Happy Mother's Day!

MOTHER'S DAY

"Men are what their mothers made them."
-- Ralph Waldo Emerson

Brother honored on Mother's Day

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP) — Maybe on this Mother's Day, and again on Father's Day, Danny Mya should be among those honored. It isn't easy taking care of two younger brothers and a younger sister when you're only 18 years old and just a junior in high school.

A judge appointed Danny legal guardian of his two brothers, John, 16, and Sam, 15, and his sister, Sandra, 14, after their mother was found drowned in the Ohio River six weeks ago.

Adena Mya was divorced in her native Burma before she brought the four children to the United States in 1975, seeking a better job for herself and a better education for them.

The family moved to West Virginia from Des Moines, Iowa, two years ago. They lived in Charleston for a time, then moved to Huntington and rented a small house. Mrs. Mya, 47, took a job at a hospital.

Danny says her death will haunt the family the rest of their lives.

He is uncomfortable talking about it, his head cast downward. "I try to forget but I can't. It's the worst thing that ever happened. She would get so scared. I don't know what she was afraid of. Mom had a nervous breakdown."

Danny told his brothers and sister in their grief. "That's the life you've got to live. We can't be miserable all our lives. We've got to do something ourselves."

Like most parents, Danny listens to the problems of his brothers and sister.

"I tell them whether they're right or wrong. They listen to what I say, as the older person. We always respect the older person. That is a tradition in our country."

"It's a big responsibility. I just have to hang in there until Sandra turns 18. I don't want my little brothers and sister taken away to live separately till they turn 18."

"I love them."

It began as a pleasure drive, but ended inches from death

EDITOR'S NOTE — The picture was displayed across the nation. A car stood inches from the edge of pavement sagging precariously toward the gaping hole left when a ship rammed the Sunshine Skyway Bridge in a storm, knocking loose part of the roadway. Anthony Gattuso was one of four people in the car, which was traveling behind the Greyhound bus that plunged into Tampa Bay. Here is his first-person account as told to Associated Press Writer Matt Bokor.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — I was just along for the ride. I'm 61 years old and retired from the Pinellas County sheriff's office and I've got a lot of time on my hands. Sometimes you can only work so much in the yard.

My friend, Dick Hornbuckle, goes out and delivers cars. I go along for the ride. This was a way for me to get out of the house. It would kind of break up the day for me — riding to different parts of the state. Sebring, Sarasota, Bradenton. The rides were nice.

I'd only been with him a few times, and it had always been an enjoyable experience.

As we approached the peak of the bridge, the bus and another vehicle passed us.

We weren't going more than 20 to 25 miles an hour tops, and I don't even know if Dick was going that fast.

Then the bridge started shaking and buckling.

Dick slammed on the brakes and we slid and slid. I don't know how far. He hollered "Oh my God, oh my God." We stopped and we all opened the doors at once.

I looked ahead, and Dick said, "Where's the bus?" I saw the bridge was gone. There was no bus.

Everybody hopped out of the car. There was a hard blowing wind, like a hurricane. The rain was torrential. It was dark.

I said, "Let's get out of here." I didn't know what happened. I didn't know if the wind had blown the bridge over or what.

We scrambled back up the bridge. It was slippery. Several times I was on all fours. I slipped. I had leather or hard-rubber soles on my shoes. They were very slick. I had a problem climbing up and getting out of there.

I was anxious to get away from it, and we had to stop the traffic. We waved our arms frantically. We screamed.

All I was thinking about were the cars that were coming. I really wasn't thinking about myself at all. I didn't even think about my heart condition.

I thought about it afterwards though, and now I'm glad I didn't think about it then because if I did I might not be here talking today.

We got one car to turn around sideways so that other cars couldn't get by. The driver got out and looked ahead, then turned around and said, "To hell with my car."

He didn't even stop to take his keys, he had been kind of skeptical but he wasn't any more. He ran down the bridge.

Judge prohibits Wall Street Journal from printing story

DALLAS (AP) — A state judge has issued a temporary restraining order telling the Wall Street Journal it cannot publish an article on Tuesday as the newspaper had planned.

The article concerns a Dallas law firm's internal investigation of the OKC Corp., a publicly owned oil and cement company.

State District Judge Joe Fish granted OKC its request for the temporary restraining order Friday, telling the Journal it must hold publication of the article at least until after a hearing next Friday on the merits of the case.

The Wall Street Journal denounced the ruling but declined to say whether it would comply.

The yet-to-be-published story concerns an investigation of OKC by the Dallas law firm of Locke, Purnell, Boren, Laney and Neely. OKC claims the Journal "wrongfully obtained" the law firm's report.

Frederick Taylor, executive editor of the Wall Street Journal, called Fish's ruling "obviously a case of prior restraint. Any newspaper is against prior restraint. We just can't take that sort of thing lying down."

However, Taylor declined to discuss what legal action would be taken or whether the newspaper would obey the judge's order.

"I can't answer that. We're obviously in a tricky situation," he said.

Fish said he signed the order after OKC attorneys told him the newspaper had researched the story over a long period of time.

"As I understood it, the paper planned to publish the story on Tuesday, so the only restraint would be delay of publication for four days. I didn't think the Wall Street Journal would be harmed by withholding it for four days," the judge said. Fish acknowledged he "didn't have time to exhaustively research the law."

The judge apparently has not read the article because the Journal was not represented at the hearing and did not know of the action until the order was served, lawyer Robert Sack, representing the Journal, said Saturday. He said he would decide on Sunday what legal action he would take.

Publication of the article Tuesday would coincide with a special stockholders' meeting called to vote on a proposal to dissolve the corporation, a move announced in July 1979.

The Dallas-based corporation, under investigation by the U.S. Securities & Exchange Commission, claimed irreparable damage would occur if the nationally circulated newspaper published the story.

OKC's directors commissioned the law firm to conduct an investigation of the company's financial transactions and its chairman, former Detroit Lions football player Cloyce Box.

The report has previously been quoted in several Texas publications. According to these published reports, the law firm said it found OKC's brokers were friends, relatives, former OKC employees of longtime business associates who were generally low on capital and lacked experience selling oil.

One former OKC sales manager, David Onby, told investigators of several transactions that benefitted the "friendly brokers" at the expense of OKC shareholders.

Chrysler gets $1.5 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government approved $1.5 billion in loan guarantees Saturday for the financially plagued Chrysler Corp. after the automaker secured private financial backing needed for the federal package.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller said if the plan were not approved, the nation's third largest automobile manufacturer would have exhausted its funds by the end of this month and "would have found itself unable to continue."

Under the plan, Chrysler will be able to draw up to $500 million in loan guarantees beginning in 2½ weeks. Approval of the plan by the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board followed an agreement earlier Saturday between Chrysler and the Canadian government on a separate loan support program.

That agreement allowed the company to put together a $1.43 billion private financing package.

Miller, chairman of the federal loan board, said despite the government assistance, Chrysler would probably lose about $1 billion this year, about the same as it lost last year.

But the Treasury secretary said with the loan guarantees, which will allow the company to obtain additional financing, Chrysler is expected to begin making a profit in 1982.

"We're now at a point where Chrysler can turn more of its attention to producing automobiles," Miller said at a news conference.

An essential part of the Chrysler plan for recovery, he said, is increased production of small, fuel-efficient automobiles. He said Chrysler, with the federal aid, will be able to produce 400,000 such cars this year and 900,000 next year.

"It's imperative that these small, efficient cars be available for the market and it's important that they be produced in this country," Miller said.

Approval of the plan by the federal loan board followed months of searching by Chrysler for private financial backing, including assistance in the form of a smaller loan guarantee package from the Canadian government. Such private backing was required by law under the U.S. loan guarantee plan.

Miller called the Chrysler financing program "one of the most complex financial arrangements that we've ever seen in this country." He said it involved 300 lending institutions, two states and the governments of Canada and Ontario province.

Canada's approval of its loan guarantee plan, announced earlier in Ottawa, was essential because the U.S. law required some government loan guarantees other than the U.S. federal government, Miller said.

Chrysler Chairman Lee A. Iacocca flew from Washington to Toronto late Friday to meet with Canadian officials in negotiations which lasted late into the night and continued Saturday.

Chrysler came to the Carter administration last September asking for $1.2 billion in federal loan guarantees because of soaring losses which totaled more than $1 billion in 1979.

Death toll mounts

Sharks cause divers to halt search

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Divers shadowed by sharks attracted by blood called off their search for victims of the Sunshine Skyway bridge collapse late Saturday and said they'd try to lift the wreckage with salvage barges. At least 30 people died in the accident.

"We made the decision to use the barges because of the dangerous situation with the vehicles twisted up," said Hillsborough County Sheriff Walter Heinrich.

"It's not just a matter of going in to get the victims out, some of them apparently are twisted in the steel," the sheriff said.

He said divers may have to cut the vehicles apart before they're lifted to the surface.

The Coast Guard, meanwhile, announced that the pilot who was steering the ship that hit the bridge Friday had been the pilot aboard another ship when it hit the structure in March.

Divers discovered the bumper of a car that was not among the three known to have plunged into Tampa Bay on Friday, but authorities said they were not sure how long the bumper had been in the water.

The discovery of the bumper fueled fears of a rising death toll from the accident that occurred when a Liberian-registered phosphate ship knocked out 1,400 feet of the bridge's southbound span in a blinding storm during the morning rush hour. A Greyhound bus with 23 people aboard, three cars, and a pickup truck were known to have plummeted 140 feet into the murky green waters.

Coast Guard officials said they were worried there were more vehicles trapped 50 feet below the surface under the tangled wreckage, but they said divers had found it impossible to tell how many fell through the gaping hole.

Eighteen bodies — seven men, 10 women and an infant girl — had been recovered by midday Saturday and taken to the Hillsborough County medical examiner's office in nearby Tampa. Dr. Peter Lardizabal said autopsies showed the victims suffered extensive impact injuries.

"I tried not to look at their faces," diver Mike Rossetel said of the scene he found in the bus, which was upside down, perched on chunks of concrete and twisted metal. "Judging from the condition of the bodies, I would say most of them died on impact."

Coast Guard officials said blood from the bodies had attracted several sharks to the area, but they said the sharks had not caused any problems.

The 606-foot Summit Venture, a 34,000-ton bulk carrier, sustained extensive damage when a large chunk of roadway from the 15-mile-long bridge fell onto the vessel's bow. The ship was towed by tugboats Saturday to Egmont Key, four miles west of the crash, with its Chinese crew of 35 still aboard.

The wreckage of steel and concrete blocked busy Tampa Bay, bottling up 30 ships in Tampa port. Officials said the port averages 20 ships in or out each day. The bridge, designed with twin-spans to connect St. Petersburg with Terra Ceia, has been closed to all traffic indefinitely, forcing people to drive around the bay to get to the lower Florida west coast.

It was the third time the bridge had been rammed this year. Coast Guard officials said pilot John Lerro, who was steering the Summit Venture, also was at the helm when the 720-foot Liberian freighter Jonna Dan slammed into the bridge on March 8, causing $40,000 damage to the structure.

Republicans oppose profits tax, while Democrats boost Jimmy

BY SHEILA M. ECCLES
Of The Pampa News

Gray County Republicans voted to repeal the windfall profits tax, and Gray County Democrats gave 66 percent of the delegates to President Jimmy Carter during the two parties' county conventions Saturday.

"Republicans will be resolved to work for the repeal of the so-called windfall profits tax on oil and are committed to do everything possible to prevent the spread of similar taxes."

The resolution against the windfall profits tax was properly adopted by the attending delegates to the Republican County Convention held Saturday in Pampa.

Judge Carl Kennedy appeared as the keynote speaker for the County Convention.

Other resolutions discussed and adopted by the resolution committee included:

RIGHT-TO-WORK LAW - That the Texas Right-To-Work Law has provided that any individual should have the freedom to work in the job he desires without being forced to join or pay dues to any organization and should be retained.

SOCIALIZED MEDICINE - That any solutions to health care needs of people be carried out through the private enterprise system.

GOVERNMENT REGULATION OF FAMILIES - Be it resolved that additional pre-school so-called "child development" programs shall not be funded and controlled by government, but in the private sector at the local level where the need arises, thereby giving parents freedom of choice over the physical and philosophical environment of their children.

EQUAL RIGHTS AMENDMENT - Be it resolved that the Texas Legislature be urged to rescind or recall its ratification of the E.R.A. and that those states which have not yet acted on ratification be urged to reject this proposed amendment.

ABORTION - The termination of pregnancy is to terminate life, therefore, the Republicans represented here, oppose the use of tax dollars for abortion.

DEFENSE - Whereas the national defense has been weakened to a dangerous level, Be it resolved that the U.S. increase military combat capability to a level that is undeniably evident to the enemies who would challenge the U.S.

REDUCE TAXES AND BALANCE THE BUDGET - Be it resolved that a balanced federal budget be maintained, that the level of federal spending be drastically reduced, and that a substantial reduction in taxes be initiated immediately.

REDUCTION IN THE SIZE OF THE BUREAUCRACY - A program be initiated immediately to systematically reduce the number of unnecessary governmental bureaucracies.

WELFARE - It was resolved that the federal government's role in welfare be terminated immediately and return to the jurisdiction of the states where it rightfully belongs.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION

Gray County Democrats gave President Carter a 66 percent of the vote while 33 percent of the alternates and delegates remain uncommitted.

Sam Hynes, Mayor of McLean was elected as Permanent Chairman of the Gray County Convention.

A special thanks was relayed to Paul Crossman for his efforts.

In actions at the County Convention, local delegates passed resolutions as follows:

TO URGE YOUNG VOTERS to develop an interest in the Democratic Party.

TO COMMEND PRESIDENT CARTER for his handling of the Iranian crisis.

APPROVAL OF A 5 PERCENT WAIVER ON FUEL ALCOHOL for power alcohol taken from agricultural products.

REFUSE ADMITTANCE OF FOREIGN STUDENTS to any state school when the foreign student's country is holding American hostages or is hostile to the U.S.

OBJECTION OF THE WINDFALL PROFITS TAX - primarily because the burden of payment would be placed on the independent producer and the royalty owners.

INSURANCE OF 90 PERCENT PARITY on commodity credit loans on all farm produce.

TO MAKE IT KNOWN that the Gray County Convention holds an objection to foreign ownership of real estate in Texas.

Atheist's son apologizes for his involvement

BALTIMORE (AP) — William J. Murray III, who through his atheist mother was part of a Supreme Court case that succeeded in having prayer banned from public schools, has apologized to the city where the case started.

Murray, the son of Madalyn Murray O'Hair, says in a letter to the Baltimore Sun that he wants "to apologize to the people of the city of Baltimore" for his part in removing "Bible reading and prayer from the public schools of the city."

Murray was a 17-year-old high school junior at Baltimore's Poly Western High School in 1963 when his mother won a victory in the Supreme Court banning the recitation of the Lord's Prayer and Bible readings from public school classrooms.

Murray, who now lives in Houston, said the court case was a mistake.

"At least, I as an individual know it was a mistake," said Murray, who now lives in Houston.

He wrote a similar letter of apology which was published in the Austin (Texas) American-Statesman. His mother operates the American Atheist Center in Austin.

Murray said he was no longer an atheist and probably never was one.

"It is only with a return to our traditional values and our faith in God that we will be able to survive as a people," he wrote. "If it were within my personal power to help to return this nation to its rightful place by placing God back in the classroom, I would do so."

His mother called her son's reaction "pretty strange."

"I think what this is — he's after his mother again," she said. "But don't ask me why."

Asked about the letter, Murray said his beliefs began to change during public disputes with his mother in 1974 and 1975.

Men climb Statue of Liberty in protest

NEW YORK (AP) — Two men used rubber suction cups and spikes to climb part way up the back of the Statue of Liberty Saturday to dramatize their discontent with the treatment of a convicted killer.

Large bags were inflated at the base of the statue to cushion a fall. Police stood by with climbing and rescue equipment, but made no attempt to mount the 305-foot statue and bring the pair down.

"It's too hazardous to try to stop them at this point," said Mike Tennent, chief ranger at the park.

"There's really really no way to stop them until they get to the top or fall," he said.

An unidentified person, described by park officials as "affiliated" with the climbers, was taken into custody on the ground.

By noon, about two hours after beginning the climb, the pair was about one-third of the way up the monument, which dominates the entrance to New York Harbor from 12-acre Liberty Island. As they rested in the crook of Liberty's knee, the two unfurled a white-and-red banner saying "liberty was framed — free Geronimo Pratt."

One of the men then continued the climb and reached the statue's shoulder.

David L. Moffitt, superintendent of the park, said the men told him Pratt was an American Indian and a "political prisoner who was being persecuted."

The FBI said its sketchy information was that Elmer Geronimo Pratt, 37, is a former member of the Black Panther Party who is serving a prison sentence in San Quentin, Calif., for the slaying of a school teacher in 1969.

Pratt has contended he was innocent and framed by the FBI, which allegedly was watching him at the time as part of its counter-intelligence operation.

Rio Grande City folks don't want prison there

RIO GRANDE CITY, Texas (AP) — State prison director Jim Estelle had anticipated almost every question during a meeting Friday with local residents about a possible prison here.

Then he got one he refused to answer.

"Is there any way we can stop the building of the penitentiary here?" asked local businessman Pete Diaz.

"Yes," Estelle said.

"Can you tell us how?"

"No," he answered, and the group broke out in laughter.

Estelle said he came to this border town after being invited Wednesday to explain what a maximum security facility would mean to the community and its economy.

He took an hour answering questions from the local Rotary Club and afterward many members said they still oppose the proposal.

"I've heard in phone calls and letters that more than 95 percent of the people in Starr County do not want a prison," County Judge Blas Chapa said. "There's a lot of places where they want it. Why bring it to our county where the majority of people don't want it?"

Estelle said temporary setbacks will be more than outweighed by benefits such as an additional $10 million to the local economy and the 300 jobs created. The Starr County facility would be a regional prison for South Texas inmates and would save families from going to East Texas for visits.

He said relations with Mexico will not sour if inmates escape and flee across the nearby border.

The prison director, who flew from Huntsville just to meet with the Rotary Club, said the state will need to build a second new prison even if the La Casita site is bought.

He said he would ask for land acquisition funds for the 1981-1982 budget regardless of what happens in Starr County.

Citizens of this mostly rural and poor county will get a chance to speak out at hearings later this month.

The State Board of Corrections agreed to purchase the 5,293-acre La Casita farms for $7.8 million. However, Gov. Bill Clements and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong blocked the deal until local residents could learn more — about it.

Estelle said he wanted to apologize to Chapa and other citizens for the secrecy surrounding negotiations for the site.

"The way this thing developed was not the way I would have chosen," he said. "The seller bound the Board of Corrections so that they would not make public the negotiations until the point of closure."

The attorney for the owners has said the property is no longer for sale, but Clements insists it is.

Estelle offered to take Chapa and others in a state airplane to visit other correctional institutes in East Texas and see how communities there feel about prisons.

"I don't think it would do any good for me to go to Huntsville. I'm opposed to a prison personally and as county judge," Chapa said. "If I go, I would like to take the humble people, the workers. Those people are the ones who have to be convinced about it."

Olympic chef says he won't go

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

LEWISBURG, W. Va. (AP) — World-class athletes who show up in Moscow for the summer Olympics will be deprived of something more fundamental than America's world-class competition.

Many of them are going to have to make do, three times a day, without America's world-class chef.

For the first time since the 1956 games, in Melbourne, Australia, Hermann Rusch and his culinary genius will be absent from an Olympics. Sorry, world. It goes with the boycott.

"Of course I'm disappointed," he was saying the other day, "owing among a quarter century of Olympics memorabilia, but when the president says don't go, that's that. You don't go."

True, for all those years Hermann Rusch was in charge of only the American fare. In time, though, and perhaps inevitably, his reputation vaulted one athletic kitchen after another.

He explained:

"In a foreign country, it is not always easy to order food that will be pleasant and tasteful to your athletes and also provide the nutrition they need."

"I became experienced at it, however. Before long, food supervisors from other countries would wait to see my menus before they ordered. Each country had its own kitchen, of course, but for the most part they all ate what the Americans ate."

Hermann Rusch took no offense at that. Cribbing his menus, all over the world, is nothing new.

Before he cooked his first Olympic meal, he had already been head chef at major hotels and restaurants in seven countries on three continents. He had won enough gold medals for cookery, seven, to make the most prodigious Olympic athlete envious.

Hermann Rusch began as an apprentice chef when he was 16, in Appenzell, Switzerland, where he was born in 1907.

Before he was 25 he had worked at the Palace Hotel in Lausanne, the Semiramis in Cairo, the Meurice in Paris, a dozen others, and in 1939 he was chosen chef steward for the Swiss Pavilion at the New York World's Fair. He supervised 30 chefs.

"The war in Europe prevented all of us from returning home. All 30 of us prospered in America. No failures."

None succeeded, though, quite like Hermann Rusch. In New York, a city of gastronomes, he became chef at Delmonico's, the Belmont Plaza, the Lexington, wherever he could be lured.

Finally, he was lured to the Greenbrier, at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., the grand old resort where society's creme de la creme repair to be pampered amid Georgia elegance to play, to dance, to dine beneath crystal chandeliers upon, if they choose, plates of gold.

"A chef's dream," Hermann Rusch said. "Oh, the parties I have prepared!"

Hermann Rusch retired two years ago from the Greenbrier. A grateful management presented him with one of those gold dinner plates. He prizes it among his room full of trophies.

He and his wife, Violette, now live nearby in a gracious house of their own design, where the wine cellar is kept at 57 degrees and the wit at dinner parties — 40 guests are not unusual — is as rich as Hermann's le soufflé au chocolat.

Yes, he said, he will miss the Olympics.

He had in mind for the athletes in Moscow, oh, egg with caviar for starters, perhaps some herring in wine sauce...

But, enough. After all, a boycott's a boycott.

Byrd says Carter should accept debate with Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's Democratic leader said Saturday that "for the good of the party" it's time President Carter accepted Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's challenge to debate.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia made his suggestion deep in the primary campaign season with Carter far ahead of the Massachusetts senator in delegates to this summer's Democratic National Convention.

But Byrd said, "I don't write Mr. Kennedy off at this point, regardless of the delegate mathematics."

The Senate leader made his comments at his weekly news conference.

Asked for comment, a White House spokesman said that if Carter is nominated he would debate the Republican nominee but still has no plans to debate Kennedy.

Although conceding it would be unusual for an incumbent president to debate a party rival, Byrd said such a setting could call attention to overlooked Carter achievements and "his statesmanship" besides "highlighting where the shortcomings may be."

He praised Carter in relation to Republican front-runner Ronald Reagan, saying the president has "a far deeper knowledge of the issues" than Reagan, who he said gives "simplistic, patent-medicine answers" to complicated questions.

But Byrd also called Kennedy "a good Democrat... who has brought to the front the economic issues that ought to be discussed" in any debate.

Quebec vote could reshape map

(EDITOR'S NOTE — The result of a vote next week in Canada's Quebec province could eventually mean a reshaping of the map of North America. The following report examines the background and prospects in this historic referendum.)

By ERIC HAMOVITCH
Canadian Press Writer

MONTREAL (AP) — The people of Quebec decide in a referendum May 20 whether to take a big step toward pulling their largely French-speaking province out of the Canadian confederation.

No matter which side wins, Canada's political structure is expected to undergo a major overhaul, and the repercussions will be felt in the United States.

The voters are being asked to give the provincial government a mandate to negotiate "sovereignty-association" with the other nine provinces and the Canadian federal government.

Sovereignty-association is Quebec Premier Rene Levesque's plan for political independence coupled with a continued economic common market with the rest of Canada.

Levesque says Quebec's 6.3 million people — more than 80 percent of them French-speaking — need their own national identity to ensure their cultural survival, surrounded as they are by 16 million English speakers in Canada and more than 200 million in the United States.

The French of Quebec, conquered by the British two centuries ago, have historically felt held down by their fellow Canadians. Levesque contends that over the years the English-speaking business and government elite has neglected Quebec's economic health.

Even the pro-federalist "no" side says it wants political changes that will give the province more autonomy and power.

The opinion polls have shown wide fluctuations in voter sentiment in recent months, but the latest sampling, released Thursday, gives the federalists 45 percent of the electorate, to 40 percent for the "yes" side. The wild card is the 15 percent undecided.

The Quebec fight has split families and divided friends. Posters and lapel buttons abound, blue ones reading "Oui" and red ones proclaiming "Non Merci" (No, thanks).

The campaign rhetoric has been bitter. Claude Ryan, leader of Quebec's opposition party, the Liberals, and head of the "no" forces, has used the term "fascists" to describe his opponents, and Levesque has retorted that the federalist campaign is "disturbing."

There has been no major violence, and only scattered acts of vandalism — posters defaced, car tires slashed, bricks thrown through windows. But a separatist terror campaign in the 1960s showed the violent potential inherent in the emotional Quebec situation.

For more than a decade, Levesque, founder of the independence-minded Parti Quebecois, has appealed tirelessly to Quebecers pride in their French heritage, while trying to assuage an equally deep-seated fear that secession might bring economic and political chaos.

Since his party took power at the provincial level in 1976, the premier has shied away from the words "separation" and "independence," and sought to convince Quebecers that his sovereignty-association plan would give them the best of two worlds — free political rein to spend taxes, enact language laws and deal with other nations as they see fit, but without economic disruption.

He stresses, too, that no matter what the vote, Quebec will still be a Canadian province the day after May 20. He has pledged that if he wins a majority in the referendum and opens negotiations toward sovereignty, his government will hold a second referendum later to ratify the results of the talks.

Even if all goes smoothly for Levesque, this process could take two or more years.

The premiers of the other provinces and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau all have rejected the idea of negotiating the nation's break-up, but Levesque argues that a "yes" vote will force the rest of Canada to come to the bargaining table.

Museum notes Preservation Week

BY SHEILA ECCLES

Historic preservation is happening right now in almost every town and city across the nation. Old and rundown neighborhoods are being transformed with new coats of paint, repairs and remodeling additions.

National Historic Preservation Week is being observed May 11-17.

Carson County Square House Museum is observing Preservation Week with a display of household articles used by previous generations to stretch energy resources and lecture tours on the windmill and pioneer dugout.

National Historic Preservation Week is cosponsored annually by the National Trust for Historic Preservation and by local preservation organizations throughout the country. "Preservation: Reusing America's Energy" is the theme for the week.

The purpose of Preservation Week is to make more Americans aware of the preservation movement and its contributions to the quality of life, thereby involving more people and gaining greater support from the public.

Recent as well as long-term trends have proved the need to conserve energy. The built environment represents the largest single investment of energy. In fact, to replace all the existing buildings in the United States would require the entire world's energy output for a year for material and construction alone.

The construction and operation of buildings account for a full 32 percent of the energy consumed in the United States each year.

The message is three-fold. First, old buildings are a past investment of energy. By saving old buildings, energy produced today can be used to meet other standards.

Formulas have been devised to calculate the amount of energy that would be required to demolish an old building and replace it with a structure of similar size and use.

Second, old buildings can be rehabilitated for greater energy efficiency in their operation. Studies have shown that old buildings properly rehabilitated consume, on the average, no more energy than brand new buildings for annual operation.

And third, new technology that takes advantage of alternative energy sources, such as solar energy and wind power, can be applied to some old buildings without destroying their historical and architectural character. The use of alternative energy sources decreases reliance on traditional energy sources.

The decision to preserve an old building will probably not be made solely on the basis of the energy that would be squandered by destroying it. But when combined with other factors, economic, aesthetic and similar considerations, energy conservation through preservation becomes a powerful tool for preservationists.

Additionally, both energy conservation and historic preservation are national goals set forth clearly in legislation and in Presidential mandates. Therefore, the argument that historic preservation contributes to energy conservation is a strong one.

Conveying this message to the public and to decision-makers at every level is the aim of Preservation Week.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

OPINION PAGE

Barbarism in Tehran

The desecration of the bodies of the servicemen killed during the aborted attempt to free the hostages is a good indicator of the kind of people now controlling Iran. This grotesque and uncivilized behavior is intolerable, but undoubtedly it will be tolerated.

Until now there has been confusion about who is in authority in that troubled country. The Bani-Sadr government must accept responsibility for this latest outrage. If it does not attempt to punish those responsible then the Bani-Sadr government must be labeled for what it is, an accomplice to the crime.

The dispersal of the hostages is yet another indictment of the Bani-Sadr government. Until now we have been told it was impossible to save the hostages because they were all in the militant-controlled embassy compound. Too risky, Bani-Sadr said. If those hostages have been moved, the excuse is gone. At the least the Bani-Sadr government is responsible for permitting the transfer to take place unchallenged.

This gruesome incident will hurt the perpetrators in the end. It has undoubtedly outraged honorable people around the world, including the decent citizens of Iran. And the incident focuses again on the nature of those in power. This was not the act of an uncontrolled mob of student militants. The Ayatollah Khomeini's barbaric acts happened in the presence of the Ayatollah Khomeini's son, Khomeini and many of his followers are often called lunatics. Their latest display of animalism confirms that characterization.

The question remains what to do now. Clearly the dispersal of the hostages all but eliminates the possibility of future raids. All the Carter rhetoric of the last six months notwithstanding, economic and political sanctions are just now being placed on Iran. Until now anything the Iranians could not buy from the United States could be purchased from one of this country's alleged allies. But that option may soon be cut off as those allies join the economic boycott. The ayatollah's neanderthal behavior may speed the process.

Surely people of good will pray that this crisis will transform no more healthy young men into charred and lifeless bodies. Unfortunately this nation does not appear to be dealing with men of good will. Sickness of mind and sickness of morality now seem to rule the day in Tehran.

Must report news, either good or bad

We've got good news for a bad news critic: Stuart Blanch, archbishop of York in England, stopped watching the evening news on television because he can't bear it. Earlier in the day I might be able to take it, but at night it is altogether too much for me," he told a recent Sunday congregation in his cathedral at York Minster.

The evening news consisted of "endless repetitions of violence, intended or achieved, strident speeches, declarations of war... (and an) unwholesome atmosphere of unrest and confusion."

Archbishop Blanch, second-ranking prelate in the Church of England, appealed to television authorities to include at least one item of cheerful news, such as a farmer ploughing his fields, to remind us that the most important things are never achieved by violence.

Perhaps the archbishop should subscribe to newspapers, which always manage to fit in a bit on the bright or light side.

That is after all one of the advantages newspapers hold over television. A newspaper gives you more, and you can keep it around for reevaluation.

Walter Cronkite can't cut into the preceding and following programs to give you both an Iran hostage update and a warm-hearted story concerning a woman whose lost gold cross was returned by a conscientious citizen. When too many major news events occur for his unyielding time frame, items go, beginning with the "soft" stories.

Newspapers aren't able to publish all the news either. But newspapers always offer more space for information than TV affords time.

To keep alive hope, newspapers do, as the British archbishop begs of television, include some good with the bad.

But entertaining and comforting the public are not the primary functions of a free press, whether print or airwave. The first priority is conveying the information necessary for you to make intelligent decisions about your life. Among the information you might not like but need to know are such items as a berserk citizen gunning down a government official, a religious maniac holding people hostage, a minister defending homosexuality, and an untold number of other events which may chafe the public's sensibility. Truth, as the axiom goes, frequently strikes a sour note.

We suggest the archbishop consider the point made by Alan Protheroe, editor of television news for the British Broadcasting Corp. As Protheroe observed, news shows are for reporting news, "not to censor information to a perceptive and mature society."

Yes, news often grates, leaving us on occasion nauseated. But those who say they wish they hadn't read it or heard about it, actually mean they wish the incident had not happened.

Only through knowing what's wrong can we hope to ameliorate the conditions producing the "bad news." Let's not blame the messenger. It's not the media's fault when the bad outweighs the good news.

Economic recession is here

By Oscar Cooley
What are the economic prospects for the remaining two-thirds of 1980? Will the American people as a whole be more prosperous than during recent months, or less so?
My guess — and it has to be a guess — is that they will be moderately less prosperous. They will be in a recession, but not a catastrophic one.

I hasten to emphasize that this applies to the nation as a whole. Some industries, and therefore the communities that depend on those particular industries, will be down much more than others, and the people in the hard hit areas — automobile-dependent Michigan, for example — will see the recession as severe, while the people in areas that specialize in goods and services that are in long-run, keen demand (tourist-happy Florida may be one such area) will ask, "What recession?"

The recession has already begun. The rate of production growth has declined slightly for more than two months, and the unemployment rate has moved upward from 5.9 to 7 percent of the labor force.

Another sign is the recent drop in the prime rate of interest from 20 to 18 percent. This indicates the demand for loans has slowed. According to the law of demand, when demand falls, so does prices. The prime rate of interest is the price of loans, and the price of credit is the price of the demand for loans which has slackened is the demand of business firms. They see less opportunity for profit, and so they are not so eager to borrow and increase their production. The demand for loans by consumers is still keen, but such loans are smaller and do not add much to total demand.

The interest rates on home mortgages, which have been 17 percent and more, also are showing sign of decline. Mortgage loans on single-family homes, insured by Federal Housing or Veterans Administration, can now be had for 13 percent.

Still another sign of falling interest rates is the rising price of corporate bonds. With the extremely high interest rates, bond prices slumped badly. They are now reviving.

Stocks also are picking up. The Dow-Jones index of industrials, after plunging in February and March, fluctuated in the 700's during April and ended the month above 800. If interest rates continue to fall, investors will shift dollars from the money market into stocks, bidding them up.

Will the 1980 recession be severe? Probably not. It is an election year. Both the President and many in Congress are running for re-election, so the administration will resist recession. Carter has talked freely about spending less and balancing the budget, but it is to his political interest to spend freely enough to stimulate business and avoid a severe general recession. That he will try to do.

This is the weakness of allowing officeholders, the President in particular, to run for re-election. As the date of voting approaches, a president who aspires to serve again tends to do the things that will make him popular and net him the most votes, rather than the things the nation most needs.

The polls show that Carter is not highly popular and so may fail re-election, despite the advantage that he as incumbent has over other candidates. Hence, it would be natural for him to lean strongly toward tactics that please the maximum number of voters. Generous government spending which makes work and lessens employment is such a tactic in 1980. Defense spending especially will be increased since there is a widespread opinion that our defenses need strengthening.

Carter has talked of balancing the budget as a method of reducing inflation. This is to impress us that he is doing his best to stop the rise in the cost of living. Actually, little will be done. When, in an election year, both unemployment and inflation are great, it is likely the government will point its heaviest guns at the former. The rising cost of necessities of life is a serious problem to the family, but not as strag as loss of employment. People get injured to rising prices; they can continue to pay them as long as their income is sustained.

What can the unemployed person do to get his dried-up stream of income to flowing again?

His final resort today is the same it had always been: versatility and mobility. He must be ready to do work to which he is not completely accustomed and if unsuccessful in finding satisfactory work in his locality, to go to another.

This is not just a recession tactic; it is always in order. In fact, the modern economy, in which continuous change is normal, necessitates it. How aware the assumption that one could take a job and hold it throughout his working life, enjoying a secure and ever-increasing wage?

Entrepreneurs — owners of businesses — have no such guarantee. Few are the goods demanded in the markets today that can be sure of being in demand tomorrow. The same is true of services. Security is a mirage, adaptability a necessity.

How long will the recession last? Well into 1981, in my guess. Ours is a huge business system, and large bodies move slowly. It is probable that next winter will be more difficult than last. The wise squirrel will store a few extra nuts.

Today in history

Today is Sunday, May 11, the 132nd day of 1980. There are 234 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On May 11, 1949, Israel was admitted to the United Nations.

On this date: In 1674, Peter Stuyvesant became governor of New Amsterdam.

In 1858, Minnesota was admitted to the union as the 32nd state.

In 1943, the first American territory was regained from Japan in World War II, as U.S. forces landed on Attu Island in the Aleutians.

In 1974, Julie Eisenhower said her father, President Richard Nixon, told his family he would not resign as long as one member of Congress supported him.

Ten years ago, a tornado ripped through Lubbock, Texas, killing 20 people.

Five years ago, reports revealed that South Vietnam's new rulers planned nationwide elections, to unify North and South Vietnam.

Last year, the United States and China signed an agreement settling claims over property confiscated in the Chinese revolution, clearing the way for a bilateral trade pact.

Today's birthdays: Songwriter Irving Berlin is 92. Artist Salvador Dali is 76. Comedian Phil Silvers is 68. Thought for today: There is no security on this earth. There is only opportunity. — Gen. Douglas MacArthur (1880-1964)

Test-tube inflation

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON -- It isn't just the commercial banks and credit unions that are being tough about loans. The sperm banks are also starting to be much more discriminating about their borrowers.

Johnson Masters, president of the First National Sperm Bank of Washington, told me, "The crunch is on. Any woman could come in here six months ago and get a test tube. But now we're in a spot where we can only service our most preferred customers."

"What happened?" I wanted to know.
"People are starting to withdraw their deposits and put them in Government Research grants, which pay a much higher interest. We've tried everything to keep our customers happy, but it hasn't worked. We've offered them free subscriptions to Playboy magazine, videocassettes of X-rated movies, and all-expense weekends at out-of-the-way motels. But it hasn't stopped the flood of withdrawals.

"One of the biggest setbacks we had this week was when a Nobel Prize-winner came in and cleaned out his account. We asked him what he was going to do with all the test tubes, and he said he was going to trade them for soybean futures."

"If other Nobel Prize-winners do the same thing your bank could be in a lot of trouble," I said.

"We are already. As you know, our loans are made to women who are shopping around for the best fathers that money can buy. But at present interest rates, most of them can't afford a Fuller Brush man. It's pitiful for one of our loan officers to turn down a perfectly healthy woman and tell her she isn't eligible for a loan."

Briefly noted

By Don Graft

The course of an alliance, as of true love, does not always run smoothly, as suggested by a recent report from the NATO defense front.

Britain, France and West Germany are drawing closer together in a cooperative effort to update their air forces. They are pooling technological, industrial and financial resources to develop an advanced new warplane.

That's good as far as it goes. But a major purpose of the project is to put more distance between themselves and the United States — at least the U.S. aircraft industry upon which Germany in particular has been dependent.

The plane, called the European Combat Aircraft, is to be a twin-jet, single-seater with an operational speed twice that of sound. The three air forces, as reported by The Wall Street Journal, plan to share 700 of the planes with additional sales to other countries expected to spread the considerable cost of development and production.

So far so good, but there's a slight snag to be ironed out in the planning stage before they can go on to production. The British and French want a tactical-support plane designed primarily for battlefield intervention. The Germans have something a little different in mind — an all-weather, long-range air-superiority plane.

Good luck, fellas.

First fishermen

For all we know, you may not only be learning of it here first, but this may be the only place you'll hear of it.

Anyway, we have another national week coming up — National Fishing Week, May 12-18. The theme of the occasion is "Take A Kid Fishing," which the estimated 63 million anglers in the country are being urged to do.

The most interesting information in the advance material from the week's promoters, however, concerns not kids but presidents. The American variety having included some noticeably enthusiastic and decidedly individualistic fishermen.

Franklin D. Roosevelt preferred secluded lakes, which he fished in style — fully attired in business suit. The styles of Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover were somewhat more informal, but not so much that either would part with their familiar felt hats.

The fisherman's fisherman of the group was probably Dwight Eisenhower, who dressed for the occasion when vacationing on the trout streams of Colorado.

The most colorful of the lot, however, would appear to have been Benjamin Harrison. He pulled on whiskey, chewed tobacco from a plug carried in his hip pocket and spat on a worm for luck.

He also is reported to have cussed roundly when a fish got away. Some styles never change.

OPEC studies

Speaking of Iranian students, which there is frequent occasion to do these days, they have plenty of foreign company in the American higher education system.

Non-American students in U.S. colleges and universities numbered 263,938 during the last school year, according to the count of the Institute of International Education, a nongovernmental agency encouraging international student exchanges.

Of these, students from OPEC countries, principally Iran and its Mideastern neighbors, represented about a third. And their share is rapidly increasing. While the total of all foreign students went up by 12.1 percent during the year, the OPEC contingent shot up 21.2 percent.

And this even as the United States becomes increasingly unpopular in their homelands. There may be a lesson somewhere in that, but probably not one that will do us any good.

Managing Editor

Two Pampa youths have distinguished themselves across the nation as successful "wagers of battle" against city hall.

Pampa youths Steve Mills, 17, and Thad Ward, 19, whom you will remember placed the signs on the Somerville Street median, gained publicity throughout the state for their successful "save the trees" campaign in the recent street bond election.

But the publicity didn't stop in Dallas. In the April 20 edition of the Washington Post, a story about the youths' victory was carried on page 4 of the distinguished newspaper.

The UPI story reads in part, "With a budget of $350, two teen-agers are proud they helped win a battle to save a tree-lined boulevard from a $4.8 million street 'improvement' program."

"Steve Mills, 17, and Thad Ward, 19, today were celebrating the 1,754-to-877 defeat of a bond issue that would have meant the destruction of scores of Chinese elm trees lining Somerville Street, one of the prettier streets in this town of 20,000."

"I expected it to be closer than it was," said Mills. "It dispelled a lot of what I'd always heard people say about how you can't fight city hall."

"The youths' campaign began over a month ago when they read about the bond issue in the local newspaper and began collecting donations from concerned citizens.

"They collected $150 and the rest of their budget came out of their own pockets...."

The youths had 60-second spots on the radio every hour, newspaper ads and printed up 2,000 flyers and passed them out.

City officials, in contrast, have attributed the bond issue's failure to the state of the economy and inflation — not the trees.

Saturday's fun run was a lot of fun last week — no hundreds of runners didn't turn out, as planners expected.

Well, might as well tell you the whole story. The idea popped up in the newsroom, and Boy Scout executive Doreen Miley and yours truly attempted to take the bull by the horns in all that spare time working people have.

It was a good morning for running after all the inclement cool weather that week. We set up the tables, laid out our 50 maps of the hiking trail and sat down to await the shrouds of people who, any minute now, were to ascend upon the scene.

Pampa's Army recruiter Doug Kelly and his wife, Cindy, arrived, bearing Volksmarche trophies, won in Europe, and handfulls of Army recruiting literature.

After admiring all the trophies, we again sat down to await the hordes — when along came Lehman Holder, bearing three boxes of Lions Club light bulbs, one of which he sold to the Army recruiter.

About this time, we tackled one runner on the route and made him sign up — and sent one of the helpers for doughnuts. We could tell it was going to be a long morning.

Then, here came a couple. They drove up and stopped.

"Yea! Our first real runners," we cheered.

The man got out, looked at the big sign that said, "Registration," and asked, "Is this where you register to vote?"

We, in the meantime, were trying to sign him up for the run and saying, "How far do you want to run?"

When we realized he was wanting to know where to vote, we all tried to help — where do you live? are you a Democrat or Republican?

He was heard mumbling something like, "I know more about it than you do," as he climbed back in his car.

Our only legitimate runner, Kirk Duncan, who ran the course in 20:14:9, left bearing a package of Lions Club light bulbs (which he paid for) and a free U.S. Army poster.

The planners had so much fun, we're thinking of doing it again next month.

We received in the mail a letter from one Islam holy man to another — in this case, from M. R. Bawa Muhaiyadeen of Philadelphia, Pa., to the Ayatollah Khomeini. A cover sheet accompanying the letter says, "The people need to know that Ayatollah Khomeini has completely discredited himself as an Islamic leader and that he (Khomeini) is not following the tenets of Islam. Furthermore, it would help them to hear supporting words from Islamic leaders for the patience and restraint the American government has shown."

We thought you might like to read it. The letter was written before the commando mission in Iran.

"TO AYATOLLAH KHOMEINI:

Imam Ayatollah Khomeini, you have such a resounding name, but what you are doing is a disgrace to Islam and to everything taught in the Quran. Islam means brotherhood, and the Quran accepts all religions, all races, and all nations. You, therefore, have an obligation to protect the diplomats of a country which trusted you.

"The American president and the American people have been patient for months. Even though you acted so unjustly, they were magnanimous and displayed the qualities of human beings. When there was a disturbance at the Russian embassy, it was subdued quickly. If you had captured their embassy, the Russians would have attacked you in 45 minutes. You must understand this difference between Russia and America, between communism and democracy."

"Ayatollah Ruhullah Khomeini, you have been given the absolute power of rule by the 35 million people of Iran. If you ordered the release of the hostages, the militants would do so immediately, but you have not given that order. Instead, you appear to follow their dictates. It appears to me that you have accepted communism and have converted your students to communism.

"What has become of your reputation? There is little difference between your actions and the Shah's. If he murdered, they were political acts committed to protect his country. You are supposed to be a sheikh, what are you protecting? You should be protecting the Quran and the truth. But instead, you are creating poverty and disturbances and attributing it to the Shah and America.

"... you should go personally to the embassy and order the immediate release of the hostages. You must stop being stubborn, stop demanding the Shah back, and stop blaming America. This would be good for Islam and for your honor. You are an Imam, and to protect that exalted position you should do what I have said. If you understand this, Allah will help you."

Refreshing to hear one of them say it...

State asks $60 million for handicapped

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Board of Education agreed Saturday to ask the federal government for $60 million a year to help educate handicapped students in Texas public schools.

The three-year plan approved unanimously by the board extends to June 30, 1983. Currently about $55 million has been spent for the year ending this June 30.

State support for education of the handicapped students during the same three-year period is expected to reach $330 million.

"Our efforts are keyed to meeting the educational needs of all handicapped students," said Dor

Partridge, Texas Education Agency associate commissioner for special education. "For this reason we work closely with the school districts and the regional education service centers... at the same time parent counseling and family involvement programs are continuing to play an increasing role."

Partridge said there are approximately 335,000 handicapped students now attending class either as part-time or full-time students.

The programs to receive help from the federal grants include instructional materials designed for handicapped students, continued stress on the need to locate and enroll handicapped students and training for both special education and regular classroom teachers.

The state board also approved 15 public schoolteachers and administrators for the 1980 Textbook Committee, which will begin selection of $29.7 million in textbooks for the school year beginning Sept. 1, 1981.

The first meeting of the committee will be May 16. The final selection of the textbooks will be made Nov. 6 by the State Board of Education.

Motel terrorists surrender after all-night crime spree

HOUSTON (AP) — Police said two armed teen-agers who terrorized at least three motels — robbing, raping and kidnapping guests — finally surrendered to a team of SWAT officers Saturday morning after an all-night crime spree.

No shots were fired and no one was seriously injured.

But six persons were taken hostage during the spree, including two women who complained the youths raped them, police said.

Police declined to identify the youths or give their exact ages.

Police Sgt. Ronny Noskrant of the city's SWAT team said the youngsters first kidnapped two men at a La Quinta motel on the East Freeway Friday night.

"Still holding their prisoners, they then went on a robbery spree, holding up people in at least three hotels along the Katy Freeway in west Houston," Noskrant said. "They also reportedly robbed a convenience store in the area."

He said before dawn Saturday the teen-agers drove to the Rodeway Inn, left their two prisoners in the car, and went knocking on motel doors, robbing people who opened their doors.

The two captives managed to escape and called police. The teen-agers, realizing their prisoners had gotten away, then forced their way into a ground floor motel room where two men and two women were staying, Noskrant said.

Police arrived, and for 6 1/2 hours there was a standoff.

Noskrant said the youths refused to answer the motel room telephone. Guests in adjacent rooms were evacuated as a precaution. Police said the rape of the two women occurred during the standoff, and at one time the four hostages, locked in the bathroom, tried to break down a wall to get out.

About 9:30 a.m. the hostages broke free and ran out of the motel room. It was not clear whether they escaped or were released. A short time later the two youths, who were armed with three pistols, surrendered.

I would like to express my appreciation to the voters of precinct 1 (ballot boxes 1, 6, 11, & 14) for your show of confidence in me.

I will do my best to support and work for the residents of Gray County and ask your continued support and encouragement in this effort.

Large corporation heads predict deep recession

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer
HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — The United States should be prepared for a recession this year that is "as severe as any in the post-war period except 1974-75," executives from some of the nation's largest corporations were told today.

The gloomy analysis, prepared by private economists for the spring meeting of the prestigious Business Council, was considerably more pessimistic than the Carter administration's forecast. The business economists predicted that unemployment could rise to nearly 8 percent by early next year. And they suggested that despite the recession and continued declines in interest rates, inflation would remain at double-digit levels until late this year.

The good news, the economists and executives agreed, was that the recession could force federal officials to cut taxes.

"This is an election year," noted Reginald H. Jones, chairman of General Electric and head of the council. "Let's face it," he continued, "we are going to be in such bad straits when the time comes to the third quarter this year — which is the quarter of (presidential nominating) conventions and the quarter for running like the devil — that we think there is a very good chance that there will be a tax cut, effective probably no earlier than Jan. 1."

Jones said he expects a cut of about $15 billion. Others at the conference predicted a cut in the range of $25 billion. But all of them declined to speculate on how much of the tax relief would be for business and how much directly for the public.

President Carter and Congress have so far rejected proposals to cut taxes, arguing that such a move would hamper efforts to fight near-record inflation by balancing the budget.

The Business Council, formed nearly 50 years ago to advise the government on corporate issues, is composed of about 100 executives.

Among the speakers scheduled for the two-day meeting were Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul A. Volcker, Commerce Secretary Philip M. Klutznick, AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland and Charles Schultz, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers.

The government has forecast a mild downturn that would drive unemployment up to a little over 7 percent at year's end. However, some in the administration, including inflation adviser Alfred Kahn, now consider that figure too optimistic. Unemployment jumped from 6.2 percent in March to 7 percent in April.

The business economists believe the nation's output will fall as much as 3 percent over the next nine months. That would make the recession among the worst since World War II, but only about half as severe as the 1974-75 downturn.

Still, the business economists said, unemployment could reach "a peak of nearly 8 percent early next year." That would translate to about 7.5 million Americans out of work.

Parks Service paints gloom

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Souvenir hunters are hauling away the petrified forest.

Acid rain is killing fish in the Great Smoky Mountains. Wild goats, pigs and mongooses are running amok in Hawaii.

All in our national parks, says the agency that runs them. What's more, says the National Parks Service's first "state of the parks" report, sweling tourism, pollution and urban sprawl are threatening many of our 326 national parks and monuments.

"Without qualification...the cultural and natural resources of the parks are endangered by a broad range of threats," said the report, issued Thursday. "No area is immune."

And unless steps are taken soon, the survey warned, the various problems "will continue to degrade and destroy irreplaceable park resources."

More than 60 percent of the country's parks face shrinking scenic resources; 45 percent report air pollution problems and more than 40 percent say they are discovering threats to animals, plants and water, the report said.

Problems are most serious, it said, at the largest and most famous parks — Yellowstone, Yosemite and the Everglades among them.

"Most of these great parks were at one time pristine areas surrounded and protected by vast wilderness regions. Today, with their buffer zones gradually disappearing, many...are experiencing widespread adverse effects associated with encroachment."

The report noted traffic jams and auto pollution at the most popular parks and said attendance at all parks had more than doubled in the last 10 years — to 282 million visitors in 1979.

Square House Museum has special feature

The International Children's Showcase which features children's art from seventeen nations will be on display at the Carson County Square House Museum through May 28.

The International Children's Showcase, including approximately thirty display units, is a statewide tour of one hundred paintings and drawings by children representing every habitable continent on earth. The works have been selected from more than the 3000 paintings which the Texas Cultural Alliance has received since the founding of the "Hands Around the World" program in 1975 as a national Bicentennial project.

The Texas Cultural Alliance is a non-profit organization created in DeSoto, Texas in 1975 in response to completion of several educational and cultural exchange programs between Texas communities and the country of Guatemala.

Since its founding, citizens in over sixty Texas communities have participated in alliance programs that seek to build a better world through better understanding.

As an international citizenship project for Texas Children, Hands Around the World is a two part program.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the voters of precinct 1 for your support and vote of confidence.

I also wish to congratulate my opponent, O.L. Presley, for the good clean race he conducted.

Blacks fight bus in Gees Bend

By Tom Tiede
GEES BEND, Ala. (NEA) — Ever since 1975, when the Justice Department ordered busing here in the name of school desegregation, blacks rather than whites have protested. This is an all black community, and though no one opposes integration they are against the use of child abuse to achieve it.

Child abuse? Before busing, kids in this area attended a local school, not more than a few minutes from most homes. In the last five years, however, they have been transported to classrooms in Pine Hill, Ala., on the other side of the county. For many youngsters that's almost 50 miles away.

So, the locals claim, "It's child abuse."

The abuse begins before dawn, five days a week, when Gees Bend children rise to endure what may be the longest federally imposed school bus ride in the nation. The ride to Pine Hill takes three hours, going and coming, and this means the routine for some students is nearly 100 miles round trip.

Parents call the situation shocking. And they want the world to know it. Recently, on the fifth anniversary of area busing, Gees Bend citizens filed suit against the governments of Alabama and the United States. The plaintiffs want busing to stop, they also demand a tidy $3 billion in damages.

And they think they have a good case. Roman Pettway, a grocer and anti-busing activist, says the government edict has "crippled local education" and immeasurably damaged the lives of many young people. Pettway says it can be shown clearly that school busing here has been negligent and irresponsible. In the first place, he explains, the busing is dangerous. Gees Bend is located on land isolated by the twisted backwaters of the Alabama River, and the rural roads are narrow and neglected. Pettway says there have only been minor accidents so far, "but the odds on a big one aren't getting any smaller."

Also, Pettway thinks busing mishaps are possible before the kids get aboard. In winter students must wait for transportation in the pre-dawn darkness, which is to say they're forced onto the roads in times of poor visibility. There's not much traffic then, Pettway concedes, "but the risks are still obvious."

And even if the kids do arrive safely at Pine Hill, day after day, they can be too tired to be thankful.

Furor splits congregation

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Chronicle reported the top deacon leadership of the world's largest Southern Baptist congregation, the First Baptist Church in Dallas, is split, 4-3, over a fundamentalist furor in the Southern Baptist Convention.

The newspaper said the furor was stirred by the Rev. Dr. Paige Patterson, president of the Criswell Center for Biblical Studies at the Dallas church and an associate pastor there.

The Chronicle reported one of the seven top deacons, Jim Cantrell, former head of the Texas Baptist Foundation, as saying a statement likely will be issued within a week indicating in some way that Patterson tone down or end altogether his outspoken comments about alleged liberals in the Southern Baptist Convention.

Cantrell said he is the only one of the seven advocating Patterson be fired. He said three of the other six want Patterson muzzled and he was willing to go along with them, making the vote 4-3.

Patterson this week issued a statement critical of the teachings of seven Baptist professors. He and Paul Pressler, a Houston appellate court judge, are considered key leaders in a fundamentalist movement to turn the SBC toward a more conservative course. They were key figures in last year's Houston convention election of the Rev. Adrian Rogers of Memphis as SBC president. Rogers announced earlier this week he will not seek re-election next month.

The Chronicle quoted Cantrell as saying the seven deacons met in executive session Tuesday night in Dallas with the Rev. Dr. W.A. Criswell, pastor of the Dallas church. The newspaper said it had confirmed through three independent sources Criswell attended at the prompting of his wife, Betty. The report said Mrs. Criswell had been persuaded that Criswell's standing with the SBC and the Dallas church could be jeopardized by Patterson's actions.

Criswell's secretary was quoted as saying he would make no comments to newsmen and Mrs. Criswell could not be reached for comment. Patterson was said to have entered Baylor Hospital in Dallas on Thursday with a viral infection.

Baptist politics flare

DALLAS (AP) — The embattled founder of a controversial coalition aiming to rid the Southern Baptist Church of "creeping liberalism" will step down as a leader of the movement. The Rev. W.A. Criswell has announced.

Criswell praised The Rev. Paige Patterson's dedication to keeping "all Southern Baptist institutions true to the word of God in its credibility, infallibility and inerrancy," but said Thursday that the minister's "methods and tactics are those of a different world."

Earlier this week Patterson outraged opponents when he issued a list of seven Baptist educators he claimed had published works contrary to biblical literalism.

Patterson issued the list when he was challenged by a Baptist publication to produce evidence of his charges that a tide of liberalism was sweeping the 13-million member denomination.

Criswell, the 70-year-old pastor of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, blamed much of the furor on the editorial demands of Baptist publications.

Patterson was ill and could not be reached for comment. Patterson, associate pastor at First Baptist and president of the Criswell Center for Biblical Studies, formed the coalition last year with Houston Judge Paul Pressler.

He said the purpose of the coalition was to combat what he called "creeping liberalism" among Baptists.

At the annual Southern Baptist Convention meeting in Houston last year, Patterson and Pressler unveiled a 5-year plan to elect a convention president who takes every word of the Bible literally.

In Agriculture

By Joe Van Zandt

SOIL STEWARDSHIP WEEK IS MAY 11-18:
Soil Stewardship Week May 11-18, focuses on the theme, "The Judgement of Nature." The observance is sponsored by the National Association of Conservation Districts.

This year's theme is especially appropriate as the United States considers the current condition of its soil, water and related resources. Through nature we are linked with the past and committed to the future.

Nature is the continuing system of life created by God. It is neither fixed nor static; it is a continuing process and inherently dynamic. It rewards care and construction attention, even as it penalizes negligence and deliberate damage.

Loss of some three million acres of productive agricultural land each year through urbanization and other uses, decline in productivity of topsoil as the result of destructive erosion, and continuing pollution of the nation's waters are serious causes for everyone's concern. Participation in Soil Stewardship Week activities offers an opportunity to reflect on the nation's natural problems and to consider actions to resolve them or reduce their impact.

The National Association of Conservation Districts has sponsored Soil Stewardship Week in the United States since 1955, in cooperation with the nation's nearly 3,000 soil and water conservation districts.

ALLEY CLEAN-UP:

Spring all clean-up is necessary just like spring house cleaning. Have you taken a serious look at your alley in the last week? Are weeds and grass almost out of control already? Has the winter's collection of trash and papers blown in and around your weeds and grass?

Chances are you would answer yes to both of these questions unless you have recently spent some time on cleaning-up your alley area. Why not help yourself and your neighborhood by cleaning up your alley and mow the weeds and grass before they get too tall and too tough to mow.

If you are short on garden space, you may want to dig up an area and become an alley gardener. Lots of vegetables can be raised in most alleys.

LAWN WEED CONTROL:

I see a lot of dandelions coming forth from many yards. Now is a good time to apply a weed killer herbicide to weeds in your yard. Broad leaved weeds may be controlled post emergence with 2, 4-D. This material should be applied when temperatures are between 70 and 85 degrees. When applied at temperatures below 70 degrees, weed control is reduced.

If flowers and shrubs are close by, care should be exercised. Do not apply 2, 4-D when the wind is high, or with a lot of pressure. This is a good chemical, but drift can occur if used carelessly. Follow directions on the label and use a surfactant. Two or three applications will usually bring dandelions and other broadleaf weeds under control. This type of spray program will also be useful in reducing bindweeds around the home landscape.

ZINC FOR PECANS:

Beautiful pecan trees and regular harvests of high quality pecans begin each spring with frequent zinc sprays. Good foliage is the secret to optimum growth, healthy trees and regular production. Mature pecan trees can have double the amount of foliage with three or four zinc sprays in May and June. Leaves on mature trees can grow six feet instead of six inches in one year if zinc is sprayed onto the foliage every two to three weeks from May until August. This is of course in combination with a good management program.

The homeowner should use two teaspoons of zinc sulfate or NZN in one gallon of water.

Other forms of zinc, such as zinc chelates or tree injectors, have been tested, but have not been found to be an effective source of zinc for pecans in Texas.

Zinc is utilized by pecan foliage for the manufacture of a growth hormone called indole-acetic-acid. Without zinc and indole-acetic-acid pecan growth is greatly reduced. The leaves will be small and the shoots will be short and in clusters forming what is commonly called "zinc rosette." Zinc is not readily translocated from shoot; consequently, frequent zinc sprays are needed if new growth is to receive zinc. This is also why good coverage is important.

There are over 600,000 acres of native pecan trees in Texas. Yet strange as it may seem, pecans are one of the few plants that cannot absorb zinc from the soil. Texas soils frequently contain very high levels of zinc, but because of the high pH nature of the alkaline soils, a high percentage of the soil zinc is not soluble in the soil water and is thus unavailable to the pecan. Applications of zinc to the soil are of no significant value to pecan trees in Texas.

IT MAY look good but it sure is uncomfortable. Though not the latest fashion, this purebred angus is merely enjoying the newest concept for controlling harmful insects. The new ear tag which has been cleared for use in all 50 states, provides 12-16 weeks' protection against horn flies, spinose ear ticks, and gulf coast ear ticks.

Water Inc. plans continue in area

BY SHEILA ECCLES

Water Inc., a non-profit organization of civic, corporate, and agriculture groups, is working to see that the state of Texas has a water plan for the future.

"It became clear that we would be running out of water someday and we are searching to find a way to replace the Ogallala supply," according to Duncan Ellison, Water, Inc. director of Lubbock.

Water, Inc. was founded 12 years ago with Texas Speaker of the House Bill Clayton as one of the original sponsors. The organization has members from New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas with Lloyd Calhoun of Hobbs, N.M. as President.

According to information from Water, Inc., although water is the most serious problem facing the High Plains of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico in the long term, the current water situation is not bleak.

While it is true that wells in a few scattered sectors of the region have gone dry or that water levels have dropped dramatically in recent years, more than 60 percent of the water in the Ogallala Aquifer, before it was developed, remains in place.

However, if something is not done to meet the long term problem, the area will sustain significant economic difficulties when the water supply dwindles to the point it is unable to meet area needs.

That is what Water Inc. is working toward, meeting future needs for the region.

Water importation has been seen as the most feasible solution to this problem and it has received the most support from the 5,000 members of Water, Inc.

Were it not for irrigated agriculture, the mainstay of the regional economy, the need for a supplemental water supply would not be so great. As it is, irrigated agriculture uses 95 percent of the water withdrawn from the aquifer. Because of

Soil Stewardship Week underway

The Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District will join in the nationwide celebration of Soil Stewardship Week to take place on May 11-18, according to an announcement by Neal Stoyall, Chairman of the Gray County S&WCD Board of Directors.

The National Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts has sponsored Soil Stewardship Week in the United States since 1955, in cooperation with the nation's nearly 3,000 soil and water conservation districts. Informative material on the Soil Stewardship Week theme each year is distributed through local conservation districts.

this, the importation project could be justified on the basis of agricultural need.

However, imported water would still be available for residential and industrial use.

Legislation passed during the last session of the Texas Legislature and signed into law by Governor Bill Clements brings water importation a step closer to reality. The law sets up the mechanism by which an import authority can be set up on the West Texas High Plains once a supplemental source of water becomes available.

Fruitful talks with neighboring states including Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, have all been backed by Water Inc., and have brought importation further along the road from concept to reality.

Were importation merely a regional bailout program, it would have been doomed from the beginning. No doubt it will benefit the area by sustaining irrigation, but in these times of soaring balance of trade deficits, agriculture remains among the few bright spots in the country's international trade picture.

Since much of the agricultural commodities produced in the region goes for export, the ability of the High Plains farmer to produce affects more than just his family and the community, it affects the nation as well.

This strengthens the Water, Inc., case for importation and may ultimately prove to be the determining factor in insuring a supplemental water supply for the region.

Without that water the area is not doomed, but it will be only a fraction as productive in an era that will demand increased agricultural output.

TDA releases farm facts

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
The Texas Department of Agriculture was established in 1907, according to the Texas Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. The Texas Department of Agriculture employs 502 persons with appropriation levels of $13,763,121 for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1980 and $14,122,431 for 1981.

The Department is assigned responsibility for enforcement of agricultural laws, administration of agricultural service programs, and protection of consumers with respect to weights, measures, packaging, labeling and marketing products.

The Department is in charge of the Egg Marketing Advisory Board program, the State Seed and Plant Board activities, and the Texas Commodity Referendum Act programs.

FARM CREDIT

The Farm Credit Administration reports that a record $59.1 billion was loaned by the Farm Credit system during the 1979 year, this represents an increase of 31.6 percent over 1978.

Loans outstanding at the end of 1979 totaled $58.5 billion, and increase of 23.5 percent over 1978.

The system obtains its funds through the sale of securities in the nation's capital market. The cost of this type of credit has increased considerably and the reports reveal that farm credit banks paid more than 15 percent for the money.

The farm credit system is composed of three lending groups: 12 federal land banks; 12 federal intermediate credit banks; 12 banks, 12 banks for cooperatives.

G-522A

Look to the G for leadership in yield potential.

Developed from the popular G-522, this hot new Funk's G-Hybrid promises to move sorghum yield potential one more step ahead. Plus it's now available as HERBISHIELD seed, meaning you can use MILOCEP® herbicide for tougher weed and grass control.

G-522A has already shown impressive yield results. It produces excellent quality grain with good weathering ability.

This medium-maturity hybrid stands strong and exceptionally uniform. Has good head exertion. Its semi-open heads dry down on time to help you beat harsh fall weather.

G-522A has resistance to Strain A of Maize Dwarf Mosaic Virus (MDMV-A). Plus good tolerance to anthracnose and races 1 and 3 head smut.

Widely adapted, G-522A is a good choice for either dryland or irrigation. Adapts to various soil types.

Give this new development a tryout in your program. It could top the best you've grown.

G-522A, HERBISHIELD or regular. Setting a new pace in sorghum.

Funk's is a brand name. Numbers identify varieties. The limitation of warranty and remedy on the bag attached to each bag of Funk's G-Hybrid seed is a part of the terms of sale thereof.

NBC schedules 5 new shows

NEW YORK (AP) — Optimistic in spite of last season's low ratings, NBC has unveiled a prime-time schedule for the 1980-81 television year that includes only five new series and new time periods for four continuing programs.

"We have just concluded a season that leaves us very optimistic about the future," said Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC's entertainment division, in pulling the wraps from the network's fall lineup.

"Our overall schedule posted ratings improvement for the full season... We have narrowed the margin between first and third and are now just 2.2 points from the top and well within striking distance," he said.

CBS won the recently completed season by one-tenth of a ratings point over ABC, the four-time champion. CBS and ABC previously announced their schedules for the 1980-81 season.

The NBC lineup for September includes a new sports-variety series, a first for prime-time, a non-fiction variety hour from the creators of NBC's successful "Real People" program, and a weekly serial from the producers of CBS' "Dallas."

Four series were axed to make room for the new programs, and a fifth, "The Rockford Files," was dropped by NBC when the star, James Garner, refused to film another season.

Canceled were "The Big Show" and "United States," both begun this spring, and two series introduced in previous seasons, "The Best of Saturday Night Live" and "Hello Larry."

The four shows getting new timeslots are "Sanford," which moves to Wednesday evenings at 9:30 EDT; "Prime Time Friday," formerly "Prime Time Saturday" and "Prime Time Sunday," which takes a 10 p.m. start; "Buck Rogers," which moves to Saturdays at 8, and "BJ and the Bear," which will follow that program at 9.

The new series, with descriptions by NBC, include:

- "Thursday Games," Thursdays 8-9 p.m., from Don Ohlmeyer, who was to have produced the 1980 Olympic Games for NBC Sports, featuring "average citizens having plain, simple fun while engaging in sporting activities they personally find competitively stimulating."
- "Speak Up America," Fridays 9-10 p.m., from George Schlatter, producer of "Real People," in which "people get a chance to react before the cameras on events and issues that vitally effect their lives."
- "Flamingo Road," Thursdays 10-11 p.m., from the producers of "Dallas," starring Christina Raines, Mark Harmon and Kevin McCarthy in "the story of secrets, scandals and scheming in a small Southern town."
- "Harper Valley PTA," Tuesdays 9-10 p.m., with Barbara Eden as Stella Johnson, "an attractive, outspoken mother, recently widowed, who moves to a hotbed of hypocrisy with her daughter."
- "Hill Street Blues," Saturdays, 10-11 p.m., "a large-cast police comedy-drama... set at a precinct in the worst neighborhood in a large community."

Carew and 'The Righteous Apples'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Righteous Apples" is not exactly comedy and not exactly a drama, but whatever it is, it's a first.

The half-hour show is the first American-made situation comedy — or dramatic comedy — for public television. The first of 10 will be aired by many Public Broadcasting Service stations Thursday night.

The Righteous Apples is a high school rock group with three black members and two white members. The show centers on the band members' involvement in real-life situations that affect minority people.

In the premiere episode, they help rescue a once-famous blind blues guitarist — marvelously played by Vernon Washington — from a seedy old-age home that preys on the elderly. They also spirit out his ladyfriend and get them to the altar.

"The Righteous Apples" got its start when the Corporation for Public Broadcasting awarded its first fellowship three years ago to Topper Carew. Carew, who'd just received his Ph.D., had created "Rebo" and produced "Say Brother" for public TV.

Carew used the fellowship to study television at the BBC in London, then with Universal Studios and Tandem Productions in Hollywood.

"They thought Topper Carew could be a person who could be very resourceful to the system," he said. "So they gave me money for research and development and out of that came 'The Righteous Apples.'"

The CPB was so impressed with the pilot that it advanced $1.3 million for the production of 10 episodes.

If "The Righteous Apples" seems more situation than comedy and more enlightening than entertaining, that's part of the plan.

"You can't equate it with anything you've ever seen on television," said Carew, who is president of the Rainbow Television Workshop, so named because its directors come from many ethnic backgrounds.

"We've placed more emphasis on dramatic performance. We don't do the show in front of an audience so the dramatic emphasis will be greater."

FARM FORUM

by Gary Sutherland

Telling it like it is would involve some major changes for the government economists who announce the latest round of price increases to the rest of us. Specifically, the best correction they could make would be to separate the cost of food from the cost of convenience. For instance, we might hear that food prices for the previous quarter have gone up 4 percent. In all probability the actual cost of food may have increased only one percent, or in fact, may have actually decreased. What has increased and continues to increase is the cost of convenience. This cost includes everything that happens to food... from the farm to the kitchen. Shipping, packing, canning, freezing, processing, mixing, wholesaling and retailing are all included. For consumers (that's all of us who eat) to really understand price increases we need to take a look behind the announced figures to really realize where the main problems lie.

Wheeler honor students named from 1980 grads

Wheeler High School Baccalaureate Service will be held on Sunday May 18, at 8 p.m.

Graduation exercises will be held on Friday, May 23 at 8 p.m. The 1979-80 Wheeler Valedictorian and Salutatorian have been announced by Mr. Bob Wills, Wheeler High School Principal.

Richard Brown was named Valedictorian, and Lynette Gaines, earned the position of Salutatorian.

Brown has been an all around student at Wheeler High School, this year he has served as president of the Student Council. He has been active in the Key Club, FFA, Band, and a member of the annual staff. Brown has also qualified for the regional UIL contests in three of the past four years.

In athletics, Brown was a member of the state championship football team, where he received recognition as All State Quarterback. He has been a member of the basketball, track and tennis teams, all of which earned district championships this year. Upon graduation Brown will attend Oklahoma State University planning to major in business.

Lynette Gaines will graduate with a four year average of 92.22. She has also been an all round student, participating as class officer positions, class favorite, National Honor Society member, and FHA officer. She has membership in band, pep club, annual staff, and served as 1st. St. in the Flag Corps.

Lynette has been a member of the basketball and track teams for four years. As a senior, she played on the district championship basketball team and was a regional qualifier in track. Her plans for the future are uncertain.

The old and the young have much to give each other, and they do in a trio of spring books that show just how vital this link can be.

The best is Jerome Brooks' "Make Me A Hero" (Dutton, $8.95), a story set in Chicago during World War II.

Twelve-year-old Jake Ackerman is troubled by notions of courage, cowardice, and what it might mean to be a man. His three brothers are away at war, and their absence preoccupies his parents. Jake feels a need to carve his own niche, to — like his brothers — win his parents' esteem. His inadequacies are compounded by his inability to fend off neighborhood bully Howie Woscowicz, and by haunting memories of an early childhood chum whose foolish courage in standing up to Howie cost him his life.

For Jake, self-determined action means taking a job, which brings him face to face with Izzie Gold, "old man Gold," a small factory owner who challenges Jake to work ("You responsible? I can't have loafers around here! Here we work, do you understand?") and in the course of teaching him the special tricks to making desk pads, instills the dictum to always "make everything into something."

Contact between Jake and Izzie isn't frequent or easygoing, but it's profound. Old man Gold's approval grows important to Jake, and his "everything into something" attitude becomes a theme, echoing in Jake's mind and evolving into a kind of ethic that ultimately stills Jake's unrest.

Brooks' portrayal of a boy groping his way to maturity and self-esteem is impressive, but what makes this book shine is the writing — fresh, probing and uncompromising. What must have been an autobiographical germ has been shaped into a rich, perceptive story. Jake's heart and mind are real and the lessons he learns will endure.

In Delores Beckman's "My Own Private Sky" (Dutton, $7.95), a vibrant 68-year-old sitter bolsters a young boy's flagging ego and gives him the courage to face his fears. To 11-year-old Arthur Elliot, Mrs. Kearns looks eccentric, with a "brown and crusty face," hair that looks "like spikes of grass that had not been watered for a long time," and beat-up glasses that have lenses "so thick her eyes filled the whole circles, like brown aggies." He's on guard, but Mrs. Kearns' matter-of-factness wins him over. Her zest for life is contagious, and Arthur begins feeling better about his flawed looks and his worries — in particular, swimming.

Harvies have successful season despite not winning district

By L.D. STRATE
News Sports Editor

Although the Pampa Harvesters didn't repeat their District 3-AAAA championship performance of a year ago, head coach Steve Scott still considered 1980 a successful season.

"We came on strong and proved we had the best team in the district, even though we didn't win the title," Scott said. "I felt like we had a great team. I know several of the fans commented that this was one of the most exciting Pampa baseball teams they've ever seen."

Pampa's 4-3 loss to Tascosa in the second half of district turned out to be the game that kept the Harvesters out of the playoffs. Ironically, it was an 8-6 loss to Tascosa in the first half of district that provided the spark for Pampa.

"It was embarrassing to lose in front of the home crowd like we did after jumping off to a 5-0 lead," Scott said, recalling the game. "However, from that point on our attitude changed from passive to aggressive."

Pampa stood 6-7 after the Tascosa loss, but then went on a five-game winning streak before falling to the Rebels again. The Harvesters then closed the season with impressive wins over Palo Duro and Amarillo High to finish 13-10. Pampa had a 5-3 district mark.

Had Palo Duro defeated Caprock in the district finale, the Harvesters would have found themselves in the playoffs. Caprock, however, clobbered Palo Duro, 13-5, to win the district title for the first time since 1975.

"We knew at the beginning of the season we were going to have to score six to seven runs per game to win," Scott said. "Had we been able to do that, we would have been 20-3 right now."

Seven of the ten Harvester losses were by a total of ten runs.

Although Pampa's hitting attack mustered a dazzling .340 team average, it was solid defensive play that was the Harvesters' main asset.

"Our four infielders combined (third baseman Greg Quarles, shortstop Joe Jeffers, second baseman Mark Jennings, and first baseman Keenan Henderson) made only ten errors," Scott said. "That's unbelievable."

Their young pitching staff, consisting of one senior and four juniors, may have been the surprise of the district. The quintet combined for a respectable 3.65 earned run average.

"We had some exciting young pitchers like Andy Richardson, Scott John, and Leroy Kuhn who will be the nucleus of the team next year," Scott said. "Our pitching staff should be very strong."

John, who posted a 3-1 mound mark, had the lowest earned run average (1.62) on the staff. Richardson was the workhorse, pitching 45 innings and compiling a 4-3 record. Kuhn, 3-2, was the strikeout leader with 36 whiffs. All three are juniors.

Mickey Bynum, the only senior, had a 2-1 record despite pitching only 13 innings.

Senior second sacker Mark Jennings wrapped up a brilliant high school career by batting .467 to lead the Harvesters. In three years, Jennings had a .400 batting average, was all-district three years, and was named sophomore of the year in District 3-AAAA. He also led the team in homeruns (5) and hits (35).

Four regulars—Richardson, .395; Keenan Henderson, .351; Steve McDougall, .342; and Monte Covalt (318)—joined Jennings in batting over .300.

Parttime starters and pinchhitters played an important role in the Harvesters' hefty team batting average. They included Clay Coffee (.500), Mark Qualls (.417), John (.409), and Bret Atchley (.380).

Top base stealer was McDougall, who swiped 27 bases and also led the team in runs scored with 31. Richardson led in doubles with nine and Henderson led in triples with four.

Scott said Jennings, Jeffers, and catcher Clyde Coffee will probably play college baseball somewhere next year.

Jennings not only swings a powerful bat, but plays a steady second base. Both Jeffers (.275) and Coffee (.254) had early-season problems at the plate, but are perhaps the best fielders at their positions in the district. Jeffers came up with sparkling plays time after time to kill rallies while Coffee was a rugged, aggressive backstop who was adept at handling the pitchers.

The Harvesters, which compiled a 46-24 record over the past three seasons, will be honored at a banquet at 7 p.m. Monday in the Optimist Club Building.

"I'd like to urge all the fans to come out and honor these players," Scott said. "Besides being outstanding athletes, they're a bunch of good citizens who were willing to sacrifice their own personal interests for the good of the team."

40-man field set for Pampa Merchants Classic

The 40-man field is complete for the first Pampa Merchants Bowling Classic May 17-18 at Harvester Lanes.

The final entries were submitted last week for the Classic, which will have a television-type format modeled after the Professional Bowlers Association.

Bowlers, who will bid for the $200 first-place prize, are Don Hoskins, Darrell Danner, Benny Horton, Gordon Taylor, Forrest Cole, Dan Carter, Bob Shelton, Ernie Byars, Randy Morris, Lonnie Nunley, Lonnie Parsley, Buddy Epperson, Charlie Mears, Leon Harris, Leroy Proctor, Joe Fox, Bill Morehead, Danny Digner, Rickey Bryan, Rick McElliott, Carroll Pettit, Don Mansel, Kerwin Davis, Ken Weaver, Jim Akin, Dale Taylor, Bob Graves, Bill Downs, Blaine Smyth, Donny Nail, Luis Hernandez, Tim Hill, Tommy Florer, Joe Wilson, Curtis Haynes, Ronnie Parsley, Fred O'Hara, David Wortham, Jerry Parsley, and Howard Musgraves.

The runnerup receives $100 while third place pays $75, fourth, $60, and fifth, $45.

As a bonus, the winner of each match in Saturday's 10-game qualifying round will receive $22 from participating merchants. Merchants involved in giving money or gift certificates are Harvester Lanes, Avon, Parsley Sheet and Metal, Playmore Music, Hilco, Gip's Barber Shop, K&M Cattle Company, McMinn Welding, Circle B Meat Company, Topographic Engineering, Mr. Treat, Clements Cleaners, and Dunlap's Department Store.

The top five bowlers after the qualifying round meet in head to head competition at 3 p.m. in Sunday's finals. The top qualifier bowls only one game and that will be for the championship. The qualifying round Sat. day also starts at 3 p.m.

"We had four or five bowlers that wanted to get in but were too late, so we've developed some interest," said tournament director Buddy Epperson. "Hopefully, we can get more entries next year if this year's tournament goes over real good."

Epperson, who is one of the entrants, said the match-play format Sunday should be interesting from a spectator's point of view.

"I don't expect to be among the top five, but the possibility of watching it is exciting to me," he added.

Genuine Risk enters Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — A battle of the sexes is expected to highlight the Preakness Stakes when Genuine Risk, the East Coast favorite, competes with her male counterpart from the West Coast, Codex.

Genuine Risk, the first filly to win the Kentucky Derby in 65 years, could become the first of her sex to win the Preakness Stakes since Nellie Morse crossed the finish line in 1924.

The owners of Genuine Risk kept the racing world in suspense until Friday when they announced her entry in the 13-16 mile race at Pimlico Race Course.

Had she not been entered, Genuine Risk, who is due to arrive at the Preakness barn this weekend, would have been the first Derby winner since 1959, when Tony Lee went back to California to bow out of the race for the second year of the Triple Crown.

"We weren't waiting to see who was in the race or anything like that," said Bert Firestone from his Cotocin Stud farm in Waterford, Va. "We just wanted to make sure she was all right. We were only waiting to see how she responded to the Derby, and she's come back like a tiger."

"We think she's better at a mile and a half (the Belmont distance), but if we had skipped the Preakness and won the Belmont, we would have asked ourselves, 'What did you do that for?'" No, our main concern was the condition of the filly, that's all." Firestone added.

Only two fillies have ever run in more than one of the Triple Crown races, a series which concludes this year with the Belmont Stakes on June 7.

Careful finished fifth in the Derby in 1921 and 12th in the Preakness, while Nellie Flag was fourth in the 1935 Derby and seventh in the Preakness. No filly has started in the Preakness since 1939.

Besides Genuine Risk and Codex, the field also includes Jack Klugman's Jakkin Klugman, the Derby's show horse, Judith Zouck's Samoyed and J.K. Perrin's Knight Landing, second in the Woodlawn Stakes.

The status of Townsend B. Martin's Colonel Moran and Loblobly Stable's Temperance Hill was expected to be announced today after the Withers at Aqueduct.

A decision is expected Sunday on Locust Hill Farm Blue Ensign, the winner of the Woodlawn Stakes at Pimlico last week.

Two possible entries from Mexico, Pikotazo and Poker Point, were declared out of the Preakness Friday when the owners and the U.S. Department of Agriculture could not agree on quarantine arrangements.

Shooting results

Pampa shooters fared well during a Hunter's Pistol Metallic Silhouette Match held recently in Amarillo.

Local winners and their scores were Richard Nicholas, Men's AA, 26; Rick Swope, Men's A, 21; Joe Gridley, Men's B, 17; Diana Tidwell, Ladies B, 11.

Pampa made a clean sweep of the team events. Gary Clark and Gary Clark Jr. captured the two-man title. Juanita Nicholas and Richard Nicholas won the mixed championship while the Nicholas' combined with Rick Swope and Jim Barnes to take the four-man crown.

Gary Clark took third in Class AAA with a 26.

Dixie in first place

After two weeks of play in the Pampa National Little League, Dixie Parts is leading with a perfect 4-0 record.

Dixie Parts defeated OCAW, 19-9, Friday night in a closer game than the score indicated. After six regulation innings the score was tied at 9-all. Both teams had to pull their pitchers after the sixth frame since they are only allowed to pitch six innings per week.

Dixie plated 10 runs in the top of the seventh while OCAW was held scoreless in the bottom of the seventh. Brett Mitchell was the winning pitcher.

In an earlier game Friday, Moose Lodge pulled out a 10-9 victory over Dunlap after trailing 8-3 in the early innings.

Other games last week were Celanese 20, Duncan 10; Dixie 12, Dunlap 2; Glo-Valve 12, Celanese 1; Glo-Valve 12, Celanese 1; Glo-Valve 10, Cabot 4; Moose 9, OCAW 8; Duncan 11, Cabot 9.

League Standings: Dixie 4-0; Glo-Valve 3-1; Celanese 3-1; Moose 3-1; Cabot 2-2; Duncan 1-3; OCAW 0-4; Dunlap 0-4.

Watson takes early lead

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson, missing nine greens in a blustery 25-mile-an-hour wind, holed a 50-yard wedge for a birdie to shoot even par Saturday and take the early second-round lead in the Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Defending champion Watson, who opened with a six-under par 64, posted a 134 total which gave him a one-shot lead over Curtis Strange, who bogeyed the last two holes for a one-under par 69 and a 135 total for 36 holes.

"The wind was really throwing my timing off out there and you had to hit every shot solid," said Watson. "It was three to four clubs difference from Friday when you were hitting into the wind. You had to keep the ball down there among the ants."

Watson missed six straight greens but his magic putter saved him from disaster. He saved par seven times with his chipping and putting, the longest a 20-foot putt on the 470-yard par 4 No. 10.

Watson, who holed an eight iron for an eagle duce on Friday, produced another minor miracle on the 445-yard par 4 No. 14. He hit a poor drive and his second shot was half-a-football field short of the green. Watson then knocked the ball into the hole with a perfect wedge.

"We've got 36 holes Sunday and that will be tough physically if this wind keeps up," said Watson. "Psychologically, it helps if you have a real good first 18 holes. However, anybody in the field can come from behind easily."

Strange, fresh off his victory in the Houston Open last week when he defeated Lee Trevino in a playoff, three-putted the final hole to give Watson the lead after the morning round.

"I hate to play a good 16 holes then throw it away, but that's what I did," said Strange. "All I know is the wind was blowing like hell at 8 a.m. this morning and it never let up. Well, I got Trevino last week and it looks like I'll have to get Watson tomorrow."

Strange said "I don't feel 36 holes will bother me, if anything, I ought to last longer than some of the older fellows. I'm still confident and I'm not tired at all."

The 6,993-yard par 35-35 Preston Trail Golf Club dried out rapidly Saturday from Thursday's rains which forced a first-round postponement and Sunday's 36 holes.

Strange said "It will be nice to be paired with Watson Sunday because we haven't played together in two years. It would be nice to go head-to-head."

Watson is seeking his third consecutive Byron Nelson title and his fourth victory in the tournament in six years.

He came to the Nelson with back-to-back wins in the Tournament of Champions and the New Orleans.

American League roundup

BY HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

What was wrong with Ron Guidry? Elementary, my dear Watson.

"I found out what I was doing wrong. I was not pushing off and coming over the top like I did when I threw well." Guidry said Friday night after blanking Minnesota for 82-3 innings before needing last-out help from Rich Gossage as the New York Yankees defeated the Twins 5-2.

While Guidry was solving the mystery of three consecutive shaky outings, Dr. Bob Watson provided all the necessary assistance by driving in all five runs with a three-run homer in the first inning and a two-run double in the eighth.

In other American League action, the Baltimore Orioles downed the Milwaukee Brewers 5-2, the Kansas City Royals edged the Boston Red Sox 6-5, the Texas Rangers nipped the Chicago White Sox 2-1 in 11 innings, the Detroit Tigers shaded the California Angels 6-5 in 10 and the Cleveland Indians turned back the Seattle Mariners 4-1. The Toronto-Oakland game was rained out.

Willie Randolph led off the New York first with a single. Koozman misplayed Ruppert Jones' bunt and Watson followed with a 400-foot shot over the right-center field fence. Watson added a two-run double off John Verhoeven in the eighth, although the runs were charged to Koozman.

Meanwhile, Guidry scattered nine hits, walked two and struck out eight. He lost his shutout bid with two out in the ninth when Dave Edwards singled and Willie Norwood homered. After walking Butch Wynegar, Guidry gave way to Gossage, who fanned pinch hitter Rick Sofield.

Orioles 5, Brewers 2

Rich Dauer, batting .156 going into the game, knocked in two runs with a sacrifice fly and a bloop single, while .208 hitter Mark Belanger added a pair of RBI singles. The Orioles scored twice in the second inning to take a 3-2 lead. Singles by Doug DeCinces and Lee May and a bunt single by Rick Dempsey filled the bases with none out and Dauer followed with his sacrifice fly. One out later, Belanger singled home the go-ahead run. Dauer's pop-fly single got a run home in the sixth and Belanger singled home another run after a double by Dauer in the ninth.

George Brett drove in three runs with a triple and a bases-loaded walk. Brett, plagued by a heel injury since April 25, put the Royals in front to stay with a two-run triple against Bob Stanley in the third inning. Then he accounted for what proved to be the winning run by walking on four pitches with the bases loaded and two out in the sixth against Tom Burgmeier. That gave the Royals a 6-2 lead and Dan Quisenberry put down a three-run Boston uprising in the seventh, including Dwight Evans' solo homer. Boston's Tony Perez extended his hitting streak to 17 games while Jim Rice broke an 0-for-18 slump with a single in the sixth and then collected the 1,000th hit of his career in the ninth.

Rangers 2, White Sox 1

Jason Thompson homered off the bottom of the 11th inning with a home run off the top of the left field fence, his second of the game. Zisk also homered in the second inning, his first two-homer game for the Rangers. Zisk's blasts made a winner of relief ace Jim Kern, who came on with runners on first and third and one out in the top of the 11th, struck out pinch hitter Thad Bosley and retired Lamar Johnson on a fly ball.

Tigers 6, Angels 5

Jason Thompson homered with one out in the top of the 10th inning to give Detroit the victory and send the slumping Angels to their fourth consecutive defeat. Thompson's home run off John Montague came after Champ Summers popped out, ending his 17-game hitting streak. Detroit took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on Richie Hebner's bases-loaded double.

Racing pigeon results

Marion Waldrop had the first-place pigeon in a Top Of Texas Racing Pigeon meet held recently.

Waldrop's bird made the 500-mile trip from Lordsburg, New Mexico to Pampa traveling at 729.30 yards per minute.

Other placings and times were Margaret McPhillips, second, 647.29, and sixth, 577.11; Jim Cantrell, third, 628.44; Jerry Mirabella, fourth, 608.50; V.C. Moore, fifth, 586.47, and seventh, 574.37.

There were 63 birds flying in cloudy, calm weather.

SMU ends baseball

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist has called an end to its baseball program, one season earlier than had been planned.

Athletic Director Russ Potts announced Thursday that SMU has dropped baseball from its intercollegiate athletic program effective immediately.

SMU had planned to drop the program after all current scholarships had run out, but Potts said he met with the team Thursday and was told most players wanted to transfer to other schools.

"If we discontinue the team now they won't have to sit out a year when they transfer. There is no point keeping a skeleton team and having them hurt by it as well, so we will drop the sport now and honor our financial aid commitments," said Potts.

National League roundup

Bill Madlock is still sweating out his appeal of a suspension and $5,000 fine. Meanwhile, the Pittsburgh Pirate infielder is making other National League teams pay for it.

Playing on what virtually amounts to borrowed time, Madlock made the most of it Friday night, slugging a home run and game-winning sacrifice fly to help the Pirates beat the San Diego Padres 4-3.

"I hit a lot of homers here in San Diego, but I don't know why," said Madlock, whose solo shot in the eighth pulled the Pirates into a 3-3 tie before his sacrifice fly won it in the ninth. "I usually try to hit the ball on the ground."

Madlock said he "hit a fastball up and out" off Bob Shirley for his homer. Then in the ninth, he slugged his game-winning fly ball off San Diego's ace reliever, Rollie Fingers.

Although Madlock has been suspended and fined for a run-in with umpire Gerry Crawford during a game against Montreal, he has been allowed to play pending his appeal.

Elsewhere in the National League, the San Francisco Giants stopped the Chicago Cubs 6-3; the New York Mets nipped the Montreal Expos 2-1; the St. Louis Cardinals pounded the Los Angeles Dodgers 15-7; the Atlanta Braves defeated the Houston Astros 5-4 and the Cincinnati Reds turned back the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2.

Reliever Kent Tekulve tied a major league record with his third victory in three games. Tekulve, who has not allowed a run in his last 11 appearances, retired the final six straight batters to improve his record to 5-0.

Tekulve's third triumph in three games tied a record held by six others but most recently accomplished by Sparky Lyle with the New York Yankees in 1977.

Jack Clark drove in three runs and Jim Wohlford hit a solo homer as San Francisco beat Chicago and stopped a four-game losing streak. Vida Blue, 3-2, went the distance for the Giants, scattering 11 hits while striking out four and walking two.

Blue was pressed into service when scheduled starter John Montefusco came down with a sore throat. Dennis Lamp, 2-3, took the loss.

Mets 2, Expos 1

Steve Henderson hit a run-scoring single in the fifth inning and Craig Swan pitched a three-hitter as New York defeated Montreal, 2-2, struck out seven and walked none in his strong performance, retiring the last 15 batters.

The Mets built the winning run as Lee Mazzilli reached base after being struck by a pitch from Steve Rogers, 2-4, and promptly stole second. After a short run delay, Mazzilli moved to third on a long fly by Mike Jorgensen before scoring on

Cardinals 15, Dodgers 7

Ted Simmons drove in five runs with a three-run homer, single and groundout to pace an 18-hit attack and lead St. Louis past Los Angeles.

Garry Templeton had three hits, one a two-run homer, for St. Louis and George Hendrick added a solo homer and a two-run single. Ken Oberkfell added three hits and scored three times as the Cardinals won for the fourth straight time.

Pedro Borbon, 2-0, was the St. Louis winner in relief of starter Roy Thomas.

Braves 5, Astros 4

Brian Asselstine hit his first home run of the season, a two-run shot in the sixth inning, to lead Atlanta over Houston despite four homers by the Astros.

The score was tied 3-3 and Jeff Burroughs was on base with a single when Asselstine connected against Ken Forsch to hand the Houston right-hander his first loss of the season after four victories.

Terry Puhl hit two homers for the Astros while Joe Morgan and Rafael Landestoy slugged solo shots.

Reds 5, Phillies 2

Sam Mejias drove in three runs with a fifth-inning triple and rookie left-hander Charlie Leibrandt scattered seven hits to pace Cincinnati over Philadelphia.

Leibrandt survived a shaky start to post his third victory in five decisions.

Jabbar dominates as Lakers rip 76ers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 35 points and helped dominate both backboards as the Los Angeles Lakers ripped the Philadelphia 76ers 111-101 Saturday to take a 2-1 lead in their National Basketball Association championship series.

The victory was the first for the Lakers in Philadelphia after nine losses since 1975 and regained the home-court edge for the Western Division champions.

The fourth game in the best-of-seven series will be played here Sunday afternoon (3 p.m. EDT). The Lakers won the first game of the series but were beaten by the 76ers on Wednesday and came here seeking to regain their home-court advantage.

The Lakers turned this nationally televised game into a rout in the final 4:29 of the second quarter when they outscored Philadelphia 16-4 to assume a 58-44 halftime advantage.

In the third period, the closest the 76ers could get was 12, the last time at 60-48 with 9:32 remaining.

Los Angeles led by at least 15 points through the balance of the quarter and started the final period with an 84-65 lead.

In the final period, the 76ers started several runs in an effort to cut down the huge deficit, but each time Abdul-Jabbar and Earvin "Magic" Johnson retaliated for the Lakers and maintained a handy lead.

The closest Philadelphia could come was 11 points at 94-83.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 12 of his game-leading total in the final period and now has 106 points in the three games of the series.

Julius "Dr. J." Erving scored 24 points to lead the Eastern Division champions, while Darryl Dawkins had 21. Another big contributor for the Lakers was Norm Nixon, who had 22 points.

The Lakers led the entire game after Jabbar opened the scoring with a six-foot hook shot over 7-foot Caldwell Jones.

The Lakers opened a 12-4 lead with 8:05 left in the first quarter with Jabbar and Jamaal Wilkes each contributing a pair of field goals in the quick getaway.

The 76ers were cold, and the aggressive Lakers took advantage to increase their lead to 13 on a layup by Wilkes with 1:07 remaining. The lead soared to 15 on a 20-foot jumper by Mike Cooper, but the Lakers settled for a 31-18 advantage starting the second quarter.

The 76ers made their only charge of the game in the second period with Erving scoring eight points as they three times reduced the Los Angeles lead to just two points.

It was 38-36 on a 20-foot jumper by Henry Bibby with 7:32 left in the half, and 40-38 on a six-foot banker by Bobby Jones. The last time the 76ers got as close as two was at 42-40 after an 18-foot jumper by Lionel Hollins.

After that it was all downhill for Philadelphia before a home sellout crowd of 18,276. The Lakers won on their 16-4 tear, and it was all over.

Pole position an advantage at Indianapolis 500 race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Qualifying for the pole, the inside of the front row of the starting field for the Indianapolis 500 mile auto race, is more than a bid for prestige and publicity. It's a decided advantage to be in that front row, which is what made Saturday's first day of time trials so important at the motor speedway.

In the past quarter century, the fastest qualifier on the first day of time trials has gone on to win the Indianapolis 500 five times. The second place starter has won four times, and the No. 3 qualifier has won three times.

Only four times since 1955, in fact, has the winner come from farther back than eighth in the 33-car starting field. And the last one to do that was Johnny Rutherford, who threaded his way to the front from a 25th-place start en route to his first Indy victory in 1974.

The circumstances that year were exceptional, however, as Rutherford still had the second fastest qualifying speed, based on four-lap averages around the 2 1/2-mile Indianapolis Motor Speedway track.

The problem was that his car developed engine trouble during practice and was not repaired in time for him to compete for the pole on the first of the four qualifying days.

The format for the time trials puts the entire pack of first day qualifiers ahead of those on each subsequent day, until the entire field is filled.

Then, when the 11 rows of three cars each have been filled, the bumping process begins. Any faster car will dislodge the slowest car "on the bubble," regardless when the first one qualified, and the entire field will move up one spot. So in 1974, when Rutherford qualified at 190.446 mph, he had to start in the ninth row, although only A.J. Foyt's 191.632 speed bettered his.

When Rutherford won the race for the second time in 1976, he started from the pole, as did Rick Mears last year. So the frantic, weeklong efforts of the drivers and their crews were not over-emphasized in preparation for today's run for glory.

That Tom Sneva's one and four-lap records of 203.620 and 202.156 were in no danger in today's qualifications was a foregone conclusion. Rutherford, who had most of the top practice speeds all week, predicted the pole winner would go no faster than 193.

Friday's last mad scramble climaxed a steady rise in practice speeds, including a blistering 193.507 by rookie Tim Richmond. The last — and only — rookie to win the pole position was Walt Faulkner in 1950 at the then-record speed of 134.343 mph.

Rutherford finished Friday's practice with a 193.009 clocking, and Foyt, the only four-time Indy winner logged his best speed of the week at 192.555.

UIL to study transfer rule

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The University Interscholastic League has appointed a 21-member committee to study its rule that restricts schoolboy football and basketball players who transfer to different schools.

The committee, including state legislators, high school superintendents and directors of education associations, will hold its first meeting May 21 in Austin.

The transfer rule prohibits a student from playing varsity basketball or football for one year after transferring. It does not apply to seniors.

The transfer rule has been the subject of several lawsuits as well as a few bills introduced in the Texas Legislature, said Bailey Marshall, UIL director. "We feel it is necessary to study all aspects of the rule and feasible alternatives to it."

The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals in Austin upheld the transfer rule in March. The rule was challenged by John Sullivan of Austin, whose family moved here from Vermont in 1977.

He was not allowed to play during his junior year at Anderson High School because of the rule.

CHASE ROACH, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Roach of Pampa, exhibits a string of eleven crappie and one perch he caught recently near a Mobeetie farm pond. They ranged in size from one pound to two pounds. Chase fished in the fish from his "Bass Chaser" boat.

Eileen Fulton stars as Lisa Coleman on "As the World Turns."

Eileen Fulton may have her problems as Lisa on "As the World Turns" but in real life Eileen is quite a busy yet contented lady. Ms. Fulton is an accomplished singer and has created a one woman musical revue that she has taken around the country. The latest calls of "encore" have come in from Omaha Nebraska where she is already slated for another appearance in June. Next, however, she'll take her act to East Lansing, Michigan to help open a new theater complex at the Michigan State Theater.

Another busy lady these days is Rosemary Forsyth (Laura, "Days of Our Lives"). Much in demand, Rosemary had to turn down some nice acting offers lately. But it was all for a good cause. Forsyth had to clear her calendar for a very special event, her wedding. She married LA clothing executive Skip Horwitz, after a whirlwind courtship of only a month, April 21. Well wishers can send along their greetings c/o Lorie DeWaal, Garrett Simes Co. 8732 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, California 90069.

In the category of "everything's relative," there are some cast changes on "Edge of Night" and "As the World Turns" that will juice up the lives of numerous serial residents. The character of Nick Andropoulos (on ATWT) played by Michael Forrest will be less than happy when his brother Steve played by Frank Runyeon arrived on May 7. Also on ATWT Peter Brouwer's alter-ego Brad Hollister will be in for some surprises when his brother Eric shows up as played by Peter Reckell. Finally, on EON Mike and Nancy Karr (Forrest Compton and Ann Flood) have just welcomed a long lost nephew from South

Recap 5/5 - 5/9
Preview 5/12 - 5/16

AS THE WORLD TURNS — James has his way with Barbara and she finally agrees to marry him. Tom is still hurting over her rejection of him but tries not to show it. Brad and Dee are still a tragic mismatched love pair. When his father suffers a heart attack, Brad's brother arrives to comfort him. Despite his efforts to forget the past, Nick is haunted by it, he still can't forgive Steve.

THIS WEEK: Annie is tempted by Jeff's persuasion. Dee temporarily forgets her own pain.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW — Liza is getting very upset about the security precautions that Travis has agreed to. He tries to sweet-talk her out of her anger but she is adamant. Jo has her hands full with Suzy.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS — Les is even more deeply involved with Jonas. Jill's attempt to turn over a new leaf may be a passing fancy. Liz and Stu are determined not to let anything part them again.

THE GUIDING LIGHT — Mike is consumed with guilt about the fatal car accident. Ed finds the role of peacemaker a difficult and frustrating one. Is there much hope for Hope?

ANOTHER WORLD — Vivien is interviewed by Miranda for a job. Tracy almost dies on the operating table when Kevin is too shaky to hold an instrument. Russ takes over and saves the day. Jason gets drunk and heaves some insults at Mitch and Rachel. Mitch still feels awkward around Rachel. Kevin confides to Pat that he is worn out and fears his career is over.

THIS WEEK: The pressure on Kit does not let up. Rachel finds it difficult to keep covering up the truth.

THE DOCTORS — Nola drinks to forget losing her baby to Mona. Sister Agnes is persuaded by Calvin to let Curtis have the operation. It's touch and go but Curtis has successful surgery. The first time that Nola visits Jessica, Mona lays down the law and Nola threatens Mona. Despite Missy's determination not to see Luke, he forces his way into her room and tries to explain. This only upsets her. Drunk, Nola breaks into Mona's house.

THIS WEEK: Ashley can't cope with the truth about her unborn child. Nola takes desperate measures.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES — Lee is wary about Doug's plan to open a casino and the slow infiltration of Julie into his life. Joshua's mother and Mrs. Chisholm were friends. Chandler opposes, at least publicly, the gambling bill which pleases Don. Mickey continues to be in favor of it causing tension.

THIS WEEK: Doug has house and home problems. Don and Mickey square off on opposite sides.

EDGE OF NIGHT — Draper

may be onto something as he visits Monticello. Emily worries she will lose him. Logan is shocked when Ravin steals Jamie from under his nose but is determined to get him back. Kelly proves to be an interesting house guest for the Karrs. His talents as a puppeteer are also entertaining.

THIS WEEK: Emily tries to stand in the way of Draper's quest. Logan battles a determined Ravin.

GENERAL HOSPITAL — Alan tells Monica and Rick that he will give Monica a divorce as soon as he can quietly square things with Tracy. Rick tells Lesley to start divorce proceedings. Joe tries to win back Anne over lunch. Laura prepares to leave for Vegas resolving to tell Scotty the whole truth after she returns.

THIS WEEK: Alan's new hobby may spell disaster for Rick and Monica. Anne and Jeff view the negative aspects of their relationship.

ALL MY CHILDREN — After some persuasion by Mona, Erica decides to return to Pine Valley. Edna is caught in a lie and tries to cover up by telling Benny that her trip to Bermuda with Hank was a group trip. Phoebe overhears Edna's intimate talk with Hank and spills the beans to Benny. Erica walks into Tom's office to find Brooke and Tom in an embrace.

Handbook on deaths dispels the legend

HOW DID THEY DIE? By Norman & Betty Donaldson. St. Martin's, 398 Pages, $12.95.

A Columbus, Ohio, couple has compiled a handbook on prominent persons' deaths, ranging from Socrates to Elvis Presley. "How Did They Die?" is not as morbid as one might imagine. It offers detailed accounts on the final days, words and afflictions of 312 famous individuals throughout history. In addition, the authors — Norman and Betty Donaldson — provide brief biographical sketches where necessary.

The volume is arranged alphabetically, which creates some unusual juxtapositionings, like Lou Gehrig and Genghis Khan and Quisling and Sir Walter Raleigh.

The book's value is in its attempt to dispel legends around certain deaths and to explain many of them medically. When there are questions left unanswered — such as in the death of Marilyn Monroe or Christopher Marlowe — the authors ask them.

This "dictionary of death" is not without humor, though. Its anecdotes include Alexander Wolcott's remains arriving at his alma mater with 67 cents postage due and Oscar Wilde's comment in a shabby Paris room: "This wallpaper is killing me; one of us has to go."

The book does have some flaws, however. It states that Sir Francis Bacon contracted what proved to be a fatal case of bronchitis in March 1616, when, in fact, it was 1626. In another instance, the book errs in saying that George Washington died in January 1799; rather, it was December.

Don Adams skeptical of first movie role

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The huge billboard overlooking the Sunset Strip trumpets: "Would you believe Don Adams as Maxwell Smart in his first motion picture?"

Don Adams believes. "The Nude Bomb," which Universal is releasing this month, is indeed his first movie — ironically, since he is one of the world's greatest film fans and got his start in show business imitating the stars. Anyone starting in his first feature would be delighted with the billboard. Being a comedian, Adams found something to complain about.

"The picture," he grumbled. "It doesn't look like me. My friends call me up and say, 'Is that you on the billboard?' I think it's me. But why did they have to make me look like Quasimodo?"

As for "The Nude Bomb," he also has reservations.

"I hope it's good," he said. "I can't really tell anymore. I didn't go to any of the sneak previews, which I'm told went very well. I saw it cold in a projection room — not a good way to see a comedy. There were a lot of things taken out that I would like to see put back in."

"I've never thought that anything I did was good. Including 'Get Smart.' At the time I was dissatisfied with the reruns. Now that I see them in reruns, I find that 70 percent of them are very funny."

"The Nude Bomb" (working title: "The Return of Maxwell Smart") was a curious project from the start. Why would a studio invest $10 million in recreating a television series that ended its first run 10 years ago?

It didn't start out as a feature, Adams said. Universal originally planned to make a two-hour television movie that would serve as a pilot for a renewal of the TV series.

By grace, by law

A policeman who preaches is not a combination one would expect to find, but Pampa Police Department patrolman Stan Belt believes the two professions are compatible.

"Law enforcement is a job somebody has to do — someone who is not afraid to approach the public, someone who cares," he says.

"If more officers were practicing Christians, they would find it easier to deal with the people they find out on the streets," he adds.

Belt's weekdays are spent patrolling the streets of Pampa, protecting the citizens and enforcing the law.

On Sundays, however, the tall, light-haired cop is often found behind the pulpit sharing his faith with members of the Grace Baptist Church, where he fills in for the regular pastor whenever he's needed.

Presently working for his bachelor of arts in pre-ministerial speech, Belt plans to obtain a master's in Biblical anthropology and later a doctorate in theology.

Beginning his career in law enforcement as a MP (military police) in the Marines, Belt has been an officer three times on the Pampa Police Department. He has also served on police forces in Plainview, New Mexico, and California.

He attended the Albuquerque police academy and was the first out-of-town officer to attend the Amarillo police academy.

Presently in the process of restoring a two-story frame house, he and his wife of three years, Sandee, hope to adopt a child in the near future.

"We need someone to rattle around in that house besides us," he says.

Belt has a natural speaking ability and a biting wit that helps both his police work and his preaching. Once he tried to convince the Plainview police chief that he needed to wear a silver cross on the underside of his uniform collar.

"See," he remembers explaining to his superior, "if I stop someone for a traffic violation and they protest, I can just turn my collar over, tell them I'm the police chaplain and ask them if they want to pray about the ticket."

The idea did not appeal to the police chief, however, Belt says.

An avid anthropologist-archaeologist, Belt said he thinks these interests do not conflict with his religious beliefs.

His outspokenness on the subject did not always serve him in his college courses, though, he says. He remembers an anthropology class where the students were reading books on how man has developed, according to the Darwin theory, through the course of time.

"I've read a good book which explains all about that," he recalls telling his professor. "It was written by a king back in the 1600s, called the King James Bible."

The poor professor became hysterical and immediately dismissed class, Belt says, laughing. He said he heard that the next year, the first thing the college teacher asked his class was whether any of them were preachers, priests or religious in any way.

Bob Harrington, a New Orleans police commissioner often called "the chaplain of Bourbon Street" is a favorite personality of Belt's.

A quote attributed to the commissioner is particularly special to him, and applies to him, too, he says.

Harrington, it seems, is fond of saying, "If I can't get you by grace, I'll get you by law."

JIM SHELTON AND CINDY TROLLINGER

Mr. and Mrs. Gayle Trollinger, 2530 Charles, announce the engagement of their daughter, Cindy Gay, to Jim Shelton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Shelton of Childress.

The couple will be wed Aug. 2 in the First Baptist Church of Pampa.

The bride-elect, a 1977 graduate of Pampa High School, attended Texas Tech University and has been employed at Liberty State Bank in Lubbock.

Shelton, a 1976 graduate of Childress High School, will be a May graduate of Texas Tech. He plans to enter Texas Tech School of Law this fall.

ROY MCCLENDON AND FRANCES METZLER

Miss Metzler, Roy McClendon schedule vows

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Metzler of Leedey, Okla., announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances Leann Metzler of Skellytown, to Roy McClendon, also of Skellytown.

The couple will be married June 7 in the First Baptist Church of Leedey.

Miss Metzler, a 1973 graduate of Leedey High School, graduated in 1977 from Southwestern Oklahoma State University in Weatherford with a degree in elementary education. She is employed by White Deer Independent School District.

The prospective bridegroom is the son of H.M. McClendon of Clarendon and the late Mrs. McClendon. He is employed by Gulf Oil Co. in Borger.

These days, hardly any vacation except camping out with kids is cheap, nonfattening—and fun, too.

Unfortunately, it often isn't much fun for Mom who has to function as cook, dishwasher, first aid expert, tent caretaker, and, worst of all, family clothes washer. But there are ways to cut down on all these chores and enjoy the easy-living delights of camping along with the rest of the family.

Choose simple meals that don't require many dishes and are quick and easy to cook. Shop for fresh vegetables and fruit at wayside stands—they taste twice as good as the supermarket kind.

Pack a first aid kit, so you won't have to chase ten miles to the nearest store for a packet of band-aids or some sunburn ointment.

LUNCH 'N LEARN:

The third program in a series of Lunch 'n Learn programs will be Monday from 12 noon to 1 p.m. in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. Topic for this meeting will be "How to Manage the Time in Your Life." Everyone is invited to bring a sack lunch and join us for lunch and learn. Drinks will be provided.

The free program will feature information on setting priorities, managing time, learning to delegate and scheduling activities. The program is sponsored by the Gray County Family Living Committee.

TIME MANAGEMENT — A PLAN AND FOUR IDEAS.

A plan and four ideas make "time management" at home a reality. A plan means setting priorities — deciding which tasks are important. Any plan will work with the help of four ideas: do major work "piecemeal," leave some for the last minute, delegate some to other people — and use willpower. Willpower is for sticking to the plan — without feelings of guilt about any free time gained.

Do a major project piecemeal by attacking it in portions. It makes the task seem lighter, and it avoids waiting for large time blocks for the entire job. Also, the "piecemeal approach" helps get "dreaded" work started — use the first little time frame just for beginning a task. Here's how the "piecemeal" idea works — on range and oven cleaning, for example:

FIRST DAY — Just to get started, clean the range surface, spend as little time as possible on it.

SECOND DAY — Clean the broiler pan or start it soaking.

THIRD DAY — Work on the oven interior.

Work left for the last minute will take less time than "regularly scheduled" work, so plan disliked tasks for the last minute — when only a small amount of time exists. For example, dusting just before company comes will take less time than dusting on a regularly scheduled "cleaning day."

Delegate some of the work to other people — and share the workload. Since homemaking is non-competitive, perfection is not necessary or required. For example, let children clean their rooms. If their work is less-than-perfect, learn to accept their contributions.

One real trick to time management is learning not to feel guilty for gaining control of time. Time management requires willpower — to stick with priorities once they are set.

MAY — NATIONAL MENTAL HEALTH MONTH:

The beautiful month of May is National Mental Health Month. In a survey of families, 73 percent of the family members (parents and teenagers) felt that mental health would be improved if people were more concerned about others and less concerned about their own problems.

Dr. Karl Menninger, the famous psychiatrist, once gave a lecture on mental health and was answering questions from the audience. "What would you advise a person to do," asked one man, "if that person felt a nervous breakdown coming on?" Most people expected him to reply, "Consult your psychiatrist." To their astonishment he replied, "Lock up your house, go across the railway tracks, find someone in need and do something to help that person."

Although few, if any, of us may be on the verge of a nervous breakdown and still fewer can even find railway tracks to cross, Menninger's advice still rings true. Much human energy is being spent worrying about how inflation or the energy crisis or the rising food prices are affecting families.

When worry engulfs a person, it is easy to forget about the human concerns of those in the family. Children, regardless of the country's economics, still need parents who somehow can find the time and energy to be concerned about them.

Children need their parents to help them understand life, the changes that are occurring within their bodies and among their friends. Children, at least most of them, need a parent who can listen.

Party honors British musician

NEW YORK (AP) — Sir Peter Pears was given an early 70th birthday party in March at the English Speaking Union, after he had given a recital of unaccompanied tenor songs and readings at the Frick Museum.

Sir Peter will celebrate his birthday on June 22 at the Aldeburgh Festival in England.

During his three-week concert tour on this continent, Sir Peter held auditions for master classes to be held in July, August and September at the Britten-Pears School for Advanced Musical Studies in Aldeburgh, Suffolk, England. Sir Peter heads the vocal faculty and there is a faculty for strings and ensembles.

In two of his American concerts, Sir Peter sang Benjamin Britten's "Nocturne."

to their concerns and help them interpret what is happening. As we worry about what this summer will bring or what the next paycheck won't bring, maybe we can remember Menninger's advice.

Lock up the worry and go find your child and do something to help him or her.

ENERGY SAVERS, MEET THE INDUCTION RANGE:

Energy savers, meet the induction range, the "something new" that's "cooking" in the kitchen. Induction (cool heat) countertop ranges are unlike any conventional range; mainly, they're highly energy efficient, since they turn the cooking utensil itself into a burner. Also, they wipe clean, and the surface "doubles" as a cutting board or countertop. In addition, they feature several safety precautions; they won't let a pot burn if it "boils dry" for example.

Cooking without the usual heating elements, the induction range induces heat directly into the cookware, rather than using the usual method of heating up a cooktop and then transferring heat to the cookware.

Specifically, here's how it works: an electromagnetic coil beneath a ceramic cooking surface creates a magnetic field. When iron or steel cookware is placed within the field, it heats up instantly and cooks the food in the cookware. Because the cookware itself becomes the burner, the only heat generated is the heat in the pan, although the pan might reflect a small amount of heat back to the countertop. Consequently, the induction unit is extremely energy efficient, and this method of cooking is cooler and safer than conventional methods.

Two types are available — a free-standing range with the induction cooktop and a drop-in cooktop for built-in counters.

Controls are permanent magnets of the slide-rule type, and they activate power switches inside the range — so you get infinite heat selection from "high" to "off." Cooking starts rapidly and the heat decreases quickly at the end of the operation. Induction ranges operate on standard 220-volt, 60 ampere, AC power — the same needed for conventional electric ranges.

Several unique safety features guard against misuse of the induction range. A pilot light indicates when a unit is on. Also, the range will automatically shut off if no utensil is over one of the units or if a pot "boils dry." If the homemaker accidentally uses copper or aluminum cookware and the current in the induction coil begins to climb, then the current is limited automatically to a lower safe value.

Induction ranges do need special cookware — steel or iron ONLY. This includes stainless steel and porcelain enamel steel, along with cast iron or enameled iron. These materials give a desirable range of cooking heats, since they possess enough resistance to the flow of current to provide an easy path for a magnetic field. On the other hand, glass and ceramic materials offer too great a resistance to current flow, so they will not heat on the induction ranges. Also, aluminum and copper have too little resistance to the current flow, so they don't provide enough heat for cooking, either, but they are good conductors in conventional cooking methods.

Since the range top never becomes hot, any spills or stains cannot burn on — they simply wipe off. Also, the magnetic controls wipe off for easy cleaning. In addition, you use the entire top as a counter work surface, even as a cutting board. Ceramic is so tough that it isn't damaged if the utensils are dropped on it.

Bright outlook embraces life of cancer victim

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Of the Pampa News

"Cancer is that awful word that a lot of people won't face," Jane Gattis knows... she had it.

Through faith and a positive attitude, however, she believes she has beaten the disease which causes white-hot fear in every heart at even the mention of the word.

She believes anyone can do it, too.

Mrs. Gattis had noticed the lump in her breast before, but she first felt the change in it when she hit it with a towel while drying after a bath.

"I almost didn't mention it to the doctor," she said, when she was in for a physical checkup shortly after the discovery.

Her doctor immediately ordered a modified mammogram, or an X-ray of the breast tissues. The technician did not like what he saw, so a biopsy, removing tissue samples for examination and diagnosis, was conducted.

"It's really funny," she remembers. "I was in the hospital room waiting for the biopsy, watching an early morning television show. The host was interviewing Totie Fields about her bout with cancer."

"I was so impressed with her positive attitude and how her husband was so supportive."

"Of course, at the time, it didn't occur to me that I had cancer. That was something that happened to someone else."

"Then, all of a sudden, I was alone in the room and a voice said to me, 'Jane, you have cancer.' And I said, 'God, if I have it, let me face that when we come to it.' And suddenly, I felt like everything was going to be all right."

On Nov. 10, 1977 — "I'll never forget the day," she says — Mrs. Gattis woke up from surgery and one of her breasts was gone.

She does not remember any pain in the recovery room, although she remembers the nurse trying to wake her, telling her she had had a modified mastectomy, removing one of her breasts but no other chest tissue.

"The nurse later told me she thought I would be one of the one's who wouldn't be able to handle it," Mrs. Gattis recalls, "because I would kind of wake up when she told me, than I would smile and go back to sleep."

"I just knew everything would be all right," she says.

"It was quite a shock when I realized what had actually happened, when I felt and it was gone," she says. "I don't think you can go through a thing like that without some shock."

"It changes your outlook on life. Suddenly, it's very precious," she says. "Actually, as a family, it drew us much closer together."

Mrs. Gattis remembers her family was much more concerned than she was about the operation and the prognosis.

Her husband, John, was upset and concerned for her. Her children were upset, too, she says, mainly because their mother had not been ill enough to go to the hospital in 17 years and then again, it was that word, "cancer."

There finally came a time, she recalls, when she realized her husband was the only one who hadn't seen the scar.

"Well, if it doesn't bother you, it doesn't bother me," she remembers saying and his answer was, "You don't have to hide it."

"John and I had been married 36 years at that time," she remembers.

The television movie, "First You Cry," where a woman who had a mastectomy cries and then begins rebuilding her life, is the exact opposite of what it should be, Mrs. Gattis thinks.

"I had completely different feelings," she says. "I never felt like crying."

"I have always loved life, always been a positive, happy person."

Research has shown a positive attitude is the most important factor in a person's recovery from cancer, she says, using as an example the research of a doctor at St. Joseph's in Houston.

"Bodies are fantastic instruments — the body fights back," she says.

"I feel the American Cancer Society, doctors and researchers are on the verge of discovery," says Mrs. Gattis, adding that interferon, a new cancer drug, is very possibly the answer to the cure of cancer, she says. "It has so few side effects."

Fortunately, Mrs. Gattis is one of the few cancer patients who hasn't had to have radium treatments or chemotherapy.

The best way to cope with cancer or a mastectomy, she says, is to face it, although, she adds, everyone handles it in a different manner.

Dealing with cancer has changed a lot in the past 10 to 15 years, Mrs. Gattis believes. "Then you hid it. If you had cancer you didn't tell anybody."

Even now, she says, some people are very negative about cancer.

FACING A FUTURE WITH PROMISE, Jane Gattis battled breast cancer with faith and a positive attitude and now looks toward precious days filled with family and service to others.

'Mayday' is compelling distress novel

MAYDAY. By Thomas H. Block. Marek. 346 Pages. $10.95.

Many novels of recent years have been centered on airliners in distress. But nothing remotely resembling this one comes to mind.

Consider just these few ingredients of the plot:

—An airliner carrying 300 people over the Pacific has huge holes blown in its passenger area by a Navy test missile.

—The missile firing had not been authorized officially.

—All but five on the plane are either killed or become dehydrated from lack of oxygen through rapid cabin decompression. Among the victims are the cockpit crew.

—The plane continues to fly but plunges until it levels out at 11,000 feet. A male passenger, with some experience at flying much smaller craft, has retained his senses because he was in a pressure-contained rest room. He tries desperately to get radio help for returning the plane to the West Coast.

—Some Navy brass, airline bigwigs and the airline's insurance company representative do their best to prevent the plane's return.

Well-meaning persons will approach her and say, "Oh, you look so good, but how do you really feel?" Mrs. Gattis laughs, "They just can't believe that I feel good, too."

She says many times she almost forgets about the cancer.

"There is so much that can be done for people who have had mastectomies," she says, listing the lingerie, permanent prostheses and reconstructive surgery.

"I could have reconstructive surgery," Mrs. Gattis says, "but it just doesn't bother me that much."

To beat cancer, she says, one must have faith in God, in his or her doctor, a positive outlook, "and don't go around worrying."

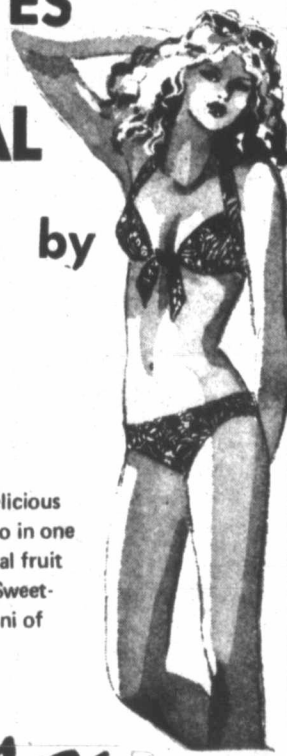

"Some have the attitude that just because you have cancer you are going to die," Mrs. Gattis says, shaking her head. "If you have that attitude, you probably will," she adds.

"People hear the word cancer and they think death," she says.

"That's not true anymore!" she emphasizes. "The sooner people get that through their heads, the closer we will be to having the battle won."

Don't spoil pork bargain by overcooking

Be careful not to spoil a good thing. When you save money buying a pork loin roast at today's attractive prices, don't waste money by overcooking it. Pork is well done, and at its juicy and tender best, when cooked to an internal temperature of 170°F., according to the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Cooking to a higher internal temperature causes shrinkage and cooking losses that result in fewer servings from the roast.

The attractive pork prices at the meat counter are prompting shoppers to buy "luxury" as well as economical cuts, reports the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Even thick, boneless butterfly pork chops, one of the most prized of all pork cuts, are carrying attractive price tags now. These double-thick chops are cut from the boneless loin eye muscle, then sliced almost in half and flattened to resemble the shape of a butterfly. Also attractively priced are thick chops for stuffing, pork tenderloins and boneless double loin roasts.

JO HARING, photographed at home in Tulsa, Okla., demonstrates a well-maintained-mother smile. From experience, she offers consumers useful hints on how to keep a mother running smoothly and efficiently. For example, the coffee mug of basic fuel for these domestic appliances can advantageously be supplemented now and then with gourmet meals for two...

Keep your mother running smoothly with maintenance

EDITOR'S NOTE — "God can't be always everywhere," wrote the poet Sir Edwin Arnold, "and, so, invented Mothers." This is the day we celebrate the invention.

By JOHARING

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Maybe mothers ought to come with a maintenance agreement.

Some kind of service arrangement that provides for a complete overhaul every five years, three kids or 300,000 miles, whichever comes first.

If the Department of Labor or the Department of Consumer Affairs decides to put out a bulletin on keeping a mother running smoothly and at top efficiency, here are several points they ought to consider.

1. Fuel. While most mothers will run indefinitely on hot coffee, pizza burgers, an occasional gourmet meal for two in elegant surroundings will add immeasurably increased efficiency.
  2. Motor. A mother's motor is probably one of the most dependable anywhere. A mother can start and reach top speed from a prone position at a single cry from a sleeping child. To keep that motor at peak efficiency, regular breaks are recommended. A leisurely bath and nap every 1,000 miles, a baby-sitter every 10,000 miles and a two-week, live-in sitter every 100,000 miles.
  3. Battery. Batteries should be recharged regularly. Roses and candy often do the trick.
  4. Carburetor. When a mother's carburetor floods, it should be treated immediately with Kleenex and a soft shoulder.
  5. Spark plugs. When sparks begin to fly, avoid driving for a while.
  6. Speed. Do not drive at prolonged high speeds or breakdowns are likely, usually in the form of flooding carburetors or malfunctioning spark plugs.
  7. Brakes. Use brakes often and slow to a full stop regularly.
  8. Steering. Use caution in any attempt to steer.
  9. Chassis. A mother operates best when her chassis is properly maintained. Her wardrobe should be changed as needed every fall and spring. Regular exercise should be encouraged and provided for. Tune-ups such as a change of hairdo and makeup should be a part of the regular maintenance. When the chassis begins to sag, there are a number of possible remedies, including racquet ball and Weight Watchers.
  10. Lubrication. Mothers need regular lube jobs. Compliments are both the cheapest and most satisfying type.
- Just by following these simple instructions, the average mother should last a lifetime, providing efficient service.

Botanist urges weed-eating

DENVER (AP) — Exie White doesn't ever have to worry about going hungry. She eats weeds.

A botanist and teacher at Colorado Women's College in Denver for 31 years, Miss White says she gets more nutrition out of the weeds in the cracks of her sidewalk than some people get from the produce department of a grocery store.

As she strolls past the rabbit bush, plains daisies and mules ears planted in her yard, Miss White recites the recipes she loves most.

"Sumac seeds make good lemonade. Sunflower seeds are best fried, otherwise they taste like turpentine. And I love to deep-fat-fry chrysanthemum leaves," she says.

Inside her home, dried apples hang on a clothesline, tomatoes dry in a dehydrator, and an array of carefully prepared weeds tempts the palate from a dining table.

There are purslane pickles, pigweed in cheese sauce and Russian thistle in a cream sauce. She offers milkweed and pods in tempura, warning, "Milkweed is poisonous if raw, but not if it's cooked."

The Aurora resident has been spreading the word about the goodness of weeds to students during the past five years.

She says she started teaching her course in weeds because some young people she knew were eating vegetation during their mountain hikes without knowing "how dangerous some of the weeds were."

MENDING MATURE MARRIAGE

By Louise Pierce

The other day I was eating in a cafeteria near a table of three hurried, harried businessmen in their 20s and 30s. They had dashed through the food line, sloshing their coffee into saucers; now they gobbled their meals and studied notes as they ate.

Suddenly a fourth young man joined them, dropped into his chair with a weary sigh and announced, "Gosh, I'm tired! I feel like I was 40 years old!"

I sat back happily, thinking, I used to run like that, only worse. I spilled whole cups of coffee and hardly allowed myself five minutes for lunch.

I remembered a college professor who once told us, "Don't waste a minute. Use your noon hour for something besides eating. Don't forget that time is life." He was young and so were we. We believed him and tried to live by his tenets.

But I'm grateful those years wearing, tearing years are behind me. I still run but my running is a lot slower. Isn't yours? And aren't you glad it is?

When you run too fast, you can't possibly take time for personal considerations. And the older marriage needs complete understanding, the kind that allows time for a shared enjoyment of each other's pleasures in a happy life together.

I doubt if my cafeteria neighbors ever went home without bulging briefcases and a list of telephone calls to cover the evening and complete-or-near inattention to the wife and kids. They'll be lucky if they're still married by the time they reach our age.

There are many joys to be found in mature marriages. One of them is being able to pause when we need to. I see young working mothers looking at price tags in supermarkets, frowning, dropping expensive items into carts without taking time to notice the cheaper brands that were probably just as good.

One young wife told me, "My husband's got no idea of what groceries cost nowadays. He won't come with me, says he hasn't got time. But he raises the roof every time I come home with stuff to eat. Last week I told him to eat out if he didn't like what I bought. He said okay, he would. And he hasn't eaten at home since."

I suggested, "Why don't you ask him to compare what it costs him to eat out with what it would take for him to eat with you?"

She sighed, "I already have. But he won't do it. And I don't care much. It's a relief not to have him yelling at me."

Older couples don't have to flurry that fast. Many of us work as hard as we ever did but don't fly about as feverishly as we used to. And that means that we are less likely to pick on our mates or be picked upon by them, in these years. It's one of the reasons that this stage of life can be relaxed and comfortable.

I like our present style of living. I hope you like yours.

DEAR LOUISE: Let me say something about taking it easy after you get to be 70. I don't mean digging a hole and crawling in and pulling the wife in after you and never coming up for air. I mean having time to think about what you want to do, finding out what the both of you enjoy. I mean taking a couple of hours to read the newspaper if you want to. I mean taking the grandkids to the lake all day Saturday. See what I mean? T.F.

DEAR T.F.: I do. And I agree heartily. Thanks for your marvelous letter.

DEAR LOUISE: My first wife died a few years ago and I married a pretty girl 25 years younger than me. We get along fine except that I always take time to think things out and then know exactly what I want to do. But she takes forever to make up her mind about anything and she runs in circles all the time.

She likes me to go shopping with her but it wears me out. It takes her two hours to decide on a dress or a pair of shoes. And at the grocery she can load and unload a sack full of things half the afternoon. She sees something she likes better than what she picked out the first time so she trades two or three times. Do young people waste time and older people save it? T.W.

DEAR T.W.: In general, yes, they do. They run faster than we older ones do, often wasting time as they run. I'm sure it seems to them that they can afford to run endlessly because they have a lifetime ahead of them and they want to make the most of it — whereas we value our time because we have less of it to live.

Your pretty young wife will use her time to better advantage as she grows older.

DEAR ABBY

FRANCES STEEL AND DAVID EDWARDS

Frances Steel to wed David Carlisle Edwards

Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Steel, 1900 Grape, announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances Anne, to David Carlisle Edwards of Lubbock. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Edwards, 2624 Comanche. The couple will exchange wedding vows Aug. 16 in the First United Methodist Church of Pampa. Miss Steel, a 1978 graduate of Pampa High School, is a student at Texas Tech University, where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Edwards, a 1976 graduate of PHS, is also a student at Texas Tech.

Conserve energy

DEAR ABBY: I am a long-time reader but have never written before. I am enclosing a part of your column that I have kept in my Bible for years. As you can see, it is yellowed and shredded and half of it is missing. I don't know how many hundreds of times I have read it. It gave me such a feeling of peace and comfort. It was titled, "A Prayer for Mamma."
Will you please print it again? I would love to have another copy. Thank you.

DOROTHY L.

DEAR DOROTHY: With pleasure:

DEAR ABBY: My beloved mother passed away recently, so I called the minister and asked him for the wording of a prayer I could say for my mother, and he said, "I'm too busy — and a lot of good prayer will do her now!" You see, Mamma went to church long ago, but my father never liked to go, so Mamma finally quit going. Abby, I can't believe that heaven is open only to church members. I've called all the bookstores in town and they say there aren't any prayers for the dead in any of the prayerbooks they have. I've heard there are places where you send a few dollars and they pray for the dead, but I don't know their addresses. Abby, I'd be so grateful if you would print a short prayer I could say for my mother before I go to sleep. Any faith is acceptable. I can't let you send it to my home because my father looks over the mail first and I'm sure I'd never get it. Please don't turn down my odd request. It means the world to me. Thank you, and God bless you, Abby. Sign me ...

A PRAYER FOR MAMMA

DEAR PRAYER: I found this prayer in my Union Prayer Book. It is the one Jews recite on Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement) to honor the memory of a deceased mother:

In Memory of a Mother

I remember thee in this solemn hour, my dear mother. I remember the days when thou didst dwell on earth, and thy tender love watched over me like a guardian angel. Thou has gone from me, but the bond which unites our souls can never be severed; thine image lives within my heart. May the merciful Father reward thee for the faithfulness and kindness thou hast ever shown me; may He lift up the light of His countenance upon thee, and grant thee eternal peace! Amen.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe it's Mother's Day again. With every passing year the holidays seem to come closer together.

Abby, I wish you'd find space in your column to remind young married women to remember their mothers-in-law — even if it's only a card. There were so many years when I should have remembered my mother-in-law on Mother's Day, but I never did.

This year I sent her flowers — to the cemetery, bitterly regretting that I had never sent her flowers while she was able to enjoy them.

I should have been more attentive to her, written her more about her grandchildren whom she loved so much. And most of all, I should have let her know how much I had grown to love her.

I hope others will not commit the same sins of omission as I, Abby, please print this. Next year might be too late for some.

MARK ZEDLITZ AND BRENDA VEACH

Brenda Veach to marry

The Rev. and Mrs. Henry Veach, 2373 Beech, announce the engagement of their daughter, Brenda ViLee, to James Mark Zedlitz of Henderson, Texas.

The couple will exchange wedding vows Aug. 16 in the United Pentecostal Church in Pampa.

Parents of the prospective bridegroom are the Rev. and Mrs. James Zedlitz of Henderson.

Miss Veach will be a May graduate of Pampa High School, where she is in National Honor Society and Office Education Association. She is employed at Lewis Construction Co.

Zedlitz, a 1977 graduate of Snyder High School, attended Jackson College of Ministries in Jackson, Miss., where he majored in music. He is minister of music at the United Pentecostal Church in Henderson and is associated with King Tools of Longview.

The couple will be honored Saturday with a shower in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

CARRIE CHATWELL AND CHARLES MILTON

Chatwell-Milton vows slated

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Chatwell of Borger announce the engagement of their daughter, Carrie Loulene, to Charles Robert Milton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Milton of White Deer.

The couple will be married July 18 in the Gardner Street Church of Christ in Borger.

The bride-elect, a graduate of River Road High School in Amarillo, earned an associate degree in science from Frank Phillips College in Borger. She is employed at Bruce's Booterie in Borger.

Milton, a graduate of White Deer High School, earned an associate degree in art from FPC. He is employed by J.M. Huber Corp. in Borger.

Reba Vaughn, Ben Howard exchange vows

Miss Reba Gay Vaughn became the bride of Ben Harold Howard in a Saturday ceremony in the Central Baptist Church of Pampa. John Glover, minister of music at the First Baptist Church, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Vaughn, 508 Lowry. Mr. and Mrs. H.E. Howard of Iowa Park are parents of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a formal gown of sheer white knit, fashioned with a Victorian neckline. The yoke, covered with point d'esprit and Venise lace, extended to the sheer bishop sleeves. A fully pleated A-line skirt and chapel-length train fell from the empire waist. Her headpiece was a Juliet lace-covered cap and veil of illusion.

MRS. BEN HOWARD

Deanna Davis of Moore, Okla., was maid of honor. Julie Floyd of Carrollton and Regina Akst of Austin were bridesmaids.

Best man was Kory Gamblin of Fort Worth. Mike Stevens of Canyon and Randy Cunningham of Waco were groomsmen.

Sharla Vaughn was flower girl and Grant Gamblin was ring bearer. Lighting candles were Rickey Cates and Sparky Flint.

Ushers were Larry Smith, Chris Gerald, Flint and Cates. Registering guests was Darla Baird of Canyon. Providing wedding music were Myrna Orr, organist, Sue King, pianist, and Charles Johnson, soloist and flutist.

Assisting at a reception were Clessie Cates, Jeri Gerald, Lori Dunne, Shauna Smith and Carol Flint.

The bride is a 1977 graduate of Pampa High School. She attended West Texas State University. Howard, a 1970 graduate of Gainesville High School, attended North Texas State University and Cooke County College. He is employed by Texaco, Inc. in Pampa.

Magazine cover has to be decoded

NEW YORK—A packaging magazine's special 20th anniversary issue has a cover with "scrambled design" that cannot be comprehended with the naked eye.

"The graphics need to be decoded through use of a reflector positioned on the cover," says editor Ben Miyares of Food & Drug Packaging.

Miyares claims it is the first use of an original piece of "anamorphic art" for a cover design. The reflector is a flat sheet of metallized polyester which comes in the magazine.

Burt Gussow of Magazines for Industry, the publisher, says the art technique was first created by Leonardo Da Vinci in the 1500's. "The technique has been used to conceal pornographic art and also religious art in times past," he said.

Saturday is dangerous day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saturday is the most dangerous day of the week, according to the American Council of Life Insurance. It says, "More deaths resulting from motor vehicle accidents and homicides occur on Saturday than any other day of the week. Government statistics show that motor vehicle fatalities in the nation average around 191 on Saturday, compared to an average of 107 deaths on Tuesday."

BUTTERFLY BUSINESS is the theme for a party to acquaint graduating senior girls with college sorority life. The event, sponsored by the Pampa Panhellenic, will be Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at 2005 Charles. All senior girls are invited to attend. (Staff photo)

Get thin!

... and live a HEALTHIER, HAPPIER LIFE.

At the Diet Center, you can get rid of those excess pounds, quickly, safely and inexpensively.

Lose 17 to 25 pounds in just six weeks!

And that rate of reduction can be sustained until you have lost 50, 75 or even 100 pounds and more! Tens of thousands of people all across the U.S. and Canada have changed their lives at the Diet Center. They all started the same way... with a call to their local Diet Center counselor.

Panhellenic to honor senior girls at party

Pampa Panhellenic will host a party for all graduating senior girls at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Dorothy Neslage, 2005 Charles. The purpose of the get-together is to acquaint the college-bound girls with sorority life, says Julia Sparkman, who along with Mrs. Neslage is coordinating the event. Janis Johnson, a student at Texas Tech, will present a slide show featuring sorority life on the Tech campus. Karen Cory was in charge of decorations and Kay Harvey handled arrangements for refreshments.

DR. LAMB

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read one of your columns in which you mentioned that it was bad to get used to taking laxatives too often and become dependent upon them. I have a problem that I don't know what to do about. A year ago I had bleeding hemorrhoids and my doctor said if they got worse, he would have to operate.

I've had several operations for other things so I decided to try bran and cooked dried prunes. I use three or four prunes and mash them up in a dish. Also two tablespoons of bran. I put water in to soften the bran and let it set quite awhile and take it before I go to bed.

I have a bowel movement at 6:30 in the morning and am not bothered anymore all day. If I eat some roughage I see blood again but I can go for a month or so just fine. If I don't take my prunes and bran I get constipated and, of course, there's blood.

Would you call this a laxative or just a food and will it hurt me? I eat lots of fruits and vegetables. I am 89 years old and do a lot of walking.

DEAR READER — It sounds to me like you're doing just fine. You certainly should have had an examination. People who have any bleeding should not assume that it's just from hemorrhoids. Bleeding can be the first sign of rectal or colon cancer. But having already had your examination, you do not need to worry about that.

To give you more information on what hemorrhoids are and how to manage them, I am sending you The Health Letter number 13-12, Hemorrhoids: New Treatments for An Old Affliction. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Prunes do contain a laxative type substance. Many people do use them with success. I think they shouldn't be overdone but, in your case, it seems to have worked quite

Houston station ordered to show film

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge says a university vice president had no right to stop the broadcast of the controversial film "Death of a Princess" and has ordered the film shown as scheduled.

"This is not a privately owned television station. It is public," U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald said Friday in ordering KUHT-TV to broadcast the film.

"When the state government becomes involved in television, it has to make sure decisions are not based on politics," the judge said. "Decisions on programs to be seen cannot be based on politics."

The ruling came after Gertrude Barnstone, a former Houston school board member and contributor to the public broadcast station, filed suit to force the broadcast of the film, which deals with the 1977 death of Saudi Arabian princess who was executed for committing adultery.

The suit claimed that failing to show the film violated constitutional guarantees of free speech and expression.

The broadcast was originally cancelled by University of Houston Vice President Patrick J. Nicholson because of what he called "strong and understandable objections by the Saudi Arabian government to the film."

The university holds the license for the station.

"The mounting crisis in the Middle East, our long friendship with the Saudi government and U.S. national interests all point to the need to avoid exacerbating the situation," Nicholson said.

which depicts the life of 19-year-old Princess Misha, was first shown in England on April 9. After the telecast, Saudi Arabia expelled the British Ambassador.

The princess, who married her cousin after it was arranged by her family, was shot to death in a parking lot while her lover watched. He was later beheaded.

Judge McDonald, carefully pointing out that the station was licensed to a state agency, said political beliefs could not be a factor in a decision to show or not show any program.

Nicholson testified he cancelled the show because of the Saudi reaction, because it lacked balance to show Saudi Arabia's position and because of tensions in the Middle East.

"I have received some letters protesting the show," he said,

"but they played no part in my decision."

Ironically, both the plaintiff and the defense used the First Amendment as justification for their positions.

David Berg, attorney for the plaintiffs, said Nicholson "was totally unjustified in his decision. He had no rational nor reasonable basis. He interposed his personal taste to decide what shows a person may view."

"A paid state employee," argued Berg, "has used his own personal opinion to deny the rights of others. The rights of an American to view a television show should not rest with another government. This is hopeless groveling to a foreign government."

Assistant State Attorney General Greg Wilson defended Nicholson's decision by saying any ruling on the airing of the show was an intrusion "on the rights of broadcasters and publishers."

"Political reasons," he told the court, "are the most important things protected by the First Amendment. Broadcasters have the right to decide what goes on the air."

"This," Wilson continued, "could put the court in the position of making a case by case decision on what should be broadcast. It is a journalistic, editorial right protected by the First Amendment."

Berg said after the ruling that the suit was "the first case of its kind. It has established that a publically-owned television station may not base its programming on the political beliefs of one individual."

"The program is the result of a five-month investigation by a British filmmaker into the death of the princess. The Saudi royal family reportedly also was upset by the allusions to corruption and illicit sex among the ruling class.

Six other public television stations have refused to air the show.

Preparing for a killer tornado

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a three-part series on preparing for killer tornadoes.

BY KAREN J. GILLELAND
Of the Register and Tribune Syndicate

You are inside your home with the radio or TV on. Your children are playing outdoors. Suddenly the broadcast is interrupted. You hear this announcement:

"The U.S. Commerce Department's National Weather Service has just issued the following Tornado Warning Bulletin: A tornado warning is in effect until 7 p.m. for persons in (your county). A tornado was sighted six miles southwest of (your town) at 5:15 p.m. This tornado is moving toward the northeast at 20 miles per hour."

What would you do?
This announcement is part of Project SKYWARN, a nationwide system sponsored by the National Weather Service (NWS) to alert people about potential tornadoes.

"Accurate forecasting and public awareness are the dual purpose of SKYWARN," says H. Michael Mogil, NWS emergency warning meteorologist. "Advanced warning and quick action are vital to saving lives during a tornado attack. However, some tornadoes happen so fast that communities must have a well-rehearsed action plan ready in case of an emergency."

On July 16, 1979, at 3:25 p.m., Cheyenne, Wyo., citizens found that being prepared saved hundreds of lives. In that city, although tornadoes are rare, NWS has conducted routine tornado safety sessions within the schools and civic groups for many years, according to G. McQuate, Cheyenne NWS. While there was $40 million worth of damage, including the total destruction of 140 homes and the partial destruction of hundreds more along the seven-mile path of the twister, only one person was killed.

Tornado drives can save lives. Does your child's school have an active tornado drill program?
SKYWARN has two phases: a tornado watch and a tornado warning. A watch means that weather conditions are ripe for tornadoes to develop. When a watch is announced, stay tuned to radio or television weather bulletins. Keep your eyes on the sky for the abrupt onset of violent wind, rain, hail or a funnel-shaped cloud.

There may not be time for an official tornado warning. A warning means that tornado has been sighted or indicated by radar. If the twister is nearby, get to shelter immediately. In the example announcement, you should quickly bring your children into the house and all of you go to your safest tornado shelter — preferably a basement.

SKYWARN depends on a large network of volunteer tornado spotters. Last year, about 35,000 spotters were trained by the National Weather Service. These dedicated people act instantly once a tornado watch is issued to scan the skies for ominous, tornado-bearing thunderheads. Because thunderstorms are so complex, spotters are urged to report any suspicious cloud formations with heavy rain, lightning, thunder or hail.

Dr. Joseph H. Golden, scientist with NWS parent organization, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), offers a simplified description of the storm type that is likely to spawn a tornado:

"Look for a very large thunderhead with rapidly building cloud towers. It should have a distinct cauliflower appearance. The top of the storm looks as if it has an invisible lid, and it spreads to the northeast. A curtain of rain may be falling on the northeast side of the cloud, but the southwest side will likely be rain-free. Lightning may be shooting out.

"At the southwestern edge of the cloud, you may see a darkened lower cloud base begin to slowly spin. That is the region where tornadoes most often form. The darker the sky, the more likely it is that the storm will be severe."

Funnel clouds are the whirling columns of water vapor that hang down from the thunderhead. When the funnel cloud touches the ground, it is officially called a tornado. Most tornadoes spin in a counter-clockwise direction. Some tornadoes descend from a thunderstorm without developing a visible funnel-shaped cloud of their own.

These invisible whirlwinds can first be seen when the spinning air begins picking up debris or dust from the ground. The longer such a tornado is on the ground, the darker it becomes, as pieces of material are lifted toward the thunderhead.

It's important to realize how fast tornadoes strike after they develop — usually within two minutes. A Xenia (Ohio) High School student describes what she saw as a tornado formed over that city April 3, 1974:

"As I watched, the lightning concentrated in the middle of the cloud. . . Then the front of the cloud seemed to pull off from the rest and shrink together. . . At first, I didn't know the shrinking cloud was forming a funnel. . . then I saw the air currents begin to swirl."

Two and one-half minutes later, Xenia High was destroyed. Fortunately, the student and others in the building scrambled to shelter and escaped serious injury.

"It's almost impossible to visibly detect a tornado at night in time to give advance warning, although Doppler radar — a new tornado-spotting tool — shows great promise of providing early tornado detection both day and night," says Dr. Golden.

"Tornadoes do make a tremendous noise, a roar which can be heard from a distance. But their sound has been mistaken for other things. Also, by the time you hear the roar, you have only seconds to get to shelter."

A survivor of the April 3 tornado spree in Parker, Ind., says that noise was his first warning of the tornado.

"I heard this terrific noise it sounded like approximately 50 jet airplanes tree-top high. I glanced over my shoulder to the southwest and saw this mammoth black cloud swirling debris as high as I could see."

Only two minutes later, the twister slammed into the building where he had taken refuge.

"If you think a tornado can't hit your state, you may be in for a deadly surprise," warns meteorologist Mogil. Tornadoes have touched down in all 50 states, as well as in many other parts of the world.

Statistics show that between 1953 and 1979, Maine was blasted by 70 tornadoes; Montana by 109; New York, 96; Washington, 30, and California, 88. In fact, a twister tore through the backlot of Universal Studios near Los Angeles in January 1979 and caused $1 million damage.

Others will rally to your cause and find it fun coming aboard.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It will seem like everyone is working to do nice things for you. Your day could be filled with pleasant little things all day long.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Crowds or large gatherings don't bother you today. You're at your best where the hustle and bustle is.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Once your ambitions are aroused today there isn't any doubt about your getting what you go after. Set worthwhile targets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Dealing with people - friends, acquaintances or business associates - is your forte today. Your pleasant manner will bring you luck.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Joint ventures look like an area of real promise today. Something extraordinarily fortunate could happen to you through teaming up.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have a fortunate knack of getting involved with the right persons today. If a go-getter invites you to join in with him or her, go along with it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could make a success of anything you put your mind to today. Expend the necessary effort and everything will fit smoothly into place.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others find you exciting and fun to be around today. You're especially appealing to the opposite sex. If you have your eye on someone, make yourself seen. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Seek out situations that could give your bank balance a boost. There are opportunities galore today, so you shouldn't have to look far.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Even if this is a work day for you, chances are it will still turn out to be lively and fun. Things should be more active and jolly than usual.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Higher than normal rewards will be paid for initiative and drive today, and you're just the person who knows how to cash in on this. Get going.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The exhilaration you display will get your plans off in a big way today.

Houston station ordered to show film

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge says a university vice president had no right to stop the broadcast of the controversial film "Death of a Princess" and has ordered the film shown as scheduled.

"This is not a privately owned television station. It is public," U.S. District Judge Gabrielle McDonald said Friday in ordering KUHT-TV to broadcast the film.

"When the state government becomes involved in television, it has to make sure decisions are not based on politics," the judge said. "Decisions on programs to be seen cannot be based on politics."

The ruling came after Gertrude Barnstone, a former Houston school board member and contributor to the public broadcast station, filed suit to force the broadcast of the film, which deals with the 1977 death of Saudi Arabian princess who was executed for committing adultery.

The suit claimed that failing to show the film violated constitutional guarantees of free speech and expression.

The broadcast was originally cancelled by University of Houston Vice President Patrick J. Nicholson because of what he called "strong and understandable objections" by the Saudi Arabian government to the film.

The university holds the license for the station.

"The mounting crisis in the Middle East, our long friendship with the Saudi government and U.S. national interests all point to the need to avoid exacerbating the situation," Nicholson said.

The documentary drama, which depicts the life of 19-year-old Princess Misha, was first shown in England on April 9. After the telecast, Saudi Arabia expelled the British Ambassador.

The princess, who married her cousin after it was arranged by her family, was shot to death in a parking lot while her lover watched. He was later beheaded.

Judge McDonald, carefully pointing out that the station was licensed to a state agency, said political beliefs could not be a factor in a decision to show or not show any program.

Nicholson testified he cancelled the show because of the Saudi reaction, because it lacked balance to show Saudi Arabia's position and because of tensions in the Middle East.

"I have received some letters protesting the show," he said,

"but they played no part in my decision."

Ironically, both the plaintiff and the defense used the First Amendment as justification for their positions.

David Berg, attorney for the plaintiffs, said Nicholson "was totally unjustified in his decision. He had no rational or reasonable basis. He interposed his personal taste to decide what shows a person may view."

"A paid state employee," argued Berg, "has used his own personal opinion to deny the rights of others. The rights of an American to view a television show should not rest with another government. This is hopeless groveling to a foreign government."

Assistant State Attorney General Greg Wilson defended Nicholson's decision by saying any ruling on the airing of the show was an intrusion "on the rights of broadcasters and publishers."

"Political reasons," he told the court, "are the most important things protected by the First Amendment. Broadcasters have the right to decide what goes on the air."

"This," Wilson continued, "could put the court in the position of making a case by case decision on what should be broadcast. It is a journalistic, editorial right protected by the First Amendment."

Berg said after the ruling that the suit was "the first case of its kind. It has established that a publically-owned television station may not base its programming on the political beliefs of one individual."

The program is the result of a five-month investigation by a British filmmaker into the death of the princess. The Saudi royal family reportedly also was upset by the allusions to corruption and illicit sex among the ruling class.

Six other public television stations have refused to air the show.

Preparing for a killer tornado

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a three-part series on preparing for killer tornadoes.)

BY KAREN J. GILLELAND
Of the Register and Tribune Syndicate

You are inside your home with the radio or TV on. Your children are playing outdoors. Suddenly the broadcast is interrupted. You hear this announcement:

"The U.S. Commerce Department's National Weather Service has just issued the following Tornado Warning Bulletin: A tornado warning is in effect until 7 p.m. for persons in (your county). A tornado was sighted six miles southwest of (your town) at 5:15 p.m. This tornado is moving toward the northeast at 20 miles per hour."

has been sighted or indicated by radar. If the twister is nearby, get to shelter immediately. In the example announcement, you should quickly bring your children into the house and all of you go to your safest tornado shelter - preferably a basement.

SKYWARN depends on a large network of volunteer tornado spotters. Last year, about 35,000 spotters were trained by the National Weather Service. These dedicated people act instantly once a tornado watch is issued to scan the skies for ominous, tornado-bearing thunderheads. Because thunderstorms are so complex, spotters are urged to report any suspicious cloud formations with heavy rain, lightning, thunder or hail.

Dr. Joseph H. Golden, scientist with NWS parent organization, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), offers a simplified description of the storm type that is likely to spawn a tornado.

"Look for a very large thunderhead with rapidly building cloud towers. It should have a distinct cauliflower appearance. The top of the storm looks as if it has an invisible lid, and it spreads to the northeast. A curtain of rain may be falling on the northeast side of the cloud, but the southwest side will likely be rain-free. Lightning may be shooting out.

What would you do?

This announcement is part of Project SKYWARN, a nationwide system sponsored by the National Weather Service (NWS) to alert people about potential tornadoes.

"Accurate forecasting and public awareness are the dual purpose of SKYWARN," says H. Michael Mogil, NWS emergency warning meteorologist. "Advanced warning and quick action are vital to saving lives during a tornado attack. However, some tornadoes happen so fast that the communities must have a well-rehearsed action plan ready in case of an emergency."

On July 16, 1979, at 3:25 p.m., Cheyenne, Wyo., citizens found that being prepared saved hundreds of lives. In that city, although tornadoes are rare, NWS has conducted routine tornado safety sessions within the schools and civic groups for many years, according to G. McQuate, Cheyenne NWS. While there was $40 million worth of damage, including the total destruction of 140 homes and the partial destruction of hundreds more along the seven-mile path of the twister, only one person was killed.

Tornado drives can save lives. Does your child's school have an active tornado drill program?

SKYWARN has two phases: a tornado watch and a tornado warning. A watch means that weather conditions are ripe for tornadoes to develop. When a watch is announced, stay tuned to radio or television weather bulletins. Keep your eyes on the sky for the abrupt onset of violent wind, rain, hail or a funnel-shaped cloud.

There may not be time for an official tornado warning. A warning means that tornado is in time to give advance warning, although Doppler radar - a new tornado-spotting tool - shows great promise of providing early tornado detection both day and night," says Dr. Golden.

"Tornadoes do make a tremendous noise, a roar which can be heard from a distance. But their sound has been mistaken for other things. Also, by the time you hear the roar, you have only seconds to get to shelter."

A survivor of the April 3 tornado spree in Parker, Ind., says that noise was his first warning of the tornado.

"I heard this terrific noise, it sounded like approximately 50 jet airplanes (ree-top high) I glanced over my shoulder to the southwest and saw this mammoth black cloud swirling debris as high as I could see."

Only two minutes later, the twister slammed into the building where he had taken refuge.

"If you think a tornado can't hit your state, you may be in for a deadly surprise," warns meteorologist Mogil. Tornadoes have touched down in all 50 states, as well as in many other parts of the world.

Statistics show that between 1953 and 1979, Maine was blasted by 70 tornadoes; Montana by 109; New York, 96; Washington, 30, and California, 88. (In fact, a twister tore through the backlot of Universal Studios near Los Angeles in January 1979 and caused $1 million damage.)

The main tornado area lies in the Great Plains and areas near the Gulf Coast - the infamous Tornado Alley. A sampling of statistics for the tornado belt during the same 1953-79 period shows a tremendous jump in she saw as a tornado formed over that city April 3, 1974.

"As I watched, the lightning concentrated in the middle of the cloud. Then the front of the cloud seemed to pull off from the rest and shrink together. At first, I didn't know the shrinking cloud was forming a funnel. Then I saw the air currents begin to swirl."

Two and one-half minutes later, Xenia High was destroyed. Fortunately, the student and others in the building scrambled to shelter and escaped serious injury.

"It's almost impossible to visibly detect a tornado at night tornado sightings. Texas leads the nation with 3,396 tornadoes; Oklahoma, 1,452; Kansas, 1,194; and Florida, 1,095.

On an average, about 700 tornadoes rip through parts of the U.S. every year. In 1979, there were 846, resulting in 83 deaths.

While tornadoes can strike during any month, springtime - when winds push the warm air from the south into the cold northern air - provides the ideal breeding conditions for the giant, killer tornadoes. Fortunately, these violent tornadoes generally develop from the classic, intense thunderheads that trigger tornado watches.

When an early watch is combined with a strong spotter network, meteorologists sometimes can get announcements out to the public 20 minutes to an hour ahead of the storm.

Such was the case in the April 10, 1979, Texas-Oklahoma outbreak. Warnings went out over the Emergency Broadcasting System, as well as commercial networks, 30 to 35 minutes ahead of the tornado's line of attack. Civil defense sirens sounded, and people acted immediately.

The American Red Cross reports that 6,591 individual family dwellings were destroyed, along with 1,100 apartment units and 150 mobile homes. At the end of the storm, 52 people were dead and 400 were injured.

As of now, no one can prevent a tornado or weaken its destructive path. But lives can be saved by early warning and action. You can help. Find out about SKYWARN in your community by calling your local Weather Service office.

Descriptions of A Disaster Dime At A Time . . .

Congress Debates Gasoline Conservation Fee:

As opposition to the President's oil import fee mounts on Capitol Hill several developments of interest to marketers have occurred. These include: A Government Operations Energy subcommittee (chaired by Toby Moffett, D-CT) subpoena of Department of Energy documents on the Fee. The subcommittee feels that the documents would show that the 10 cent a gallon fee would not be limited to gasoline, but could be added to the price of home heating oil. And, the emergence of a broad based, bi-partisan House coalition, lead by Representatives James Shannon (D-MA) and Henson Moore (R-LA), which opposes the fee.

The Shannon-More Resolution Disapproving the Import Fee:

The same day of the Moffett hearing a bi-partisan group of Congressmen announced the introduction of H.J. Res. 531, which would repeal the imposition of the import fee. The resolution has been referred to the Ways and Means Committee. A similar resolution S.J. Res. 160 has been introduced in the Senate by Robert Dole (R-Ks) and Bill Roth (R-De). Lead by Shannon and Moore, the group said they will attempt to repeal the fee through amendments to Energy or Treasury authorization or appropriation bills when they go to the House floor. They also stated that if the House leadership attempts to block consideration of the resolution by the Ways and Means Committee, they will seek a discharge petition to have it called up directly on the floor. Once a majority of 218 members has signed the petition a bill can automatically be called up by any member.

The cosponsors of the resolution all opposed the fee on the grounds that it will raise the inflation rate at least 0.75 percent, it is a poor conservation device, and it is an unnecessary tax increase. The other members supporting the resolution are: William Goffler (D-Ct), Toby Moffett (D-Ct), Clarence Brown (R-Oh), Bob Eckhardt (D-Tx), David Emery (R-Me), and Andrew Maguire (D-Nj).

NOJC President Herman Wisenteiner has sent mailgrams to every member of the House and Senate expressing NOJC's opposition to the fee and NOJC will be testifying in opposition to the fee before the House Ways and Means Trade Subcommittee this week.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES:

The ten cent per gallon fee you intend to impose on gasoline on May 15 will result in disastrous economic repercussions for all Americans. The impact will be felt most severely in rural America, in the nation's farming communities and among small businesses—that segment of Americans who can least afford it.

We believe the negative impacts of the program on all Americans far outweigh any possible reduction in crude oil imports and energy conservation. Specifically, your ten-cent per gallon gasoline fee will:

- Result in supply shortages in rural America and in agricultural communities.
- Drastically affect 1980 farm crop output and raise food prices for American consumers.
- Add $10.3 billion to the cost of gasoline during the first year of the program and unnecessarily increase the price of all other petroleum products.
- Place a disproportionate economic burden on low income families, rural areas and small businesses.
- Increase nationwide inflation the first year by at least 1%.
- Make it impossible for small businesses to assimilate the overnight increase of 8% in gasoline product cost.
- Bring about disastrous effects on American farms, businesses and consumers; no economic impact analysis of these effects has been prepared.
- Constitute taxation without Congressional representation.

For these reasons we ask you withdraw the Petroleum Import Adjustment Program and the Gasoline Conservation Fee prior to its scheduled implementation on May 15, 1980. Absent Presidential action we further request that the U.S. Congress take appropriate and swift action to spare all Americans by halting this inflationary program.

Respectfully,

Mr. and Mrs. American
