Major victory claimed in Mexican agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Mexican government has given the go-ahead for two bridges to be built between Mexico and Texas at Los Indios in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and at Presidio.

Bob Krueger, U.S. ambassador-at-large for Mexico, announced the decision Tuesday, hailing it as "kind of a breakthrough."

He noted that trade between the U.S. and Mexico has more than tripled in the past four years.

"It's something I think very important to South Texas," the former Texas congressman said about the two bridges.

Krueger said Mexican foreign ministry officials told him about the decision at a Washington meeting.

The State Department had issued U.S. permits for the bridge at Los Indios in 1974 and for the Presidio bridge in 1976.

U.S. permits also have been issued for bridges at Donna, Pharr and Mission.

Krueger said proposals to expedite procedures for issuing permits were discussed at the meeting.

Representatives of the General Services Administration will meet with Mexican officials in December to discuss federal staffing requirements for the new bridges, he said.

The U.S. staffs each bridge with customs, immigration, public health and agriculture inspectors.

The bridge between Los Indios and the Mexican state of Tamaulipas would be a new route. Cameron County, Texas, has agreed to take care of the American share of construction costs and will be repaid by tolls.

The bridge between Presidio and Ojinaga, Mexico, now is a privately owned toll bridge built in the 1920s.

The operator of the wooden bridge, the Presidio

Bridge Co., went as far as the Supreme Court trying to scuttle plans for the new bridge, arguing that it would be put out of business by the publicly owned competitor.

The Mexican government had announced it would close its side of the existing bridge when a new bridge opens.

The Supreme Court turned down the bridge company's bid for an appeal on Oct. 6.

Presidio County would issue revenue bonds to pay the U.S. construction costs, and the bonds would be paid off by charging tolls.

Cris Aldrete, federal co-chairman of the Southwest Border Regional Commission, said the Mexican government had suggested that a new approach was needed for issuing bridge permits.

Anderson adds inserts to Reagan-Carter debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — From 600 miles away in a performance marred by technical glitches, John B. Anderson did his best to pretend he was in the same presidential debate with President Carter and Ronald Reagan.

The blue curtains behind Anderson in Constitutional Hall matched the backdrop in the hall in Cleveland where Carter and Reagan made not one reference to their independent rival.

In contrast, Anderson spent well over half his time attacking the positions and public records of Reagan and especially Carter.

As Reagan and Carter finished each round of questions, the Cable News Network cut to its telecast to Washington and Anderson answered as if he were in the same room as the major party nominees.

"Mr. President," Anderson said as if personally addressing Carter at one point, "the time has come to level with the American people."

Afterwards, Anderson conceded that he "had a somewhat restricted audience."

At most, some of Cable News' 3.5 million subscribers, plus another few million viewers of independent and public television stations chose to watch the Reagan-Carter-Anderson version of the debate.

That compares with an estimated 85 million persons who tuned in the three major television networks telecast of Carter and Reagan alone.

DOGGONE—The appearance of those white plastic gallon jugs on the finest of Pampa's lawns has been a real teaser! Why? The answer was provided by Ruben Hilton (above) of 1900 Lynn. The jugs keep all straying dogs off the property. "And it works," Hilton said. He has had the not so decorative jugs on his lawns for two months and no dog has dared. Even Dr. Ron Hendrick, Pampa veterinarian has no answer as to why it works. Only Rover knows and he isn't talking!

Baptist convention rumors predict fundamentalist attack

HOUSTON (AP) — The Baptist General Convention of Texas is under way amid speculation of a fundamentalist campaign to bring two of the denomination's most cherished institutions in line with its theological perspectives.

The three-day meeting, which opened Tuesday night at Sam Houston Coliseum here, is considered a crucial barometer to gauge the future of the state convention and the mood of the national organization.

"This is the Texas part of a nationwide struggle to take over institution control of Southern Baptist schools and agencies," said the Rev. Kenneth Chafin, of Houston, an outspoken critic of the fundamentalist movement seeking to gain control of the state and national conventions.

"Controlling Texas (Baptists) would be a giant step toward controlling the Southern Baptist Convention," said Chafin.

His remarks centered around a lingering dispute involving Baylor University's religion department and the editorial policies of the convention's weekly newspaper, The Baptist Standard.

Fundamentalist leaders expressed disapproval at the recent appointment of the Rev. H.J. Flanders as chairman of Baylor's religion department. They contend a textbook Flanders co-authored, "People and the Covenant," espouses a liberal theology and a less than literal interpretation of the Bible.

Reacting to the criticism, Baylor's Board of Trustees authorized a study of the publication.

The report, completed last summer, said the textbook should be used only as a reference for the Bible.

The report also stated that Baylor in the future should hire only those professors who believe in the inerrancy of the Bible — or that the Bible is the exact word of God.

Conservative leaders also hope to change the policies that Paige Patterson of Dallas and Paul Pressler, a Houston appeals judge, contend allowed The Standard to mishandle news stories and editorials about the fundamentalist movement within the convention.

The paper is controlled by a 15-member board of directors.

But Carlos McLeod, state convention president, vowed to rule out of order any motion or resolution to fire either the newspaper editor or the department chairman, saying any attack on an employee of a Baptist agency or school "would be in violation of our constitution and by-laws."

"There is no way we can deal with individuals," McLeod said. "The polity of the convention is that we have a board and these boards are the governing bodies of the institutions. This is the way we work. The people are employees of the boards and the boards are the ones who have to act."

Patterson said he personally was not planning to take the initiative against the institutions but added he wouldn't be surprised if some other fundamentalists did.

Federal charges hit man accused of turtle imports

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A defense attorney says two men charged with illegally selling and importing more than 17,000 pounds of Pacific Ridley turtle meat were within the "grace period" offered when a federal ban against the meat went into effect.

Ben Soloff, owner of Ben Soloff Seafood Distributors of Philadelphia, and Pat Pace, owner of Pace Fish Co., of Brownsville, are on trial in what has been called the largest turtle products case ever prosecuted.

They are accused of importing and selling more than 17,000 pounds of the turtle meat in September and October of 1978. Soloff's attorney, Juan Gavito, claimed Tuesday that the government gave importers a year to sell off their stocks of the meat after a federal ban took effect Sept. 6, 1978.

"The dates Mr. Soloff was alleged to have violated the law was well within the grace period," Gavito told a federal jury.

Government lawyer Jose Turo of Washington told jurors he will call sea turtle experts and federal agents as witnesses. An estimated 1,300 turtles were killed to obtain the 17,000 pounds of meat, he said.

Soloff and Pace were named in a 12-count federal grand jury indictment last July.

Klan sympathizer arrested as sniping incident suspect

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Joseph Paul Franklin, a reputed Nazi and Ku Klux Klan sympathizer wanted for questioning in racially linked sniper attacks in five cities, was jailed here today after an arrest that capped a two-month, nationwide manhunt, officials said.

The arrest in Lakeland came three days before a visit there by President Carter, and after federal officials allegedly linked Franklin to a 1976 letter accusing Carter of "selling out to blacks," according to authorities.

FBI spokesman Otis Cox said Franklin was also wanted for questioning in the May 29 wounding in Fort Wayne, Ind., of National Urban League President Vernon Jordan. Other officials have said they have all but ruled Franklin out as a suspect in that case.

The 30-year-old drifter, described by friends, relatives and police as having a deep-seated hatred for blacks, was arrested Tuesday outside a Lakeland blood bank where he sold blood, officials said.

Jurors selected for murder trial

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — A jury must decide if Patricia Ann Frazier was mentally ill last February when she cut out her 4-year-old daughter's heart, a slaying the young mother's attorneys say took place during a brief period of insanity.

Mrs. Frazier has pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity in the Feb. 22 death of her daughter, Khunji Wilson.

Police found the toddler's body lying in a pool of blood in the front seat of a car. She had been stabbed several times and her heart had been removed and was wrapped in a bloodied washcloth nearby.

Defense attorney Harold Lerew and Mrs. Frazier signed a consent document Tuesday, acknowledging that the child's death as caused "by blood loss due to the removal of the heart

The document was signed after attorneys selected a five-woman, seven-man jury to hear the case. State District Judge Keith Nelson ordered testimony to begin at 9 a.m. CST today.

Coffee prices slashed

Associated Press

The nation's big coffee marketers have cut their prices by up to 15 cents a pound.

Hills Bros. Inc., in San Francisco, and the Folger's coffee division of Procter & Gamble Co., in Cincinnati, announced identical and immediate reductions Tuesday on wholesale list prices of ground, instant and high-yield coffee.

The companies cut 15 cents off wholesale prices for a pound of ground coffee, to $2.73 per one-pound can, a reduction of about 5.2 percent.

Prices on instant coffee fell 2 cents an ounce, or about 4.25 percent, to $4.50 per 10-ounce jar. The roasters posted wholesale list prices of $2.24 per 13-ounce can of concentrated coffee, down 12 cents, or about 5 percent.

Hills Bros., ranked third in the nation behind Procter & Gamble, also said it was cutting the price of its decaffeinated coffee by 2.5 cents per ounce, to $4.31 per eight-ounce jar.

The companies cited lower prices for imported green coffee beans as the reason for the reductions. They previously cut prices in September and July. A one-pound can of ground coffee cost $3.23 last July 2.

In Houston, Coca-Cola Co.'s food unit posted the same reductions in wholesale prices for its ground and instant coffee brands: Maryland Club and Butter Nut.

Industry leader General Foods Corp., based in White Plains, N.Y., said it had not changed prices.

A Look at Texas

RETIRED OFFICERS HIT CAMPAIGN TRAIL
 AUSTIN (AP) — Two retired officers who were members of the Joint Chiefs of Staff during the Nixon and Ford administrations will campaign for the Reagan-Bush ticket in four Texas cities Thursday.

Retired Adm. Thomas Moorer and retired Lt. Gen. F. F. "F" will campaign in San Antonio, Killeen, Fort Worth and El Paso, according to Reagan-Bush headquarters.

MEXICAN OIL IMPORTS FALL
 HARLINGEN (AP) — Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent said Tuesday the United States' share of Mexico's petroleum exports has fallen from 80 percent to 60 percent and said "we must continue to work to improve foreign trade relations with our good neighbor to the south."

Nugent, campaigning in the Rio Grande Valley, said: "The United States must have her energy future in her own hands, but if we must rely on imports, I would prefer it to be with a friendly neighbor, rather than hostile or unstable governments halfway around the world."

 "Increased trade with Mexico, coupled with maximum production of this country's energy reserves, is one short-term solution to our needs," Nugent said.

JUDGE APPOINTED
 AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements announced the appointment Tuesday of El Paso lawyer Ward Koehler as judge of the 168th Judicial District of El Paso County.

Koehler, 54, will replace George Rodriguez Sr., who died. He has a law degree from the University of Michigan.

COMMISSIONER CLAIMS GRAIN MARKET STRONGER
 AUSTIN (AP) — Foreign grain shipments have strengthened the market and Texas farmers are benefiting from them, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown said Tuesday.

"This is what the grain farmer has been waiting for," he said. Brown said corn that sold for $2.64 a bushel last June 1 is $3.65 today. Grain sorghum that was $4.45 per hundred-weight is $6.25

Soy beans have jumped from $5 to $7.88, wheat from $3.40 to $4.40 and cotton from 70 to 83 cents a pound.

ENROLLMENT INCREASES
 AUSTIN (AP) — Enrollment at the University of Texas for the current semester is 46,148, a 4.6 percent increase over fall 1979, the university has announced.

UT President Peter Flawn said the current enrollment is 2,046 students more than the 1979 fall figure.

The total includes 36,599 undergraduates.

TEACHING AWARDS ANNOUNCED
 AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas has announced the first six winners of new teaching excellence awards.

Each will receive a $5,000 award provided by private donors, according to UT President Peter Flawn.

The 1980 recipients are: John Trimble and James Duban, for teaching English composition; Robert Greenwood for teaching mathematics; Clarence Lasby, for teaching history; Mary-Farr Baker, for teaching French; and Joseph Malof, for work in the university's liberal arts honors program.

Coast Guard's 'eye in the sky' patrols 200-mile limit on coast

MCLELLAN AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The skipper flicks an eye at the big Russian ship wallowing in the Pacific swells below. "Let's go take a look," he says.

In an instant, Coast Guard Lt. Dave Hoover, 27, sends 78 tons of airplane screaming to within feet of the ship's stacks.

Back aft in a hurricane force windstream, an Associated Press reporter and a photographer sit on the plane's open ramp, nothing between them and cold salt water but slim nylon belts hitched to the deck.

Below, so close you can almost make out faces on the bridge, is the 270-foot Soviet fish factory Mark Reshetnikov. Nearby, the ship's American "partner" trolls for hake.

"We don't go below 150 feet," says Hoover apologetically. "Some of the smaller boat people get excited...Some are less than polite on the radio...One guy looked like he was going to shoot at us."

The Mark Reshetnikov is among the 30 sightings we make that day in a 35,000-square-mile area before a propeller malfunction forces our four-engine C-130 Hercules turboprop back to base early.

It was one of the Coast Guard's periodic flights in this region, checking on foreign fleets fishing within 200 miles of American shores between Northern California and the Canadian border.

Among other duties, the Coast Guard is charged with enforcing the Fishery Management and Conservation Act of 1976, which strictly controls foreign fishing vessels in the 200-mile U.S. zone. Violations can mean heavy fines, seizure, confiscation or jail.

Many of the ships, which pay the United States about $4,000 a year for the privilege, are fishing with huge nets that can trap some 30 tons in one haul. These ships dwarf their American counterparts.

The fishing expert aboard the plane was Peter Chorney Jr., regional senior agent of the National Marine Fisheries Service. He had a list of all foreign vessels which by law had informed the Coast Guard of intentions to fish inside the control zone.

As we cross the coast at Ukiah, Chorney explains that foreign vessels with permits may fish only for hake, a poor relation to the cod. Hake is highly prized in Poland and Russia but, comments Chorney, "You couldn't get a nickel a pound for that fish in this country."

Within an hour after takeoff, about 15 miles off the Oregon coast just north of the California line, the radar is suddenly full of sightings. They're all big fishing trawlers — and all Polish.

Generally, says Chorney, "the Poles, when they're competing with the Russians, outfish them. The Poles' average daily catch rates are always higher."

In a little over two hours, we make 14 sightings and close-in examinations of Polish vessels. Chorney snorts as he eyes the deck of a 450-footer, and asks the pilot to make another pass.

"He looked like he had more than a few rockfish on deck," says Chorney, as Hoover turns for another look. All we see for our trouble are a few fish flopping in a mostly empty net on deck. Chorney is irritated.

"Boy, he got rid of that fast," he grumps. A foreign vessel would be permitted a few incidental prohibited species, but more than that would mean a Coast Guard boarding party.

Chorney explains the exclusively Polish vessels: "We won't be seeing many Russians fishing because (President) Carter got mad at them for Afghanistan and told the Russians they couldn't fish in our waters."

What the Russians may do in U.S. waters, however, is send in — by prearrangement — factory ships to receive fish caught by Americans under contract to the Marine Resources Co., a U.S. firm half-owned by Russians.

The Russians process the fish at sea, then the MRC pays the Americans and sells the hake around the world. That was what the Mark Reshetnikov was doing with its nearby partner, the American trawler "Corey P." out of Brookings, Ore.

MRC Vice President Walter Pereya said his is the only American firm in which a Soviet interest, through its Souryflot company, has part ownership. MRC's American interest is owned by Bellingham Cold Storage Co. in Washington, he said.

The Coast Guard's main functions are safety at sea and search and rescue, and we are reminded of that when we hear out of Seattle that a 41-foot ketch, Quicksilver, is overdue and may be in trouble in the waters we're patrolling.

Hoover soberly reminds all hands that while scanning the ocean for huge foreign fishing vessels, they must also look for a sailboat. The ketch, which we never did sight, turned up two days later at an anchorage near Seattle.

Blaze claims nine

CHICAGO (AP) — Nine people, including five children, were killed Tuesday night as a fire roared through a two-story frame house on the city's South Side, fire and hospital authorities said.

Four other people were injured in the blaze, which first was reported at 10:08 p.m. CST, officials said.

The bodies of two female adults, a child and two adults of unknown sex were taken by police to Jackson Park Hospital before the bodies were transferred to the Cook County morgue, said Jean Valez, nursing supervisor at the hospital.

Four children, all unidentified, were pronounced dead in the University of Chicago Hospitals and Clinics said Stuart Levine, the evening administrator at the hospital.

PETROLEUM ENGINEERS WIVES SOCIETY

The Petroleum Engineers Wives Society met in the home of Sandra John for their monthly meeting and a salad luncheon. Twenty-three members and nine guests attended.

Susan Jorgensen, president, conducted the business meeting. Mrs. Zelda Edmundson presented a report on the humorous book, "All in Favor, Say Something."

The next meeting will be Nov. 11 at the Pampa Club in the Coronado Inn.

For more information, contact Susan Jorgensen at 665-6946.

BETA SIGMA PHI

Phi Epsilon Beta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the basement of the First United Methodist Church for a model meeting for rushers. Phyllis Akins hosted.

Rushes attending were Sonja Longo, Lee Ann McPherson, Marsha Shuman, Janet Stowers and Glenna Wilkins.

Prior to the meeting, members enjoyed a style show presented by the Lad & Lassie Shop.

Beverly Alexander and Jana Whaley presented a short skit.

A Halloween party will take place Oct. 31 at 8:30 p.m. at the Methodist Church patio. The party is for members, rushers and their friends. Costume prizes will be awarded to the children.

The next meeting will be Nov. 4 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Karen Lang.

Fall Fling

The six Pampa chapters of Beta Sigma Phi will have a Fall Fling dance Nov. 1 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at St. Vincent's gymnasium.

Billy Shelton, a disc jockey from Borger, will play a variety of music.

Each chapter's Girl of the Year will be honored during the event. Girls of the Year are Kathy Topper, Phi Epsilon Beta; Starla Tracy, Rho Eta; Diane Waters, Upsilon; Connie Holland and Vicki Hayes, Xi Phi Alpha; Pauline Vaughn, Preceptor Chi and Jamilou Garren, City Council.

Dress is casual. Members and their guests are invited to attend.

LADIES' AUXILIARY, VFW

Ladies' Auxiliary of VFW Post 1657 met in the Flame Room of the Pioneer Natural Gas building for their regular monthly meeting.

Poppies will be sold Nov. 7 and 8 in observance of Veterans' Day, Nov. 11. Bonnie Stuckey was named chairman of the Poppy Sales Committee. Members volunteered their services for the yearly project.

One hundred twenty-nine Brownies, 47 adults and two Senior Girl Scouts participated in the area Brownie Awakening Saturday at Camp Mel Davis, east of Lefors.

Forty-three Pampa families were represented at the event. Other towns represented were Shamrock, Clarendon, Borger, White Deer, Miami, Canadian and Memphis.

Games, songs and a nature scavenger hunt contest were among the activities that the group participated in. At the end of the day, refreshments were served and the flag was retired.

Winners of the scavenger hunt were Group I — Pampa Troop No. 57, first; Shamrock Troop No. 5, second and Clarendon Troop No. 29, third. Group II — White Deer Troop No. 177, first; Borger Troop No. 16, second; Miami Troop No. 17, third and Pampa Troop No. 52, fourth. Group III — Pampa Troop No. 32, first; Memphis Troop second and Canadian Troop No. 101, third.

DARIEN AND MARK RUSSELL, a husband and wife team from Melbourne, Arkansas, are among the Ozark craftsmen whose work will be displayed through Saturday during the Strawberry Junction Craft Show at the Pampa Mall. Darien collects, presses and dries Ozark wildflowers and seals the flowers in frames to preserve them. Mark, who does "old-timey" photography, uses an old outhouse as his darkroom. The show will also feature basketweaving, tole painting, portrait artistry, scrimshaw, toy making and other old-fashioned crafts.

Program reduces childhood poisonings

NEW YORK (AP) — Reduced accessibility and improved treatment have dramatically decreased childhood poisonings, statisticians report.

Youngsters have been frustrated in their attempts to open bottles and containers since the Poison Prevention Packaging Act went into effect in the early 1970s. And many other children have survived because of the existence of poison-control centers with 24-hour telephone service.

According to a recent issue of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.'s "Statistical Bulletin," the death rate for accidental poisonings among children under age 5 plummeted 60 percent between 1968 and 1977, the last year for which official figures are available.

In 1977, 94 preschoolers succumbed to accidental poisoning — 57 by drugs and medications, 37 by other solid and liquid substances. Eleven of these youngsters, 80 percent fewer than in 1968, swallowed fatal doses of aspirin. The number of children poisoned by non-drug substances such as plants, petroleum products and household cleaners also declined by 75 percent over the 10-year period.

Citing data from the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers on cases treated in 1977, the Metropolitan statisticians report that plants, soap products, perfumes, cold medications, vitamins and aspirin were the six toxic substances most frequently ingested by preschoolers.

The Health and Safety Education Division of Metropolitan Life offers this advice to parents:

- Think like a 2-year old. Remember that preschoolers have an inquisitive nature, are attracted to brightly colored objects, have an urge to put things in their mouth and a desire to imitate their parents.
- Never tell a youngster medicine is candy. Never take medicine in front of children.
- Get down on your hands and knees; examine your kitchen, bathroom and bedroom — the three rooms where poisonings most often occur — from a preschooler's perspective. Then remove all bottles and packages of poisonous substances that your child would otherwise have found attractive and accessible. Check, too, from the level of the crib or bed. Remove anything dangerous that your youngster could reach.
- Store everything toxic up high, out of sight and out of reach. Don't put household cleaners with medicines. Keep your medicines locked away from children.
- Keep all household cleaners, prescription and non-prescription medicines in their original containers. If an acci-

Keyes' new novel rehashes old subject

THE FIFTH SALLY. By Daniel Keyes. Houghton Mifflin. 278 Pages. $10.95.

Years ago, Daniel Keyes wrote a memorable novel called "Flowers for Algernon."

That book, which dealt with the raising of the intelligence level of a functional moron to that of a near genius, has weathered the years well. It's become something of an underground classic and has been metamorphosed into a play and a movie.

Keyes' new novel also deals with the world of the mind but it doesn't approach anywhere near the level of the earlier book. The major problem with "The Fifth Sally" is that its subject matter has already been thoroughly worked over in other books.

The book deals with multiple personality. The sufferer is Sally Porter. Sally has five personalities. One is Sally herself, a prim divorcee. The second is Nola, an intellectual artist. The third is Derry, a well-adjusted person who accepts the world as it is and enjoys it. The fourth is Jinx, a violent, foul-mouthed potential killer, and the last is Bella, an aspiring actress.

Sally is the dominant personality since it was she who hatched the other egos. But Sally is losing her grip; more and more she suffers violent headaches that cause her to black out and allow one or the other of the other personalities to take over.

DEAR ABBY

Loving a matter of interest, not age

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You have stated repeatedly that men can be sexually active at 80, and I wish you would cut it out! You are wrong, but you seem to have an obsession about this subject.

I am an honest 60-year-old man who begs to differ with you. A man is no stud at 60. In fact, most men are on the decline starting at about 40. Some even before that. I suppose there are a few exceptions, but very darned few. The men who write to you saying they are just as good at 70 as they were at 30 are either lying or kidding themselves.

The next time you consult a gerontologist, please pick an honest one and make sure he's informed on sexology.

The cemeteries are full of men who tried to prove they were just as good lovers at 60 as they were at 30. Thank you.

SIXTY AND NO STUD

DEAR SIXTY: I did say that men can be sexually active at 80, which is true. Much depends on their attitude, the state of their general health, and whether they have an interesting and interested partner.

I did not say that all men are just as good lovers at 60 as they were at 30. All are not. Some are better!

DEAR ABBY: The letter asking whether marriage between a Republican and Democrat could ever work interested me because my marriage was also "mixed." My husband was a devout Republican and I a dedicated Democrat.

Every election day we'd both go off to the polls and cancel out each other's vote. We talked about it, argued about it and even laughed about it. In spite of our political differences, we had a wonderful 40-year marriage.

He's been dead for three years, and I'm certainly going to miss him this November.

VOTING FOR CARTER

DEAR VOTING: So will Mr. Reagan!

DEAR ABBY: After a miserable marriage and traumatic divorce, I married a woman so wonderful that it made everything that had occurred previously seem like a bad dream from which I had finally awakened. She has given me faith in myself, joy beyond description, inspiration, and the kind of love I thought existed only in romantic novels. My two little ones (I have custody) adore her as she does them.

Paradise, right? Wrong! She has one habit that drives me up a wall. She is NEVER on time for anything. If she says "a few minutes," it can mean an hour. An hour can mean three.

Abby, I cannot count on her to be on time for anything. Nor can anyone else. She is always behind and running late. It is an exasperating fly-in-the-ointment of what would otherwise be a union made in heaven. Can you, or any of your experts, suggest a cure?

BEWILDERED IN BUCKS COUNTY

DEAR BEWILDERED: Not unless the lady wants to be cured. By your own account, she has five virtues and only one fault — exasperating as it may be. Many "unions made in heaven" have worse tradeoffs. Nag her — but count your blessings instead of the minutes.

Astro-Graph

by bernice bede osol

October 30, 1980

Extremely fortunate circumstances could put you in a position this coming year where you will have the opportunity to achieve a secret desire. You'll have to apply the effort, but the payoff is big.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This should be a good day for you where attainment is concerned. You're going to get a few breaks which, if taken advantage of, will achieve your goals. Romance, travel, luck, resources, possible pitfalls and career for the coming months are all discussed in your Astro-Graph which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Others will understand and accept your ideas today, so don't be reluctant to let them know what is on your mind. Be positive and assertive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can profit in some manner today through the good auspices of one very fond of you who is in a position to help you. You might be asked to keep it a secret.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're under excellent aspects for working out agreements. A commitment can be made today which could benefit and please all concerned. Don't put things off.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There is ample opportunity about you today to strengthen your position in a situation that has an influence on your work or career. Be alert.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Check with friends in regard to events you are planning. This will avoid any conflict in schedules and something extra-good will be added.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Favorable conditions having an effect upon your finances are at work for you today. They look good enough for you to be able to build a more solid foundation for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll be luckiest today in situations that deal in the realm of ideas. Concentrate on matters requiring either verbal or written communication.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There's an excellent chance you could profit from two different sources today. Keep all avenues for gain open and be ready to act upon them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Exciting or stimulating news could revive your enthusiasm for something you've laid aside. This may involve your social life in some manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Everyone seems to be on your bandwagon today, treating you with extra consideration. You may even be the recipient of a gift.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're at your best today dealing with those who think in large or grandiose terms. What you collectively accomplish could have extremely large benefits.

Rice coach has new crusade

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Rice University Coach Ray Alborn has a new crusade.

Last year Alborn preached the praises of running back Earl Cooper and was incensed when Cooper did not make first team All-Southwest Conference.

Now Alborn is rewriting all his old speeches and inserting the name of linebacker Robert Williamson, a key defensive factor in the Owls surprising resurgence.

Williamson, who is playing his first injury-free season since his freshman year, got one vote of confidence today when he was named The Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week following last week's 10-6 upset of Texas A&M.

The talented senior contributed to 16 tackles, batted down a pass and had one tackle for a loss in the Owls' defensive effort.

"If that guy is not All-SWC then my fanny is a microwave oven," Alborn said. "Before the year started, we felt his ability to stay well would be the key to our defense."

Alborn said Williamson has lived up to pre-season expectations.

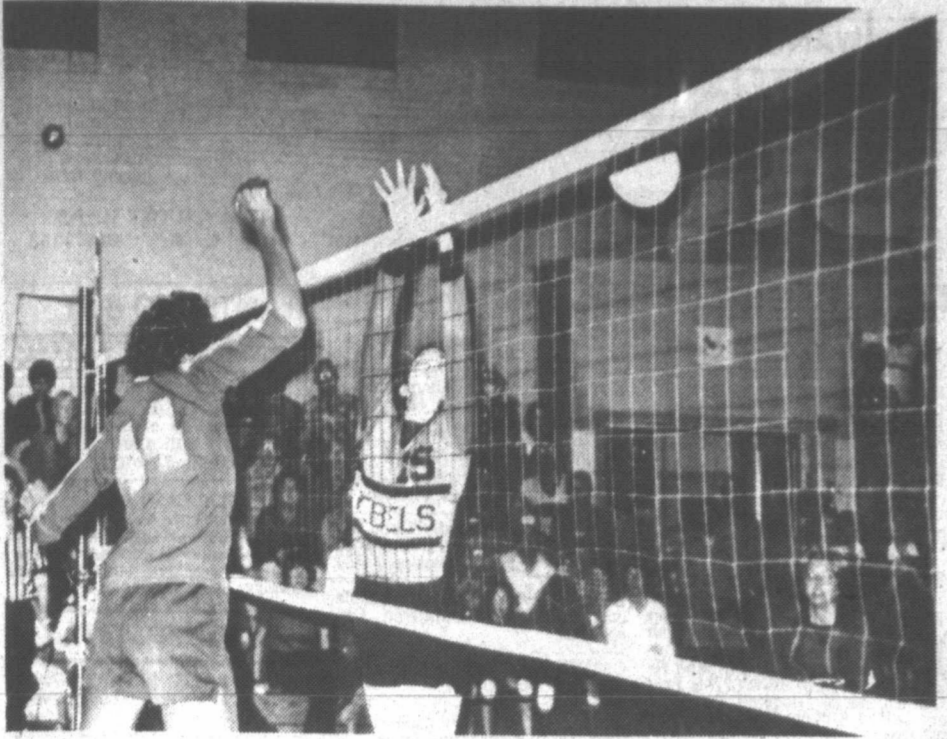

"I wouldn't say he A&M game was his best game of the season but he hasn't played a bad one yet," Alborn said. "He worked so hard in the off season to get his knees ready and he lifted weights to improve his upper body strength."

One of the most outstanding attributes about Williamson, however, is not coachable. Alborn said.

"He makes so many plays by instinct and that's something you don't coach," Alborn said.

The best example of Williamson's nose for the football was in Rice's upset of Louisiana State when Williamson ignored his inside assignment, swung wide instead and stopped an end around play for a loss.

BOMB AT THE NET. Pampa's Jeanette Britt (44), a bomb at the net, captures another block against Tascosa Rebels in loop action Tuesday night at Clarendon College - Pampa Center. Tascosa revised their game plan to keep the ball out of Britt's range and took the match 15-13, 15-6, giving Tascosa at least a share in the second half of district play. At right, Harvester Deanna Porter readies for a set.

(Staff Photos)

Tascosa downs Pampa in loop district play

Pampa High School girls couldn't rally after their first loss with Tascosa High School Tuesday night and went down to Tascosa 15-13, 15-6 in District 3-5A volleyball play here.

The win puts Tascosa into running in the second half of district play, giving them a 3-0 record. Pampa, meanwhile, fell to 2-1 and out of title running.

Tascosa High School Coach Dana Hatch said Tascosa revised their game to get around the blocking of Jeanette Britt. "The times we had to set where she was, she got a touch on it, or blocked it. But when you take away their blocks like that, it's effective," she said.

Pampa took the first five points of the match when Tascosa was unable to return the serves of Susan Richardson.

But Tascosa came back with five points of their own on Pampa receiving errors.

At one point in the first game, however, Pampa again emerged with a 13-11 lead.

In the second game, with Tascosa at 14 and Pampa at 3, the Harvesters girls hung in there, scoring three additional points before Tascosa took the win.

"They didn't give up," Coach Lynn Wolfe said. "That's what's great. With 14-3, most people would have given up."

Mrs. Wolfe also noted that officials failed to stop action in the match when the ball was hit into the net's cable, allowing Tascosa to continue play.

A couple of times, officials conferred on girls stepping over the middle line, the umpire overruling the net referee.

Mrs. Wolfe said the Harvesters did make several ball handling errors and serving errors "which were a contributing factor" to the loss.

"But we were trying as hard as we have ever tried, and I commend them on that," she said. "I think our girls were feeling good and thought they'd do well until some of those calls."

"Losing the first game got them down because they felt like they'd tried the hardest they could. I think there was a little bit of hopelessness," she said.

She said Pampa missed 9 serves to Tascosa's three. She praised Jeanette Britt who dunned at least four good blocks.

Tascosa Coach Dana Hatch said Tascosa's serves "were real good, except for a couple that skimmed the top of the net."

"Our strong point is consistency overall. We serve well, block adequately, play well in the back court, and when I tell them to do something, they do it," Ms. Hatch said.

But she had words of praise for Pampa. "They're a tough team to beat. We had to take the ball away from Jeanette Britt to do away with her dominance at the net and hit them where she wouldn't be able to block them," Ms. Hatch said.

"Pampa is a scrambling team in the back court, and it's hard for our girls not to go to sleep and let them put it on us," she said.

"Hitting a ball to Pampa is like hitting it against a wall — it keeps coming back at you," she said.

Pampa's next game will be next Tuesday night in Amarillo against Amarillo High School.

"Without the pressure on them, it might be a real interesting match," Mrs. Wolfe said. "I'd like to see them go out and just play — just to see if they can do it."

"Amarillo has lost one to Tascosa, and they might not feel any pressure either. It should be an interesting game," she said.

In junior varsity play, Pampa showed depth, defeating Tascosa 15-8, 15-9, losing the second game 12-15.

"It was primarily a serving and receiving game," Mrs. Wolfe said.

Outstanding players were Brandy Huff, who made 10 successful serves, and Dionne Simmons.

Unknown fighter gets break

CINCINNATI (AP) — Aaron Pryor is giving an unknown from Muncie, Ind., a break he never got. It's a non-title fight, but at least it's a shot at the champ and a chance to make a name for himself.

Pryor, the World Boxing Association junior welterweight champion, fights Danny Myers Saturday night in Dayton's Hara Arena. He wishes somebody would have given him a break like that earlier in his career.

"A lot of champions don't give no-name fighters chances," Pryor said Tuesday. "No one ever gave me one, and I know the feeling of being sitting in the dark waiting on an opportunity. So I'm going to give him a chance. If he beats me, he'd automatically be a contender."

"That's what makes the fight game as popular as it is today, the underdogs. I thought I could take (Antonio) Cervantes, and I took him. I think that's what's so incredible about the fight game, giving the underdogs the chance."

Pryor will defend his title Nov. 22 in Montreal against Gaetan Hart, so he doesn't intend to take Myers lightly.

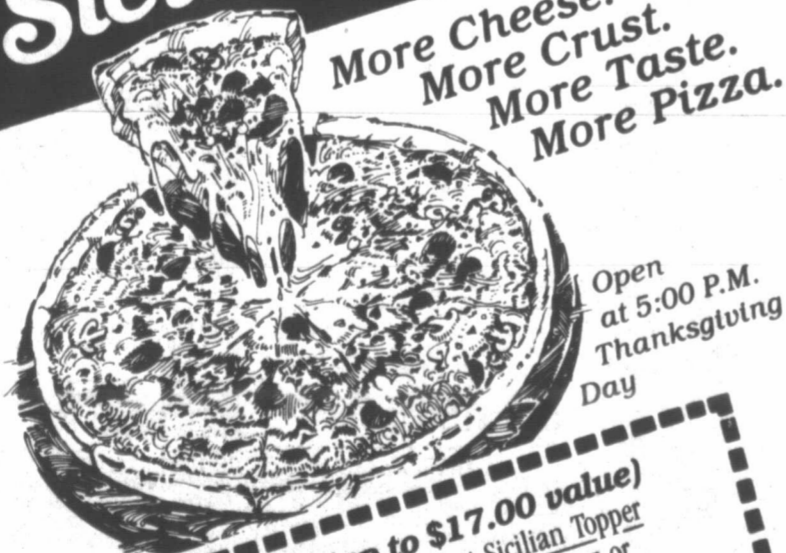

"I don't want any accidents at this point in my career," Pryor said. "I'll be ready for this fight just like all the rest of them."

"I'm in a critical position now — any kind of accident would cost me big dollars in the future."

Pryor, 25-0, hasn't fought since winning the title Aug. 2 from Cervantes. Myers, 20-2, last fought in June.

"I've got everything to win and nothing to lose," said Myers, who has battled back from a serious automobile accident five years ago. "I know what I've got to do to beat Pryor."

Mutilations baffle rancher

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Rancher Bill Heath says there is only one explanation for the recent bizarre mutilation and death of his Charolais bull — UFOs.

"That's what I believe," the South Texas cattle man said after finding the bull with its tongue and heart cut out. "Some people have said it was persons from the occult, devil worshippers, but they would have had to be using a helicopter to get around out there."

Heath said he is baffled by the desecration, which resembles a rash of similar mutilations two years ago in eastern Cameron County.

"It's very strange," he said Tuesday, after finding the body of his best bull Sunday afternoon. "There were no tracks around the animal. It was like he was hit and just fell over on his side."

"There was some blood coming out of its nose, but in the other carcasses, there was no blood at all."

The typical 1978 attacks involved clean incisions to remove some or all of the animals' tongue, lips, reproductive organs, heart and eyes.

Texas Ranger Bruce Casteel of Harlingen was one of several state and local officers who investigated the wave of mutilations in 1978.

"Most of the cattle I looked at I would say had been mutilated, if that's what you want to call it, by varmints, like coyotes," he said.

"I didn't go out and look at all of them. I didn't see the ones Heath is talking about," Casteel said.

Heath said he is convinced scavengers did not kill the animals.

"You don't walk up to a bull like that one. He was wild," he said of the 1,100-pound animal. "And there were no puncture marks where a tranquilizer gun had shot him," he said.

"This time, they cut a perfectly round hole above the left shoulder, cut through a muscle to get to the heart. I have a degree in animal science and I've had to do animal dissections. There's no way a person could do that with a scalpel," he insisted.

His theory is that the wound was burned with a laser-like instrument.

"Nothing would touch that carcass. Usually you know a dog will run up to anything and sniff it. The dogs ran up to this and just turned tail and ran in the other direction," he said.

Heath said he has dragged the carcass to the middle of the pasture to decompose.

"It's too muddy out there to do much else and it's too wet to burn it," he said.

Other ranchers might want to keep an eye on their herds to see if other deaths occur, he said.

"Somebody ought to call 'That's Incredible' or one of those shows because no one has been able to explain this thing," he said.

Second man sought in Gulf boat accident

PORT ISABEL, Texas (AP) — One man is safely ashore today, but the Coast Guard search continues for his Port Arthur buddy last seen clinging to a 5-gallon gas can after their pleasure boat sank in the Gulf of Mexico five days ago.

Owen Joe Cato, 26, of Leucadia, Calif., was rescued by a commercial fisherman who found him floating in a life jacket Monday about 45 miles southeast of Corpus Christi, said Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Steve Sparks.

Louis A. Nelson, 26, was still missing Tuesday night when Coast Guard officials suspended the search until 6 a.m. today.

"We've been using aircraft and surface vessels in the search," Sparks said. "The weather got bad, it got dark and we called it off for the night."

A Coast Guard spokesman said an area from Port Isabel to South Padre Island had been searched several times Tuesday.

However, Coast Guard officials would not comment on when the search might be called off if the man is not found today.

Cato told rescuers he and Nelson left Port Isabel on Oct. 2 in a 30-foot wooden pleasure craft. The vessel sank Oct. 23 and the two men climbed into a life raft which capsized three hours later.

Cato said he was wearing a life vest and that Nelson was clinging to a 5-gallon gas can.

Sparks said it is not known if the men were on a fishing trip or some other activity when their boat capsized.

'Nobody' stirs campus political excitement

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It was the strangest political rally anybody could remember seeing in the past four years — but then, the candidate was a bit on the odd side, too.

It was the Nobody for President campaign rally Monday on the University of Texas' Austin campus. Campaign coordinator Wavy Gravy tried to whip the crowd of 500 students into a frenzy over his candidate — Nobody — with rhetoric and demagoguery of the lowest sort.

It worked.

"Who was president before George Washington?" Gravy asked.

"Nobody!" the crowd chorused.

"Who honored the treaties with the Indians?" he continued.

"Nobody!" answered the crowd.

"Who will lower our taxes?"

"Nobody!"

"Who will free the hostages?"

"Nobody!"

"Who do you want to run your life?"

"Nobody!"

"Who bakes chocolate pie better than your mom?"

"Nobody!"

By now the crowd was pretty excited and Gravy began seeking testimonials.

"Anybody want to testify that Nobody has changed their life?" he asked, and a young man stepped forward to give witness.

"I've never voted for anybody," he confessed, but immediately repented: "This year I'm going to vote for Nobody."

Then Texas-country musician Steve Fromholz took the stage to pick and sing one of Nobody's campaign tunes, "Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out."

"Just remember," Gravy reminded the students, "if Nobody wins, nobody loses."

He then officially opened the candidates' debate and self-styled independent "Aggie" contender, Col. Clay Cannon, stepped forward to conduct a head-to-head debate with Nobody.

During a lull, Gravy admitted his real name is Hugh Romney and the campaign parody was organized by a San Francisco-area commune that calls itself the Hog Farm. The members run a telephone answering service, children's camps and an organic grape farm — and organize street theater presentations, such as the Nobody for President campaign.

This is Nobody's second try for the presidency, Romney said. He was put forward as a candidate in 1976 and is the candidate again this year because there is potential for a landslide, he added.

Citizens group protests power of utility companies

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — To consumer groups that proposed the rules, the idea is to protect poor, defenseless Texans from powerful utility companies that arbitrarily dole out power.

To the companies, the only thing the rules would do is protect a few customers who might be looking for free electricity. Consumers who pay their bills would wind up also paying for the freeloaders, according to the companies.

"Utilities have been given a dangerous freedom. Essentially, a freedom to kill," said Willo Hardin of Austin, representing the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now (ACORN).

Ms. Hardin told Public Utility Commission Hearing Examiner Mark Zeppa at a Tuesday hearing that "utility terminations kill people in Texas every year."

"The funny thing is a utility customer has no rights. Convicted murderers have rights," she said.

ACORN and Consumers Union want the PUC to adopt a series of rules controlling utility service termination, including:

- No cut-offs when it might endanger a customer's health.
 - Annual statements to customers of their rights.
 - Deferred payment plans for delinquent residential accounts.
 - Bilingual termination notices.
 - A formal hearing process before termination.
- Company officials who testified Tuesday echoed the same arguments — the proposed rules would be costly and that cost would be passed on to paying customers.
- The rules are not needed, they said, because company policies protect well-intentioned customers.
- Tom Curlee of Central Power and Light Co., said, "There are a lot of people who tamper with their meters. This is the group that will benefit most from rules like these."
- James Steinhilper of Southwestern Electric Power Co., said it would cost $55,000 a year for his company to send annual notices about customers' rights.
