Pampa and area voters go to the polls to select school, city representatives

Pampa and area voters will be visiting the polls Saturday to decide on their representatives for various school and city offices.

Polls will open at 7 a. m. and close at 7 p. m. In the race for Ward IV seat of the Pampa city commission is Edward G. Moultrie and Clyde Carruth. The two are vying for the vacancy to be left by Linden (Butch) Shepherd, Ward II incumbent. Coyle Ford, is running unopposed for his present position.

Absentee voting in the city race has been light, election officials said after the closing of the polls Wednesday.

Pampans are showing more interest in the Pampa Independent School Board of Trustees election according to absentee voting turnout, school officials said.

Three positions on the board will be decided in the Saturday elections. Kenneth Fields and Mrs. Billy (Caroline) Wingham are vying for Place V on the board, while Place VI is being defended by incumbent Buddy Epperson. He is opposed by Bunny Nichols. Phil Vanderpool is unopposed in the Place IV race.

Residents of area cities will be voting in the Saturday elections with candidates as follows:

Wholesale prices soared in March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices soared by 1.4 percent in March, an 18.2 percent compounded annual rate, while unemployment edged up to 6.2 percent, the government reported today.

March's increase in wholesale, or producer, prices was only slightly less than the huge jumps recorded in January and February.

Food prices at the wholesale level turned up in March following two months of decline while energy costs continued to soar at an annual rate of nearly 110 percent, said Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Wholesale prices are watched carefully by economists because they tend to preview similar increases at the consumer level in later months.

Consumer prices rose at an 18 percent-plus annual rate through February, far beyond last year's 13.3 percent pace.

The disturbing boosts in prices since January set in motion President Carter's budget-balancing efforts as well as new credit control steps by the Federal Reserve Board.

The Labor Department's report on unemployment showed joblessness rising from a 6.0 percent level in February. March's 6.2 percent figure matched the January level.

Despite the 1.4 percent increase in the Producer Price Index, Ms.

Norwood pointed to some favorable signs on the inflation front.

Excluding food and energy, all other finished goods — those ready for retailer's shelves — rose only 0.5 percent in March, less than half the increases in January and February.

"In addition, the sharp diminution of price increases at both the crude and intermediate stages of processing is encouraging," she said in testimony prepared for Congress.

The Producer Price Index measures three stages of processing: finished goods, ready for sale to retailers; intermediate goods, which are partially processed, and crude materials, such as grain and livestock which have yet to be processed.

SPEAKING OF SOAPS

"SPEAKING OF SOAPS," a column for soap opera fans, will begin in Sunday's edition of the Pampa News. The column will recap the events of the past week in major soap operas and will preview the events of the coming week. It's a column the working gal — who watches "soaps" for two weeks a year while on vacation — and the homemaker — who watches programs every day — will love.

Weather

It will be fair today with partially cloudy conditions continuing through Saturday. It will be warm and partly cloudy for Easter Sunday. Winds will be 5-10 mph today and 10-15 mph for Saturday. The high for today will be in the low 60s with an overnight low in the 40s, the high for Saturday will be in the mid 70s.

Public wants more 'blood,' famed museum owner says

LONDON (AP) — The public wants more blood, says Madame Tussaud's. So today London's famed wax museum opened a new Chamber of Horrors that is the most gory, ghoulish and gruesome in its 178-year history.

For the first time, modern American murderers are displayed — Utah killer Gary Gilmore before the firing squad, Charles Manson with his gang of girls and Bruno Richard Hauptmann strapped into the electric chair.

For the devotees of London crime, a Victorian alleyway is littered with the victims of Jack the Ripper and other madmen.

"We were very aware that visitors were disappointed with the old Chamber of Horrors, that it wasn't frightening," spokeswoman Juliet Simpkin said. "People were just not finding it bloody enough."

"What we've done will probably fulfill what people want to see. It's pretty nasty — and probably a bit gory, too."

The 40 murderers, murders and murdering tools are appropriately located in the basement of the museum whose wax look-alikes of the famous and infamous attract 2.5 million visitors a year.

When Marie Gresholtz Tussaud, a Swiss-French wax artist, brought her collection to England in 1802, she put the more horrible items — including the blade from the French Revolution guillotine — into a separate room. In 1846, Punch, the British humor magazine, dubbed it the Chamber of Horrors, and the name stuck.

Into the chamber went likenesses of Britain's most notorious criminals almost as soon as they were hanged. More than 30,000 lined up for the debut of Eleanor Pearcey, who slew her lover's wife and baby and wheeled them through the streets in a pram.

But capital punishment was abolished in Britain in 1965, and the Chamber of Horrors grew stale. Attendance dropped off. Both adults and children complained to the guards that they wanted to see "more murders being done and people's heads severed."

"We obviously have to draw the line because we are a family organization," said chief researcher Christina Rowley.

"We haven't actually got anyone being murdered," Miss Simpkin joined in, "but by not-so-subtle suggestion, we can give people the chance to imagine what had happened. That should be enough."

In the new Chamber of Horrors, previewed for The Associated Press earlier this week, the execution bell from Newgate Prison rings every 20 seconds as visitors walk down the dimly lit stairs. The air chills as a dark 19th-century London street comes into view.

Appeals court upholds Dougless conviction

AUSTIN — An appeal of a probation revocation by the 31st District Court for a 27-year-old Pampa man was confirmed this week by the State Court of Criminal Appeals.

The appeal stemmed from a revocation of probation by 31st District Judge Grainger McIlhenny following the May 4, 1979 arrest by Department of Public Safety troopers of James Kirk Dougless, 930 S. Reid.

On May 15 of 1979, Judge McIlhenny revoked Dougless' probation for unlawful possession of marijuana and sentenced the man to four years in the Texas Department of Corrections at Huntsville, according to District Attorney Harold Comer.

Dougless filed a notice of appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeals in the state capital. Dougless' contention in the appeal, Comer said, was an illegal arrest on the grounds that the officers did not have a search warrant when they entered the residence of Jon Bender at 418 Rider and took Dougless into custody.

The criminal appeals court will now issue a mandate directing the arrest of the man and will arrange for his transportation to Huntsville, the district attorney said.

The probation revocation resulted from Dougless' arrest after he was involved in an automobile accident, a high speed chase from highway patrol troopers and his eventual arrest for driving while intoxicated.

According to trooper Wayne Williams and Harry Keyes, Dougless was driving a 1973 Ford truck when he collided with an Acme Oil Tool Company vehicle driven by 48-year-old Lowell Hayden. Continuing west on Hwy. 60, the Dougless vehicle left the road, came back on the highway and struck another vehicle. The left side of the pickup was damaged and both tires on the left side were blown out.

Driving west, he then turned on Farley St., striking and knocking down a concrete block fence at the residence of Earl Meaker, 941 S. Farley. Continuing south on Farley, the vehicle then turned left onto Oklahoma, left again onto Christy and finally returned to the highway, jumped the median and headed west.

The vehicle then turned north on Price Rd. and lost its left rear tire shortly after crossing the railroad tracks.

With no tires on the left side, the pickup continued north on Price Rd. toward Alcock at a speed of 60 to 65 miles per hour. Following the vehicle was the Gray County Emergency Team, which was in contact with the DPS via radio hookup.

The pickup finally stopped in front of the Bender residence, where Dougless reportedly ran from the disabled truck into the residence.

The two highway patrol troopers then entered the residence and made the disputed arrest.

Senate proposes 5 percent cut of federal bureaucracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate budget-writers are proposing a balanced 1981 budget that pays for hefty defense spending increases by deeply cutting domestic programs and by trimming the federal bureaucracy by 5 percent.

On an 11-7 vote Thursday, the Senate Budget Committee added more than $5 billion to President Carter's proposed $150.5 billion defense budget. In all, the committee endorsed a $612.9 billion spending package.

The panel would compensate for the higher military spending largely through domestic cuts far deeper than either Carter or the House Budget Committee have recommended in their proposed budgets for fiscal 1981, which starts Oct. 1.

The Senate panel approved Sen. James D. Exon's proposal to trim 5 percent from all government administrative functions, both civilian and military. That would save an estimated $2.9 billion. The Nebraska Democrat said his amendment was designed to tell the bureaucracy "we want a little more productivity."

Added Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., "Some message has to be sent to the Department of Defense and every other agency that they can't do business as usual."

The committee's guns-over-butter approach was achieved by a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats that frequently overrode proposals from the panel's chairman, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

"We have really done a very, very evil job as far as the American people are concerned," said liberal Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio. "One by one we truly cut the guts out of the American people and the programs they need."

While the House committee and the president called for cuts in many social programs, their proposed reductions were much less severe. The House panel also recommended about $8 billion less for defense than the Senate committee.

All three spending packages call for achieving the first balanced federal budget in 12 years.

The House and Senate are scheduled to begin floor debate on the their budget committees' proposals when Congress returns April 15 from the Easter recess that began today.

On March 14, Carter called for balancing the federal budget as part of the administration's efforts to curb inflation, which has risen to an annual rate of almost 18 percent.

The conflict in priorities between the House and Senate could lead to an impasse similar to the one last year that delayed final action on the 1980 budget until the current fiscal year was nearly two months old.

Also, Senate liberals are likely to challenge the committee's budget on the Senate floor.

Living Easter gifts not recommended

The sight of those fluffy pink, blue or orange miniature chicks may prompt a parent to pick up such a treat for an Easter surprise.

Think carefully of the animal and the child involved in such a gift exchange.

Contending that animals should not be treated as toys and warning parents that their youngsters may contract salmonellosis by handling Easter pets, Jim Barnhart, Animal Rights Association spokesman, said that ARA opposes the sale of chicks, ducklings and baby rabbits as a way of commemorating Easter.

In many American cities, there are local laws and even state regulations that prohibit the sales of such small animals for "holiday" presents.

The law in Pampa does allow the sale of chickens, rabbits and ducks and a person can keep a number of poultry or fowl if they number less than 25 and are not more than ten weeks of age, or 50 such animals under ten weeks of age.

The Texas cities of Dallas, Fort Worth, Corpus Christi and El Paso have passed city ordinances prohibiting the sale of chicks and ducks in quantities of less than 25. The larger number certainly is a deterrent to impulse buying.

"Most children certainly don't intend to be cruel," Barnhart, ARA vice president, said. "But these little animals are fragile, very easily hurt, and all too often are quite literally squeezed to death."

Barnhart added that a national organization, the Humane Society of the United States, has estimated that 90 percent of these baby animals do not survive.

"Most of the time, they are simply bought on impulse, with little thought given to the long term needs of the animal. Although a baby chick is undeniably very cute, it quickly grows up to become a chicken, an animal not commonly thought of as a good pet," he added.

In addition, Barnhart said, there exists a "very real danger" of contracting salmonellosis through handling of animals such as these.

Dr. John Galbreath, regional veterinarian for the Texas Department of Public Health, agreed that handling Easter pets can produce salmonellosis.

"I don't like the idea of parents buying little chickens and ducks for their children to play with. I wouldn't recommend that they be given these animals," he added.

H.P. VANDERLINDER

GAINESVILLE — Services for Mr. H.P. Vanderlinder were held Friday at 2 p.m. in the George Carroll Funeral Chapel in Gainesville.

The annual Easter egg hunt sponsored by the Pampa Jaycees will be conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday at Central Park. Parents should bring their children to the cinder block building in the park where the hunt will start. Charles McKinney of the Jaycees said all eggs will be candy eggs in plastic or cellophane. Prizes will be awarded to children finding "secret" eggs with a number in them. Children should bring their own Easter baskets, but all eggs will be furnished by the Jaycees.

THE RAPTURE, and exciting new color film, presented in Spanish, will be shown at Iglesia Bautista Sunday at 7 p.m. The film deals with Bible prophecy relating to the return of Christ and the folly of not being ready for the return of Christ whenever it occurs. The public is invited to see this graphic film presentation.

Concert season closed by proclaimed pianist

By BILL HAILEY

Guest Reviewer

The current Community Concert season came to a close last night with a stunning performance by a relatively unknown Philippine pianist, Cecile Licad.

At 18, Miss Licad is something of an oddity on today's American concert stage — a prodigy. A student of the renowned Rudolph Serkin, she has also studied with Lipkin and Horszowski and at Philadelphia's Curtis Institute. For her program, she chose among the most revered and formidable works in all of piano literature. She opened with a mature effort of Beethoven's Sonata Op. 90. After this came "Carnaval" by Schumann, the great "wayward" among composers. His works are impulsive, rickety, over-long, often inept, but in the end, he not only succeeds, he triumphs.

Then came "Sonatine" by the French impressionist Debussy and three works by Chopin, including the fabulous G minor Ballade. Miss Licad's enormous talent is in her ability to hold the attention and even the enthusiasm of her audience. She played as if she meant every single note. Her musical ideas were presented with effective exaggeration.

In the slow and expressive sections, her tone was warm and penetrating. In the fast bravura parts she displayed fire. Small in fact, she often thundered. Her ability to project and to fill the vast M.K. Brown Auditorium was unbelievable.

It is easy to see that Cecile Licad, at her age, has a brilliant future. What is difficult to imagine is how she can possibly improve.

police report

The Pampa Police Department responded to 34 calls during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today. Calls involved vandalism, two reports of theft and a burglary.

Johnnie Mack Irvine, 17, of 532 Harlem and Dwayne Avery, 19, of 1117 Huff were arrested in the 400 block of Oklahoma St. in reference to the theft of a case of beer from a Miller truck parked in the 700 block of S. Gray. The two were charged with theft and placed in city jail.

Ronald Parnell, Box 41, Miami reported someone slit a tire on his vehicle while it was parked at 600 S. Cuyler. Damage was estimated at $100.

Roy Glen Lidy, 732 S. Gray, reported someone entered his residence possibly through an unlocked front door and took a 12 gauge, semi-automatic shotgun valued at $250.

A 13-year-old juvenile, 529 N. Wells, reported his black and green, 26 inch bicycle was taken from under the carport of his residence sometime on March 28. The bicycle was valued at $65.

fire report

There were no fires reported to Pampa firemen during the 24 hour period ending at 8 a.m. Friday.

minor accidents

An four vehicle accident occurred in the 700 block of W. Brown at 1:28 p.m. April 2, involving a 1971 Chevrolet driven by John Andrew Wilson, 25, of 500 N. Warren and four parked vehicles. Wilson was reportedly traveling west on Brown when he was in collision with a 1979 Plymouth owned by Joe Dale Cook, Box 520, parked in front of 724 W. Brown. The Plymouth then struck a parked 1975 AMC belonging to Gary J. Smith of 2808 Rosewood which in turn hit a 1974 Chevrolet pickup owned by Wayne Bruce, Box 799. Wilson's four month old child, Misty Dawn was taken by ambulance to Highland General Hospital where she was admitted for her injuries. Wilson was later taken to the hospital by a police unit where he was treated and released. He was cited for passing with insufficient clearance. The child was released from the hospital on April 3.

At 5:45 p.m. on April 3, a two vehicle accident occurred in the 100 block of Ward when a 1972 Chevrolet driven by Randall Hall, 30, of 2122 Hamilton was in collision with a 1975 Chevrolet driven by Sharon Williams, 35, of 1172 Prairie Dr. who was parked near the curbline.

Gymnast school closes

MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — Grossfeld's School of Gymnastics, one of the more prestigious training centers for aspiring Olympic gymnasts, probably will phase out its training program for girls because of the U.S. Olympic boycott, officials say.

The school has decided to scale down and probably eventually eliminate the 25-girl training program because of difficulty in soliciting funds from U.S. businesses that normally support participation in the Olympics, business manager George Ward said Thursday.

The 15-year-old school, owned and directed by past Olympian Muriel Grossfeld, draws girls from throughout the country for its American Gold Elite Training Program. Although girls participate in other national and world events, "our basic aim is to take talented girls all the way to the Olympics," Ward said.

Panel will evaluate curriculum

A public hearing on recommendations for changes in the state public school system's courses of study will be held in Amarillo on April 29 at 1601 S. Cleveland from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The hearing will be conducted by the Curriculum Study Panel, a 24-member committee appointed to examine and recommend possible changes in Texas public school courses of study, who will hold a series of regional public hearings throughout the state from April 14 through May 14.

The 20 hearings are designed to help the panel gather the citizen and professional opinions necessary to build a more effective public school curriculum, according to Joe Kelly Butler of Houston, chairman.

Butler, who also chairs the State Board of Education, said the committee will complete its work by December 1. Its three major products to be presented to the 67th Texas Legislature will include:

1) A realistic and relevant statement of the desired elements to be included in a well-balanced curriculum.

2) A description of a "basic curriculum" which could offer students the opportunity to progress toward the Texas Goals for Public School Education.

3) Proposed changes in both law and State Board of Education policy to ensure implementation of the "basic curriculum" throughout the state.

"While the school districts traditionally carry the major responsibility for curriculum, both the Texas Legislature and the State Board of Education make sure specific elements are included in every district," Butler said.

Students firing guns results in suspensions

AUSTIN (AP) — Two University of Texas football players were suspended and two others received lesser penalties for their parts in the March 26 discharge of firearms from a dormitory window.

Defensive end Kenneth McCune of Lake Jackson, and defensive tackle Kenneth Doan of Temple, both juniors, were suspended until Aug. 18 by university officials Thursday.

They also have been banned from UT residence halls and placed on disciplinary probation for the rest of their undergraduate days at UT. Robbin Bendline, junior outside linebacker from Las Vegas, Nev., and Donald Lovett, sophomore offensive tackle from Dallas, received disciplinary probation and suspension from UT dormitories until they graduate. They will be allowed to stay in school.

The dean of students office said two shots were fired from the window of Lovett's fifth-floor room in Jester

"As a result, Texas has always had a 'state core' around which local curriculums are built. This 'state core' is our topic for study," he said.

The full Curriculum Study Panel and its smaller steering committee have held a series of meetings beginning on Oct. 25, 1979 to review reports from the Texas Education Agency staff and identify issues.

"The state curriculum is re-fashioned from time to time by the Texas Legislature and the State Board of Education," Mrs. Mary Ann Leveridge of East Bernard, chairperson of the steering committee, said.

Mrs. Leveridge, who also serves on the State Board of Education, said the panel will identify the issues clearly as it determines its recommendations to the Legislature.

"We all believe the advice from parents, educators, and other citizens generated by these public hearings will enable us to focus on specific issues," she said.

Representatives of all educational professional organizations will have the opportunity to present their views at a special April 9 hearing to be held in the Senate Chamber of the State Capitol in Austin. The sessions will be scheduled from 9:30 a.m. to noon and from 1:30 p.m. to conclusion.

Curriculum Study Panel members include six members of the State Board of Education, the 11 members of the Senate Education Committee, five members of the House Education Committee and two members of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Education.

The Easter Bunny Has Hidden Very Special Eggs in Pampa Mall.

Saturday, April 5, Pampa Mall is having an Easter egg hunt for children 12 years of age and under. The hunt will begin at 10:00 a.m. and continue while egg supplies last. Each plastic egg will contain a coupon for candy or a special surprise from one of Pampa Mall's merchants. All eggs will be hidden in the mall walkways. Limit, 3 eggs per child, please. The Easter Bunny will be there, so come join the fun where there's always something new for you.

Photos with the Easter Bunny available through tomorrow.

CETA funding cut back

Because of Federal budget tightening, the Panhandle area activities of Title VII of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) will be reduced. That decision was made within the week by the Board of the Texas Panhandle Employment and Training Activities Council.

The reduction will affect the cities of Pampa, Amarillo, and Borger, and the counties Swisher, Deaf Smith, Wheeler, and Lipscomb.

Judge Warren Jenkins, head of the Council, cited a shrinking Federal Allocation as the prime reason for the personnel cutbacks. "We'll be doing business with less than $100,000 this year, compared to $191,000 last year," he said. "That means we've got to tighten our belts in order to make sure the citizens of the Panhandle region continue to benefit from Title VII CETA program."

Pampa was allocated $6,800 for the CETA Title VII program, according to James Barrington, CETA Administrator. "There are many CETA programs nationwide he explained, we are just concerned with the title VII program at this time."

The major cost effect in this move agreed on, was a consolidation of governing councils. Effective immediately, the Planning Council, Private Industry Council and Youth Councils will be combined. That will create a governing body of 20, compared to the 40-person entity that has existed since the local implementation of Title VII provisions of CETA.

"Rising gas prices are another major concern," Jenkins observed, "and cutting back on the size of those groups means less travel money being disbursed. We're also looking for an accompanying drop in the volume of paperwork connected with the effort," he said.

The Texas Panhandle program was nipped in the bud by Federal cost cutting. The structure that had been set up was intended to give private industry easier access to CETA funding for its trainee programs and also provide Federal funds for youth training for the job market. Although the programs still exist, they will be at a reduced level.

Currently, more than 1500 Panhandle area citizens are benefitting directly from all classifications of CETA funds according to Barrington.

Victims of crime repaid

In a free society there has often been charges leveled at the way criminals are handled in the court system.

A criminal may be charged and sentenced to serve upon the conviction of a crime, but what compensation can the victim look forward to.

The 66th Texas State Legislature addressed this problem and the adoption of an act to repay victims of a crime is now in effect.

The act called Compensation of Victims of Crime Act was legislated to be used for the payment of compensation to certain victims of crime or their dependents.

The specific purpose of the new act is to recognize innocent persons suffering personal injury or death as a result of criminal acts. Crime victims and persons who intervene in crime in behalf of a peace officer may suffer disabilities, incur financial burdens, or become dependent of public assistance.

The 66th Legislature determined that there is a need for compensation for these victims although the paid compensation may not exceed $50,000 from the fund.

In Gray County, the County Clerks office has already allocated money to the fund from fines assessed as set in the act. The county treasurer sends the funds to the State Comptroller. Gray County is allowed five percent of monies collected as a service charge.

Every local law enforcement agency is to inform victims of such criminal acts of this act and provide to them application forms. All state licensed hospitals are instructed to display information concerning this law.

Money for the special fund comes from assessed court fines as authorized by the new act.

Any person convicted of a crime of violence is assessed $15 if the crime is considered a felony and $10 if the crime is considered a Class A or B misdemeanor.

The court fines could be assessed up to $10,000 against a person convicted of a crime of violence, commensurate with the offense committed. This large amount is also levied with the probable economic impact of the victim in mind.

More than $200,000 has been collected since the law went into effect last September.

The Industrial Accident Board has been given powers and duties to carry out as provided in the act. The board is responsible for most of the allocations of the money to victims.

The board has received less than 100 claims since the new law was passed. However the first 40 claimants have sought more than $300,000 in aid, according to Jim Ray, representative of the board.

Time must be allowed for the criminals to be caught, tried, and convicted before the court can levy any fines on them.

To apply for the compensation a victim must have reported the crime within 72 hours of its occurrence. The claim may be filed within 180 days of the report.

The application must be verified. All applications are reviewed by a clerk of the Board of Industrial Accidents and may be further investigated by the Attorney General.

Compensation may be awarded to the victim for monetary loss arising from the criminal conduct inflicted upon him.

Rejection of a claim can come from not following the regulations of filing the claim, or from the fact that the claimant may not have suffered financial stress as a direct result of the criminal offense. A claimant may not reside in the same household as the criminal.

The type of remuneration that can be awarded to a victim includes cash payments either in a lump sum or in installments. Counseling or reference to a more proper state agency may also be awarded to the claimant.

Marshal, elected as 'joke', takes up new watchman post

KNOX CITY, Mo. (AP) — Tommy A. Goodwin, a 45-year-old fixture in this small town, was once judged mentally incompetent and voters elected him marshal as a joke, the mayor said.

But the fact that Goodwin could carry a gun had some folks scared, and at the wishes of "everybody in town," Goodwin has agreed to give up his post. So now he's the new City Hall night watchman.

The decision Thursday night averted the resignations of most of the officers of this northeast Missouri town of 280 persons.

"It all ended happy," said City Clerk Laverne Nicol after a council meeting at which Goodwin was to have been sworn into office.

"The resignations were all signed, but they were tore up at the meeting. People just didn't understand what was involved when they voted for him (Goodwin)."

Goodwin was elected city marshal Tuesday, defeating Mrs. Nicol's husband, Charles, by four votes.

The job had been vacant for nearly a decade because the financially strapped town could afford only $50 a month for the post and no one wanted it. Nicol filed after Goodwin, who said he was encouraged to do so by townspeople.

Mrs. Nicol said Goodwin won because he campaigned door to door, hauled people to the polls and promised he would not wear a gun.

"But we have to give him a gun when we swear him in," she said. The idea "just scares the heck out of me," said one official who asked not to be identified. The official added Goodwin had no criminal record and did not appear to be violent.

"I'm not going to pack no gun. If you have a gun, it's going to get you in trouble," Goodwin said before the meeting. "The people put me in and I'm going to keep my job. I don't want no pay."

"I'll be a good marshal. That's what everybody said."

But Goodwin said he changed his mind at the urging of 100 townspeople who attended the meeting.

"The whole town came out and everybody in town asked me to be night watchman," Goodwin said. "I didn't know I had that many friends, but I guess I do. I just wanted to do what everybody wanted."

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Punishing us for their sins

For a few more days, President Carter is likely to enjoy the afterglow from having appeared decisive again. And there will be a residue of support for his notion that inflation is the result of our undisciplined personal lives and that individual financial sacrifices are its only cure.

In the weeks and months to come, however, as Washington grows more oppressive in its dominance of our private affairs and as that shrinking portion of our resources we are permitted to dispense as we choose is further squeezed, perhaps there will be a widespread awakening. Perhaps millions upon millions of Americans will decide they have had quite enough of this man Carter and his repeated punishments of us in response to the excesses of his own federal government.

Critics of Carter's economic proposals announced last week have already surfaced, and he's been dubbed the new Hoover. Some who apply this label suffer from the common misunderstanding of what Herbert Hoover did at a time of even worse national calamity and why he failed, but their sobriquet for Jimmy Carter is nevertheless appropriate. For just as Hoover's policies were hardly libertarian and in fact increased the state's role in the economy, so too is Carter falsely assuming the mantle of fiscal austerity in a celebrated effort to balance a federal budget of more than $600 billion.

Considering the hard and fast elements of the president's plan, it is difficult to see anything but another massive tax increase on the American people at a time when we are paying a higher overall share of our gross product to taxes than in any peacetime in the nation's history. The man who, earlier in his term, put forth huge new levies in the form of increased Social Security deductions and a "windfall" tax on oil consumers about to be passed by Congress, has now added these:

—New fees on imported oil that will boost the price of gasoline by 10 cents a gallon.

—Through the Federal Reserve Board, deposit requirements on credit card issuers that will amount to a form of taxation on the 82 million cardholders in the United States. To cover their revenue loss from having to deposit with the Federal Reserve 15 percent of the amount they loan, the banks, department stores and oil companies that issue these cards are expected to impose new fees and higher interest charges and to rescind some of the credit previously offered. The Fed's action—which has the effect of benefiting those companies that were already tightening credit and would otherwise have faced competitive pressure as a result—comes despite the fact that credit cards constitute a small fraction of the consumer loans outstanding in the economy, most of which are for homes and autos, politically sensitive industries that are safe from presidential crackdowns.

—A similar 15 percent deposit requirement for investment houses that offer the increasingly popular high-yield checking accounts that many savers of modest means have been using to keep pace with inflation. The interest paid on these funds is expected to drop as a result.

—A proposal to impose withholding on interest and dividend income, for which taxes heretofore have come due only when an individual files his return.

The interesting thing about all of these increased exactions from the American public except the last one is that they are effective immediately. The other half of the president's so-called anti-inflation policy—the $13 billion or so he plans to trim from the 1981 budget and the few billion he may lop from this year's spending plan that's headed for almost $50 billion in the red—is that they require approval of Congress, for the most part. The interest groups that feed off the Treasury already are marshaling their forces to resist the cuts.

What Carter intends to eliminate from his mammoth budgets is still vague. He has imposed some sort of federal hiring freeze, but we all know from local experience how meaningless that is. He apparently intends to pare new programs, which means that he really is not cutting back on what exists now, and it isn't likely that he will take steps to control the runaway entitlement programs with their built-in "cost-of-living" escalators that are now the primary driving force behind federal profligacy. Many reductions to be proposed probably will attempt to punish Americans by diminishing services they thought they were getting on the basis of fees paid: Saturday mail service and highway projects, for example.

We're quite certain not to hear Carter call for meaningful, substantive cuts that cry out to be made: end the CETA program, abolish the departments of energy and education along with hundreds of other government agencies, eliminate the escalator clauses that allow recipients of federal welfare programs such as Social Security (many of whose payees are not elderly) to keep ahead of inflation while the productive sector falls behind.

Even more importantly, the administration has already ruled out for now the sort of tax law changes that some believe are just as important to reducing inflation as spending cuts. These would be tax breaks for savers, whose dollars provide the precious investment capital to fund improvements in productivity that are part of the answer to spiraling prices. Savers are a disappearing breed, and who can blame them: they are taxed heavily on income they do not spend. Why not live well, and buy commodities that will appreciate in the price spiral? Federal spending, of course, plays a role in the savings scenario as well: when government isn't printing more money, it's borrowing the precious little available, driving interest rates higher and excluding much of the private sector from the capital market. The result is fewer jobs, more government handouts and thus higher federal spending, and the cycle repeats itself.

It is most politically expedient for President Carter at this point to propose superficial spending cuts and to impose higher taxes on personal spending while denying tax cuts to savers, and that is why he's doing it. The policy also conforms to conventional wisdom in Washington for much of this century, a philosophy that leads to more meanness and hurtful impositions on Americans with each repetition of the inflationary cycle. Jimmy Carter and whoever succeeds him are likely to continue to get away with these flagellations until large numbers of their subjects wise up to the fact that, when the complexities of economics are cut through, they are getting the whip for their rulers' evil deeds.

Tax reduction would fan inflation

By Oscar Cooley

Should taxes be cut?
As a libertarian, I usually answer that question with a yes.

Taxes are forced payment. You are not allowed to retain all of your income, a portion being taken from you by the tax collector. If you do not give up the money promptly, unpleasant things can happen to you.

Those who value individual freedom and the right of property highly look upon this as little less than extortion. And they are not impressed by the argument that the government needs the money—I may need a dollar to buy milk for my starving child, but this does not warrant my getting it by extortion.

But that is getting down to fundamentals. The question raised in cutting taxes is not, are taxes evil, but rather, in view of the nation's current situation, should our present tax rates be reduced?
No.

The most serious economic threat today is inflation. The country is awash with dollars, whose spending is bidding up prices. In January the official index of these rose at a rate of 18 percent per year, the steepest rise of the price level in the memory of the present generation. It is making life exceedingly hard for the people who do not have their share of the surplus dollars. And there is a grave danger that the price level will rise even more steeply.

Taxes are paid with dollars. To reduce tax rates would reduce the number of dollars taken from taxpayers. They would then have that many more dollars to spend, bidding up price still more.

One may reason that to cut taxes would reduce the number of dollars that the government has and therefore would shrink government spending by the same amount it would increase private spending.

The answer is that it would not shrink government spending since the government does not operate on a cash basis. It always has a deficit, which means that when its cash revenue is insufficient to pay its bills, it simply borrows more dollars and goes right on spending.

Government borrowing from the banking system increases the supply of checkbook money. This is the very engine of inflation. With inflation already devouring us, we should avoid doing anything to increase government borrowing.

I must qualify this answer by admitting that in some cases taxpayers borrow money from their banks to make their tax payments, and that they might not do this borrowing if their tax rates are cut. Private borrowing from commercial banks creates new money just as government borrowing does. Hence, cutting tax rates would not result in increased aggregate borrowing, more money creation and greater inflation.

The weakness in this argument is that few taxpayers borrow money to pay taxes, especially at the high interest rates prevailing today. The U.S. Treasury, on the other hand, is an inveterate borrower. It borrows continually and with little regard to interest rates. Any reduction in its revenue from taxes would be made up, automatically, by increasing borrowing. Only as the government reduces its spending, so that it does not have to borrow so much, can taxes be cut without fueling inflation.

Most Americans do not resent paying per se. They are accustomed, if not inured, to it. But they do resent the high rates.

And to heap insult upon injury, the government, enriched by taxes, lavishes subsidies on a large variety of recipients. For just one example, consider Washington's program of housing assistance. This is the scheme by which the U.S. Treasury pays a large amount of the rent of a good many people, poor and not so poor. The tenant pays his rent so long as it takes not more than 25 percent of his income (and in some cases not over 15 percent) and the government pays the rest.

This program, set up by Congress, began in 1976, in which year it cost the government only $42 million. But like Topsy it has grown. This year it will cost the taxpayers $2 billion; in 1981, $3 billion. It grows because it offers profit to those who will build more housing for "the poor," and builders are rising to the bait.

The rent subsidies promise to burden the taxpayers not only for one year but for 40 years into the future, the government having contracted as much a "landmine buried in the budget," the Wall Street Journal aptly calls this dolo.

This prodigal use of his money, which goes on daily in Washington, does not make the taxpayer happier. It makes tax reduction popular.

It would not be so popular if people realized how it would contribute to inflation.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, April 4, the 95th day of 1980. There are 271 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On April 4, 1968, civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated by a gunman in Memphis, Tenn.

On this date:
In 1581, Queen Elizabeth I knighted Sir Francis Drake.

In 1841, President William Henry Harrison died of pneumonia at the White House, one month after his inauguration. John Tyler became president.

In 1917, the Senate approved a war resolution against Germany by a vote of 81-16.

In 1949, the North Atlantic Treaty is signed in Washington by foreign ministers of 11 countries. It provides for mutual assistance against aggression in the area.

Ten years ago: Thousands of people staged a march in the nation's capital urging victory in Vietnam.

Five years ago: an American Air Force transport taking 243 Vietnamese orphans to the United States crashed and burned shortly after taking off from Saigon. An estimated 200 of the children and adults on board died.

One year ago: The United States joined several other nations in expressing regret at Pakistan's execution of former Prime Minister Ali Bhutto.

Today's birthday: Dance teacher Arthur Murray is 85.

Non-combat women will die

by Paul Harvey

Women will die, anyway. President Carter would prefer to register and draft women alongside men. Congressmen will not even consider drafting their daughters.

But two studies by our Army indicate that women in uniform will be casualties in the first hours of any next war—even if they are restricted to positions presently designated "non-combat."

Even in communications, transportation, administration and maintenance—there will be many women killed or maimed.

While women may be more brave than men about "being killed," they may not, I think, necessarily be braver about being "maimed."

The recent 30,000 person demonstration in Washington against military registration was half and half, men and women.

There is evidence that President Carter's political setbacks—in New York and Connecticut resulted, at least in part, from opposition to military registration.

Sen. Kennedy has pronounced himself "opposed to military registration."

So unpopular is the very idea of conscription that Selective Service officials expect more than half of all selectees will proclaim themselves "conscientious objectors."

The Pied Pipers of war do not have the blind following they formerly enjoyed.

An enlightened generation is convinced that there just has to be some better substitute for oil—than blood.

On a separate but related subject: Even in politics there remains one unpardonable sin.

Not the acceptance of bribes; that remains forgivable. Not the concealment of income; that remains forgivable. Indeed, many professional politicians casually refer to their unofficial collections as "the flower fund" or as "walking-around money."

Constituents will shake hands with their favorite candidate or public official—and pass him twenty or fifty or a hundred dollars cash—and they'll say, "Some walking-around money for you."

The donor expects to be remembered for his generosity. The candidate is expected to use the money for campaign expenses—though many just pocket and spend it.

Indeed, we have come to accept the fact that public officials on a minimal salary mysteriously accumulate lavish estates. This was done more overtly in the days before there was a "net worth law."

L.B.J. got very rich in public office. Yet, forgiving as Americans are of political payola—there remains one unpardonable sin.

Illinois' Attorney General Bill Scott was accused of income tax fraud—five counts. The jury found him innocent on four counts. The ten-man-two-woman jury was willing to believe Bill Scott's explanation for four years—but convicted him for the same crime during the fifth year. Because that fifth year he was accused of using the money to take overseas vacations with "another woman." His peers would go easy on him with his taxes, but not when they thought he cheated on his wife.

Briefly noted

By Don Graff

Howard Hughes' last will and testament may still be eluding his heirs and the revenuers, but there's no possibility of concealing one thing he left behind.

The Spruce Goose.
You remember it. That is the huge, eight-engine flying boat constructed entirely of wood that was a Hughes project of the 1940s.

The largest flying machine conceived up to its time—and for quite a time thereafter—it was to be the prototype of a fleet of transports capable of carrying tanks and troops to the world's distant trouble spots.

After initial enthusiasm, the Pentagon cooled and dropped the project. Hughes, however, continued with his own money—lots of it.

In 1947, with the determined millionaire at the controls, it finally took to the air—a few feet of it above the Long Beach, Calif., harbor, which it skimmed for slightly more than a mile.

That was its test (and only) flight. For more than 20 years it has remained grounded—or watered—in a special hangar. The cost of upkeep has been $1 million a year for the climate-control system alone.

Now the Hughes estate has acknowledged the Spruce Goose to be a white elephant and is disposing of it, donating it to a California museum to be specified.

It has to rank as one of the most costly write-offs of a bad investment in history. But it could have been worse.

The Pentagon could have bought it for all of us.

Mammoth undertaking

Meanwhile, Soviet scientists are concerned not with white elephants but with something from the same general family that may be even more of a problem.

They are trying to regenerate a genuine Ice Age mammoth from cells taken from frozen animals entombed in the Siberian tundra for centuries.

The idea is to isolate quick-frozen cells that still harbor life, wed them with sex cells of contemporary elephants, subject the result to radiation treatment and implant it in a female elephant.

And then wait.
One of nature's miracles may eventually give them a reasonable facsimile of a mammoth.

The process, as described in reports in the Soviet newspaper Trud, leaves several questions unanswered—the major one being why the Soviets or anyone else would want a mammoth these days.

Considering the high cost of pet food along with every other type—and the Soviets now deprived of U.S. grain supplies—that's what you'd call a real white elephant.

Higher and higher

Don't say inflation isn't doing anything for you.

It's raising your net worth—physically. Thanks to the soaring prices of metals and minerals, those that compose the human body are currently up 643 percent from 10 years ago. Back then, the average individual would have gone for 98 cents on the commodities market.

But according to the calculations of Dr. Harry Mosen of the University of Illinois College of Medicine, as reported by the Health Insurance Institute, we're all much more valuable properties now.

So the next time anyone says you're good for nothing, promptly inform him it isn't so. According to Mosen, you're worth $7.28. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

New mortgage would protect home buyers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulators have approved a new kind of mortgage they hope will protect homebuyers from being locked in at record high interest rates for as long as 30 years.

But some consumer groups warn that the renegotiable rate mortgage, or RRM, could spell bad news for homebuyers if interest rates continue to climb.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board voted unanimously Thursday to authorize RRM's, effective immediately. They can be offered by thrift institutions — savings and loans — regulated by the board.

The renegotiable rate mortgages let interest rates be adjusted up or down every three to five years. Rates cannot rise more than 5 percentage points or fall more than 5 percentage points during the life of the loan.

Last year, the board approved another innovation called the variable rate mortgage, which is similar to an RRM but allows interest rates to rise or fall only 2.5 percentage points during the life of a loan.

Variable rate mortgages have not proved particularly popular among lenders because of the smaller range allowed and various other restrictions.

RRMs are the latest in a series of moves by the board to make more mortgage money available and to help shore up the battered savings and loan industry.

The earnings of many thrift institutions are eroding because they must pay constantly higher interest rates to attract deposits, while obtaining a much lower fixed rate on their long-term mortgages, particularly older ones.

Tremors wrack St. Helens

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Ominous tremors again rattled Mount St. Helens, and Gov. Dixy Lee Ray declared a state of emergency around the rumbling, smoking volcano to clear a path in the event of a major eruption, which scientists say is likely.

"Harmonic tremors" twice shook the 9,766-foot peak in southwest Washington Thursday night. Scientists have said the tremors, which first occurred Wednesday, indicated movement of molten rock beneath the mountain that could erupt at any time.

"We do know the magma (molten material) is moving," geophysicist Bob Christiansen of the U.S. Geological Survey said Thursday. "The harmonic tremor makes it seem likely we will go to a magmatic eruption."

"We've always said that was a likely possibility. It seems even more likely now, although not necessarily today or tomorrow. It could be a week or a period of weeks or more."

The governor said from the capital, Olympia, that "the possibility of a major eruption or mudflow is real" and urged sightseers to stay away from the mountain and surrounding areas to keep roads clear. The nearest residents were evacuated when a series of small quakes shook the mountain and it began to belch gas and ash last week.

David Guier, a spokesman for the state Department of Emergency Services, said the emergency declaration served to alert other state agencies to help local officials, if necessary.

Meanwhile, four avalanches rolled down the mountain at the 4,400-foot level, taking some trees with them, said Don Mullineux, a USGS geophysicist from Denver. The avalanches probably were caused by new snow, the quakes and a warming of the mountain, he said.

GALVESTON (AP) — The captain of the freighter Mason Lykes has been charged with negligence by the U.S. Coast Guard following a collision between his ship and an empty tanker in Galveston Bay.

Lt. Ann Bennet, a member of the Coast Guard team investigating the collision, said Thursday the charge had been filed against Capt. H.G. Guice of New Orleans, skipper of the 540-foot freighter, owned by Lykes Shipping Co.

She said Guice was charged because he "failed to navigate with due caution," and because the captain failed to take several steps to prevent the collision between his ship and the 789-foot tanker, Amoco Cremona.

Lt. Bennet added that the charges did not mean the captain or crew of the Liberian-registered tanker were blameless.

Because the ship is registered in Liberia and the accident occurred in international waters, charges cannot be filed against the tanker.

A representative of the Libyan government also has been investigating the accident. The two ships collided about early Wednesday in heavy fog as the freighter was inbound for Galveston.

Lt. Bennet said apparently the freighter captain thought he was making a right side to right side pass, while the tanker captain steered for a left side to left side pass.

Coast Guard investigators said the ships had spotted each other on radar, but made no radio contact.

After the collision, the 34 crew members aboard the Cremona abandoned ship when the vessel caught fire. One man sustained minor injuries.

The freighter also caught fire, but its crew was able to douse the blaze. The crew of the Cremona returned to their ship late Wednesday.

Guice was charged after his ship ported Thursday in Galveston. The Cremona remained at sea Thursday night, a deck-to-wateline 10-foot gash in its side.

No decision has been made as to where the ship will be taken for repairs.

Lt. Bennet said an administrative law judge has scheduled a hearing for Guice, who could lose his seaman's license if found guilty, Wednesday at 10:30 a.m.

The collision was the 18th such mishap since January 1979.

Chemical contained; people return home

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (AP) — Bulldozers plowed dirt and sand into a pit holding 6,000 gallons of corrosive chemical, and an estimated 17,000 persons began returning early today to the homes they fled when a train accident cracked open a tanker car filled with acid.

The burial was designed to keep the chemical's toxic fumes from escaping into the atmosphere and to assure the safety of the eight-square-block neighborhood that was virtually emptied of population Thursday morning.

State environmental officials were monitoring the neighborhood for any hazardous after-effects, and city employees were checking the sewerage system for traces of the chemical.

An investigation by the National Transportation Safety Board was underway. The agency said it was too early to comment on the cause, but Somerville Mayor Eugene Brune said the trains were "in the wrong place," and blamed an engineer for moving his train without authority.

Somerville officials warned people who were in the area to take showers and wash their clothes to avoid continuing irritation.

Police trap burglars

LAYTON, Utah (AP) — Two gunmen apparently looking for drugs were trapped by police inside a drugstore, where they took six persons hostage and held three of them captive throughout the night, authorities said today.

Officers from a half-dozen northern Utah police departments surrounded Kowley's Drug Store and sealed off nearby streets in this city north of Salt Lake City. A police sharpshooter was stationed on the roof across the street.

Bethel Assembly of God

The John K. Pratt Family from Slaton will be conducting revival services April 6 through 16 at Bethel Assembly of God, Hamilton and Worrell Streets.

Services will begin each evening at 7:30 p.m. Pam Pratt will have a presentation with one of her puppet friends, followed by a special singing and evangelistic message.

Later in the week, Lafern Pratt will give her inspiring personal testimony concerning how she was healed, through divine power, of multiple sclerosis after doctors in Amarillo had given her up to die of the dread disease.

Rev. Pratt and his family have made guest appearances on television and in school assemblies.

Pastor Paul DeWolfe cordially invites all people of all faiths to attend this revival.

Religion today

By GEORGE W. CORNELL AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In a time of religious oppressions in many lands, of terrorist assaults, seizures of hostages and captivities, Judaism is celebrating humanity's first bid for freedom and God's confirmation of it.

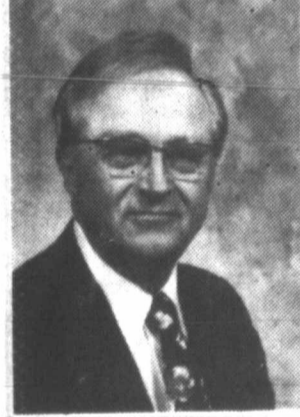

The struggle for those biblically affirmed human rights still goes on as Jews around the world observe Passover, the season of liberation, considered as vital now as of old.

Harvester-Mary Ellen Church of Christ

The Church of Christ, Mary Ellen at Harvester, invites all former members of the congregation to a Homecoming Sunday, April 20. This will also be the first day of the Gospel Meeting with Guy V. Caskey, that will close on April 23.

Caskey was the regular preacher for the Church of Christ, East Francis at Warren, from 1942 to 1945, and for the Mary Ellen Harvester Church of Christ from 1962 to 1967. He has been actively engaged in the mission work at the Tanzania Preacher's School in Tanzania, East Africa, and the School of Preaching in Kingston, Jamaica. He is currently the preacher for the Randol Mill Church of Christ in Arlington, Texas.

Observing Easter

"Jesus said, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." John 11:25.

Easter, the day on which we celebrate the resurrection of our Lord, should find us worshipping Him in His Church. He is alive! His presence fills the sanctuary! All things are made new. It is the time of beginning again. Attend church and join your neighbors in singing praises to God for His Glory and Power and Love; and some of this Resurrection Joy and Power will come to you.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

BARRY TERRELL of Pampa shot a 76 to take medalist honors yesterday in the first round of the District 3-AAAA golf tournament in Amarillo. Terrell, a senior, shot consecutive 38s. (Staff Photo)

Pampa golfers take third in first-round loop play

Pampa, led by medalist Barry Terrell, carded a 330 to trail Amarillo's varsity and junior varsity teams after the first round of the District 3-AAAA boys' golf tournament Thursday at Amarillo Public Course.

The Sandies fired a 314 while their B team came in with a 319. The Harvesters could have finished closer to the leaders, but seven strokes were shaved off their score when James White was disqualified for signing an incorrect scorecard.

Amarillo High's No. 1 player, Trent Bass, was also disqualified, but the consistent play of each Sandie player picked him up. Bass was disqualified for practice putting on several greens before holing out.

"It was unfortunate, but it something that wasn't done intentionally," Pampa coach Deck Woldt said of White's infraction on the final hole when he tapped the ball away while it was lying two inches from the cup.

"The way I understand it was that one of the kids had told him 'that was good' after White had knocked the ball up near the cup, which apparently meant it was all right for him to pick up the ball. White knocked the ball away from the hole and other players in the group reported it to the scorer's table."

According to USGA rules every ball must be holed out in medal competition, no matter how close it is to the pin.

Terrell shot a 76 (38-38) to give him a one-stroke lead over Amarillo High's Scott Tow and Lance Poole for medalist honors. Terrell was district medalist runnerup a year ago.

Bob Phillips had Pampa's next lowest score with an 81 despite a pulled muscle in his shoulder that forced him to cut down on his swing. Paul Beck followed with an 82 while White's 84 had to be discarded in favor of Gary Cudney's 91.

Pampa's B teamers, using a four-player lineup, were fifth with a 374. Their fifth man, Lance DeFever, broke a finger two weeks ago. Kenny Martin's 87 topped Pampa JVs. Jeff Hanson had a 89, Dennis Mashburn, 92, and Steve Shepherd, 106.

Other team standings were Tascosa, fourth, 332; Palo Duro, sixth, 375; Caprock, seventh, 376; Tascosa B, eighth, 403, and Caprock B, ninth, 455.

Despite the bad luck Woldt isn't counting his Harvesters out, mainly because the site of the second-half district tournament is Pampa Country Club.

"We're going to have play two or three shots better per man, but we normally do pretty good on our own course," Woldt said. "Barry is very consistent here."

Woldt said the goal of the seniors—Terrell, Phillips, Beck, White—is to advance to the regionals this year.

"Only the top two teams in district can go and we're 11 shots out of second, so it's going to be a pretty tough chore even on our own course," Woldt added.

The final 18 holes are scheduled for April 18 at Pampa CC.

Title fight Sunday

HOUSTON (AP) — Harold Volbrecht will be seen on national television Sunday when he tries to take away Pipino Cuevas' World Boxing Association welterweight title — but today he is almost a forgotten man.

That's because many of the questions asked the champion involve his next title defense, reportedly against World Boxing Council champion Sugar Ray Leonard.

Volbrecht, the South African welterweight champion and No. 5-ranked WBA contender, is not offended by all the talk of a Cuevas-Leonard fight. In fact, he likes it.

"I think he may be taking me too lightly," the quiet South African said.

Willie Lock, Volbrecht's manager-trainer, agrees. "The lighter he takes Harold, the bigger shock he'll get," Lock said.

Cuevas, who goes into his 11th title defense with a 26-5 record, says he didn't get to be champion by taking his fights lightly.

"I look at my fights one at a time," Cuevas said. "I want to fight Leonard after this fight but I am not looking past this fight. The press has been doing the talking about the Leonard fight. I don't talk about it unless they ask me a question."

"I don't consider this a tune-up fight. It is a title defense like all the rest. When this one is over I'll be ready to talk about Leonard."

Cuevas said he didn't know anything about the challenger's style, other than he was left-handed, but it didn't matter.

Harvesters stunned by Caprock

AMARILLO—Pampa's District 3-AAAA opener against Amarillo Caprock yesterday was like a bad dream in the middle of the afternoon.

When the Harvesters woke up, Caprock had notched a 19-5 victory with a 21-hit attack to hand the defending district champions their eighth loss against six victories.

Pampa started off fast by scoring four runs in the first inning and another in the second to take a 5-2 lead after three frames. The Harvesters launched a 13-hit assault, but didn't get a runner past second base the final four frames.

Leading Pampa hitters were Andy Richardson, Mark Jennings, Monte Covalt, and Greg Quarles with two hits apiece. Steve McDougall, Keenan Henderson, Clyde Coffee, Joe Jeffers, and Clay Coffee had one hit each.

Sid Felton and Ledke paced the winners with four hits each. Caprock's big innings were the fifth and sixth when 15 runs crossed the plate.

Pampa used three pitchers to try and stem the Caprock tide with Andy Richardson receiving the loss. It dropped his record to 2-3.

Pampa continues district play against Amarillo Tascosa at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Optimist Park.

Gymnastics school may close

MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — Grossfeld's School of Gymnastics, one of the more prestigious training centers for aspiring Olympic gymnasts, probably will phase out its training program for girls because of the U.S. Olympic boycott, officials say.

The school has decided to scale down and probably eventually eliminate the 25-girl training program because of difficulty in soliciting funds from U.S. businesses that normally support participation in the Olympics, business manager George Ward said Thursday.

The 15-year-old school, owned and directed by past Olympian Muriel Grossfeld, draws girls from throughout the country for its American Gold Elite Training Program. Although girls participate in other national and world events, "our basic aim is to take talented girls all the way to the Olympics," Ward said.

Sonics try to eliminate Portland tonight

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

How effective is Seattle's pressure defense?

Coach Lenny Wilkens feels it helped the Sonics win the National Basketball Association championship last year, and also helped them beat Portland in the opening game of the playoffs in defense of that title Wednesday night.

But Jack Ramsay, coach of the Portland Trail Blazers, remains confident his team can cope with Seattle's pressure tonight when the teams meet in Portland in the second game of the best-of-three miniseries.

"Against their press, we should score every time," said Ramsay. "It comes down to very basic things, like passing before we're ready to receive the pass or passing to where a person was maybe a half-count before."

Not doing those basics has brought the Blazers to the brink of elimination from the playoffs, whose field would be cut from 12 teams to eight if all the visiting teams win. In tonight's other first-round games, it's Phoenix at Kansas City, Houston at San Antonio and Philadelphia at Washington.

"Portland never has been a good ball-handling club," said Wilkens. "We will utilize the press again tonight, possibly a little more."

"Defense — that's how we really built the lead," said guard Gus Williams, who scored 35 points as Seattle raced to a 19-point third-quarter margin and then held off the Blazers 120-110 in the series opener.

"The full-court press got us some points. It got them out of their game a little."

The Sonics' pressure defense helped their guards account for 75 points against Portland, but Ramsay was more concerned by Seattle's 59-42 edge off the boards and ability to get inside.

"The primary thing we must improve is our rebounding," Ramsay said. "We didn't stop their penetration well, either. We let people get to the basket area."

Portland put on a late comeback, trimming a 19-point deficit to four before bowing to the Sonics. "It was kind of frightening when they came back and got the momentum," said Seattle forward Paul Silas.

Phoenix Coach John MacLeod felt the same way as he watched the Kansas City Kings put on a 17-3 spurt in the final four minutes before bowing 96-93. Kings guard Otis Birdsong felt his team was going to pull out the victory.

"We didn't think we were out of it," said Birdsong, who finished with 23 points after shooting just 2-for-12 in the first half. "I knew we could hang in there because of our defense. We were shooting so lousy, you knew we were going to start getting them to fall in."

Gymnast honored

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — This year's Nissen Award for the nation's outstanding senior college gymnast has gone to Mario McCutcheon of Southern Connecticut State College.

Southern Connecticut Coach Abie Grossfeld also received the special service award Wednesday night from the National Association of Collegiate Gymnastics Coaches at the University of Nebraska.

McCutcheon is the fourth SCSC gymnast, all trained by Grossfeld, to win a Nissen Award. John Crosby won it in 1973, Jay Whelan in 1975 and Peter Kormann in 1977.

He's among the top contenders for the NCAA all-around title this week at the University of Nebraska.

NBC may lose Olympics

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

If there is a Summer Olympics, if members of the United States team go and if NBC televises it, producer Ginny Seipt will have something to show for nearly three years of work.

As it looks now, the Moscow Games will survive without American athletes and — almost certainly — without NBC. So much of Seipt's pieces as NBC Sports' senior features producer will never see the light of day.

NBC will recover around 85 percent of the $61 million it has already paid to the International Olympic Committee and the Moscow organizers through an insurance policy. In all, between $10-15 million will not be recoverable. But who can relate to that kind of money anyway? Besides, NBC is a giant corporation: it will manage. Does anyone expect Fred Silverman to start taking a bus instead of his limousine to work?

But what the public can understand is Seipt's sense of loss. "I'll miss people saying 'Was that your piece? That was terrific,'" said Seipt. "I get my kicks from that. My pieces don't produce ratings."

In August of 1977, Don Ohlmeyer, executive producer of NBC Sports, assigned Seipt to spearhead the Olympic features project. Her job was to give NBC a reservoir of profiles, the kind ABC calls "Up Close and Personal."

These short pieces complement the Games coverage of winners and losers. They're insightful and provide the human touch. It's always nice to be shown that the athlete who just performed like Superman is really a homebody who has nothing to fear from Kryptonite.

Seipt and other NBC producers were in the process of editing 150 profiles, history

Orioles favored in AL East

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

As usual, the Baltimore Orioles lost another free agent (relief ace Don Stanhouse) and the New York Yankees signed some (first baseman Bob Watson, pitcher Rudy May). Also as usual, the Yankees fired Manager Billy Martin.

But neither the Orioles, the defending American League champions, nor the Yankees, who won the pennant the previous three years, is a cinch in the competitive East Division, which features four managers starting their first full seasons and another, Milwaukee's George Bamberger, on the sidelines after heart surgery.

Of the other contenders, Milwaukee's runnerup Brewers stood pat, the third-place Boston Red Sox lost Watson to the Yankees but added free agent first baseman Tony Perez from Montreal and reliever Skip Lockwood from the New York Mets, and the Detroit Tigers dealt center fielder Ron LeFlore to Montreal to make room for former Michigan State All-American footballer Kirk Gibson.

"Because we have such a young and strong nucleus," says Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, "we will have to make very few personnel changes from a year ago."

Weaver's main chore will be grooming a reliever to replace Stanhouse, who took his 21 saves to the Los Angeles Dodgers as a free agent. The top candidate is 6-foot-7 Tim Stoddard, a right-hander, and a former North Carolina State basketball star. The left-handed reliever is Tippy Martinez.

The Orioles' staff led the league in earned run average and boasts five solid starters in Cy Young Award winner Mike Flanagan, Jim Palmer (he has won three Cy Young Awards), Scott McGregor, Dennis Martinez and Steve Stone. But arm injuries limited Palmer to 10 victories last season and have plagued Dennis Martinez this spring.

Rick Dempsey and Dave Skaggs are the catchers, and the infield again consists of Eddie Murray (1B), Rich Dauer (2B), Mark Belanger and Kiko Garcia at short and Doug DeCinces (3B). In the outfield are Gary Roenicke, Al Bumbry and Ken Singleton. Lee May,

John Lowenstein and Terry Crowley will be the chief designated hitters.

The second-place Brewers finished eight games behind the Orioles. A healthy DH Larry Hise, who was limited to 26 games by a shoulder injury, could make up some of the deficit, but the Brewers must get better relief work from a bullpen that has plenty of people but no standout. The starters — Mike Caldwell, Lary Sorensen, Bill Travers, Jim Slaton, Moose Haas — are solid, if unspectacular.

The lineup, even without Hise, is loaded with power, especially first baseman Cecil Cooper, third baseman Sal Bando, all-purpose Don Money and the outfield of Ben Oglivie, Gorman Thomas (the league-leader with 45 home runs) and Sixto Lezcano. Robin Yount (SS) and Paul Molitor (2B) form a young and talented double play combination, and Charlie Moore and Buck Martinez handle the catching.

The key to Milwaukee's season may be how long the popular Bamberger is sidelined.

With Bill Campbell disabled again, the Red Sox have added bullpen help (Lockwood joins Dick Drago and Tom Burgmeier) and power — Perez and 40-year-old Carl Yastrzemski will split the 1B-DH chores and play long-ball with third baseman Butch Hobson and an outfield of Jim Rice, Fred Lynn and Dwight Evans. Rick Burleson (SS) and Jerry Remy (2B) are slick up the middle, but the starting pitching is thin behind Dennis Eckersley, Mike Torrez and Bob Stanley.

And then there is Carlton Fisk. If his ailing elbow doesn't permit him to catch, the Red Sox are in big trouble. Behind him is young Gary Allenson. Says Manager Don Zimmer, "If Fisk can catch and play 125 games I'd swim the ocean."

The Yankees have lots of new faces, starting with Manager Dick Howser, the former third base coach, who was brought in after a year of college coaching when Martin was fired in October.

The Yankees also lost their real leader, catcher Thurman Munson, in a plane crash last year. The new backstop is Rick Cerone, who came in a trade with Toronto, as did pitcher Tom Underwood. Other newcomers include free agent first baseman-DH

Watson from Boston, center fielder Ruppert Jones from Seattle, veteran lefty May from Montreal and backup third baseman Eric Soderholm from Texas.

Howser also has Reggie Jackson in right, Jim Spencer at first, Graig Nettles at third, Willie Randolph at second, Bucky Dent at short and a pitching staff led by Ron Guidry and Tommy John, with Goose Gossage in the bullpen.

Sparky Anderson works his managerial magic for Detroit now. The Tigers are even younger than last year, with Gibson and Dave Stegman platooning in center. Another key is new third baseman Richie Hebner.

Lance Parrish is set behind the plate, as are Jason Thompson at first, Lou Whitaker at second, Alan Trammell at short and Steve Kemp in left. The pitching staff, however, has too many holes behind starters Jack Morris and Dan Schatzeder and relief ace Aurelio Lopez.

The Cleveland Indians beefed up their pitching by trading for John Denny from St. Louis — they gave up Bobby Bonds — and Bob Ovwchinko from San Diego. They join Rick Waits in the rotation, with Sid Monge in the bullpen. It won't be enough.

For the Indians to move up, Manager Dave Garcia must get big years from Andre Thornton (1B), Duane Kuiper (2B), Tom Veryzer or rookie Jerry Dybzinski at short and Toby Harrah (3B), along with outfielders Mike Hargrove and Rick Manning.

The Toronto Blue Jays have a new manager, 64-year-old Bobby Mattick. He may be 74 next year. The pitching is mediocre, to put it mildly, although Joey McLaughlin, acquired from Atlanta, should help the bullpen.

In their first three seasons, the Blue Jays never finished closer than 40 games out. This year may be no different, despite the presence of the AL's 1979 co-Rookie of the Year, shortstop Alfredo Griffin. First baseman John Mayberry, third baseman-DH Roy Howell and left fielder Otto Velez supply some power.

Prediction: Baltimore, New York, Milwaukee, Boston, Detroit, Cleveland, Toronto.
Next: American League West.

Boycott foes make Russians happy

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

As winter turns to spring and the sun moves higher in the sky, dissidents, like termites, are gnawing away at President Carter's resolve that there be a boycott of the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

A ranking member of the U.S. Olympic Committee reports a deterioration of support among the men who must make the final decision.

Some athletes, not all, have drawn up a petition beseeching the President to change his mind. Almost daily, some Olympic figure surfaces with a statement criticizing Carter's possessive stand. Even the president of the USOC, Robert Kane, an honorable man, has given an interview reeking with equivocation.

Meanwhile, the ruling sports federations of the NATO nations, meeting in Europe, detecting frays in American determination, joined the chorus. "On to Moscow."

By July, Uncle Sam may find himself up the pole all alone, swinging in the wind.

What a pity. One can just imagine, across the expanse of oceans, the bemused smiles of the USSR's politicos as they gloat over the latest show of Yankee lack of steel in a crisis.

It wasn't that way at first. At the first threat of a boycott following the Soviet invasion of neighboring Afghanistan, the Russians were alarmed. They were on the verge of panic.

Not that they were concerned over the money and effort spent in preparations. For the Russians, the Olympics, the first behind the Iron Curtain, were to be their propaganda coup of the age — a chance to exploit Communism in its brightest light. They didn't want to blow it.

Make no mistake about it. If you want to strike back at the Russians, short of war, there is no more effective shot than the Olympic boycott. More than wheat, more than small engine parts, more than agreeing to SALT II, it's their solar plexus.

The two things the Russians glorify are sports and science — "Mind and Body" — as they say in the signs on the hotel walls. They are proudest — and well they might be — of their cosmonauts and their athletic heroes.

With the boycott, the United States had a weapon to show the Russians — and the world — there is hypocrisy in playing games and promoting good will among men in the front yard while shooting and pillaging neighbors in the back.

The U.S. effort to condemn such an exercise in international deceit was blunted by its own Olympic brass. The responsibility for the present dilemma rests solely at the feet of the USOC.

When Carter called for the boycott, the entire country and virtually all of Congress rallied behind him enthusiastically. Overseas, the NATO nations, with West Germany in the forefront, were ready to fall in line. Boycotters were expected to number between thirty and fifty countries.

All the USOC had to do was take a strong stand behind the President. It didn't. It pussy-footed. It procrastinated. It gave the world a lesson in double-talk. The news conferences at Lake Placid to explain the USOC position were ludicrous.

"We support the President, but..."

"Our first obligation is to the athletes, but..."

"We must wait for the House of Delegates to act on it in April."

"The deadline for entry is not until May 24."

Such indecision proved contagious. Supporting countries started looking for escape hatches. Sentiment in our own country began to take on a marshmallow fiber instead of that of iron.

In a situation of such import, the USOC could — and should — have acted immediately. Then there would have been no doubt. The interests of the whole country, and maybe the world, would have been served at the cost of the interests of a few.

Farmers Union president seeks meeting with Carter

DENVER (AP) — Farmers and ranchers cannot pay current interest rates, some cannot get capital and an "agricultural credit crisis meeting" should be held, a farmers' spokesman said in a letter to President Carter.

The letter by George Stone, who was elected president of the 300,000-member National Farmers Union on March 26, said emergency economic action is needed. He said high interest rates are hitting farmers and ranchers particularly hard because they cannot pass on the increases to wholesalers or consumers.

A rollback in interest rates for agriculture, food, housing and small business should be declared by the president, Stone said.

"I am receiving telephone calls every day from farmers and ranchers who are in a desperate situation," Stone's letter said.

Youth held in death of policeman

DECATUR (AP) — A Mineral Wells teen-ager was ordered held without bond in the death of a city police officer, shot to death, when he stopped a suspected stolen car, deputies said.

Hijinio Veloz Jr., 17, of Mineral Wells, was arrested two hours after officer James Bennett was shot through the neck with a rifle, officers said.

Bennett had stopped a car on the outskirts of Decatur about 9 a.m. Thursday, said a Wise County sheriff's officer, because he thought he recognized it as one reported stolen earlier.

Attorney refuses questioning

DALLAS (AP) — Police say the husband of a woman slain by a strangler who scrawled a bizarre message in lipstick has stalled their investigation by refusing to discuss the case with investigators.

"I've made numerous attempts in the past two days to contact the husband about his wife's habits and personal possessions, but have had no luck in talking with him," said Sgt. Bill Parker of the homicide investigations division.

Don D. Martinson, 32, a Dallas attorney, told police earlier he found the body of his 28-year-old wife, Debra, in their fashionable North Dallas home Monday. On a bedroom mirror near where the nude body was found, a message written in pale rose lipstick read, "Now we are even Don."

Parker said Martinson is not a suspect in the slaying. "I have no information that would lead us in any way to him as a suspect. I just haven't been able to talk with him," said Parker.

Martinson phoned police Monday night and had a brief interview with investigators. However, Parker said since then Maingo declined to talk to officers "on the advice of his attorney."

Martinson's refusal has temporarily stalled the investigation, said Parker, who added that detectives would stay on the case.

Martinson's lawyer and a fellow partner in a Dallas law firm, Robert A. Fanning, said, "Don is in no condition to talk. It's just not the time. I've been trying to get the information together that they might want."

In the original police report, Martinson said he found the body in the bedroom. He said a macrame plant hanger was draped around her neck. The couple's 15-month-old son was in another room in a baby bed, crying.

An autopsy report showed the woman died of strangulation and had been dead four to eight hours. It was not determined whether she had been sexually assaulted.

Police found no evidence of forced entry into the split-level $200,000 brick home, and Martinson said there appeared to be no items stolen.

San Antonio schools investigation delayed

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A legislative committee has delayed deciding whether to look into allegations of misuse of public funds at San Antonio College and in the San Antonio Independent School District.

Chairman Richard Slack of the House General Investigating said Thursday no decision should be made until after Saturday school board elections, "so under no circumstances can we be accused of engaging in any kind of political involvement."

"We can destroy innocent people inadvertently if we are not cautious," warned Slack, D-Pecos. "We must make haste cautiously and carefully."

Slack also discouraged a vote on the matter until more members of the five-man committee could be present. The two other members who showed up for the Thursday session agreed with Slack.

The chairman said he favors having the committee staff look into the situation and report back to the committee.

Rep. Ron Bird, D-San Antonio, said two maintenance workers at the junior college have been convicted in connection with the allegations. He said the committee might be able to get additional information from persons who did not want to appear before a grand jury.

Bird, not a member of the committee, spoke of several allegations at the college.
