Air Force continues area study for MX missile

BY SHEILA ECCLES
Staff Writer

AMARILLO - Despite continuing studies by the U.S. Air Force on the feasibility of locating the controversial MX missile system in the Texas Panhandle - Eastern New Mexico area, area political representatives have verified no change in the status of the MX missile site location proposal.

A Texas location would have the most dramatic impact of any government project in the area in the nation's history, according to Wayne Hughes of the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission (PRPC).

Spokesmen for Texas State Representative Kent Hance of Lubbock, U.S. Senator John Tower and U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentson said Monday that the political representatives still feel the location of the missile sites in the Texas - New Mexico area is unlikely. But, the spokesmen said, the Air Force Environmental Study (EIS) of this area is continuing.

A panel of representatives from Panhandle cities and counties has been formed to study just how the MX missile site would affect the land, people and area business. The panel will also examine the results of the EIS.

Water is the main objection by area members of the panel, according to Hughes.

"How much water will the Air Force use in construction and maintenance of the MX site's 1,700 miles of asphalt is the question," Hughes said.

Gray County is not among the counties within the proposed MX missile site area.

The counties affected include Dallam, Sherman, Hartley, Moore, Oldham, Potter, Hansford, Deaf Smith, Randall, and Farmer, in the PRPC district. Castro, Baily, Lamb, Cochran, Hockley, Yocum, Terry, Gaines and Andrews, in the South Plains.

Eventually, all segments of the U.S. Air Force EIS will be examined and reported on by the members of the panel. In turn, representatives of Panhandle area cities and counties will be assisted by the PRPC staff in forming questions that they wish to submit to the Air Force concerning the MX project.

"If the federal government decides to go ahead with plans to locate here, we really don't have much to say about it. But we will be there trying," Hughes said.

Senator Tower still feels that the Air Force has not as yet provided all the information to Congress concerning the alternate MX missile sites, a staff member of Senator Tower said.

Senator Tower said that indications from the Air Force show that the Texas - New Mexico MX site location is not feasible. There is just too much going against this area. Costs, population density, agricultural land use and the fact that split-basing the missile sites has not actually been approved, a Tower aide in the Washington office said.

"Split-basing was first proposed by Nevada Senator Cannon as a way of objecting to the Nevada - Utah location. Even if the Air Force does announce its decision to use the Texas - New Mexico location, Senator Tower will immediately object," the Tower aide said.

Split-basing would provide for 2,300 missile shelters in one site and the other 2,300 missile shelters in another site, according to information from the defense department.

"The only time Senator Tower would ever approve the MX location in Texas is if it were the only way for the success of the MX system," the aide said.

Representative Hance also feels that there has been no announced change in the Air Force plans to indicate split-basing. Public hearings will be held when the EIS study of this area is completed. The hearing will probably be held in cities near the proposed Texas sites, such as Dalhart, Lubbock, and Clovis, Hance aide Don Richards said. Actually, Richards said, the Nevada - Utah site is preferred by the Air Force. He said the Air Force is just complying with the regulations of the MX bill which provide for study of alternate sites, if needed.

The $33 billion price tag on the project means little until the local impact is taken into account. Air Force officials say about $12 billion will be spent in the target area for construction costs.

The development costs, which will include preparing the 6,000 miles of roadbed and launch sites, equipping the missile carriers, putting the deadly projectiles in place, will be equal to 20 percent of the cost of World War II to the Allied Forces. That cost was listed as over $676 billion.

Air Force contractors would have to find enough land to be able to construct and have access to the 6,000 miles of roadbed needed for the 2,300 shelters for the 100 missiles. They can use roads that already exist in the Texas - New Mexico area for part of their requirement.

Part of the reason the Texas Panhandle - Eastern New Mexico was considered by the Air Force is the miles of section line roads currently available. In any case, the Air Force will have to create 1,700 miles of new asphalt.

The Air Force will need a total of 25 square miles for the administrative complex and associated missile shelters. That real estate will be occupied by 12,000 to 13,000 airmen who will comprise the complex's permanent party.

During construction, more than 16,000 workers will be involved. Their paychecks, which comprise a large share of the total project expenditure, would turn over three times in the locale before leaving the area.

Where roads and private property are concerned, the Air Force says access to the roads that missile shuttle carriers will use will be practically unlimited. Only the administrative areas and missile storage sites will be off limits.

Air Force officials are unsure about the size of the permanent party because of the prospect of "split-basing." That is the alternative if public pressure in both the Utah - Nevada and Texas - New Mexico areas grows too intense to locate the total MX complex in either geographic area. The system would be then split into two separate administrative infrastructures.

Civic groups in Clovis, N.M., and the small West Texas towns of Andrews and Denver City have said they would welcome the vast project and its accompanying payroll.

If approved, construction would begin in 1982, initial operation would begin in 1986, and the project would be complete in 1989.

Danielle floods Hill Country

LLANO, Texas (AP) — Flood advisories remained in effect for the Texas Hill Country today after surging waters roared into a locking area near Lake Lyndon B. Johnson, washed into homes and businesses near Menard and covered highways near Junction and Valde.

A wall of water from the Llano River destroyed docks and heavily damaged at least 20 pleasure boats near Kingsland late Monday night, a Llano County sheriff's spokesman said.

No injuries were reported when high waters, spawned by rainfall from the remnants of Tropical Storm Danielle, roared through the popular fishing resort area.

Earlier Monday, occupants of several mobile homes west of Llano were forced to run for safety after the river rose 30 feet above normal, said sheriff's spokesman Rod Decker.

Authorities expected another surge of high water along the river today, the spokesman said.

But Llano's 2,600 residents were not immediately endangered by the rising river, which cuts through the middle of the Texas Hill Country town, the spokesman said.

It is the river is wide enough and it would have to get real high before it would actually threaten the town, Decker said.

But some residents of Menard, on the western side of the Hill Country, saw their homes and businesses flooded when the San Saba River became a raging wall of water a half mile wide Monday.

Electricity was out in the West Texas community Monday afternoon and the resulting loss of pumping power and water pressure forced officials to ask the town's 2,000 residents to cut back on water usage.

"The flood in '38 was the only one worse than this one," said Jack Walston, vice president of Menard State Bank. "But there was more water then and it stayed longer."

The National Weather Service issued flash flood advisories for the second consecutive day Monday in the Hill Country after heavy rains fell on saturated ground.

The Walter Pfluger ranch north of Junction reported 25 inches of rain during the period from 6 a.m. Sunday to 9 a.m. Monday.

State troopers closed several roads in the Junction and Uvalde areas after rising streams flooded low water crossings, the Department of Public Safety said.

But authorities reopened the highways after waters receded late Monday, a Kimble County Sheriff's Department dispatcher said.

The river crested at 36 feet near Junction, about 80 miles west of Llano, said dispatcher Edwina Daharsh, and damage was reported to several mobile homes hit by high water.

Flash flood warnings were in effect early today for much of the area between Abilene and San Angelo. Flash flood watches covered the southeast part of West Texas, the southwest part of North Texas and the Hill Country.

A cold front moved into the Panhandle during the night and was expected to trigger more shower activity in Northwest Texas and North Central Texas. The front moved through Amarillo before dawn and was expected to cross all of Northwest Texas and North Central Texas by tonight.

Forecasts called for showers and thunderstorms over most of the state today. Locally heavy rainfall was forecast for areas covered by flash flood watches and warnings.

Temperatures were to remain in the 70s behind the front and reach into the 80s and 90s over the remainder of the state.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s, ranging from the mid 60s in the Panhandle to near 80 in South Central Texas and the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Chamber directors named

Ballots were counted today in the Pampa Chamber of Commerce Director election.

A total of 221 ballots were returned by members. The following seven people were elected to the Board of Directors for a term of three years beginning October 1: Doug Carmichael, Bob Chambers, Ken Fields, Louise Fletcher, Carl Kennedy, Steve McCulough and Loyd Waters.

These seven people will join the fourteen current directors and three appointed directors to serve on the board for the 1980-81 year.

Former Cabot divisions honored for safety

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Research and Development Division and the Technical Services Division of Cabot Corporation in Pampa, now owned by Ingersoll-Rand, have been awarded certificates of honor for safe operations by the Chemical Manufacturers Association.

The divisions were among 32 chemical manufacturing plants and laboratories in Texas to be awarded the certificates of honor for the safe completion of 1979 operations.

Certificates of achievement are awarded by the CMA to chemical manufacturing facilities which have completed the calendar year without a death or injury involving days away from work.

Confusion marks Oswald exhumation hearings

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The tedious legal struggle to unearth the body in Lee Harvey Oswald's grave continues here amid confusion over ownership of the cemetery plot and allegations that the accused presidential assassin may actually have been a Russian spy.

Slate District Judge James E. Wright indicated at the conclusion of a civil hearing Monday he will decide next week on a request to temporarily halt exhumation of the body. Oswald's brother, Robert, has filed suit to keep the grave closed, claiming an exhumation would cause him great "mental anguish."

Wright also extended a temporary restraining order, preventing any exhumation until he decides on the lawsuit. If he grants the temporary injunction, another hearing would be required to make the action permanent.

Michael Eddowes, a British author, says he has received permission to exhume the body from Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter Eddowes, author of "The Oswald File," claims a Russian spy was substituted for Oswald and the imposter — not Oswald — assassinated President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963, in Dallas.

Eddowes has tried for more than two years to unearth the body to prove his claims that a shorter, slighter Soviet spy named Alek James Hidell "became" Oswald after the "real" Oswald visited the Soviet Union in 1959.

The portly, white-haired author sat on the front row of the courtroom Monday, a few feet from Oswald, a silver-haired Wichita Falls businessman who bears a strong resemblance to his infamous brother.

At issue in this hearing is ownership of a grave bearing a simple marker that reads "Oswald" at Rose Hill Burial Park.

Robert Oswald says he paid for the plot, and Eddowes has no legal right to attempt to dig up the body there.

Oswald's widow, Marina Oswald Porter, said she granted permission to exhume the body to prove once and for all that her husband was buried in the plot.

But in a surprising twist last week, Mrs. Porter told Wright she had heard rumors that led her to believe the grave may already be empty.

Cemetery manager Neil Wretberg provided copies of burial records he said bore handwritten notations showing the Oswald plot was deeded to the Oswalds' mother, Marguerite Aug. 14, 1961.

Oswald's attorneys challenged the validity of the records, intimating the deed transfer could have been back-dated.

The records showed Marguerite Oswald as the purchaser of the plot, Wretberg said.

"But the purchaser is not necessarily the person to whom the body is deeded," he said.

Mrs. Oswald has refused to comment on her son's lawsuit.

Eddowes' attorney, John Collins, briefly questioned Tarrant County clerk Charles Bratcher, who said he searched county records back to August 14, 1961, and found no evidence of a cemetery plot deeded either to Marguerite or Robert Oswald.

Cue Lipscomb, another attorney for Eddowes, told Wright he had been unable to subpoena Marguerite Oswald, a Fort Worth resident.

Assistant Dallas County Medical Examiner Dr. Linda Norton testified briefly on Oswald's military dental and chest X-rays. She said the X-rays were of "excellent" quality and it would not be difficult to compare them with X-rays of the body in Oswald's grave to provide an "absolute" identification.

A forensic pathologist, Ms. Norton said she was acting as an individual, and the Dallas County Medical Examiner's Office no longer was associated with the exhumation effort.

Eddowes contends Oswald's Marine physicals list his height as 5-foot-11, while an autopsy performed after Oswald was killed Nov. 24, 1963, listed his height as 5-foot-9. The author also says there are several discrepancies in the location of scars between the Marine physical and the autopsy.

Published reports say Justice Department officials tried to convince Oswald's family to have the body cremated.

Barefoot Sanders, U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Texas and now a federal judge, said if the Warren Commission determined there was no interest in preserving the body, he would "see what I can do, as indirectly as possible, to have the Fort Worth police encourage widow Oswald and brother (Robert) Oswald to have these remains cremated." The Dallas Morning News reported.

The newspaper further said the Warren Commission, worried the grave might be vandalized, discussed posting a 24-hour guard or moving the body to a secret location.

U.S. Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, a member of the commission, said during the meeting that he didn't "care if you move that body 20 feet over to somewhere else, somebody is going to say that it is not the body and you are going to have to have somebody go down there and pull it out of that mausoleum and have X-rays made and prove it is his body," the newspaper said.

The News also reported Sunday that the CIA sought in 1964 to have the FBI exhume the body. Former FBI director J. Edgar Hoover reportedly turned aside the request, the newspaper said. The newspaper cited no sources for its reports.

Begin postpones office move Confiscated cattle may be in Soviet Union now

By The Associated Press
President Carter's Middle East envoy apparently succeeded in getting Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to postpone his controversial plan to move his office to disputed East Jerusalem.

Israeli government sources said Begin bowed to heavy American pressure, brought to bear by Sol Linowitz, Carter's special ambassador, who visited Israel and Egypt last week and came away with agreements for the renewal of Egyptian-Israeli negotiations on Palestinian autonomy and a new Camp David-style summit.

Egyptian sources said last week that the decision to resume negotiations, halted by President Anwar Sadat to protest Israel's controversial moves in Jerusalem, was a "tradeoff" for a new Carter-Sadat-Begin summit after the U.S. presidential election.

During Linowitz's visit to Jerusalem, Begin stressed he would make no concessions to Egypt because he blamed Sadat for suspending the deadlocked autonomy talks.

"Linowitz talked but Begin just listened. He didn't say yes or no," one official said.

But the sources noted that while Begin's new office in the former Arab sector of Jerusalem has been ready for two weeks, the prime minister has made no move to seek his Cabinet's approval for the move, which is intended to underline Israel's determination to retain control of unified Jerusalem.

Sources close to Begin said it was unlikely he would seek authorization for the move in the near future since several key Cabinet ministers have expressed opposition to it. But they said it was likely the transfer would take place before the Israeli elections scheduled for November 1981 so Begin would not lose face with his own hardline Herut Party, which favors the move.

Begin's office is now in a building near the Knesset, the Israeli Parliament, in West Jerusalem. His new quarters, complete with beige carpets, wood paneled walls and heavy velvet curtains, overlook the Mount of Olives and the walled Old City in East Jerusalem, which Israel took from Jordan in the 1967 Arab-Israeli War.

The Linowitz mission also brought concessions from Egypt, including an invitation for Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir to visit Egypt and discuss Israeli complaints about the slow pace of normalizing relations between the two countries. Shamir was going to Cairo today.

Former Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin arrived in Cairo on Monday on a two-day private visit that will include talks with Sadat. Rabin, a leader of the Labor Party opposition, is the second top Israeli to meet with Sadat in a week. Former Defense Minister Ezer Weizman met with Sadat during a vacation in Egypt. Weizman quit the Begin government in May to protest its hardline in negotiations with Egypt.

Meanwhile, the leaders of Libya and Syria met in Tripoli, the Libyan capital, to discuss merging their two countries to renew the fight against Israel.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Breeding cattle developed on Texas' King Ranch were shipped to the Soviet Union after the Cuban government nationalized American property, a ranch official has told Congress.

John Cypher of Kingsville, Texas, said it was difficult to verify the accounts of what happened to the cattle after Cuban President Fidel Castro's government took over the property but it "has been detailed to us from so many sources that we accept it as substantially correct."

Cypher, assistant to the president of King Ranch Inc., told a House subcommittee that South Americans visiting Soviet Georgia identified the cattle by their Texan and Cuban brands.

He said the King Ranch had 1,500 head of purebred Santa Gertrudis breeding cattle in Cuba, multiplied from 834 animals sent from Texas starting in 1952. The takeover of the ranch's Cuban property started in 1959.

"The Castro government has been instrumental in placing an efficient protein producer, the first breed of beef cattle to be developed in the United States, in the hands of the world's most powerful Communist state," Cypher said in a recently published report.

He spoke at a House Inter-American affairs subcommittee hearing on claims outstanding against Cuba.

Trudeau offers provinces natural resource control

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Elliott Trudeau has offered Canada's provinces greater control over their natural resources in an effort to get their agreement to the transfer this year of control over the Canadian constitution from the British Parliament to Canada.

Trudeau's offer Monday came at the beginning of a potentially historic conference with the 10 provincial premiers to try to reach agreement on the repeal of the British North America Act of 1867, Canada's present constitution, and its replacement by a Canadian charter.

Trudeau offered the provinces power to tax natural resources that leave their provinces accepted, but this did little to dispel the belief that a week of bitter wrangling lay ahead.

The 60-year-old, four-term prime minister wants to cap his political career by "patriating" the constitution this fall so that he can go ahead with retirement plans he shelved last year when a Progressive Conservative government lasted only seven months and his Liberal Party had no one else to lead it in the election campaign.

HOME MORTGAGES TO DROP?
WASHINGTON (AP) — Several housing economists predict that home mortgage rates will drop in coming months, but they say the rates won't get much below 12 percent. Currently, the rates are about 13 percent.

The economists also said Monday that housing starts will pick up to an annual rate of about 1.2 million to 1.3 million in 1980, better than the 906,000 pace figure of two months ago, but far under last year's 1.75 million level. The predictions came at a conference of mutual savings bank officials here. Mortgage rates have recently halted their sharp drop and started moving up again.

FEDERAL SECURITIES RATE DROPS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The interest rates on short-term federal securities have dropped.

The Treasury Department said the discount rate on 13-week bills auctioned Monday averaged 10.060 percent, compared with 10.124 percent at the last sale Aug. 29. The rate on 26-week Treasury bills averaged 10.234 percent, down from 10.250 percent Aug. 29. The Aug. 29 auction ended with the highest rates in four months, reflecting a general increase in the cost of borrowing.

U.S. AND CHINA MARITIME AGREEMENT
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and China have approved a maritime agreement that U.S. officials say will increase trade between the two nations.

Commerce Secretary Philip M. Klutznick said the agreement, which was initiated in Peking on Sept. 4, will be signed formally in Washington next week.

Cinema III Theater Extends Sale Of V.I.P. Ticket Books to Friday

Because of the popular demand the sale of Advance V.I.P. Ticket Books has been extended to Friday, Sept. 12, by Cinema III Theater.

Cinema III, the theater that will show three movies nightly, will open in Coronado Center between Friday, Sept. 19 and Friday Sept. 26.

Policy of the theater is to show movies for all the family each night: movies for children, young people and adults.

The V.I.P. Ticket Books permit you to buy tickets at real savings: Adults pay only $20 for a book of 10 tickets, regularly $30; and children pay only $15 for a book of 10 tickets, regularly $20.

The first 650 V.I.P. Ticket Book buyers will be admitted free opening night. That evening more than $300 in prizes will be distributed. Also many Coronado Center merchants are offering valuable coupons in the ticket books.

Pickup Stereo Has Risen To New Heights

Highliner
(cycle sound)

The Highliner—it's roof-mounted—is really exciting: a precision unit that combines with the most popular AM/FM radios, 8-track tapes and cassettes.

The significant feature is the four speakers: each set of two (right and left speakers for both driver and passenger) is aimed directly at the listener's ears.

This arrangement gives maximum stereo separation, distortion-free sound and insures clarity at lower volume levels.

HIGHLINERS are available for most late model Ford, Chevrolet/GMC and Dodge pickups and various 4-wheel drive vehicles.

Social Security - A Future?

BY RICHARD L. LESHER
President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States

Will the Social Security system still be solvent and able to pay the money you will be due when you retire?

This question might have been scoffed at just a decade ago, but now it is being asked in earnest by more and more Americans. They have good reason to be concerned.

Social Security is in trouble for three basic reasons. First, the Social Security trust is currently being propped up — thanks only to a tremendous tax increase.

Unfortunately, this tax increase is only one of many the Administration has imposed as a kind of knee-jerk response to every economic problem from inflation, to energy, to Social Security.

But, as the U.S. Chamber has repeatedly warned, people do not work just to pay taxes, but to earn more after-tax income. Not surprisingly then, all this excessive taxation has depressed the economy and made the recession worse. Should the result be a long, drawn-out recession, the Social Security trust fund will be depleted even further and faster than expected.

Second, we are beginning to experience the long-predicted "graying of America" as the over-65 segment of the population grows larger in proportion to other age groups. Within 25 years, the post-World War II baby boom will become the twenty-first century retirement boom. That, combined with the present low population growth, means the ratio of Social Security taxpayers to beneficiaries will drop sharply at the very time larger and larger outlays for the Social Security program will be needed.

Finally, although 90 percent of the American work force is covered by Social Security, about nine million workers — mostly federal, state, and local government employees — are exempt from paying Social Security taxes.

Nonetheless, about 70 percent of these "uncovered" employees finally qualify for Social Security benefits, as a result of working in covered employment at some time in their career.

Nevertheless, government workers generally qualify for benefits equal to about two thirds of what they would have earned if their full career had been in covered employment, even though they pay less than one-third of the amount career-long covered employees pay in Social Security taxes.

Health and Human Services estimates this windfall amounts to about $940 million a year. It happens because the Social Security benefits formula allows workers with low average career earnings to receive a higher return on their contributions than do workers with high earnings. This subsidy is intended to benefit workers with a lifetime of low wages. Unfortunately, it makes no distinction between these low income people and federal employees whose average private sector earnings are low only because they have worked so long in government employment.

In terms of fairness, there is simply no reason why any working American should be exempt from supporting and participating in Social Security.

Social Security is not really an individual retirement program, but rather a form of welfare in which today's workers are taxed to supplement the incomes of those who have already completed their working careers, or who are widows, orphans or disabled. If mandatory universal Social Security coverage were enacted and made effective by January 1982, the Social Security system could receive an additional $123 billion in revenues by 1987.

It is also estimated that tens of billions of dollars could be saved by slightly reducing the benefits of future beneficiaries. This would obviously be a controversial decision, however, and I personally believe the government has an obligation to begin offering much stronger tax incentives to encourage Americans to set up or expand their own individual retirement accounts.

The integrity of the Social Security system must be preserved, but to date, Congress has lacked the courage to take the decisive action we need. If our public servants cannot seem to see the light, then the upcoming election offers a perfect opportunity to make them feel the heat.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Sept. 9, the 253rd day of 1980. There are 113 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Sept. 9, 1776, the term "United States" became official in a ruling of the Second Continental Congress.

On this date:
In 1830, Charles Durant made early aviation history when he flew his balloon from New York City across the Hudson River to Perth Amboy, N.J.

In 1850, California was admitted to the union as the 31st state.

In 1971, more than a thousand prisoners revolted at Attica state prison in upstate New York, setting fires and taking 32 guards hostage.

The federal government spends a lot of money regulating Americans. Recently the U.S. Regulatory Council, an arm of the federal government, commissioned a study to find out what the people of the United States think about their government's regulation. The results are illuminating.

The Regulatory Council's research focused on Janesville, Wis., a town of about 40,000 in the southern part of the Badger State. The town's population is fairly representative of what is often called middle America.

After 75 interviews, Paul Danaceau, the free-lance writer who spearheaded the project, found that Janesville's population had a remarkable negative attitude toward regulation — especially considering that regulation was supposed to be for their benefit. Some of the people's perceptions:

—They see little relationship between the regulation imposed on them and the social goals the regulation is supposed to achieve.

—Lawyers, accountants and regulators are judged to be the primary beneficiaries of government regulation.

—There is a sense that regulation places a burden on the people of small communities to solve problems that are none of their affair.

—Regulations are viewed, partly because of the way they view themselves, as adversaries rather than problem solvers.

The 51-page report details horror stories about the hardships government regulation has caused the people of Janesville. The bus company owner noted the arrogance he faces every time he meets with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Four years ago he spent $10,000 defending himself against the ICC in court. The charges against him were dismissed, but his money was gone.

In another case the owner of a local junk yard was threatened with a stiff fine if he didn't pay his only two full-time employees a huge sum the Labor Department calculated he owed them in back wages. The two employees didn't want the money because they didn't think it was right for them to make more money than the owner.

The picture that emerges from this small town in Wisconsin is that government regulation is viewed as an insidious, alien element in their community. Rather than building a bond with the public, federal regulation enhances the public's estrangement from government.

The regulators are seen as rigid and unyielding in their dealings with local people, and in more cases than not the citizens are treated as if they are guilty until proven innocent.

People in major metropolitan areas often look at small towns as a place to escape the complexities of the city. If the Regulatory Council's report does nothing else, it emphasizes that there is no place to escape the tentacles of big government.

Economic remedy: working together

A major factor in America's economic doldrums is acknowledged to be the imbalance in the nation's foreign trade, due in large part to our dependence on oil from abroad, but complicated by consumer interest in imported manufactured products.

The automobile industry currently is the most visible example of the decline of the role of the United States in world markets, but other domestic consumer items from clothing to cameras must vie for public favor with competitive goods from Japan and Germany, from Korea and Taiwan.

A recent Conference on U.S. Competitiveness at Harvard University brought opinion leaders from business, government, education and labor together in a search for solutions to a perceived lack of American vigor.

The consensus among the 91 participants, including conference co-chairmen William M. Batten of the New York Stock Exchange, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff of a Senate subcommittee on trade, and Henry Rosovsky, a Harvard dean, was that the United States must be more competitive.

Some of the proposed moves already have been endorsed by the White House and Congress. Regulatory policies are undergoing revisions and Congress is studying changes in the tax structure which could encourage new capital and new production.

But there is more that must be done.

The Conference suggested that antitrust laws be modified so that American firms could work together in international competition, that more emphasis be given to long-term progress in research and development and less to short-term gains, that "business, labor and government, and in fact all Americans, need to work together for our nation to remain competitive."

The problem is urgent. During the last decade the United States has had the lowest productivity increase rate of all industrialized nations. Last year, the rate dropped from "stagnant" to show a sharp decline.

Historically, the nation has rejected a secondary role in the world. A revival of economic vitality is a realistic goal for the 1980s.

The challenge of excellence transcends political lines and the diverse objectives of business, management, labor and government. It is time to get on with the job.

The tourists are coming

by ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON -- It has just been announced that, for the first time, more foreign tourists visited the United States than American tourists went abroad. These foreign tourists know a bargain when they see one — and the U.S. is now one of the cheapest countries in the Western world.

This may be hard for Americans to swallow, but it's a fact of life, and since our economy depends on such hard currencies as the Japanese yen, the German Deutschmark, the French franc and the British pound, we all have to make a better effort to see that these tourists get their money's worth.

Here are some helpful hints to accommodate visitors from other countries.

Most of them have cameras, and they are dying to take pictures of the "natives" that they can show when they get back to Hamburg or wherever they came from. Don't get angry when they ask you to pose for a photo with your family on the front steps of your house, or when you're taking out your trash in the morning. Don't ask them for money before you agree to allow them to shoot your picture. If they offer you a few Danish kroner or a Swiss franc you may accept it, but be sure to say thank you.

Foreign tourists are great shoppers. If you are a store owner or salesperson, always wait on them first, because the more money they spend, the better our foreign balance of payments will be.

The exchange rate on the dollar changes every day, so there may be some delay in the transaction as you try to figure out what their traveler's checks are worth. Be patient and keep your temper, even when they call you a thief and complain that they could get a higher rate at their hotel.

People from abroad have their own conceptions as to what the United States is like, mostly based on our movies and television shows. They expect to get nudged in New York, mowed down in Chicago, gouged in Miami, and scalped by Indians in Phoenix, Ariz. They will be very disappointed if their fantasies are not fulfilled, and will go back home and say the U.S. is not what it is cracked up to be.

If we want Austrian schillings and South African rand, we must all play the roles expected of us. For example, if you see a foreign tourist in Central Park, and he hasn't been mugged yet, you owe it to your country to push him down a bit say "your money or your life." Something like this could make his whole trip.

Foreign tourists are very insecure when traveling in America. It does no good to remind a Japanese visitor that, if it wasn't for the Americans, they still might be making rice paper fans instead of Toyota cars.

Above all, don't mention Pearl Harbor unless they want to bring it up. But it's perfectly all right to ask them, "Is Tokyo Rose still very popular in Japan?"

European tourists are particularly sensitive about the Marshall Plan, so I wouldn't say anything about it. If you happened to be in the Air Force during World War II, don't tell a German tourist how you enjoyed clobbering Stuttgart. They don't want to hear about it, and it really has nothing to do with the bargains they can get here in blue jeans.

The important thing to remember is that America's main interest in tourists is how much money they leave behind. As the poor relations of the Western world, we have to swallow our pride and get on our feet so that in the distant future we all might be able to travel again. I know it's hard to imagine, but someday Americans may have the wherewithal to go abroad, and it will be our turn, once again, to say to a French taxi driver, "Here's a dollar. Buy your family a good meal."

Desperation on defense

By Edward J. Walsh
(Mr. Walsh has written for the Marine Corps Gazette and other defense journals.)
The brief commotion over the blackout imposed on Secretary of State Edmund Muskie on the Defense Department's shift in nuclear strategy obscured the ominous reasoning behind the shift: the Secretary of Defense is now convinced of our strategic inferiority to the Soviet Union.

What has happened is this: the targeting of American intercontinental ballistic missiles has been shifted from Soviet population centers to key military and industrial installations. The move is a tacit admission that the nuclear strategy of mutually assured destruction, "or MAD," accepted by our defense and foreign policy establishments since the early 'Sixties, is no longer plausible. It is obsolete, and its obsolescence is due wholly to the vast increase in number and improvement in accuracy of the Soviets' nuclear arsenal.

The MAD strategy has always been based on the assumption that total nuclear war is unthinkable, since it would result in the wholesale destruction of both the U.S. and the Soviet Union. Thus, by aiming our missiles at Soviet cities, we "deterred" them from launching a first strike against ours—they knew well that an American response would be devastating.

The effectiveness of MAD has always had its critics, but it nevertheless remained unaltered until very recently. Now, apparently, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and the President's National Security Advisor, Zbigniew Brzezinski, no longer believe in it. The shift in nuclear targeting from cities, or "countervalue" targets, to missile silos and other military sites or "counterforce," demonstrates that the Soviets may no longer fear an American second strike.

If that is so, it is because the unchecked growth of Soviet strategic power allows the Soviets to withstand a second strike—which, in theory, once deterred them—and are now capable of launching a second attack themselves. That would be the third nuclear strike in a total war, and probably the last.

The American ace in a theoretical nuclear war has always been our submarine-launched missiles, hidden at sea, and our strategic bomber force. But it now appears that the Soviets no longer fear them, either. They have their own brand-new nuclear armed submarine, the SS-N-8, which can send missiles to the United States without leaving the Barents Sea. The American bomber, the old B-52, is today pitifully vulnerable to Soviet interceptors.

In a brilliant speech in the U.S. Senate, Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan (D-N.Y.) attributes the profound and tragic shift in the nuclear balance to the SALT "process," which has been exploited by the Soviets to build both a heavy new missile, the SS-19, without a new launcher, and the SS-N-8, neither of which were anticipated by the U.S. SALT negotiating team.

Says Moynihan further: "SALT was lost in 1977, when a choice for negotiator was made which did not command a two-third majority of the Senate." That choice was Paul Warnke, who had made his reputation by advising George McGovern to call for a 30 percent reduction in U.S. defenses in 1972.

So that is where we stand today. No doubt, Secretary Brown didn't bother to tell Mr. Muskie because he knew our Secretary of State was flirting with a presidential draft. Muskie was soon disappointed, but secretly. So are the American people, for greater reasons.

Bachelor farmer's good life

By GALE TOLLIN
Associated Press Writer
WARREN, Minn. (AP) — Lloyd George Melgard, retired bachelor farmer and admitted romantic, lives alone on the windswept prairie of extreme northwestern Minnesota. But he's far from lonely.

Little wonder. Melgard, 63, lives in a 24-room mansion filled with oil paintings, Meissen porcelain, books, Hawkes crystal, tapestries and recordings of chamber music and operas.

He attends symphony concerts, lectures and ballet performances in Winnipeg, Manitoba, 120 miles north, and Grand Forks, N.D., 30 miles southwest.

"My life is full. The world is rich and I've made my life rich," he said. "I live a metropolitan life in a rural environment. I feel I live as well in my prairie home as anyone in Minneapolis or New York. I admire art, and I listen to fine music. I read all the time. The older I get, the more I want to learn."

He's made nine trips to Europe, hunting art treasures and antiques. In his prairie palace, Melgard does needlepoint and pet point, and corresponds with some 400 friends scattered around the world. He spends more for postage, Melgard says, than for groceries.

"My mailbox is my window to the world," he said. "Correspondence had made the world so small that I feel at home anywhere."

He says people are isolated only if they isolate themselves. Visitors from every state, all Canadian provinces and many foreign countries have signed Melgard's guest book. At the request of the U.S. State Department, he once put up in his home a touring delegation of Japanese agribusinessmen.

Melgard does his own housework: "I'm the cook, I'm the yardman, I'm the maid."

Melgard inherited 640 acres from his father, a Norwegian immigrant who became a banker and owner of 3,600 acres of flat, rich Red River Valley farmland. He has an interest in 800 more acres. Melgard, who suffers from gout and "hurts with every step," has leased the land for the past 13 years.

His home and holdings notwithstanding, Melgard dismisses suggestions that he's wealthy. Everyone has priorities, he says, and his have been to live among "pretty things."

"I've never bought a new car, and I've never been on a hunting or fishing trip," he said.

Melgard became a serious collector while serving 10 years in the Army. After returning from the South Pacific and Europe with "half a railroad boxcar" filled with crated items, he had his 1881 farm home rebuilt and modernized.

On one living room wall he hung a 6-by-9 foot Bavarian tapestry. On another hangs a painting bought in Berlin. A glass-topped table came from Italy, and handcarved chairs from Germany are upholstered with Melgard's own needlepoint. Heavy white rugs cover most of the polished black walnut floors.

His mansion had become such an attraction several years ago that Melgard was forced to pull the drapes at night and hang a "No More Visitors" sign on his mailbox for privacy.

Some tour visitors, he said, were "like rabbits — scurrying all over the house, nosing into every nook and cranny."

But his "prairie palace persona" is not so famed that it protects him from jarring encounters when he makes occasional forays to big cities for more "pretty things."

Several years ago, after delivering livestock to the South St. Paul stockyards, Melgard stopped at a fancy St. Paul furniture store. Manure clung to his boots. Salespeople ignored him — until everyone else had been waited on.

"I bought $3,000 worth of stuff," he recalled. "By that time, the clerks didn't seem to smell the manure at all."

The Carter record

Economy, taxes and balanced budget

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1978, Jimmy Carter said that if elected president, he would work to cut unemployment and inflation to 4 percent, overhaul the tax system and balance the federal budget — all by the end of his first term.

Those economic commitments formed the cornerstone of his campaign attacks on Republican predecessors whose policies Carter blamed for a sluggish, inflation-prone economy.

Today, unemployment is nearly double 4 percent.

Inflation is more than triple.

The tax burden on the average American is heavier than it was four years ago.

And despite a recent attempt at fiscal balance, budget deficits are certain this year and next, one result of the recession that has settled over the nation's economy.

Congress which choose, instead, to enact selected tax cuts.

The average family of four is paying $1,399 more in federal taxes in 1980 than it did in 1976, according to Congress's Joint Committee on Taxation. The family will pay $3,580 in combined federal income and Social Security taxes in 1980 — 16.6 percent of gross income. That compares to $2,181 or 14.6 percent of gross income in 1976.

Carter economists cite these achievements:

—A Social Security system kept solvent by higher payroll taxes that the administration pushed through Congress.

—Deregulation of the airline industry that led to greater competition and reduced fares. Trucking deregulation, designed to lower freight rates, and eventually consumer prices, became law in early July and rail deregulation is pending in Congress.

—A banking bill was enacted.

It phases out ceilings on the interest paid to savers and opens the door for greater competition between thrift institutions and banks.

—Creation of 9 million new jobs since Carter took office, with total employment rising from 88 million in the last quarter of 1976 to 97 million in the second quarter of 1980.

Carter's recently unveiled economic "revitalization" program includes proposals to give individuals and businesses $2.6 billion in tax reductions next year. It is also designed to promote business investments and create 1 million new jobs over the next two years.

Carter said, however, he did not want Congress to act until after Nov. 4. "I will not accept a pre-election bill to cut taxes," he said. The president's advisers foresee high inflation, big budget deficits and rising unemployment through Election Day.

Carter inherited a 7.4 percent unemployment rate. In the 1976 campaign, he declared that the nation's No. 1 economic priority "has got to be jobs," and once in office he proposed a $50 tax rebate to stimulate the economy.

He later declared the rebate "a mistake" and withdrew it from Congress. Even without the rebate, however, the jobless rate declined in 1978 and 1979, settling at a low of 5.7 percent.

In 1978, Carter declared inflation had replaced unemployment as the nation's No. 1 economic enemy.

Four anti-inflation programs, including voluntary wage and price guidelines, failed to stop consumer prices from rising from 4.8 percent when Carter took office to a 12.6 percent pace in the first seven months of this year.

The Carter administration blamed much of the jump on soaring energy prices — generally unaffected by the voluntary guidelines. Republicans say budget deficits also boosted inflation.

The recession that hit this year increased unemployment, which rose to 7.8 percent in July.

And Carter's most recent anti-inflation strategy, based on tightening credit, prompted charges that the president had broken his campaign pledge not to sacrifice jobs to combat inflation.

Administration officials deny the charge.

The government's tax collections are expected to grow $246.3 billion, or 69 percent, during Carter's four years in office. The major portion of those increased tax receipts comes from taxpayers who have been pushed into higher tax brackets by inflation or who are paying the higher Social Security taxes.

But despite the additional tax revenues, Carter has failed to balance the budget. The deficit in the fiscal 1977 budget, the last one passed by the Ford administration, was $44.9 billion. The expected deficit for fiscal 1980 is near $59 billion. And the latest economic forecasts, taking into account the president's most recent tax and job proposals, project a 1981 deficit of $35 billion.

Congress rejected most of Carter's 1978 Tax Reform Act, the president's effort to overhaul the U.S. tax code which he once described as "a disgrace to the human race."

Among the provisions which were turned down were the president's plans for limiting business deductions for exports, and raising taxes on capital gains. Less than one-third of the 33 recommendations which Carter made were accepted.

Since Carter took office, spendable income — adjusted to take inflation into account — has dropped 3 percent.

The median price of a house has risen from $44,000 in 1977 to $60,400 in April 1980; mortgage rates have increased from 9 percent in December of 1976 to about 12 percent.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

CINCINNATI (AP) — Procter & Gamble Co., the nation's No. 2 roaster, has matched the list price of two leading competitors by reducing its ground coffee wholesale price for the second time in two weeks.

The Cincinnati-based company on Monday reduced its wholesale price on a one-pound can of vacuum Folger's by a dime to $2.88, retroactive to last Friday. It also cut the price of a 13-ounce can of Folger's flaked coffee by 8 cents to $2.36. General Foods Corp., the industry leader, and No. 3 roaster Hills Bros. Inc., had already cut their prices to $2.88 a pound. Procter & Gamble earlier had lowered its wholesale price for ground coffee to $2.98 a pound on Sept. 3.

HOLIDAY INNS PURCHASE CASINO
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — In the first sale of an operating casino in this ocean resort, Holiday Inns Inc. has paid more than $121 million for the Brighton Hotel & Casino, the company reported.

The sale of the 504-room Brighton, which cost $69.4 million to build, involves the transfer of cash and Holiday Inns stock worth more than $121 million, a company spokesman in Memphis, Tenn., said Monday. Holiday Inns, which already plans two casino hotels here, must obtain the New Jersey Casino Control Commission's approval for the off-Boardwalk facility. The firm has applied for a state casino license.

CIVIL LIBERTIES UNION
BOSTON (AP) — The Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts has asked the state's Supreme Court to overturn a new law forbidding government funding of abortions.

The law prohibits the use of Medicaid funds for low-income women to obtain abortions certified by doctors as necessary for the mother's physical or emotional health. It permits public funding for an abortion only when the mother's life is in danger.

John Roberts, director of the Civil Liberties Union, said his organization filed suit Monday because the law violates the state constitution's equal protection clause in restricting poor women's rights.

Child care workers question Clements methods to 'cut back'

By JACK KEEVER
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas child care workers blamed Gov. Bill Clements on Monday for a decision by the State Board of Human Resources to turn over two children's food programs to a federal agency.

The June 11 decision to shift the Child Care Food Program and Summer Feeding Program to the U.S. Department of Agriculture would reduce the state payroll by 17 persons.

Payroll reduction was one of the key pledges in the governor's 1978 campaign.

Even H.H. Pullum of the USDA testified the state could handle the food programs better than his agency.

"I have learned that the first tenet of Texas government is that Texans look after themselves. They look after each other," said Pullum, regional administrator at Dallas of Food and Nutrition Services.

"I know this move is to go along with Gov. Clements' proposal to cut down on the number of state employees," said Carol King, director of Tullia's Community Nursery. She said the reduction is "deceptive," however, because the state is reimbursed for the salaries.

Also, she said, the proposal "is contrary to the governor's campaign promises that he would work for state administration" — rather than federal — of child care programs.

The food programs serve more than 95,000 low-income youngsters in Texas. The child care program pays for meals served to children in day care centers while the summer program provides meals and snacks to children who normally would receive free or low-cost lunches at school.

"If the programs are returned to USDA, people can say that's my problem — no, it's the problem of the children we're trying to serve," said Pullum.

Dallas schools must prove hardship

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas school officials must prove the admission of illegal aliens will create a hardship or be prepared to admit them, a federal judge says.

U.S. District Judge Robert Hill said he will hold another hearing on the matter Sept. 15. He said the Dallas Independent School District must have proof of their hardship claims ready by then.

The judge also said he would hold a closed conference with DISD attorney Lee Smith and plaintiff's attorney Larry Mealer of Dallas Legal Services Thursday.

A suit was filed in April 1979 by 19 children of illegal aliens and their parents challenging a DISD policy that bars undocumented children from a free public education.

A federal judge at Houston earlier this year struck down that law. Last week, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell upheld the ruling by U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals which ordered Texas schools to educate illegal alien school children.

Hill told school district lawyers Monday "The burden will be on the school district. Unless you have established the harm mentioned in Mr. Justice Powell's order, I would be inclined to grant injunctive relief (forcing Dallas schools to admit the illegal alien children)."

Drug rumors hit Center

CENTER (AP) — Shelby County District Attorney Bill Warren says there is nothing unusual about rumors in a small town like Center.

"Everybody knows everybody else's business, or at least they think they do," Warren said.

Warren was commenting on rumors that began after an Aug. 13 roundup in which state and local law enforcement officers sought to execute 66 arrest warrants on 50 individuals named on drug charges.

About 150 townspeople in this East Texas community of 5,000 gathered on the courthouse square as news, radio and television crews reported the roundup that eventually led to the arrest of 45 people.

In a sense, it was a one-night affair, but rumors persisted. There was talk of "cover-up" and reports the "big ones" got away.

One letter to the editor of the East Texas Light said "important" persons had been charged in surrounding counties to protect their identities.

Shelby County Sheriff Paul Ross, Warren, and Capt. Jack Curtis, who heads the Houston narcotics division for the Texas Department of Public Safety, say there is no truth to the rumors.

But Ross says he suspects people in "high places" warned some narcotics dealers a drug investigation was under way.

"It was a real successful operation," said Curtis. "We got some of the major pushers in that area. There are suspicions about other people. There were possibly a couple of others up there who were selling, but we couldn't make a case on them."

Texas politics

AUSTIN (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford will join Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan and vice presidential candidate George Bush at a "Lone Star Tribute" dinner in Houston, Sept. 16, the Regan-Bush state headquarters said Monday.

The $1,000-a-plate dinner at the Albert Thomas Convention Center is expected to provide the financial base for the Regan-Bush campaign in Texas, officials said.

Gov. Bill Clements has said he hopes the dinner will furnish about $1.8 million of the $2.2 million expected to be spent on the presidential race in Texas.

Houston businessman Walter Mischer is chairman of the dinner which will be preceded by a reception.

Earlier, Reagan is tentatively scheduled to arrive in San Antonio on the night of Sept. 15 and attend a San Antonio breakfast on Tuesday. He has a noon appearance in Harlingen, and an afternoon airport rally at Corpus Christi before arriving in Houston.

REAGAN SON ON TOUR

AUSTIN (AP) — Mike Reagan, son of Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, began a four-day campaign tour of East Texas Monday.

Mike, 35, was accompanied by his wife, Colleen, and their two-year old son, Cameron. He was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Utzman of Longview.

Reagan was in Longview Monday to ride in the Gregg County Fair parade. Tuesday he will speak to Republican workers in Longview and hold a news conference.

Wednesday and Thursday he will be in Gilmer, Pittsburg, Mt. Pleasant, Sulphur Springs, Tyler and Carthage.

Names in the news

PARIS (AP) — Activist Dick Gregory, just returned from fasting for 4½ months in Tehran, Iran, says he plans to continue his "fast for peace" with a march from New York to the White House starting Friday — if his health permits.

When he arrived here Monday, Gregory said he began his protest to show the Carter administration how close the world is to war.

"I think World War III could start at any minute," he said. "There is much more than the hostages involved."

Gregory, who looked fit but slightly gaunt, told reporters at Charles de Gaulle airport he went to Iran as a private citizen and was never asked to serve as a go-between in negotiations to release the 52 American hostages, who completed their 310th day of captivity Monday. He said he did not see the hostages.

LONDON (AP) — If Peter Sellers ever harbored a needless fear, it was that no one would show up at his memorial service.

An estimated 500 mourners, many of them entertainers, did show up Monday at St. Martins-in-the Field to pay tribute to their friend who died of a heart attack here July 24. Monday would have been Sellers' 55th birthday.

Prince Charles, a special fan of Sellers, was represented by British comedian Michael Bentine. Lord Snowdon, ex-husband of Princess Margaret, read the 23rd Psalm, and friend, fellow jester and singer Harry Secombe sang "Bread of Heaven."

Actor David Niven recalled that he and Sellers attended a memorial service for Noel Coward several years ago. As they left the church, Sellers said he hoped there would be no such service for him "because I don't think anyone will show up."

Niven added: "I just hope that he knows that Laurence Olivier described him as a genius."

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Michelle Triola Marvin, whose "palimony" property suit against actor Lee Marvin gave new meaning to the term "living together," has been arrested for investigation of shoplifting.

Police Lt. Russ Olson said Monday that Ms. Marvin, 47, was arrested Friday by private security officers at Robinson's Department Store in Beverly Hills and accused of trying to shoplift three sweaters and two bras valued at $208.

She was ordered to appear in court on Sept. 30 for arraignment. Olson said the case probably would be prosecuted as a misdemeanor.

Ms. Marvin, who sued Marvin for half his fortune after their six-year love affair ended, was awarded $104,000 in April 1979, but an appeal is still pending and she has not received any money.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Joan Chalupnik's brief course in how to land a plane in an emergency came in handy — one day after she took it.

On Sunday, Mrs. Chalupnik's husband collapsed in the cockpit of their plane, forcing her to grab the controls.

FAA officials said Monday the Piper PA-12 Supercruiser bounced twice and flipped over upon landing. While unhurt in the landing, John Chalupnik was in critical condition from an undiagnosed ailment.

Army units begin NATO maneuvers

BONN, West Germany (AP) — U.S. Army units headed for maneuvers with the NATO allies in northern West Germany today, while Warsaw Pact forces began war games on the Communist side of the border in East Germany, according to official reports.

The American forces included 275 members of the 2-34 Armored Battalion of the 4th Infantry Division from Ft. Carson, Colo. They arrived today at Ramstein Air Force Base, near Kaiserslautern, in a surprise callup, an Army spokesman said.

The Army has said it is flying a total of 17,000 troops to West Germany for a series of mock battles, river crossings and support operations intended to train its troops and to show that the United States could quickly reinforce its allies and U.S. forces here in case of attack. The U.S. effort is called "Autumn Forge."

Most of them are already in West Germany, according to Army spokesmen.

The latest arrivals from Ft. Carson followed an advance party of 230 who got their orders Saturday. They flew in Monday, picked up tanks, trucks and field equipment and set up a tent city near Gernersheim, a Rhine River city about 20 miles south of Mannheim, an Army spokesman said.

The U.S. troops were preparing to move out in a few days to join British-run war games near Hannover.

British spokesmen say about 63,000 soldiers — not counting observers, referees and control personnel — will take part in the mock tank and artillery battle called "Spearpoint," beginning Sept. 15.

"Spearpoint" is the main part of Britain's "Crusader 80" maneuvers, the largest British exercise of its kind since the formation of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, according to official spokesmen. More than 100,000 troops are involved in "Crusader 80," the British say.

In East Germany, meanwhile, Czechoslovak and East German land and air forces practiced battle tactics under the leadership of Soviet Marshal Viktor Kulikov, supreme commander of Warsaw Pact forces, as dignitaries from several Communist countries looked on, the official East German news agency ADN said.

East German Communist Party Chief Erich Honecker, Cuban Gen. Raul Castro and Hoang Van Thai, deputy Vietnamese defense minister, were among the observers, ADN said.

Wine strike spreads

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A five-day-old wine strike affecting four wineries and 1,800 workers will spread to two additional wineries each day until a settlement is reached or until all 23 wineries in a management group are struck, union officials say.

Union official Ben Koch would not say Monday which wineries might be struck today, but the Charles Krug winery in St. Helena said it was notified by the union that it would be one of them.

The union's contract expired at midnight Thursday. Gallo and United Vintners — two of the world's largest wineries, producing 50 percent of the nation's wine — were struck Friday, and the other two wineries were brought into the strike Monday.

DOUBLE-DECKER PARKING. John Castele holds his grandson, 20-month-old John Sweet, after the child's actions in an auto behind him caused a mishap Friday in Beckley, W. Va. Young John, sitting in a parked car with his grandmother, Marjorie Castele, put the car into gear as the engine was running. The vehicle pushed the car ahead of it through a porch railing and onto the patio below, then jumped the car's track and rolled down its roof to the ground. Little John needed just a few stitches in his, but his grandmother suffered a broken wrist, bumped nose and bruises around the eyes.

Chinese have problems with millions of unemployed youths

PEKING (AP) — Communist Party chief Hua Gofeng revealed in a speech to the National People's Congress this week that 65 percent of China's population — 630 million people — is under 30 years old.

It is as if the entire population of the United States, the Soviet Union and much of Western Europe had not reached its 31st birthday.

Hua failed to add that a majority of the population, or about 500 million, is around the 18-to-20 age group.

What to do with these young men and women is an appalling problem made worse by a rigid, unbending bureaucracy, a party cadre system with lifetime tenure and unemployment which reached 20 million last year.

Several million are members of a "lost generation" thrown up by the excesses of the 1966-76 period of turmoil which began with the Cultural Revolution. They were the wild-eyed teen-agers of the Red Guards given a free hand by Mao Tse-tung and his wife, Jiang Qing, to criticize, pillage and destroy on a nationwide scale.

By 1969 their excesses had become so great that even the radical leaders of the Cultural Revolution were appalled. Mao's solution was to pack off 10 million of them to the countryside to learn from the peasants. The more moderate regime that came to power after Mao's death brought many of them back last year to the cities from where they came, and these form the hard core of the unemployment problem. They returned to a society which has begun to emphasize commodity production. Items unheard of before — television sets, tape recorders, sun glasses and better clothing — have appeared on the market. But few of the unemployed or under-employed young have the money to acquire them.

Many have turned to petty crime and worse. The Communist Party's solution is to round up troublemakers and without the formality of a trial bundle them off to labor camps to be reformed.

Two other sizable segments of the population under 30 are waiting to see what the future holds. Millions of these are the young members of the Communist Party, many of them enlisted by the radicals during the Cultural Revolution, when membership ballooned from 18 million to 38 million.

Many of them have been stalled in mid-career because of their association with the radical Maoists. The new regime dominated by two-time Maoist victim Deng Xiaoping decided to re-educate them instead of rooting them out. Meanwhile, they mark time until they are accepted by the new crowd. They will have to wait while the politically pure young make their climb. But even the latter are stalled by the system of lifetime tenure for the country's 18 million party cadres.

proval of a budget execution committee that would be composed of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Chairman and Vice-chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Chairman and Vice-chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to grant the governor power to exercise fiscal control over the expenditure of appropriated funds as provided by law."

PROPOSITION NO. 6 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 8 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the Governor who appointed a previously confirmed official to remove that official from office subject to the advice and consent of the Senate; and if the Legislature is not in session, to call a special session of the Senate which may last no longer than 2 days for consideration of the removal.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to authorize the governor to remove appointed officers with the advice and consent of the senate."

PROPOSITION NO. 7 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 121 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize counties with a population of 5000 or less to construct and maintain private roads if they impose a reasonable charge for the work. The Legislature by general law may limit this authority. Revenue received from private road work may be used only for the construction, including right-of-way acquisition, or maintenance of public roads.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing counties with a population of 5000 or less to perform private road work."

PROPOSITION NO. 8 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 36 proposes a constitutional amendment that would change the jurisdiction and authority of the State's appellate courts. The amendment would change the name of the Courts of Civil Appeals to Courts of Appeal and provide that these courts have intermediate appellate jurisdiction over both criminal and civil cases. The amendment would change titles for the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court to Justices and would require members of the Supreme Court to be attorneys licensed in this state while holding office.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to change the name of the Courts of Civil Appeals and the names and qualifications of the justices of the Supreme Court and to prescribe the jurisdiction and authority of the appellate courts."

PROPOSITION NO. 9 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 54 proposes a constitutional amendment which defines separate property owned by either spouse as all property, both real and personal, of a spouse owned or claimed before marriage, and that acquired afterward by gift, devise or descent. Persons about to marry and spouses, without the intent to defraud pre-existing creditors, may by written instrument from time to time partition between themselves all or part of their property. Spouses may exchange a community interest in property owned or to be acquired for a community interest in other community property. The amendment would allow spouses to agree in writing that income or property arising from any separate property is to be separate property rather than as community property as it would be in the absence of an agreement. The amendment proposes that a gift from one spouse to another is presumed to include all income or property deriving from such gift.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment allowing spouses to agree that income or property arising from separate property is to be separate property."

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 35 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the Legislature to permit banks to establish and operate unmanned teller machines within the county or city where the banks are located and to share the use of teller machines on a basis consistent with anti-trust laws, if it finds such operation will serve the convenience of the public. The Legislature has already passed enabling legislation (H.B. 1510) for this proposed amendment.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to authorize banks to use unmanned teller machines within the county or the city of their domicile on a shared basis to serve the public convenience."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 97 proposes a constitutional amendment that would grant the State and the accused the right to an interlocutory appeal from the following trial court rulings in criminal cases: pretrial rulings on the constitutionality of a statute; on a motion to quash, dismiss, or set aside an indictment; and on a motion to suppress evidence.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment authorizing appeal of certain pre-trial rulings of a trial court in a criminal case by either the state or the accused."

PROPOSITION NO. 3 ON THE BALLOT

House Joint Resolution 98 proposes a constitutional amendment that would require a single appraisal of all property subject to ad valorem taxation and would provide for a single board of equalization within each county. The constitutional requirement that the county commissioners court sit as a board of equalization would be eliminated, and elected officials of the county or governing body of the taxing unit would be prohibited from serving as members of the board of equalization.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment requiring a single appraisal and a single board of equalization within each county for ad valorem tax purposes."

PROPOSITION NO. 4 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 18 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the Legislature to authorize the conduct of bingo games by certain specified groups for charitable purposes, subject to the limitations that operation of the games must be approved in local option elections and that all proceeds must be spent in Texas.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows: "The constitutional amendment to authorize bingo games on a local option election basis if the games are conducted by a church, synagogue, religious society, volunteer fire department, nonprofit veterans organization, fraternal organization, or nonprofit organization supporting medical research or treatment programs and if the proceeds are to be spent in Texas for charitable purposes of the organizations."

AT WIT'S END

I had never heard the expression "gridlock" before until the deputy commissioner of transportation used it recently in New York. It's a term used to describe a condition where traffic comes to a complete standstill, becomes totally paralyzed and is unable to move anywhere.

He said he has been close to it but has never really seen it. I have. Lots of times.

The last time I encountered "gridlock" was when I was picking my children up at a rock concert. It was a terrifying experience. Nothing was moving in the entire parking lot. Everywhere you looked, car lights burned, their beams frozen as if they had been abandoned. No one spoke. We just sat there in silence, each one harboring his own private fears. Finally, I beat on the steering wheel and shouted, "I don't believe this! I'm going to die and I still have a half a tank of gas! It's not fair!"

It was hours before the nightmare ended, but it gave me a chance to observe people during a traffic snarl.

A good 48 percent of drivers in a traffic jam subscribe to the theory, "Don't just sit there. Honk your horn." Some people have never heard what their horn sounds like. Not these drivers. They use it every time a light turns green...every time they pull into a driveway...every time a 97-year-old woman gets caught in the intersection.

A good 38 percent of the horn-honkers are also hood-viewers and trailblazers. They can't wait until "film at 11." In their impatience to know what in the Sam Hill is going on and why they are inconvenienced, they will climb on top of the car hood. When their curiosity is not satisfied, they will pull out into the oncoming lane, thus blocking all emergency vehicle routes.

Probably the most intriguing characters at a "gridlock" are the less than 1/2 percent who slip into a phone booth, change into a T-shirt with a red S on it and start directing traffic. I'm convinced it's a fantasy for someone who always wanted the challenge of being a social director on the Titanic.

I read recently where there was a near gridlock condition at a large office building each morning when husbands dropped their wives off at work and snarled traffic with prolonged goodbye kisses. It's not that I don't believe the story. Let us say I've seen husbands kiss their wives and most of them could plant one on from a moving commuter train.

But what the heck — if you have to die in snarled traffic, you might as well go with your motor running.

Texan's chili sauce is popular

Cooks keep asking me for a recipe for chili sauce that has pure flavor, exact measurements and accurate directions. "Recipes Grandma used to use," they say, "are too vague."

I'm happy to say I've tracked down a chili sauce recipe that's truly worthwhile. It comes from Mrs. Lena Mae Barton of Granbury, Texas, who is known to her friends as a fine hostess. Mrs. Barton's daughter, Sue Huffman, is food editor of Ladies' Home Journal and used a version of the chili sauce recipe in the Journal some time back. Word spread that this formula for chili sauce was terrifically good. Lena Mae's two grandchildren, 11-year-old Charley and 13-year-old Sarah Huffman (Sue's children) gobble up her chili sauce with burgers and buns. I love it with meat, fish and Western sandwiches.

Recently Lena Mae visited her family in New York City and I had a chance to meet her. When I asked her how she acquired her culinary skill, she said: "From my mother. She was a born cook. She could make anything she turned her hand to taste good. I was also lucky enough to have grown up on a farm in Oklahoma. We had wonderful fresh vegetables and fruit and I've used fresh produce ever since."

Mrs. Barton was born in Enid, Okla., and graduated in home economics from the Oklahoma College for Women in Chickasha, Okla. After graduation she taught school for two years, then married and brought up two daughters. She's a vivacious, outgoing woman who instantly makes you feel at home.

These days, Lena Mae and her husband, Harold, who is semi-retired, often share the work when they give parties. Harold helps out by barbecuing. He may roast a small turkey over charcoal and hickory chips. As a go-along, Lena Mae whips up a German salad — potatoes with a bacon, sugar and vinegar dressing. She also serves a platter of lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers and onion rings.

And there's always a dessert guests exclaim over. For instance, old-fashioned lemon pie with a super meringue. "How high it is," says Lena Mae, "depends on how many egg yolks I happen to put in the filling." Her banana cream pie is equally admired. I hope I can borrow both those pie recipes to pass along to you. Meanwhile here's her recipe for chili sauce.

LENA MAE'S CHILI SAUCE
10 pounds fully ripe tomatoes
3 cups finely chopped

celery (6 large ribs)
2 cups finely chopped onions (2 large)
2 cups finely chopped green pepper (2 1/2 large)
1 cinnamon stick, about 5 inches long
1 1/2 teaspoons whole cloves
5 teaspoons dry mustard
1-pound package light brown sugar
3 cups cider vinegar
3 tablespoons salt
1/2 teaspoon chili powder

Scald tomatoes, remove skins and cut out stem ends; cut into chunks. In an 8-quart saucepot over fairly high heat cook tomatoes, stirring often, until quite juicy — about 15 minutes; add celery, onions and green pepper; bring to a boil. Boil gently uncovered, stirring as necessary and adjusting heat as mixture sputters, for 1 1/2 hours. Add cinnamon and cloves (tied in cheesecloth); stir in mustard, sugar, vinegar and salt. Return to a boil; simmer, stirring often, for 1 1/2 hours. Stir in chili powder and simmer, stirring often, until thick — about 30 minutes longer. Remove spice bag. Pour into hot, sterilized 1-pint canning jars with 2-piece caps, leaving 1/2 inch headspace. Add lids and bands, screwing them tight. Process in a boiling water bath for 15 minutes. Makes 5 pints.

New ideas in microwave cooking

A microwave oven can melt cooking time in half—or more. Chefs in a hurry can soften refrigerated butter by unwrapping a stick, placing it in a glass bowl and heating in the microwave for 15 to 20 seconds.

Adapting conventional recipes for microwave cooking is easy with help from home economists at Lawry's Foods. The specialists have free folders available containing favorite recipes and package directions for microwave ovens. For your free folder, write to: Lawry's Foods, Consumer Services, Dept. TM, P.O. Box 2572, Los Angeles, CA 90051.

Try this classic Ratatouille in your microwave and get kudos from dinner guests. Slice one large onion into thin, separate rings. Cut one small eggplant into 3/4-inch cubes. In 3-quart casserole, combine onion, eggplant, 2 sliced zucchini, 2 green peppers cut in strips, 1/4 cup olive oil and 1/2 teaspoon Lawry's Garlic Powder with Parsley, Seasoned Salt and Seasoned Pepper to taste. Cover with plastic wrap and vent one corner. Microwave on high 8 minutes. Gently stir in 5 seeded chopped tomatoes, re-cover and microwave on high 1 to 2 minutes. Serve hot or cold.

DR. LAMB DEAR ABBY

By Abigail Van Buren

By Lawrence Lamb, M. D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was wondering if there could be anything physically wrong with my husband or if it's mental. He has lost all desire for sex. We have not had sex for 14 months. Everything else is the same as usual. We still communicate and love each other and there is no one else. He is 39 years old, 5-foot-11 and weighs 220 pounds.

DEAR READER — A loss of interest in sex for that length of time at that age is an indication that something is wrong. Remember this is just a symptom, not a diagnosis.

Some individuals, male and female, lose interest in sex because — they're depressed. That's so common that I'm sending you The Health Letter number 10-10, Depression: The Ups and Downs of Life. As you'll see from this letter, depression is not always so obvious and all of us are subject to some degrees of it. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Your communication may not be everything that you think it is. There's always a possibility that he's having a problem of impotence and he protects his ego in the situation by suppressing any interest in sex. If that should be the case, impotence is also only a symptom and can be caused by many things.

At 220 pounds, it sounds like he is overweight. The reasons for this could also be important. I would urge you to communicate with him and get him to see a doctor for a careful review of his status. And if no apparent physical disease is present, such as diabetes, don't neglect the possibility of depression. If so, he should get some professional counseling from a psychiatrist. You don't have to be grossly incapacitated to have emotional difficulties such as a mild depression.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do you think I have stroke symptoms? I'm enclosing a newspaper clipping that describes transient ischemic attacks, whatever that is.

I stumble over footstools and can't stand on a chair to reach something for fear of falling. Sometimes when going to bed I can barely make it. My fingers are numb at times, too. I'm 85 years old.

DEAR READER — I read the little item you sent me from one of the newspapers. It describes what some doctors in the past have called little strokes (transient ischemic attacks — TIAs). These are attacks which cause symptoms like a stroke. You may have a paralyzed arm or weakness of a limb or loss of balance and be unsteady. But these are transitory.

These are not symptoms you have every time you get up on a chair or try to screw a lightbulb in the socket. These people actually look like they're having a stroke but the whole affair may last minutes or perhaps no more than an hour and then the symptoms totally disappear.

A fairly high percentage of people who have such episodes may have a complete stroke in the not too distant future and that's what the news story you sent me was all about.

DEAR ABBY: About the letter from the married couple who were very self-conscious because she was about six inches taller than her husband, so they started going to restaurants together — she dressed as the man, and he the woman: They asked you if it was against the law, and you wisely suggested that they check their local laws.

Abby, they clearly have a legal right to dress as they wish as a part of their constitutional right to privacy. However, should they use the public restrooms, they might run into trouble. A man caught in a women's restroom, even if he's dressed as a woman, risks being charged with violating laws against peeping toms and indecent exposure. Similarly, a woman caught dressed as a man in a women's restroom, or a man caught dressed as a woman in a men's room, may be detained to prove correct sexual identity.

Also, a man who is jailed dressed as a woman may have to fight off indecent assaults from other inmates.

So perhaps they should consider these risks when weighing whether to do something they have a legal right to do.

ARLINGTON, VA., ATTORNEY

DEAR ATTORNEY: You make several good points. Even though cross-dressing in restaurants may be legal, it's not advisable.

DEAR ABBY: For years I've been tempted to write a Dear Abby letter, and now I must! Nothing provoked me as much as your answer to the girl whose mother insisted on washing the dishes when staying in a motel.

Your answer just blew my socks off! (You said, "Leave 'em; the motel owner doesn't expect the guests to wash the dishes.")

Abby, I own and operate a small motel on the Oregon coast, and I expect my guests to leave my rooms clean — and that includes doing their own dirty dishes! Those who don't receive a very polite letter asking them not to return. You'd be surprised at the number of letters I get from people who apologize, and ask if they may return to prove that they are not really messy slob.

Payment of room rent does not give motel guests the right to leave anything dirty, as you suggest.

JACKIE

DEAR JACKIE: Sorry I blew your socks off. Buy some garters and send me the bill. A motel that has customers begging to stay there must be great!

Discovery Center presents "Skyfire"

Awesome and mysterious lights that appear in the sky are recreated on the planetarium dome of Amarillo's Don Harrington Discovery Center in a show called "Skyfire."

The show illustrates and explains the amazing variety of natural lights that can be seen in day and night skies. "Skyfire" will be presented at 8 p.m. on Saturdays and 3 p.m. on Sundays. "Skyfire" explores both common and rare phenomena that occur in the earth's atmosphere and in space. Some of the skyfires shown can be seen with the unaided eye, under the right conditions: rainbows, the northern lights, lightning that travels in a ball, and the sun disappearing in a green flash.

Other scenes are of events within our solar system, such as eclipses, meteor showers, and flares on the sun. Some of the fires in the sky come from deep in space, where stars explode into glowing clouds of gas and galaxies of a billion stars rotate like gigantic pinwheels.

CHILI CORN PATTIES

These are slightly crisp on the outside and soft inside.
2 medium ears corn
1 cup finely diced canned green chili
1 large egg
2 tablespoons unbleached all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1-8th teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
Butter

Shuck corn; with a sharp knife cut kernels down middle of each row; cut off kernels from cobs; with dull side of knife, scrape downward to extract pulp. There should be about 2-3rds cup. Add chili. Beat egg until thick and ivory color; add flour, baking powder, salt and sugar and beat to blend. Fold in corn-chili mixture. In a 10-inch skillet heat 1 tablespoon butter. Drop heaping tablespoons of the batter; well apart, into the hot butter; cook over moderate heat, adding more butter if necessary, until browned on bottom sides; turn and brown top sides. Makes 8.

DANNY WHITE (11), quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys, who replaced retired Roger Staubach, gets some protection from fellow teammate Pat Donovan (67) in NFL football action between Dallas and Washington last night. The Cowboys won, 17-3.

Cowboys open season with 17-3 victory over Redskins

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Danny White, by his own admission, was a near basket-case before making his debut as the replacement for retired superstar Roger Staubach as the Dallas Cowboys quarterback.

"I was going crazy all day in the hotel room," said White after the Cowboys defeated the Washington Redskins 17-3 Monday night. "I couldn't wait until I could get to the stadium."

"I had butterflies and was really jittery in the locker room," he continued. "I even made them move the clock from behind a blackboard so I could see the second hand go around, waiting to go out on the field."

White, a five-year veteran who spent one year in the World Football League, said the nervousness began to leave him during the warmups and he settled down to normal after the opening Dallas drive.

"After that first drive, I was excited to get back into the game," he said with a smile.

Much of the Cowboys' fortunes rest on White who is taking over from Staubach, who is working in a television broadcast booth this season.

"I have a lot to prove, not only to myself, but to everybody," admitted White, who completed 10 of 18 passes for 107 yards, but threw two interceptions. "I'm not a proven quarterback, yet. If I could have those two interceptions back, I would be very happy with the game."

The Cowboys had a relative easy time in handling Washington, shutting the Redskins out until Mark Moseley hit a 45-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

Tony Dorsett scored on a 6-yard touchdown run and Ron Springs bulled over from the 4, to culminate two long drives by the Cowboys.

Cowboys defensive end Harvey Martin, a leader of the gang that held the Redskins to 58 yards rushing, said, "I'm not taking anything away from the Redskins. We just wanted it more than they did. We just stuck it in their face."

Both White and Martin said a key play was the goal line interception by veteran Charlie Waters midway through the third quarter on the first play after the Redskins had intercepted White.

"That play was vital to us," said White. "They had good field position and didn't get any points."

Martin: "Charlie was the leader. He was talking to all the young guys. He was teaching in every huddle."

Waters merely joked: "If I had two good knees, I might have gone all the way."

White said he was unaware that Staubach was shown on national television, watching the contest from his home.

"That's interesting," he said with a smile. "I would have liked to have heard what he said."

Tech-North Carolina will be televised

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The intersectional football game between Texas Tech and North Carolina Saturday has been moved from 7:30 p.m. to 12:50 p.m. at Jones Stadium so it can be televised by ABC regionally, a Southwest Conference spokesman said Monday.

The Tech Red Raiders of the Southwest Conference and the Tar Heels of the Atlantic Coast Conference each won their openers last weekend.

John, Gossage spark Yankees' September surge for pennant

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The New York Yankees have been beating teams left and right this September, thanks to Tommy John and Rich Gossage.

Especially thanks to Gossage. New York's strong-arm reliever put the Arm again on the opposition Monday night as the Yankees beat the Toronto Blue Jays 7-4 for their eighth straight victory.

"I didn't want to have to pitch him (Gossage) tonight," said Yankees Manager Dick Howser. "He had pitched the last three nights and I wanted to give him a rest. But when you get that far to the end, you've got to go with your best and he's the best relief pitcher there is in baseball."

The Yankees were losing 4-3 going into the ninth inning before rallying for four runs. Then, when John, New York's illustrious southpaw, loaded the bases with two out, Howser brought in Gossage and the power-throwing right-hander struck out Ernie Whitt on three pitches.

"I had never faced him before," said Whitt. "He threw three fastballs. They (the Blue Jays staff armed with a radar gun) told me the first was 95 miles per hour, the second one 96 and the third 98."

That was good enough to earn John his 20th victory of the season and Gossage his 25th save.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore took a doubleheader from Detroit 9-2, 8-6; Boston trimmed Seattle 10-4; Chicago edged Seattle 3-2 in 12 innings; California defeated Kansas City 7-4 and Texas turned back Oakland 6-2.

John, 20-7, registered his second consecutive 20-victory season since coming to New York as a free agent. He allowed seven hits, struck out three and walked one in 82-3 innings before Gossage came on.

Orioles 9-8, Tigers 2-6
Eddie Murray belted a three-run homer and Al Bumbry hit a solo shot to back the combined five-hit pitching of Dennis Martinez and Sammy Stewart, pacing Baltimore's first-game victory over Detroit.

Gary Roenicke hit a home run and Murray drove in two runs to back the eight-hit pitching of Mike Flanagan and two relievers as the Orioles won the second game.

Red Sox 10, Indians 4
Jim Dwyer hit two homers and Carlton Fisk knocked in four runs to highlight an 18-hit attack as Boston defeated Cleveland. Dwyer had his eighth and ninth home runs, consecutive solo shots in the fourth and sixth innings off Indians starter Dan Spillner, 14-10.

Mike Torrez worked the first 61-3 innings for Boston, surrendering all four runs on eight hits before Bob Stanley came on to pitch the final 22-3 innings.

White Sox 3, Mariners 2
Wayne Nordhagen singled home Chet Lemon from second with the winning run in the 12th inning as Chicago edged Seattle. Seattle reliever Dave Heaverly, 5-3, started the 12th by getting Kevin Bell on a groundout. But he hit Lemon with a pitch, and after Mike Squires fled out, Lemon stole second. Nordhagen then singled up the middle on a 1-1 pitch.

Strateline: Sports Oilers to work on receiving

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Editor

Injuries are sadly a part of football and most other sports, but an injury is doubly tragic when it occurs unnecessarily. Clay Coffee's ankle sprain during Pampa's 20-7 win over Hereford last Friday night is a case in point.

Coffee, who plays strong safety, was moving up to support the line during a Hereford offensive play when he stepped on a broken water sprinkler head. As a result, Coffee may miss the next two games.

"I told Don Cumpton (Hereford head coach) what had happened and he was as upset about it as I was," Gilbert said. "It was just one of those freak things. One of his players could have been hurt just as easily."

Apparently, one of the "pop-up" heads malfunctioned and didn't descend into the ground when the sprinkler system was turned off. "Luckyly, Clay's ankle wasn't broken, but it was badly sprained," Gilbert said. "If I know him he'll be back as soon as he can. He's one of our leaders."

Pampa linebacker Robbie Leffel was named by the Amarillo Globe-News as Class 5A defensive player-of-the-week honors for his role against Hereford. Leffel, a 155-pounder, was credited with nine assisted tackles and four solo stops. He also knocked down two passes and was given the Harvesters' "hit of the week" award.

Gary Newcomb, who coached the Harvesters' offensive line last season, is now an assistant under Charles Russell at Canadian.

Wheeler's quest for its second consecutive state football title is heating up early.

The Mustangs steamrolled over Stinnett, 31-8, Friday night in their football opener. It ran their victory string to 15 in a row.

"The kids just couldn't wait to put on their game uniforms and get going," said Mustang Coach Joe Allen. "We dominated them early. That was the key to the win."

Senior tailback Willie Valencia received the Globe-News Offensive player of the week award in Class 2A after he scored four touchdowns and rushed for 139 yards against Stinnett.

The first annual PBA Match-Game Doubles Tournament will be held Oct. 25-26 at Harvester Lanes.

The tournament is limited to 32 teams and entries will be taken on a first come, first served basis. Entry fee is fifty dollars per team. Deadline is 10 p.m. Oct. 23. First prize is worth $375, second, $175, third, $90, and fourth, $50.

The 49th annual Texas Prison Rodeo will be held every Sunday in October in Huntsville.

Reserved tickets, priced at $4, $5 and $6 apiece, may be obtained by writing Texas Prison Rodeo, P.O. Box, 99, Huntsville, Tex. 77340.

Flashback: Sept. 1952. Pampa opened the football season with a 37-27 win over Austin of El Paso.

Ed Dudley scored three touchdowns for the Harvesters on nine and five-yard runs and a 44-yard pass from quarterback J.N. Wright.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers have an extra day of practice this week to prepare for a Monday night game against the Cleveland Browns and Coach Bum Phillips already has that workout planned.

"We're going to spend it catching passes," Phillips said Monday in reviewing Sunday's disheartening 31-17 loss to Pittsburgh in a game that was supposed to prove the Oilers had caught up with the defending Super Bowl champions.

Houston's entire receiving corps suffered a severe case of iron hands in the first half when they dropped five catchable passes and the Steelers took a 17-0 lead.

"I don't know how to explain it," Phillips said. "We dropped some passes and we tipped some that they intercepted."

The epidemic started with Earl Campbell, who dropped one of Ken Stabler's first passes, and quickly spread to the rest of the Oiler receivers.

"I was about the last guy to drop one," wide receiver Mike Renfro said. "Then I dropped two. I couldn't figure out what was wrong. I couldn't understand why my teammates were dropping them, and then it happened to me."

The loss did not deter Phillips from his contention that the Oilers have closed the gap against the Steelers.

"After playing the ball game, I still feel that we are as good as they are and we're capable of beating them," Phillips said. "We are better than we were last year on offense and defense and they aren't any better than they were last year."

Sunday's loss was similar to a 30-7 dunking the Oilers suffered a year ago in the first meeting between the two teams. But Phillips is not ready to quit after one game.

"Yesterday we didn't do the things that we are capable of doing and yet we still were in the game," Phillips said. "We were down 17-0 and came back and tied the game and had a chance to win it. It's a tribute to our team that we were able to come back."

The Oilers, unable to run against the Steelers in three meetings last season, attempted 44 passes Sunday compared to only 15 running plays, 13 by Earl Campbell.

Houston's pass-oriented attack doesn't mean Phillips has junked the Oilers' running game and Campbell, the NFL rushing champion the past two seasons.

"We will try to run the football on teams that we can run on," Phillips said. "Your plan changes from week to week and from opponent to opponent."

It may be awhile, however, before the Oilers score another touchdown on a pass by Campbell. The Oilers' first touchdown Sunday was a 57-yard halfback pass to Billy "White Shoes" Johnson.

"We put it in last week and worked on it," Phillips said. "I didn't call the play. It came from the press box. I don't think he ever completed it during practice but he sure did in the game."

The best news Phillips could muster about the game was the Oilers escaped with no injuries.

"That's the first time we ever played them and didn't have to go to the hospital," he said.

Rams rave

about Sims

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Generally, the winning club provides the accolades for the star, but this time the Los Angeles Rams had a lot of good things to say about Detroit rookie running back Billy Sims.

He had just scored three touchdowns and set up a fourth as the Lions swept the Rams 41-20 and ruined the regular National Football League debut of the erstwhile Los Angeles Coliseum-based club in their new stadium.

Sims, the 210-pound Heisman Trophy winner from Oklahoma, had tallied on runs of 10, 1 and 41 yards. He gained 153 yards rushing and 64 on passes.

"He is as good as any back in the league," commented Jack Reynolds, the veteran middle linebacker of the Rams.

"That man can do some running, spinning and turning and breaking tackles," said linebacker Bob Brudzinski.

"He has good speed, excellent balance and is a strong, all-around back," commented free safety Nolan Cromwell.

All of those commenting were members of the stellar Los Angeles defense that has been among the best in the National Football League in past seasons.

"He gets to the hole real quick," added Mike Fanning, the Rams' defensive left tackle. "He's a pretty good back."

That was the understatement of opening day.

Sims riddled the Rams' defense regardless of the fact that four members of the alignment had been holdouts during a good part of the preseason.

Detroit Coach Monte Clark said, "Sims adds a whole new dimension to the offense."

Buckeyes retain top spot in Associated Press poll

By the Associated Press

Ohio State and Alabama have maintained the top two positions in The Associated Press college football poll as two traditional powerhouses — Texas and Notre Dame — edged closer to the summit.

The Buckeyes retained the No. 1 ranking, collecting 33 first-place votes and 1,140 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of 59 sport writers and broadcasters. But their lead over Alabama, seeking an unprecedented third straight national championship, dwindled.

Alabama, a 26-3 victor over Georgia Tech last Saturday, was tabbed No. 1 on 22 ballots and got 1,121 points. In the preseason poll, Ohio State led the Tide 36-24 in first-place votes and 1,253-1,217 in points.

The major upward movements in the first regular-season poll, which contains the same 20 teams as the preseason poll, came from Texas and Notre Dame.

The Longhorns jumped from 10th to sixth following a 23-17 victory over then sixth-ranked Arkansas eight days ago. The Irish, led by a senior quarterback — Mike Courey — who had never started a game, whipped then ninth-ranked Purdue 31-10 last Saturday.

"I waited three years for this and it was worth it," said Courey, whose 10-of-13 performance helped the Irish jump four places in the poll, from No. 11 to No. 7. The loss dropped the Boiler-makers, who played without star quarterback Mark Herrmann, to No. 20.

Pittsburgh remained in the No. 3 position, collecting three first-place votes and 1,009 points. Oklahoma, 9-2, and Southern Cal, 9-2, flip flopped the fourth and fifth positions. The Sooners, who got the final No. 1 vote, moved into fourth while the Trojans slipped to fifth. All three teams were idle last week.

Nebraska dropped from seventh to eighth with 726 points while Houston fell from eighth to ninth with 723. Neither team has played a game yet.

Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Benefits could come to you through associates today. They like your strong intellectual approach toward life and the beautiful way you express yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your scope of vision is extensive today without being too personally oriented. This will be noted by one who'll do something to make your lot easier.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today is the day to start looking ahead a little. You are now able to blend your present efforts comfortably with your future hopes.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) What you say in front of others makes such a good impression that you may be invited into an already successful enterprise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Without ignoring logical evaluations today you are able to still take into consideration the feelings of another, thereby coming to a decision everyone can live with.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This will be a very productive, pleasant day if you devote your time and effort to the type of tasks you most enjoy doing. Be choosy.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The artistry you use today, whether working on something creative or dealing with people, is something to behold. Your endeavors will awe your audience.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Because of the pleasant manner in which you work with others today, they'll put out more effort and do little extras for you they normally wouldn't do.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The old ego should get a welcome boost today as you mingle with friends. They can't resist the warmth of your friendship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Beautifying your home and working for your family will take precedence over acquiring things just for yourself. All that you do will have them in mind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You should have little trouble getting what you want from others today, and yet you won't even be trying. Your courtesy and charm does it for you.

DIFFERENT VIEW OF VOLCANO. This volcanic dust, ash from Mt. St. Helens, has been magnified 200 times by a special Sperry - Rand scanning electron microscope at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md. Examination of the ash showed it to comprise primarily silicon, with traces of sulphur, calcium, potassium and minute amounts of iron.

GARBAGE PICK UP DISRUPTED

HOUSTON (AP) — Garbage collections in much of southwestern sections of Houston were disrupted Monday as about 300 workers refused to man their trucks until two suspended supervisors are reinstated.

The protest also supported demands for faster equipment repairs.

Three other garbage truck bases were not affected.

"We are not doing any work until they send those two supervisors back," said Robert Burns, a sanitation worker at the facility that serves the southwestern section of the city.

The two supervisors had been suspended Friday by Gary Abernathy, solid wastes director, for what he termed insubordination.

COMMISSIONER DECISION OVERRIDDEN

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission overrode Commissioner James Nugent's opposition Monday in approving an application by Union Bus Lines, Inc. of Brownsville to operate between San Antonio and Del Rio over U.S. 90. The vote was 2-1.

"I realize the need for the service," said Commission Chairman John Poerner.

Nugent's motion to deny the application received no support.

Hearings Examiner Stephen Webb said granting the application could "cure" transportation "inadequacies" along the route.

Painter Bus Lines, which operates over the route, opposed the application.

INMATES CHARGED IN FIRE

ABILENE (AP) — Two Taylor County jail inmates have been charged with arson after bedding and clothing were set aflame, igniting a damaging fire over the weekend, officials said.

During the disturbance, a cell block toilet was stopped up, flooding most of the second floor and causing water to seep into offices and telephone wiring on the first floor and basement, said Taylor County Sheriff's deputy John Middleton.

Justice of Peace Roland Dunwoody set bond for both men at $15,000.

Middleton said mattress covers, sheets and jail overalls were set afire early Monday morning, scorching asbestos ceiling tiles, blistering paint and concrete. Jail guards and deputies put out the damaging fire with hand-held extinguishers, Middleton said, but firefighters were called to help with clean-up.

Water from the flooding toilet stood a foot deep in the area when jailers discovered the fire, Middleton said.

Jail administrator Larry Brown said 18 prisoners were evacuated to a safety area on the second floor.

Brown said the fire apparently was started by a book of matches given to prisoners for cigarettes.

TEXAS UTILITIES EXPANDS

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission approved an application Monday by Texas Utilities Generating Co. to add 57 acres to its 4,028-acre Big Brown II mine operation in Freestone County.

The acreage is located approximately 10 miles northeast of Fairfield on Farm 2570.

RAILROAD COMMISSION SUSPENDS PACT

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission on Monday suspended for 120 days a gas transportation agreement proposed by Amoco Gas Co. for Houston Pipe Line Co., pending an investigation into whether the charge is reasonable.

Carver testifies on drilling project

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Muscatine businessman Roy Carver testified Monday he would have endangered his control of Bandag Inc. had he not quit financing an abortive Persian Gulf oil drilling project in 1976.

The testimony came in the second week of Carver's $42 million suit in U.S. District Court against SEDCO Inc., a Dallas-based drilling firm.

Culver contends that SEDCO lured him into an oil expedition in 1975-76 off the coast of Qatar, but the oil turned out to be contaminated with potentially lethal gas.

"I trusted the people at SEDCO," Culver said. "They had a worldwide reputation. I knew nothing about oil drilling."

Carver said he quit financing the project when his bankers said the investment could endanger his control of Bandag, which Carver founded.

"When I learned that the cost of rerigging the equipment might be as high as $40 million,

I was told by my bankers that I would have to pledge my Bandag stock to get a loan," Carver said.

"My money was tied up at the time, so I didn't have any more to spend on the project."

Carver founded Bandag and developed the company to the point where it controls 70 percent of all truck tire retreading in the United States. It operates in 90 nations and has made Carver what is believed to be Iowa's largest individual fortune.

Carver retired from active management of Bandag in 1972.

Fed agent admits entrapment

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A key government witness in the federal perjury trial of former prosecutor Oscar McInnis denied under cross-examination Monday that he tried to entrap McInnis during conversations that were being recorded.

"What we have on this panoply of tapes is your acting ability, isn't it?" defense lawyer Frank Maloney asked Daniel Rodriguez.

"If that's what you want to call it," said Rodriguez, who has been convicted of murder and drug trafficking. But he denied trying to "ensnare" McInnis.

Maloney asked Rodriguez if he didn't invent a story about a "hit man" who was willing to kill the ex-husband of McInnis' co-defendant, Patricia Parada.

Rodriguez said he actually knew a Mexican police official named Jesus Cantu who would do the job if asked.

FBI agents taped several conversations between McInnis and Rodriguez that were recorded in the Hidalgo County Jail. On the tapes, which have been played to the jury, the voices discuss how and when to dispose of another man, apparently Noe Villanueva.

Rodriguez testified he never intended to go through with the plan but only led McInnis to believe it had been completed.

Villanueva was not killed. McInnis, Hidalgo County District Attorney before his disbarment last year, is accused of lying to a federal grand jury June 7, 1978, about the alleged murder plot. He denied knowing anything about a scheme and denied talking with Rodriguez about such a thing.

The longtime prosecutor has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity and diminished mental capacity to the charges.

NBC says 'Today'

is not lagging behind

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC's venerable "Today" has been maligned in recent months for falling behind "Good Morning America" on ABC in their competition to attract the early morning TV viewer.

A lot of the criticism is deserved, says Steve Friedman, who took over as executive producer of "Today" in May. But the fact is, he says, the audience for the news and information program that premiered Jan. 14, 1952, is bigger than ever.

NBC's research department estimates the audience for "Today" at about 5.7 million viewers in the average minute, a 25 percent increase over the 4.6 million average for 1975.

"Good Morning America" has created a whole new audience," Friedman says. "They've made the pie bigger."

"And it's not a surprise that this has happened. Five million people watch 'Today,'" he says, not counting "Good Morning America" and CBS' hour-long "Morning" news program in the calculation, "and that means more than 200 million don't watch anything at all at that time."

Through the first quarter of 1980, "Good Morning America" had 28 percent of the audience to 27 percent for "Today," with CBS' "Morning" third by a good margin. "Today" and "Good Morning America" compete head-to-head, 7-9 a.m. EDT, each weekday, with CBS' news program in the race only for the first hour.

Friedman is out to go "Good Morning America" one better by creating new audience for his own show. His approach amounts to a kick in the pants for "Today."

"Our job," he says, "is to convince people it's not the same old 'Today' show. It's a fast-moving, contemporary news and information program, and I can see the results already. We're beating the hell out of 'Good Morning America' in every area — newsmakers, showbiz people, stories."

What may prove to be Friedman's biggest coup came several weeks ago, when "Today" announced Rona Barrett would leave "Good Morning America" for the NBC program. Ms. Barrett, among the most prominent and controversial Hollywood columnists, will join "Today" sometime after the first of the year.

In the meantime, Friedman has reworked the "Today" format, adding Mike Jensen to report regularly on economics, Bob Bazele on science, Nancy Foreman on lifestyle and Bryant Gumbel on sports.

They'll joint co-anchors Tom Brokaw and Jane Pauley, weatherman Willard Scott and regulars Gene Shalit, Phil Donahue, Betty Furness, Richard Valeriani and Dr. Art Ulene.

"Hopefully," Friedman says, "each of the elements we're adding will come up at the same time on the same days each week. That kind of schedule won't be inflexible, but we do want a framework for the show."
