Reagan to seek 'linkage' in U.S.-Soviet relations

LOS ANGELES (AP) - President-elect Ronald Reagan says he will not "intrude" in President Carter's foreign policy but will make a change in the way the United States deals with the Soviet Union once he takes office.

And, he said, Iran should not expect to benefit by continuing to hold its American hostages until Reagan becomes president on Jan. 20.

"I hope the Iranians will not have any idea there will be any profit to them in waiting," Reagan said.

At a news conference Thursday, his first such meeting with reporters following his landslide election victory on Tuesday, Reagan also said the people who engineered his successful election campaign will be in charge of planning his take-over of power.

The Republican president-elect went directly from the news conference to a private meeting in downtown Los Angeles with the leaders of his transition team and some of the men who served in his "kitchen cabinet" while he was governor of California.

Much of the news conference was devoted to foreign policy questions, and Reagan made clear that while he hopes to maintain the traditional nonpartisan nature of American foreign policy, he expects to make some immediate changes.

For instance, he rejected Carter's contention that strategic arms limitation talks between the United States and the Soviet Union are too important to await resolution of such international crises as the Soviet's occupation of Afghanistan.

"I don't think you simply sit down at the table with the Soviet Union to discuss military arms, for example," Reagan said. "You discuss the whole attitude, world attitude, as to whether we're going to have a world at peace or whether we're simply going to talk about weaponry and not bring up these other subjects."

"In other words," he said, "I believe in linkage." Carter, recently asked whether he would ask for Senate approval of the SALT II treaty while the Soviets kept troops in Afghanistan, said the treaty was so important it should be ratified "under any circumstances."

Reagan has vowed to throw out the current arms treaty with the Soviets and begin anew to gain a tougher treaty. He was asked if he would communicate with the Soviets during his transition to power to begin such negotiations.

He said that he and Vice President-elect George Bush do not "want to do anything that indicates that we are not a unified country and that we are in any way trying to speak with a different voice than the administration."

"The president is still the president," he said. "We are not going to intrude and we are going to recognize the fact that this administration is still in office and that foreign leaders must be aware that the president is still the president."

Reagan also announced that William Casey, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., and former Ambassador Anne Armstrong, the three people who headed his election campaign, would now be in charge of the transition.

Edwin Meese, Reagan's chief of staff, will be transition director and will work with the president-elect's other top campaign aides, Reagan said.

He also said many of the same people who advised him on policy matters during the campaign will continue to serve in a similar capacity in the coming 2½ months before he takes office.

They include former Treasury Secretary William Simon; retired Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Caspar Weinberger, former budget director and secretary of health, education and welfare; and George Shultz, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

On other issues, Reagan said: "It would be 'just fine' with him if Congress went ahead and considered a tax-cut proposal during its lame-duck session before he takes office."

He would give special consideration to finding qualified blacks and members of other minority groups to fill Cabinet posts and that he hopes to name his Cabinet by late November or early December.

His staff had examined allegations against Richard V. Allen "and we find absolutely no evidence of wrongdoing whatsoever." Published reports said Allen, Reagan's chief adviser on foreign policy during much of the campaign, had profited personally from his position in the administration of President Richard M. Nixon. Allen has denied the allegations.

He will listen to the advice of such campaign supporters as members of the Moral Majority, a religious group backing conservative causes. "I am going to be open to these people. I'm not going to separate myself from the people who elected us," he said.

"Bush would have an important role in the administration, but he did not spell out what it might be. 'No, he's not going to be going to a lot of funerals,' Reagan said.

And when asked whether he, at age 69 the oldest man ever elected to the White House, would be a one-term president, Reagan declined to rule out a second term.

"I haven't thought beyond the term to which I've been elected," he said. "I feel just fine."

Tower forecasts more military, tax incentives

DALLAS (AP) - Tax incentives to stimulate the lagging economy and increased military appropriations loom on the horizon as a GOP-controlled Senate and a Republican president-elect begin planning next January's takeover, says U.S. Sen. John Tower.

Tower will be the second-ranking Republican when the new Senate convenes in January and is in line to assume the chairmanship of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

A Texan has not chaired a major Senate committee in more than three decades.

Tower told a news conference Thursday that normal Senate procedures call for Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., to be bumped from the chairmanship when the present gdemocrat-controlled Senate is reorganized with a GOP majority.

Tower rejected seeking the post of Senate majority leader, saying that Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., would probably be

"COMING THROUGH THE RYE," a bronze casting by Frederic Remington, is unpacked from its crate on its arrival in Pampa Thursday by Mrs. Nona Payne. The sculpture is to be presented to M. K. Brown Auditorium by Mrs. Payne. City Manager

Mack Wofford said the art work — sister to a full-sized sculpture in the National Cowboy Hall of Fame in Oklahoma City — will be located in the foyer of the auditorium to the right of the M. K. Brown Memorial.

Clayton says he's clinched fourth term

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Bill Clayton, acquitted Oct. 22 of corruption charges arising from the FBI's Brilab "sting" investigation, says he has clinched a fourth term as House speaker.

Clayton issued a list of 98 House members and representatives-elect pledged to his candidacy for the 1981 speaker's race. He needs 76 votes to win.

"Today you are seeing a miracle become a reality. I know there were some who questioned statements I made in February that I would prove my innocence of false charges by fall and maintain my posture as a speaker candidate," he said.

House members will elect the speaker — regarded as one of the three most powerful officials in state government — when the new Legislature convenes Jan. 13.

Only Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, opposes Clayton, and Clayton said at a news conference Thursday that his list of 98 supporters "should effectively end any speculation about a speaker's race."

Clayton's list included 28 of the 36 Republicans elected to the House on Tuesday.

Republicans are vitally interested in legislative and congressional redistricting — the major task of the 1981 session — but Clayton said they would receive no special consideration.

"Redistricting will be a thing I don't feel will be given any weight because of any particular group," Clayton said.

Among the well-wishers attending Clayton's news conference were his Brilab lawyer, Roy Minton, and acquitted co-defendant, Randall "Buck" Wood of Austin.

Clayton dismissed a question about whether he is thinking of running for governor — a move he was considering before the Brilab accusations were made public in February.

"I won't even consider that at this time. We are looking only toward the next legislative session," he said.

The speaker said he waited until after the election to announce his plans because he did not want Brilab to be an issue in anybody's campaign for state representative.

Clayton "saluted" Bryant for bringing "an opposing view to the race."

Bryant says the speaker has too much power and Clayton has used it on behalf of special business interests and against the consuming public.

Reagan cautions Iran against hostage delay

By The Associated Press

Ronald Reagan warned Iran it has nothing to gain in the hostage negotiations by waiting for him to become President Jan. 20.

"I hope the Iranians will not have any idea there will be any profit to them in waiting" for the Reagan administration to take office, he told a Los Angeles news conference Thursday.

"We're not going to intrude" in Carter's handling of efforts to free the 52 Americans captured 370 days ago, he said. "I don't think there is any place for me to intervene in that regard. The president is still the president."

One member of Iran's Parliament, Hojatoleslam Moosavi Khoeni, said in a Greek television interview Wednesday that Reagan's election victory could delay U.S. acceptance of Iran's terms.

Asked about this possible delay, Hojatoleslam Sayed Mohammad Khamenei, a key member of Iran's Parliament, said Thursday: "I don't think so. It is not a question of the person of the president but the U.S. government. If they want to (protect) their interests and prestige, they would take action more quickly."

Khamenei said the release of the hostages can be arranged in hours or months, depending on the U.S. government's response to Iran's conditions.

Negotiations are being conducted at the State Department with the Algerian ambassador in Washington, who represents Iran's interests in the United States.

Iran claims oil minister tortured

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Iraqi doctors are fighting to save the life of Iran's captured oil minister who suffered a "massive hemorrhage caused by serious wounds" at the Abadan battlefield, the Iraqi press said. Iran charged today that the minister was tortured.

The Iraqi report that 30-year-old Mohammad Jawad Baguir Tonguyan was wounded when he was captured a week ago was surprising since he seemed to be in good health when European TV networks filmed him in captivity.

Tehran Radio broadcast a statement by Iran's Foreign Ministry charging the Iraqis had tortured Tonguyan to the "extent that his life is in danger." It called for international intervention to secure his release.

But Iraq has refused on grounds he and others captured with him are "prisoners of war."

Iraq said its tank-led infantry, backed by rocket-firing helicopter gunships, killed 60 Iraqis and suffered 21 dead in "noose-tightening" operations around Abadan as the war entered its 47th day today.

Tehran Radio conceded heavy fighting raged in the eastern districts of Abadan after Iraqi troops crossed the Bahmanshir River into Iran's besieged refinery city on the northern fringes of the Persian Gulf.

But the broadcast said Iranian forces were holding out and that they retaliated Thursday in a fierce battle along the Abadan-Mahshahr highway about two miles east of Abadan, killing 90 Iraqis. It said Iranian Phantoms attacked Iraqi positions along the Bahmanshir River, leaving the ground "littered with Iraqi dead."

Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai visited the war front and declared: "We will fight to our last breath. We will show (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein that he can never become the region's gendarme." Iran's official Pars news agency said.

It said Iranian warplanes also bombed Iraqi positions near Ahwaz, the capital of Iran's oil-rich Khuzistan Province 70 miles north of Abadan, and outside Dezful, the garrison city 80 miles further north and midpoint of Iraq's 300-mile invasion front.

The agency claimed 160 Iraqis were killed in fighting in Susangerd, 25 miles north of Abadan, Iran's last stronghold on the Shatt al-Arab whose capture would give Iraq complete control of the estuary that constitutes its only outlet to the Persian Gulf.

The Tehran command said Iran's snipers and gunners near Khorramshahr, the oil port 10 miles north of Abadan that the Iraqis seized two weeks ago, were still keeping the invaders from seizing the bridge over the Karun River that leads to the highway south to Abadan.

But Associated Press correspondent Alex Efty and other journalists brought to Khorramshahr by the Iraqis said only one incoming Iranian shell exploded during the five hours they spent on the north side of the river by the bridge, and that it caused no damage.

"We can cross the river onto Abadan island immediately if we are ordered to do so and capture Abadan city and its refinery without any difficulty," Ahmed Hashim, a paratroop colonel and Iraq's commander in the region, told Efty and the others in an interview in a shell-pocked house in Khorramshahr.

"But since we have surrounded the whole Abadan island completely, our political leadership prefers a policy of weakening the enemy down until they are forced to surrender," he said.

Hashim said an appeal by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's revolutionary leader, to Iran's forces to break the Abadan siege "has had no response whatever so far. They tried to launch counter-attacks a couple of times ... but they were unable to achieve anything. We have them in an iron grip."

Abadan island is bounded by the Shatt al-Arab and the Karun and Bahmanshir Rivers. A week before the Iraqis invaded Sept. 22, Hussein abrogated a 1975 treaty that put the boundary with Iran down the middle of the Shatt, claiming the territory historically belongs to Arab Iraq, not Persian Iran.

Iraq says it will not give up sovereignty over the waterway, Iran says it will not cease fire until the Iraqis are driven back across the border, and so far efforts by the non-aligned movement, the Islamic Conference and the United Nations have failed to produce any movement toward a truce.

Officers of the Pampa Police Department responded to 28 call during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today involving reports of property damage, burglary and theft.
W. K. Mackey, 952 Terry, reported someone threw a rolled newspaper through the living room window. No damage estimate was listed.
Lena Jackson reported the Cleo Helker residence at 309 E. Browning was burglarized and a water cooler valued at $15 was missing. The upstairs storage room had also been broken into, but nothing was found to be missing at the time of the report.
Barbara Howe, 2019 Coffee, reported someone took the rear fender valued at $18 from her vehicle while it was parked in the driveway of the residence.
William Ragsdale reported someone had broken the front glass door of the Texas Employment Commission, 823 W. Francis. The damage was estimated at $150.

minor accidents

Lelah Allen Dusaplin, 76, 1200 N. Wells, was injured in a two-vehicle accident at 2:05 p.m. Thursday when the 1966 Chevrolet she was driving came into collision with a 1978 Chevrolet driven by Dillard C. Bayless, 1530 N. Coffee. The mishap occurred at the intersection of Russell and Kentucky streets. Mrs. Dusaplin was treated and released from Highland General Hospital.
At 5:02 p.m. Thursday, a 1974 Chrysler driven by Forrest Palmittier, 59, Box 1532, was traveling west in the inside lane in the 100 block of West Kingsmill, when it came into collision with a 1974 Buick driven by Julia Ford, 39, Box 340. The Ford vehicle was reportedly southbound in the outside lane of North Cuyler. Palmittier was cited for failure to yield right of way.
A two-vehicle accident occurred at 2:30 p.m. Thursday involving a 1973 Ford driven by Johnnie Lynn Owen III, 18, 117 W. Tyng and a parked 1970 Ford pickup truck. The mishap reportedly occurred in the 200 block of Sunset. Owen was cited for unsafe backing. No injuries were reported at the scene.

fire report

11:45 a.m. - A grass fire at 417 Graham was reported to the Pampa Fire Department. There was damage to a small area of grass and the cause was attributed to children playing with matches.
FIRE DEPARTMENT GIVES OCTOBER REPORT
In October, firefighters of the Pampa Fire Department responded to 38 calls - 22 within the city limits, 12 in Gray County, and two calls each in Roberts County and Carson County.
Firefighters were called to six structural fires during the month. Four of these involved heavy damage. Of the six fires, three were determined to have been caused by heating units, two from electrical overloads and the cause of one was undetermined.
Six automobile fires were extinguished by firefighters. Twelve grass and trash fires were reported in October.
The rescue tool was used in one run in Roberts County at a double fatality accident east of Miami on Oct. 8. Fire Department officials said this is the third time the tool has been used since its purchase in March.
Firefighters also responded to eight miscellaneous calls.

Bentsen sees majority as trend toward conservatism

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Lloyd Bentsen sees the stunning Republican victories that will put him in the Senate minority as part of a long-term trend toward conservatism.
"I think it's a further move to conservatism which was under way and was interrupted because of the (former President Richard) Nixon problems," the Texas Democrat said Thursday in an interview with The Associated Press.
He said he saw polls late last week that indicated Texans would vote for President-elect Ronald Reagan, but he was surprised by the depth of the Republican victory.
The other cause of President Carter's loss, Bentsen said, was the deep concern about the economy that could be detected across the nation.
"I see Texas as a microcosm of the United States," he said. "It reflects pretty well what the United States did. I don't see that Texas is that much different from the rest of the United States."
Bentsen acknowledged that he is now a member of "the nation's newest minority" - Senate Democrats - but he said the new role might prove to be enjoyable.
He said he told some of his staff members who appeared downcast the day after the election to cheer up because being in the minority might be "kind of fun."
The fun comes from the chance to direct verbal darts and criticism at the party in power instead of defending the program of the moment.
Bentsen added, however, that the nation's problems are of such magnitude that he expects only a serious bipartisan effort will be able to produce solutions.
The senator noted that some Republican candidates had adopted the recommendations of the Joint Economic Committee he chairs.
As head of the JEC for the past two years, Bentsen became a leading spokesman for raising productivity and reindustrializing America.
The chairmanship alternates every two years between the House and Senate. Bentsen would have become vice chairman in January if Democrats had retained control of the Senate; he now becomes the ranking Senate Democrat on the economic panel.
Bentsen said he expected to remain active on the JEC, and his seat on the Senate Finance Committee would allow him to keep a high profile on economic issues.

A retirement and electoral losses will move Bentsen from sixth to second in seniority among Democrats on the finance committee, essentially giving him an open field to choose from as far as subcommittees go.
The Republican takeover of the Senate, of course, means that the GOP takes over the leadership of all Senate committees. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, is in line to become chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.
Bentsen said the finance committee under the leadership of Sen. Russell Long, D-La., operated in bipartisan fashion and he expected that would continue under the new regime of Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan.
"Neither party gets anything done on this committee without the other," Bentsen said.

Washington mood swings to lighter side in Reagan wait

WASHINGTON (AP) - The cocktail set is chortling. Real estate agents are making new lists. And resumes are flying as the federal city prepares for a Ronald Reagan presidency.
From the salons of Georgetown to the corridors of Capitol Hill, Washington's power brokers and its bureaucrats are trying to assess the meaning of the Republican landslide that captured the White House and the Senate as well.
For some, the change means being out of work. For others, months or years of work on projects, regulations or legislation will grind to a halt.
And for countless Republicans who have been sidelined during four years of a Democratic presidency and Congress, Reagan's election means another courtship with the political and social circles that run this company town.
"You'll see a lot of cocktail parties," said one Washington insider. "That's how all those corporate types do business. The Carter people made fun of these parties and made a point of never attending them. But that's where contacts are made - and how many contacts did Carter's team have?"
A Capitol Hill real estate agent, who asked not to be identified, said he already had drawn up lists of congressmen most likely to sell and hoped to make a killing on the new Congress.
Elsewhere, in the various departments and agencies where policies are made and regulations enforced, the realization of the Democrats' defeat was still setting in.

"I'm numb," said Jody Bernstein, general counsel at the Department of Health and Human Services. "I'm still trying to sort it out. I was surprised at the extent of the victory. I was expecting a close election, a real squeaker, but I was shocked at the losses in the Senate."
Consumer advocate Ralph Nader called Reagan "a cruel man with an amiable smile" and said the president-elect has no understanding of civil liberties.
"He has an authoritarian bent that will make Richard Nixon look like a spring chicken," Nader said. "He's a genius at provoking opposition. It's a sad day for civil liberties and civil rights. The man has no understanding of these. He's been living in Hollywood-land."
Nader predicted that consumers will suffer under a Reagan administration.
At the Supreme Court, where Reagan may have a chance to appoint several new justices, one law clerk was overheard telling a friend in the cafeteria that Reagan's election is "a great step forward for the aspirations of rich, white men."
But another court staffer was more philosophical: "I hope my status as a federal employee will be improved in the public's mind. The prestige of government has been low for some time, and I think Mr. Reagan will change that for the better."

Boone County miners feared trapped in mining accident

ROBINSON, W. Va. (AP) - Five miners were trapped more than two miles into a Boone County coal mine today following an apparent explosion that sent smoke pouring from the mine shaft, authorities said.
Rescue workers wearing gas masks and carrying stretchers fought their way into the shaft of the Westmoreland Coal Co.'s Ferrell Mine. Ambulance crews waited outside.
The mine is near Robinson, a small unincorporated community near the Logan County border in southern West Virginia. Company officials did not release names of the trapped miners.
Hundreds of people, including anxious relatives, stood behind police cordons along state Route 85 awaiting word of the miners' fate.
Richard McClure, the mine's warehouse manager, said an explosion ripped through the mine in the early morning.
United Mine Workers President Sam Church flew from Washington this morning to go to the mine. State Mines Director Walter Miller also left for the mine, as did workers from the state Office of Emergency Services.
Mine fatalities have been an issue recently in West Virginia.

Twenty-four miners died in accidents earlier this year, according to the state Department of Mines.
Alan Hodel, a United Mine Workers spokesman in Washington, D.C., said telephone contact broke down shortly after the five missing miners had reported encountering heavy smoke. A group of electricians was sent to investigate but was driven back by the smoke, he said.
"The smoke was far too thick and toxic for the electricians to get through," Hodel said. "If they (the five miners) can't get fresh air, soon I wouldn't give much for their chances."
There were conflicting reports on the cause of the accident about 6:45 a.m.
Boone County Sheriff John Protan, state police and the office of Gov. Jay Rockefeller all reported there had been an explosion. And Ray Holbrook, owner of an adjacent mine, said men in his mine "heard an explosion" from the nearby Westmoreland shaft.
However, Westmoreland spokesman Steve Anderson said "there was not an explosion in our mine."
Anderson, contacted at company headquarters in Philadelphia, said an electrical fire could have been responsible for the smoke.

Interferon still a long way from solving cancer problems

NEW YORK (AP) - Whatever role the drug interferon may ultimately play in the battle against cancer, clear-cut scientific results still seem a long way off.
Clinical research so far has shown that interferon does indeed have an effect on cancer - and that it has relatively few side effects.
But results have been mixed and research has been slowed by a shortage of the drug and preparations of insufficient purity.
"Interferon is still in the earlier stages of clinical testing," the American Cancer Society points out.
And now researchers are reporting new laboratory findings that show just how complicated interferon is. There may be, for example, as many as 10 to 15 different genes that produce different series of interferon.
This could both complicate the use of the various strains of interferon, and also explain the varying responses in patients to the drug being tested. In the long run, the full understanding of interferon lies in further discoveries through basic research.
One researcher who believes that interferon is "clearly promising" is Dr. Susan Krown of Memorial Hospital Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, who has given the drug to 18 patients. But she adds:
"Most of the interferon studies so far haven't proven anything except that we need to do more studies."
"People have read things that make them think this is some kind of miracle cure," Dr. Krown says. "Because interferon is scarce and our studies are limited, we have to turn down patients every day who have invested a lot of emotional energy in trying to get interferon."
"When they can't get it, they feel like they're being cheated out of something that's the answer for them. It's sad."
In a report of her work with the drug to a recent cancer meeting, Dr. Krown attempted to put the role of interferon into perspective.
"I think it likely that interferon's potential in man will be best realized not as a single agent, but rather in combination with chemotherapy or as an adjunct to surgery when tumor burden is low."

And many researchers now believe it could take a decade before all the questions are answered and interferon can take its place in the arsenal of weapons against cancer.
The mixed reactions among researchers are due to such findings as those reported earlier this year showing "some significant response" in only four of 14 patients with the bone cancer called multiple myeloma, and a "partial response" in five of 16 women with breast cancer - results less impressive than previous studies reported by European scientists.
However, the results are significant enough "to satisfy us that the interferon used, even though it is only one-thousandth pure, has definite anti-cancer activity," says Dr. Frank J. Rauscher, senior vice president for research of the American Cancer Society.
Because of this potential, trials will continue with these aims:
Why does interferon help some patients and not others? How long do the benefits last? What are the optimal doses, which may have been too low? How long should treatment be continued? What will be the results in combining interferon with other drugs? What are the differences among the three different forms of interferon?
The widespread public interest and expectation in interferon began with an unusual move - the announcement in August, 1978, by the American Cancer Society that it was allocating $2 million on short notice for the initial purchase of the costly drug for the early clinical trials at 10 institutions. The ACS contribution has reached a total of $5.8 million.
The cost of treating a single patient can range up to $30,000 now, the ACS says.
But more ice water has been thrown on any immediate, widespread use of interferon by the American Society of Clinical Oncology, an organization of cancer specialists.
A society resolution warned that it can be a "toxic drug that causes chills, fever, lowered blood pressure and depression of blood counts" - all this in a substance once described as virtually free of side effects.
"Any benefit achieved has frequently been equivocal and very transitory," the resolution said.

Side effects detected in drugs

CHICAGO (AP) - Some drugs that help alleviate high blood pressure and other circulatory or heart problems can also curb the sex drive and render male patients impotent, a doctor says.
In an article published in the Archives of Internal Medicine, Dr. Chris Papadopoulos of South Baltimore General Hospital warned that the sexual side effects may cause some patients to stop taking their medicine.
"Knowledge of the sexual side effects of the drugs and proper counseling of the patient are vital," the doctor said.
Papadopoulos said a reduction in dosage or substitution of an equally effective drug with less of a potential effect on the patient's sexual functions could alleviate the problem.

Papadopoulos, who also is associated with the University of Maryland School of Medicine, reported his findings in the October edition of the American Medical Association publication.
The study focused on the effects of 16 drugs on male patients. Papadopoulos said, "The effects of drugs on male sexuality are far better described and understood than is their influence on the responses of females, partly because the male response is more visible and quantifiable."
The 16 drugs examined are prescribed for various kinds of circulatory problems. Papadopoulos found that while most have been known to have at least some sexual side effects, thiazides, hydralazine and prazosin appear to be the least likely to cause sexual dysfunction.

Voyager Officer's moonlighting helps dying children

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Voyager I spaceship, just days from a close encounter with Saturn, is tantalizing earthbound scientists with photographs revealing dozens of previously undetected ringlets within the giant planet's shimmering rings.

The latest photographs from the robot laboratory — a billion miles from home and still 4 1/2 million miles from the sixth planet — show rings within rings, ringlets of particles in what were thought to be empty spaces between rings and more bands of colored planetary clouds than current theories anticipated.

Most puzzling to astronomers are the fingers of darkness, which first appeared in photographs two weeks ago, reaching across the rings.

"With any scientific investigation of this magnitude, (many of) our longstanding theories — those cherished interpretations of the universe around us — are going to become casualties," Bradford Smith, head of Voyager's photography team, predicted Thursday.

Speaking at a Jet Propulsion Laboratory news conference, he said: "Our pre-Voyager knowledge of Saturn is poor. Much of what we are seeing and will see is new, (so) I think we can predict that much of what we thought we understood will be found to be wrong."

The spaceship will come closest to Saturn on Wednesday, when it will soar within 80,000 miles of the cloudtops.

After 38 months in space, the ship and its payload of scientific instruments are generally in good condition, said project manager Raymond Heacock.

And no major problems are expected as the National Aeronautics and Space Administration mission approaches its climax.

Voyager pictures taken Monday showed a complex structure within the rings, which are believed to be frozen particles like dirty snowballs that reflect light and therefore appear to shimmer.

Scientists believed there were six rings, barely three miles wide but stretching nearly 300,000 miles from the planet, with dark divisions that were considered empty gaps.

But Monday's photographs have changed that concept, said Smith, a University of Arizona astronomer.

Voyager I showed "many, many individual ringlets — literally dozens, perhaps hundreds of these structures" spreading like ripples through the rings. And at least one of the gaps contains not less than four bright ringlets of particles.

But "the most baffling surprise that we have come up with yet" is the discovery of dark spokes or fingers reaching thousands of miles across the brightest parts of the rings, he said.

The dark structures form, remain intact three hours or more and then dissipate and form again.

"We don't even know whether they are dark because that's the nature of the particles or whether they're dark because there are simply fewer particles there to reflect sunlight," Smith said.

Photographs of the surface of the planet — mostly a ball of hydrogen gas with 815 times the volume of Earth — also are producing surprises.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — For nine years, police officer Bill Sample stood security watch at a local pediatrics hospital. Inside, children died, often afraid, their dreams dying with them.

He saw them come and go, some bald from chemotherapy, some pale, drooped on crutches. He'd smile and they'd talk. Then after a while, some of them wouldn't come anymore. And he'd check and find out they were dead.

Four years ago, this beefy cop, with a mortgage and three kids of his own, reached deep into his pocket for help. There wasn't much, just enough to buy a dream — he sent a girl dying of cancer to a rock concert.

Charmed by her smile, he bought another. And another. For there was fleeting happiness in his work — a moonlighting genie putting a final dash of joy into the lives of dying children.

Today, Sample is president of the Sunshine Foundation, a non-profit organization that he put together in his spare time. Seventy volunteer workers now assemble the dreams.

It may be a trip to Disney World, a ride down the Mississippi on a houseboat, a week at the shore, a trip to the Grand Canyon, or a visit with a far away friend.

For one 11-year-old with leukemia, it was sharing the bench with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"Out on the street as a cop, every day I run into bums who have thrown their health and their lives away," says Sample. "These little children, they never had a chance."

Since its inception in the fall of 1976, the Sunshine Foundation has sent over 507 dying or chronically-ill children and their families, many drained financially by the illnesses, on expense-paid trips.

"We've never had to turn down a family or a child," Sample says while working in the foundation's office, two rented rooms above a hardware store.

"We always send the whole family. Isolating the child would be an additional burden. This is a time when they need to be together."

Sample is 44. He's been a Philadelphia policeman for 18 years. When he's not a cop, he's either asleep or working on dreams, always in a hurry for fear death will cancel a trip.

"Yeah, that really hurts," he says. "Because you become attached to them. You try not to, but you do. I've been a pallbearer at their funerals; I've been asked to say prayers."

The office walls are covered with postcards and letters.

"As you know," begins one, "we lost Susan right after our trip. I still can't believe that she is gone."

"The reason I haven't sent you the papers (the receipts from the trip) is that it seemed like one of the last connections I have with her, and when I send them to you I really have to accept the fact that she is gone. I am shaking while I am writing this so please excuse my writing."

"She really enjoyed Florida. It was as if God gave her the extra strength and health. We love you for helping us. I have no doubt that you have a selected place in heaven."

Irv Homer, a local talk show host, helps raise money for the foundation on the air. In 1961, his son's cancer was diagnosed. The boy died within 10 days.

"We've approached many companies for help; some don't even bother answering our letters," he says. "They don't want to be associated with terminally ill kids."

Sample had just gotten off the overnight shift. He's going through the manila folders on his desk, filled with children's names, and their dreams.

"Here's a girl from Saginaw, Mich. All she wants to do is go out and see Olivia Newton-John. She's 16. Little Stevie from Massachusetts, he wants to go to Disney. He's 11. There are really some tough ones in here, I'll tell you."

"Every time there's publicity," Sample says, "we get more children than we know what to do with. When the money is gone, it will be over with. Thank God we've made it four years."

Arkansas man arrested in big cheese caper

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — An Arkansas man arrested in this Panhandle city on charges of stealing 3,000 pounds of cheese is being held in the Potter County Jail pending possible removal to Arkansas, according to FBI officials.

FBI agent Scott Hendricks, who arrested Wayne Lee Lindsey Wednesday, said the man has the right to a removal hearing, which is similar to extradition.

Lindsey was indicted by a federal grand jury in western Arkansas Oct. 31 for theft from an interstate shipment, said William E. Kell, special agent in charge of the Arkansas FBI. The cheese — Wedge Daisy Super Jack — was valued at $3,700 and had not been recovered Thursday night, he said.

"Since he's already been indicted," Hendricks said, "the removal hearing does not involve probable cause. That's already been decided by the grand jury. Lindsey can waive his rights to a removal hearing at which time he literally will be removed to Western Arkansas."

Lindsey was arraigned by U.S. Magistrate Robert Sanders who constituted a $5,000 bond already set in Arkansas.

If convicted, Lindsey could receive a maximum sentence of 10 years imprisonment.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Covering Commandment.

Hostages return at what price?

We would like very much to see the American hostages returned from Iran. But we wonder, (if a Chicago TV station's report is true) about the price the administration seems willing to pay.

Speculation about an imminent exchange of the hostages for spare military parts impounded since the crisis began may be only speculation. But state department officials have given some signs that they're almost desperate to make a deal. Secretary of State Muskie made a point of saying the parts would be released if the hostages were released, in accordance with earlier statements. Both Carter and Muskie have pointedly talked about Iraqi aggression.

But things have changed since those earlier statements. A war between Iraq and Iran is going on, and it's a war the United States shouldn't be involved in. If we send those parts, we're involved, however we may deny it. It could have dire effects on U.S. relations with Saudi Arabia and other Arab nations. It could provide a pretext for direct Soviet involvement.

The price we would pay abroad would be heavy. U.S. intervention on the side of Iran, as it would surely be interpreted, would make us a laughingstock, willing to aid a government that has made a career of abusing us. It would be more likely to interrupt or even permanently curtail oil supplies from the Persian Gulf than to assure them.

But the price at home would be even heavier. Heavy taxation would be a certainty. We could easily drift into a draft. Official duplicity, stirring up war fever and suppression of dissent are the usual accompaniments to war. Considering the origins, we could see a revolt and rejection of the system by young people that would make the sixties look like a tea party.

If re-election politics and insecure diplomacy get the United States involved in a Middle East war, the consequences would be dreadful indeed. We'd like to see the hostages returned. But not at that price.

Iraq: friend in disguise?

The United States has no ideological reason to sympathize with either Iran or Iraq in the continuing Persian Gulf conflict.

But the 52 American citizens held in Iran for nearly a year are persuasive in winning for Tehran an attentive ear.

There has been no diplomatic relationship between Washington and Iran since the seizure of the American Embassy in Tehran and the capture of the hostages on Nov. 4, 1979. Iraqi contacts always have been distant.

Secretary of State Muskie has summed up the obvious. Iran meddled illegally in Iraq's affairs. Iraq illegally invaded Iran.

Nevertheless, Iran's military setbacks emphasize the country's need for parts and ammunition for its sophisticated American planes and weapons. The nation is pinched for the cash frozen in American banks. The economy suffers from the loss of U.S. trade and the shutdown of the huge refinery at Abadan.

The more extreme conditions once set by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini for the release of the hostages may be soft-pedaled in the current Iranian crunch.

The outlook for the return of the hostages is promising. Political conditions in Tehran remain unpredictable. Hopes for the release of the hostages may be raised one day, only to be dashed the next. Any rational consideration of Iran's self-interest would, it seems to us, lead to the inescapable conclusion that the hostages should be released so that the Iranian nation can concentrate its energies and its resources upon the military threat to its national security from the Iraqi invasion.

The guns at Khorramshahr and Abadan speak most convincingly of the need for Iran to settle the hostage issue as soon as possible. There are conflicting signals from Tehran as to whether the voices of the guns are being heard. But, eventually, even the most irrational leaders must hearken to the sounds of war and reckon with the reality of their own national interest.

Six steps toward a stronger America

By the Honorable John Rousselet

Increasingly, in summer and fall, 1980, reports are flooding into Washington at an alarming rate detailing the decline in America's military strength. Is there reason to be concerned? You bet there is!

In the immediate post-World War II period, our nation maintained a "superior" defense posture. Then we slipped into what was termed "military sufficiency." Now the Carter Administration has publicly announced that the current level is one of "essential equivalence" to that of the U.S.S.R.

Even the status of "essential equivalence" was thrown under a cloud of doubt when Secretary of Defense Harold Brown recently remarked before a closed-door meeting on Capitol Hill that, "The U.S. will regain equality with the Soviet Union." It is appalling that in less than 15 years, our nation has fallen from a position of military superiority to a level where we must strive to REGAIN mere equality!

Brigadier General Albion W. Knight, Jr., (USA-Ret.), in an address before the 1980 national convention of the DAR, said, "I am certain of one thing: We cannot continue in safety with the foreign and securities policies of the past five presidents. Their policies, built on illusions, wishful thinking and misplaced hope, have brought us to the brink of disaster."

"Not only is the United States not militarily prepared to meet the demands of the future, it is not adequately manned and supplied to meet the military needs of the present. The situation is critical.

More and more career military personnel are speaking out to express their anxiety over the problem. Responding to a Time magazine interview, Air Force Staff Sergeant Louis Loman pointed out that, "In the last couple of years we've had to maintain our B-52's on 'cannibal status', borrowing parts from some so others could fly. I used to be able to get a certain bolt right away, but now it takes as long as three weeks. Standards are still met, but it's getting harder to meet them."

The U.S. has the capacity to rebuild the quality of its armed forces - not for aggressive purposes, but in order to make this free nation tough and impregnable, with the power to resist attack or threat of attack.

There ARE solutions. No one program will correct all the deficiencies, but the following steps could and should be taken immediately:

- Revamp and expand the U.S. Navy surface fleet;
- Produce and deploy advanced bombers (variants of the B-1);
- Accelerate cruise missile production;
- Increase pay and benefits for career military personnel;
- Procure adequate spare parts and training equipment;
- Stop technology transfers to the Soviet Union.

These improvements, together with acceleration of other necessary military programs, will require an increase in the level of defense expenditures. If our nation is to be an effective force for peace wherever the U.S. has made commitments, it is imperative that spending for national defense be given priority in the Federal budget.

For too many years, tax dollars spent for social welfare and direct payments for individuals have increased while spending for national defense has remained static.

Total Federal outlays increase year after year with an attendant rise in individual tax burdens. The U.S. budget for FY 1981 is $613.6 billion. The U.S. Office of Management and Budget reports that Federal budget outlays are projected to increase at an average annual rate of 10 percent. Those who argue against increased spending for national defense may not know this fact.

In 1967, 43 percent of the U.S. budget was spent on national defense - while the estimated portion in 1981 is 23.7 percent, or roughly half. In contrast, the portion of the U.S. budget going to transfer payments for individuals has more than doubled, going from 24 percent in 1967 to an estimated 50 percent in 1981.

The deterioration of U.S. defense strength has placed our nation and its allies in jeopardy. All sensible Americans, for their own safety today and tomorrow, should do everything they can to reverse this trend!

Letters

To the Editor

For the U.S.A. to refrain from meeting the challenge of an Arms Race with a ruthless and belligerent nation whose evident and avowed purpose is to dominate the world, is no less fallacious or cowardly than refusing to go to battle in defense of national honor, security and freedom. The first proposition might well be taken as an invitation to our enemy to build a military force superior to our own, to be used against us in a way, time and place, that he deems expedient, with little danger of damaging resistance, or failure to accomplish his purpose.

The survival of the fittest has been the law of the jungle since time immemorial. It destines that the weak must perish to satiate the appetite of the strong. How sorely lamentable it is, that this merciless concept has not been confined within the borders of brutish beasts, but has spread to the outer limits of so-called civilization. There, it often precludes the justice and beauty of the strong protecting the weak, and with murderous tooth and claw, devours the helpless.

Therefore, weakness in any category is an unfortunate situation, though it may not incur blame or dishonor if it is caused by unavoidable circumstance over which there is no control, and not a result of apathetic indifference, lack of courage, stupid or willful negligence, and wishful thinking. But if such as these be the cause, it becomes a shameful disgrace that oftentimes proves disastrous. This is especially true when it pertains to national affairs.

Belgium was a tiny nation at the beginning of W.W.I. but with Spartan courage she won the admiration, and a debt of gratitude, from much of the world, when, with every source of resistance at her command, she defied Kaiser Wilhelm's mechanized juggernaut of war, to cross her fair land. She was small and militarily weak, but with great sacrifice, she slowed the pace of rumbling tanks and marching soldiers, allowing a little time for their intended victims to prepare for battle.

Oh, that we might emulate her courage, and with our technical knowledge and natural resources, not forgetting the fate of other weak nations, undergird our country, a nation under God, with justice and strength. Not to oppress and destroy; but to shield and protect. Not to perish in ignominious defeat; but to regain our lost prestige and respect, and be recognized and remembered evermore, by all nations of the earth, as "The Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave."

Louis Peters got involved

by Paul Harvey

Americans, you and I are in debt to a car dealer we've never met.

Louis Peters is a rich man; he did not have to get involved.

Among other things, Louis Peters owns a prospering car dealership in Lodi, Calif. About 2½ years ago a man came in and offered to buy the business. That was flattering.

But when the man offered $2 million for a business that was worth only $1 million, big Louis Peters kinda backed off.

Then the buyer explained that he was really seeking to purchase the business for somebody else.

For a man named Joe Bonnano - who wanted to buy a dozen dealerships.

It was obvious why Joe Bonnano, Mister Big in the West Coast mob, wanted some legitimate businesses, through which he could launder some illegitimate money - money made from vice, gambling, racketeering.

Louis Peters could have said yes or no and left it there. Instead he said "maybe" - and went immediately to the FBI.

The FBI had wanted for years to get evidence that would lock up Bonnano. The bureau asked Peters if he would go along with the deal, get friendly, get on the inside, get that evidence. He said he would.

Over the year that followed Louis Peters got to know Joe Bonnano, was invited to stay in Bonnano's home in Tucson, was introduced as "one of the family."

During some of those visits, Mr. Peters allowed himself to be wired by the FBI so that they got recordings of conversations involving - and incriminating - Bonnano and his nephew Jack De Filippi.

Then complications set in. De Filippi wanted to date Mr. Peters' daughter.

Peters panicked. The only way out was painful but he took it. He separated from his wife and daughter.

He could not explain to those he loved his involvement. But for their protection he insisted on a separation - so that they would get out of town, out of reach.

The agonizing odyssey which began in June of 1977 ended this year when Joe Bonnano was convicted. Joe Bonnano, who started as a gun runner for Al Capone and rose to head one of organized crime's big five families, for the first time ever was convicted and sent to prison.

Louis explained to his family; they're together again.

There is no way known to relate the stress of that experience to the next one.

But Louis Peters - big man, 6' 3", 240 pounds, millionaire - can't remember ever being sick a day in his 48 years - has collapsed.

Doctors diagnose brain cancer; inoperable.

They say he has a year - maybe.

That's all. I just wanted you to know of a man who did not have to get involved yet did. A man who had everything - and gambled it all to make the world a little less dirty for the rest of us.

The hostages as history

By Don Graff

As years go, it must at this point be judged as one of the very worst.

Americans - both those actually captive in Tehran and millions of their frustrated countrymen at home - have been held hostage by a situation that for all the nation's power and effort has defied resolution. Direct diplomacy, recourse to the established international channels for the settlement of grievances between nations and, with one dismaying slip, immense forbearance have gotten the United States nowhere with a third-rate power - if that last is the appropriate word for a society in such an advanced stage of disorganization as Iran - oblivious to all but its own revolutionary preoccupations.

For many Americans, it may seem to have been a year like no other. In fact, however, not quite.

Remember the Pueblo hostages. Almost forgotten now, they were the crew members of the U.S.S. Pueblo, the Navy electronic intelligence ship seized by North Korean patrol boats in the Sea of Japan. That was on Jan. 23, 1968, creating a crisis that shows some striking similarities to that of the Tehran hostages.

The North Korean regime, then possibly the most virulently anti-American in the communist world, was also impervious to the usual processes of diplomacy and what limited pressures the United States was able to exert short of resorting to force. And at one point there appeared to be the possibility of exactly that eventuality as the American naval presence in the area was strengthened and a limited call up of reservists ordered.

Feeling in the public and Congress was high as the administration appeared to be running out of options. And it was a presidential election year.

There are also significant differences between the Pueblo and Tehran. For one, the first was a relatively isolated event. It occurred in an area of concern to several parties of some consequence - the Soviet Union, People's China and Japan, in addition to the United States - but was of peripheral importance to the rest of the world. And it was essentially peripheral to the primary American concern of the period: Vietnam.

The Tehran hostages, on the other hand, are one aspect of a larger and complex crisis focusing on a region of primary political and economic importance to all of the major powers, plus many other countries powerless except for their potentialities for trouble.

The Pueblo hostages were released Dec. 22, 1968, six weeks after the American presidential election and a month short of a year after their seizure. In return, the United States tendered North Korea an "apology" - subsequently rescinded - for the intelligence intrusion upon North Korea. Whatever value this may have had for the North Koreans, it was undoubtedly of less importance than time in bringing about the release. The propaganda value of the Pueblo hostages for their captors had been exhausted, they had become old business.

A similar pattern, although much more convoluted, may explain developments in Tehran. Much has happened since Nov. 4, 1979, and the seizure of the American embassy. The shah is dead and an issue, even as concerns his disputed wealth, of receding importance. The Iranian revolution is attempting to institutionalize itself, a process in which the hostages were first manipulated as pawns in the factional infighting but are increasingly a drag on proceedings, which include getting on with the war with Iraq.

The Tehran hostages, in short, may have become old business in today's Tehran. In the perspective of time, it may become apparent that time, more than any development and all the exertions of the American government, was the primary factor in effecting the hostages' eventual release.

And in time, difficult as it may be to conceive of it now, the events of this may have become almost forgotten. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Projects furthering cancer research

Seven new cancer research projects have begun at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

Four are sponsored by the American Cancer Society, (ACS) and three by the Audrey B. Jones Research Fund.

The grants provide "seed money" for junior investigators initiating projects in cancer research and provide support for established investigators who have not received funding on new projects. Seed money launches new research ideas and helps develop them to a stage from which additional funding may be requested.

The ACS has provided $40,000 to be spent over a two-year period, and the Audrey B. Jones Research Fund has provided a one-year grant of $11,000, according to Stanley S. Lefkowitz, Ph.D., coordinator of research at TTUHSC. Each appointed ACS supported project is being funded for one year; next year, other projects also will be eligible for financial support. "However, the ACS may support one or more projects for a second year if progress and expected goals so warrant," Lefkowitz said.

Researchers in all clinical and basic science departments on each TTUHSC campus (Lubbock, El Paso, and Amarillo) were invited to submit project proposals.

Scientists awarded ACS funds this year are: Johannes Everse, Ph.D., biochemistry, who is doing a project entitled "Why Don't We All Have Cancer?"; which deals with the role of peroxidase as a naturally occurring anti-cancer mechanism; Charles W. Garner, Ph.D., biochemistry, "Treatment of Membranes with Peroxidase"; the mechanism of action of peroxidase; Gary T. Gooch, Ph.D., microbiology, "The Potentiation of Immune Surveillance by artificial Killer Lymphocytes" - the interplay between a peroxidase and the immune system; and J. Barry Lombardini, Ph.D. pharmacology and therapeutics.

Three projects received support from the Audrey B. Jones Fund: Charles Lox, Ph.D., and Benny Phillips, M.D., obstetrics and gynecology, "The Influence of Gynecologic Malignancies on Thrombosis and Hemostasis," - changes in coagulation proteins during various stages of gynecologic malignancies and following their treatment; Douglas M. Stocco, Ph.D., biochemistry, "Turnover of Mitochondria in Normal Liver and Novikoff Hepatoma" - Comparison of stability of mitochondria in normal and cancer cells; and Elozabeth B. Stuyt, "The Study of Macrophages in the Diagnosis and prognosis of Breast Cancer" - a testing a breast fluids for cancer indicators.

O'Neil unconcerned by challenge

WASHINGTON (AP) - House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said today he is not concerned about a Texas Republican congressman's attempt to get conservative Democrats to join with the GOP in an attempt to oust him.

"I have talked to enough Democrats to be assured I will be re-elected speaker," O'Neill said.

O'Neill, a Massachusetts Democrat, has been speaker since 1976, a post to which he was elected when Carl Albert of Oklahoma retired.

Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, said Thursday he was trying to persuade 27 conservative Democrats to join with the GOP to oust the liberal O'Neill from the House's top leadership post.

Archer said he wanted to have O'Neill replaced with someone closer in ideology to Republican President-elect Ronald Reagan.

The Democrats will have a 50-vote edge in the 435-member House next year, but more than half of them are conservatives who vote with Republicans on many major issues.

But an O'Neill spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said it was highly unlikely Democrats would break ranks on the election of the speaker and put a Republican in charge of the House.

The Republicans picked up 33 House seats in Tuesday's election, but that still leaves Democrats comfortably in control.

The new Congress will include 242 Democrats, 192 Republicans and one independent.

Republicans won control of the Senate. O'Neill, 67, was the only one of the three Democratic leaders in the House who was able to coast to victory in Tuesday's election.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas, O'Neill's second-in-command, beat back a tough Republican challenge to win re-election. But the third-ranking House Democrat, John Brademas of Indiana, won't be returning when the new Congress convenes in January. Brademas was defeated by Republican political newcomer John Hiler in a Republican sweep of that state.

A Republican campaign strategist said before Tuesday's election that the GOP had wanted to try to unseat O'Neill in the election but was unable to find a strong candidate.

Star-crossed lovers commit suicide

PEKING (AP) - Adam and Mao Mao were in love and wanted to marry. But he was an Arab student from South Yemen and she was a Chinese worker from Tianjin - star-crossed even before they met.

They never received permission to marry, despite two months of applications and entreaties to both their governments.

Adam Nasser was to have graduated Nov. 6, to have left for home on Nov. 18. Friends said he had vowed to come back and marry Mao Mao. She had said that she could not live without him and would kill herself on the day he left China.

Last Monday night, after laughing, joking and casually talking with a friend about their love problems, Adam, 25, and Mao Mao, 22, drank DDT in his bedroom at Qinghua University.

"Save him! Save him! Don't let him die!" Mao Mao screamed as she ran into the corridor to call his friends.

Within hours Adam and Mao Mao were dead, lovers in a country which extols brotherly Third World love but bitterly rejects love between Third World men and Chinese women.

Their double suicide is under investigation, but campus police, university officials, the Peking Education Department and the Foreign Ministry all have refused comment.

The South Yemen Embassy said only, "Adam Nasser and his Chinese girlfriend drank poison in his room." Officials had no further comment.

Yemeni and Pakistani students at Qinghua University, however, provided details of the love affair.

Adam came to Qinghua University to study engineering five years ago. He was one of six South Yemeni students among 60 foreign students. All are from Third World countries and complain about loneliness and discrimination by the Chinese. They say they are virtually forbidden to smile at Chinese women.

Two years ago he met Mao Mao, a factory worker from Tianjin who was in Peking visiting relatives. Even his closest friends never knew her full name or background. They said she was a lively young woman who liked Western clothes, including blue jeans. She was attractive but not beautiful.

The friends called her "a good girl, fair and honorable," as they discussed the double suicide Thursday afternoon at the university.

They said she came from a middle-class family who knew about the romance. They emphasized there was nothing improper about their love.

Mostly, Adam's friends said, the two young people kept to themselves. They seldom displayed physical affection. To be seen together in public, even merely holding hands, would have invited the cruelest criticism, they said.

His friends said they had applied to both the Chinese government and the South Yemen Embassy for permission to wed. They were depressed at hearing no word from either, their friends said.

Marriages between Chinese and foreigners are sometimes impossible and almost always difficult to arrange, especially in such a case as Adam's and Mao Mao's. Foreign students at Qinghua University said the Chinese consider Third World men backward and uncivilized.

Moose-poaching, drug smuggling ring suspected

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) - A surge of moose poaching in Vermont and New Hampshire is believed to be connected to a drug smuggling ring, game and fish officials said today.

At least eight to 10 moose have been killed in the last two weeks in "the most bizarre thing we've ever encountered," said Charles Barry, New Hampshire's fish and game director.

"We have strong reason to believe that the people involved in this are also involved in drug trafficking, and some of these moose may actually be traded for illegal drugs," Barry said. He said the information came from an informant, but would not elaborate on the link between poaching and drugs. No arrests have been made.

Barry said moose meat sells for $5 per pound on the black market, making a large moose worth about $2,000.

Fish and game officials from the two states met Thursday night and decided to release what information they have in hopes that legal hunters will help patrol the woods, according to Barry. "Sportsmen, generally speaking, police their own ranks," said Barry. He also said police in both states have been notified.

Reagan news conference

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here are highlights of President-elect Ronald Reagan's nationally broadcast news conference Thursday:

U.S.-IRAN

— Reagan said it would be a mistake for Iranian leaders to await his inauguration in hopes of a better deal to free the American hostages. He said he would offer his help to President Carter in any way to win their release.

TRANSITION

— Reagan is organizing a bipartisan transition team and said there "could very well" be one or more Democratic members of the administration. He declined to speculate on appointments, including whether he might name Henry Kissinger as secretary of state.

U.S.-SOVIET

— Reagan said he planned no communications with the Soviet Union before his inauguration. He said he would do nothing to indicate the United States is disunited while President Carter is still in office.

ALLEN

— Reagan said Richard V. Allen has rejoined him after temporarily stepping aside as foreign policy adviser late in the campaign amid allegations of wrongdoing. He said a staff investigation of Allen had "...found no conflict of interest."

BAKER

— Reagan said he expects Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, a moderate and former rival of Reagan for the GOP presidential nomination primary season, to become majority leader of the Senate. "His position is solid," Reagan said.

BUSH

— Reagan promised a substantial role for Vice President-elect George Bush, saying Bush is a "valuable asset" whose skills will be put to use.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE

— Reagan named three prominent Democrats to his foreign policy advisory committee — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, former Sen. Richard Stone of Florida and Washington attorney Edward Bennett Williams. "I will work very hard to rebuild a bipartisan base for American foreign policy," he said.

ECONOMY

— Reagan said his first priority will be winning congressional approval of his economic proposals, including a 10 percent cut in tax rates.

ACCESS

— Reagan promised an open presidency, and said he will consider the views of all Americans, including fundamentalist Christian groups that helped him win the White House. Reagan also promised frequent news conferences, saying he views such exchanges as a vital part of "letting people know what's going on in government."

GOP PLATFORM

— He reiterated his support for the Republican Party platform, which calls for a federal anti-abortion amendment and opposes the Equal Rights Amendment.

PLO

— He said he still thinks the Palestine Liberation Organization is a terrorist group, saying the PLO's leaders were never elected by anyone. He said he would do whatever possible to assist peacemaking efforts in the Middle East.

"American imperialism" blasted in Soviet move

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union denounced "American imperialism" and warned it would give a "crushing rebuff to any aggressor" as it paraded its military might through snow-whipped Red Square today on the 63rd anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The ambassadors of the United States, most of its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Japan and China boycotted the parade, just as they did the May Day celebrations, to protest the Soviet military intervention against anti-communist Moslem rebels in neighboring Afghanistan.

Some 5,000 crack troops, backed by tanks, artillery and missiles in tight formation, moved through the brightly decorated square under the gaze of President Leonid I. Brezhnev, Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov and others who stood atop the Lenin Mausoleum in blustery 30-degree temperatures.

Ustinov, in full dress uniform, told the massed soldiers, sailors, airmen and commandos that "the forces of oppression, militarism and aggression and the actions of American imperialism and the aggressive NATO bloc oppose the peace-loving trend in international politics."

He said the world situation demands "constant vigilance and the strengthening of our defense potential," and that the "Soviet armed forces have everything necessary to give a crushing rebuff to any aggressor."

The military parade, an annual event, appeared to contain no major changes from last year. It involved about 220 vehicles and weaponry ranging from light, air-transportable infantry vehicles to multi-round rocket launchers and anti-aircraft and surface-to-surface missiles.

Textbook committee deletes material believed too vivid in "Terrorism"

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Textbook critics have urged deletion of material they claim makes fun of the American moon landing, dwells excessively on death and demonstrations and presents evolution as fact rather than theory.

"And if suicide, death and demonstrations aren't enough," Mrs. Sheila Haralson said Thursday, one text "concludes with an entire chapter on terrorism."

"What a way to end the school year," said Mrs. Haralson, a staffer for textbook critic Norma Gabler of Longview.

Dr. and Mrs. Monty Kester of Baytown criticized all seven proposed science books, including two alternates recommended by the State Textbook Committee.

On Saturday the State Board of Education board will approve as many as five textbooks each for several subjects, including basic reading, bilingual readers, science, psychology, sociology, graphic arts and business and trade.

The adoption of new textbooks is expected to cost $29.7 million. Kester scoffed at the phrase "mysteriously transformed" in one of the texts. "This is not a scientific term," he said.

"Death is a very sensitive and personal subject," she said. "Because children mature at different rates, it is impossible for a teacher to know if particular students will have emotional problems with this subject. We are especially concerned because these deaths concern close family members. The emphasis could be traumatic for students with recently deceased or very ill family members. We think these selections should be deleted."

She said an 8th-grade sociology book includes at least 13 pictures of persons "demonstrating, striking, etc."

Mrs. Haralson also described a chapter on suicide in the sociology text as "morbid and depressing."

"With the suicide rate already going up all over the nation, especially among young people, can we afford to subject them to this type of material?" she asked.

Affectionados line up for 'asaderos'

SAN ELIZARIO, Texas (AP) — Eugene Licon says his customers come from as far away as the East Coast, but sometimes he has to disappoint them.

"Persons come from New York and Chicago to buy as many 'asaderos' as I have. Most of the time I have to tell them I can't sell them more than 20 packages at one time," Licon said. "The governor of Chihuahua (Mexico) enjoys my asaderos so much that he had some sent to him while he was in Argentina."

So what are asaderos? They are light, stringy cheeses shaped like pancakes, and some people like to eat them so much they are willing to spend their Sundays standing in line, Licon says.

"Last Sunday the line was so long I was forced to sell only two packages per person so that some of my other customers would have some to buy," he said.

He realizes he could modernize his operation, install machines, and increase production. But he fears the quality of his handmade cheese would decline if he did.

"Making asadero cheese is a tradition with us. No one nowadays wants to go to the trouble of making it by hand. But for us it is still a matter of pride," Licon said. "If we enlarged the business it wouldn't be the same."

Most of his customers are people who queue up daily at his dairy in this West Texas community near El Paso, and Licon said rationing of the handmade delicacies is routine.

He uses milking machines on his dairy cows, but insists on using a generations-old recipe for asaderos handed down by his wife's grandmother. He said his is the only dairy in the Southwest that makes them by hand.

The method calls for mixing sweet milk with milk that has been soured with rennet, a substance found in the stomach of unweaned calves.

"If the combination is too sweet, the asaderos will come out too rubbery, and if it is too sour, they will turn a dark color," the fussy cheesemaker said.

The mixture is boiled for half an hour, churned, cooked some more and then rolled and flattened into tortilla-like shapes. Each flat, round slice must be made by hand while it is still hot.

Licon said other makers of asadero cheese began using shortcuts in the production about 20 years ago, and the quality slumped. At the same time his business increased so much that he had to build his herd of dairy cows up from five to 160 head.

Along with the extra business came a lot of hard work, Licon says he must rise at 4 a.m. every day to start milking his cows.

"We're open every day," he said. "Cows don't stop producing milk because it's Sunday."

Brownies observe Founder's Day

Pampa Brownie Troops No. 182 and No. 42 recently celebrated the birthday of the founder of Girl Scouting in the United States. Juliette Low was born Oct. 31, 1860 in Savannah, Ga. She established Girl Scouting in the United States in 1912 and later became instrumental in establishing the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts. She died in 1927. During World War II the government named a liberty ship for her, and in 1948, the United States government issued a postage stamp in her honor.

Both troops remembered Mrs. Low by reading the story of the founding of the Girl Scouts of America, by serving birthday cupcakes and by reviewing the Girl Scout Promise, the laws and the Brownie B's. Troop No. 42 had a candlelight promise and law ceremony. Both troops concluded their meetings by singing songs and playing games.

Troop No. 79 celebrated Mrs. Low's birthday Oct. 31. Girls interested in scouting should contact the Girl Scout office in Pampa.

Troop No. 182 is led by Margaret White and assisted by Brownie Mothers Pam Crockett, Mary Lou Lane, Cathy Burgess, Brenda Handley and Nancy Ruff. Troop No. 42 is led by Cynthia Bullington and Troop No. 79 is led by Karen Cook and assisted by Janet Langston and Jodi Pritchard.

DEAR ABBY

He's gay and will stay that way

DEAR ABBY: I've never seen a problem like mine in your column, but I hope you can advise me. I am in love with a man who by his own admission is a homosexual. He is a very fine person, and we think the world of each other. Abby, I have been in love with him for several years — I don't care if he is a homosexual. He would make a wonderful husband and companion.

Do you think he could ever change and forget about men if he really tried? Maybe I should tell you that he has never encouraged me in a romantic way — never kissed me or even held my hand. He has friends galore, but isn't interested in any particular man.

What are a homosexual's chances for changing? I won't give up unless I am certain it is absolutely hopeless. I can't stop thinking about him. I've never been in love like this before. Please help me.

IN LOVE IN JERSEY

DEAR IN LOVE: A homosexual's chances for changing his sexual preference are zero — unless he is very strongly motivated to change. From what you say, he appears to be perfectly satisfied the way he is. Do yourself (and him) a favor and give up.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman barber who styles and cuts men's hair in one of the better barber shops.

Abby, you wouldn't believe the number of men who come into this shop with wax in their ears. I've seen wax buildup so thick it's a wonder they can hear. I'm not talking about poor, ignorant people. My clients are intelligent, well-dressed and well-to-do or they couldn't pay the kind of money I charge for a haircut.

I don't have the nerve to tell them. If I did, I'd probably never see them again, and I don't want to lose any clients.

If you have a solution, please print it. I can't be the only barber with this problem.

ANONYMOUS, PLEASE

DEAR ANONYMOUS: Try this on those with the wax buildup: "I once had a client who thought he was going deaf. He went to an ear doctor who examined his ears, then performed a simple ear irrigation to

Nurses to be recruited

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — A recruitment campaign to persuade nurses to remain in the profession and to urge more young people to enter it is being launched by the Upjohn HealthCare Services based in Kalamazoo.

The 1981 campaign will include advertising, promotion and public-relations efforts for nurse recruiting and promoting the image of nursing; a public service TV film; an expanded employee-retention program and a new nursing-student scholarship fund.

"Of the nation's 1.4 million licensed nurses, only about 900,000 actually work in nursing," says Paula Wehrman, a registered nurse who is director of recruiting for UHCS, a nationwide organization with more than 60,000 part-time employees for home health care and institutional staffing assignments.

Fine Arts Association to host show

Richard Thompson, a Channing artist best known for his paintings and sculptures of Southwestern wildlife, will exhibit his works during the Pampa Fine Arts Association gallery show Nov. 9-11 at Lovett Memorial Library. Hours for the event are 2-5 p.m. Nov. 9 and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Nov. 10-11.

Born in Oklahoma, Thompson attended high school in Tulsa and has a bachelor's degree in art from West Texas State University. He was a commercial artist for several years before devoting his full attention to the depiction of Southwestern fauna.

A former Pampa resident, Thompson has had several exhibits in Pampa. He has exhibited his work all over the Panhandle and has had showings in San Antonio and Ft. Worth. He is affiliated with the James Haney gallery of Amarillo.

Frequent and accurate observation of his subject matter is revealed by the extraordinary quality of his work. Thompson's paintings and bronzes are found in collections throughout the Southwest.

The gallery show is free to the public.

THIS BRONZE sculpture, entitled "Nature Speedsters," is among the works of Richard Thompson that will be shown Nov. 9-11 at Lovett

Memorial Library. The free event will be from 2-5 p.m. Nov. 9 and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Nov. 10 and 11. (Staff photo by Deborah Hendrick)

Sprays offer protection

By KEVEN ANN WILLEY
Associated Press Writer
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — What are a 250-pound bouncer, the neighborhood mailman and a cocktail waitress likely to have in common?

If they are concerned about their personal safety, they may each carry a personal protection chemical spray unit.

Protective chemical spray devices have become increasingly popular among private citizens in recent years, said Phoenix patrolman D. L. Whitmore.

He said a bouncer concerned with subduing a rambunctious customer, a mailman who had had a bad experience with a "Rover" or two, and a cocktail waitress who was uneasy about walking to and from her car at night were all potential buyers of personal chemical spray units.

Chemical sprays come in different shapes and sizes and have a variety of intended uses. Local distributing companies and uniform stores report the most popular type has been the 4-inch mini-canister of a pressurized gas or chemical. The mini-unit conveniently snaps onto a keychain or hooks to a jogger's shorts.

Except for being smaller, the mini-unit is similar to the units law enforcement officials carry — and the effects on the victim are much the same, said Whitmore.

Richard Hays, salesman at a local uniform store and a former Scottsdale police officer, said that in his police training he was required to apply a bit of the chemical on himself to become familiar with its effects.

Those effects generally include immediate tearing and involuntary closing of the eyes, stinging or burning sensations of the skin, salivation and nasal discharge, headache, nausea and sometimes diarrhea, he said.

The effects usually last from 20 to 60 minutes, depending on the person, said Hays. But the nausea and headache may linger.

"That's usually plenty of time to alter the focus of attention of the situation and get away to alert the police or a neighbor," he said.

People of all walks of life are becoming more aware of personal safety, said C.J. "Larry" Bedome, general manager of a local outlet for a safety products distributor.

Pressurized gas devices are often the most convenient non-lethal form of protection for private citizens, he said. The mini-units, which have enough chemical for about 50 shots, usually retain potency for several years.

Hays added that although some uniform stores which sell the mini-units also carry a variety of other safety devices, such as bully sticks, high-pitched whistles and handguns, few members of the public seem willing to commit themselves to the more expensive and dangerous forms of self-defense.

Although the devices are easy to purchase and easy to use, salesmen and officers alike urged that private citizens be aware of what types of effects will be produced by the sprays.

Bedome and Hays stressed the importance of being familiar with the weapon.

"Just carrying it in your purse doesn't make you immune from attack," said Hays.

They suggest that purchasers find a secluded, open-air spot and fire a couple of practice shots to get the feel of the device. "It's important to know what the weapon feels like and how it reacts so the owner's use of it in a surprise situation becomes instinctive," said Hays.

And some may forget that the chemical agents are just as effective used in reverse, Hays added.

Bedome also stressed that would-be buyers should first check local regulations to be sure possession of the unit does not violate state law.

Banana dollars can be main course, dessert

BANANA DOLLARS
We developed these to offer as an accompaniment to a main course.

- 1-3rd cup unbleached all-purpose flour
  - 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
  - Pinch of salt
  - 1 tablespoon sugar
  - 2 large (each about 8 inches long) ripe bananas
  - 1 large egg
  - 1 tablespoon milk
- On wax paper or in a small bowl stir together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Slice bananas into the medium bowl of an electric mixer; at high speed beat until finely mashed; beat in egg and milk to blend. Add flour mixture and stir until moistened. Onto an electric griddle preheated to 400 degrees, drop banana mixture, well apart, by rounded tablespoonfuls. Bake until browned on undersides; turn and brown top sides. Keep hot in a warm oven until all the "dollars" are baked. Makes 24. (These reheated well, covered, in a microwave oven.)

A VERSATILE artist, Richard Thompson will display both paintings and sculptures during a gallery show sponsored by the Pampa Fine Arts Association Nov. 9-11. The Channing artist is best known for his depiction of Southwestern wildlife. (Staff photo by Deborah Hendrick)

Novel is hard to believe

THE SECOND LADY. By Irving Wallace. New American Library. 372 Pages. $11.95.

Plots that are hard to believe have never seemed to daunt Irving Wallace, and his latest novel runs true to form.

It revolves around two beautiful women, the wife of America's president and a little-known Russian actress.

When they learn the First Lady has a double who is a Soviet citizen living on their own soil, Russian intelligence officials become fascinated. They immediately begin to ponder how they can put the situation to their own advantage.

Finally, the KGB chief hits upon the idea of training the actress to become a true duplicate of the president's wife, not only in appearance, but in speech, mannerisms, everything.

After three years of training, the schemers are ready. They decide to stage their big coup: to put the actress in place of the First Lady at a crucial 10-day U.S.-Soviet conference in London.

Of course this means kidnapping the real First Lady, and holding her prisoner behind the walls of the Kremlin, a hazardous venture to say the least.

All this makes fascinating reading, but if you put the book aside for a few minutes, you realize that it is preposterous to imagine that an obscure actress from the Russian provinces could replace America's most famous woman and deceive not only her husband but her father, sister and a host of lifelong friends.

This doesn't seem to deter the Russians until someone brings up a delicate but explosive point. Can the actress fool the president in the intimacy of the bedroom? Here again the resourceful Russians come up with a solution, although it seems a dubious one at best.

The climactic ending should come as a surprise to everyone. All in all it is a swift-paced, highly readable book and when you have finished, things like credibility don't seem so important after all.

Silent Auction slated

SILENT AUCTION PLANNED- Appreciating one of the many items to be displayed in the First United Methodist Silent Auction are Mrs. Anne Lemons (left) and Mrs. Beth Karr of the First United Methodist Church. The Silent Auction will be held Wednesday, Nov. 12, at 6 p.m. in Lively Hall. Proceeds from the Bazaar sponsored by the United Methodist Women will go to Pampa's Meals on Wheels. The annual Harvest Dinner hosted by Church Women's groups will include turkey and trimmings and will begin at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the church office. Following the dinner a presentation on Methodist missions will be given by Dr. Howard T. Briton. Local artists donating to the bazaar include Richard Steele, Peggy Palmitier, Karen Cory, Lloyd Harvey.

"Thou wilt shew me the path of life:
in thy presence is fulness of joy..."

PSALM 16-11

HERE IS THE PATH

LONGING

To every child there comes a time when they begin to wonder . . . Where did I come from? Who made the trees? Who made the mountains? EVERYONE has a desire to know their creator.

"O GOD, thou art my God; early will I seek thee: my soul thirsteth for thee..."

This longing for knowledge of God should be satisfied at an early age.

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

Plan NOW to attend church with your family.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Private economists say inflation still 10 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices jumped 0.8 percent in October, equal to a 10.6 percent compound annual rate, and the nation's unemployment figure edged up one notch to 7.6 percent, the government reported today.

October's jump in the Producer Price Index contrasted markedly with September's 0.2 percent dip. The increase was fueled by rising automobile prices and significant boost in the cost of sugar, meat and other foods, the Labor Department said.

For the first 10 months of 1980, wholesale, or producer, prices have accelerated at a 12.4 percent annual pace, a rate very similar to the double digit mark of 1979 and further evidence of inflation's persistent nature despite the recent recession.

Wholesale prices had risen 1.5 percent in both July and August.

Unemployment, meanwhile, inched up 0.1 of a percentage point from 7.5 percent in September, the department said. But behind the nearly stable figure, there was significant movement. The unemployment rate for adult men declined over the month to 6.4 percent, while the rate for women rose sharply to 6.8 percent.

Unemployment among teen-agers rose to 18.4 percent last month following a decline in September.

The number of unemployed workers, at about 8 million, returned to its August level following a September dip. Joblessness was up 1.7 million from October 1979, with adult men accounting for about 1 million of the over-the-year increase, the department said. The factory work week rose, reflecting the nation's apparent emergence from the sharp but short recession that began late last winter.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation at the wholesale level appears to be running once more at a 10 percent clip, private economists say.

But the unemployment rate, several of them add, should hold to the 7.5 percent pace it registered in September, or even dip a little.

The government was releasing data on October wholesale price activity and unemployment today — three days after President Carter lost to Ronald Reagan in a landslide of voter frustration pinned heavily on the nation's severe economic problems.

Wholesale prices in September slipped 0.2 percent, a statistical quirk ascribed to big end-of-the-model-year discounts on car and truck prices.

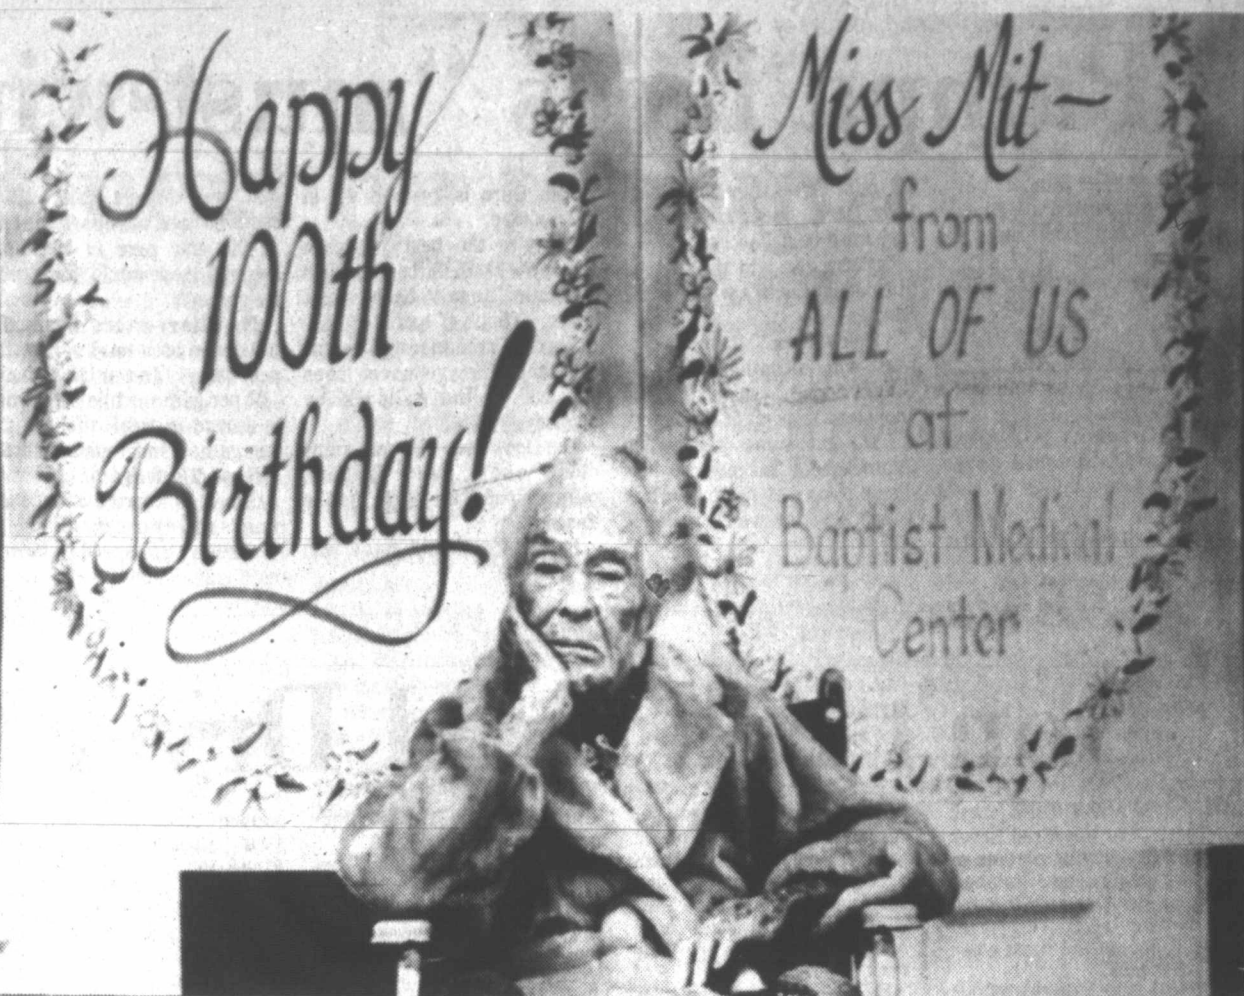

But the October figures were likely to reflect the significant jumps in auto prices that have come with the introduction of 1981 models.

"Auto prices (will) lead the...index back to the double-digit range," said Donald Ratajczak, whose monthly survey conducted for Georgia State University was released in advance of today's announcements.

He also predicted sharp price increases for metals, machinery and food, specifically sugar, flour and some dairy products.

But unemployment news may prove somewhat better, several economists say.

Oklahoma senator expresses views

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — U.S. Sen.-Elect Don Nickles will be the youngest Oklahoman ever to serve in the Senate, and he also could be the most conservative one.

The 31-year-old Republican was an obscure freshman state senator from Ponca City when he decided to run for the Senate seat being vacated by the retirement of fellow Republican Henry Bellmon.

Now, following his surprisingly easy victory over Democrat Andy Coats in Tuesday's general election, he is the state's new conservative political star.

Nickles said his election was part of a national reawakening of the conservative cause. Noting the defeat of several liberal Democratic senators that allowed the Republicans to take control of the Senate, he said, "There is now a conservative voice in the U.S. Senate."

"Ronald Reagan will make an outstanding president," Nickles said. "This country has taken a big step in the right direction."

Nickles leaves no doubt that he will be right in step with the new conservative wave in the Senate.

The first two bills he plans to introduce, he said, would "repal the unfair windfall profits tax and eliminate the inheritance tax. They both are unfair confiscations of property and are contrary to the principles of the free enterprise system."

Asked which senators he feels he is most closely attuned to philosophically, Nickles mentioned Bob Dole of Kansas, Fohn Tower of Texas, Jesse Helms of North Carolina and Strom

Thurmond of South Carolina. He said he also has a good opinion of Howard Baker of Tennessee, "but I don't agree with him on everything."

He said he won't make a decision on whether to support Baker or some more conservative Republican senator for majority leader until he has time to talk to all the candidates.

Nickles said he believes he is "very closely attuned to the conservative philosophy of Dewey Bartlett," a former Oklahoma senator and governor who died last year.

When newsmen noted that Bartlett favored the ERA and the Arkansas River Navigation Project, two issues that Nickles opposes, he said he would have some differences with any other politician.

LICENSE SUSPENSION RULING

AUSTIN (AP) — A driver convicted of involuntary manslaughter does not automatically lose his license, Attorney General Mark White held Thursday.

"It is important to note, however, that although involuntary manslaughter does not result in automatic suspension of a driver's license, it may well result in discretionary suspension of the license," White said.

He said, for example, a license may be suspended upon proof that a driver "has been responsible for an accident resulting in death or serious personal injury, is an habitual reckless or negligent driver, or is incapable of driving a motor vehicle."

White's opinion was requested by Col. James Adams, director of the Department of Public Safety.

SBA DISASTER COUNTIES ANNOUNCED

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday the Small Business Administration has declared Brazoria, Calhoun, Hays, Refugio, Travis and Webb counties as disaster areas as a result of damage caused by Hurricane Allen.

The declaration allows individuals and businesses adversely affected by the high winds, rain, flooding and tornadoes to apply for low-interest emergency loans through the federal SBA.

RRC REPORTS DISCOVERIES

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas operators reported 31 oil discoveries and 48 gas discoveries during the last half of October, the Railroad Commission said Thursday.

Through the first 10 months of the year, the commission said, operators have reported 605 oil discoveries, an increase of 175 from the same period last year, and 1,197 gas discoveries, an increase of 201 from last year.

The new oil discoveries included eight in North Texas, seven in West Central Texas, four each in Southeast Texas and East Central Texas, three in South Texas, two in the Midland area and one each in the Panhandle and San Antonio and Refugio areas.

The new gas discoveries included 19 in South Texas, nine in the Refugio area, six each in West Central Texas and Southeast Texas, two each in the Panhandle and San Antonio and Midland areas and one each in North Texas and the San Angelo area.

In the Oct. 16-31 period, the commission said, operators reported 225 dry holes.

Pampa faces "must-win" situation

Pampa head coach Larry Gilbert compares Palo Duro to a time bomb. The fuse just hasn't lit yet.

"I just hope they don't explode on us," Gilbert said, referring to tonight's crucial meeting with the Dons at 7:30 p.m. at Dick Bivins Stadium in Amarillo.

The Harvesters, 4-4 overall and 1-1 in District 3-5A action, must have two things go right for them tonight to have a chance at making the bi-district playoffs. First, they must beat Palo Duro. Second, Amarillo High must beat Tascosa.

Tascosa can win the district title outright with a win over the Sandies.

"There's no doubt it's a must-win situation for us," Gilbert added. "Our young men know how important this game is. We got some help when Caprock beat Tascosa, so now it's up to us and Amarillo High to see how far we're going to go."

Palo Duro is 2-6 and 0-2 in district play.

"They're the best 2-6 team I've seen," said Gilbert. "Their schedule hasn't been weak either. They've had to play Lubbock Coronado and teams like that. They've never been run out of the ballpark by anybody."

The Dons have also lost some close ones, said Gilbert, pointing out their 27-21 loss to Tascosa.

Palo Duro should have won that one, Gilbert said. "If a receiver hadn't dropped the ball in the end zone in the final seconds they would have won the game."

The Harvesters lead the district in both total yards (228 per game) and total defense (258 per game) while Palo Duro is second in total offense (221 per game) and fourth in total defense (274 per game).

Gilbert is worried about Palo Duro's speedy backfield.

"They've got speed to burn," he pointed out. Anthony Smith has 4.6 speed and Tim McCullough is just as dangerous. C.M. Martin gives them a good straight ahead running game."

The Dons also have the district's top receiver in Troy Smith, who has caught 28 passes for 492 yards.

"He's got a lot of speed, so they also use him on punt and kick returns and slotback reverses."

Pampa receiver Steve

McDougall is second behind Smith in district receptions with 28 catches for 354 yards. He's going for his third consecutive receiving title.

"Palo Duro will be hanging loose with nothing to lose," Gilbert said. "I look for it to be a wide-open game, something the spectators will enjoy."

Gilbert said the Harvesters would have to slow the Palo Duro offense down to win the game.

Don't call Fred Dryer too skinny!

By Murray Olderman

There is no way Fred Dryer should be playing defensive end in the National Football League. His neck can fit into a ready-made shirt. They don't have to let out the waist when he buys jeans.

He's lean enough that they'd pass him through a Salvation Army kitchen line. You get the idea. At 220 pounds, Fred's almost skinny because they're spread over 6-feet, 6-inches.

The only brutish thing about him is the tattoo of a panther head on his upper right arm, and that's fading. He's had it since he was 17 years old — "and I was drunk and quite stupid at the time."

Well, the 1980 season makes an even dozen for him in the NFL, and he started the year with a streak of 158 regular-season games and the distinction of never having missed a moment of action because of injury in as physical a job as you're going to get in sports.

Fred has been holding down right defensive end for the Los Angeles Rams since 1972 after spending his first three years as a pro with the New York Giants.

He doesn't get a whole lot of attention. The perennial All-Pro on the defensive line of the Rams is Jack Youngblood on the left.

Yet coping every week with offensive tackles who are generally 50 pounds — and up to 100 pounds — heavier, Fred has been a fixture on a team that has won seven straight division titles. The Rams went to the Super Bowl last January.

Dryer attributes it all to a single word. Technique.

Up in the stands, the battle in the pits of pro football looks like a tug of war where sheer muscle and bulk and strength should determine the victor. Dryer in action negates the image.

"There's a million guys," he scoffs, "on the waiver rosters every summer who are 260, 270 pounds. They've got all the physical talent in the world. Why are they cut? They don't know how to apply it."

It hasn't been easy for Dryer. He's had to fight the stigma of having people tell him every time he has been blocked out of a play, it's because he doesn't weigh enough. The legend persisted for a long time that you could run right at him. And over him. You don't hear it so much any more.

"Because," answers Fred, "they don't do it any more. I have technique." That significant word again.

What, for a defensive lineman who's trying to run over, under or around a blocker, does technique consist of?

"Alignment, body position, proper hand placement on your opponent. It's a conscious thing. You understand where you are on the field. You look at the other guy's face. Body language tells you a great deal about what's going to happen."

What do you mean by body language?

"He might have a lot of his weight back. He might be leaning or tipping. As the game goes on, his first loyalties are to accomplish his assignments, getting to where he has to go. To do that, he may give up the fact he's tipping his opponent. He's doing something physically to correct himself to get to that assignment — backing up a little to show pass, maybe leaning a little to show trap. It all depends on how you read him."

"At the line of scrimmage, I look the offensive tackle, or the tight end if he comes my way, right in the face. Somewhere between the time he gets out of the huddle and down in his stance, he'll look me square in the eye. That'll tell me something — that he's possibly going to block me. In certain formations, certain positions on the field, I get a good feel by body language what the play is going to be. You can really do it without guessing."

And yet to the layman, knowing all that, it still seems that Dryer's strength ultimately will be matched against that of the man trying to block him. That's where he has to offset the size disadvantage, when he's up against someone like Art Shell, the All-Pro left tackle of the Oakland Raiders who weighs 300 pounds-plus — with the same quickness as Dryer and the same experience.

"He still has to execute," argues Dryer. "I've had some good games against Art, and some so-so games. I don't think he's ever dominated me. He's destroyed me on a couple of plays, but it's not because I don't have weight."

Exactly how does Dryer cope with someone like Shell? "Through leverage and body placement. When the ball is snapped, you're literally on his shoulder. Put your face mask on his face mask and drive your hands simultaneously to control him, to keep him off you."

"You literally wedge yourself to where you've broken his immediate thrust off the line. His head comes up... his legs stop. You control the line of scrimmage, you look for the ball and you throw the guy away to get to the ball."

That's when Fred is thankful nature provided him with a height of 6-feet, 6-inches.

"I couldn't have played as long as I have," he admits, "if I were 6-4. The extra height gives me leverage and sight, a field of vision."

Old black athletes hold no grudges

By WILL GRIMSLEY AP Special Correspondent

They're a gaunled, caloused, tough-skinned bunch — these old black ball players barred by bias from exhibiting their skills in the major leagues; but they don't have a bitter bone in their creaky bodies.

"It was fun for us," said Judy Johnson, an 80-year third base wizard of the 1920s and 1930s often compared with Brooks Robinson. "We had it rough but I'm not sorry. I don't envy players getting those big salaries today. I just wish they would play with more enthusiasm.

"They drag up to bat with gloves on both hands and, if they walk or get a hit, they change to sliding gloves on base. Never saw anything like it."

"Yeah," added Dick Seay, a graying stringbean of a guy who played second base for the old Newark Eagles. "If they get a hangnail, they take off for a week. Us? We had to play if both ankles were swelled up like balloons."

"No luxuries when we played," said Ray Dandridge, a bandy-legged little infielder who played 24 years in the Negro Leagues. "We rode buses instead of airplanes first class. We had to eat on the buses 'cause they wouldn't let us in restaurants."

"We played 200 and 250 games a year year around, going to Mexico and Cuba in the wintertime — sometimes three games a day, a doubleheader in one afternoon and a night game somewhere in the sticks. Our pay? Flat rate, $2 a game."

"But we loved it. Money meant nothing to us. Today ball players are entertainers. Not us. We were always out to win."

These are just a trio of the scores of a "forgotten generation" who may be resurrected by a modest project in Ashland, Ky., called the national Negro Baseball Hall of History.

A drive was launched Thursday in New York for $3 million to establish a museum which will help perpetuate the contributions to baseball of all those players of the Negro American and National Leagues who were deprived of a shot in the majors because of the color of their skins.

The State of Kentucky has donated a 10,800 square foot site and $750,000 for a building in Ashland's American Heritage Park.

"I wish Roy Campanella could have been here," said Monte Irvin, another black Hall of Famer who is an aide to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Rangers get baseball baby

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A woman who dumped her baby in the Texas Ranger's office, frustrated by her paternity suit against a Ranger player, says team officials made the player change his mind about accepting custody of the boy.

The woman, who has asked not to be identified, said Thursday that she and shortstop Nelson Norman agreed he would take custody of the child after his birth, but that club attorneys dissuaded him.

Ranger officials have denied her charges as "absolutely erroneous," saying that involving themselves in a paternity suit would be a conflict of interest.

However, Ranger attorneys said they did offer to recommend an attorney to Nelson.

The 8-month-old boy was abandoned in the baseball's teams offices by the woman who claimed the infant was Norman's illegitimate son. She sat the child on a couch, announced her intention of abandoning it and left.

The woman's attorney, Steve Porter of Dallas, said her actions were the result of her frustration "because Nelson is in the Dominican Republic and she is here and it's hard for the proceedings to move along."

Nelson resides in the Dominican Republic and plays winter baseball there during the major leagues' off-season.

Gerald Pruitt, an attorney for the player, confirmed a paternity suit had been filed but said the player has denied the woman's claim.

"The gist of it is that the child is not (the player's)," said Pruitt. "That's what we told her and what we told her attorney."

For three hours Wednesday afternoon, Eddie Robinson's role as vice president of the Texas Rangers gave way to that of baby-sitter, until Robinson was able to convince the baby's mother to come get the child.

Robinson said he immediately asked his wife to pinch-hit.

"My wife, Betty, came here and, along with one of the secretaries, helped to console him," said Robinson. "We had to walk him and give him a bottle but he generally was well-behaved. It did kind of blow the afternoon's work."

Robinson said he persuaded the woman by telephone to come reclaim the baby boy.

Norton in shape

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Former World Boxing Council champion Ken Norton says he's in better shape than ever for tonight's bout with undefeated heavyweight Randy Cobb, a young Texan with a salty vocabulary and penchant for busting jaws.

Norton trimmed off 35 pounds for his first bout in 16 months. He weighed in Thursday at 218 pounds and Cobb was at 226-1/2.

Norton, 35, says he is emerging from retirement because he has "a lot to prove" against the feisty 23-year-old in a match billed as "The Battle of the Jawbreakers."

His power on the wane in the late 1970s, Norton lost the WBC heavyweight crown to current champ Larry Holmes in 1978, then was knocked out by Earnie Shavers in the first round of a March 23, 1979 fight.

Cobb cracked Shavers' jaw in two places in his last fight Aug. 2 and has collected 16 knockouts in 17 straight victories.

"Randy is a very good fighter," Norton admitted.

College grid roundup

Who's next on the upset list?

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

A betting man would have to say there won't be much of an encore when the nation's college football teams go at it again Saturday, but then many a betting man didn't collect last week on what were supposed to be some sure things.

But, in the wake of Mississippi State's shocking upset of Alabama, Arizona's stunning victory over UCLA and San Jose State's surprising defeat of Baylor, one can't help but ask who's next?

Perhaps with that thought in mind Southern California Coach John Robinson said he didn't intend to see his fourth-ranked Trojans join the latest trend, which this week includes the smoldering ruins of four Top Ten teams. In some cases their national championship aspirations went up in flames.

"We've never lost a payback game, and this is in that category," said Robinson of the Trojans' meeting with Stanford. Southern Cal narrowly lost the national title last season despite finishing with an 11-0-1 record. That blemish was a 21-21 tie with Stanford, something USC would like to avenge in its regionally televised meeting with the Cardinals at Stanford Stadium. Elsewhere in games involving Top Ten teams, second-ranked Georgia meets 20th-ranked Florida in their annual scrap at the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla., third-ranked Florida State hosts Virginia Tech, No. 5 Nebraska entertains Kansas State, sixth-ranked Alabama hosts LSU, No. 7 Ohio State entertains Illinois, eighth-ranked UCLA hosts Oregon, No. 9 Pitt entertains Louisville and 10th-ranked Penn State hosts North Carolina State.

The revenge factor and national hopes are all the incentive USC has this year because the Trojans are one of five Pac-10 teams eliminated from the conference race and the Rose Bowl picture for various rules violations. A victory by the Trojans, 6-0-1, would eliminate the Cardinals, 6-3 and 3-2 in the Pac-10, from the Rose Bowl picture.

USC's incentive may be good press for the game, but Stanford Coach Paul Wiggins isn't even considering it in his preparations for the game. All he can see is what he calls "the best defense USC has ever had."

Stanford quarterback John Elway is hot, having thrown 11 touchdown passes the last two weeks in Cardinal routs of Washington State and Oregon State. But Wiggins is quick to point out that those teams don't match up to USC.

"The real test will be this week," he said. The Trojan defense, not likely to permit a damaging aerial circus by Elway, has surrendered just 238 yards per game.

And then there is the USC offense, led by tailback Marcus Allen, the nation's third-leading rusher with 1,080 yards. He will be going against a Stanford defense that ranks ninth in the Pac-10, giving up 414 yards per game.

Clearly, those trends must be reversed if Stanford is to win.

Bullets set field goal mark

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Bullets set an all-time record Thursday night, sinking 64 percent of their shots en route to a 116-95 romp over the Dallas Mavericks.

And star forward Elvin Hayes says he knows why the Bullets are suddenly clicking.

"When we take the ball inside, it opens up everything else," said Hayes after the victory — the Bullets' second in a row. "Once their guards started sagging in on us, our guards were getting the wide-open shots."

"We're starting to run our offense right," added Hayes, who sank 10 of 17 from the floor and finished with a game-high 26 points. He also pulled down 12 rebounds.

Other Bullets had hot hands. Rookie Wes Matthews sank 10 of 12 shots and Kevin Grevey, nine of 15, to finish with 24 and 19 points respectively. And Wes Unseld made eight of nine shots, hauled down 10 rebounds and scored a season-high of 17 points.

Grevey got 13 of his points in a third-period surge in which the Bullets broke open what had been a close game. The Bullets outscored the Mavericks 38-23 to take an 88-67 lead into the final period.

The loss was not a very hearty welcome for Dallas Coach Dick Motta, who left his post with the Bullets at the end of last season after leading the team to the World Championship in 1978.

Though Motta was disappointed in the game — the seventh straight loss for the Mavericks — Bullets Coach Gene Shue had the opposite reaction.

"We've had two very good games in a row," Shue said, referring to the Bullets blow-out over Atlanta Tuesday night. "Elvin Hayes is really playing well and so is Wes Unseld."

The Bullets made a deal with the Mavericks before the game, giving up a future draft choice in exchange for guard Austin Carr. John Williamson was placed on the injured list to make room for Carr, who finished with seven points.

NFL predictions

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

When the Pro Picker chews on chalk, he winds up gagging, so this week, let's look for some upsets.

Among the chart's underdogs are three teams who share or hold first place — Detroit, Cleveland and New England. Playing it boldly, the Picker likes that trio and two others, St. Louis and Kansas City, for Sunday upsets.

Last week's 11-3 straight up (5-9 with the points) left the season's log at 72-52-1 for those of you who care only about winners and losers, and 48-77 if you're silly enough to be concerned with margins of victory.

The picks:
Cardinals 24, Falcons 21

Sorry, but we're still not convinced about Atlanta. St. Louis almost knocked off Dallas last week and can be tough at home. Atlanta favored by 2 points.

Bills 30, Jets 14

The Jets are in disarray, limping with a load of injuries. Buffalo in a dogfight in the AFC East, can't let up now. Buffalo favored by 3½.

Raiders 20, Bengals 10

Jim Plunkett is the comeback of the year. He's got the Raiders tied for the AFC West lead and rolling. Oakland favored by 6½.

Browns 27, Colts 20

Cleveland is convinced this will be its year, at last. The letdown could have come last week against the Bears. It didn't, and maybe it won't. Baltimore favored by 3½.

Cowboys 24, Giants 7

Speaking of limping, look at the Giants. Blue Cross could cancel coverage if the injured reserve list gets any longer. Dallas favored by 10.

Chargers 24, Broncos 14

Denver's secondary has undergone some position shuffling because of injuries. That's music to Dan Fouts' ears. San Diego favored by 8½.

Lions 17, Vikings 14

A chance for Detroit to certify its claim as the best in the NFC Central. Minnesota favored by 1½.

Chiefs 24, Seahawks 14

Everybody knows Seattle gets claustrophobia in the Kingdome where the Seahawks have yet to win this season. Kansas City keeps the streak intact. Seattle favored by 3.

Rams 35, Dolphins 14

Vince Ferragamo tied a Los Angeles club record with five touchdown passes last week when the Rams gained 486 yards. Los Angeles favored by 10.

Eagles 30, Saints 14

Philadelphia has the NFL's best record with 8-1. New Orleans has the NFL's worst record, 0-9. Who do you think will win? Philadelphia favored by 9½.

Steelers 20, Bucs 13

No more fooling around for Pittsburgh. Injuries or not, the season is reaching its serious stage. Pittsburgh favored by 6.

Packers 21, 49ers 19

Green Bay is showing signs of life. Just ask the Steelers. Green Bay favored by 4.

Bears 20, Redskins 7

Two teams going nowhere in a hurry. Home team gets an edge. Chicago favored by 3½.

Patriots 24, Oilers 20

A Monday night goodie. If it can control Earl Campbell, the rest will fall into place for New England.

BORN TO RUN FARTHER ON A GALLON OF GAS THAN ANY OTHER CAR.

THE VERY NEW TOYOTA STARLET.

The 1981 Toyota Starlet just may be the first small wonder of the world. Because Starlet represents the culmination of years and years of planning, honing and refining. Born small, Starlet is an automobile capable of solving tomorrow's big problems.

Born small to deliver more miles per gallon of gas than any other car.

The new Toyota Starlet is the highest gasoline mileage car in America.

Starlet... a small wonder. According to the latest EPA mileage figures, Starlet goes farther on a gallon of gas than any other car you can buy. Rated at 39 EPA Estimated MPG, 54 EPA Estimated Highway MPG.*

Helping to squeeze all those miles out of every single gallon are such standard features as a Performance proven in races and rallies around the world. With millions of passenger-driven miles, the Starlet's power plant could be the most reliable, most dependable Toyota engine ever.

The 1981 Toyota Starlet. The newest, smallest, most wonderful Toyota of all. And maybe, the first small wonder of the world.

merely 1.3 liter engine, an ultra smooth 5-speed manual over-drive transmission, incredibly efficient gear ratios, electronic ignition system and steel-belted radial tires.

Born small and designed to help beat tomorrow's higher maintenance costs.

The new Starlet is designed and built from Toyota's most proven parts and technology.

*Remember: Compare this EPA estimate to the EPA Estimated MPG of other gasoline-powered cars with manual transmissions. You may get different mileage depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions and trip length. Actual highway mileage will probably be less than the EPA Highway Estimate.

Nigh says nation is conservative

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. George Nigh says Tuesday's election was a good indication that Oklahoma is still a very conservative state, and that the nation is on a more conservative course.

The Democratic governor said Ronald Reagan's landslide victory over President Carter and the Republican gains that gave the GOP control of the Senate for the first time in a quarter-century were ample evidence of unhappiness with the Carter administration.

"It was evidence of a move by the country (to) a conservative mood," Nigh said. "It also showed that the American people were saying they weren't happy with President Carter's leadership."

Nigh, who described himself as "a moderate-conservative," said he is sorry that Carter lost, but feels Reagan is to be congratulated on his "great victory."

"Jimmy Carter is a better person than politician," Nigh said. "I have a great deal of respect for him as a person."

Reagan defeated Carter by about 270,000 votes in Oklahoma, carrying 58 of the state's 77 counties and whipping the president in many counties that normally are considered Democratic strongholds.

With almost all the near record 1.1 million votes counted, Reagan had 658,115 votes to 389,001 for Carter. It was the second largest victory margin for a Republican presidential candidate in Oklahoma, ranking behind only the 500,000-vote defeat Richard Nixon handed George McGovern in 1972.

The Reagan landslide also swept in a Republican U.S. senator, allowing Don Nickles, a 31-year-old freshman state senator from Ponca City, to defeat Democrat Andy Coats.

Nickles will succeed fellow Republican Sen. Henry Bellmon, who retired after serving two terms. Coats was the early favorite in the race, but Nickles carried 40 counties en route to an easy victory.

The latest totals showed Nickles with 547,576 votes, and Coats with 457,733.

"Nickles was able to hold onto Reagan's coattails, which he certainly should have done," Nigh said, adding that the Moral Majority, a coalition of conservative fundamentalist church groups, also sided the Nickles' cause.

"Oklahoma is a very conservative state," Nigh said, but he said the Democrats have as good a chance as the Republicans to take advantage of the conservative trend.

The retirement of veteran Democratic U.S. Rep. Tom Steed of Shawnee gave the Republicans a chance to pick up a seat in the 4th District, but Dave McCurdy, 30, a Norman attorney, held it for the Democrats, narrowly defeating Howard Rutledge, a Norman Republican.

Iran to honor its debts

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's central bank director says his nation will honor its financial obligations and repay between $1 billion and $2 billion in loans from the United States and other Western nations.

He also said the United States owes Iran as much as $2.5 billion. He said there were unpaid oil debts and apparently referred as well to unfulfilled contracts for military equipment.

Ali Reza Nobari, a 32-year-old U.S.-educated economist, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview late Wednesday night that escrow accounts could be set up in a neutral country such as Algeria so both Iran and the United States could be assured of settling claims.

Nobari's statements were seen as a positive sign that the tangle of claims and counterclaims resulting from a U.S. freeze on Iranian assets could be resolved.

Iran is demanding a lifting of the freeze imposed by President Carter in November 1979 in the wake of the seizure of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran as one of four conditions for releasing the 52 American hostages.

"We would meet all our legitimate obligations," said Nobari, who was reached at his office in Tehran from Beirut. "We have always declared that. We have always said we pay our debts."

Nobari estimated Iran had outstanding loans amounting to $800 million in the United States and an additional $1 billion or so in loans from Europe and Japan.

Popeye's antagonist

Paul Smith has bigger-than-life role

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — "Popeye" is a cartoon, and the movie version has a lot of cartoon elements about it. So, naturally, the leading characters are played by actors who are, in one way or another, larger than life.

Robin Williams plays Popeye, and Robin — Mork of ABC's "Mork and Mindy" — is a walking caricature. Shelley Duvall is Olive Oyl, and she is another unreal person. And, finally, there is Paul L. Smith, who is Bluto, and Smith is the genuine article.

el, starring in the coming epic, "Masada."

But Paul (and Eva, his constant companion) were in Malta for six months, shooting "Popeye." There isn't much to do on Malta. Yet, even though Smith would frequently have large chunks of time off, he couldn't leave the island.

Altman likes to have all his cast together throughout the shooting, even if they aren't working. Smith says it was hard on all of them, particularly on Ray Walston, who played Popeye's father, and often had a month with nothing to do.

Smith tried to make Bluto a sympathetic heavy.

"He's not really mean," says Smith. "He just thinks that everybody expects him to be mean. He's the kind of person who spends his day being mean, then goes home and sucks his thumb when he goes to bed."

As a veteran of action pictures — Smith starred in quite a few in Italy — Smith was used by Altman to help stage the action sequences. At Smith's recommendation Altman hired the stunt team Smith had used in Italy.

Smith says Robin Williams, who was making his first movie, was understandably nervous, and that nervousness showed.

"We have a big fight at the end, in a cave," Smith says, "and I choreographed it very carefully. I was throwing a punch at Robin and he was to go into a back flip when my fist was about here." (He gestured to indicate the level of his shoulder.)

But, when it was shot, Williams decided he had to bend forward a little, to give himself a little added spring for his back flip. That slight forward motion took his face into a collision course with Smith's huge fist.

"I tried to hold it, to pull back," Smith says, "but it was impossible. But I held back enough so I only clipped the tip of his nose. A fraction of an inch more and they would have had to shut down the film for a couple of months — his nose would have been smeared all over his face."

"Altman bawled me out, but Robin said it was his fault, which was very nice of him."

Smith thinks "Popeye" is going to be a good film; certainly, it will be good for him and his career. The American audience first met Smith when he played the sadistic Turkish guard in "Midnight Express," and he has since played a series of heavies in movies and television.

In this one he has a chance to show that there is more to him than just his impressive size and appearance. In real life, Smith is more than just another big man — he has a master's degree in psychology, he speaks a handful of languages, he has fought for Israel and, in Cuba, for Castro. He is also a black belt (extra large size) in karate.

He's a Smith of many parts.

PAUL SMITH (left), as Bluto in the upcoming Robert Altman production of "Popeye," has a few words of warning for Popeye's dad, played by Ray Walston.

Michigan company applies for operation of Rock Island lines

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A Michigan company that has bid on 10 now-idle Rock Island branch lines in Oklahoma has applied for federal subsidies to temporarily begin operating the track, state and federal officials said today.

Interstate Commerce Commission officials in Washington said the S&D Transportation Co. of Detroit has applied for "directed service" to operate the 55-mile line between Enid and Ponca City and the 80-mile line between Mangum and Anadarko.

Under directed service, the federal government would pay for operations for 90 days to keep shipments moving.

Jo Ann Sloan, Federal Railroad Administration representative, said the directed service could begin within days after the ICC approved funding.

ICC officials said no date has been set for action on the proposal. Also pending before the ICC is a request by the Michigan firm to buy the two lines.

S&D officials were unavailable for immediate comment.

The firm, owned by Calvin Shelton and James Davis, also is awaiting action on $17.5 million in federal loan requests. The loans seek $4.5 million to buy the lines, $12.26 million to rehabilitate them and $780,000 to buy locomotives.

The company announced plans Oct. 28 to buy the lines after reaching tentative agreement with Rock Island bankruptcy trustee William Gibbons in Chicago.

Jerry Chambers, state planning engineer, said trains have not operated on the Anadarko-Mangum track since the Southwestern Oklahoma Railroad Co. went out of business a month ago. That firm operated sporadic trains between Hobart and Mangum.

The Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad (Katy) has operated trains on an interim basis between Enid and Billings on the Ponca City line. The remainder of the track is too deteriorated to carry trains, officials said.

In a related development, Chambers said Emmons Industries of Pennsylvania has stepped up interest in reopening former Rock Island lines west of El Reno and between Geary and Okeene.

Representatives of the firm met with state transportation officials and are to notify officials within two weeks if they will pursue the plans.

Chambers said the firm is reviewing feasibility of operating the Geary-Okeene line, and track between El Reno and Weatherford, Clinton or Elk City. The lines have been closed since the Rock Island went out of business in April.

In a separate move, the Oklahoma Transportation Commission on Wednesday authorized a $1.5 million project to rehabilitate a 60-mile Katy line between Altus and Burkburnett, Texas.

Katy earlier received ICC approval to abandon the line, and the state agreed to purchase the track and rebuild it as part of an overall $3.5 million program to prevent shippers from losing rail service.

The federal government will pay for $1.2 million of new ties, rails and ballast and the state will contribute $310,269, coming from the rail freight car tax.

Mystery of who shot J.R. continues

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mr. Lucrelov, the loan officer, peered over his glasses, incredulous.

"You want a loan? For a party?"

"Yes, sir," I said, my face reddening. "It's a 'Dallas' party."

Lucrelov frowned.

"See, some friends gave a 'Dallas' party last spring, when J.R. Ewing was shot. We drank Lone Star beer and ate ranch-style barbecue and watched the final episode of 'Dallas.' We had so much fun, my wife and I promised to throw a 'Who Shot J.R.?' party this fall."

"We thought it would be simple enough, but then the actors' strike happened and then, well, CBS sort of complicated things."

I explained that the CBS genius for hype, which had so expertly manifested itself in keeping the "Dallas" mystery alive through the long TV summer, had struck another high mark in promotion. CBS and Lorimar Productions, which makes "Dallas," aren't simply going to reveal who shot J.R. in an hour-long episode.

No, they're staging "Dallas Week," as the promos call it. "Dallas Month" is closer to the truth. You can almost see the network executives rubbing their hands in glee. The great revelation has been spread over a 22-day period. It's the Texas "Shogun."

Last night (Thursday), CBS broadcast a "Dallas" repeat. Then, tonight (when many thought the revelation would be made) CBS will repeat the episode in which J.R. was shot.

Afterward, the premiere episode of "Dallas" hits the air. Alas, it doesn't spill the answer. Instead, our hero lies close to death as his wimpy brother, Bobby, takes control of Ewing Oil and Miss Ellie screws her face into a worried expression and says, "Oh my God."

On Sunday, Nov. 9, there's yet another new "Dallas." This time J.R. gets another operation while his wife, Sue Ellen, grapples with guilt (of the irrational variety, presumably). She thinks she may have given the boy some hot lead in a boozy fog.

Then, on Friday, the 14th of November, in the third new "Dallas" of this delayed CBS season, the culprit is revealed. We find out why he (or she) did it in an episode two weeks later.

"Understand why I need the loan, Mr. Lucrelov? I mean, that's one heck of a party. Maybe CBS can afford that, selling those 'Dallas' ads for half a million per minute, but I can't."

Lucrelov didn't smile as he shook his head. He was clearly no lover of "Dallas" nor sponsor of three-week parties.

"Sorry," he said, not meaning it. "Come see us when you want to buy a motor home."

Network coverage aimed at dollars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Viewers have heard instant analyses, tidbits of speeches, projections and results since the Iowa caucuses last January, and must by now feel completely politicked-out.

Yet, in the long course of the campaign, the network news organizations didn't televise a single complete speech, outside of conventions or paid political advertisements.

Network coverage seemed overwhelming, but when you peer through the haze you see the bare bones of what commercial television settles for in covering the political process.

It is understandably thus. Commercial television points its cameras where the dollars are, and the realm of public affairs isn't exactly a treasure chest. That's why Walter Cronkite is always saying that citizens should use network news as a headline service to be supplemented by newspapers and periodicals.

Or, they could watch cable TV. Viewers of the Cable Satellite Public Affairs Network could have seen full speeches delivered by every presidential candidate, including the Communist Party nominee.

Last week, CSPAN viewers were able to watch full-length replays of the Carter-Reagan debate, both as it happened in Cleveland and as rendered by Cable News Network, with John Anderson edited in.

CSPAN is a Washington-based cable industry-sponsored service that began as an experiment in new television, TV that didn't need or mean to grab audience. It was there to be used. It began in March 1977 with daily coverage of the U.S. House of Representatives.

This year, CSPAN President Brian Lamb decided to expand coverage to include speeches made in Washington by the various candidates and their representatives. "The idea was, rarely during a campaign does any network give the public an entire speech. We gave speeches of all the candidates, and their running mates, major or minor."

The 6 million subscribers to the 850 cable systems that take CSPAN had access to an uncommon amount of political matter before voting this week, including the Federal Election Commission's hearings on whether John Anderson could get a bank campaign loan. On Tuesday, when the polls closed in the East, CSPAN went off the air.

Next week, CSPAN returns to House coverage. Lamb would like to further expand CSPAN to 24-hour-a-day coverage of public affairs, but his enthusiasm isn't shared through the industry.

Under Republicans, will Americans be patient?

NEW YORK (AP) — Because they have won the election battles doesn't mean the Republicans have removed all questions about the leadership of the United States, especially in the area of economics.

Will Americans be patient? All the things the Republicans have promised — less inflation, lower interest rates, less regulation, greater fiscal responsibility and the like — take years, not months, to achieve.

The budget will almost certainly remain in the red for fiscal 1981 no matter what the new president does. He can influence it, but he cannot turn it around. It was pretty much shaped before the election.

How will voters accept another massive blob of red ink, perhaps $50 billion or so, when fiscal 1981 ends next Oct. 31? Will they delay judgment for another year, or will dissatisfaction begin to grow?

If the Republicans are correct, big budget deficits are the core of the problem with prices and interest rates, and so it is safe to assume that levels for each will remain unusually high through 1981.

Living standards, which have been falling for many months, are also likely to continue in that direction for many months more before any impact is felt from Republican remedies. Will people be patient?

The matter of jobs could be a real thorn. The more conservative political mood calls for fewer government jobs and more in the private sector. But that is likely to consume several years at least.

The dilemma for the Republicans is that their remedies are designed to deal with the long-term economy, while consumers or voters or whatever else they are called may be demanding immediate relief.

A return to greater output per man-hour, or greater productivity, for example, isn't likely to be accomplished until the budget imbalance is corrected and the rates of inflation and interest are lowered.

But greater productivity, it is acknowledged by both major parties, is the only reliable lever for lifting living standards. Will Americans be patient enough to wait for productivity to rise?

Patience is only one virtue Republicans must cultivate. They may also have to ask people to do with less in government services, and some Americans may be surprised to learn they voted for that.

In fact, while economic self-denial has been praised in spirit it has not been practiced on a national scale. People have been badly pinched, to be sure, but they have also indulged in expensive programs, sometimes delaying bills to another day.

If the Republican programs can be refined into one single descriptive phrase it is, it seems, that they seek growth through initiative in the private sector rather than through government spending programs.

But after years of burgeoning bureaucracy and dependence on public projects, that's a large order.
