TRC told gas cutoffs dangerous to older persons

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A nurse who is a member of the Gray Panthers and a Texas Department of Health doctor agree that old and ill people could face health problems if their natural gas service is stopped on a wintry day.

But a gas company executive testified Tuesday it would be hard for his company to determine which customers might suffer health problems if the heat is turned off because of non-payment of gas bills.

The testimony came at a Texas Railroad Commission hearing on federally-suggested guidelines for termination of natural gas service to customers who do not pay their bills.

The guidelines — proposed by the U.S. Department of Energy — include advance notice of disconnection, a hearing before an impartial body and a ban on cut-offs to customers whose health could be threatened by a lack of heat in their homes.

"There are questions as to who would make such a determination and how it would be done," Robert Laczko of Southern Union Gas Company told a Texas Railroad Commission hearing examiner. "One person's discomfort might well be a health hazard to another."

Several gas company spokesmen said such matters are usually handled on a case-by-case basis and such customers to come in to discuss the bill.

But Charlotte Flynn of the Austin Gray Panthers said; "Some of the older people are not in a position to go in and talk with someone to work out their problems. I don't think they would be talking to the gas company before they would die. You'd find out about it after they died."

Dr. Clifton Price of the Texas Department of Health said old people are susceptible to hypothermia — potentially damaging drops in body temperature. He said some old people "may not even perceive that they are cold."

The Texas Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now gave hearing examiner Lee Allen Everett a copy of proposed rules the association supports.

The proposed rules closely mirror the federall-proposed guidelines. The companies would be required to send bilingual, bold-faced, large print notices before halting service.

Customers would be allowed to take their case to an "impartial decision maker."

Gas company spokesmen at the hearing said they saw no need for such a hearing. William Cates of Entex said his company is "proud" of its record in dealing with customers with overdue accounts.

But ACORN spokesman Jack Jackson said consumers would be safer with an outside party handling the matter.

"Our main concern is that you don't send the fox to guard the chicken coop," he told Everett.

Everett asked if full-time staffs should be set up in each community to hear the cases. Jackson said no; adding that government employees could probably "squeeze that into their day between the first and second coffee break."

Gas company spokesmen told Everett the rules could lead to increased costs for customers who pay their bills.

"The utility company should not be converted into welfare agencies," said Tom James, director of public utilities for Dallas.

Everett said the federal authorities would require written reasons if the commission chooses not to adopt the rules. The commission sets rules for unincorporated areas.

Texas cities set rules for utilitites operating within their boundaries.

Congress denied FBI information

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department will withhold from congressional ethics committees evidence the FBI has amassed on eight congressmen allegedly implicated in the bureau's political corruption inquiry, the chairman of one of the panels said today.

"That was the indication given to me" at a meeting Tuesday night with Assistant Attorney General Philip Heymann, Sen. Howell Heflin, Senate Ethics Committee chairman, said in a CBS-TV interview.

Heflin, D-Ala., noted that his full committee planned to meet with Heymann and other Justice Department officials later today.

"Unless they (the officials) change their mind, I think they will tell (the committee) that they don't think it would be proper to turn over the evidence and the information that they have," Heflin said.

A source close to Heflin said earlier that the Justice Department was concerned with protecting "the integrity of its own investigation."

Heymann, who runs the department's Criminal Division, also planned an appearance before the House ethics committee today.

Heflin, a former appeals court judge, said he was "torn between a lot of responsibilities and obligations."

"There is an obligation to clear this matter up ... immediately if we can," he said. "We've got to protect individual rights. But I think the American people need to have their faith restored in the American political process."

Heflin said his committee might go to court to force the Justice Department's cooperation in its inquiry, but he said he hoped some settlement could be reached without legal action.

At this point, officials said, the House and Senate ethics panels lack independent information on which to conduct effective probes of their own.

Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., chairman of the House committee, said that a Justice Department refusal to share its information would leave his committee with little to go on.

But he also said he would prefer to delay the committee inquiry, which would concentrate on possible violations of House rules, if it would imperil the FBI's case.

"If it means that persons would escape criminal prosecution because of a committee hearing...obviously people should not be allowed to escape criminal prosecution," Bennett said.

However, several members of the two panels are known to feel strongly that some investigation should go forward even in the face of an FBI refusal to cooperate.

Smith death going to grand jury

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of The Pampa News

Investigation is continuing into the fatal shooting of Pampa restaurant owner Dennis Lee Smith last month and evidence is expected to be brought before a grand jury soon, city authorities said today.

The case is expected to go before the grand jury in the next three weeks, Police Chief J. J. Ryzman said.

The police department in conjunction with the district attorney's office is continuing to investigate the Jan. 14 shooting death of Smith, he said.

The 31-year-old Pampa man was fatally wounded in a shooting in Smith's mobile home about midnight, according to police reports.

City police officers were dispatched to the residence at 504 S. Finley after receiving a report of an accidental shooting.

After surveying the scene, a coroner was requested to be sent to the location. Acting coroner Nat Lunsford pronounced the man dead at the scene and requested an autopsy to be performed.

The body was sent to Amarillo pathologist, Jose Diaz-Esquival. No official report has been returned at this time.

Physical evidence was taken by Kirven Roper, special investigator for the district attorney's office, to the Criminal Investigation Laboratory in Austin.

A statement concerning the circumstances of the shooting was given to the police department by the dead man's wife, Cathy Smith, the district attorney said earlier.

"No complaint has been filed at this date concerning the death of Dennis Smith," District Attorney Harold Comer said.

We will probably know within the next few days when an exact date for the grand jury will be set, he said.

Smith was the owner of Steddum's Restaurant located at 732 E. Frederic. He had bought the establishment almost exactly a year before his death.

Sadr denounces militants

Iranian President Abolhassan Bani Sadr today angrily denounced the Moslem militants holding the U.S. Embassy hostages in Tehran as "dictators who have created a government within a government."

Bani Sadr's attack, his strongest yet on the embassy militants, came after they broadcast allegations that the minister of information and national guidance, Nasser Minachi, had "close links with the CIA." Minachi was arrested by revolutionary guards without government authorization at about midnight Tuesday.

The minister had denied the allegations before being seized at his home.

The new tension between Bani Sadr and the militants arose as Iranian officials gave conflicting signals on whether the establishment of a U.N. investigation of the ex-shah's regime would lead to the release of the approximately 50 embassy hostages.

It was announced Tuesday night that Bani Sadr had been chosen chairman of Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council, strengthening his position and raising hopes among those who expect him to try to get the American hostages released.

The new president, stung by the arbitrary arrest of Minachi, told the Tehran daily newspaper Kayhan that although the militants may not realize it they are paving the way for lawlessness in the country.

"How could you expect a government employee to go to work feeling secure," he said. "When there is no legal or judicial security in the country, that will undoubtedly lead to disorder."

Bani Sadr also attacked the state-owned television network for ε ting without prior government approval in giving the embassy militants air time Tuesday night to broadcast their allegations.

The militants found documents in the embassy files "proving the existence of close links between Nasser Minachi ... and both the U.S. Embassy and the CIA," Tehran Radio reported in a broadcast monitored in Kuwait.

Until today, Bani Sadr's criticism of the militants had been confined to statements to the effect that the new government alone must make decisions for the country.

Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council named President Abolhassan Bani Sadr its chairman, strengthening his position and increasing hopes among those who expect him to try to get the American hostages released.

Council spokesman Hassan Habibi announced Bani Sadr's selection Tuesday night and said it was subject to approval by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

But this seemed merely a formality since Iran's 79-year-old revolutionary leader endorsed Bani Sadr when he swore him in as president Monday in the hospital where the ayatollah is recuperating from a heart attack.

Habibi said parliamentary elections would begin March 7. Bani Sadr is expected to name his cabinet after the elections.

Bani Sadr's foes in the council lost their first round against him when they failed in an attempt to delay his swearing-in as president until after the elections. They lost again with his selection as council chairman.

Bani Sadr's emergence as head of Iran's top policy-making body marked a complete reversal in his fortunes since November, when he was ousted as foreign minister for adopting too moderate a stance toward the hostage crisis.

U.S. officials are now more optimistic than ever that Bani Sadr will be able to bring about the release of the captives, and there is speculation former U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young may be tapped as a go-between.

Iran's economic counselor in Washington, Kamaran Movasaghi, speculated Tuesday the hostages might be released March 21, the start of the Iranian new year. He said the coming formation of a government by Bani Sadr and the Revolutionary Council's agreement to an international commission to investigate the regime's charges against the shah were "plus points as far as the situation goes."

The approximately 50 hostages began their 95th day of captivity. They were seized Nov. 4 by militant students who took over the U.S. Embassy and demanded that the U.S. government return Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran for trial.

ATTENDING HOSTAGE SERVICE in Washington is Mrs. Bruce Laingen, left, wife of the American Charge d'affaires being held in Iran. The other woman is unidetified. Price: Too much red tape welfare program problem

"Too much red tape" was found to be one of the major problems for the elderly in the adequate and effective distribution of welfare, according to the conclusions of a recent "Forum on Aging" held in Austin.

"Certain federal laws today are promulgating and forcing a system of welfare dependency on our senior citizens which is costing our elderly and all other tax payers billions of dollars each year," Senator Bob Price of Pampa said.

"We are feeding our welfare system because of bad federal laws," he said.

Price pointed out two laws that are major factors in the uneffective welfare system.

"The law that limits a social security recipient's income forces millions of healthy, intelligent, capable senior citizens into welfare," he said.

"The age limit on retirement forces our elderly into welfare even though the age limit has been raised to the age of seventy," he said.

Other deterents to an effective welfare system were identified by the committee as poor services in rural areas and the need for better communications among health, social and other support service providers.

"The one thing I noticed," Price said, "was the fact the metropolitan areas had much more services than smaller rural areas."

Too many complex funding patterns and a non - unifor eligibility criteria were also discovered to be barriers to a coordinated service delivery system.

Remedies Price suggested included printing a pamphlet outlining available services to be sent to all the elderly and a better utilization of school buses and city transportation when they are not in use in their regular practices.

The meeting — attended by a state Human Resources Committee, doctors, social workers and the elderly, themselves, he said, was intended to discuss problem areas related to the elderly and the present welfare system.

Their findings will be formed into "some sort" of legislation, he said, and will be ready to be introduced at the next regular session of Congress in January of 1981.

Other members of the state Human Resources Committee, Price said, included chairman, Sen. Chet Brooks; vice - chairman, Betty Andujar, Ron Clower, Roy Blake, Lloyd Doggett, Gene Jones, Bill Patman, E. L. Short and Carlos F. Truan.

Missile project proposals sent back to Pentagon

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — The Air Force brass has returned to the Pentagon with its plans for the MX missile system after a month of hearings to determine public sentiment about the proposed project.

The task now is to test the MX for durability — to see if it can withstand the critical assaults of those who live in the area targeted as the project's site.

The Air Force held 15 "scoping" hearings in Nevada and Utah during recent weeks — its first such effort to gain public comment on a major defense project.

Several thousand persons attended the meetings and heard concerns aired by scores of speakers, from cowboys and miners to the state's top political leaders. There was some MX support, but not much.

"If the federal government, President Carter and the Air Force think they're going to shove this thing down our throats, they can think again," said Utah state Rep. Jeff Fox, D-Salt Lake.

The Air Force wants to begin building roads and bases for the $50 billion project by 1982.

A team headed by Brig. Gens. Forrest McCartney and Guy Hecker explained the program and fielded questions at the hearings. As they outlined the MX system:

—A total of 200 missiles would be scattered among 4,600 shelters from Salt Lake City, Utah, to the tiny Nevada town of Tonopah.

—The nation's enemies wouldn't be able to tell which shelters hid missiles, but if a new strategic arms limitation agreement required that Soviet satellites be allowed to count them, it could be done.

—The system provides mobility and secrecy and heads off what some foresee as the vulnerability of existing Minuteman and Titan missiles.

The Air Force and President Carter see the MX as vital to national defense. In announcing the project last December, Carter said it would be a permanent, "unsurpassed" feature of the nation's strategic nuclear deterrent.

Appeals court will rule on 'mental anguish'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today agreed to decide whether a father who heard a car hit his son and immediately witnessed the dying boy's injuries can collect money damages from the driver and owner of the automobile for his own mental anguish.

Lower courts awarded Dr. Herbert Madalin, a Corpus Christi chest and heart surgeon, $20,000 for his anguish and $5,000 for his loss of earning capacity.

The courts also said the driver and owner of the car, James Hamilton Bedgood and Robert E. Sorenson, must pay an additional $69,000 for the boy's own pain and anguish before he died, his family's actual dollar loss from his death, and funeral expenses.

Robert Madalin, 11, was playing with friends on a frontage road in front of his home on Sept. 14, 1974, when a car struck him and tossed him 60 to 80 feet.

Salvador riot plot thickens

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Right-wing terrorists kidnapped three Communist political leaders and said they would kill them if leftists occupying the Spanish Embassy did not pull out by Wednesday night.

The rightists also said they would burn the embassy if their demand was not met.

About 20 members of the Feb. 28 Popular Leagues, or LP-28, took over the embassy without a fight Tuesday, taking the Spanish ambassador and eight other persons hostage. They demanded that Spain break relations with El Salvador's military-dominated government and that the government release four LP-28 members they claimed were arrested Sunday.

The government denied holding the four leftists.

Meanwhile, police reported another leftist leader machine-gunned to death at his home Tuesday night, and about 100 radical high-school students were holding Education Minister Eduardo Colindres and hundreds of others hostage at the Education Ministry.

The students invaded the ministry Tuesday demanding a 40 percent reduction in the tuition fees charged by private colleges, expanded enrollment at free public universities and the dismissal of some Education Ministry officials. A spokesman for the students said they ranged in age from 13 to 18, and their occupation was peaceful. But it was not known if they were armed.

The government, mindful of the consequences of the police attack on the occupied Spanish Embassy in neighboring Guatemala last week, said the ruling junta assured the Spanish government in a telephone call to Madrid that security forces would not intervene in the embassy siege here.

There was no immediate indication of what the government might do about the threats from the ultra-rightist Organization for the Struggle Against Communism.

Singer settles out of court

DALLAS (AP) — Country singer Jimmy Dean today agreed to pay his brother Don Dean $4.2 million in an out-of-court agreeement to settle a libel and slander suit Don filed against Jimmy.

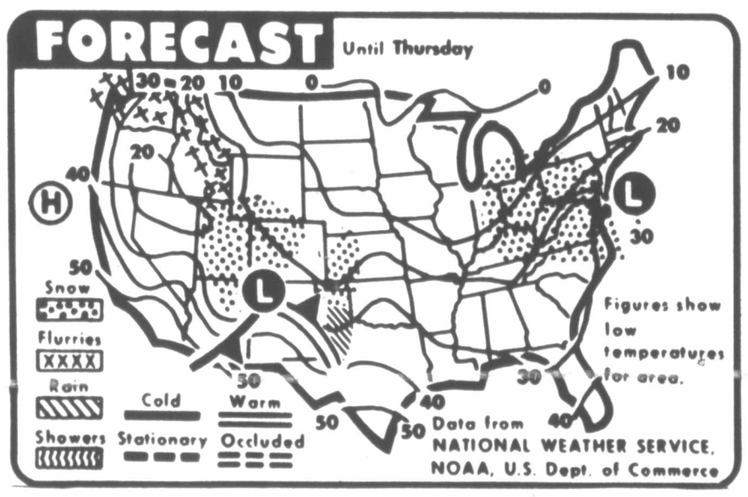
Jimmy Dean confirmed the deal and said the agreement was approved today by U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders. But he said he had no further comment.

"I was ordered by the court not to make any statements," the singer said.

The Dean brothers had been equal partners in the Jimmy Dean sausage firm until the entertainer bought out his brother in 1976.

Jimmy Dean, who recorded the hit country song "Big Bad John" in the 1960s, was critical of a company decision to reduce the one-pound pork sausage package to 12 ounces. He said it was an attempt to fool housewives into thinking they were buying a full pound.

THE NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE has issued a forecast calling for snow in the period lasting through Thursday morning. The snow belt is expected from the Ohio Valley and lower Great Lakes to North Carolina and Pennsylvania. Snow with some areas of rain is also forecast for the Southwest. Snow flurries are expected for Washington state and the northern intermountain region. Cool to cold weather is forecast for most of the nation. (AP Photo)



TEXAS

By The Associated Press

Clear skies and mild temperatures dominated the Texas weather scene today.

Forecasts called for mostly clear skies with afternoon highs cted to range from the middle 50s in North Texas to the 70s in South Texas. A few readings were expected to reach the middle 80s in the lower elevations of the Big Bend area in Southwest Texas.

Some fog was reported in East Texas and along the coastal plains before dawn. Scattered light showers were reported during the night in South Texas and just off the lower Texas coast, but there were no reports of significant rainfall.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the middle 20s in the Panhandle to lower 60s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Extremes ranged from 25 at Amarillo and 26 at Lubbock to 63 at Brownsville.

NATIONAL

Schools closed in Tennessee and residents of northeastern Georgia and West Virginia were warned to prepare for heavy snow today as a winter storm moved over the South.

Snow was forecast today from New Jersey to South Carolina and along the Great Lakes, the Ohio Valley and the Tennessee Valley. Snow also was expected in Illinois, Montana and Wyoming.

Rain was expected to dampen much of Arizona, the northern and central Pacific Coast area, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Snow fell from the mid-Mississippi Valley through the Ohio Valley to the southern Appalachians and northern Georgia early today as rain was reported from Alabama and the Florida Panhandle into southern Georgia.

Heavy snow warnings were issued for northeastern Georgia, much of West Virginia and the area around southwestern Lake Michigan.

Two to five inches of snow was reported in Tennessee today, forcing the close of schools in Nashville and in counties in the central part of the state.

Students in Memphis and in other western Tennessee school systems were excused from classes Tuesday's classes because of the winter storm. Three Nashville students and a substitute driver were treated for minor injuries Tuesday when their school bus slid off a street and overturned.

Early today, temperatures around the nation ranged from 8 below zero in Saranac Lake, N.Y., to 65 in McAllen, Texas. Other reports:

Eastern U.S. — Atlanta 33 snow, Boston 17 fair, Cincinnati 27 snow, Cleveland 19 hazy, Detroit 22 cloudy, Miami 53 partly cloudy, New York 19 fair, Philadelphia 23 fair, Pittsburgh 21 cloudy, Washington 31 cloudy.

Seven of the 24 Texas congressmen, including three of the freshmen elected two years ago, are running unopposed in their bids to return to the Capitol.

The number could diminish, however, if an application postmarked before Monday's filing deadline were to arrive at the secretary of state's office in Austin.

The congressmen without opponents in the May primary or the general election are Democratic Reps. Sam Hall of Marshall, Marvin Leath of Marlin, E. "Kika" de la Garza of Mission, Richard White of El Paso, Charles Stenholm of Stamford and Kent Hance of Lubbock and Republican Rep. Bill Archer of Houston.

Leath, Stenholm and Hance won their seats in 1978 during the big shakeup that saw nine new faces come to Washington. Eight were freshmen and the other was Rep. Ron Paul, a Republican from Lake Jackson who had served a partial term two years before.

Observers see little likelihood that the delegation will undergo as big a shakeup this year.

Two Texas seats are open at the outset of the 1980 electoral haul, representing the biggest difference from two years ago when retirements opened six seats.

This time the only incumbents not seeking additional terms in Washington are veteran Rep. Ray Roberts, a Democrat from McKinney, and freshman Rep. Joe Wyatt, a Democrat from Victoria.

"The last election was a very active election," freshman Rep. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, said Tuesday. "That pretty well flushed out everybody who was interested."

Gramm, for example, came out on top of five opponents in the Democratic primary and runoff two years ago before defeating his Republican opponent for the 6th District seat.

By the primary filing deadline Monday, the congressman from College Station was unopposed on the Democratic side. Two candidates had filed for the district's Republican primary.

Most observers pick two replays of tight races in the last election as having the most potential for hot contests this year.

One Democratic congressman, who asked not to be identified by name, called it "very difficult" to knock off an incumbent in a Texas primary.

Non-toxic gas spreads over Houston area

HOUSTON (AP) — A foul-smelling cloud of sulphur dioxide gas that leaked from a chemical plant drifted across a residential area prompting about 100 persons to seek medical treatment, according to hospital officials.

Residents who caught a whiff the the cloud as it floated along a four-mile path across south Houston Tuesday night complained of headaches and nausea. Officials said none appeared to be seriously injured.

"We only transported one person to the hospital by ambulance for treatment because of the gas," said fire department spokesman Dale Everett. "But we understand a lot of people went on their own."

Before the gas dissipated late Tuesday night, a police department dispatcher said officers advised persons living in the area affected by the gas to leave their homes if they became uncomfortable.

Ken Kirksey, superintendent of the Stauffer Chemical Plant where the gas leak occurred, said the gas was sulphur dioxide.

New squad cracks down on thugs

NEW YORK (AP) — An elite police squad has been created to arrest, and send to prison, Manhattan's "Misfortune 500" — the thugs who rape and steal and hustle up and down the island, sidestepping punishment with ease.

Although civil libertarians have their qualms, police and prosecutors say they are excited about the program.

"We feel that a significant amount of crime in the city is done by a very small group of criminals between the ages of 18 and 25," said Lt. Terence McCann, executive director of the management division of the Chief of Detectives' office.

To catch those criminals and help to convict them, McCann said, the police department has devised a three-point program:

— First, a unit combs police records for the worst 500 offenders. A type of rating is compiled as the number and types of crimes are weighted. For example, a man who assaults elderly women gets more "demerits" than one who beats young men.

— Second, 50 officers in a street crime unit will keep the 500 worst offenders under surveillance. Officers will stake out areas where a known offender works in the hope of catching him committing a crime.

— Third, when one of the targeted individuals is arrested, members of an investigative team of 25 top officers will work to build a good case, seeking corroborating witnesses and evidence. Up to now, police relied largely on the testimony of victims.

McCann said many of the criminals pick on tourists in the belief that when a trial comes around, the victim will be long gone and unable to testify. McCann said police will pay to have some victims return for trials.

McCann says the district attorney will not allow plea bargaining for the 500 targeted criminals, but Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau says plea bargaining will not be necessary if the program produces enough evidence to make stiff charges stand up in court.

"They'll notify us so that we'll know if someone comes in on robbery and the guy has five robberies, well, they're going to tell us that so we can tell the court and get stricter sentences," Morgenthau said.

The program started Jan. 14. The target list of 500 offenders has been compiled, and three men have been arrested — two by happenstance and one who allegedly committed a burglary while under surveillance.

"These guys run the gamut — street robbery, narcotics, larceny, assault, rape, burglary, weapons possession," McCann said. "They're not specialists. They're criminal opportunists. If you ask them what they do for a living, they'll say they hustle."

Subject A, one of the targets, has been hustling for a long time. He is 23 years old, 6 feet tall and 200 pounds; he hangs around Washington Square Park in Greenwich Village with several cohorts, snorting cocaine and smoking dope.

His first adult arrest was in 1975, when he was charged with petty larceny, assault and possession of stolen property. The charges were dismissed. Three months later, he was charged with robbery, assault and criminal trespass. The charges were dismissed.

Iranians invite Americans to anniversary celebration

HOUSTON (AP) — An Iranian government spokesman said two ministers and an attorney have been asked to return to Iran for a celebration marking the first anniversary of the Islamic revolution.

"They have been invited by the government," said Kamran Movassaghi, a Iranian spokesman in Washinton, D.C. Movassaghi also said Iran will pay for the trip.

The Revs. Bobby Mills and Don Lee Everett and attorney G. Michael Cooper were originally scheduled to depart for Iran Sunday, but a spokesman for the trio said no definite departure date had been set.

"They only said they plan to leave when they get certain information together they need," Charles W. Moore, a spokesmen for the two ministers said Tuesday. He said he did not know what information was being sought.

U.S. State Department spokesman Merton Bland was cool to the idea of the ministers returning to Iran.

Men attack picket line

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Police were tight-lipped concerning their investigation of a fight at a Gulf Oil Co. refinery that sent seven striking union members to a hospital for treatment.

Gulf spokesman Jim Gatten said that the incident "is going take some police investigation...there was a disturbance. A lot of people (were) involved," he said.

Three men attacked a group of picketers at a Gulf refinery, starting the fight, authorities said.

Two members of the striking Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union were admitted to the hospital with stab wounds, seven others were treated and relesed, according to hospital officials and Port Arthur police.

The union official, who asked not to be identified, said three men pulled two kitchen knives and a blackjack as they approached a group of picketers near a refinery gate, and attacked the group.

Three men were arrested and charged with aggravated assault Tuesday night, said Peace Justice John Knowles, who set bond at $15,000 each.

Police said union members who claimed to witness the fight gave them a knife as evidence, but officers made few details of their investigation public.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Introducing: An age old cure for the common cold

By D.R. Segal

If there is a difference between the "flu" and the "common cold," I am not aware of it; but assuming there is a biological distinction, the result is about the same: misery.

Harvard Medical School now has a "cure" for the common cold. "Large doses of tincture of time." Some of the country's sharpest medical people have concluded that an untreated cold lasts seven days and a treated cold will go away in a week. You knew that, of course, but you didn't believe it. But when Harvard Medical School speaks, people listen. Give up.

Someone, I couldn't say who, has figured out that Americans spend $500 million per annum on over-the-counter cold remedies which have benefitted principally the manufacturers and druggists. The American Pharmaceutical Association has put out a handbook on the various remedies. It's called Handbook of Non-prescription Drugs and you may get it, if you wish, from the association's office at 2215 Constitution Avenue, Washington, D.C., 22037. Here is part of what the handbook has to say:

Decongestants may make your nose run less and your sinuses feel better, but they constrict blood vessels throughout the body and can spell danger for persons with high blood pressure. Also, nose drops and sprays can cause "rebound," which means they can make things worse instead of better.

Antihistamines may dry up nasal secretions if taken in the early stages of a cold. However, they also can cause blurred vision and urine retention. Warning, do not use if you have glaucoma. Some medicines combine more than one kind of antihistamine. "There is no scientific rationale" for this, says the handbook.

Anti-fever and anti-pain remedies, including aspirin, may make you feel better. However, most colds don't give you a fever, even though you feel warm. That "combination of ingredients" is a sales gimmick; and the "ingredient most often prescribed by doctors" is aspirin.

Cough medicines probably aren't as effective as vapor. They should not be used when excessive sputum exists. Be careful. Combinations of ingredients can cause unexpected side effects. For instance, aspirin can interfere with anticoagulant (blood-thinning) drugs. It may worsen high blood pressure in persons taking certain medication.

For most people, aspirin is about the best remedy you can use to ease the discomfort. Bed rest, fluids and aspirin will make you feel better but there's no actual proof it will make your cold go away any faster. Cigarette smoking is terrible for people with bronchial problems. In summary, the old story of take two aspirins, go to bed and call me in the morning is about the best advice medical people can offer. All that stuff about antibiotics and miracle drugs is expensive foolishness, unless a specific infection is present.

Ah-choo! Bless you! It'll go away.

The politics of gasohol

Just when gasohol was beginning to look promising as long-run relief from petroleum scarcities, the U.S. Department of Energy is getting involved.

Previously DOE had shown little enthusiasm for an alcohol-gasoline hybrid, according to the January issue of Reason magazine, because many of the regulators are engrained in the traditional reliance on fossil fuels and because many in the federal government would like to force some changes in our lives by limiting the fuel available to us.

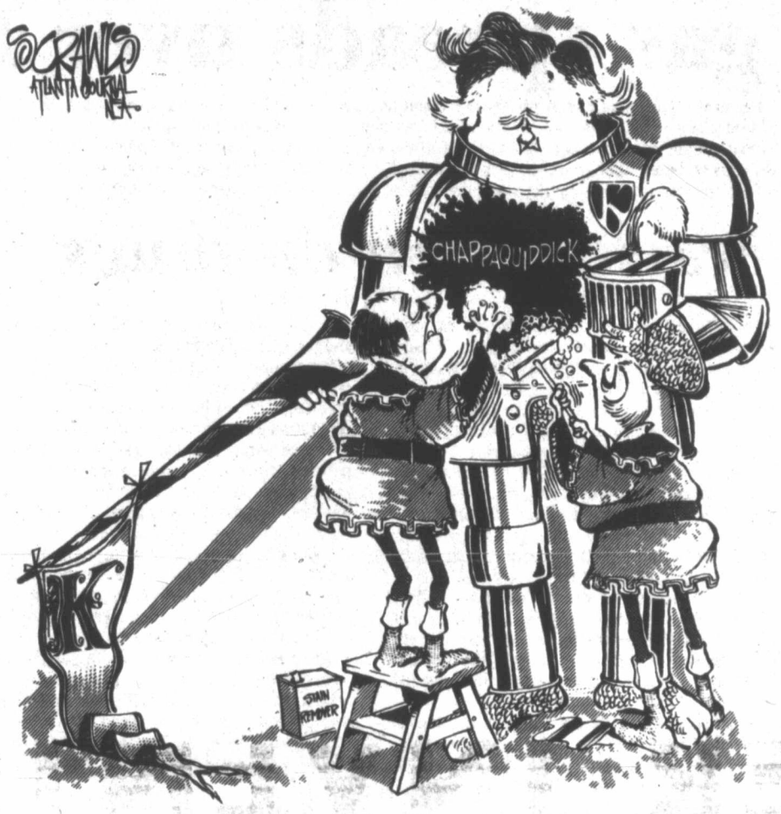
Now, however, the Carter administration is plunging into gasohol in a big way. A primary reason appears to be political: with grain shipments to Russia curtailed, some use for 5 million tons of corn had to be found. Farmers in key primary states could not be saddled with the loss, and rather than have the government buy the stuff and let it lie idle, why not announce plans for its preparation for use in our tanks?

Let us hope that an empty promise was all that was, because if the DOE actually goes ahead with its plan to increase by 10-fold the output of ethanol (the alcohol component of gasohol) this year, it's going to mean federal development costs that may rival the synfuel program.

Private ethanol producers say the industry simply isn't ready for this type of explosive growth. The production capacity and product market haven't been achieved, and probably won't be until the price of gasoline reaches a point (some say $2 a gallon) at which the ethanol substitute is competitive. Of course, the government could pursue the rather perverse policy of encouraging a more expensive alternative while holding the price of petrol down. On reflection, that seems to be exactly what the government will likely do.

Ethanol producers are wary of grand schemes like DOE has in mind. They remember the last time a federal crash program of this sort came along — in World War I, after which producers were left hanging when petroleum became plentiful again and ethanol had no buyers, not even the very government that had galvanized its production.

Gasohol may in the end be an answer to many of our prayers, securing us independence both from foreign energy sources and from the threats to private mobility posed by our own government's draconian conservation proposals. But like solar power, it must be allowed to evolve efficiently on its own, lest it become an arm of the statist behemoth that may restrict and bankrupt us, both.



Today in history

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 6, the 37th day of 1980. There are 329 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 6, 1952, British King George VI died and his daughter, Elizabeth II, ascended to the throne.

On this date:

In 1693, the college of William and Mary was chartered in Virginia.

In 1778, during the American Revolution, Britain declared war on France — which had recognized the rebels.

In 1899, the Treaty of Paris was ratified. In it, the United States bought from Spain, for $20 million, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Philippines.

In 1976, the Chinese invited former President Richard Nixon to visit Peking. He accepted.

Ten years ago, one jet hijacker was killed and a second captured in a police shootout during a refueling stop in Santiago, Chile. Four people were wounded.

Five years ago, three paintings — one by Raphael and two by Piero della Francesca — were stolen from the National Gallery in Urbino, Italy.

Last year, China's First Vice Premier, Deng Xiaoping, ended his visit to United States, flying on to Japan.

The great silver rush

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON-- "You better get over here right away," Lila Thompson said. "Henry's gone bananas."

When I got there, she pointed to the dining room. Henry was sitting on a chair by the sideboard with a shotgun in his lap.

"Don't come any further," he said, "or I'll blow a hole in your gizzard."

"Can I ask what you're doing?" I said.

"I'm protecting my silverware. Do you realize what silver is worth these days?"

"I understand it's doing very well," I told him. "But I didn't know you had that much."

"Wouldn't you like to know how much I've got. We're sitting on the Tower of London and no one is going to get near it."

Lila, who was standing behind me, said, "Ever since the price of silver went up to $50 an ounce, we've had to eat with our hands. He says no one in the family is worthy of using our knives and forks. All he does is sit there all day long weighing soup spoons."

"Henry," I said softly, "I know silver is starting to have some value, but you can't sit in the dining room for the rest of your life."

"What am I going to do? Go to work and have someone steal a fortune right under my nose?"

"If it's that valuable why don't you put it into a bank vault?"

"I don't trust banks," he said. "I want my silverware where I can count it every day."

I asked his wife if she had called her son Roger.

"Henry won't talk to Roger. We gave Roger a silver setting when he got married. A year later he split up with his wife and she took the wedding present. Henry said he doesn't want to have anything to do with a person who would let his wife walk off with the silverware just because his marriage didn't pan out."

"Why are you looking at that platter?" Henry asked, lifting his shotgun.

"Is that sterling?" I asked him.

"Wouldn't you like to know," he said.

"It's sterling," Lila told me. "I tried to polish it the other day and he screamed for two hours. He wouldn't let me wash the cloth in case some silver might have rubbed off on it."

"I guess you have the silver fever, Henry," I told him. "Maybe it would be a good time to sell."

"At $50 an ounce? You must think I'm crazy. This is the time to buy."

Lila said, "He wants me to go around the neighborhood and ask if anyone wants to sell their silverware. I'd feel ridiculous."

"Well, there's nothing I can do. He'll come out of it eventually. Call me if he gets worse."

I left the house and rushed home.

My wife found me in the dining room putting all our silver into a pillowcase.

"What are you doing?" she wanted to know.

"I'm putting this stuff away for safety. It's too valuable to sit in a drawer."

"But what are we going to eat with?" she wanted to know.

"What's the matter?" I shouted at her, "haven't you ever heard of pizza?"

Texas may be ripe for gerrymandering

Is West Texas ripe for a case of gerrymandering? Is Texas?

A number of factors indicate some rank gerrymandering may be possible after the 1980 Census count is announced.

Most persons knowledgeable of politics know what gerrymandering is, but many may not know what it can mean.

Gerrymandering dates far back to 1812 when the Massachusetts legislature, with the support of the governor of the state then, Elbridge Gerry, created a now infamous salamander-shaped district designed to enhance the political fortunes of the Democratic Party. The incident resulted in the addition to the American political vocabulary of the word "gerrymandering." It means the drawing of districts to inflate or deflate the political strength of an individual or a party or a group.

The states of the union will have to redistrict their legislative and congressional seats after the 1980 Census has been taken. Many may recall that a decade ago there was considerable redistricting in Texas and some squabbles resulted. Now, 10 years later, we will again face redistricting, and already many state legislatures are preparing for the task of drawing the boundaries for congressional districts that will be used in the '80s.

In Common, magazine of Common Cause, reports that "if current population projections prove to be accurate, congressional representation will increase in eight states following the 1980 census — in Arizona, California, Florida, Oregon, Tennessee, Texas, Utah and Washington. Six states — Illinois, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and South Dakota — will probably lose congressional seats, with New York expected to lose up to four districts."

The publication points out, too, that even in those states where the number of representatives remains constant, districts will have to be altered to reflect population changes, and "if past performance is repeated, this redistricting process will include many closed door conferences and confrontations, midnight flights from Washington to state capitals, and virtually incessant telephone calls from anxious congressional incumbents to state legislators. And in the end, these legislators armed with the latest in sophisticated computer technology and voting data, will again twist and bend election districts to serve partisan and personal interest in a way that might amaze even Governor Gerry."

In Common pointed out, also, that the reapportionment reform battles of the past were usually fought over the principle of population equality for districts. It continued, "For decades, state legislatures had failed to realign districts in response to population changes. A Brookings Institution study revealed that half of the states with more than one congressional district in 1962 had constituencies in which the smallest district had less than one-half of the population of the largest district. The U.S. Supreme Court decisions of the mid-1960s eliminated these gross population inequalities through the imposition of the doctrine of one person, one vote. The court, however, has not curbed the greatest reapportionment problem of the 1970s — gerrymandering..."

The effects of gerrymandering go beyond oddly-shaped districts. Other effects on the political process include (1) protecting incumbents and stifling competition; (2) being used for partisan political mavericks; and (3) being used to discourage the election of representatives of racial minority groups.

There have been some vast shifts in populations in Texas, and for that matter, throughout the country. Probably never has the nation and this region been riper than now for gerrymandering. Congressional action in the matter may seem somewhat positive, but because it, too, will have been taken by politicians, one can remain skeptical that despite all "safeguards" there will be some gerrymandering during the months ahead, resulting in a lot of political squabbling.

Windfall profits at a glance

The windfall profits tax bill passed by the Senate would:

--Tax oil discovered before 1973 (Tier I) at 75 percent of the price above a base of $6 a barrel initially, with a gradual increase to $13, adjusted for inflation.

--Tax oil discovered between 1973 and 1978 (Tier II) at 75 percent of the price above a base of $13 a barrel, adjusted for inflation.

--Tax stripper oil (oil from wells producing 10 or fewer barrels a day) at a rate of 60 percent above a base price of $16 a barrel.

--Tax newly discovered oil (that discovered after 1978) at 10 percent of the price above a base of $20 a barrel, adjusted for inflation and increased annually by 2 percent.

--Tax heavy oil at 20 percent of the price above a $17 base, adjusted for inflation and increased annually by 2 percent.

--Tax oil produced by tertiary recovery methods at a rate of 20 percent of the price above a $17 base, also adjusted for inflation and increased annually by 2 percent.

--Allow a deduction for severance taxes levied by states, from the amount taxable by the windfall profits tax.

--Exempt from the tax the first 1,000 barrels a day produced by independent producers and royalty owners (defined as those who are not retailers or refiners of significant quantities).

--Allow a depletion allowance for the first 1,000 barrels a day produced by an independent.

--Exempt oil owned by state and local governments, non-profit schools and hospitals and churches dedicating revenues to schools or hospitals.

--Phase out the tax by exempting 3 percent of taxable production each month after net revenues equal $189 billion, thus limiting revenues to $214 billion.

And, believe it or not, the Senate version is much more liberal than the House version. The House-Senate Conference Committee version of the bill almost certainly will be even more punitive and costly.

"How do you do? I'm sanguine."

Overcrowding considered as trigger for prison rioting

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas and New Mexico prison inmates have, in the past four years, filed complaints in federal court charging inhumane treatment and unsanitary living conditions.

Today, while Texas prisons are quiet, the New Mexico State Penitentiary has been reduced to a blood-spattered, smoldering hulk — a reminder that violence is an inmate's constant companion.

In 1977, a class action suit filed by New Mexico inmates charged the prisons were overcrowded and prisoners were receiving improper treatment.

Eight Texas inmates brought a long list of of charges against the Texas Department of Corrections in October, 1978.

Both suits were similar but the New Mexico suit, on which no action has been taken, proved to be chillingly prophetic with its charge that overcrowding led to incidents of prison violence.

The carnage that exploded in the Sante Fe facility over the weekend left 35 prisoners dead. Some had been castrated, some had been dismembered, some had been tortured with blowtorches. Fifteen are still missing.

Even though Texas prisons have nearly doubled their inmate population in the past seven years — from 17,000 in 1974 to 29,000 today — the only recent incident occurred in 1978 when 1,300 inmates rioted two years ago in support of the suit filed by prisoners.

Following the incident, W.J. Estelle, TDC director, said "overcrowding could lead to more violence even though 90 percent of the inmates want to avoid further disturbances."

"Overcrowding is relative," a TDC spokesman said Tuesday. "Of course, we have more prisoners than in the past, but we are able to absorb them into the system."

He said some TDC inmates were sleeping on mattresses placed on the floors, and that cells orginally built for one person were now housing two.

During the Houston trial William Turner, attorney for the prisoners, said TDC inmates were "constantly in fear of assault and punishment."

Leonard Ortega Diza, 28, serving a 15-year armed robbery sentece, testified his jaw had been broken and eardrum ruptured when hit by two prison officials.

Alan Lamar, 41, also serving an armed robbery sentence, told the federal judge in Houston nepotism among prison guards was a problem. "We are not getting the best of possible officers because there are too many brothers and cousins of present officers getting jobs here now," he said.

Lamar also said he found roaches in the food and the TDC dining facilities were unsanitary. He said he only ate one meal a day in the mess hall. "The other meals I buy at the commissary with money sent to me by my family," he said.

Oklahoma housing some Fanta Fe prisoners

EL RENO, Okla. (AP) — Thirty-five prisoners from the New Mexico State Prison at Sante Fe, the scene of one of the worst riots in corrections history, are now being held at the Federal Correctional Institution here.

The inmates arrived by plane in Oklahoma City late Tuesday, but were kept aboard the aircraft for several hours while a bus was brought in to take them to the federal prison.

The charter plane landed at Will Rogers World Airport about 6 p.m. A bus with barred windows finally arrived and the prisoners were transported to the federal facility.

Bill Harris, Executive Assistant to the Warden, said the prisoners were to be housed in single cells at the institution.

Since federal officials have no information about the inmates, they were all to be processed to determine if they will remain at El Reno or be sent to another federal prison, he said.

The U.S. Bureau of Prisons launched a program Tuesday to begin ferrying 350 prisoners from the devastated New Mexico prison to the federal maximum security prison in Leavenworth, Kan.

The survivors of last week's prison riot in New Mexico are being sent to several locations until New Mexico officials can determine how to house them.

During the rioting, which ended Sunday, 36 inmates died and much of the prison was vandalized and burned.

Oklahoma officials have been asked to house about 50 more inmates and are awaiting a federal judge's decision on a temporary waiver of a prison overcrowding court order before agreeing to the plan.

NEW MEXICO NATIONAL GUARDSMEN are standing guard at the Santa Fe facility where prisoners rioted Saturday. Authorities at the prison are in the process of transfering inmates to prisons in joining states as a result of destruction done to the state prison which is near the New Mexico state capital. Some prisoners are now housed in El Reno, Okla. Texas officials contend federal facilities in the state are not equipped to take more, or out-of-state prisoners. (AP Photo)

One dead in runaway grain car smashup

DENISON, Texas (AP) — It took nearly 12 hours to cut the body of an engineer from the wreckage of a massive train derailment that also injured two crewmen, destroyed 59 grain cars and spilled more than $1 million worth of corn on the ground.

Officials with the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad said 79 loaded grain cars rolled down an incline at a rail yard and smashed into a switch-engine early Tuesday.

More than 50 of the 130-ton cars derailed on impact, gouging up several hundred yards of newly repaired track and spilling corn as much as six feet deep in places.

Officials at the scene said the wrecked cars carried about 240,000 bushels of corn, with an estimated market value of $1¼ million.

Cleanup crews were to work through the night, hoping to have the track cleared by this afternoon, company officers said.

Chris Putsche, general transportation supervisor for the railroad, said the switch engine was on a routine run to pick up some cars a few miles north of the Ray Yard, when the grain cars began moving.

"For some reason," he said, "the cars of grain rolled out of the yard, overtook and slammed into the switcher." He said the runaway cars traveled about a mile before the crash.

"There apparently were two impacts," Putsche said. "The first they survived and it caused some of the cars to derail. In the second impact, the big pileup occured. This is just conjecture, of course."

Investigators said they would check several possible causes for the accident, including a leakage of air from the cars' automatic brakes.

The grain cars were parked in the yard until an engine picked them up. The Ray Yard is located just west of Denison and just south of the Red River that divides Texas and Oklahoma.

"All we know at this point is that the grain cars were parked at the 'Y' in the Ray Yards waiting for power to take them south," said Katy northern division manager, M.L. Janovec. "They broke loose and rolled down the track, gaining momentum as they rolled toward the river."

The dead engineer, Jimmy Derischweiler, 31, was crushed beneath the engine car and buried under dozens of grain cars.

Peace Justice Charles Odle pronounced Derischweiler dead at the scene about 3 a.m., but workers were unable to remove his body until shortly after 2 p.m.

The two crewmen were pulled to safety shortly after the wreck.

Tracy Badgett, an engineer on another train, said he was talking by radio to the victims just as the cars hit. He told witnesses at the scene they said, "We're all right, just bruised," just after impact.

But the grain cars began to jam up, crushing the manned engine and shooting the other engine southward down the tracks where automatic emergency brakes brought it to a halt.

A TANGLED MESS is a grim reminder of a runaway train derailment Tuesday near Dennison. The cars causing the damage began rolling from a nearby siding shortly before the crash which cost one man his life. Crews were expected to have the track cleared sometime today. (AP Photo)

Mexico-bound grain ready for shipment

DALLAS (AP) — Huge rail shipments of wheat and corn will soon be moving from the Texas Panhandle south of the Rio Grande, according to officials of Santa Fe Railway.

Railroad president Larry Cena said Tuesday his company, the National Railways of Mexico and Conasupo, the Mexican grain company, completed negotiations for the international grain movement.

Cena said the agreement calls for three 75-car trains of grain to move each week from West Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas.

The grain will enter Mexico at Presidio, Texas, and most will be sent to Torreon, 600 miles due south of Presidio, where the grain will be unloaded and reshipped to other points. Some of the trains will continue south through Mexico City.

Cena said box cars will be used because Mexican facilities can handle them more easily. This also will keep the grain shipments from interfering with the supply of hopper cars used for domestic grain shipments.

The movement has already started on a limited basis, Cena said, and should peak in a few weeks. It will continue through May.

The grain consists primarily of wheat and corn. Movements will average 13,500 tons a week, at least through May, Cena said. Primary loading points will be Tulia and Hereford in West Texas and Kansas City and Hutchinson, Kan.

Marine Board inquiry questions cutter crew

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — An oil tanker's massive anchor, which hooked a Coast Guard cutter in a grinding collision, may have caused the crippled ship to capsize rapidly, sending 23 seamen to their deaths, a survivor says.

Chief Machinery Technician Rondel Litterell, 31, of Texas City, Texas, was questioned for eight hours Tuesday by the Marine Board of Inquiry, investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board and teams of attorneys.

Another crewmen from the cutter Blackthorn was scheduled to take the stand today as the panel continues its inquiry into the Jan. 28 wreck in Tampa Bay that killed 23 Coast Guardsmen.

As Litterell testified, Coast Guard officers reported an eighth body was recovered near the wreck, leaving 15 other seamen still missing and presumed dead.

Litterell recalled that at least four fellow survivors blamed the collision on the tanker Capricon because it "turned into us." He said the Blackthorn capsized rapidly, even though "she shouldn't have."

Litterell said it might have gone down quickly because the tanker's anchor lodged on the port side of the cutter. He said the anchor penetrated the vessel's outer plates and was at least four feet inside the ship.

"I felt as if something was continuing to pull us over," the seaman said, cautioning his interviewers that the theory had "a lot of ifs."

But he said: "My own feeling is that if the anchor was still attached to the vessel (the Capricorn); if it (the Capricorn) continued by us, the only reason for us to continue to roll was the continued pressure as far as it pulling us."

Litterell, an 11-year Coast Guardsmen, said he was napping when the collision occurred. As the Blackthorn churned out of Tampa Bay, Litterell said he was awakended by a voice over the ship's public address system.

"It said brace and prepare yourself for a collision."

Within moments, Litterell saw sparks flying through a port hole and heard screeches and grinds from what became the Coast Guard's worst peacetime disaster.

Litterell said he grabbed his pants and shirt and scurried up to a deck where he met a naked crewman, Machinery Technician Bruce Lafond, who told him, "You better get the anchor out of the shower before you take a shower." Lafond's body was found the next day.

Litterell peeked into the shower for himself. "I said to myself, 'What in the world is this anchor doing in here?'"

The ship listed slightly starboard, then rolled to its port side as Litterell returned to the deck, he said. He described the motion like the steady sweep of the second hand on a watch.

At a table near the witness stand, the Blackthorn's grim skipper, Lt. Cmdr. George Sepel, took off his wristwatch and gazed at it intently.

"That's right," he whispered to his attorney.

Litterell, like at least two dozen of the 50 Blackthorn crewmen, plunged into the water as the cutter went over.

The senior officer aboard, Chief Warrant Officer J.S. Miller, directed bobbing crewmen to stay calm and grab life preservers as they fought the curent that was sucking them toward the sinking ship, Litterell recalled.

Farm real estate price may plunge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Improved cattle prices and bumper crops last year helped boost farm real estate values another 16 percent, but government experts say the boom may lose steam in 1980.

On the average, farmland values rose to $609 an acre nationally as of last Nov. 1, compared to $525 on Nov. 1, 1978, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

The 16 percent increase compared to a 12 percent gain the previous year and was about on target with earlier projections by USDA experts.

Farmland values — prices that buyers pay — have increased consistently the last 20 years and since 1970 have gone up by more than 200 percent, says the department.

For example, in 1974 the average price of U.S. farmland jumped 23 percent in the wake of rising commodity prices and spiraling inflation.

The department reports farmland values twice a year, for the 12 months ending each Nov. 1 and for the 12 months ending each Feb. 1.

Farmland values rose 9 percent between Feb. 1, and Nov. 1, 1979, the report said. That compared to an 8 percent gain for the same period in 1978.

The report, issued by USDA's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service, said that in the year ended last Nov. 1 farmland values jumped 20 percent or more in 13 states, with "most of the largest gains in the West and (Mississippi) Delta states."

"Relatively strong cattle prices and increased cotton production contributed to the above-average price rises in several of those states," the report said.

Looking at the situation since last fall, the report said "concern about high interest rates was expected to moderate price increases" in recent months.

At the department's annual outlook conference last November, officials said rising interest rates could slow the increase in land values significantly in 1980, perhaps holding price increases to between 5 and 10 percent.

The largest gain in farmland values was in Arkansas, where the jumps averaged 26 percent to $800 an acre as of Nov. 1, compared to $635 a year earlier.

All states showed an increase from Nov. 1, 1978, except Oregon, which was listed as unchanged in its average land price during the year.

New Jersey continued to have the most expensive farmland, an average of $2,232 an acre, up 5 percent from $2,126 a year earlier.

In New England, where land values were estimated to be up 9 percent during the year, the averages ranged from $518 an acre in Maine to $2,301 in Connecticut.

Other northeastern states, their Nov. 1 value averages and percentage increases from a year earlier included: New York, $704 an acre and 12 percent; Pennsylvania, $1,267 and 12; Delaware, $1,897 and 12; and Maryland, $1,916 and 19.

Farmland in other areas as described in the report, included:

Lake States — Michigan, $1,111 and 24; Wisconsin, $843 and 12; and Minnesota, $961 and 18.

Corn Belt — Ohio, $1,609 and 14; Indiana, $1,561 and 9; Illinois, $1,858 and 10; Iowa, $1,636 and 19; and Missouri, $757 and 19.

Northern Plains — North Dakota, $322 and 13; South Dakota, $280 and 19; Nebraska, $520 and 21; and Kansas, $484 and 16.

Appalachia — Virginia, $897 and 7; West Virginia, $555 and 17; North Carolina, $844 and 16; Kentucky, $855 and 21; and Tennessee, $768 and 19.

Southeast — South Carolina, $640 and 16; Georgia, $616 and 5; Florida, $965 and 9; and Alabama, $551 and 12.

Delta — Mississippi, $632 and 24; Arkansas, $800 and 26; and Louisiana, $910 and 21.

Southern Plains — Oklahoma, $496 and 19; and Texas, $388 and 17.

Mountain — Montana, $207 and 10; Idaho, $610 and 23; Wyoming, $137 and 20; Colorado, $378 and 16; New Mexico, $125 and 25; Arizona, $161 and 25; Utah, $330 and 25; and Nevada, $129 and 25.

Pacific — Washington, $617 and 14; Oregon, $326 and no change; and California, $995 and 23.

Do it yourself to re-create kitchen; plan ahead to save remodeling dollars

By Carolyn Barnes

Do you have a kitchen that is cramped or dull, without a budget for improvements? Remodeling a kitchen requires careful planning — and complicated changes in plumbing and electrical work usually mean calling in an expert — but there's a lot you can do yourself to save money.

Because of the recent do-it-yourself movement, manufactureres are now making their products easier for the average homeowner to use. Wallpaper, flooring materials and paneling often come with complete, detailed instructions and can easily be installed by a nonprofessional.

Bookshelves and other types of shelving can also be put up by just about anyone, with the right tools and instructions. So strong is the trend towards "doing-it-yourself" that last year homeowners spent approximately $38 billion on home fix-up materials.

Before you begin, evaluate the entire project carefully. Find out exactly what you can do yourself and what needs to be done by a professional. Get written estimates from plumbers and electricians, and make the rounds of home decorating stores to get the best prices on materials.

You may need a building permit to remodel your kitchen, especially if structural changes are involved. Check with the appropriate city or county office.

Removing walls may seem simple in the planning stage, but if they contain pipes or heating ducts, the work involved may turn out to be major.

One good way to make sure your remodeling ideas will work is to draw a floor plan of the area you wish to renovate on a piece of graph paper. Every block on the paper can represent one square foot of your kitchen.

Find out the measurements of any new appliances, counters, and shelves you plan to install. Draw them to scale on the graph paper. Be sure to include any doors and windows in your drawing.

Here are some ideas to make your kitchen work for you:

— Paneling is one way of perking up tired looking walls in your kitchen area. You can now select paneling in wood tones: natural oak, dark teak, or walnut. Prices range from 20 to 60 cents per square foot.

If you install the paneling yourself, be sure to purchase the correct amount of materials to finish the job. This means careful measuring. Read thoroughly any instructions provided by the manufacturer before starting to work.

— If your kitchen is adjacent to a little-used dining room and you would like to get more use out of that space, remove the wall between the two rooms altogether. The old dining room could become a family room, and if you put a pass-through counter between it and the kitchen, your family can eat there as well. Pass-through counters are even more convenient when the base cabinets open from both sides.

— One way to solve the problem of limited work space in a kitchen, without extensive remodeling, is to purchase a movable cabinet that has a cutting board surface and can double as a portable bar and buffet. It can be moved out of the way when not in use, or you can roll it to the table for serving.

— If your kitchen is short on cabinet space and your pots and pans end up on the floor, install open shelves on one wall of your kitchen, from top to bottom. Hang pots and pans from an overhead rack. The open shelves can be narrower than regular cabinets and built on movable pegs for easy adjustment.

— If your kitchen is short on floor space and you can't make the room any larger, install a U-shaped work area with a sink in the middle of the room. This will provide more counter space than the conventional work area built against the wall. If your kitchen is joined to a family room, you can angle the new work area so that anyone using the sink will be facing the other room.

The kitchen is an important room in any house. With a little planning and imagination, you can give your kitchen a whole new look without spending your entire budget on home improvements.

Home safety tips offered for elderly

STILLWATER, Okla (AP) — Accidents in the home kill more persons over age 65 than any other cause, reports Dorothy Blackwell, an extension specialist at Oklahoma State University who has these suggestions:

— Have ample lighting in all areas of the home day and night. As people become older, they need more light than before.

— Arrange furniture so the pathway leading from room to room and to outside doors is uncluttered. Try to use lightweight, stable furniture and eliminate heavy pieces which are hard to move.

— Use chairs that let the feet fit firmly on the floor and let the arms rest at a comfortable position. The chair should be sturdy enough to let a person sit or rise easily.

— Select flame-retardant, stain-resistant materials for drapery and upholstery fabric.

— If small rugs are needed, fasten them securely to the floor. Use tape if necessary. Scatter rugs in halls, walkways and pathways are likely to cause falls.

— Check appliances regularly to be sure cords and plugs are in good condition.

Be a comparative meat shopper

Get in the habit of being a comparative shopper. It takes time but it can help you have more meat to serve.

Check the cost per pound of two roasts, one with bone and the other boneless. Then judge the number of servings you will get from each. Obviously the boneless roast will yield more servings per pound and so may be a better buy than the bone-in roast, depending upon the price per pound of each.

Compare the cost per pound of a boneless roast or steak with the cost per pound of the boneless sub-primal cut. This can be done by reading the newspaper advertisements or browsing the meat counter. Many markets now sell these large cuts of meat such as the whole boneless top loin, tenderloin, rib eye or top round. Each is vacuum packaged at the processing plant and is shipped refrigerated to the retail market. You cut the meat to suit your own use and save the cutting cost.

Don't be turned off by the dark appearance of beef in the sealed wrap caused by the elimination of air. As soon as the wrapper is removed and the meat is cut it will change to the normal bright red color.

When comparing the cost of the various sub-primal cuts, keep in mind that there may be some trimming loss. For example, you may trim away 25 to 30 percent of the whole untrimmed tenderloin but only 10 percent of the boneless rib eye.

Compare the cost per serving of pork versus beef or lamb. Often there are specials on whole pork loins. These are easy to cut into a roast and several chops because the backbone is usually sawed through. Occasionally whole pork shoulders are a good buy. Several shoulder steaks can be removed, leaving a meaty cut for roasting or cooking with sauerkraut or noodles. Many markets will cut the loins or shoulders into steaks or roasts with no extra charge.

Compare the cost of a steak dinner prepared at home with a similar meal served to you in a restaurant. Generally two or three people can have steak dinners at home for the price of dinner for one eaten out. Compare the cost per serving of sausage meats such as franks or brown 'n serve sausage. Both are precooked so that there is very little loss during heating. Another good buy is beef liver, so high in nutrition and low in cost per serving that it is worth seeking out special recipes, if necessary, to encourage non-liver-lovers to change their minds.

DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Mac and I have been married for 30 years. We have a great marriage, except for the resentment he shows when I go out every Monday evening to play canasta with the girls, and bingo on Friday evenings in the basement of our church.

I've asked Mac to come along and play bingo, but he refused. He didn't mind my going out for four years because he was working second shift. But now that he's back on first shift, he wants me to sit home and listen to him snore in a chair after supper.

Abby, I never worked when my kids were growing up, so I think I have earned two nights a week out.

Am I wrong or selfish? Should I give up my canasta and bingo, or put up with Mac's complaints?

WILLING TO PLEASE

DEAR WILLING: Offer Mac a compromise. Tell him you will spend only one night each week away from him provided he spends the other night doing something with you. (Playing honeymoon bridge, Scrabble, or going to a movie.) He is being selfish to expect you to sit home and listen to him snore.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl. Last year my Mom and Dad split up. I live with Mom, and Dad lives in an apartment with Marge, his girlfriend. When Dad and Marge started living together, they didn't hide it. They had me over their apartment as if they were married. When I said, "Dad, does this mean that Ricky (he's my 17-year-old boyfriend) and I can live together when we're of age?"

Then Dad said, "No! If you can support yourself totally when you are of age, then you can live any way you like, but as long as I'm expected to kick in with money for your support, I will have something to say about it."

Abby, how come it's OK for Dad to live with somebody outside of marriage, but not for me?

DON'T GET IT

DEAR DON'T: With your Dad it's a matter of money, not morals. As long as he's providing the roof over your head, he wants a say about who's sleeping under it.

DEAR ABBY: A reader asked, "How long should a hostess hold up a meal for a tardy guest?"

You replied, "15 minutes is long enough."

I agree. The question and your reply reminded me of the rule I always had when I was in the corporate entertaining world: "NEVER EARLY, AND NOT MORE THAN 15 MINUTES LATE."

It was such a steadfast rule that, one evening, in order not to arrive 15 minutes early at the home of friends who had invited us to dinner, my wife and I proceeded to drive around to kill time. We got lost, and drove around for 45 minutes before finding our way back! I spent the entire evening apologizing.

DEAR ABBY: I recently visited our daughter who has a 2-month-old baby girl. I took some pictures of the baby; one showed the mother bathing the baby.

After returning home I took the pictures to a longtime friend and neighbor woman who has never had any children. She looked at the picture of the baby being bathed and said, "You should not be showing this around. It is pornography!"

Abby, I was shocked, and told her so. How can a picture of a naked baby be pornography? An innocent little baby's body is a beautiful sight, and there is nothing dirty or pornographic about it.

Am I wrong? Or could such a picture really be considered pornographic?

SHOCKED AND CONFUSED

DEAR SHOCKED: Pornography is the depiction of erotic behavoir, intending to cause sexual excitement. If a picture of a 2-month-old baby being bathed created that kind of response in your friend, the "pornography" is in her mind.

Address comments and questions to Abby, c/o Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, please enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read a magazine article about a new treament for acne. I'm 29 years old and have had acne since I was 13. This new treatment is 13- cis retinoic acid (a vitamin A acid that's taken orally). I was wondering how effective this treatment is and if there are any side effects.

DEAR READER — The preliminary research work on the new derivative of vitamin A is promising. The results noted in individuals with severe acne that hasn't responded well to other treatment is really quite remarkale.

This new treatment is not available for doctors to prescribe to patients at this time. It's still undergoing testing. While the results are good, it needs to be tested long enough to be sure that there are no important side effects or complications of the medicine itself.

I'd like to point out that this is not the same thing as standard vitamin A that people can buy in stores. Often young people will try to take large amounts of vitamin A to control acne. It doesn't and, worse than that, too much vitamin A can cause a vitamin A toxicity.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with along, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 151, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will provide the necessary information that you need to do whatever can be done with a home management program.

Basically, this entails using warm, moist soaks to help loosen the fatty secretions that have plugged the pores of the skin and effort to decrease the overproduction of the oily sebum material to begin with.

If such simple measures don't work to provide adequate control of acne, a person really should see a doctor. There are many things he can do for you, including prescribing antibiotics when needed.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a friend who broke his neck in a diving accident six years ago and is now paralyzed from the waist down. Recently I've heard of experimental operations being performed on dogs that have been successful in reconstructing the break. Has this type of operation ever been performed successfully on human beings? If so, I would appreciate any information you might have concerning this.

DEAR READER — Some other readers might not know that the spinal cord and the brain will not regenerate if they've been injured. That's why if you damage the spinal cord in the right place, you may be paralyzed.

For years doctors have sought some means of inducing regeneration in injuries of the cord and brain — without a lot of success.

You probably read about some recent research in which the spinal cord in dogs was crushed and then the segment that was crushed was cut out and replaced with a special nerve tissue grafting which did result in regrowth of the damaged area. That's very promising research but it's still at the animal stage. It will be quite a while yet before we know whether or not it will be successful in humans. And even then it may be useful only in those who have recent injuries.

Rule changes on savings relieve small investors

"The rich get richer, and the poor get poorer" is never so true as when the inflation rate is in double figures.

You actually lose spending power by saving money, so the federal government recently changed some of its rules regarding rates of interst on savings accounts. While the interest rates of these various forms of accounts still do not match inflation, they are a bit of a help to the small investor.

First of all, the ieilings on the interest rates charged by commercial and savings banks have been raised slightly. Accounts at savings banks can now earn 5½ percent, while commercial bank accounts earn as much as 5¼ percent. President Carter has moved to phase out all interest rate ceilings, and many consumer groups see this as the first tiny step.

More importantly, small investors can now buy a sour-year certificate of deposit (CD). Previously, the money had to be tied up in a CD for at least five years. The amount of interest paid is pegged to the interest rate for government securities. CDs purchased from savings and thrift institutions would earn interest one percent less than U.S. Treasury securities. CDs from commercial banks would earn interest 1¼ percent less than the Treasury securities.

The Federal Reserve Board and other government agencies involved in banking also have decided to ease the penalties for cashing in the certificates of deposit early. In the past, if you cashed a CD in early, you would lose all the interest above the passbook savings account rate. Instead of getting eight percent interest, for example, you would get only five percent if you had to withdraw the money before the CD was due.

Now, if the CD matures more than one year from the date you cash it in, you lose six months' interest. If the CD matures in less than a year, you lose only three months' interest.

The CDs therefore become much more liquid, making them more attractive to the small investor worried about tying up money for four or five years.

The banking institutions also have eliminated all minimum deposit requirements on certificates of less than four years. The banks can now set their own minimums, except for the $10,000 minimum required for six-month (26-week) money market certificates.

You'll never get rich with savings deposits; the best you can hope for is to stay even with inflation. The small investor who wants to take some chances usually heads for Wall Street. The Securities and Exchange Commission offers these tips to the neophyte investor:

— Don't deal with strange securities firms. Consult your banker or someone else you trust.

— Beware of securities offered over the phone by strangers.

— Beware of promises of spectacular profits.

— Don't buy on tips or rumors. Get all the facts. You should read the annual report for any companies that look interesting. Many securities companies offer free courses in how to read annual reports.

— Don't listen to high pressure sales talk. Tell the sales person to put all the information into writing and mail it to you; save the information.

The commission also offers this bit of advice: Leave the speculation to professional speculators. Speculation in stocks is a valuable part of the market, but if you are a small investor, "playing the market" could be playing with fire. Set some modest investment goals and stick to them. Don't get greedy.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has set up a special number for those investors who want more information about the market. It is (202) 755-4846.

Stroke club to meet Thursday

Pampa Stroke Club members will meet at 12:30 p.m. Thursday at the Senior Citizens Center for a program by two Highland General Hospital therapists.

Bob Ingham, a physical therapist, and Cathy McEver, a speech therapist, will speak to the group.

The club is a non-profit educational and social organization for victims of aphasia, stroke and head injury, and their families. The group meets the first Thursday of each month at the same time and location. Guest speakers, games, movies, entertainments and refreshments are featured.

Anyone is welcome to attend.

Lacy attends educational theatre meet

Rochelle Lacy, drama director at Pampa High School, last weekend attended the 30th annual convention of the Texas Educational Theatre Association in Dallas.

A member of the association for several years, Mrs. Lacy is on the Board of the Secondary School Section and works primarily in the areas of media and curriculum.

More than 400 persons attended programs which included three days of varied acting demonstrations, workshops in all phases of technical theatre, and discussions of theatre arts curricula on all levels.

Highlights of the convention included professional productions by Theatre Three and Stage No. 1.

TWEEN 12 AND 20

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ph.D.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a boy, 14, who is a little overweight but I'm pleasant and respectful to girls. This particular girl (Amy) picked me out to be her boyfriend and I was honored. My dad drove us to movies several times. I bought her a watch for Christmas and other gifts on different occasions.

Now comes my problem. Amy has become a loudmouth, likes every boy she sees and constantly puts me down.

I know this other girl at my school and I'd like to date her. She is pleasant, pretty and a perfect lady. I'm quite shy and don't know if I should ask her out. Help. — Robert, Ontario, Oregon

Robert: If you haven't already done so, tell Amy goodbye. By all means ask this new girl out.

I'm sure your confidence would be bolstered if you lost the unwanted weight you're carrying. Get on an exercise and proper diet kick and watch your shyness disappear.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 19-year-old girl and I've got a big decision to make.

I used to date Jim until about a month ago but we broke up because he wanted more freedom. I still love him but I'm now going with another guy that I love, but not as much as Jim.

Well, last night my new guy asked me to marry him. I'm afraid if I do, that I'll never see Jim again and I'm afraid if I don't, I'll lose my new guy. Help. — Sherri, Springfield, Ohio

Sherri: Marriage for you at this time seems out of the question. I think you should take a cue from Jim and seek a little more freedom.

Don't ever think of marriage until your entire love is given to one lucky man. This type of love cannot be given to more than one.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TwEEN 12 and 20, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Visit lender quickly if can't make payment on time

Sometimes job layoffs, illness or other emergencies force homeowners to fall behind mortgage payments. The situation is serious, but it is not hopeless — if you act sensibly.

Although it is human nature to procrastinate in an unpleasant situation, immediately contact the company that holds your mortgage. This is crucial in order to retain a good working relationship with your lender.

When you call or visit your lender, be prepared to discuss a number of issues in detail:

— Why did you fall behind in your payments?

— What are your current resources?

— What do you intend to do to remedy the situation?

Furnish a detailed account of your necessary expenses and the assets you can raise (including wages, welfare payments, union benefits, savings, insurance policies you can borrow against, etc.).

It will be up to you to find a way to bring your payments up to date, but if you show your good will, the lender may be able to help you in one of several ways:

— During the delinquency, you can work out a repayment plan before foreclosure is considered.

— The lender may "grant forbearance." That is, he or she may reduce or suspend your monthly mortgage payments now and increase them over an extended period of time later.

— Your lender may "recast" your mortgage. Your mortgage would be increased by the amount of money you owe in arrears.

— If your mortgage was insured by HUD-FHA, it might be transferred directly to HUD's authority. HUD, in turn, might arrange a repayment plan.

If you are sure you will be unable to resume your mortgage payments within a reasonable period of time, your lender may advise you to sell your home or sign it over to the lending institution. Either of these steps will help you avoid foreclosure, thus protecting your credit record. These measures should be considered only as your last resort.

When you are having trouble paying your mortgage you are vulnerable, both financially and emotionally.

Do not borrow more money to pay off the default. This will only add another debt for you to pay, probably at a higher rate of interest than your mortgage.

For more information, write for a free booklet, "Having Problems Paying Your Mortgage?" from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 683 G, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

Regardless of economic trends you should find yourself in a better material position this coming year than you were last year. Use your imagination. You'll find new ways to enhance your security and add to your income.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Progress is likely today where an important goal is concerned, but it may not be in gigantic strides. Nevertheless, you'll inch onward and upward. Romance, travel luck, resources possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in you Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Things of a mental nature should be your cup of tea today. What you learn you'll retain, but you're also good at imparting knowledge.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your best approach to getting anyone to assist you with your needs today is to be subtle. Let them think it was their idea.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If there is something you don't understand, don't be hesitant to ask advice. No one is expected to know everything. This includes you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Schedule your day so that you can focus your full attention on those things which are most important to you. You'll have a productive day.

CANCER (Jun 21-July 22) You like people and, because of this, it's very important for you to know the opinions of others so you can adjust your thinking to harmonize.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is a good day to put the household budget back in shape. Prudent reorganization will help you get more mileage from your dollars.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You needn't worry about side-stepping important issues today. Your judgment is especially keen. You're not apt to overlook any alternatives.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Gains from more than one source are likely today, but don't be disappointed if they're not mammoth. Small amounts could add up to a tidy sum.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You have the ability to manage others today, but you won't do it for selfish purposes. Things you direct them to do will be for their own good.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Persons who put their trust in you today have made a wise selection. What they tell you in confidence will not be repeated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Seek the company of friends whose conversation you find stimulating. A brisk exchange of ideas today will serve to enlighten all.

Prisoners bypass Texas

BASTROP, Texas (AP) — The Bureau of Prisons rescinded Tuesday a decision to house some of the New Mexico state prison inmates in the medium-security federal prison unit near this Central Texas city.

"All I can tell you is that the Bureau of Prisons reconsidered and Bastrop will not receive any prisoners," said Beeler Gausz, information officer for the Federal Correctional Institute here.

Federal authorities had said Monday that 400 men from the riot-torn prison in Santa Fe would be transferred for "temporary care and custody."

Rioting at the Santa Fe prison over the weekend left at least 39 prisoners dead and scores injured. The prison was left a wasteland, with damage estimates to $50 million.

New Mexico Gov. Bruce King arranged with federal authorities and governors from adjoining states to help house the prisoners. However, the Texas Department of Corrections said it could not take any of prisoners.

Gausz had said Monday his facility was selected because of the "availability of space." The prison was built to house 472 inmates, and currently holds 228.

Pampa girls slip past Caprock

Pampa's Lady Harvesters snapped an eleven-game losing streak Tuesday night and gained a measure of revenge at the same time with a 55-54 win over Amarillo Caprock in Harvester Fieldhouse.

The last time the two teams paired off in a District 3-AAAA clash, there was also a one-point difference. However, it was in Caprock's favor, 58-57.

The Lady Harvesters, who last won against Borger, 54-36, on Jan. 8, are now 6-18 on the season and 1-5 in district play.

Pampa started off to make a rout of it by jumping off to a 22-10 first-quarter advantage. When halftime rolled around, the Lady Harvesters had expanded the bulge to 19.

However, Caprock charged back in the second half and outscored Pampa, 17-6, the third quarter to cut the gap to eight, 48-36. Pampa was also outscored in the final eight minutes, 16-9, but still hung onto the one-point win margin.

Kellye Richardson paced Pampa in scoring with 16 points. Dwinna Treadwell chipped in eight.

The Lady Harvesters travel to Tascosa Thursday night. Gametime is 7:30 p.m.

Pampa dropped the junior varsity game, 69-19. Kim Albin scored five points for Pampa. Caprock's Davis had 15.

Russians arrive at Lake Placid

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — In a swirl of fur coats and hats, about 90 Soviet athletes and coaches have checked into the Olympic Village and some planned to start practicing today for the 1980 Winter Games which start next week.

The group arrived on two buses from Montreal Tuesday night, after a daylong flight from Moscow.

Preceding them was the head of their National Olympic Committee, who said President Carter's call for boycotting the Moscow games could "destroy the Olympic movement."

"We don't want to boycott anyone and destroy the Olympic movement," Sergei Pavlov told a brief news conference, through an interpreter.

"Our sportsmen are here to participate. We want to see the Olympic movement strengthened."

The Soviets have been traditionally tough in speed skating, hockey and Nordic skiing.

About an hour later, some 87 athletes and coaches crowded into the credentials area, which turned into a sea of bobbing fur coats and hats.

The official Soviet uniform was said to be made from nutria, a small, furry animal. The men's are dark, with round hats called "shapkas." The women's outfits are blonde, with more stylish hats.

As the Soviets arrived in the reception area, their bags were collected in midroom, and sniffed by Jicki, one of nine German shepherds who check for explosives.

At one point, the dog showed interest in a canvas bag. A state trooper checked it, and found nothing more potent than a small bottle of vodka.

And, following the custom, the biathletes had to put their rifle bolts and ammunition in lockers outside the secure area.

The Soviets were then walked through metal detectors before being sent to their rooms.

In figure-skating, Aleksandr Zaitzev and Irina Rodnina have returned to competition after she dropped out to have a child. They are expected to be strong challengers to America's Tai Babilonia and Randy Gardner in the pairs figure skating.

Davenport switches from hurdles to bobsleds

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Willie Davenport embarks upon an Olympic odyssey today that no other man has undertaken.

At the age of 36 and already an Olympic gold medallist, Davenport and four-man bobsled teammate Jeff Gadley are the first black Americans to enter the Winter Olympics, but his trek through the Winter Games' record book may not end there.

Davenport also has a chance to become the first man since Eddie Eagan to win a medal in both the Summer and Winter Games. Davenport won the Olympic high hurdles in 1968 at Mexico City, then added a bronze medal in the same event at Montreal in 1976. Eagan won a gold in boxing in 1920 at Antwerp and a gold in bobsledding here in 1932.

Like Eagan, Davenport has found his winter home in bobsledding. He is a pusher on a four-man bobsled driven by Bob Hickey of Keene, N.Y., who shattered his own track record Tuesday in the final day of U.S. eliminations.

"It's very difficult to explain my feelings right now," said Davenport, a graduate of Southern University who now lives in Baton Rouge, La. "I guess the best way to explain them is that I feel very good."

Harvesters halt Caprock behind Nelson

By L.D. STRATE

AMARILLO--Sparked by freshman forward Mike Nelson, the Pampa Harvesters powered past cold-shooting Amarillo Caprock, 56-44, Tuesday night in District 3-AAAA action.

The Harvesters lifted their district record to 3-2 in the crucial game while dropping Caprock to 1-4.

Nelson, who entered the contest with a 7.2 ppg scoring average and only ten games of varsity playing experience, tossed in 20 points and collared 12 rebounds.

Leading by only one, 10-9, the Harvesters reeled off seven straight points early in the second quarter to jump ahead by eight, 19-11, with Nelson's three-point play coming at the end of the surge.

Eight times Pampa landed on ten-point leads in the second half only to have Caprock narrow the gap, but the Longhorns were never able to pull closer than six points.

Finally, midway in the fourth quarter, the Harvesters broke away to a 12-point advantage, 46-34, on Jim Agan's bank shot. With 3:37 to go, Steve Glover's steal and layup gave the Harvesters their biggest lead of the night at 52-38.

Glover was the only other double-digit scorer for Pampa with ten points. Joe Jeffers and Ronnie Faggins had eight points apiece and both joined Nelson in having a good night on the boards. Jeffers, who stands only 5-10, crept in for eight rebounds while Faggins overcame a sore shoulder to pull down five caroms.

Nelson hit exactly half his shots (7-14) as Pampa batted a respectable 45 percent (23-51) from the floor. The Harvesters were 10 of 16 or 62 percent from the foul line.

Caprock, with the exception of the foul line, was off-target all night, hitting a paltry 24 percent (13-57). The Longhorns fared much better from the charity stripe, shooting 89 percent on 17 of 19 attempts.

Todd Tenorio and Greg Ewing led Caprock with 12 points apiece.

Pampa, now 12-13 overall, continues second-half district activity Friday night by visiting Amarillo Tascosa.

Caprock won the junior varsity tilt, 58-47, after holding off a rally by the Shockers in the late stages.

The Shockers fell behind, 17-5, in the first quarter, but closed the gap to three with one minute to go. Caprock nailed down the victory from the foul line after Pampa was forced to foul.

Rick Smith and Cavin Coleman scored nine points apiece for the Shockers while Terry Faggins had seven, Kurt Crouch, six; Ray Condo, five.

David Moore tossed in 20 points for the winners.

The Shockers are now 13-12 for the season.

National Basketball Association roundup

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Iceman is hot over his contract, but it's the San Antonio Spurs who are getting burned.

George Gervin, nicknamed the Iceman because of his impassive court demeanor, wants to renegotiate his contract with the Spurs which calls for $350,000 a year. San Antonio owner Angelo Drossos says no renegotiations until the season is over.

Gervin, who leads the National Basketball Association with a 33.6 average and is gunning for his third straight scoring title, called in sick Tuesday night, telling the team doctor he had a stomach virus. The Spurs, without Gervin, dropped a 123-115 decision to the New Jersey Nets.

The Spurs lost the game in the third period, when the Nets poured in 43 points to take a 94-88 lead. New Jersey reeled off seven points in the final 12 seconds of the period, including a three-pointer at the buzzer by Mike Newlin.

"That seven-point streak was the key," Nets' Coach Kevin Loughery said. "The momentum carried over into the last quarter."

In other NBA games Tuesday night, the Utah Jazz beat the Chicago Bulls 116-106, the Seattle SuperSonics edged the Cleveland Cavaliers 123-121, the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the New York Knicks 116-105, the Philadelphia 76ers trimmed the Indiana Pacers 109-108 and the Portland Trail Blazers topped the Kansas City Kings 105-99.

Gervin has missed the last four Spurs practice sessions. He missed the team's flight to Houston last Wednesday, paying his own way on a commercial flight. Spurs' Coach Doug Moe says he hasn't talked to the high-scoring guard since the All-Star Game, in which Gervin scored 34 points and was chosen most valuable player.

Moe contended, "We didn't lose it because Ice wasn't there. We lost it because we played stupid."

The Nets' big guard, Newlin, scored 30 points, including 17 in the decisive third quarter.

The Spurs trailed by 13 with 4:51 remaining in the game but rallied to pull with two before Eddie Jordan sank a pair of free throws in the final minute to clinch the victory.

Recently acquired John Shumate led the Spurs with 21 points and Mike Evans, starting at guard in place of Gervin, had 19.

Jazz 116, Bulls 106

Adrian Dantley scored 47 points as Utah beat Chicago and climbed out of the Midwest Division cellar for the first time since the opening week of the season. The loss dropped the Bulls six percentage points behind the Jazz.

Sonics 123, Cavs 121

Dennis Johnson scored 34 points, including two free throws with two seconds left, as Seattle remained one-half game ahead of Los Angeles in the Pacific Division.

Cleveland Coach Stan Albeck tore into referees Jim Capers and Dick Bavetta, saying, "The incompetency of NBA officials is unbelievable. We had those two guys against Indiana last week and they blew it and they come right back here tonight. We haven't won a game with those two guys. I know I'm going to get fined, but they're cheating this team."

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 22 points, 17 rebounds, seven assists and five blocked shots and held Knicks' center Bill Cartwright to 3-for-18 shooting as the Lakers ended New York's five-game winning streak.

Middle schoolers notch victories

Pampa eighth grade teams notched victories over Canyon Purple and Hereford LaPLata Monday in junior high basketball games.

Pampa Red boosted their unbeaten record to 13-0 overall and 8-0 in district with a 39-35 win over Canyon Purple.

The Reds rugged defense limited Canyon to just five points the first quarter as they jumped off to a 12-5 advantage.

Coyle Winborn led Pampa with 14 points. Robert Fincher had 12 points for the losers.

The Reds play at Perryton Thursday before playing for the district title Saturday at Canyon.

Pampa Blue defeated LaPlata, 37-31.

L.J. Brown led Pampa with six points. Martinez scored 16 for LaPlata.

Golfers open season at Odessa

Pampa High's 1980 spring edition of the golf team tees off the season Feb. 14-15 in the Odessa Invitational.

Four lettermen, including last year's state qualifier, return to bolster the Harvesters.

Barry Terrell, a senior, was the first Harvester to qualify for the University Interscholastic league State golf tournament since 1957. Terrell didn't make medalist at state, but he's back to try it again. Terrell is joined by Paul Beck, Bob Phillips, and Gary Cudney.

"We've got 13 kids out for the team this year, but most of them are inexperienced," coach Deck Woldt said. "Right now I'm hunting for a strong fifth and sixth player, someone who would be a good alternate."

Their first match at the Pampa Country Club is March 29 against Tascosa and Caprock in a triangular.

According to UIL rules, a school can use two-five man teams in dual or tournament play. Woldt said he would probably use two teams again.

Woldt said he looks for Amarillo High to be the team to beat in District 3-AAAA, but he's not counting Pampa or Tascosa out of it.

"The Sandies should be strong because they have everyone back but one from last year, but both us and Tasocsa could make it a pretty tight race," Woldt added.

Pampa finished third in the district standings last season to miss going to the regionals as a team. Only the top two teams advance past district, but Terrell qualified in the individual standings by placing second.

The Harvesters have been consistently working on their game, even when the weather is too bad to go outside.

"I don't think we ever got outside all of last week, but we put up a net in the gym and hit into it," Woldt said. "We try and work out whenever we can."

Pampa hosts the second half of the district April 18 while the first round will be held at Amarillo High.

The regionals are scheduled at Lubbock April 25-26.

Skellytown defeats Lefors in triplicate

LEFORS-Skellytown captured double victories over LeFors in seventh grade basketball play Monday. The boys won a 27-26 squeaker while the girls won, 19-14.

In the boys battle, Will Brown paced Skellytown with 14 points, followed by Joe Fitch and Doyle Garrison, six points apiece, and Michael Walden, one. Fitch wowed the crowd with long-range shots.

Ricky Withers also tossed in 14 points for LeFors while Skeeter Gifford and Bo Lake had four points apiece; John Watson and Preston West, two points apiece.

Randi Watson and Marijane Ramirez paced Skellytown girls to victory with eight points apiece. Kathy Hassler added three points all on foul shots.

Top scorer for LeFors was Sherry Stanley with nine points. Annette Cates had three, Tammy Gee and janna Mansker, one point each.

Skellytown also claimed the eighth-grade boys contest, 37-30, after coming from a nine-point deficit at halftime.

Arnie Adkinson led the Panthers with 13 points, followed close behind by Richard Wells with 11 points. Tracy O'Dell contributed nine. Kevin Barrow and Brent Barbour, two points apiece.

The Pirates had problems stopping the outside shooting of Wells and O'Dell.

Tracy Jennings topped LeFors in scoring with 10 points, followed by John Winegeart, eight; Chris McMinn, six; Darrin McBee, four; Tommy Merrell, two.

Skellytown remains in first place in the district standings.

Skellytown has a makeup game scheduled for 5:15 p.m. Thursday against McLean on the homecourt. Then the Panthers close out the season Monday at Miami.

LeFors plays Miami there at 6:30 p.m. Thursday night.

Nunley leads all-events, singles

Lonnie Nunley has taken command of all-events after the first weekend of bowling in the annual Top O' Texas Tournament at Harvester Lanes.

Nunley leads by a wide margin after amassing a total pinfall of 2,129. Next in line is James Petty, 1,966; Al Williams, 1,965; Butch Henderson, 1,964, and Kurt Lowery, 1,963.

Nunley teamed with Lonnie Parsley to take the doubles lead with a 1,342 and then took command in singles competition with a 710. Parsley is second in singles at 702 and Charlie Mears is third at 686.

Williams and Petty are in the runnerup spot in doubles with a 1,321. Henderson and Lowery are third at 1,320.

In team competition, Harvester Lanes (Monte Kemp, David Wortham, Forrest Cole, Darrell Danner, and Alvin Achord) has a narrow lead over Half-Fast (Don Hoskins, Butch Henderson, Bill Morehead, Kurt Lowery, and Forrest Cole), 3,290-3,221.

The tournament continues through the remainder of this month. Multiple entries will be accepted for both team and doubles competition.

A ragtime doubles tournament (mixed or two women) is also being held in conjunction with the tournament. Ragtime bowlers can use the lanes during open bowling periods.

Looie a 20-game winner

If Lou Carnesecca were a baseball pitcher, he'd be a cinch Hall of Famer. The St. John's University basketball coach makes a habit of winning 20 games every year.

Carnesecca's eighth-ranked Redmen did it again Tuesday night with an easy 89-73 triumph over the University of Baltimore, making loud little Looie a 20-game winner for the seventh year in a row and 10th time in his 12 seasons at the helm.

"I never expected to be 20-2," said Carnesecca, whose overall record is 252-87. "We have a chance to be something good."

St. John's was the only member of The Associated Press Top Twenty in action Tuesday night. The Redmen had a 17-game winning streak snapped by third-ranked Louisville on Sunday and Baltimore, in its second season as a Division I school, was just what the doctor ordered.

"We're a tired club," said Carnesecca, whose team has played 10 games in 23 days. "It was obvious tonight. We didn't have any quickness. It just wasn't there."

Little Looie said he would give the Redmen a day off today since they don't play again until Saturday.

"They need a day's rest. That's why I substituted after five minutes, to keep them fresh. The players were looking at me to come out and you never see that. They always want to stay in. They must be tired.

"I saw it in the Niagara game (eight days earlier). We were lucky against Rhode Island (a one-point victory last Friday) but it caught up to us against Louisville."

Wayne McKoy scored six of his 18 points during a 10-0 burst in the first half as St. John's went from a 10-10 deadlock to a 20-10 advantage. McKoy was joined in double figures by five teammates. Reggie Carter and freshman David Russell each had 14 points. Curtis Redding had 13 while Frank Gilroy and Ron Plair each added 11.

Elsewhere:

—Michael Burns had 28 points and 14 rebounds to help offset a 41-point effort by San Diego State's Eddie Morris and lead Nevada-Las Vegas to a 98-86 victory for its 12th win in a row.

—Robert Byrd's two layups in the last 1:41 capped a rally from a 10-point deficit and helped Marquette beat Creighton 81-71.

—Andre Smith scored 21 points and tipped in a rebound in the final two minutes to put Nebraska ahead for good as the Cornhuskers defeated Kansas 61-56 in a Big Eight contest.

—Robert Taylor, who kept the game going with a 15-foot jumper at the end of regulation and a layup as the second overtime ended, drove the length of the court for the winning basket as Harvard edged Dartmouth 77-75 in three extra periods.

—Dave Blatt's two free throws with three seconds left gave Princeton a 65-63 victory over Rutgers.

—Chad Kinch, playing with a pulled groin muscle, scored 26 points and led North Carolina-Charlotte past Alabama-Birmingham 73-68.

Nets stop Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — When the San Antonio Spurs needed a clutch basket in their nip-and-tuck game with the New Jersey Nets Tuesday night, they couldn't go to George Gervin. He said he was sick.

But the Nets had a perfectly well Mike Newlin to depend on and he responded with 30 points to lead New Jersey to a 123-115 National Basketball Association victory over San Antonio.

Gervin, who wants to renegotiate his contract with the Spurs, did not show up for Tuesday's game, telling the team doctor he had a stomach virus.

Gervin earns an estimated $350,000 a year, but San Antonio board chairman Angelo Drossos says he doesn't want to negotiate player contracts until the season ends.

Though he may not lead the NBA in scoring like Gervin does, Newlin scored 25 points in the second half, with 17 of them coming in a 43-point New Jersey third period.

The Nets scored seven points in the last 12 seconds of the quarter, including a three-point shot by Newlin at the buzzer.

The Gervin-less Spurs had 20 turnovers to 12 for the Nets.

New All-America football team spotlights nation's strongest

NEW YORK (AP) — The college football season may be over but the All-America teams keep coming.

The latest is the second annual All-America strength team, sponsored by the National Strength Coaches Association and highlighting 1979's strongest players.

There are some familiar names on the squad — like tight end Junior Miller of Nebraska, guard Ken Fritz of Ohio State, defensive end Jacob Green of Texas A&M and defensive tackle Steve McMichael and safety Johnnie Johnson, both from Texas. All were members of The Associated Press All-America team.

"The award is based on improvement of an athlete's performance through strength training," says Boyd Epley, strength coach at the University of Nebraska and executive director of the NSCA. "The All-America team is to recognize the effort put forth by thousands of young athletes across the country and by the strength coaches, who helped the athletes develop beyond their natural potential. It's a combination of football ability and improvement through strength training."

The strongmen were picked by the five regional directors of the NSCA — Steve Bliss of Ohio State, Paul Hoolahan of North Carolina, Mike Flynt of Texas A&M, Dr. Tom Baechle of Creighton and Pete Martinelli of New Mexico.

The team is composed of 22 seniors. Besides Miller and Fritz, the offense consists of end Mark Brammer of Michigan State, tackles Don Carter and Dave Guender of Missouri, guard John Havekost of Nebraska, center Steve Nicholson of Tulsa, quarterback Brian Bethke of Kansas and running backs Curtis Dickey of Texas A&M, Gerry Ellis of Missouri and I.M. Hipp of Nebraska.

Joining Green, McMichael and Johnson on defense are end Charlie Baker of New Mexico, tackle Rod Horn of Nebraska, nose guard Richard Jaffe of Kentucky, linebackers Curtis Greer of Michigan (actually a tackle), Dan Bass of Michigan State and Scot Brantley of Florida and backs Derrick Goddard of Drake and Don McNeal of Alabama.

This comes under the What-Have-You-Done-Lately Dept:

Ara Parseghian, who coached for 11 years (1964-74) at a small Catholic school in South Bend, Ind., before he found his niche as a television color commentator, checked in last month for a flight at Chicago's O'Hare Airport, where he probably has spent a good part of his life.

The gate agent, never batting an eyelash, went through the smoking-nonsmoking formality and Parseghian sat down to await the boarding call.

A flight attendant awaiting the same flight recognized him and told the gate agent, "Do you know we have one of the most famous college football coaches in America flying with us?"

The agent replied that he really wasn't a college football fan and couldn't have been expected to recognize Parseghian.

"The only team I really follow," he said, "is Notre Dame."

Much has been made of the fact that Alabama's Bear Bryant needs only 19 victories to pass Amos Alonzo Stagg's 314 as the winningest coach of all time. So it seemed logical to ask the Bear, who turned 66 in September, if he ever met Stagg, who died in 1965 at the age of 102.

"One time," he said. "It was back in the '30s in Los Angeles, but I don't remember exactly when. I was either still a player or it was my first year as an assistant coach here.

"A group of three or four of us, including Coach (Frank) Thomas, were at some function and we met him in the lobby of the hotel. I got to shake hands with him. He was a very distinguished looking gentleman."

TRACY AUSTIN, second-seeded in the Avon tennis championships, gives a two-handed return of a shot from Trey Lewis as she won easily, 6-2, 6-1, in Tuesday's match. (AP Photo)

Ali may be best ambassador yet

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

Muhammad Ali: Diplomat. Roving ambassador. Uncle Sam's prescription for wooing the Third World.

Laughable, you say. How can a high school dropout whose career has been limited to the confines of a 20x20-foot boxing ring and who couldn't pass an elementary army examination invade the subtle and devious councils of high diplomacy?

Well, he has. He has got his nose bloodied worse than in any of his 59 professional fights. He has been shunned by some dignitaries, battered by a cynical press and scoffed at by friends and foes alike.

But he's still in there punching.

For which we have only seven words:

"Ali! Ali! Ali!"

"Go get 'em, Ali!"

President Carter and the U.S. State Department are being roundly booed for even considering such a ludicrous idea. Moscow's subsidized press, generally close-mouthed, is delirious in reporting Ali's problems in trying to lure African nations into the American orbit on the proposed pullout of the Moscow Olympics. Some say his informal tour is holding the United States up to ridicule.

Bosh. The whole thing is terrific.

Okay, so Ali doesn't have a degree in statesmanship from Georgetown University. He is not versed in the intricacies of international politics. He is not equipped for the hypocritical, wheeling and dealing gooble-de-gook that goes on behind the closed doors in loftiest chambers.

He's just Ali, a charmer who has a feel for basic, corn-pone philosophy, a sort of a modern Pied Piper with a magnetism for the plain, ordinary people of the world.

This puckish, garrulous ex-pugilist can't possibly do more damage to our foreign policy than some of the slick talkers in pin-striped suits have done in the past.

Ali has a natural appeal to the underprivileged and the oppressed. Yet in his capacity as a three-time winner of the world heavyweight championship — perhaps the world's most recognizable personality — he has been able to hobnob with princes and potentates.

He can stop traffic on any main thoroughfare in the world — whether it be in Moscow or Madagascar. He is lionized by blacks and Muslims. What was wrong with selecting him for this sensitive assignment?

They say the president is fidgeting in the Oval Room. The State Department is getting heartburn. Whose idea was it? Washington buck-passers are passing the buck.

This is the black man who 13 years ago defied the governement and refused army induction for the unpopular Vietnam War, protesting:

"I am 90 percent preacher, 10 percent fighter."

He was upheld by the Supreme Court. Labeled a slacker and stripped of his title, he hung on and the country ultimately came around to his side. Ali regained his crown twice after that.

The world was his oyster. He kidded Mobutu in Zaire. He danced with President Marcos' wife in the Philippines. He carried his WORLD (World Organization for Rights, Liberty and Dignity) to the United Nations. His zeal has been inexhaustible.

He never pretended to be a statesman. He is just himself — the best in the world with his fists, changeable as a chameleon at times, bombastic, reflective but always earthy.

In the 1960s when blacks were striving to crash white neighborhoods, he said, "I don't want to live next door to anybody who don't want to live next door to me." So he built a mansion in the Pennsylvania hills.

Winner doesn't get most votes; according to New Hampshire

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — A primer for primary candidates:

The thing to remember about the New Hampshire primary is that you can win it and still lose it, you can lose it and still win it, but since it began three decades ago no one has ever been elected president without winning it.

To elaborate a bit on how the new math works in New Hampshire, the winner doesn't necessarily get the most votes.

Lyndon Baines Johnson won the 1968 New Hampshire primary with 49 percent of the votes. However, because he scored 95 percent four years before, he was deemed to have lost to Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who had only 42 percent of the Democratic votes.

In 1972 Sen. George McGovern lost the Democratic primary to Sen. Edmund Muskie, with only 37 percent of the vote to Muskie's 46 percent, but was hailed as the upset winner. Muskie, along the way, wept on the back of a flatbed truck in downtown Manchester, which is not considered a good campaign tactic in these parts.

Jimmy Carter won a resounding Democratic victory last time around with a whopping 26 percent of the votes, while Ronald Reagan scored a dismal 48 percent in losing to Republican Gerald Ford who had a stunning 49 percent.

And Henry Cabot Lodge won the GOP side of the event in 1964 without setting a foot within 10,000 miles of New Hampshire. He beat Barry Goldwater and Nelson Rockefeller while serving as ambassador in Saigon and was the last American winner to come out of Vietnam.

You can win the New Hampshire primary and still not be nominated by your party, as happened to Ambassador Lodge and twice to Estes Kefauver, or you can lose it and still be nominated, as was the case with Barry Goldwater.

But since this frozen frolic began in 1952, every winner in a U.S. presidential election has had first to win the winter carnival in New Hampshire before going on to national victory in the fall: Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Carter.

Approaching a population of 900,000, New Hampshire ranks 41st in the nation in size, has 4 electoral votes and accounts for one-quarter of 1 percent of the national vote, but its electorate is the most courted, platitudinized and hand-shook in the land.
