Two $40 million alcohol plants slated near Dumas

BY SHEILA ECCLES
Of the Pampa News

DUMAS — On the heels of a "very favorable" study, a $40 million plant to produce fuel alcohol may be built in the Schroeter Industrial Park in north Moore County, according to directors of the Northwest Texas Grain Products Cooperative (NWTGPC) based in Dumas.

The announcement from the NWTGPC came just days before the same type of announcement came from a Tulsa based Co. MAPCO, Inc.

According to the announcement from MAPCO, plans are underway for the construction of a $41 million fuel alcohol plant, also in Moore County.

The NWTGPC Board decision on the 20-million gallon a year plant, must first be approved by the NWTGPC members throughout the nine northern Panhandle counties.

Fred Vanderburg, NWTGPC Pampa representative, has said, "the encouraging preliminary report has added interest to the project. In the next 30 days, a growers agreement will again be presented to area farmers. The building of another fuel alcohol plant in the same area would cause no problems at all."

April 10, is the date set for the next meeting of NWTGPC card carrying members. Approval of the tentative site could come at that time.

Representatives from several firms, retained by the cooperative will be attending the April 10 meeting, including those from the Arthur D. Little Co., consultant for many such grain alcohol feasibility studies.

The NWTGPC proposed plant in Moore County may be located on a 40-acre site at the southern edge of Schroeter Park which is owned by 100 DID, an industrial development group.

According to Jim Dowty, Vice-President of the NWTGPC, "the $40 million plant would be a coal-fired operation and would employ from 50 to 60 persons."

When in operation, the plant would use some seven million pounds of grain, wheat, corn and grain sorghum to produce the fuel alcohol. North Plains farmers — cooperative members — have contracted to supply over four million bushels of grain for alcohol production. The remainder would have to be purchased on the grain market. The members have also put up some $200,000 in front money, designated for preliminary studies regarding fuel alcohol production, a site, and the plant.

"The Board has talked with several investment firms and has a verbal agreement with one for financing," said Dowty. "Representatives of the group met with us recently and assured us a letter of commitment would be issued."

The package offered is on a 90-10 basis with farm members of the cooperative coming up with some $4 million for plant construction. Dowty reported that engineering and construction have been narrowed to one or two builders, with one of them "getting high considerations."

The Northwest Texas Grain Products Cooperative, was organized in August 1979 and incorporated on Oct. 3, 1979. The cooperative was started for the purpose of constructing a plant which would be used to process grain into ethyl alcohol and other by-products for sale to commercial buyers. The source of the raw product, grain, would be grown by cooperative members. The cooperative set out to seek grain farmers, who were bona fide residents of Texas, to become members of the cooperative and invest their money in the organization. Farmers who became members signed a written agreement committing a specified number of bushels of grain each year. The agreement is known as the membership and growers agreement.

REAGAN VISIT TO AMARILLO SLATED: Ronald Reagan will be in Amarillo, Texas, for a public rally Wednesday, April 9. He will be traveling that day from Washington to Lubbock, then to Amarillo and on to Nebraska. This will be the only two stops Reagan will make in the Texas Panhandle, according to a news release from the Amarillo

Reagan Headquarters. The Lubbock rally will be at noon and the Amarillo rally at 2 p.m. at the Amarillo International Airport. Reagan is shown here after victories in the Kansas and Wisconsin primaries. He said he was still not claiming a lock on the Republican nomination, but "It does make for a substantial lead."

Absentee voter turnout varies

Turnout for absentee voting on city and school offices ending Tuesday ranged from light to heavy, election officials said early today.

The Easter holidays are being attributed for the moderate to heavy response to the Pampa Independent School Board of Trustees absentee vote. Dwan Walker, school election official said, "I don't know what to anticipate for Saturday's voter turnout," he said. "I think we'll have a fairly good turnout."

Kenneth Fields and Mrs. Billy (Caroline) Winningham are vying for Place VI on the board, while incumbent Buddy Epperson is defending his seat against Bunny Nichols. Phil Vanderpool is running unopposed for Place IV.

Those wishing to vote in the school board elections may go to the Pampa High School music building. The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, Walker said.

The light to moderate response in the absentee voting for the city offices, said Pat Eads, city secretary, indicates the public has little interest in the race between Edward G. Moultrie and Clyde Carruth for the Ward IV commission seat.

The city secretary expects a light turnout for Saturday's elections, she said. "I don't think that there's much interest in the race that we do have."

Coyle Ford, present commissioner for Ward II is running unopposed for re-election to his seat.

Polls for the city elections will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the city commission room of city hall, Saturday.

Tanker crewmen survive collision

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — An empty oil tanker and a freighter collided in fog early today, setting off fires that forced 35 tanker crewmen to abandon ship.

The Coast Guard said one crewman required treatment for smoke inhalation but no injuries were reported. The collision occurred less than two miles from the jeties that protect the Gulf of Mexico entrance to the Galveston-Houston Ship Channel.

A fire aboard the freighter Mason Lykes was extinguished quickly by its crewmen but the fire aboard the Amoco Cremona continued to burn four hours later.

"The tanker was not carrying oil," said Jeff Hughes, a Coast Guard spokesman. "It was in ballast and there is no danger of pollution at this time. We have a tug with a tie on the tanker. It is not adrift. Hughes said 31 tanker crewmen were brought to the Galveston Coast Guard Station and then transferred to a hospital for medical checks.

"This is all a precautionary measure," he said. "One man required treatment for inhalation after collapsing after boarding one of our ships."

He said the tanker captain and other officers remained at the scene to assist in extinguishing the fire. In Houston, an Amoco Oil spokesman said the tanker was outboard after delivering a cargo of crude oil to the huge Amoco refinery at Texas City. He did not have specific figures readily available but said the foreign-flagged ship was one of the largest in Amoco's tanker fleet.

Petty Officer Kenneth Harry said commercial vessels were in the immediate area at the time of the pre-dawn collision and joined Coast Guard vessels from Galveston and Freeport in rescuing the tanker crewmen from lifeboats.

Wayne Tiller of Amoco's Houston office said the Cremona received a 50-foot gash on its port side about 150 feet from the stem of the tanker. It is not adrift.

No one shows in McLean issue

Amid the lights and cameras from an Amarillo television station, the Tuesday meeting of the Gray County Commissioners looked like a hot bed of controversy.

However, no controversy occurred at the regular meeting, and county business was attended to as usual.

Interest in the meeting was generated by a letter from McLean residents, on the quality of law enforcement in McLean. During the meeting, no McLean residents were present to pursue the law enforcement question and commissioners felt the matter had been attended to.

Ted Simmons, commissioner from McLean, answered commissioners' questions concerning the matter, to the best of his knowledge.

"I really cannot see that it is within our jurisdiction to take any action on the law enforcement matter," Simmons said.

The court is only able to direct action concerning the law enforcement budget.

Sheriff's deputies are paid $22 per mile, but must furnish their own cars. The sheriff's department should be responsible for the mileage records of deputies, the commissioners agreed.

Carl Kennedy told the court, "This is a serious matter and the court is here to aid all residents of the county. If there was a problem in McLean, I am sure that some of the residents would be here to represent the issue."

In recent action, commissioners allocated the sheriff's department another deputy to allow sheriff's personnel to better patrol all county areas.

Commissioners felt the probable answer for McLean residents interested in the law enforcement question is to be sure proper officials are elected to serve. If service is not acceptable, the use of the voting process and the election of ones who will meet standards could be the answer.

Simmons said that within recent weeks there were several law enforcement officers in the town.

In other action at the busy meeting, commissioners listened as Jack Hood of the Gray County Airport Board informed them as to the recent FAA developments. The FAA has made it clear that Perry-Lefors needs some immediate improvements including, crack repair for the runway, and distance markers painted on the runways and the FAA wants them done at once.

Commissioners requested Airport Manager Roy Smith to purchase two 6,000-gallon storage tanks, if the price tag can be held to $3,000.

Gray County has budgeted $55,000 for 1980 airport improvements. After discussion of the FAA requests and the availability of government grants, commissioners motioned to authorize use of $25,000 from the general fund for airport improvements.

A plat approval for Carpenter Acres in Lefors was considered by commissioners and approved. The plat provided some questions for commissioners concerning future involvement of the county.

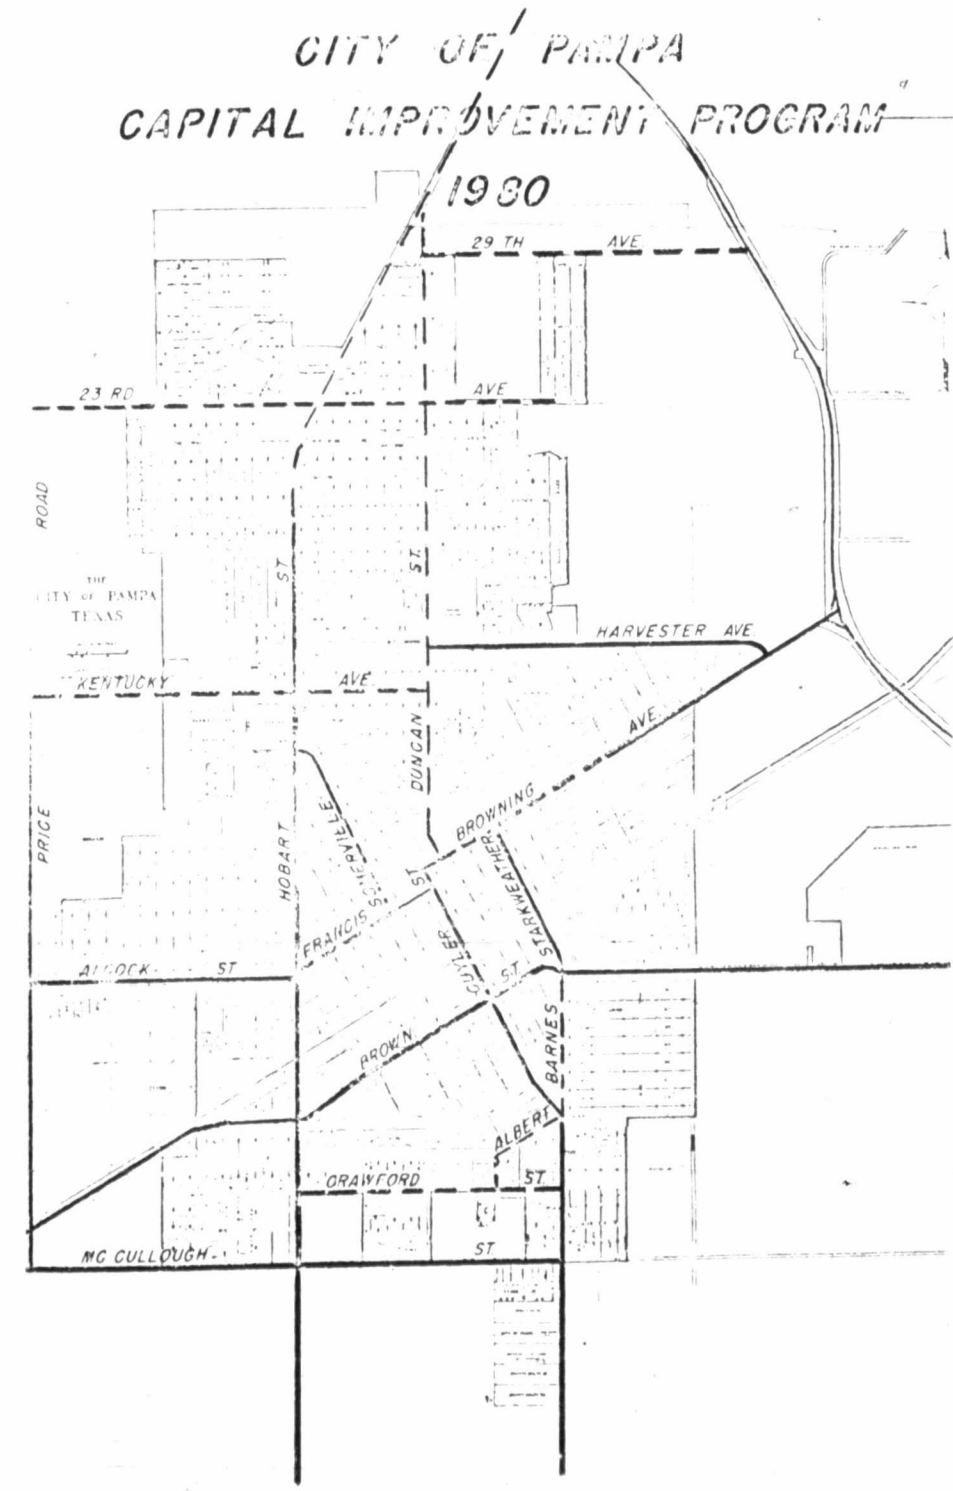

Judge Kennedy asked, if the plat is accepted for the purpose of being placed on tax rolls, will the county have to build and maintain the roads in the plat? Commissioners approved the plat without the restrictions of the sub-division clause.

State Health Nurse Marge Holland requested financial aid from the court for extra space and equipment. Commissioners requested further information concerning the extra room rent and the prices of a hearing machine, requested by Mrs. Holland. Judge Kennedy proposed letting the State Health facility use hospital equipment owned by the county and not currently being used by the hospital.

Improvements to the county barn were discussed and tabled by the commissioners. Gray County has allocated $6,000 for 1980 improvements to the barn and more information is needed concerning the improvements proposed by the Rodeo Club, before commissioners can make any decision. The Pampa Rodeo Club has agreed to make $2,000 per year available for improvements to the barn.

The engaging of an independent auditor for Gray County offices and the revenue sharing fund was discussed. The audit is being done in compliance with the requirements of the Revenue Sharing Fund which now requires a complete audit. Commissioners questioned the amount of a complete audit, as presented by a representative of the Dick E. Cory Co. Commissioners were told by the representative that several funds in the county have not been audited for several years.

A motion was made to use the services of the Jerry Davis Auditors for the 1979 county audit.

----- PROPOSED IMPROVEMENTS

————— EXISTING THOROUGHFARES

PROPOSED STREET IMPROVEMENTS and existing thoroughfares are drawn on this map to indicate how the changes will link into existing streets to create a strong arterial street system, city manager Mack Wofford said. The $4.8 million project in which these improvements are included will be put to the vote in a special bond election on April 26.

City manager answers street questions

BY DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of the Pampa News

Pampa citizens are asking questions about the $4.8 million capital improvement program proposed by city commission. City Manager Mack Wofford agreed Monday to try to answer some of them.

One Pampa man was concerned in regard to the sewer mains to be extended to serve areas west of Price Road from the Memory Garden Cemetery to south of the railroad and U.S. 60.

Is it the tax payers' or the developers' responsibility to pay for these sewer mains?

"The utilities (which are provided by the city) will be provided in the same manner as they are in any sub-division," Wofford said. "This area was annexed in 1978 and does not have sewer facilities at this time. It is a requirement upon annexation," he said, "that the city must provide services comparable to those given in the rest of the city. If they are not provided within three years (of the annexation), they can ask to be de-annexed. It is the city's responsibility to get the sewer within a reasonable distance or provide sewer facilities in a manner compatible with anyone else within the city," he said.

"The object of the city is to build the main lines so the individual can then pay a share of the total cost," he said. "We have no intention of providing free service to anyone."

Another question being asked is 29th Ave. also the responsibility of the city and not the developers?

This street, Wofford said, is proposed in the improvement program because city engineers see it as a major arterial in the near future. It will provide a second street for use by the residents in the Mesilla Park area and will be a link between Loop 171 and the area of the mall, new hospital and proposed hotel sites.

The right of way was donated by landowners, Dr. M. C. Overton, Bonnie Rose, Kirk Duncan and Ray Duncan, he said. A binding legal agreement was signed requiring the property owners to share in the street costs when the area is developed, he said.

An 8.9 percent increase in the ad valorem tax rate for the city is predicted by city officials if the bond election is passed. One citizen asks if this is a true increase or will it be more if, for example, the city loses federal revenue sharing funds?

The federal revenue sharing funds are not being used in the budget, the city manager said. "We are using it for the waterline replacement program. All of that money is going directly into the waterline replacement program. If the funds are discontinued, he said, "we will shut down — quit doing what we're doing or find another way to do it."

Listing increasing the water revenue as one method of obtaining more funds, he said. "We will get it from the utility operation some way."

"The consumer is going to pay for it," he said. Wofford anticipates some cut back in federal funding. "Every federal program is in for some shaving," he said, "but at this moment nobody can see what's going to happen."

The controversy over the tree-lined median of Somerville Street is going to be a drawback to the passing of the bond issue, Wofford acknowledged. "I hate to see the problems over Somerville St. bog the whole thing down," he said.

Estimates made by city engineers on alternative methods to removing the median are financially unpractical, he said. For example, he said to make the median smaller would add any where from $27,000 to $35,000 more to the project cost and would add only four feet on either side of the street.

A plus to the street program, he said, is the proposed improvements to the "bad" intersections. "It will not smooth out every intersection," he said, "but it will make a noticeable intersection improvement."

The program is not perfect, he said, but he feels it will greatly improve the movement in and condition of city streets.

In light of the many complaints from citizens on the condition of Pampa streets, the city manager said, it is the responsibility of the city commission to prepare a workable program of improvement. "We needed to give the people the opportunity to see what can be done," he said, "and let them decide."

The election on the proposed 4.8 million program will be put to the vote on April 26.

The $4.8 million will include $4,480,000 for street improvements and $320,000 for sanitary sewers. It will include renovation and resurfacing of 11 major arterials throughout the city, improvement of many street intersections and the building of two major sewer mains to the recently annexed area west of Price Rd.

Officials wary of funding

BY SHEILA M. ECCLES
Of The Pampa News

The availability of $390,000 in government funds, was the subject of a recent meeting involving community leaders from Pampa and McLean, with Soil Conservation Service (SCS) representative, Lee McDonald.

Community leaders were informed about the $390,000, which is part of a $6 million RC&D budget, recently made available to fund six new RC&D projects nationwide.

Among the six new RC&D-Projects, is Gray County, which will be participating with seven other Panhandle counties, to be known as the North Rolling Plains Area.

McDonald explained to those at the meeting just what the county would have to do to receive its share of the $390,000. "Gray County would be in competition with the other seven counties that make up the North Rolling Plains area for the funds."

In a surprise development, some of the local representatives at the meeting, were hesitant to receive the government aid for Gray County projects.

The needs of Gray County encompass mainly recreational areas, and for these projects, the community could raise the necessary funding, many of the businessmen felt.

Others present mentioned that the Rolling Plains Project had been so long in the works, that it was unwise to abandon it just when funds had become available. "Now that Gray County is eligible for the funds, we must go forward, at least in the planning stage," emphasized Mrs. Brey, speaking for those leaning toward continuation of the project.

The Rolling Plains Project has indeed been a long time on the drawing board, ten years in fact. Started in 1970 the project incorporates approximately 300,000 acres of Panhandle land. The 1970 plan was prepared to apply for federal assistance in developing projects deemed necessary for this area, including, watershed treatment, recreational areas, marketing facilities, water distribution, inadequate housing, lack of airport facilities, undeveloped historical sites, and conservation methods.

McDonald explained that among the other seven counties in the Rolling Plains, there are those with projects of immediate necessity, the priority of Gray County's recreational needs would have to be studied in contrast to the other counties.

Gray County Commissioners will name three individuals to the board of directors for the North Rolling Plains District. These representatives will review the status of Gray County and develop an area plan outlining needs, to be presented to the North Rolling Plains District Executive Committee. The findings of this executive committee will eventually make the decision as to the allocation of government funds. The $390,000 is earmarked mainly for planning. If the $390,000 is divided equally among all counties in the North Rolling Plains, approximately $40,000 will be available to Gray County.

"With government cutbacks already started, it is unknown at this time, if further money will become available to carry out projects outlined in the plan," McDonald added.
According to one businessman at the meeting, "If we want recreation, we should be able to pay for it ourselves."

Graduate student burns census form

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — While millions of Americans were counting bedrooms and bathrooms, self-styled anarchist Jeff Hummel put his flaming lighter to his census form.

Hummel, a 31-year-old graduate history student, says it's none of the government's business who lives with him and how much money he makes.

"It's based on coercion. You're forced to answer," he said, citing the $100 to $500 fines that can be levied for failure to respond to the government's once-a-decade accounting of who lives where.

Hummel, a member of the Libertarian Party, debated an accounting major who decided to defend the federal government and the census. "If I came into your house and said I was going to fine you $100 if you didn't tell me how many people were living there, you'd throw me out," Hummel told Bill Rallis, 21.

"They are not going to give the information to anybody," said Rallis during the impromptu debate at the University of Texas.

Libraries plan projects

The public libraries of Canadian, Tulia, and Dumas will offer identical programs in mid-April on "Historical Research and Writing" as a result of a grant from the Texas Committee on Humanities at Arlington.

Emphasizing the materials available in college and library collections in the Texas Panhandle, the grant was made available to the Amarillo Historical Preservation Foundation, with the Amarillo Friends of the Library as co-sponsors. In each of the three locations arrangements committees are from Canadian-Hemphill County Historical and Genealogical Society, Tulia-Swisher County Historical Association, Dumas-Friends of the Dumas Library.

Holy Week trek begins

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The annual trek of Holy Week visitors has begun, and immigration officers say travelers from Mexico are streaming across international bridges in traditional, large numbers.

"It's big, believe me. I don't know the exact number because we only count by the month. But there's more this year than last," said A.A. Lachowsky, immigration supervisor at the Brownsville Gateway Bridge. The Holy Week trip is a vacation for most people, but it started out of necessity when the Mexican Revolution of 1910 curtailed the powers of the Roman Catholic Church. Clergymen to this day cannot wear religious garments outside church buildings.

"During the Mexican Revolution when priests and members of the church were persecuted, there was a great migration to Texas and California during Holy Week," said the Rev. Richard Shirley, chancellor of the Diocese of Corpus Christi.

"Here, they could celebrate the last days of Christ, without fear of persecution. It became a religious tradition and every year there is another, great migration."

Mexican visitors began crossing the Rio Grande on Friday to spend the holiday with friends.

TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Fighting inflation - you have to try

By Oscar W. Cooley

Protecting oneself against inflation is like protecting against a nationwide plague. You can't do it but you have to try.

During a time of inflation such as the present, nothing is wrong with the goods we buy — they are just as good as ever; nor with the labor we hire, nor with the loans we pay interest on. It is money that is sick. One way to avoid the disease is to sidestep the use of money. This is not easy, since almost everything we use is bought with money.

During the American Revolution, there was an inflation due to the over-issuance of Continental paper dollars. It was then the saying "not worth a Continental" came into use. Most Americans were not hurt greatly because, under frontier conditions, you produced things for your own use and for barter, and hence had little use for money.

In today's world, the people who carry on most home production suffer least from inflation. The more sophisticated a people, the more they use money, and so the more they are hurt by inflation.

The United States, I would guess, is far more inflation-conscious than are most of the countries of Africa because their people specialize less, each family producing more of the things it consumes. However, it is possible even for Americans to dodge some of the arrows of inflation by, to some extent, abjuring money.

At our house we have not purchased a potato, a sprig of broccoli, a pint of strawberries for a long time, since we grow these and many other vegetables in our backyard. A freezer helps us to preserve these throughout the year. Hence, the inflated prices of green groceries at our supermarket do not affect us.

According to Gardens for All, a group that urges more gardening, 33 million Americans last year grew at least some of their food in backyard gardens. The stuff they would have cost some $13 million at the market, but it costs the growers little but the price they paid for seed and fertilizer. (I do not have even this expense, since I save my own seed and make my own compost.)

A friend of mine keeps bees, or rather they keep him, in honey, at little monetary expense. Some are so situated as to be able to catch fish and put some down in the freezer. To them the money price of fish is academic.

Producing food is only one way by which many are boycotting money. Bicycling and walking are others. Since I do not own a car, the rapidly rotting gasoline dollar does not affect my pocketbook. They may ration gasoline to their heart's content, they will never save as large a percent of it as I (with the help of generous neighbors). Few can forego car ownership, but all can use their cars less, their legs more — and probably to the latter's benefit. The provision of more bicycle paths also would greatly help.

Those who have built, bought, or rented homes lately have been appalled at the effect of inflation on the cost of houses. The people who acquired their homes some years ago don't realize how gold-encrusted a palace they live in. They mined much of this gold by simply owning a home over the period during which inflation was pushing the value up. Keep your home. Every year you occupy it you are producing real estate value.

Needless to say, those who paint, roof, or otherwise improve their homes not only earn excellent wages by so doing but increase the dollar value which they, the owner-occupants, will find getting higher and higher as inflation rages on.

Because of the seemingly high price a homeowner can now get for his house, some are tempted to sell. To do so is to quit receiving very substantial wages for doing precisely nothing.

Utility bills are the one area in which most of us are licked. To have water, sewerage, fuel, electricity, and telephone, most town folk have to pay with money.

Country people may escape this mounting burden by drawing water from their own well or spring, piping sewage into a cesspool or septic tank, and perhaps burning home-grown wood in stoves. Each of these has its own peculiar costs, such as pipes, stoves, chimneys, which entail money outlay. Electricity and telephone service are practically impossible to home-produce; here, the most economical tactic is to economize, that is, do partially without.

As inflation intensifies — and the new defense program, which seems to guarantee ever-increasing government expenditures, tells us it will — new ways of producing his wants without the help of dollars will undoubtedly be devised by the ingenious American.

The creaky banking machinery

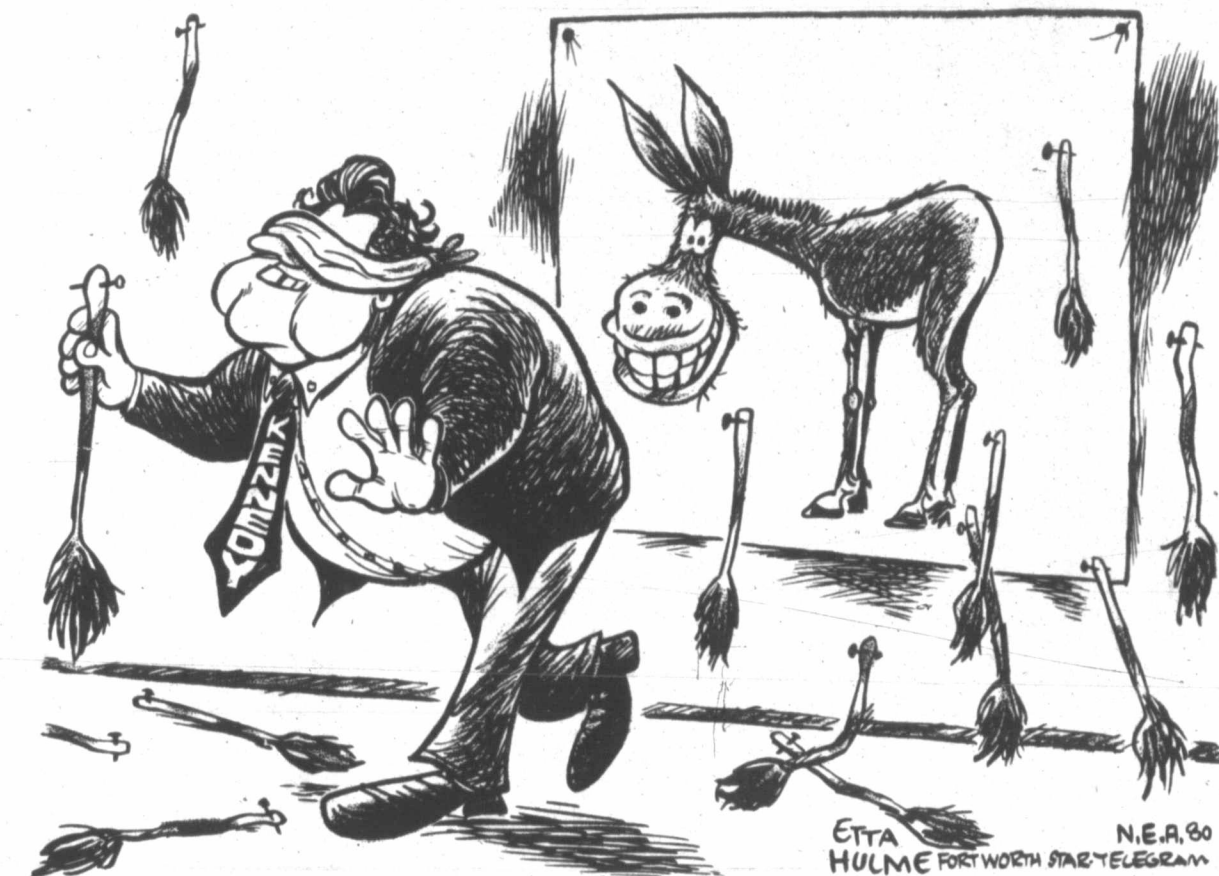

Rarely in this nation's history, we suspect, have its financial markets been as volatile as in the past few weeks. With inflation and interest rates racing each other toward 20 percent, investors have been scrambling to put their wealth into nests where its return will keep pace with prices. Investment opportunities galore have presented themselves to the prudent saver, demonstrating the capacity of a system of free exchange to respond to circumstances. One group has been denied these options, however, and remains helpless against the onrushing tide of printing-press money: the small savers, with a few thousand dollars or less. They rely on traditional institutions, such as banks, which are tied down by antiquated laws and unable to satisfy customers.

As is the case with many restrictions, the limits on banks were sought by the business itself. Foremost among the restraints is the so-called Regulation Q, the interest rate ceiling on savings accounts and time deposits of less than $100,000. It keeps their return between 5 1/4 and 8 percent, which means the money so stored is losing about 10 percent annually in value. Banks sought these restraints in the Depression days when vigorous competition in the financial world was thought a passbook to ruin. To their credit, most banks would now like to get rid of them, although some worry that a lifting of controls would lead to a similar unshackling of their primary competitors, the savings and loans, which are constrained by other rules.

The banks are not rejecting Regulation Q for the sake of small depositors so much as for their own balance sheets: they're losing depositors by the vaultload. The federal government, in turn, is concerned because, as banks grow strapped for customers, they are tending to withdraw from the Federal Reserve system. Its requirement that a hefty percentage of member banks' assets be kept on deposit limits their ability to compete; withdrawal of the institutions from the system mitigates the Federal Reserve Board's ability to control the dollar supply.

There is an overriding national consideration that dwarfs even the plight of small savers, banks and governors of the Fed: they are all caught up in the shortfall of capital from which investments, new jobs and wealth spring. In the last quarter of 1979, Americans put away only 4.1 percent of their gross income, in Canada, where no interest-rate ceilings exist, the comparable rate was 11.7 percent.

The overwhelming sentiment for change has led even Sen. Alan Cranston, a premier statistic, to co-sponsor legislation that is now known as HR 4986, to phase out Regulation Q limits by 5 percent a year until interest rates are deregulated in 1990. That seems a rather ineffectual compromise to us, as the value of the affected savings would be whittled to nearly nothing by the time the cap on interest was removed. Still, any sort of deregulation is desirable. The greatest gain from our unfortunate experience with banking, moreover, would be an aversion toward the application of safeguard laws like Regulation Q to industries in the future. Legal restrictions just don't adapt well in changing times, and consumers suffer as a result.

What doesn't cause cancer?

by Paul Harvey

Don't breathe; the air is toxic! And it's worse indoors than out.
Don't eat; the food is contaminated!
Don't drink water with chemicals in it.
And for goodness sake, don't drink water WITHOUT chemicals in it!

If Americans don't die of cancer they may worry themselves to death!
Again, if Americans don't die of cancer they may worry themselves to death.

There is much more evidence against "stress" in the news than there is against nitrosamines in beer.

There is much evidence of anxiety-related heart disease; almost none against nuclear power plants.

The pickets are picketing the wrong places.
The National Center for Health Statistics recently compiled all available statistical evidence on cancer incidence, cancer varieties and probable cancer causes.

Wait! You hear!
Much of the cancerphobia results from one pair of numbers. Cancer deaths in the United States increased from 351,000 in 1973 to 396,000 in 1978.

But the major reason for the increase in the number of cancer deaths, is "old age." Americans are living longer, long enough to become more likely candidates for cancer.

So the National Center for Health

Statistics has adjusted its mortality tables to allow for this longevity factor.

And now the numbers take on new meaning.
Now the cancer death rate, instead of increasing 12 percent in this past decade has increased only 2.5 percent.

These newest statistics, which I am about to review, will tell us what our odds are for getting cancer — and what kind — and how we might improve those odds in our own favor.

Over the past 50 years the incidence of stomach cancer has DECLINED — dramatically.

The rate-per-thousand population of colon and rectal cancer has declined fractionally.
The incidence of prostate cancer is about what it was 50 years ago.
Also the chance of anybody dying from cancer of the pancreas, the esophagus and the bladder is essentially unchanged.

Odds on dying of leukemia are about what they were.

This would seem to indicate that we've been worrying about the wrong things. There is here no evidence that increased radiation exposure is a significant factor.

But one kind of cancer makes all cancer statistics look bad.

Lung cancer has multiplied itself 5,000 in 50 years! And ironically, this is the one cancer we can prevent.

Reagan's convincing show

By Robert Walters

CHICAGO (NEA) — Just as Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., hoped they would, hundreds of thousands of independents and Democrats crossed party lines to participate in the recent Illinois Republican presidential primary.

But instead of voting for Anderson, many of those non-Republicans cast their ballots for a candidate whose appeal presumably was limited to GOP loyalists — former California Gov. Ronald W. Reagan.

A close look at the demographic characteristics of the voters who gave Reagan his crucial victory here suggests that he enjoys a base of political support far broader and deeper than previously assumed.

Anderson outpolled Reagan 41-28 in Chicago and 44-37 in the Cook County suburbs surrounding the city — but those margins weren't wide enough to offset Reagan's overwhelming 56-29 lead everywhere else in the state.

The turnout in the Republican primary was exactly what Anderson had sought — up from slightly more than 775,000 in 1976 to better than 1.1 million this year, an increase of more than 335,000 or almost 45 percent.

Most of those new voters apparently were independents, but evidence that many were Democrats comes from turnout totals in that party's primary — down from more than 1.3 million in 1976 to less than 1.2 million this year, a decline of more than 125,000 or almost 10 percent.

Two statewide surveys of voters as they left the polling stations offer virtually identical estimates of the percentage of self-described independents who voted for Anderson. The CBS-News-New York Times poll placed the number at 45 percent and the NBC-News-Associated Press poll said it was 47 percent.

But both surveys found a surprisingly high level of independent support for Reagan. That figure was 30 percent in the CBS-Times poll and 40 percent in the NBC-AP poll.

Even before the voting began, knowledgeable observers of this city's politics were suggesting that Reagan would receive the backing of thousands of middle-class independents, many of them blue-collar workers and members of their families, living in Chicago's South Side and northwest corner.

Those voters — not the "upscale," higher income, better educated professionals attracted to Anderson's banner — are the "Middle Americans" whose preferences have been decisive in virtually every presidential election held in this century.

Reagan's critics wrote off his earlier victories in the South as a regional phenomenon, but the win in Illinois — a major Midwestern industrial state whose population mix approximates that of the entire country — cannot be shrugged off as easily.

(The Illinois results also are a better indicator of the respective candidates' strengths in a populous state than the March 25 outcome in New York. New York has no statewide popularity contest and contestants field delegate states only in selected congressional districts.)

Reagan's age (69) was supposed to be a liability, but he apparently thrives on the hurly-burly of presidential campaigning. In a debate here with other candidates, he even joked about the subject, citing the reign of the Roman emperor Diocletian, then quipping, "I'm the only one here old enough to remember it."

His standard campaign speech is derided by self-proclaimed sophisticates as simplistic, banal and jingoistic — but the voters apparently like what they hear.

The mass firing and resignation of almost his entire senior campaign staff would have had a highly disruptive impact on other candidates, but Reagan seems to have blossomed since that event and appears more at ease today than in previous months.

Contemporary politics is too volatile and unpredictable to prematurely proclaim Reagan the winner of the contest for the Republican presidential nomination — but he surely has convinced the skeptics of his popularity and durability.

UNFLATTERING REMARKS, uttered publicly, can be a problem. But the biggest problem may not be the remark itself but what it says about the individual who uttered it. Ellie Grossman gives a report on the cutting remark and how to combat it.

Why did he say that?

Combat cruel remarks

By ELLIE GROSSMAN

NEW YORK (NEA) — Male, female, short, skinny — the trimmings differ but they all belong to a thick-skinned breed notorious for saying the wrong thing at all times: "I hear you got fired, Fred?" or "When are you going on a diet, Lucille?" or "Who was that lady...?"

But when their observations are met with tears or anger, they look around wide-eyed and astonished. "What," they say, "did I say?"

More intriguing is why they say it. According to Dr. Janet Goodman, child psychiatrist on staff at New York Medical College, "I'd say people like that act that way out of insecurity or jealousy. By saying, look at this problem you have, they're saying, I don't have it so aren't I wonderful? They're using someone else's troubles to cover their own deficiency of to feel superior."

Occasionally, though, "Their behavior might represent a misguided concern, a way of trying to help. They think, if I ask her why she doesn't clear up her acne, she'll do something about it."

And sometimes, rarely, says Dr. Karen Blaker, nationally syndicated columnist and private psychotherapist practicing in New York, "A person may say embarrassing things because he simply doesn't know how to behave. He's not socially aware."

Whatever the case, his aim is accurate, his barbs draw blood and telling him that won't do a thing to put him off his mark. "Talking to people like this usually doesn't help," says Dr. Blaker, "because motives for this behavior run so deep, that if the person wanted to change, he would really have to go into therapy."

But understanding the motivation behind the remark, the insecurity, might make you feel a little less upset when it happens.

It's only poor, insecure Fred running off at the mouth, which neither he nor you can control. What you can control, though, is your reaction to him.

"Sometimes," she says, "if you make a joke or a light remark, that will work well, or you can simply say nothing. If this is a relative of yours who behaves like this towards people, it's important for you to remember that what he or she does is no reflection on you. You're not responsible for protecting the world from them, and nine times out of 10 the person's the remark is aimed at will handle the situation.

If you're the target, says Dr. Goodman, what you don't want to do is prove it by falling apart. "If you run out of the room in tears or lose control some other way, not only does that look bad, but it's almost like you're confirming this person's bad opinion of you. You're not only fat or have acne or can't keep a job, but you get hysterical for no reason, too! Also, you don't want to lose control because you want to keep your self-esteem intact."

So when Fred spotlights your paunch, she says, "You can say something neutral such as, 'Yes, I'm overweight and if you have some good ideas about what I can do about it, I'll be happy to talk to you later in private.' That way you're letting him know that maybe he should think about what he's saying."

Then you can smile, walk away, lay in a supply of whoopee cushions and exploding cigars and invite him to a surprise party.

Theater program awards 281 grants

The Theater Program of the National Endowment for the Arts has awarded 281 grants — totaling $7,666,642 — to professional not-for-profit theaters and support organizations in 40 states and the District of Columbia for the new season.

The endowment says "the purpose of these grants is to strengthen existing theaters, encourage new talent and make theater of the highest quality more widely available to all Americans."

DR. LAMB

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 30 years old and I have been trying to get pregnant for more than four years. I took fertility tests and became pregnant with twins but miscarried. Then I got pregnant a second time and had a second miscarriage. Since then I've had all of the tests to study my function and I ovulate regularly and there seems to be no real reason why I can't get pregnant.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My very first "Dear Abby" letter is inspired by ALL TORN UP, whose blood tests repeatedly came back "positive" for syphilis when she knew it couldn't be true. The same thing happened to me 40 years ago. I took a blood test to obtain a marriage license, and was shocked beyond words when it came back positive! I went from one doctor to another, and finally found one who knew that it was possible to have a "false positive," which was true in my case.

DEAR ABBY: I, too, show a false positive on a Wassermann. Apparently this is not unusual, yet, in my experience, physicians never consider this a possibility when a syphilis test comes back positive.

DEAR ABBY: Was I ever glad to see that letter in your column from ALL TORN UP. The same thing happened to me — only I was married. (Try to explain that to your husband!) My positive Wassermann turned out to be lupus. (It's a disease in the same family as rheumatoid arthritis.) There is a National Lupus Society with support branches all over the U.S. They were enormously helpful.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding ALL TORN UP. It is absolutely appalling how ignorant some doctors and others in the health field are! There are countless reasons why a person would have a false positive test for syphilis, and that poor girl should have been set straight immediately. Those who have had malaria, TB, scarlet fever, infectious mononucleosis, lupus erythematosus (and many more diseases) are apt to have false positives.

DEAR ABBY: About the woman whose blood test came back positive and she swore there had to be a mistake: Fifteen years ago my son, who was to be married in two weeks, took a blood test and was informed that he had syphilis! His fiancée's father gave me the news and told me what a rotten son I had. He asked what they were going to do about the $5,000 deposit they had paid the caterer, etc.

DEAR ABBY: What a wonderful service your column provided when you ran that letter from the young woman whose blood test indicated that she had syphilis when she didn't.

DEAR READER — Tell your husband that a biopsy of the testicles is relatively routine. It's often done in men who have fertility problems, specifically low sperm counts. By taking a very small piece of tissue — so small it can fit in the end of a needle — and putting it under a microscope, one can see the architecture of the testicles and from that, have a pretty good idea what problems are affecting these

HEADS-UP play on defense and on the basepaths helped give the Pampa Harvesters a 7-0 win over Canyon Tuesday at Optimist Park. Pampa third baseman Greg Quarles (top photo) puts the tag on Canyon's Bruce Harbin to complete a double play in the third inning while Harvester hurler Scott John

Pampa blanks Canyon, to end slump

By L.D. STRATE
The Pampa Harvesters put the pieces of a frustrating jigsaw puzzle together Tuesday at Optimist Park to whitewash Canyon, 7-0, and end a five-game losing streak.

Pampa couldn't have picked a better time to snap out of its slump since District 3-AAAA action starts Thursday.

The Harvesters logged their sixth win against seven defeats with timely hitting, sparkling defense and some solid pitching, something they've lacked in recent games.

Both clubs had seven safeties apiece, but the Harvester hits came with runners in scoring positions.

RBI singles by Steve McDougall and Keenan Henderson gave Pampa a 2-0 edge in the third inning.

After adding another tally in the fourth,

Pampa sacked the visitors away with a four-run uprising in the sixth. A pair of Eagle errors on routine grounders, coupled with run-scoring singles by Andy Richardson, Steve McDougall, Mark Jennings, and Bret Atchley did the damage.

John, who went the distance to register his second win against one setback, looked sharp when an out was needed, but his teammates snuffed Canyon rallies with some defensive gems.

Shortstop Joe Jeffers and second baseman Mark Jennings turned a pair of slick double plays with Jeffers handling both grounders. Greg Quarles made a twin killing the hard way when he fielded a groundball, tossed to first sacker Keenan Henderson, then took the return throw to double a runner coming to third.

Outfielders McDougall and Mickey Bynum also got into the act. With runners on first and third and one out, McDougall caught a flyball in centerfield and his relay doubled the runner off first. Bynum's peg from rightfield in the seventh cut down David Harbin, who attempted to go from first to third on Mark Miller's single.

John, who struck out five and walked four, played a part in the offense as he scored twice and knocked in a run with a groundball in the fourth.

Richardson and McDougall led the Harvester hitting attack with two hits each. Jennings, Atchley, and Quarles had one hit apiece.

Miller topped Canyon with a pair of hits. Pampa opens defense of its District 3-AAAA crown Thursday with Amarillo Caprock there, starting at 4 p.m.

Ali to fight Weaver?

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The question is who Muhammad Ali will come back against. The fact is Larry Holmes is the No. 1 heavyweight in the world today.

Holmes rules the World Boxing Council share of the planet as heavyweight champion. He has won all 34 of his fights and has scored knockouts in all six of his defenses, the last being an eight-round battering of big Leroy Jones Monday night at Caesars Palace.

Weaver's record is 21-9. He has lost a 12-round decision to Jones and he was stopped in the 12th round last June 23 after a tough effort against Holmes.

Ali says he will come out of retirement against Weaver and then fight Holmes.

"Bob Arum was prepared to go to Weaver if he wants and negotiate — the same as he would have gone to negotiate with Tate." Bill Curl, a spokesman for Hyatt Management Corp., operator of the New Orleans Superdome, said Monday night. "It's entirely possible we're looking at an Ali-Weaver fight."

Arum claims such a fight will take place in the Superdome in late June. The price mentioned is $10 million.

Promoter Don King said Tuesday he has $10 million — he wouldn't say from where — for Ali to fight Holmes.

"I was talking to Ali this morning (by telephone)," said King. "He wants a package deal. First he wants to fight Weaver and then Holmes. I said, 'Let's cut jivin' each other. You got to fight Larry Holmes. He's the only heavyweight champion.'"

But it's likely Holmes' next opponent won't be Ali.

Saying, "I don't need Ali, he needs me," Holmes looked at Scott LeDoux, who was present at the Tuesday morning news conference, and said: "In a week Scott LeDoux and I'll sign a contract if Ali doesn't sign to fight me."

King said a Holmes-LeDoux fight would be in late May or early June.

Holmes was skeptical that the 38-year-old Ali, who retired last May, would fight him, at least first.

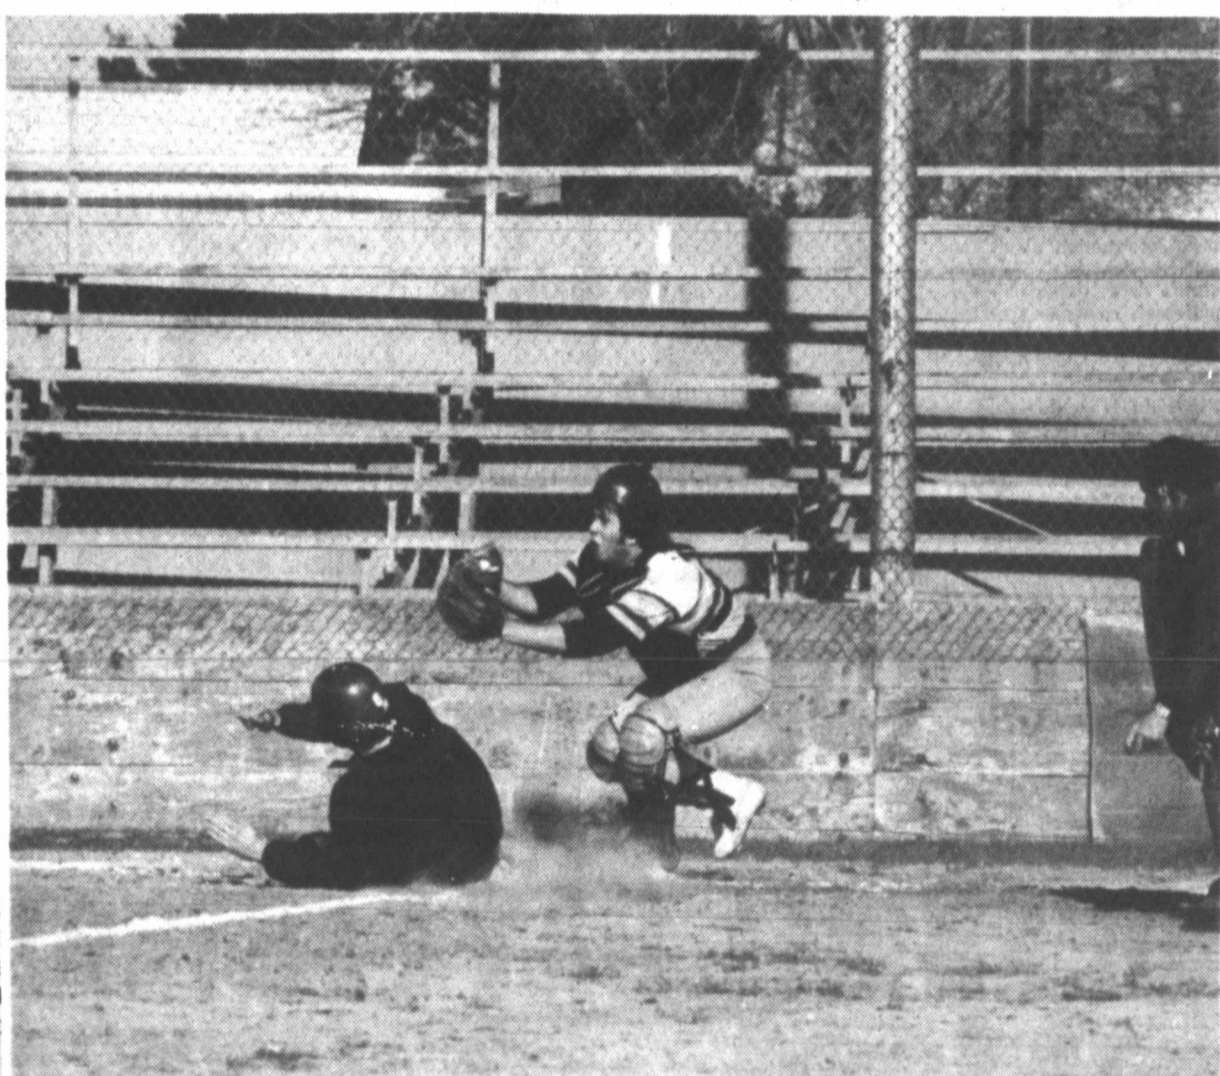

"Ali don't want no part of me," said Holmes. "He told me that when he fought Leon Spinks in New Orleans."

Ali beat Spinks in the Superdome in September 1978, in his farewell fight.

Rangers stop Phillies

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Ferguson Jenkins, John Henry Johnson and a sudden cloudburst combined to limit Philadelphia to just five hits Tuesday as the Texas Rangers defeated the Phillies 4-1 in a rain-shortened exhibition baseball game.

The Rangers, now 10-14 in exhibition, scored in the first inning when Bump Wills singled, stole second and third and came home on Al Oliver's sacrifice fly to left.

Texas scored three runs in the fourth off Phillie starter Randy Lerch. A single by Buddy Bell and walks to Richie Zisk and Billy Sample loaded the bases with two outs. Jim Sundberg singled to drive in two runs and Pepe Frias followed with a base hit to score Sample.

The Phillies, 10-9 in exhibition play, scored their only run in the eighth inning after Pete Rose reached first on an error by Ranger shortstop Nelson Norman. Bake McBride singled and Mike Schmidt walked to load the bases. Johnson then walked Greg Luzinski to force in a run.

Rain forced the game to be called before the inning could be completed. However, officials decided to count all statistics.

The modern Olympic Games started in 1896 in Athens, with eight countries responding.

Lee-Tex leads tourney

Lee-Tex Valve and Manufacturing are the leaders after the first weekend of bowling in the City Men's Association Tournament at Harvester Lanes.

The Lee-Tex squad, consisting of Buddy Epperson, Donny Nail, Bill Morehead, Carroll Pettit, and Benny Horton, rolled a 3154 team total. Following Lee-Tex is Tri State Data, 3066; OCAW, 2933; Coobs Communications, 2920, and Cabot Gas Products, 2906.

Floyd Sackett and Nick Kadingo hold down the No. 1 doubles spot with a 1346. Roy Morris and Jack Peterson are second at 1272. Bob Clark and Lewis James, third, 1258. Dan Carter and Howard Musgrave, fourth, 1252.

Nelson Medley leads singles with a 658, followed closely by Bob Ker, 643; Buck Riddle and Dwain Urbanczyk, 642 each. Nail is atop the scratch all-events chart at 1760 while Sackett paces handicap all-events at 1925.

The annual tournament ends this weekend.

Center open this week

Pampa Youth and Community Center will be open at 1 p.m. each day during the Easter vacation so that youngsters may have more fun for recreation, center director George Smith announced.

The center will open at 1 p.m. today with the swimming pool available from 1-4 p.m. and 7-10 p.m. All facilities can be used, including the health club.

The center closes Easter Sunday and resumes regular hours on Monday.

Smith also reminded parents of the polywog and beginners swim lessons, starting at 4 p.m. Monday. Polywogs are youngsters four to 10 years of age who measure 33 inches at the chin and have not yet started first grade. Beginners are classified as youngsters six years and over.

Wright urged to retire

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry said he is urging 13-year veteran offensive tackle Rayfield Wright to retire.

Wright, who has had four All-Pro seasons but has been hampered by injuries the last three years, is not being invited to the National Football League club's camp which opened Monday, said Landry.

"We wanted him to retire but he's not at the point that he wants to retire," Landry said. "We're in limbo. He's been such a great player, and we're trying to make the transition and it's tough."

"We feel we need to work someone in that position. His knee is better if he retires, he can go on without any more trouble. That's what I'm encouraging him to do."

Mother, son rescued by police

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman who threatened to jump with her 2-year-old son from the roof of a hospital was rescued by three off-duty policemen.

"All I could think was, 'I hope we don't miss,'" said Sgt. L.M. Adams, one of the three officers who were working as security guards at Hermann Hospital. Adams and officer C.M. Busse grabbed the woman and child as officer R.M. Clements III, two doctors, and a nurse kept the woman's attention on them.

Officials said the woman had gone to the hospital Tuesday for psychiatric help. Clements said she later took her son up the elevator to the heliport and threatened to jump 50 to 60 feet to a concrete driveway.

The woman was admitted to a psychiatric ward at the county hospital. The boy was turned over to child welfare officers.

Supermarket bills up by less than 2 percent

BY LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Supermarket bills rose less than 2 percent during the first quarter of 1980 and were unchanged last month, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey.

The AP found that increases in the price of sugar and eggs were offset by drops in the cost of frankfurters and pork chops.

The AP drew up a random list of 14 commonly purchased food and non-food items and priced them at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

half of this year is expected to be 1 percent to 2 percent higher than 1979 levels. Pre-Easter demand, however, helped boost the price of eggs at the checklist store in nine of the cities surveyed.

On the bright side, there were declines at the meat counter. Center-cut pork chops dropped 9 percent at the checklist store in eight cities and frankfurters decreased in six cities. Pork in particular is expected to be plentiful through the first half this year at least and consumers should continue to find lower prices.

Several of the stores checked by the AP imposed limited price freezes or ceilings last month after an appeal by Esther Peterson, President Carter's special adviser for consumer affairs. None of the survey items were affected by the freezes, however.

The latest AP survey showed that the average marketbasket bill at the start of April was 1.8 percent higher than it was at the beginning of the year. The increase during the same period of 1979 was more than twice as big—4.1 percent.

The marketbasket bill went up at the checklist store in five cities last month and went down in eight cities, dropping an average of 1.4 percent. On an overall basis, the bill at the start of April was the same as it was a month earlier.

The price of sugar rose at the checklist store in nine cities, with increases ranging from 5 percent to 25 percent. The retail price boosts reflect higher prices being paid for raw sugar on world markets because of smaller supplies. Production of sugar has been declining for several years and recent reports indicate that the current crop may be even smaller than anticipated.

Eggs, in contrast, are in abundant supply. The Department of Agriculture says egg production during the first

Charges filed in Temple tragedy

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — One of the two persons charged in connection with the Peoples Temple tragedy pleaded guilty today to a charge of attempted murder. On a separate charge, he said he was innocent of slaying a top cult member and her three children here in 1978.

Authorities said Charles Beikman, 44, a cook and shoemaker for the Jonestown community, was likely to be sentenced later today or Wednesday for the attempted murder of Stephanie Jones, a nine-year-old girl and no relation to cult leader Jim Jones.

Beikman also was charged with murder in the death of Sharon Amos, a top temple official, and her three children at the cult's Georgetown headquarters on the night of the mass-suicide of more than 900 persons in Jonestown on Nov. 18, 1978.

Guyana Criminal Court officials said the trial for the second person charged in the tragedy, scheduled for today in another court room, was postponed until May 5.

Defense attorney Rex McKay, who represented Larry Layton, 33, a former Marine, won a postponement when McKay argued that he planned to represent the government of Guyana in an arbitration case in Washington, D.C., shortly.
