map)

NATIONAL

Showers and thundershowers stretched today from the eastern Gulf Coast and the southern Appalachians to the central and southern Atlantic Coast. Some rain also was scattered over the Central Plateau and southern sections of the Pacific Coast.
The already rain-soaked Tampa, Fla., area got some relief early today as downpours bypassed the vicinity and flood waters began receding, authorities said.

A cold front hovering near the central Gulf Coast brought more rain to the already-soggy area earlier Monday, but starting moving slightly northward, forecasters said.
In Pinellas, Fla., some homeowners waded through waist-deep water from the persistent rains that have lashed the area since Friday.
Several major thoroughfares in Tampa and northern Hillsborough County were closed to traffic Monday morning because of gushing storm runoff. Families living along the Hillsborough River and the Alafia and Little Manatee rivers in the southern part of the county reported homes flooded.

Cold temperatures were reported in Michigan, Illinois and Missouri with chilly readings also reported in the southern Atlantic Coast states.
Temperatures before dawn ranged from 36 at Portland, Maine, to 89 at Yuma, Ariz.

EXTENDED

North Texas: Clear to partly cloudy and mild through Saturday. High temperatures 85 to 93. Lows in the 60s.
South Texas: Partly cloudy and warm through Saturday. Highs in the 80s and low 90s. Lows in the 60s and low 70s.
West Texas: Mostly fair through Friday.

FOCUS

Public Occurrences
Banned in Boston
On this day in 1690, an Englishman named Benjamin Harris published the first newspaper in the American colonies. It didn't look much like the modern newspaper you're reading today. Harris, who ran a Boston coffeehouse and bookstore, called his newspaper Public Occurrences Both Foreign and Domestic. It had only four pages — three pages of printed news, and a blank fourth page, where readers could write their own notes. Harris promised to continue publishing Public Occurrences at least once a month, but he never got the chance. The paper was unlicensed, and the British governor banned Public Occurrences after its first issue.

Miller chairs employee drive

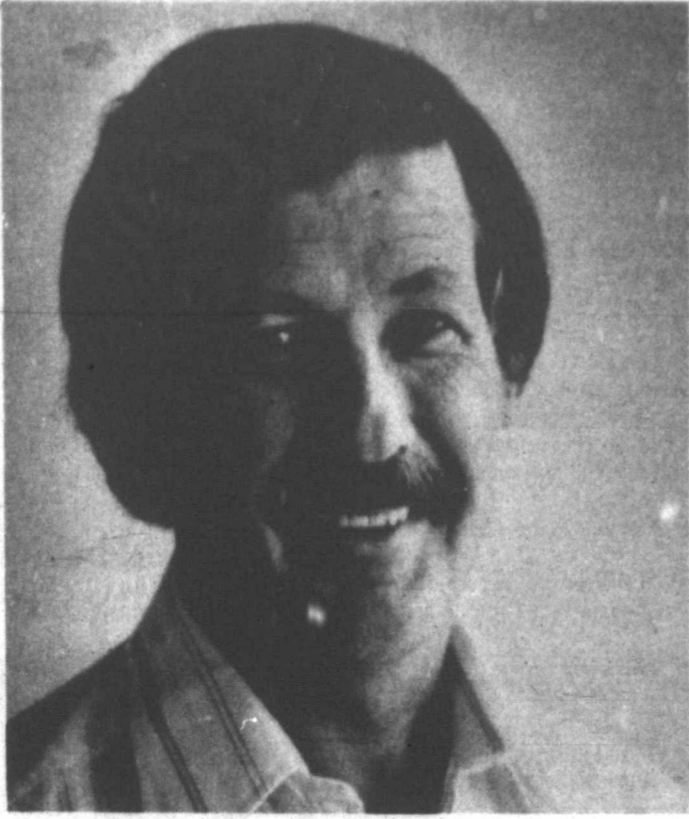

Al Miller, chairman of the Employee Gifts Division of the 1979 United Fund campaign, says, "I feel it's important to do something good for yourself by helping someone in need."

Miller, industrial relations manager at Celanese, says the Employee Gifts division plays an important role as part of the total campaign.

"The division is responsible for contacting business and industry to provide the opportunity for individuals at these locations to participate in the United Way," he explains.

Rearred and educated in the Corpus Christi area, Miller has worked for Celanese 25 years and has worked at all the chemical company's plant locations.

He and his wife, Debbie, have three children, Mona Martin of Jackson, Miss., Lance Miller of Pampa and Dusty Miller of Austin.

Howard lends hand in campaign effort

Assisting Al Miller with the Employee Gifts Division of the 1979 United Fund effort is Les Howard.

As co-chairman, Howard says, "Most of my responsibility will be to assist Al Miller and to fill in when he can't be available for a meeting or has a special problem that needs to be taken care of."

Howard says the campaign has a good set of volunteers helping once again with the fund-raising effort.

A native of Pampa, Howard attended Pampa schools and Stephen F. Austin State College. He is employee benefits manager at Cabot Corporation.

He and his wife, Patricia, have two children, Blake, 17, and Karie, 13. They live at 2705 Comanche.

Homemakers

to state conference

Three homemakers from Gray County are attending the statewide conference of the Texas Extension Homemakers Association in Fort Worth.

Marilyn Butler, Janice Carter and Katy McDonald, all members of extension homemakers clubs in Gray County, and Elaine Houston, county extension agent, will spend Tuesday and Wednesday at the conference, which has the theme, "Living, Learning and Sharing in Century III".

Ysleta Kudlaty, Lamar University director of university counseling, will be the keynote speaker. Her address to the association will be on stress management for the homemaker.

Other conference highlights include educational committee workshops on health, safety, 4-H and youth, recreation and cultural arts, family life and citizenship. Additional workshops concern membership and public information.

More than 1,000 Texas Extension Homemaker delegates are expected to attend the conference, according to Mrs. Charles Warminski of White Deer, TEHA president.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a young lady who happens to be gay. I'd like to tell my mother but I don't know how she'll react. I read in a "Dear Abby" column where this lady wrote about her gay husband and Abby told her to "give him up."

I don't want my mother to give me up. I love her very much and it would hurt me to have her give up on me. What should I do? — J.J., Tacoma, Wash.

J.J.: Talk to your mother. It's very rare that a mother "gives up" on a daughter, regardless of the reason.

Dr. Wallace: My sister is three years older than I and has legal custody of me since my parents divorced.

My problem is that every time we are together, we argue. I figure if I didn't talk to her that we wouldn't argue but my sister insists on asking me questions.

Even if I swear at her politely, she tells me not to get smart. Please tell me what to do. — Linda, Mount Vernon, Ohio

Linda: Many times it is difficult to take "orders" from someone as young as your sister. But remember you are under her direction and she has a huge responsibility in caring for you.

Be sure you are doing your all to make things harmonious.

P.S. Swearing is swearing even if you swear politely!

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By Louise Pierce

When we middle-aged couples were brides and grooms, nobody could have convinced us that any personal habit, natural or acquired, could ever turn us against the mates we adored. A new spouse was a work of art, a beautiful being who could do no wrong. But that was before years of night-after-night snoring had robbed us of our sleep, soured our dispositions and sometimes even forced us to sigh for the serene quiet of sleeping single.

Most of my friends' husbands reportedly snore in varying degrees of intensity. Now and then it's the wife whose nocturnal nasality deprives her mate of sleep. The culprit doesn't matter — and, in most cases, nobody can help the noises his nose makes when he's asleep. The point is, can we learn to live with snoring and snooze happily beside it? If not, what can we do, short of divorce that three couples our age have told me they resorted to, for that reason?

Otis and I have both endured this problem ever since our togetherness began. But the difference between us is that he can snore himself awake, take note of my raucous snorts — and then drop back into his own night noises within seconds. He says that since I sleep contentedly in noisy cars and planes, I should be able to ignore his snoring and doze off. But I just can't do that. He picks up golf — course dust in summer and temperature changes in winter. Consequently he puts out hard breathing 365 nights a year. He rolls toward my nearest ear and lets out a squawk that any screaming peacock would envy. I sit up straight in bed, wide awake and fuming. I make caustic comments about how the only time Lolly Landrop ever got a good night's sleep was when she went on a solo vacation and Lem Landrop stayed home.

But have I ever considered leaving Otis because he snores? Never. I learned long ago that if you loved a man, you had to love his unavoidable annoyances too. And Otis' snoring, upsetting as it is, is one of his lesser vices. I used to follow all proffered advice — wearing earplugs, whistling at him, covering my head, nudging his ribs until he woke up so I could try to beat him back to sleep, which I never could, and others. Nothing ever worked for me. When my bedmate let out his first nightly howl, I jumped awake and beat on him with both fists, which only served to put him back to sleep and keep me awake until morning.

Finally I did what some of the rest of you have told me to do. I started grabbing my pillow and my nose drops at his first honk. I pulled a couple of sheets off the shelf and took off for the far end of the apartment, where, with cotton in my ears, I could sleep peacefully. Otis took no offense because he didn't know when I left the sack. I've followed that procedure when I need to, ever since. We separate happily for a few hours of the night and live joyously double the rest of the time. I hope you other sufferers will do likewise.

DEAR LOUISE: I've endured my wife's infernal snoring for 25 years. She cries if I tell her I'm going to sleep in the guest room. She says if I love her, I'll stay with her. So I grit my teeth and lie awake half the night before I grab a few winks from sheer exhaustion. I'm cranky all the time because I'm so tired. I don't believe I can stand too many more years of it. We'd both be better off if we separated, wouldn't we? ALWAYS EXHAUSTED

DEAR A.E.: No, I don't agree that separation is your answer. Apparently you are congenial in all ways except in the matter of her snoring. Don't break up your marriage because of this solvable problem. Get a king size bed or twin beds, either of which will move you farther from her heavy breathing. She won't hear you move. So, as soon as she's asleep soundly, you go to the guest room. When she realizes that you are more alert, happier and more loving after you get a good night's sleep, I think she'll vote to continue your nightly separateness.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, who has always been an excellent student, graduated from a fine Eastern school last spring. She decided not to stay for the commencement ceremony since she felt the financial burden wasn't justified. Consequently she felt it would be tacky to send graduation announcements, so she didn't send any.

We have a large family on both sides, and I have always acknowledged graduations with gifts — announced or not. Even though the whole clan was aware of my daughter's graduation, not one sent her a gift!

I am upset over this, and intend to act accordingly when future gift giving events occur in the family.

My daughter thinks I am being overly sensitive. What do you think?

DISAPPOINTED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You are hurt because your daughter's accomplishments were not acknowledged, and I don't blame you. But if you intend to withhold gifts from the clan because they failed to give your daughter a graduation gift, you are, in effect, acknowledging that you give only to get a gift or to repay one.

DEAR ABBY: As you pointed out to STEAMED IN STOCKTON, who cooled his heels in the doctor's office for two hours, emergencies and telephone interruptions can throw any doctor off schedule. As an obstetrician I am particularly susceptible to this, but there is no excuse for keeping a patient waiting for two hours! I don't care whether he earns $50 an hour or is unemployed, every patient's time should be considered as valuable as the doctor's.

If I am running late, my office telephones the patients to let them know before they arrive at my office.

Any patient who is kept waiting for two hours should complain to the receptionist, who booked the appointment, and to the County Medical Society if necessary. Overbooking is a common practice, unfortunately. And unless these doctors who overbook don't get feedback in the form of complaints, they will continue to overbook.

IRVINE, CALIF., DOCTOR

DEAR DOCTOR: You're just what the patient ordered!

Low profile being kept on sodium nitrite

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is keeping a low profile in a flap developing in Congress over a study of sodium nitrite, the chemical used by processors to cure bacon and other meat products.

The study, which prompted USDA and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to consider banning sodium nitrite as a food additive, has been "scientifically discredited," 14 House members said Monday.

They wrote Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland and Patricia Harris, secretary of health, education and welfare, to ask them to remove the cloud of doubt and confusion "over nitrite."

Marilee Menard, a spokeswoman for the Food Safety and Quality Service of Bergland's department, said the Food and Drug Administration of HEW has been handling the scientific review of sodium nitrite. No immediate comment by USDA was available, she said.

In August 1978, USDA and the FDA released the study by a Massachusetts Institute of Technology research scientist. It suggested that nitrite causes cancer in laboratory animals and probably humans.

Nitrite is used in 7 percent of the food supply — most notably to preserve meat products against the growth of bacteria that cause botulism, a deadly food poisoning.

Before the study became public, nitrite had been a concern at the agencies because of a cancer-causing byproduct — nitrosamine — formed during digestion or cooking of some foods containing nitrite, especially bacon.

Permissible levels of nitrite in bacon were lowered in 1978. Present law requires the agencies to ban any food additive found to directly cause cancer in animals or humans, regardless of its benefits.

In March, Bergland and then-HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. asked Congress for an exemption for nitrite, to allow them to phase it out of the food supply as substitutes were found, if it were confirmed as a cancer cause.

In the meantime, they said, government and other scientists would review the study in detail. The review was to be completed this fall. Neither House nor Senate committees have taken any action on the request.

The House members said that an interim report on the review by Universities Associated for Research and Education in Pathology, Inc., "indicates that the study is so scientifically discredited that it should not under any reasonable circumstances serve as a basis for regulatory action."

Wayne L. Pines, spokesman for FDA, said, "The preliminary report... is just that, and it would be premature for anyone to reach any conclusions about the validity of the MIT report on the basis of an interim report."

Pines confirmed, however, that the interim report "raises some questions about some aspects" and that "in any study and in any evaluation of this intensity, there are bound to be questions raised throughout the process."

But the report did not say the MIT study was invalid. Pines said, "We will make no judgment until the final report is in, and I hope other people will maintain the same openmindedness," he said.

An upcoming review by the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, also is unfavorable, the congressman said.

A separate report by the Library of Congress staff recently found that the agencies "abandoned normal procedures" in announcing a probable ban or phase-out before the reviews were completed, they said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland says he expects the strike-bound Rock Island railroad to be back in operation within a few days.

Bergland said Monday that "back-to-work orders are being issued to workers today, literally, and tomorrow, and by the end of the week, I'm told, the Rock Island should be back in the business of hauling grain."

Bergland commented in a telephone interview with a group of farm broadcasters.

The arrangement for Rock Island, he said, is only a "temporary remedy" that fails to solve the longer-term question of it and other railroads in similar straits.

"There are at least 10 railroads operating generally in the grain region that are in some kind of financial difficulty, and the matters don't seem to be getting any better," Bergland said.

"They can't borrow money to fix up their tracks, they can't build or lease new boxcars, and generally are not able to invest at a pace that the business would otherwise demand."

Bergland said the Agriculture Department, in cooperation with the Transportation Department, is looking at railroads from an agricultural perspective to see what might be done on a more permanent basis.

"I think it will lead to the dismantling of certain sections of some railroads," Bergland said. "I'm prepared to put railroad matters on a use-it-or-lose-it basis."

"It takes $400,000 a mile or so to get a railroad up to running speed, and if there isn't going to be enough freight on that line to pay the interest on that investment, then I think we ought to seriously think about abandoning the line and go to trucks for that haul," he said.

"That, of course, is politically unpopular, but, I think, economically necessary."

Senate session not routine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate session began routinely enough. The bell rang and Sen. Bill Bradley rapped for order. The chaplain recited a brief prayer. Some parliamentary business was disposed of and then the chamber fell uncharacteristically silent.

"La de da do," sang Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va. Silence is rarely heard in the Senate. Song is even rarer.

But Byrd is a singer and fiddler of some renown and he had time to kill.

He turned to his Republican counterpart, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee.

"I would like to hear the distinguished minority leader expound on some subject," said Byrd. "Just any subject."

"I heard the majority leader expounding in lyrical tones a moment ago for the edification of the gallery, but since we have already passed that high point in the proceedings of the Senate today, I find myself speechless," replied Baker.

"When the distinguished minority leader is speechless, one notices a great silence fall over this chamber like a cloud," said Byrd.

The problem was Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., the independent from Virginia. He was late. He had reserved 15 minutes to denounce federal spending and growing national debt.

"La de da do," sang the majority leader, once again.

"I must say this may be a historic first in the chamber," said Baker. "I have not heard the musical tones of the majority leadership heretofore, nor have I seen any reference to it in the public press."

"La de da do."

An award for the best description of an uncomfortable situation goes to Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., who had this to say in a radio interview about the Senate Ethics Committee recommendation that he be denounced for financial misconduct:

"Well, I've denounced a lot of people myself, a lot of people have denounced me. I'm sure I'll be denounced in the future, and I'll continue to denounce other people with whom I disagree."

The Senate Judiciary Committee, whose chairman is Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is working on a massive rewrite of the federal criminal code.

Testifying recently on the bill was a former governor of California named Edmund G. Brown, who is the father of the present governor of California, Edmund G. Brown Jr.

The former governor of California commented on the vastness of the undertaking and added:

"I do admire your tenacity, Mr. Chairman, in sticking with the effort. I might also note that just this week my son for the first time expressed to me his interest in the enactment of a code, even if, as he put it, 'the matter requires a full-time effort by Sen. Kennedy in the coming year.'"

Ireland: a prickly Jew

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Without a doubt, the visit of Pope John Paul II to Ireland this week will set off the biggest media Donnybrook since President John F. Kennedy landed in a helicopter on the ancestral potato farm.

In Irish history it may rank as the greatest religious happening, barring miracles down the centuries, since St. Patrick shook up the druids by lighting a big bonfire across from the hill of Tara one Easter morning. The high kings saw the light and embraced Christianity.

The first papal visit ever to the 97 percent Catholic Irish Republic should empty out every cottage and farmhouse from the tip of Donegal to the last lane in Kerry, given the popularity of the present incumbent in the Chair of Peter. But, surprisingly, Papes have not been all that popular in Ireland, despite the overwhelming piety of the people.

No nation in history has been more loyal to Rome, and few a bigger pain in the papal tiara.

"The Irish obey but they still do it their way," reported a papal nuncio who had been dispatched by Gregory the Great to bring the Irish into line on custom and ritual. That was almost a millennium and a half ago.

Ireland's first contact with the papacy came in 431 when Pope Celestino sent Palladius to "convert this pagan isle," but he died and St. Patrick got the job.

The Irish went their own way, celebrating an earlier Easter, allowing some of the clergy to marry, despite the efforts of Popes Honorius, John IV and Gregory VII to get them to conform. The popes were further piqued when the Irish showed no great enthusiasm to join the Crusades.

Finally in 1155, Adrian IV, the first and only English pope, commissioned King Henry II to invade Ireland and reform its church. Praised by the Pope for his efforts to "bring the truth to a rude and unlettered people," Henry displayed his piety by arranging the murder of Thomas A. Becket.

Still the Irish remained loyal to the old religion. When Henry VIII broke with Rome over his divorce, his governor in Ireland, Anthony St. Leger, urged him to adopt the title of King of Ireland, too, "for the Irish have a foolish opinion that the Bishop of Rome is their king."

Judge waits on juror report

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — District Judge Gordon Gray today waited for a medical report on an injured juror in the Cullen Davis murder solicitation trial before deciding whether to delay the trial or continue with only 11 jurors.

Juror Kathryn Holman, 53, a housewife, broke her leg during a weekend shopping trip and underwent surgery Monday.

The seventh week of testimony was interrupted until Gray could determine how long Mrs. Holman would need to recuperate.

"If it's going to be too long, we will go on," Gray told the remaining jurors. "But if it's a short-time thing, say a week or 10 days, you can be excused until she can be back with you."

Gray excused the jurors at midmorning and said they would be notified by phone as to whether the trial would proceed or be delayed. The judge said the trial could continue with 11 jurors if the attorneys on both sides wanted to proceed.

However, Gray said he would not recommend such action, and the attorneys concurred.

by bernice bede osol

September 26, 1979

This coming year should be an exciting one for you, faced with many happy experiences. New fun paths will be found to lead you out of past ruts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your actions today will have a definite style and flair which others will find both stimulating and inspiring, especially members of the opposite sex. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It's not likely you'll settle for second-best where your ambitions are concerned today. You'll know what you want and exactly how to get it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Because you are able to see sunshine instead of shadows today, that which appears to be difficult to others will be a snap for you. You'll make things go your way.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This could be a very unusual, yet beneficial, day for you, due to the efforts of others who will be working on your behalf for unselfish reasons.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Persons you deal with today will know instinctively that you want to be cooperative and fair. They'll make concessions they normally wouldn't.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) For the next few days your luckiest areas will be those which affect your status and career. Opportunities could present themselves in unusual ways.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take advantage at this time of all opportunities to expand your range of social contacts. Exciting and beneficial happenings could develop.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you have the wherewithal to gain not merely well-wishers, but also active working assistants to help you change things you want to alter for the better.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The types of companions you choose today will have a great influence on what you hope to accomplish. Team up with doers and this will be a red-letter day.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Focus your efforts today on things that could contribute to the security of you and your family. Success is likely if your motivation is strong enough.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Events will develop today so as to give you opportunities to utilize your organizational skills. You'll relish the challenge and do a good job.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your greatest benefits today will come from areas where you've already done the spadework, rather than from new situations. Seek your harvest there instead of plowing fresh fields.

DALLAS COWBOY TIGHT END Billy Joe Dupree finds his path shortened by Cleveland Browns defensive tackle Jerry Sherk in first half NFL action Monday night. The Browns took the game by an unexpectedly wide margin of 19 points.

(AP Laserphoto)

Monday night jinx haunts Dallas

Browns roll over Pokes

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe gave his teammates a pat on the back for coming up with the big plays, but Dallas linebacker Thomas Henderson couldn't believe the things that happened to the Cowboys in their 26-7 loss to the Browns Monday night.

"We were probably as surprised as most of the fans were," Sipe said. "They (the Cowboys) turned the ball over in critical situations, and it's a credit to us that we came up with the big play."

The veteran quarterback ignited a 20-point, first-period explosion by capping Cleveland's first possession with a 23-yard touchdown pass to wide receiver Dave Logan.

Don Cockroft missed the extra point, but Dallas was forced to punt and Sipe, who connected on 15 of 28 passes for 239 yards, struck again. This time he combined with tight end Ozzie Newsome for a 52-yard score on a broken play.

The stunned Cowboys tried to come back in a hurry, but free safety Thom Darden added insult to injury by ending Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach's string of 150 passes without an interception. He picked off a pass intended for running back Ron Springs and ran 39 yards for a touchdown to build the margin to 20-0 just seven minutes and five seconds into the nationally televised game.

The Cowboys, 3-1, did bounce back after Darden's score on a 48-yard pass from Staubach to wide receiver Tony Hill. But, despite dominating the rest of the half and all of the third quarter, Dallas was stymied by an uncharacteristic rash of errors.

Three fumbles, another interception by Darden, a blocked 35-yard field goal try by Rafael Septien and Septien's missed 47-yard attempt spoiled Staubach's 303-yard passing performance — on 21 of 39 — and kept the Cowboys off the scoreboard the rest of the way.

"They're rolling now," said Henderson about the unbeaten Browns. "They're hot. They're screaming out there like Oklahoma University."

"I don't think much of their offense, though. Did they get some breaks tonight?" he asked with a shake of his head. "They must have had a fairy godmother out there. They scored 20 nonsense points."

The Browns, playing without injured running star Greg Pruitt — who suffered a sprained knee in the second quarter — added a touchdown early in the fourth period on a two-yard dive by fullback Mike Pruitt. It was Cleveland's first score on the ground this season.

"The Browns aren't that much better a team than us, obviously," said dispassionate Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "They're capable of being a playoff team, but it's a different game when you're on top and people are challenging you."

The more excitable Sam Rutigliano, Cleveland's second-year coach, said, "Our team just played great defense. We pressed to cause those mistakes to happen. The key was that we played opportunistic football."

Mean Green, TCU will renew series

DENTON, Texas (AP) — North Texas State University and Texas Christian University, who haven't met in football since 1935, will renew their dormant rivalry beginning in 1984 with four consecutive games.

TCU was scheduled to play Ole Miss from 1962 through 1967 but will now play the Rebels in 1982 at Oxford, Miss., and in 1983 in Fort Worth.

The dates for the resumption of the NTSU-TCU series are:

- Oct. 20, 1984 at Amon Carter Stadium, Fort Worth.
- Oct. 19, 1985 at Texas Stadium, Irving.
- Oct. 18, 1986, Amon Carter.
- Oct. 17, 1987, Amon Carter.

Poll has few changes

By The Associated Press Southern California, Alabama, Oklahoma and Texas continued to dominate The Associated Press college football ratings today, while Missouri vaulted into fifth place and Penn State and Notre Dame tumbled out of the Top Ten.

Southern Cal, a 48-14 winner over Minnesota, received 51 first-place votes and 1,286 of a possible 1,300 points from a nationwide panel of 65 sports writers and broadcasters.

Alabama, which routed Baylor 45-0, received 13 first-place ballots and 1,235 points. Last week, Southern Cal led 49-12 in first-place votes and 1,227-1,153 in points.

Oklahoma held onto third place with 1,122 points following a 49-13 drubbing of Tulsa while Texas received the remaining first-place vote and 1,040 points after finally opening its season with a 17-9 victory over Iowa State.

The top four teams have been the same since the preseason poll.

Missouri jumped from ninth to fifth with 898 points for trouncing Mississippi 33-7 and Nebraska climbed from seventh to sixth with 862 points after downing Iowa 24-21.

Michigan State defeated Miami of Ohio by that same 24-21 score and rose from eighth to seventh with 816 points while Houston, which had the week off, moved up from 10th to eighth.

Rounding out the Top Ten were Washington and Purdue, which were 12th and 17th a week ago. Notre Dame skidded from fifth place to 15th by losing to Purdue 28-22 while Penn State bowed to previously winless Texas A&M 27-14 and slipped from sixth to 18th. Washington defeated Oregon 21-17. This week's Second Ten consists of Michigan, Florida State, Arkansas, Ohio State, Notre Dame, North Carolina State, UCLA, Penn State, Southern Methodist and Louisiana State.

Last week it was Michigan, Washington, Pittsburgh, Florida State, Arkansas, Ohio State, Purdue, Southern Methodist, N.C. State and UCLA.

Pitt dropped out by losing to North Carolina 17-7. The Panthers were replaced by LSU, which walloped Rice 47-3.

Ty Cobb in second place

Rose rewrites history with tenth 200-hit effort

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pete Rose made major league baseball history again Monday night.

The 38-year-old first baseman made it look easy as he stroked a Pete Vukovich pitch into right-center field for his 200th hit of the season. It was the 10th time in his illustrious career Rose had reached that magic figure and only the immortal Ty Cobb and Rose had ever done better than eight.

Later, Rose tried to put the achievement into perspective.

"I don't know," he said when asked to rank his latest accomplishment. "Nobody else has averaged 198 hits over their career. Maybe because I've been so close to 200 every year, I don't realize how unusual this is."

"It's nice. You have to get the at-bats, you have to be durable. You can't get hurt and expect to get 200 hits."

Rose is proud of his durability and points to a major league record-tying 12 consecutive years of 600 or more at bats and his major league mark of 15 years of 600 or more at bats.

"I feel if I get to bat 600 times I'll get my 200 hits," said Rose. "A lot of people counted me out this year and I counted myself out, not because I thought I couldn't do it but because I was getting so many walks."

But Rose caught fire just about a month ago and has banged out 52 hits since Aug. 24. During that span, Rose has gone 52-for-121, a .421 average to raise his season batting average from .306 to .311.

"It always feels good to have good stats in September," said Rose. "People say you are supposed to be tired."

PETE ROSE doffs his hat to the crowd after collecting his 200th hit of the season Monday night in Philadelphia.

PHS spikers come alive for victory over Perryton

By D'ANNA CONWAY

Pampa Coach Lynn Wolfe said "neither team played very well," but her charges came away with a 15-6, 15-10 victory over the Perryton Rangerettes Monday night in Harvester Field House.

At the onset of the contest, it looked as if Pampa was going to have a long night. First-year Perryton coach Charla Ogden disputed a referee's call, nullifying a Pampa score in the process. Thirty seconds later, a mixup at the server's table delayed the game for five minutes.

The holdups merely delayed the Harvester win, however, as Pampa's Alicia Fleming chalked up six straight serving points, three of which were unreturned. Teammate Sharon King contributed a scoring block and spike during the six-point run.

In the latter part of the set, Fleming made two diving saves in the backcourt, attempts which Mrs. Wolfe called "outstanding and beyond normal expectation."

Though Pampa eventually lost control of the ball on that volley, Fleming's heroics were instrumental in pepping up a sluggish Harvester team. Serve from Joanna Porter and Tina Robbins accounted for the last two points of the set.

In the second set, a determined Perryton team took an early 1-2 advantage. But the Harvesters tallied four straight to take the lead for good.

Trailing 11-6 with 3:52 to play, Rangerette Patty Pilcher served four points for her team to bring the score to 12-10. King and Robbins then teamed up for the winning Pampa points.

King pounded a spike at the net to break Pilcher's serve. Robbins served an ace for point number 13. King spiked away the 14th tally and Robbins ended the game with an unreturnable serve.

Pampa served 14 points that were not returned, almost half of its total for the two sets.

Pampa's junior varsity kept its record unblemished at 4-0 with a 16-14, 13-15 and 15-7 victory.

Pampa will host its own tournament Saturday for its next volleyball action. Dumas, Lubbock High and Borger will be on hand to challenge the Pampa girls in the tournament.

Oilers just don't panic

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers, who have engineered more Houdini escapes than the late master himself, have one feature built into every game plan that apparently works — don't panic.

The Oilers were down 23-0 to New England last year when they came back to win 26-23 in a game many players feel solidified the Oilers as a contender.

Oiler Coach Bum Phillips dusted off the old "New England Game Plan" Sunday when the Oilers trailed Cincinnati 24-0 before rallying to a 30-27 victory on a 29-yard field goal by Tom Fritsch.

"When teams get behind they start looking for a quick way to catch up," Phillips said Monday. "If we had known a way to score quick, we'd have done that in the first place."

"We don't give up. We had confidence in our game plan going into the game and we stuck with it. Sometimes it takes a little bit longer to win a football game."

The Cincinnati game will go down with the New England game as another reference point to show the Oilers' comeback resiliency.

"We did the same thing against New England last year," Phillips said. "We scored right before the half and it gave us something to talk about in the dressing room."

"It gave us a reason to think we could comeback. But yesterday proved what I've said about this team for the past two years. Our club is capable of beating anybody."

Oiler linebacker Gregg Bingham said last year's New England game turned the franchise around.

"The New England game made this football team," Bingham said. "It was the key game in the history of the Oilers in the NFL. It makes us believe in ourselves. We've been a different team ever since. Nobody gives up."

The Oilers certainly didn't give up Sunday.

Astros now 2 1/2 games out

Montreal loses, then regains lead

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates got all the support they needed from their fans in the stands. It was on the pitching mound where they were hurting.

With a crowd of 49,137 at Three Rivers Stadium chanting "Defense, Defense" and waving yellow "Terrible Towels" left over from Pittsburgh's football fandom, Pirate followers exhorted their baseball team to hold back the Montreal Expos in the second game of a doubleheader Monday night.

"But Kentelwe couldn't."

"The Expos have come back too many times," said Kentelwe after allowing the Expos to tie the game with three runs in the eighth inning. "You never expect them to roll over and play dead. We had them on the ropes. That's my situation. I'm supposed to finish them off."

"But I didn't. I gave them a second life and they took advantage of it."

After Montreal's rally made it 6-6, the Expos won the game 7-6 in the ninth on Ellis Valentine's run-scoring single. Coupled with a 5-2 loss to Pittsburgh in the opener, the split kept Montreal's National League East lead over the Pirates at a tenuous half-game.

The Houston Astros, meanwhile, were beaten 5-4 and 8-1 by the lowly Atlanta Braves and dropped 2 1/2 games behind the idle Cincinnati Reds in the NL West.

Valentine's game-winning single in the second game for Montreal, which came off losing reliever Grant Jackson, was his first hit in eight times at-bat on the night.

Bill Robinson drove in three runs with a homer and a triple to lead the Pirates' first-game victory.

The Expos and Pirates meet again in single games tonight and Wednesday to close out their season series.

Braves 5-8, Astros 4-1

Jerry Royster hit a run-scoring, ninth-inning single with the bases loaded to rally the Braves to their first-game victory over the Astros.

Royster's liner over left fielder Jose Cruz head came after the Braves had filled the bases with nobody out off loser Joe Sambito, 8-7.

Mickey Mahler, 5-11, got the victory in relief.

Gary Matthews drove in four runs, including two in a five-run sixth inning, to lead Atlanta's triumph in the second game. Eddie Solomon, 7-13, scattered five hits for the Western Division's cellar-dwelling team.

Cardinals 7, Phillies 2

Ken Oberkfell singled home the tie-breaking run in the sixth inning as St. Louis beat Philadelphia in a game highlighted by Pete Rose's record-making 200th hit of the season.

Pete Vuckovich, 15-10, was the winner with relief help from Roy Thomas Randy Lerch, 10-13, took the loss.

Mets 3, Cubs 1

Richie Hebner hit three doubles. Elliott Maddox belted his first home run in over a year and Craig Swan scattered six hits to lead New York over Chicago.

The loss spoiled Joey Amalfitano's debut as interim manager of the Cubs. Amalfitano took over for Herman Franks, who announced his resignation earlier in the day.

Angels 4, Royals 3

The California Angels edged closer to the American League West title, leading now by four games with just five to play.

They combined the five-hit pitching of Nolan Ryan with the hitting of Dan Ford and the fielding of second baseman Bobby Grich to down defending AL West champion Kansas City 4-3 Monday night.

The Angels and Royals meet again here tonight and Wednesday night, and California finishes the season with three games at Texas.

Holidays latest target in suits against visit

Holidays for schoolchildren and county workers in Iowa are the targets of the latest lawsuits inspired by Pope John Paul II's upcoming visit, and in Washington, D.C., dissident priests are urging a clerical boycott of the papal Holy Communion service.

Plans for the rare papal visit have also prompted dissent in Boston, where a federal judge was to rule today in a suit brought by birth control activist Bill Baird over the archdiocese's decision to reserve for persons of its choosing 18,000 of the available seats for a papal Mass on the Boston Common.

Boston is the first stop on the Roman Catholic leader's U.S. itinerary. After his arrival from Ireland on Monday, the pope will also tour New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Des Moines, Iowa, and Washington.

In Iowa, the state Civil Liberties Union stressed that its quarrel is with public — not church — officials in the suit it plans to file today to overturn the decision to close schools in the Lenox School District southwest of Des Moines during the pope's visit.

On Monday, the ICLU went to court to stop Polk County supervisors from giving workers a paid holiday on Oct.

4, claiming a violation of constitutional guarantees of church-state separation. A hearing was set for Thursday before U.S. Judge William C. Stuart.

Steven Brown, executive director of the ICLU, told a news conference that the group objects to the day off because some $50,000 in tax funds would be spent on holiday salaries and because it would deny county services to the four plaintiffs in the suit.

Brown said that while the pope is a head of state, he is coming primarily for religious purposes and that the four-hour visit to Des Moines will be given over almost entirely to saying Mass.

Brown said officials of the Des Moines Catholic Diocese "have been very cooperative throughout all this. They have expressed great sensitivity to church and state issues."

In Washington, the dispute centers on the role of women in the church. A group of priests known as "Priests for Equality" is urging Catholic clergy in the Washington area to refuse to help distribute the Holy Eucharist during a papal Mass on the Mall.

The dissidents are upset over a Vatican directive forbidding lay women who regularly serve as special Eucharistic ministers from assisting at the papal Mass. Priests for Equality hope the boycott will force the pope to call on women.

Meanwhile, in New York, where police have code-named the papal visit "Operation Shepherd," officials are taking special steps to prevent imposters from attending papal events dressed as priests and nuns. The pope's two-day stay in New York includes 58 miles of motor trips through city streets, and Police Commissioner Ellen Fleysher predicted that traffic would be a "nightmare."
