Gov. Clements supports Reagan

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan, winner of the Texas Republican primary election, got a boost Monday from Texas Gov. Bill Clements, who said he thought Reagan could carry Texas in November.

President Jimmy Carter coasted to an easy win in Saturday's Democratic primary.

"I am doing what I said I would do 18 months ago," Clements told a Capitol news conference. "I am enthusiastically abiding by the decision of the majority and declaring my support of Gov. Reagan. I fully believe he can win the support of conservative Democrats and independents as well as all Republicans."

Clements added he thought Mr. Reagan pretty well has the nomination locked up.

The Republican governor also commented on the big block of voters that marked "uncommitted" on Democratic ballots Saturday.

"I think this 19 percent obviously said, 'We don't like either one of the Democratic candidates, and I think Mr. Reagan will get these votes in November,'" Clements said.

Clements said he had not talked with Reagan or

George Bush since the GOP primary.

He repeated he would not accept a cabinet post under a Republican president under any circumstances. He also said again that he considered it a patriotic duty for anyone to accept the post of vice president if it was ever offered "and I would do the same, but there is no indication of that."

U.S. Rep. John Anderson, who dropped out as a GOP presidential aspirant, was scheduled to start a petition drive in Texas Monday to get on the November ballot as an independent candidate.

Carter easily overwhelmed Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. — more than 2-to-1 — in the Democratic popularity contest Saturday.

There was no sign the aborted hostage rescue try affected Carter's predicted win over Kennedy.

On the other hand, there was ample evidence that Bush's last-minute campaign drive almost caught front-runner Reagan, who was not declared victor until early Sunday.

The latest unofficial results on the presidential preference primary.

With 99 percent of the Democratic vote counted, Carter had 766,704 or 56 percent, Kennedy 310,701 or 22 percent and uncommitted 256,240 or 19 percent.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who withdrew but still had his name on the ballot got a small vote.

With 99 percent of the Republican vote counted, Reagan had 263,616 or 52 percent; Bush 237,379 or 47 percent and 7,923 or 1 percent uncommitted.

Reagan's win in the GOP popularity poll indicated he would get 65 of Texas' 80 delegates to the national convention and Bush 15.

The large uncommitted vote among Democrats puzzled party officials. Some said it was caused by farmers protesting Carter's economic policies, others said some Democrats traditionally vote uncommitted, and others said it was a sign the voters did not like either candidate.

In the statewide races, State Rep. Buddy Temple, D-Diboll, upended Texas Railroad Commission John Poerner of Hondo, who after serving on the important oil and gas regulatory body for two years was seeking a six-year full term. Temple will meet former state Sen. Hank Grover, Houston Republican, in November. Grover was victor in a three-man GOP primary race.

Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, Kerrville, survived a strong campaign against him by former magazine editor Jim Hightower, an avowed consumer advocate. Nugent meets Austin attorney H.J. "Doc" Blanchard, who had no GOP opposition.

New face will join Texas RRC

By JOHN HOTARD
Associated Press Writer

There will be a new face on the Texas Railroad Commission when it convenes next January — either Democrat Buddy Temple or Republican Hank Grover.

Both won nomination Saturday for a full six-year term on the three-member commission, with Temple upsetting incumbent John Poerner and Grover swamping two opponents.

Incumbent Democrat Jim Nugent beat back a strong showing by Jim Hightower, running for office for the first time. Hightower resigned as editor of the liberal Texas Observer magazine and ran as a populist candidate. The pair fought for the two years remaining on a six-year role. Nugent had been appointed in 1978 to serve until this general election.

Grover, a former state senator from Houston who ran a good race for governor six years ago on the Republican ticket, had little trouble defeating Austin real estate broker John Thomas-Henderson and Weatherford auto dealer

E.W. "Billy" Kidd.

Grover will face Temple in the general election.

Nugent's opponent then will be former State Sen. H.J. "Doc" Blanchard, an Austin lawyer and lobbyist, who had no primary opposition.

The third member of the commission, Mack Wallace, was not up for re-election.

Poerner, 48, was commission chairman, a job passed among the three members.

Both Poerner and Nugent were appointed to their powerful posts by former Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Poerner, a South Texas rancher, had campaigned for a proposed high speed train system for the "Texas Triangle" — Houston, Dallas and San Antonio.

Besides the oil and gas industry, the commission regulates public utilities and transportation. Last week it took control of surface mining as Texas became the first state to gain such control from the federal government.

Poerner entered state politics as a member of the Texas House in 1969 as a Republican but returned as a Democrat in 1971 and 1973. Gov. Briscoe appointed him to fill a commission vacancy in 1977 and he was elected to the final two years of that unexpired term in 1978.

Temple, member of a wealthy East Texas family with interests in timber and publishing enterprises, joined the Texas House in 1973.

But now Temple, 38, says he is more of a moderate conservative.

He termed Poerner a lackadaisical commissioner who "did little to influence things."

Youthful newcomer may replace Congressman

DALLAS (AP) — A youthful political newcomer may have given longtime Texas Congressman Jack Brooks the fright of his political life in the Democratic primary, but it so, Brooks kept it to himself.

The veteran of 14 terms in the U.S. House read a victory statement Saturday night and went to bed while crucial returns poured in through the night.

Totals compiled by the Texas Election Bureau alternately showed Brooks with a fraction over or under the necessary 50 percent majority.

Late Sunday night returns showed Brooks with a hair's breadth margin over W.L. Hubba, Pate's 43 percent. Pate, 31, a bus company manager in his first political race, chased Brooks throughout the night Saturday and could force the veteran legislator into a June 7 runoff if the results change again.

District Judge John Brookshire gathered just under 7 percent of the tally.

Ironically, Brookshire had withdrawn from the race complaining of the high cost of campaigning, but was unable to get his name off the ballot in time for the primary. The winner of the Democratic primary will face no GOP opposition in November in District 19.

Brooks read a statement about midnight saying, "I want to thank all the people who have worked so hard to make this victory possible," and went to bed.

Later, Pate, who manages the Continental Bus Co. in Beaumont and teaches at Lamar University, said, "The results show we're in a runoff and if that is the case, I'm looking forward to it and I'm optimistic about the outcome."

Pate boasted of being more conservative than Brooks, while Brooks pointed to his 28 years in Congress and his position as chairman of the Government Operations Committee.

In another close race, former State Sen. Ralph Hall of Rockwall defeated former Denton Mayor Jerdy Gary for the Democratic nomination to Sam Rayburn's old Northeast Texas congressional district.

"I'm very, very happy. We won it with our amateurs. We didn't have a Madson Avenue type campaign, and that's the best way," said Hall, 56.

In November, Hall will apparently face former CIA agent John Wright of Tyler, the leader in a close battle in the Republican primary over J.L. Gulley.

The District 4 battle was one of only two district races without incumbents this election year. In the other, District 14 in the Coastal Bend of South Texas, the Democratic nominee will be decided by a runoff June 10 between Nueces County Judge Bob Barnes and state Sen. Bill Patman of Ganado.

The winner of that runoff will face Republican C.L. Goncklin, a Corpus Christi pediatrician who scored a decisive win over two opponents in the District 14 GOP primary.

The two seats were vacated by the retirement of Ray Roberts in District 4 and Joe Wyatt in 14.

In the other contested races, incumbents ran well ahead of their challengers for re-nomination.

By Associated Press

A woman at the giant killer's headquarters in Bryan answered the telephone Sunday. "Senator Caperton's office."

Well, not Sen. Caperton yet, since Kent Caperton still has a Republican standing between him and the Texas Senate. But one could understand the relation flowing from the state's greatest political upset of 1980.

Caperton, 31, trumped Sen. Bill Moore of Bryan, the fearsome "Bill of the Brazos," who had served in the Senate since 1949, who chaired the powerful Senate State Affairs Committee and could kill a bill with a word, in Saturday's Democratic primary.

Moore, 61, trailed Caperton throughout election night and fell 45,167 votes to 41,314 in unofficial returns.

Conservative business interests, which contributed heavily to Moore's campaign, lost a powerful friend.

Senior senators are expected to scramble for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's favor in appointing Moore's replacement as head of the State Affairs Committee, which deals with taxes, state regulation of business and just about any subject Hobby chooses to send to it.

Caperton, former Bryan city attorney, is a trial lawyer and received $25,000 from the political action arm of the Texas Trial Lawyers' Association. Trial lawyers can be found each session fighting bills that would make it harder for injured Texans — and their attorneys — to win lawsuits against doctors and manufacturers.

"I'm sensitive to the medical community," Caperton said in a telephone interview Sunday. "I have family members who are doctors. So I am probably more moderate on medical malpractice than other trial lawyers."

The Republican nominee for Moore's seat in the Senate is N.A. McNeil of College Station, a Texas A&M University professor.

Caperton calls himself a "moderate conservative" and says he opposes new state taxes and favors some kind of law allowing the use of wiretaps but limited to "very, very rare circumstances."

Five senators had opponents in the primary, but only Moore was defeated.

Winning Democratic nominations to new terms were liberal Sens. A.R. Schwartz of Galveston — who will replace Moore as dean of the Senate and Carlos Truan of Galveston and conservative Sens. Jack Ogg of Houston and Grant Jones of Abilene.

Pilot says mission a 'cakewalk'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — One of the pilots involved in the unsuccessful attempt to rescue the Americans held hostage in Tehran says he regrets the mission was canceled because it would have been a cakewalk.

The pilot, who was stationed at the New River Marine Air Station near Jacksonville, said the loss of three of eight rescue helicopters was by no means fatal to the mission.

The pilot, who asked not to be identified, was one of six men from the air station who joined two other Marine pilots from a West Coast installation to man the eight helicopters.

Planners decided to abort the mission after three helicopters became disabled, saying that at least six were needed to rescue the Americans who have been held hostage since last November.

School looks at gifted

A program for gifted—talented students will be considered by members of the Pampa Independent School District Board of Trustees during their regular meeting at 5 p.m. Tuesday in Carver Center, 321 W. Albert.

If approved, the program — developed over a period of several months — will help gifted students with a flexible curriculum designed to meet their special needs and help each student develop to the top of his potential ability.

Also to be considered by board members is the second budget amendment for the 1979-80 school year for an increased allocation of $3,967.

A closed personnel session will conclude the meeting.

Pampa resident dies in Amarillo accident

Pampa resident Marvin Sillyman, 72, of 1726 Chestnut died Saturday in a two-car accident in Amarillo, and his wife Ruby, a passenger, is reported in serious condition today in an Amarillo hospital.

The Sillyman auto was traveling west on Ridgcrest about 12:55 p.m. Saturday, stopped at a stop sign, then proceeded into the intersection of Ridgcrest and Teckla Streets in Amarillo. The second auto, driven by Johnny Deal, 19, of 4712 Goodnight, Amarillo was traveling north on Teckla when the two autos collided.

No charges had been filed against Deal earlier today.

Mrs. Ruby Sillyman, a passenger in the vehicle, was reported in serious condition this morning at Northwest Texas Hospital where she is being treated in the Intensive Care Unit.

Deal and a passenger in the Deal vehicle, Brent York, 15, of 3104 Sunlite, Amarillo were uninjured in the accident.

Funeral services for Mr. Sillyman will be conducted at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Claude Cone, pastor, officiating. Masonic graveside rites will be held by the Pampa Lodge No. 966. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery under the direction of Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.

Mr. Sillyman was a member of the First Baptist Church, a 50-year member of the Pampa Masonic Lodge No. 966, AF and AM, a 32nd degree Consistory Mason, and was retired from the Cities Service Oil Co. He came to Pampa in 1948 from Seminole, Okla. He was married to Ruby Ann Coffey in Shawnee, Okla., Oct. 17, 1927.

Survivors include his wife, Ruby of the home; two daughters, Mrs. Walter J. Bursleson of Odessa, and Mrs. Jack Rose of Austin; one son, Thomas M. Sillyman of Lake Charles, La.; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Masons are requested to meet at 2 p.m. at the Lodge Hall. (Due to a last-minute change in the time of services, "Services Today" on page 2 shows the Sillyman funeral at 4 p.m. Services will be at 3 p.m., according to Carmichael-Whitley Funeral Directors.)

Shots heard from Iranian embassy

LONDON (AP) — Police reported "what sounded like two or three shots coming from the direction of" the besieged Iranian embassy here today.

The reported gunfire came as negotiations with at least three Arab gunmen holding 18 or 19 hostages in the building for the sixth day appeared to stall.

British officials, meanwhile, held separate meetings with the Jordanian and Algerian ambassadors here as a diplomatic bid to end the siege with the help of Arab envoys continued.

Deputy Assistant Police Commissioner Peter Nievens told reporters the "significance" of the apparent sounds of gunfire from the direction of the embassy were "being investigated."

He said the gunman with whom police were talking on a field telephone at the time did not tell them what had happened.

Nievenens noted the shots were "spaced," and it was not immediately known if any of the captives was harmed.

A police spokesman said the gunmen declined an offer of breakfast made when they spoke at 10 a.m. over a field telephone between the Scotland Yard negotiators and the embassy.

The last meal sent in was at midday Friday, but there is believed to be a store of food in the embassy.

The phone conversation was the first contact reported by police since the gunmen freed a 36-year-old Syrian captive suffering from a stomach complaint Sunday night.

He was the second hostage with stomach trouble freed since Thursday, and the fifth captive released since the siege began Wednesday.

Police had sent in two packets of antibiotics but the medication apparently did not work. There was no immediate word that any of the other captives are suffering from the affliction.

Meanwhile, Foreign Office chiefs met with the Jordanian, Kuwaiti and Syrian envoys in London Sunday after the gunmen called for them to act as go-betweens with the British government.

TEXAS GOVERNOR Bill Clements tells reporters at a news conference in Austin today, he is "enthusiastically abiding by the decision of the majority and declaring my support of Ronald Reagan" for the Republican presidential nomination.

Choir late getting home

Members of the Pampa High School choir will arrive two or three hours later tonight than had earlier been anticipated.

Previously scheduled to return to Pampa at 9:30 p.m., Debbie Duke, correspondent for the Pampa News, said the bus will arrive at the PHS music room at about midnight.

The choir is returning from a trip to Tempe, Ariz. where they received two superior ratings at the Rocky Mountain Music Festival held there.

Tito's death brings world threats

By The Associated Press
 The world's leaders joined in homage to President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia today. But President Carter included a veiled warning to the Russians, Moscow took a back-handed swipe at the West and China sniped at the Soviets.
 "America will continue its long-standing policy of support for Yugoslavia and do what it must to provide that support," said Carter, responding to speculation that the Kremlin might try force Yugoslavia back into the Soviet Bloc.
 Carter also referred to Tito's successful defiance of Soviet dictator Josef Stalin in 1948, saying the Yugoslav leader was "a towering figure on the world stage (who) faced many challenges but met them with a resolute determination to maintain Yugoslavia's independence and unity and its own unique approach to domestic and foreign policies."
 On the other side, Moscow Television praised Tito for his "struggle against imperialism and colonialism." The Soviet leadership called him "the outstanding leader of the communists and all workers of Yugoslavia and a leading figure of the international communist and workers' movement" and said he "came out for the broad development of Yugoslav-Soviet relations."
 A condolence message from Peking's leaders also praised Tito's defiance of Soviet domination, saying he contributed to the establishment of correct relations between Communist parties by insisting on the independence and equality of all of them. It also said he defended "Yugoslavia's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity."
 China said its premier and Communist Party chairman, Hua Guofeng, would lead the Chinese delegation to the funeral in Belgrade Thursday.
 U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim called Tito's death Sunday at the age of 87 "an irreparable loss to his own country and to the world. He was a true hero, and with his passing, the last of the great figures of our times has disappeared."

NATION MOURNS DEATH. The body of President Josip Broz Tito, last surviving founder of the Third World movement of non-aligned countries, will lie in state in Belgrade Monday until funeral services Thursday.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who will lead Britain's delegation to the funeral, said Tito "was Britain's staunch ally in war."

Tito's body to lie in state

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The body of President Josip Broz Tito, the World War II hero who forged his own brand of decentralized communism and preserved Yugoslavia's independence from the Soviet Union for more than 30 years, was being brought to Belgrade today to lie in state until funeral services Thursday.
 The last surviving founder of the Third World movement of non-aligned countries, Tito died Sunday afternoon in the hospital in Ljubljana, capital of the Slovenian Republic in northwest Yugoslavia, where he had been a patient nearly four months. Born on May 7, 1892, he would have been 88 on Wednesday.
 The government ordered seven days of national mourning and prepared for an influx of foreign leaders for the state funeral. The body was being brought to Belgrade by special train and was to lie in state in the Federal Parliament building. Burial was to be near the Museum of the Revolution in a Belgrade suburb.

outstanding courage and tenacity."
 Japanese Prime Minister Masayoshi Ohira said Tito's death was "an irrevocable loss to the world as well as to his country." He praised Tito for making "a significant contribution as the leader of Yugoslavia and the movement of non-aligned countries for decades."

LOUISE HILL

Louise Hill awarded ABWA annual honor

Louise Hill was recently named Woman of the Year of Pampa Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA).

The honoree, bookkeeper for W.L. Bruce Companies, was selected because of her achievement in her field of business, education, participation in the association and community activities.

She may now enter the competition for the 1980-81 Top Ten Business Women of ABWA and the "American Business Woman of the Year" awards. The national recipients will be announced at ABWA's 1980 National Convention next fall in Phoenix, Ariz.

A member of the Pampa Charter Chapter since 1978, she has been employed with Bruce since 1976, where her job includes payroll and invoicing. She was formerly with United Pallet for seven years and was an optical technician for 18 years before that.

A member of Wesley Methodist Church in Borger, she is an active choir member. She is also Past Worthy Matron-Adobe Walls 1059 O.E.S. in Borger.

Founded in Kansas City, Mo., in 1949, ABWA now has more than 100,000 active members in 1,800 chapters throughout the United States and Puerto Rico.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for Mr. Anderson who objected to the misuse of the words "exceptional" and "special" when referring to Mongoloid, or as you corrected, "Down's Syndrome" children.

Why is it that standard dictionary meanings and words seem to no longer suffice in today's society? Just what metamorphosis is supposed to occur when Negroes are called "blacks" and homosexuals are called "gays"? Neither word is very descriptive of its respective group. When schools/media now insist on calling a retarded child an "underachiever," is that supposed to suddenly make him more intelligent? Or just more content with his lot? Or are we doing it to comfort the "poor parent"?

Abby, one cannot disguise or change the truth by giving it a different label.

I'm signing my name, but if you print this, sign it . . .
DISGUSTED IN BEAUFORT, S.C.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Of all the letters I received in response to Mr. Anderson's (and there were hundreds), yours was the only one that said hooray for him. Read on for an especially poignant response:

DEAR ABBY: This is prompted by the asinine letter written by William G. Anderson Jr. Twenty years ago when my special child was born, a friend sent me a poem that I would like to share with other mothers of special children. I am proud to be one of those chosen few trusted to care for one of these children.

MARILYN NEWTON, TUCSON, ARIZ.

Heaven's Very Special Child

A meeting was held quite far from earth
"It's time again for another birth."
Said the Angels to the Lord above,
"This special child will need much love."

His progress may seem very slow
Accomplishments he may not show
And he'll require extra care
From the folks he meets way down there.

He may not run or laugh or play
His thoughts may seem quite far away
In many ways he won't adapt
And he'll be known as handicapped.

So let's be careful where he's sent
We want his life to be content
Please, Lord, find the parents who Will do a special job for You.

They will not realize right away
The leading role they're asked to play
But with this child sent from above
Comes stronger faith and richer love.

And soon they'll know the privilege given
In caring for this gift from heaven
Their precious charge, so meek and mild
Is heaven's very special child.

(Author Unknown)

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are professional people, each with a separate identity, so we decided that I should keep my maiden name after we married. What to name our children was no problem. My last name was used as our children's middle name; their last name is the same as their father's.

Select from low-cal fruit is on diet

If you're allowed to eat fruit on your reducing diet but don't know which kinds are low-cal, try one of the following for a satisfying portion: A medium-sized orange, apple or pear; half a grapefruit or cantaloupe; a half cup of any kind of berry; a two-inch slice of honey dew melon; half a banana.

THE PEOPLE'S PHARMACY

By JOE GRAEDON

Q: I'm a recovering alcoholic. My doctor has me on a drug called Antabuse (disulfiram) that makes me dreadfully sick if I even touch a drop of booze.

A: My problem hasn't been liquor (I've been dry for seven months) but rather the alcohol in cough and cold remedies. Last week I inadvertently used Comtrex cold medicine and ended up in the emergency room with an Antabuse reaction.

Please tell me which products are safe and which to avoid.

A: It's no wonder you had trouble with Comtrex. The alcohol content is 40 proof.

Recovering alcoholics aren't the only ones who should be wary of many drugs: Persons taking diabetes medications, antidepressants, tranquilizers, aspirin, nitroglycerin, or Flayl (metronidazole) must be especially careful to avoid alcohol-containing preparations.

There are hundreds of prescription and over-the-counter medications which contain a high level of alcohol. Nyquil cough syrup runs 50 proof and some preparations with Terpin Hydrate may be over 80 proof.

Although it would be impossible to include all the medications that contain a significant amount of alcohol here is a partial list: Actol Expectorant, Contussis Syrup, Creo-Terpin, Halls, Quiet-Nite, Quibron Elixir, Romilar III and Romilar CF, Trind, Vicks Formula 44, and Viro-Med.

Nonalcoholic drugs for the relief of coughs, colds, and congestion include: Actifed Syrup, Hold 4 Hour Cough Suppressant, Hycodan, Hycomine Syrup, Orthoxicol, Queltuss, Screts, Sudafed Syrup and Tricodene DM.

Before you take any liquid medicine (whether it be a cough remedy, an asthma medicine, or a drug for diarrhea) read the label carefully and then to be extra safe check with your pharmacist to make sure it contains no alcohol, it that is a substance you should avoid.

Q: I've been reluctant to tell my children, now 25 and 27, that I took a synthetic hormone called DES during my pregnancies because I haven't wanted to alarm them.

But both my son and my daughter are now married and eager to have families of their own. They've been trying for some time, and neither has had any success.

Could there be any connection between their difficulties in having children and the drug I took so long ago?

A: DES is a drug that has caused incredible heartache. More than two million women received this synthetic estrogen from the mid-1940s until the late 1960s in order to prevent problem pregnancies.

Although it was later discovered that DES was ineffective for this purpose the drug left a legacy of suffering in women and their offspring.

You are not doing your children any favors by keeping your DES exposure a secret. Both your daughter and son should have complete physical examinations by specialists who are fully informed of their medical history.

Besides experiencing an increased risk of genital abnormalities, DES daughters and sons may also encounter reduced fertility. And even if a woman does conceive she has a higher than average risk of miscarriage, stillbirth or premature live birth.

Q: My husband recently gave up smoking cigarettes and took up chewing tobacco. He says it's perfectly safe and almost as satisfying as smoking.

I am really pleased that he's given up cigarettes but when he starts spitting tobacco juice it just about drives me crazy. How safe is chewing tobacco?

A: While probably a lot better than cigarette smoking, "snuff dipping" as it's called in my part of the country, is not harmless. Some preliminary studies indicate that chewing tobacco may increase the risk of gum or cheek cancer.

While your husband is making good progress he would be better off if he could kick the tobacco habit altogether.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By Robert Wallace

Dr. Wallace: We are a group of four young married couples, plus one single girl who goes out to dinner once a month.

Our problem is that one of the married couples always winds up paying for the single girl's dinner. She always offers to pay her share but we are embarrassed to take the money yet none of us can really afford to pay her way.

How can we solve this problem without hurting her feelings? We enjoy her company and want her to continue eating with us. Help. — Diners, Lodi, Calif.

Diners: You won't hurt her feelings by taking her money when she offers to pay. Your single friend is taking advantage of the situation. Even though she offers to pay for her dinner, she should insist.

Would I be macho if I asked why she doesn't occasionally have an escort?

Dr. Wallace: I'm 15 and my boyfriend is 17 and we are very much in love and plan to get married when I graduate.

My problem is that my parents don't accept him because they found out that we had sex together. In fact, they hate him and think that he only likes me for sex. This isn't true. He loves me very much.

I'm still allowed to see this boy but one of my parents must be home when he visits me. When we have a car date, another couple has to go with us.

It really bothers me that my parents don't trust me. I don't know what I can do to help. Can you give me the word? — Karen, Zanesville, Ohio

Karen: You are fortunate that your parents are permitting you to date this boy. I think their rules are fair and that you should have no complaints. To earn trust, one must be trustworthy. In your case, it's also going to take time.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent, stamped, large self-addressed envelope to Dr. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Auto manufacturers reaping bitter fruit

Mildly alarmed by the death rattles being heard from Detroit, Congress has instructed Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt to take a year or so and find out what's wrong. Since there is no mystery about what's wrong, we can only assume that Goldschmidt's real assignment is to prove that the government isn't to blame.

It won't work. Congress, aided and abetted by populist presidents and a Naderite Department of Transportation, is to blame. Washington's pressure on the auto industry in the 1970s is bearing bitter fruit.

Chrysler is hemorrhaging, and soon will become dependent on the taxpayers. Ford has suffered a huge loss on its North American operations and would be in serious difficulty if it were not for its strong overseas profits. American Motors has, in effect, told the government that it can't meet regulatory standards, and go ahead and make something of it.

The auto industry in the 1970s was saddled with three main bodies of federal regulation setting exhaust emission, safety and gasoline mileage standards. The emission regulations could be justified on social grounds but not to the degree of stringency that Washington, with its punitive fixation, has applied. The safety standards could have stopped years ago with a few simple requirements like three-point seatbelts and safety door latches, but they have been carried to extremes because of Ralph Nader's overcommitment to a potentially lethal "safety" device called the airbag.

The mileage standards have no justification whatever. They are part of Washington's destructive attempts to ration energy by any means except price. And, at this moment, they are doing the most serious damage to the United States auto industry. They are the biggest favor to Japan since the Navy conveniently parked its Pacific fleet at Pearl Harbor in 1941.

The standards, by requiring that auto company product-lines achieve average fuel economy levels that move upward year by year, place a severe restriction on the ability of auto company managers to adjust their strategies to changing competitive conditions. Altering a company's product designs and mix to meet the standards — particularly given the way they are drawn up — not only involves commitments of billions of dollars but also means that the mix and designs will often be out of phase with market demands. Importers of foreign cars are far less hampered by this straitjacket.

The Japanese have for some time had a comparative advantage in producing small cars. Their specialization in this product gives them economies of scale. The American industry has no price rivals in building cars from intermediate sizes up. These cars carry a higher profit margin, which is important to the cash flow the U.S. companies need right now to do the federally mandated retooling.

When big cars are selling well, the American companies have trouble meeting the mileage standards. They in effect have been forced to ration some profitable models to stay within the standards, thus incurring a loss of cash flow, under-utilization of some plants and high inventory costs. When big car sales drop off, as they have since last year's sharp rise in gasoline prices, the American makers are able to meet the standards but are not in position to make up for the profits lost. And they continue to face the cost of carrying a car inventory that could have been sold last year but can't be sold this year, and of tooling up to meet next year's standards.

The normal answer to this problem would be for auto companies, which are after all huge international enterprises, to import more small cars themselves. But the imports can't be counted against their fleet mileage standards.

The eventual answer for the industry may prove to be finding some way to make the relatively larger cars abroad, which will destroy more jobs for American auto workers.

In the face of this, Senators Jackson and Magnuson have proposed to tighten the strait-jacket further with even more stringent mileage standards beginning in 1985.

Computers, take note

Attorney Melvin Belli, who has a taste for the theatrical, is missing a chance to make legal history with the case of Arne Ristol.

Ristol got into the news 18 months ago when a one-digit error at a computer console in a Los Angeles bank resulted in $927,288 being transferred into Ristol's savings account, which otherwise had a balance of only 55 cents. The news was that both Ristol and the $927,288 had disappeared by the time the bank figured out what had happened.

The upshot was that Ristol was put on trial for grand theft, and found innocent after pleading that some business associates had duped him into thinking the deposit was legitimate — his fee in a big real estate deal. Now Ristol has retained Belli to file a $5 million suit for damages to his reputation from the whole affair.

Belli's missed opportunity is that he is suing the people at the bank. Why doesn't he use some imagination and sue the bank's computer, summon it into court and put it on the stand?

Everybody knows why things go wrong these days. It's a computer somewhere. Why do we get billed for things we didn't buy? "It must be our computer," says a sweet voice on the phone. Why is mail misdirected? The computer. Why do important reports show up a week late? Computer problems. Why do newspapers print typographical errors? The computer.

Yet never has a computer been forced to account for itself in a court of law for all these offenses. It's high time. We'd love to see Melvin Belli tear into a smug computer on cross-examination. He's just the one to crack its defense — that the people who push the buttons make all the mistakes. A likely story.

Go to it, Mel. A stiff judgment against the computer in the Ristol case would put all the others on notice. Shape up, or get sued.

By Don Graff
As bad as things are in Iran these days, they could be worse — and the way things are going they soon will be.

Apparently not finding enough in the confrontation with the United States to keep them busy, Ayatollah Khomeini and company are spoiling to take on neighboring Iraq.

The building conflict not only says plenty about Khomeini's much-invoked brotherhood of Islam but is a beautiful example of how the more things change in Iran, the more it tends to resemble that of the shah.

It was not so many years ago that his deposed majesty was also making faces at the Iraqis. The issues then were several strategically situated territorial parcels around the Persian Gulf and the shah's egging on of Iraq's rebellious Kurdish minority, kin of the people who more recently have been making the going tougher for the Iranian revolution.

There was also the little matter of Iraq's 15-year role as the base in exile for the shah's most outspoken foe, one Ayatollah Khomeini.

The sudden resumption of bad relations brings into the center ring one of the Mideast's more mercurial countries. Iraq during the postwar era has at one point or another made common cause with just about every interested party in the area except Israel and the Vatican.

It started out, under a British-installed monarchy, as a key link in John Foster Dulles's Central Treaty Organization, a paper anti-Soviet tiger if there ever was one.

After a revolution that left most of the royal family slaughtered in the streets of Baghdad, Iraq was first a zealous supporter of Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser. Disappointed in Nasser's lack of zeal for a genuine pan-Arab revolution, it subsequently turned to the Soviet Union.

That lasted longer than most such Soviet relationships but in time took second place to Iraq's growing affinity with one of its Arab own — Libya. Through much of the '70s, the two formed a hard-line axis on Israel and the Palestinians, East-West relations, oil and just about every other issue that unites or divides the Arabs.

In 1978, Iraqi attention suddenly shifted to neighboring Syria and there was much talk of a possible confederation. Little action, however. Both countries are governed by branches of the same Arab socialist movement, the Baath (renaissance) Party. But the branches have been feuding for almost as long as they have existed and that legacy — including mutual assassinations and terrorist bombings — proved stronger than any transient community of interest. In 1979, whatever prospects there were of a deal were called off.

More recently, Iraq has been drawing closer to Saudi Arabia. An interesting development considering Baghdad's socialists once despised the royal Saudi crowd with whom not too many years back they were disputing oil-saturated Kuwait, sandwiched between the two countries.

That was the old Iraq. The new Iraq had been keeping a low political profile while concentrating on economic development financed by $10 billion plus in annual oil revenues. It has embarked on ambitious land-reclamation and industrial projects. Although Baghdad and Washington have had no diplomatic relations since the 1967 Arab-Israeli War, trade is increasing. U.S. technical expertise has been invited in and increasing numbers of young Iraqis are studying at U.S. universities.

And now border clashes with Iran and the ayatollah calling upon Iraqi faithful to overthrow President Saddam Hussein, a rift that appears to originate in part in the restiveness of Iran's Arab minority concentrated near the Iraqi border and in part from Islam's basic religious dichotomy. Saddam's Sunni-controlled regime dominates a population largely of the same Shiite faith as the Iranian majority.

If tough talk should come to blows, the odds would appear to be on Iraq, which is credited with one of the most effective military establishments in the Middle East. Israel always excepted.

But that very likely may be beside the point. Winner or loser might be little more than academic distinctions in a conflict that could bring the roof down on not only the two adversaries but the whole area.

Should it come to that, there is one thing to be said about all the countries of an inflamed Mideast that have been whipsawing each other and the world with their oil economics and tortured politics: They've done their best to bring it upon themselves.

The foolish things we do

by Paul Harvey

With hindsight we can amuse and applaud ourselves by remembering how comparatively foolish our grandparents were.

The very idea that doctors practiced bloodletting, thus making weak patients weaker.

The very idea that doctors delivered babies without washing their hands.

The very idea that beneficial applications of electricity were delayed by people who feared electrocution.

The very idea that our grandparents' generation was so myopic that they considered using a typewriter something that "no nice girl would do."

They should have known better.

I wonder which and how many things you and I are doing or not doing today will be reflected upon by our grandchildren with derision.

"Why didn't we know better?"

Generally speaking, any excess ultimately is its own undoing.

The generations of Americans who demanded bigger and faster cars have now learned that smaller and slower cars make more sense.

Americans, initially enamored with any and all electric kitchen gadgetry, have since discovered that the electric carving knife was not worth the cost and the kitchen clutter.

Americans who once bought cereals in bottles, then believed surgery was the infallible remedy, then learned about nutrition gradually came to realize that any or all three may be the best remedy.

But other conspicuous panaceas we perpetuate: in other obvious malpractices we persist.

Cigarette smoking. Surely future historians will wonder why.

Tax bonuses for living together unmarried, for having illegitimate children.

Picketing power plants when we so desperately need their power.

And the manner in which the private lives of candidates for public office are X-rayed by members of the media who would never subject themselves to similar scrutiny.

But of all the most flagrant, most dangerous, most masochistic, most wasteful and least defensible practices in which we Americans persist — the one which is surely going to have tomorrow's historians shaking their heads in disbelief — is cross-town school busing.

"Really," they will say, "did you really bus your children back and forth across town for hours every day in the name of fairness?"

"Did you really — as desperate as you were for fuel and as high petroleum prices as you were having to pay — did you really waste the equivalent of the total output of 700 oil wells every day — busing?"

"Did you — really?"

Money isn't Anderson's worry

By Robert J. Wagman

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Can an Illinois congressman with little previous national exposure find the millions of dollars needed to mount an independent or third-party campaign for president?

That is one key factor in determining whether Rep. John Anderson could run an effective national race against President Carter and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Most experts predict that while Anderson would not be able to spend on the level of either major-party candidate, he probably could raise enough cash to deny the presidency to one of them.

The most complex question is whether Anderson could qualify for federal funds.

Under federal election law, each major-party candidate gets $20 million plus an additional amount (pegged to inflation) to run his presidential campaign. This year, the total is $29.2 million.

A "major party" is defined as one that got more than 25 percent of the popular vote in the last presidential election. Because only Carter and Gerald received more than 25 percent in 1976, only the Democratic and Republican parties are considered major this year.

The law also provides for "minor" or "third" parties. A party getting more than 5 percent of the popular vote would get funds in a ratio to how close it came to 25 percent. For example, if a minor party received 5 percent, it would get one-fifth of $29.2 million, or $5.8 million. However, no third party got 5 percent in 1976, so none qualifies for federal funding this year.

The election law also provides for "new" parties. Fred Eiland, a spokesman for the Federal Election Commission, explains that a new party could get federal funds if it draws more than 5 percent of the vote and if it complies with all election laws, including campaign spending limits. "The funds would, of course, be after the fact," adds Eiland.

The election law is silent on so-called "independent" candidates. Says Eiland: "One school of thought is that the independent would have the same status as the new party. But this is a ruling that the (Federal Election) Commission would have to make and then, I imagine, any such ruling would be the subject of litigation."

Anderson thus could not receive federal funds during the campaign either as an independent or as the standard-bearer of a new party. But he probably could borrow several million dollars against his eventual federal payment if the polls showed he would get, say, 10 percent of the vote or more.

In the meantime, money is starting to roll into the Anderson campaign from a new direct-mail effort run by Tom Mathews, who has a history of running successful fund-raising efforts for liberal candidates and organizations.

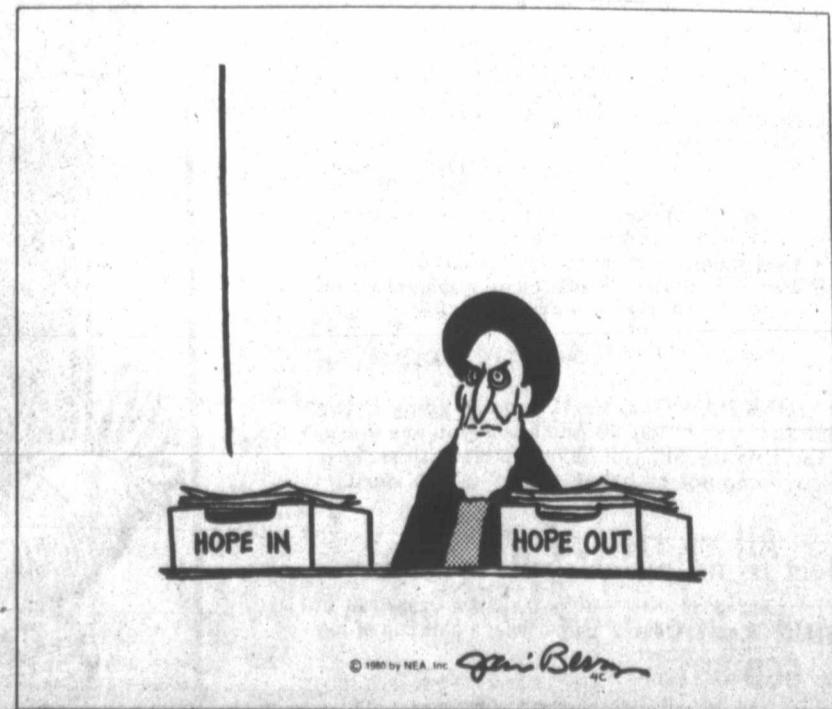

Anderson sources say that about 75,000 individuals have contributed a total of more than $2.5 million to the congressman, with much of it arriving in the past three months. These same people could contribute again to Anderson for a general-election campaign.

Mathews is said to believe that Anderson could raise another $10 million from 250,000 contributors by November. If he borrowed another $5 million or so against his potential federal funding, he could end up with a $15 million war chest, enough to run a respectable race.

A committee, reportedly bankrolled by millionaire liberal industrialist Stewart Mott, already has been formed to qualify Anderson on state ballots as an independent. The effort is independent of Anderson and is without his direct consent, so its efforts are not covered by spending limits and could absorb all the costs of ballot qualification, a major expense for independent candidates.

Thus, if Anderson decides to run, money may not be among his major problems. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

American League roundup

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

It was a special day for designated hitters Otto Velez and Darrell Porter. While Velez tied an American League record with four home runs in a doubleheader, Porter made some significant history of his own with a triple and a single.

Velez is happy to be playing fulltime and Porter is happy to be playing at all. After spending six weeks in a drug and alcohol rehabilitation center, Porter drove in three runs and scored a fourth in only his second appearance of the season, leading Kansas City to a 5-3 victory over Boston Sunday.

Velez did his part to make the first Sunday in May "Designated Hitter's Day" by smashing three homers, including a grand-slam and a solo game-winner in the 10th that gave Toronto a 9-8 victory over Cleveland. Then he launched the Blue Jays to a 7-2 triumph in the nightcap with a three-run homer in the first inning.

Velez became the 11th AL player to connect for four homers in a doubleheader. Graig Nettles of the New York Yankees was the last entry in this category in 1974. Stan Musial of St. Louis and Nate Colbert of San Diego hold the major league mark with five.

Elsewhere in the AL, Milwaukee drubbed the Chicago White Sox 11-1; the Yankees slammed Minnesota 10-1; Detroit blanked Oakland 4-0 before the A's turned the tables in the nightcap with a 1-0 shutout; California edged Seattle 4-3 and Baltimore downed Texas 9-5.

Porter, who rejoined the Royals April 25, received a long, warm ovation from the Kansas City crowd when he came to bat in the first inning. In his first appearance Friday night, the home fans welcomed him back with an enthusiastic two-minute standing ovation. "It's wonderful the way the people accepted me," he said.

Porter tripled in the first for his first hit of the season, driving in Hal McRae. "I thought it was gonna be an out, to tell you the truth," he said. "It carried farther than I thought it would. It's that extra five pounds I'm carrying."

In the third, Porter singled home two more runs and came around to score on a single by John Wathan.

"I'm very satisfied," he said. "I feel real good at the plate and it's amazing I'm seeing the ball so well."

In his last two at bats, Porter drove balls to the warning track that were hauled down. "Porter didn't miss the fat part of the bat all day, did he?" said Boston Manager Don Zimmer.

The meaty part of Velez's bat looked awfully big, too.

"I hit a couple of fastballs and a slider," said Velez, whose home run output went from three to seven, while his runs-batted-in total doubled from 10 to 20.

His grand slam in the opener was the first of his career. In the 10th inning, Toronto Manager Bobby Mattick flashed the hit sign on a 3-0 pitch, and Velez powered it over the right-center field fence.

"In that kind of situation you got to be sitting on a fastball and he gave me one away," Velez said. "I just wanted a base hit to win it. In that kind of situation you got to go full. I got lucky and it worked out."

Yankees 10, Twins 1
Reggie Jackson, knocked down by an apparent brushback pitch for the third game in a row, retaliated with a long home run. He then triggered a six-run fourth inning with a leadoff single.

Jackson hit the deck in the second inning off loser Jerry Koonsman, 2-2. Jackson exchanged words with Koonsman and catcher Butch Wynegar and then drilled a 430-foot homer to dead center, his sixth of the season and 375th of his career.

The homer put him in 23rd place, one ahead of Rocky Colavito, on the all-time list.

Jackson said his response to the knockdown pitch pleased him.

"It is a very exhilarating feeling," he said. "I'm swinging the bat pretty good right now. Maybe they're trying to intimidate me. I'm glad to do well when there's a challenge, but I don't like them. I guess some people still feel they have to put me through the test."

Tigers 4-0, A's 0-1
Detroit's Mill Wilcox beat Oakland 4-0 with a four-hitter, but Mike Norris matched that performance with a four-hit, 1-0 shutout to give the A's a split in their doubleheader with the Tigers.

Norris, 40, reduced his earned run average to 0.44 in outdueling Dan Schatzeder, who allowed no hits through 51-3 innings. The first hit and the only run for the A's was Jeff Newman's homer.

Brewers 11, White Sox 1
Robin Yount's grand slam homer highlighted a six-run eighth inning and Jim Slaton and three other pitchers combined for a four-hitter to lead Milwaukee past the White Sox.

The triumph was the fourth straight for the Brewers while the Sox, who have lost six of their last seven, suffered their fourth consecutive defeat. Angels 4, Mariners 3.

Carney Lansford doubled twice, driving in two runs and scoring one in California's victory.

Lansford doubled to drive in the first of three first-inning runs. Don Baylor followed with a sacrifice fly, his first RBI in 10 games, and Joe Ricci singled in another run.

Lansford's RBI double in the fifth proved to be the game-winner.

Orioles 9, Rangers 5
Ken Singleton slugged a two-run homer and Eddie Murray hit two doubles and scored twice as Baltimore took an early lead and held off Texas.

Dennis Martinez, 1-0, got the win but needed help from reliever Dave Ford, who pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the sixth inning and picked up his first save.

Lakers open finals with victory

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Doctor's housecall at the Forum was delayed until the fourth quarter. Darryl Dawkins spent most of the day on the seat of his pants. And in the third quarter, Philadelphia couldn't throw a pea in the ocean.

That's how it went for the 76ers in Game One of the National Basketball Association championship series Sunday.

The Los Angeles Lakers got their customary superb performance from Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, some outstanding defense on Julius Erving and ran the 76ers halfway to San Diego during the third period in taking a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with a 109-102 victory.

The teams were deadlocked 53-53 after an evenly played first half before the Lakers exploded, scoring the first 12 points of the third quarter and 31 to Philadelphia's 17 in the period.

The 76ers made 54.5 percent of their field goal attempts in the first half but were a miserable 3-of-20 in the third quarter.

Los Angeles had an 84-70 advantage entering the last 12 minutes. Erving, a virtual non-entity for the first three quarters, sparked a 14-2 Philadelphia surge that drew the 76ers to within four, 92-88, midway in the final period. That was as close as they could get.

The Lakers scored eight of the game's next nine points to make it 100-89 and the 76ers weren't closer than six after that.

Abdul-Jabbar had game-high totals of 33 points, 14 rebounds and six blocked shots. Erving, meanwhile, finished with 20 points — 11 in the final 8:39 — seven rebounds and two blocked shots.

Other major offensive contributors for Los Angeles were Norm Nixon with 23 points and six assists. Jamaal Wilkes with 20 points, seven rebounds and six assists, and rookie Earvin "Magic" Johnson with 16 points, nine rebounds and 10 assists.

Defensively, Wilkes and reserve Mike Cooper shared the bulk of the work on Erving.

The 76ers had better scoring balance than Los Angeles — six players scored in double figures — but it wasn't enough.

Dawkins, Philadelphia's 6-foot-11, 250-pound behemoth center, was limited to 18 minutes playing time because of foul problems. He had 12 points and only three rebounds.

"I felt the big key was the way we started the third period," Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham said. "We went 4-21 without a point and we allowed them to start their running game. We did have some good shots, but you must credit their defense. We had the shots we were looking for."

Strange wins Houston golf title

HOUSTON (AP) — Perhaps taking a tip from country singer Kenney Rogers, Curtis Strange isn't yet counting his money.

"I do this for a living. I don't like to go home and lay around. I like to work," Strange said after a playoff victory over Lee Trevino Sunday in the rich Houston Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm still young. I like to play a lot, 30 to 35 tournaments a year. There'll come a time soon enough when I'm old and can't play that much."

He had played in all but two tournaments going into Houston, and he's playing again in Dallas this week. But there is just a chance he may cut back a bit on his heavy schedule.

"I don't feel like I can relax until I'm secure in the top 60 (money-winners, a place that insures him an exemption for next year)," he said.

He has it now.

The $63,000 he harvested from the total purse of $350,000 gave him $108,659 for the season. Eventually, it will be worth much more. It puts him in the World Series of Golf this fall and in next year's Tournament of Champions.

But the second victory of his career didn't come easily for the 25-year-old Wake Forest product.

Strange entered the final round with a bulging, six-stroke lead, watched it dwindle and disappear in the face of Trevino's final round 65, a 6-under-par performance that put them in a tie at the end of the regulation 72 holes.

The sudden-death playoff lasted one hole. Trevino hit safely to the middle of the green on the par-3 and Strange didn't hesitate moment.

"I didn't want to go for the middle of the green. I wanted to go for the flag. I wanted it all," he said.

And he got it.

He put his shot some 12 feet from the cup. After Trevino missed, Strange rolled his home for the winner, making Trevino a runnerup for the second week in a row and for the 11th time in 2½ years.

"That's as good as I can play," Trevino said. "Curtis probably deserved it. He played far better than I did for three days. I played a little better the last day."

Strange had played the first 54 holes in 195, 18 under par and the best three-round total in 10 years of PGA Tour activity. It put him far in front. But he could do no better than par-71 in the last round, while Trevino kept edging closer and closer.

The last stroke of the lead disappeared when Strange hit his ball unplayable on the 16th and made bogey. He had to make a scrambling, one-putt par on the 72nd hole to save a piece of the lead and send it to extra holes.

Mike Reid and Bob Gilder tied third at 68. Gilder shot 64 and Reid 66 in the windless, muggy heat. Tom Kite, with 66, and D.A. Weibring, with 68, were next at 70.

Arnold Palmer matched the best round of the day with a 64 and finished at 276, marking his best performance in several years.

"It could have been a little better," Palmer said. "But I enjoyed it. It was kind of fun. I'm going to keep on trying."

Phillies' comeback falls short

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Phillies won the appeal, but lost the game.

Even at that, Manager Dallas Green wasn't completely dissatisfied.

"I've been trying to build character, so I've got to be pleased to see that kind of effort," Green said. "The easiest thing to do when you're losing 9-0 is just play out the game and go home."

Despite a bizarre first inning which included a backfired appeal play that netted the Dodgers four runs, Green's never-say-die team eventually came back to wipe out a nine-run deficit Sunday.

The Phillies fell short at the end, though, losing 12-10.

"I worked like heck to keep the score down, but I just couldn't do it," Green kidded, referring to that upside-down first inning which ultimately provided the Dodgers with their winning runs.

With one run across, the Dodgers' Dusty Baker hit into a force play, scoring another run. But Baker had batted out of turn in Ron Cey's place and after the Phillies appealed, Cey was declared out and the runners sent back to their bases.

Given a second chance to hit, Baker belted one over the left field wall at Veterans Stadium for a three-run homer and a 4-0 Dodgers lead.

"It was exciting, interesting," said Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda.

It wasn't an easy game for him to take, however.

"Do I look older than I did three hours ago?" he asked rhetorically. "I am. I feel it."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Atlanta Braves 13-4; the Houston Astros stopped the St. Louis Cardinals 4-2; the Cincinnati Reds swept a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs, 3-2 and 5-4; the San Diego Padres beat the New York Mets 4-3 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the nightcap 6-2, and the San Francisco Giants split a pair with the Montreal Expos, winning the opener 8-4 and losing the second game 6-4.

The Dodgers decided the game when Derrel Thomas scored in the ninth on a bases-loaded passed ball and Mickey Hatcher followed with a two-run double.

With the score tied 9-9, Thomas started the inning with a single and took second on a base hit by Gary Thomasson. Steve Garvey then singled to load the bases before catcher Keith Moreland let one of reliever Dickie Noles' pitches get by him. That allowed Thomas to race home with the lead run, and Hatcher followed with his double.

Losing 9-0, the Phillies started their comeback when Greg Luzinski smashed a three-run homer in a four-run Philadelphia sixth. They scored three more runs in the seventh and completed their rally with two runs in the eighth on John Vukovich's two-run single.

Pirates 13, Braves 4
Willie Stargell and Dave Parker each drove in three runs to lead Pittsburgh over Atlanta. Stargell had three hits, including an RBI double and a two-run homer, as the Pirates collected 15 hits against five Atlanta pitchers. Parker drove in runs with a fielder's choice, a single and a sacrifice fly.

The victory went to Jim Bibby, 4-0, who scattered eight hits.

"For about the first six innings, Bibby was struggling like a dog with rabies," said Pirates catcher Ed Ott. "After that, he started to pop the fastball and really got things together. He got himself together, and we gave him a lot of support."

Astros 4, Cardinals 2
Ken Forsch gained his fourth straight victory and contributed an RBI single in the sixth as Houston beat St. Louis. Forsch gave up both Cardinals runs before getting seventh-inning relief help from Joe Sambito.

Loser Bob Sykes yielded Rafael Landestoy's leadoff double in the Houston third, and Terry Puhl's RBI single sent the Astros on top to stay, 2-1.

Reds 3-5, Cubs 2-4
Cesar Geronimo's first homer of the season helped Cincinnati snap a five-game losing streak by beating Chicago in the first game of their doubleheader.

Junior Kennedy's initial career grand slam home run capped a five-run rally in the sixth inning of the nightcap, helping the Reds come back from a 4-0 deficit.

Padres 4-2, Mets 3-6
Joel Youngblood booted Dave Winfield's eighth-inning single to right field, allowing Gene Richards to score the winning run as San Diego defeated New York in the opener of their doubleheader.

Elliot Maddox keyed a three-run second inning with a bases-loaded single to help New York win the second game.

This coming year holds considerable promise for you, both financially and where your career is concerned. Be alert for a large opportunity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be persistent where your goals or ambitions are concerned. If you go after things it is extremely likely you will end up on top of the heap. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph Letter, which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Situations or projects calling for imagination arouse your interests today. You'll embrace the unusual, and the best that's in you will come out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have an instinctive understanding today of other people's emotional states and can guide them with advice or ideas they might not have thought of.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Those with whom you have direct dealings today will readily team up with you if you show them you are interested in what's best for all concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you can find something both interesting and productive to do today you'll be a lot happier than doing mundane things. Express your creativity.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Through a very unusual set of circumstances you could find yourself involved with new and interesting people today. Cultivate their friendships.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Imaginative projects should turn out to your liking today. You might even come up with a new way to earn extra income.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be alert for unusual ways opening up today that could give your material status a boost. The chance could come through some social acquaintances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Putting yourself out for those you love is your automatic reaction today. It earns you their devotion and gives you a feeling of personal satisfaction as well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even though today may be reasonably quiet, good things are happening for you behind the scenes. Bits and pieces will surface later.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your mood is such today that you find everyone you meet fascinating. People will respond in kind and open up to you. Some new ideas could come from this.
