Rains, tremors torment Italians

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Heavy rains and more aftershocks added to the misery of earthquake survivors in the Naples-Sorrento area of southern Italy today as workers kept digging for bodies. The chief of relief operations said he was planning the evacuation of many thousands of the homeless.

The Interior Ministry reported 3,000 bodies had been recovered, at least 1,300 more people were missing, 5,000 were injured and 200,000 people were made homeless by the earthquake Sunday night.

It was Europe's deadliest quake in 65 years, since one in 1915 killed 30,000 people in the Avezzano region of central Italy.

The continuing tremors brought down buildings that escaped the earthquake Sunday night and frightened the survivors bivouacking in parks, beaches and other open spaces.

"We have offered them school buildings, but they don't want to go in with anything over their heads. It is understandable because they were so shocked and frightened," Salerno health official Antonio Ercolano said.

Bleary-eyed soldiers, police and firefighters helped grieving villagers dig out the living and dead from the quake. Rescue teams worked slowly because they did not have enough bulldozers or other equipment.

Fallen stones and collapsed bridges blocked many roads, but an Interior Ministry official said relief teams had reached every community in the stricken region by Tuesday evening.

"We will set up a well-organized exodus for those who have survived in the towns choked with thousands of deaths," said Giuseppe Zamberletti, who was put in charge of relief operations on Monday.

"The model which will guide us will remain the Friuli emergency," he told a news conference. In 1976, when two violent tremors and torrential rains killed about 1,000 people in the northern Friuli region, Zamberletti bused and trucked 120,000 survivors to requisitioned hotels, pensions and private homes for the winter on the Adriatic coast. About 95 percent were able to return home eventually, but about 35,000 still live in prefabricated housing.

"We will give ample margin to local mayors, while using military support facilities in various areas," he said. "But we will not have the benefit of the numerous military bases of northern Italy, so we will have to fly many soldiers down."

The U.S. government announced it was sending 1,000 tents from military stockpiles in Europe, but Zamberletti said tent cities were only a partial answer. He said with winter at hand, they could not be used for "the old, the weak and the sick" and also were unsuitable for mountain villages above 3,000 feet.

Pope John Paul II toured the quake zone by helicopter Tuesday, visiting two hospitals and embracing grieving survivors in Balvano, where the roof of the church caved in Sunday night during Mass and killed about 100 people.

Rescuers freed 90-year-old Donata Zarillo in Balvano after she spent 30 hours in her shattered kitchen.

"We heard her beating a piece of wood against the wall," fireman Giancarlo Rocchi said. "We stopped still and the sound came again. We dug slowly (to avoid causing a collapse) and broke a hole in the wall. She was inside, poor thing, and we had a hard time convincing her it was OK to come out."

Offices close for holiday

City and county offices will have a four-day weekend for the Thanksgiving holidays, officials said today. The law enforcement authorities, fire department and ambulance service will continue as usual.

City hall will be closed until Monday morning, City Manager Mack Wofford said. Anyone with emergency problems concerned with utilities can call 665-3881, he said.

City schools will close at 2 p.m. today and students have a four-day holiday. Pampa Independent School District offices at Carver Center will be closed during the four-day period, school officials said. The City-School Tax Office will be closed during this time, also.

District, state and federal offices will be closed for a four-day weekend, also.

The banks and savings and loan institutions in Pampa will be closed for the holiday. However, the businesses will reopen on Friday.

The Pampa News will not publish a paper on Thursday so their employees may spend the holiday with their families. The paper will be published as usual on Friday.

FOR OUR MANY BLESSINGS, Leslie Taylor, wearing her Thanksgiving bonnet, lights a candle on her pilgrim centerpiece in celebration of Thanksgiving Day Thursday, many Pampa families will be giving thanks for the blessings they have received during the past year, as the country's forefathers did 340 years ago. Eight-year-old Leslie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Taylor of Route 2, Pampa. She is a third grade student at Woodrow Wilson Elementary School.

Record low reported in Pampa

While Pampans recover from five inches of snow that blanketed the ground Tuesday, temperatures dipped overnight to a record 12 degree low for this date in Pampa.

Much of the falling snow melted as it touched the ground Tuesday, causing moisture that turned to ice, causing treacherous driving conditions early this morning from Pampa south to Amarillo.

Drivers apparently heeded the treacherous driving warnings, and no early morning accidents had been reported to the Pampa Police Department, according to police officials.

Communities to the north of Pampa reported dry road conditions this morning with all snow and ice cleared, according to Department of Public Safety officials.

The official moisture content from Tuesday's snow in Pampa was listed as .31 inches. The snow carried a high moisture content which will benefit Panhandle farmers.

Six weather-related accidents were reported in Pampa from 11 a.m. Tuesday to 9:40 p.m. according to Pampa Police Department reports. There were no serious injuries due to the accidents.

The Thanksgiving forecast from the National Weather Service calls for sunny days and continued cold overnight temperatures.

Indians will note 'Day of Awakening'

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — After more than 300 years of observing Thanksgiving as a day of mourning, some Wampanoag Indians will celebrate a "Day of Awakening" this year.

Their Thanksgiving will be a bittersweet remembrance of the difficulties that began for American Indians after white settlers took root in the New World. Within a generation of the Wampanoags' feast with the Pilgrims at the first harvest celebration in 1621, the newcomers and the natives were at war.

But this year, Thanksgiving also will be a new beginning, an example for the future.

"All my Indian brothers wanted to get rid of that stigma (of mourning)," says John Peters, head of the Massachusetts Commission on Indian Affairs. "We'd been holding our heads down too long."

"I don't see anything to be gained from mourning forever," adds Russell H. Gardner, or Chief Greatmoose.

"It is a sad commentary on history that one culture usurped the other," he says. "But the first Thanksgiving was a service of love and peace. It's something we can point to as a good example for the future."

Plymouth townsfolk and visitors will celebrate Thanksgiving with a traditional Pilgrim's Progress, a re-enactment of the early settlers' procession to worship. After an ecumenical church service in the Town Square, there will be a public turkey dinner at Memorial Hall.

The Wampanoags and members of other tribes plan to fast and gather for speeches and prayers at the statue of Chief Massasoit overlooking Plymouth Rock.

Then they will break their fast with a pot-luck dinner on Main Street, followed by native songs and dance.

Indians should look ahead, not dwell on the past, says Peters, also known as Slowturtle, the supreme medicine man for the Wampanoag nation.

"Our message is that the family structure has to rejoin again. People have to start loving like human beings again. Love and trust have to return. We need to stand together and prepare a place for those unborn children to live."

"If we're going to survive, all of us have to come back together as units, as families — that's a time for giving true thanks," he said.

The first Thanksgiving "was a day of rejoicing, thanksgiving and gratitude," said Rose Briggs, an 87-year-old Plymouth historian and direct descendant of some of the Pilgrims, including Gov. William Bradford.

"And also they had a good time," she said. "An amusing aspect is that one of the Indians' great games was football. So our present rash of football games on Thanksgiving is part of 1621 precedent. Apparently they ran up and down the seashore kicking a ball and gambling very heavily on the results."

Parents tell of daughter's home birth

By DEBORAH BRIDGES
Staff Writer

"It's not anything that hasn't been done before," Pampa resident Doyle Bowers said of the recent birth of his second daughter Rachel Holly.

Rachel made her entrance into the world at the home of her parents, Kay and Doyle Bowers. A registered lay mid-wife, assisted by the Kay's mother delivered the baby.

The Bowers are enthusiastic about this alternative to a hospital birth.

"I just wish people knew they had a choice," Kay said.

The Bowers stressed that a home birth is more than staying at home when the baby comes.

Kay said the "home birth" involved extensive preparation — study, proper nutrition, pre-natal care.

The couple attended weekly classes at Amarillo taught by registered mid-wives, Ann Houghkalling and Le Anne Gilley. Four other couples joined them in the course.

"You learn how diet almost definitely has to do with the outcome of the birth," Kay said. She said a pregnant woman who eats hamburgers from a fast food restaurant frequently will probably have a hard birth.

"You really do have to eat for two, plenty of everything," she said, adding a good diet would include lots of protein.

The couple were surprised to find the home birth classes were more detailed and informative than the Lamaze classes they took when Kay was pregnant with their first child, Joy.

"We thought we were very educated after the Lamaze classes, but when we started going to these classes, we felt so dumb," Doyle said.

The Bowers met with opposition from doctors when Kay revealed her plans for a home birth. The Bowers said every doctor they approached tried to discourage them in one way or another.

"One doctor said he could not attend a home birth because he felt insecure without a hospital and equipment around him," Kay said.

"They've become slaves to their technology," Doyle added.

Kay said a Pampa physician told her doctors feel in competition with mid-wives.

An Amarillo doctor took Doyle aside and told him there had "been a couple of deaths" in home births.

"I asked him if they were still born, and he wouldn't answer me," Doyle said. "If they're still born, they would have been still born at a hospital, too."

The Bowers said they believe hospitals are not necessary for a normal birth.

"Now there are some cases when there's definitely something wrong. Well, sure that's great then," Kay said.

She said, "Hospitals have a thing about sterile conditions. Of course, you have to be as clean as possible."

"A baby is going to be exposed to germs, and the germs it needs are its parent's," she said.

Too many times, a woman enters the hospital and loses all control of the birth of her child, the Bowers said.

"They don't give a woman's body enough time to do what it has to do. If it doesn't go a certain way, doctors will shoot her full of drugs to induce labor, or stop labor or rush her for a 'C' (Cesarean) section," Doyle said.

"The national C-section rate is 12 percent — it should be two percent," he added.

"In the first place, when a woman goes to the hospital the change of atmosphere can change the labor," he said.

Kay cut in. "If I had gone to the hospital, they would have induced labor. I started my labor on a Friday, dilated fully and Saturday morning, I just stopped. Sunday, the labor began again."

Doyle said they all just acted normally, playing music, watching television, talking, whatever anyone wanted.

Kay remembered, "Mom was here. She didn't want to be present at the birth at first — then we couldn't get her out."

"She's almost as bad as Doyle. She wants to tell everybody," she said, laughing.

Doyle said Rachel was alert when she was born, began to breathe immediately and did not cry until the next day when she was hungry.

The midwife showed the couple how to rub the vernix — a white substance that protects the skin of a fetus — into Rachel's skin.

"The thing I really enjoyed was the vernix," Doyle commented. "We just rubbed it right in. She was covered in it."

Sure enough, Rachel's skin stayed smooth and clear.

"It's a great lotion," Kay added.

The couple was disappointed their first daughter Joy, 2½, was not awake for the birth of her new sister.

Joy was another reason the Bowers decided on a home birth, Kay said. "I knew if I went to a hospital and come home with a new baby, she'd resent it and be jealous."

"We told her all about the new baby and what would happen. When she did get to see Rachel, she got to hold her and get to know her," Kay said.

"Joy has not had any kind of jealousy. She's been very loving toward her (Rachel)," she said.

"Families are closer when they all get to hold the baby right away," Doyle said.

Home birth statistics are not encouraging, Kay explained the high infant mortality figures.

"They include anything that is not in a hospital. If you have a baby on the hospital lawn, in a taxi, in an elevator, out in a field... anywhere that is not in a hospital, it becomes part of the home birth statistics," she said.

Kay again emphasized that she thinks a pregnant woman has a choice of where her baby is born. "You are the best judge of what you need," she said.

LOOK AT THIS, MOM! Joy Bowers, 2½, looks up in wonder as her new baby sister, Rachel, tries to suck her thumb. Their parents, Doyle and Kay Bowers, are strong advocates for prepared home births, saying a pregnant woman has the right to decide where and how her child will be born.

minor accidents

The snow and ice from Tuesday's storm left city streets icy and hazardous, probably contributing to the six minor accidents reported to the Pampa Police Department during the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today.
 At 11:10 a.m. Tuesday, a 1976 Oldsmobile driven by Lois Spalding Whaley, 52, Route 1, came into collision with a 1980 Jeep driven by Eugene C. Sidwell, 1901 Charles in the 200 block of Cuyler. Whaley was cited for unsafe backing. No injuries were reported.
 A one-vehicle accident occurred at 12:25 p.m. Tuesday when a vehicle driven by Dewey T. Cave, 47, I-40 West, Groom, came into collision with a street sign at the 900 block of South Hobart. Cave was cited for unsafe speed.
 A 1979 Ford driven by Janice Dillman Rucker, 40, 1002 S. Hobart, came into collision with a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Ray Harold Lockwood, 58, 1137 Willow, at 2:10 p.m. The mishap occurred in the 1300 block of Hobart. Rucker was cited for following too closely. No one reported injuries at the scene.
 A single vehicle was involved in a collision with a tree at 6 p.m. Tuesday. A 1980 Plymouth driven by Thomas Richardson, 17, 1840 Fir, was northbound in the 1700 block of Duncan when it slid on the ice, jumped a curb and collided with a tree. Richardson was reportedly uninjured in the accident.
 The final accident Tuesday was reported at 9:40 p.m., when a 1970 Chevrolet pickup truck driven by Randall Jonas, 21, 2232 N. Christy, westbound in the 300 block of East Browning, slid and came into collision with a parked 1971 Oldsmobile. The truck continued to slide and also came into collision with a parked 1978 Ford. The Oldsmobile was reported to be owned by Tommy Laycock, 2205 N. Wells, and the Ford owned by Gordon Gipson, Plainsman Motel. Jonas did not report any injuries at the scene.

National weather

By The Associated Press

Lubbock residents began digging out today from a winter storm that brought record snowfall to the South Plains city before dragging chilling rains and sleet into East and South Texas.
 But the National Weather Service expected the worst to be over by tonight, with some rain lingering in extreme Southeast Texas. Partly cloudy skies were in sight for Thanksgiving Day.
 Although snow had stopped falling in Northwest Texas by mid-evening Tuesday, Lubbock reported 11 inches on the ground and Amarillo noted a four-inch cover.
 Lubbock broke a record Tuesday when the cumulative snowfall total for November reached 22 inches. The previous monthly record of 16.8 inches was set in February 1956.
 No major roads or highways were reported closed, but the Department of Public Safety urged motorists to keep driving to a minimum.
 "It's colder than blue blazes and everybody wants to go to Grandma's house for Thanksgiving," said DPS officer Burt Sinclair.
 No power outages were reported in Lubbock, but officials in far West Texas towns of Canutillo and Denver City noted brief blackouts.
 Jim Goodwin, public relations manager for Southwestern Bell in Lubbock, said the company was handling about 100,000 calls per hour during the morning - about 50 percent above normal.
 The storm shut down schools, closed airports, and curtailed Christmas shopping. At least one large Lubbock shopping mall closed at 6 p.m., three hours early. Texas Tech University, due to start the Thanksgiving holidays Wednesday, cancelled classes Tuesday.
 Maintenance crews at Lubbock's airport kept the runways cleared, but zero visibility grounded all planes.
 The weather also caused the cancellation of a closed-circuit telecast at the Lubbock Civic Center of the Sugar Ray Leonard-Roberto Duran welterweight championship fight.
 Snow and sleet were reported late Tuesday as far south as Austin and as far east as the Tyler-Langview area. Clouds and rain blanketed much the rest of Texas.
 In Austin, snow began falling during the height of the evening rush hour and police reported 122 minor car wrecks as motorists slid on icy highways and bridges.
 At least one rural school district in the Austin area cancelled classes today and other school officials kept a close eye on the storm.
 Snow mixed with rain also fell Tuesday night over wide sections of the Texas Hill Country.
 Winds gusted briefly to over 50 mph in the Corpus Christi area as heavy rains of more than one inch pelted the coastal bend area.

Seven die

Tanker loses race with train

KENNER, La. (AP) - A gasoline trucker who allegedly tried to beat a freight train to a railroad crossing has been charged with negligent homicide after a collision and blast killed seven people, torched a neighborhood bar and plunged parts of Kenner into darkness.
 Flames shot 100 feet into the air and hundreds of people were forced to flee their homes following the accident Tuesday night in this New Orleans suburb.
 The truck driver, identified by police as Glendon R. Russey, 36, of Baton Rouge, a driver for Mobil Corp., was booked on seven counts of negligent homicide.
 Kenner's chief administrative officer said the driver passed a stopped car and a barricade at the crossing and drove onto the track, where the tanker collided with an Illinois Central Gulf train.
 Administrative Officer Jimmy Warren said interviews with several witnesses indicated the truck "attempted to out-run the train to the crossing."
 "There was a collision. The truck exploded and broke in half. Half of the truck fell on a car behind it and half of it on a barroom," Warren said.
 Warren said six of the victims were in the bar, Buck's and Chuck's, a popular after-work watering hole. The bar was leveled by a fire sparked by explosions which followed the collision.

 "Everyone ran to the door and the fire shot up all around us," said Charles Albrecht, 50, who was playing pool at the bar, which is 20 to 30 yards from the railroad tracks. He escaped out a back door.
 The seventh victim was identified as 6-month-old Heidi McGill, who was in the car the truck allegedly passed, officials said.
 State trooper Wallace Gettys said the child's mother, Alice McGill, was pulled from the wreckage by the truck driver, whose clothes were aflame.
 Neither adult was hurt seriously.
 The other victims were not identified immediately.
 The blasts and fires knocked out power lines and plunged the area into darkness. Hours later, firemen were still toppling burning utility poles while electrical lines crackled overhead.
 Officials evacuated 200 to 300 people from surrounding homes and opened an emergency center at the Kenner City Hall. Officials said most of those evacuated stayed with friends or relatives.
 Only shattered hulls remained of four vehicles caught in the blast - the 18-wheeler and its cab, another tractor cab, a pickup truck and the car at the crossing.
 In addition, the parking lot of the bar was littered with the debris of up to a dozen other burned out cars.

Controversial Scouts disbanded

HOUSTON (AP) - The Boy Scout Council has jerked its credentials from an Explorer post scarred by reports that leaders trained the youths in lethal hand-to-hand combat techniques.
 The Council, which governs more than 70,000 youths and adults who participate in Scouting in the Houston area, rejected the charter application of Post 2125 on Tuesday night following a lengthy meeting.
 "Disturbing reports have been brought to light concerning the temporary leadership and activities of the post... The local Council held up the application after receiving adverse information last week," said Council President Burke Baker Jr.
 "Although the published reports are difficult to substantiate, interviews with youth members of the proposed post and their families developed sufficient information to cause this committee to seriously question the advisability of granting the charter," he said.
 The post was allowed to organize while application for a charter was reviewed by the Boy Scouts of America.
 The controversy erupted after the Houston Chronicle reported in a copyright story Sunday that several Explorers and Civil Air Patrol cadets had been taught how to strangle people, decapitate enemies with a machete and fire semi-automatic weapons.
 The youths, ages 13 to 20, reportedly received training at a "survival camp" in Southeast Texas from a Ku Klux Klan member and a man convicted in Tennessee earlier this year on a weapons charge.
 An investigation into the allegations was ordered Monday by the Council after reports surfaced.
 "Charters for Explorer posts are based upon three factors - sponsorship, leadership and membership. Sufficient questions existed to dictate that the Council reject the charter," Baker said.
 In a copyright story Tuesday, the Chronicle reported the mother of two Explorer Scouts said troop leaders once talked of a mission to the U.S. Mexico border to spot illegal aliens entering the country.
 The mother asked not to be identified because she feared retaliation, the newspaper said.
 The teen-agers said the plans called for the Scouts to notify the U.S. Border Patrol if they spotted any illegal aliens crossing the border, the Chronicle said.
 "I had no idea what they were getting into or I would never have let them do it," the mother said after learning her sons had participated in the training sessions at Camp Puller in nearby Chambers County.

But John Bryant, who helped KKK member Joe Bogart organize the post, said reports of the proposed border trip, which never took place, were misconstrued.
 Bryant was convicted last January of illegally selling automatic weapons in Memphis, Tenn.
 From 12 to 30 youths received training at the camp, operated by Robert J. Sisente and Louis Beam, the Grand Dragon of the Texas KKK. Sisente, who was ousted in October from the CAP, has denied he is a Klan member.
 Lt. Col. R.L. Close, a 23-year-veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps and head of the Marine reserve unit at Ellington Air Force Base sponsoring the Explorers troop and CAP cadets, disclosed earlier that the youths had received hand-to-hand combat training at the camp.
 One Scout's mother told the Chronicle she thought a mission to the border seemed strange because many of the Scouts were Mexican-Americans and might be sympathetic to aliens crossing the Rio Grande.
 Bryant, 26, told the newspaper that talk of a so-called mission had been misrepresented.
 "Some groups went and did that a while back," he said "If they (the boys) wanted an actual mission, they could go down and talk to them about it," said Bryant, 26.
 The Chronicle reported that in 1977 Beam announced that unarmed Klansmen would patrol the Texas-Mexico border for aliens entering the United States illegally.
 Border Patrolmen, however, told the KKK its calls would be ignored. Several leaflets bearing the skull and crossbones and a KKK warning to illegal aliens were found near Brownsville, but no sightings were reported.
 Beam refused to comment on the allegations.
 A Klan spokesman who identified himself as Jack Evans said many members of the Texas Emergency Reserve, a paramilitary arm of the KKK, trained at Camp Puller.
 Authorities in Chambers County have said no effort has been made to close the camp.
 Meanwhile, Baker said the Scouts would be allowed to join other posts.
 "We feel it would be unfair to deny the youth members the many advantages of Scouting. Each will be contacted personally and offered the opportunity to join other officially chartered Explorer posts," he said.

Thanksgiving, Christmas shopping season heralded by big snow storm

By The Associated Press
 Rain and freezing rain extended from central Texas across Louisiana into Mississippi, while some Texans were digging out from an 11-inch snowfall.
 Lubbock, Texas, was blanketed by 11 inches Tuesday, breaking a record when the cumulative snowfall for November reached 22 inches. The previous monthly record of 16.8 inches was set in February 1956.
 The snowstorm shut down schools, closed airports and curtailed Christmas shopping when at least one Lubbock shopping mall closed three hours early.
 The weather also caused the cancellation of a closed-circuit telecast at the Lubbock Civic Center of the Sugar Ray Leonard-Roberto Duran welterweight championship fight.

 In Austin, snow during the evening rush resulted in 122 minor car accidents, police reported.
 Winds gusted to over 50 mph in Corpus Christi as more than an inch of rain pelted the coastal bend area. The Coast Guard rescued several crewmen from a pipeline barge after gale-force winds snapped the vessel's moorings loose.
 Rain was expected today from Georgia and western Florida across the Gulf Coast, the Tennessee Valley and southern parts of the lower Ohio Valley through eastern Texas.

SNOW REACHES HILL COUNTRY. Snow blanketed most of the Central Texas Hill Country today. This scene, west of Austin, near the Bee Cave community received more than an inch and was still falling after daybreak. According to the National Weather Service, this is the first significant snowfall in Austin since 1973.

'Dumb Turkeys' are good for you!

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Remember in grade school at Thanksgiving time when it would take all 16 crayons — 78 if your parents were rich — to draw and color that magnificent, noble, strutting turkey?

Well, you can scratch the magnificent, noble and strutting Turkeys are dumb. Really dumb.
 That's the word from Dr. William O. Cawley, poultry specialist at Texas A&M.

"They do strange things," Cawley says. "For instance, because younger turkeys are so inquisitive, you can't leave an empty bucket in their pen. If you do, they'll all climb in until the bucket fills up and then the ones at the bottom smother to death."

 In spring when younger birds are grown on open ranges, turkey growers have to be wary of rainy days, Cawley says.

"Some turkeys have been so amazed during heavy rains that they stood still and gazed at the sky until they drowned."
 Turkeys are gregarious by nature — they can't stand to be separated from the crowd.

"If you place one in a pen adjacent to another pen containing the rest of the flock, it will run up and down the fence line until it is exhausted," he says. "and if you upset a flock of turkeys, they may all pile up on one another, which has led to fatalities."
 Turkeys may not be smart but they're still a good buy, says Barnard Marquez of A&M's poultry science department.

WHO ARE YOU CALLING TURKEY? Mr. Turkey isn't any more excited about having his profile taken than he is about tomorrow's holiday — especially since he is the cream of the crop, weighing 30 pounds on the hoof.

Libel trial to be held in Dallas

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court today left standing a lower court decision moving the trial of a Department of Public Safety captain's libel suit against the Dallas Times Herald to a Dallas district court.

The high court dismissed Capt. Bill Bessent's appeal of the venue decision, saying it had no jurisdiction to consider it.

Under Texas rules of procedure, venue rulings of courts of civil appeals are final except in cases of split decisions or disagreement among two or more courts on a similar legal issue.

In this case, the Beaumont court of civil appeals overturned an Austin district court's decision and granted the Times Herald's request to have the suit tried in Dallas.

Bessent, a former chief of Dallas-area narcotics agents, is a resident of Austin, where he is assigned to DPS headquarters as a forgery analyst.

He sued the Times Herald after it published a United Press International article which, he said, incorrectly reported reasons for his dismissal in 1975. Bessent subsequently was reinstated as a DPS officer, although not in narcotics.

Injunction ordered in liquidation of OKC Corp.

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge has granted the Securities and Exchange Commission a preliminary injunction against OKC Corp.'s chief officer and has demanded he present the court with a $5 million letter of credit.

District Judge Robert Hill also ordered the company's board of directors to appoint a "corporate committee" to oversee all transactions involving the sale, liquidation or transfer of the company's assets.

In its suit filed in mid-September, the SEC said Cloyce K. Box, chairman, president and chief executive officer of the Dallas-based company, received more than $5 million in kickbacks over the last seven years from various "friendly brokers."

The suit asks that Box be required to return the money to OKC and to resign from the company.

In the order Tuesday, Hill stipulated that to prove Box has the assets to satisfy any judgment against him, he must provide the letter of credit payable to OKC "in a form satisfactory to the SEC."

The corporate committee, made up of three outside OKC directors, will review OKC's liquidation proposal to insure compliance.

Hill ordered Box to cooperate with the committee in its study, providing it with any documents or information it requests.

OKC is liquidating all its assets in accordance with a plan approved by shareholders in May.

The SEC suit contends that in 1973, OKC began selling refined petroleum products to Box's friends and business associates who received preferential prices and credit through OKC funds.

Box pleaded guilty to 23 misdemeanor counts carrying a maximum penalty of $5,000 each for violating Energy Department pricing regulations. OKC also entered into a civil settlement agreeing to pay $4,750,000 in fines.

He is charged with two counts of fraud stemming from his failure to disclose his receipt of illegal commissions as well as his use of the company to benefit the people from whom he received the alleged kickbacks.

Neither Box nor OKC would comment on Tuesday's order.

Reagan family home for holiday

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy, are relaxing at their secluded ranch near here and preparing for a family Thanksgiving.

Before boarding his helicopter at the Santa Monica airport, Reagan told reporters he would resume the task of selecting a Cabinet after the holiday.

Two of Reagan's children, Maureen and Patti, were expected to be guests for Thanksgiving dinner. The president-elect's 22-year-old son Ron, who was married Monday in New York, was not expected.

Reagan was scheduled to return Friday to his Pacific Palisades home in Los Angeles and fly by helicopter Saturday to Palm Springs, Calif., to attend a benefit for the Eisenhower Hospital.

He returns to Los Angeles on Sunday and is expected to announce his nominations for the 13 Cabinet positions sometime next week.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some of Hollywood's best-known figures will be on hand to celebrate the inauguration of President-elect Ronald Reagan at a gala the night before he takes office.

Johnny Carson, the longtime host of NBC's "Tonight" show, will be master of ceremonies for the Jan. 19 gala, producer-director Frank Sinatra announced Tuesday. Others appearing will be Dean Martin, James Stewart, Rich Little, the Osmonds and Ethel Merman, according to Sinatra spokeswoman Susan Reynolds.

The event will be staged at the Capital Centre in the Washington suburb of Landover, Md.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pop singer Stevie Wonder, who has joined black leaders in calling for a national holiday on the birthdate of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr., says he will give a benefit concert to support the drive.

At a news conference to announce plans for a Washington march Jan. 15, Wonder said such a holiday would go a long way toward "showing the rest of the world that people really can live together in unity, in harmony."

The capital parade, set to culminate in a rally near the Washington Monument, is aimed at bolstering public and congressional support for the King national holiday proposal, which was voted down in the House by a narrow margin in late 1979.

King, who would have turned 52 on Jan. 15, was assassinated in 1968 in Memphis, Tenn. Wonder said the benefit concert would be held Jan. 16 at the Capital Centre, just outside Washington.

FAIRVIEW, Okla. (AP) — The Six Million Dollar Man has been accused of killing a deer out of season — during the Grand National Quail Hunt.

Lee Majors, who starred as Steve Austin on TV's "The Six Million Dollar Man," allegedly shot a buck deer last Friday, one day before the deer season opened, officials said.

He had been taking part in the Grand National Quail Hunt near here.

A business agent for Majors posted $281 bond Tuesday, said Ray Tillery, district chief game ranger.

Majors also was accused of using improper ammunition and taking a deer without a license.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Blind country music singer Ronnie Milsap is resting at his Nashville home following a relapse of pneumonia, a spokeswoman says.

Milsap, 34, collapsed last Friday at Nashville's Municipal Airport while waiting for a flight to Kansas City.

"He's still resting at home," the spokeswoman said Tuesday. "He had pneumonia in one lung and was recovering but just started back to work too soon."

Milsap's hits include "It Was Almost Like a Song," "I'm a Stand By Your Woman Man," "What Goes On When the Sun Goes Down" and "Only One Love in My Life."

J.R.'s dilemma shoots network to top rating

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The two bullets pumped into nasty J.R. Ewing helped shoot CBS into the lead of the prime-time ratings race — and the unmaking of J.R.'s assailant went down in the record books as the most-watched show in TV history, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co.

Three-quarters of all the television sets in use last Friday night were tuned in to the CBS hit "Dallas" to find out that J.R.'s sister-in-law, Kristin Shepard, was his would-be killer.

The latest Nielsen ratings indicated the episode beat the final episode of "Roots," previously the highest-rated show of all time, as well as the denouement of the "The Fugitive" and all the Super Bowl games.

CBS had six shows in the top 10 for the week ending Nov. 23, according to the Nielsen survey. The ratings survey said that 41,467,400 homes were tuned in to see the long-awaited solution to the shooting. The "Who Shot J.R.?" episode received a rating of 53.3 and a share of 76 in the ratings.

Interest in the show had been building since last spring, when J.R. Ewing, played by Larry Hagman, was shot in the season's final episode. The show set off an international guessing game.

The final episode of the ABC mini-series "Roots" previously was the highest-rated show of all time, with a rating of 51.1 and a share of 71. It was telecast Jan. 30, 1977.

The highest-rated episode of any regular series was the last original episode of ABC's "The Fugitive," in which Dr. Richard Kimble finally caught up with the one-armed man who had killed his wife. That show, telecast Aug. 29, 1969, got a rating of 45.9 and a share of 72.

The "Dallas" rating helped boost CBS to a ratings victory for the week with an over-all rating of 21.9. ABC was second with 19.7 and NBC was third with 17.1.

Here were the Top 10 shows: "Dallas," a rating of 53.3 or 41,467,400 households, CBS; "Dukes of Hazzard," 32.0 or 24.9 million, CBS; "60 Minutes," 29.8 or 23.2 million, CBS; "Three's Company," 26.3 or 20.5 million, ABC; "Alice," 26.1 or 23.3 million, CBS; "The Jeffersons," 26.1 or 23.3 million, CBS; "One Day at a Time," 25.7 or 20 million, CBS; "Happy Days," 25.4 or 19.8 million, ABC; "Too Close for Comfort," 25.1 or 19.5 million, ABC; "Love Boat," 25.0 or 19.5 million, ABC.

The next 10 shows: "Archie Bunker's Place," 24.7, CBS; "Laverne and Shirley," 24.7, ABC; "MAS*H," 23.8, CBS; "Little House on the Prairie," 23.8, NBC; ABC Sunday Movie "The Enforcer," 23.4, ABC; NBC Thursday Movie "Skyward," 22.0, NBC; "Trapper John, M.D.," 21.8, CBS; "Hart to Hart," 21.7, ABC; Kenny Rogers special, 21.5, CBS; NFL Monday Night Football Raiders vs Seahawks, 21.3, ABC.

The bottom five shows were: "Those Amazing Animals," 14.2, ABC; "Tribute to the Juke Box Award Winners," 14.2, NBC; "Daredevils," 13.0, NBC; ABC Friday Movie "Convoy," 11.9; "NBC Magazine," 4.6.

Antique brushes hold their own

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Antique toothbrushes look pretty much like modern ones, except that they're made of bone, wood or ivory and most of the bristles have fallen out. And they don't have those little rubbery pointy things on the ends.

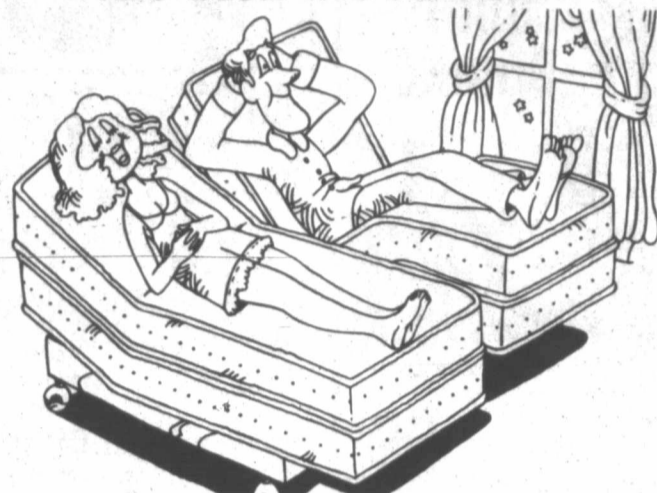

But things dental have changed since those brushes, now on display here, were in use.

"Brushes with History," an exhibit at the University of Pennsylvania School of Dental Medicine, features a cache of antique toothbrushes recently unearthed from early 19th century privy pits by construction workers building a highway through town.

On opening day Tuesday, the exhibit also featured the school's dean, Dr. D. Walter Colten, who came armed with these facts:

- Only one of every three people in the United States owns a toothbrush. The rest share.
- Richard Nixon's visits to China opened up the hog bristle trade, insuring an adequate supply of the animal hair for toothbrushes.
- Tongues should be brushed as well as teeth.
- The majority of Americans are toothless by age 50.
- Doc Holliday, author Zane Grey and Adolf Hitler's dentist all graduated from the dental school here.

Food prices may soar in '81 if winter is harsh

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices made a relatively small gain in October, largely because the "farm value" of the major items declined during the month, says the Agriculture Department.

But if this winter is as rough and disruptive as the one two years ago, food prices may soar even more sharply than expected in 1981, a senior department economist said Tuesday.

"Another factor — one that will have far-reaching implications even farther down the road — will be prospects for U.S. corn and other feed crops that will be harvested in the summer and fall of 1981. Howard W. Hjort, the department's chief economist, said.

"For some time, the department has been predicting 1981 food prices may go up 10 to 15 percent from this year. They are expected to climb about 8.7 percent in 1980.

Last week officials said it looked as if the 1981 increase might average 12.2 percent, the sharpest gain in food prices in seven years.

Hjort's comments at a news conference Tuesday followed a report by the Labor Department that food prices gained 0.7 percent in October. That was a significant increase but far less than the September gain of 1.6 percent.

According to figures released by Hjort, the farm value of food before it left the farm dropped 2 percent in October from September.

"Retail meat prices rose 0.3 percent in October, the smallest monthly change since June," Hjort said.

"Pork prices continued to rise from their low levels of the second quarter, but at a slower rate than in any month in the third quarter. Beef prices fell 0.6 percent as cattle slaughter was higher than in September."

The sharp gains in the third quarter of this year had been forecast months ago by Hjort and other department experts. They also are sticking to predictions that food price gains in the last quarter of 1980 will not be so steep as those last summer.

Still, Hjort said, food prices continue to rise and will do so early in 1981, led by gains for meat, poultry and eggs.

"We will continue, I'm sure, to see rather substantial increases in food prices as we go into the first quarter," he said.

"We do expect a bulge in second quarter food prices, and the third and fourth quarters very much depend on signals with respect to crop production and what has happened over the winter as far as citrus, vegetables and meat are concerned."

Hjort indicated consumers cannot expect much relief from larger imports of key food items in 1981. But he did disclose that the department has recommended to President Carter that the door be kept open to foreign beef next year.

However, he said, world meat supplies are still tight and probably will not be abundant enough to boost U.S. imports much in the coming year.

Technically, under law, there is a maximum "trigger" point at which excessive meat imports would lead to quotas. But the world meat shortage has been so acute this year that imports are falling far short of the trigger.

In effect, that has meant an open door to imports of foreign meat in 1980.

The meat imports referred to are subject to a federal law that covers fresh, chilled and frozen beef, veal, mutton and goat meat. It is mostly beef used to make hamburger and other processed items.

Scientists urge easing of gene-splitting restrictions

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of scientists, in apparent agreement that there are fewer risks in DNA research than once thought, recommends easing restrictions for about 80 percent of the gene-splitting experiments in the United States.

The proposals, developed by scientists who monitor the safety of genetic research, would result in fewer overseers, paperwork requirements and review procedures for scientists working with DNA, the genetic material that transmits inherited characteristics.

About 200 representatives from institutional biosafety committees developed the proposals and presented them at a special meeting called by the National Institutes of Health. The committees operate at universities, medical schools, private research organizations and companies engaged in DNA research.

The recommendations will be considered by NIH's Recombinant DNA Advisory Committee, probably in April. The advisory committee's recommendations go to the NIH director and the secretary of health and human services for final consideration.

Among the recommendations announced Tuesday was one that all research involving the organism known as E. coli K12 be exempted from the federal regulations. Scientists say evaluations over the past 40 years indicate the organism is safe and incapable of causing a harmful infection.

The organism, the one most commonly used in making new genetic combinations, figures in about 80 percent of the experiments conducted.

Brownsville protests alien enrollment

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Local school officials may go to court once more to halt enrollment of illegal alien children, says school board president Roland Olvera.

"You can rest assured we're not going to take this sitting down," Olvera said Tuesday.

His comments came a day after the Brownsville Independent School District resumed enrollment of undocumented children following a freeze on their admission since Oct. 11.

All Texas schools are under orders to admit the children. A Houston federal judge struck down a law that prohibited use of state funds to educate illegal aliens in a decision handed down last summer.

U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela of Brownsville halted admission of the children after the district claimed it could not afford to take them. However, he ordered the district to resume their enrollment, saying the district's crowded classrooms and strapped budget could not be blamed on illegal aliens alone.

"Further litigation is needed because it's just not fair to our taxpayers, our teachers, our children, the parents and to the people legally here," said board vice president Gracie de Pena.

School board lawyer Tony Martinez said he had a "couple of ideas" on how to fight the order but would not discuss them.

"We have too many coming over here for the purpose of education as opposed to those already here," Martinez said.

cemetery for old cowboys, ranchers and military veterans. One of his last wishes was to have a cowboy funeral, and as part of the graveside rites a guitar-playing rancher friend sang "Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain."

Nepalese "Goddess" finished at 11

By BINAYA GURUACHARYA
Associated Press Writer

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — After a decade of being worshipped as a living goddess, Sunina Sakya is learning how to live as an ordinary 13-year-old girl.

No longer carried, she has learned how to walk.
No longer isolated, she is learning to mix with other children.
No longer living in a temple, she is learning the responsibilities of home life.

When little more than a year old, Sunina passed a stringent series of tests to prove her worth — ranging from unblemished skin to an extremely serene composure and an acceptable horoscope — and was installed as Nepal's "Raj Kumari," or "Royal Virgin Goddess."

Nepal has several Kumaris but only one "royal" Kumari. She lives in Katmandu and is prayed to directly by the Himalayan nation's king in a Hindu and Buddhist practice of virgin worship that dates back to the sixth century B.C.

According to legend, an ancient Nepalese king so offended the Devi (goddess) Kumari that she refused to have anything to do with him directly, maintaining contact with him only through a young virgin.

His subjects believe that the king, who maintains near absolute control in this rugged, landlocked country, receives his power through the reigning royal Kumari.

Sick Nepalese also worship Kumari to seek cures, politicians make offerings hoping to advance their careers and others come before her in keeping with the demands of various ceremonies.

Kumari also is very popular with the tourists.
For 10 years, Sunina was so worshipped. She lived according to a strict code in a special temple in the capital. Every morning her servants bathed and dressed her.

The few times each year she briefly left the temple — normally she was not allowed out even into the courtyard — she was carried so her feet would not touch the ground. Devi Kumari's every whim, if it did not violate the code, was instantly satisfied.

Her only duty was to sit goddess-like on a throne or at a window — and be worshipped.

Then, inevitably, Sunina displayed a human frailty. One day Sunina complained of stomach pain and an uneasy feeling.

Guru Ma, a 75-year-old temple custodian, promptly reported to the priests that Sunina had reached retirement age.

Liddy puts down American citizens

HOUSTON (AP) — Americans suffer from an "Easter Bunny mentality" that blinds them to the harsh realities of the world, says convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy.

Liddy said Americans are especially blind to the threats by other countries — particularly the Soviet Union.

"A vast number of Americans are unable or unwilling to comprehend reality. They live in a world of illusion," he said.

Congress's retirees well cared for WASHINGTON (AP) — Whoever said, "You can't take it with you," never heard of the congressional retirement system, which allows veteran members of Congress to retire earlier and with far higher benefits than most American workers.

While the actual retirement income of retiring congressmen is confidential, the formula used to figure the benefits is public. And it shows that some outgoing members still in their early 50s will be taking a hefty retirement package with them — $35,000 a year in some cases.

Several of this year's retirees will doubtless feather their nest further with the lucrative job offers that often come to ex-congressmen.

Here's how the congressional retirement formula works.

Murder suspect returned

TYLER, Texas (AP) — An Oklahoma man arrested here last August on a fugitive warrant has been returned to Oklahoma City to face first-degree murder charges.

Clifford Henry Bowen, 49, was turned over to Oklahoma City police detectives Tuesday after State District Judge Donald Carroll ordered his extradition.

Bowen had been held without bond in the Smith County Jail since police arrested him at a Tyler residence on Aug. 29.

Bowen and former Oklahoma City policeman Harold Behrens, 35, are charged with first-degree murder in connection with the execution-style shootings of three men at the Guest House Inn in Oklahoma City on July 6.

Soviet leader positive

MOSCOW (AP) — President Leonid I. Brezhnev is sending "very positive" signals to President-elect Ronald Reagan and has offered "certain assurances that give hope for the future, hope in Soviet-American relations and hope for the world," Sen. Charles Percy said today.

Percy, pegged as the next chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said his nearly three-hour-long talk with the Soviet leader today was "by all odds the most satisfactory discussion because we had such a full agenda." The meeting in the Kremlin, also attended by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and U.S. Ambassador Thomas J. Watson Jr., was much longer than scheduled.

Percy, the first U.S. government official to hold talks with Brezhnev in 16 months — and since the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan in December 1979 — declined to give details on the talks. But he said it was "difficult to name a subject we did not discuss."

"It was a very frank, factual discussion of the basic differences that we have," Percy said. "We laid them right on the table without equivocation."

Percy said that he found Brezhnev in "extremely good, vigorous health."

Congressmen, if they elect, can put up to 8 percent of their gross salary per year in the retirement plan, or a maximum of $4,800 a year at the current salary level.

Members covered by the plan can retire at age 50 so long as they have 20 years of government service, including at least 10 years in the House or Senate. Military service counts as government service.

With 10 years of service, participants can retire at age 60; with only five years in Congress, at 62.

For each year of government service, a retired congressman covered by the plan gets 2.5 percent of the average salary earned in the three highest-earning years in Congress and the military. The three-year average for members retiring this year is $58,554.

Leonard regains WBC welterweight crown with eighth-round TKO

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard, an artist in the sometimes brutal business of boxing, is World Boxing Council welterweight champion again, wrestling the crown from Roberto Duran who quit the fight and boxing in the middle of a remarkable rematch.

"I'm tired of fighting," said the man whose fast, powerful style earned him the nickname Hands of Stone and the admiration of his native Panama and of people throughout Latin America.

The proud Duran walked into retirement a ring legend. Frustrated from chasing Leonard and complaining of stomach cramps and weakness in his arms, he quit unexpectedly with 16 seconds left in the 8th round. He waved Leonard away as the boxing technician advanced on him.

The judges had Duran slightly behind on points when he turned his back on the career so uniquely suited to the man.

"I was surprised," said Leonard. "I don't know why he quit. He just stopped throwing punches and walked away. I took full advantage."

At first, both Leonard and referee Octavio Meyran misunderstood Duran's action. It looked as if the champ was showing contempt for Leonard, saying to his opponent, "No, you can't hurt me."

The referee waved the fight on and Sugar Ray crashed a right to Duran's midsection. Again the champ walked away, shaking his head from side to side and waving Leonard off. It was over and a stunned crowd saw the green title belt taken away from the man who was many things, but never before a quitter.

"At the end of the fifth round, I got cramps in my stomach and it kept getting worse and worse," Duran said later. "I felt weaker and weaker in my body and arms."

Then came the shocker.

"I am retiring from boxing right now," he said. "There will be no more fights. I'm tired of fighting."

And so one of the great careers in the ring ended with a suddenness that even his seconds failed to completely comprehend.

"I was shocked," said cut man Freddie Brown. "There was no indication he was in pain or getting weak."

"I've been with him too long not to believe there was some legitimate reason for it," said trainer Ray Arcel. Leonard was ahead on the cards of all three judges, winning four of the seven rounds. But it was by no means a one-sided fight and that's why its sudden ending raised some eyebrows. Officials of the Louisiana State Athletic Commission said Duran's $8 million purse would be withheld pending a medical examination of the Panamanian.

"I've never seen anything like that before," said Emile Bruneau, chairman of the commission. "The trainers don't even know what happened."

Jerry White, a member of the commission, said, "We have to give some explanation. Some people paid $1,000 to watch this and they don't know what happened."

What the Superdome crowd of about 30,000 fans saw was a lesson in ring artistry administered by Leonard straight out of the boxing textbook.

"The name of the game this time was boxing and scientific techniques," said Leonard, whose dancing and darting jabs drove Duran to distraction.

"This time, I boxed," said Sugar Ray, who tried to slug it out with Duran in their first meeting and lost the WBC title to his opponent June 20 in Montreal. "I'm versatile. He couldn't change tactics. I could."

Leonard set the tone for the fight in the first two rounds. He came out jabbing, sticking Duran with lefts and scoring with effective counter punches every time the champion attacked.

Duran, whose swarming style has always made him a crowd favorite, kept stalking Leonard and paying the price as Sugar Ray repeatedly tagged him coming in.

Leonard seemed to regain control of the tempo in the sixth round, stinging Duran with a series of lefts. Then, in the seventh, the challenger did the unthinkable. He taunted Duran, mocked the macho champion and dared him to do something about it.

By now, the fight had swung back in Leonard's direction. All three judges gave him the seventh round and two of them gave him the sixth, as well. But Duran certainly was still in the hunt when the eighth round began. He trailed by two points, 68-66, on the cards of judges Mike Jacobs and Jean Deswert, and a single point, 67-66, on the card of judge James Brimmell.

Sugar Ray seized the offensive at the start of the round, tagging Duran with three quick left jabs in the first half minute. The men fought on fairly even terms, for the remainder of the round when suddenly, Duran decided he'd had enough and simply walked away.

He left behind a remarkable career. The loss was his first in eight years and only the second in 74 professional fights. He held the lightweight championship from 1972 until 1978 when he relinquished it to move up to the welterweight division.

Together with Leonard, Duran generated two of the biggest paydays in boxing history. Sugar Ray earned $10 million and Duran got $1.5 million for their first fight in Montreal June 20. This time they split $15 million with Duran getting $8 million and Leonard $7 million.

Next for Leonard could be World Boxing Association welterweight king Tommy Hearns. But the money must be right.

Navarro meets NMMI in Wool Bowl Thursday

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP) — Navarro Junior College of Texas will try to extend its Wool Bowl winning streak Thursday when it meets host New Mexico Military Institute in the annual bowl game here.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. MST.

Navarro has played in two other Wool Bowls, winning both times. The Bulldogs beat Grand Rapids, Mich., Junior College 21-0 in 1970 and blanked Fort Scott, Kansas, Community College, 17-0 in 1973.

NMMI has played six previous times in the bowl but the Broncos have managed to win only twice. NMMI last won the game in 1977, when it beat Independence Community College of Kansas, 38-28.

This season, Navarro posted a 7-3 record and finished second in the Texas Junior College Conference to unbeaten Kilgore Junior College. NMMI posted a 4-5 regular season mark.

Navarro, which runs the veer offense, is paced by halfback Eddie Hamilton, who rushed for more than 700 yards this season, and quarterback Fred Hensen, who passed for more than 1,000 yards.

Hessen's primary target has been wide receiver Lloyd Archie, who caught six touchdown passes and picked up 580 yards via passes this season.

NMMI's top running back is 5-foot-9, 188-pound halfback Jerry Jones, who ran for 519 yards this season. Kelvin Harper, who sat out much of the season with a shoulder injury, will start at quarterback for the Broncos.

DePaul best among Midwest teams

By JOE MOOSHIL
AP Sports Writer

Basketball talent abounds in the Midwest from the El tracks of Chicago which border DePaul University through the central plains which house the powerful Big Ten and Big Eight conferences.

Strong teams with superstars capable of great achievements dot the midlands but the preseason nod must go to DePaul.

Coach Ray Meyer, the grandfather figure, has a proven and veteran team returning led by All-American Mark Aguirre, player of the year last season, playmaker Clyde Bradshaw and awesome Terry Cummings.

The Blue Demons were picked second only to Kentucky in the preseason Associated Press poll, which is fine with Meyer whose team was No. 1 most of last season and then was ousted from the NCAA playoffs by UCLA.

DePaul isn't the only independent with lofty aspirations. Notre Dame is deep in talent with the likes of Kelly Trupka, Tracy Jackson and Orlando Woolridge. And Marquette has a winning tradition to pass onto freshman sensation Glenn Rivers.

The Big Ten calls itself the strongest conference in the nation from top to bottom and backed it up last season with a 77.9 winning percentage against nonconference opponents in addition to sending four teams into the NCAA Tournament and three more to the NIT.

Indiana and Ohio State appear to be a shade above the others. Iowa, which made it to the final four of the NCAA, is a title threat.

Minnesota lost Kevin McHale but Coach Jim Dutcher has developed a lot of young talent and watch out for Illinois.

Indiana returns 13 of 15 players from last year's championship team including playmaker Isaiah Thomas. Coach Bobby Knight also has outstanding players in Randy Wittmann, Ray Tolbert and Landon Turner.

Ohio State also has a veteran team with 6-11 Herb Williams ready to take over from Purdue's Joe Barry Carroll as the league's dominant "big man." Williams will be joined by Clark Kellogg and Jim Smith in the front line with Carter Scott in the backcourt.

Iowa has everyone back from the team that lost to Purdue in the consolation game of the NCAA except Ronnie Lester, who was hampered by injuries. Seniors Steve Krafcsin and Steve Waite, both 6-10, give Coach Lute Olson awesome size up front along with 6-6 Kevin Boyle, a unique talent.

Illinois has the forward tandem of Mark Smith and Eddie Johnson back along with centers Derek Holcomb and James Griffin. Freshman Derek Harper and junior college transfer Craig Tucker will solve Coach Lou Henson's backcourt problems.

The Big Eight has a national contender in Missouri but Kansas State and Kansas might not be far behind the Tigers.

Missouri has four starters returning, including 6-10 Steve Stipanovich, 6-8 Curtis Berry, 6-5 Ricky Frazier and Jon Sunvoid. But Mark Dressler, the sixth man last season, is out for the season because of a leg injury.

Kansas State has a superstar in 6-6 Trolando Blackman who made the Olympic squad. Injuries hampered Coach Jack Hartman's team last season but that didn't prevent Kansas State from giving NCAA champion Louisville its toughest game in the playoffs.

Kansas has Olympian Darnell Valentine returning and figures to improve its 15-14 record and challenge strongly in the Big Eight. Nebraska and Colorado figure as the darkhorses in the conference.

Bradley captured the Missouri Valley title last season by going from last to first, winning a number of cliffhangers along the way. The Braves, who again have Mitchell Anderson and his 20-point plus average, will be improved but hard pressed to shake the challenge of Wichita State.

Wichita State, led by 6-8 Cliff Livingston and 6-9 Antoine Carr, could be the favorite in the Valley. Creighton also could be a strong contender with the likes of 6-7 Kevin McKenna, George Morrow and 6-9 Jim Honz.

Lovola of Chicago will have a new coach in Gene Sullivan, an outstanding player in Darius Clemons and could repeat in the Midwestern City Conference.

Evansville, three years removed from the airline tragedy which wiped out the team, is expected to contend if 6-11 freshman Kenny Perry lives up to expectations.

The unpredictable Mid-American Conference has strong contenders in Northern Illinois and Bowling Green.

Northern is led by 6-9 Allen Rayhorn, one of four returning starters, and Bowling Green has four starters coming back from a 20-10 team which includes a budding star in sophomore Colin Irish, a leading scorer in Joe Faine plus 6-9 Mike Miday.

Ball State and defending champion Toledo appear to be the outsiders.

Prep coach to replace Devine

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Gerry Faust of Moeller High School in Cincinnati will travel a few miles up the road to become head football coach at Notre Dame, a destination that seems like a second home.

"I'm a strong believer in tradition and discipline in educating young people," Faust said Monday after being named to replace Dan Devine, who announced before the start of the season that this was his last year at Notre Dame.

"I don't believe there is a university in the country that combines these two items along with academic and athletic excellence better than Notre Dame does," added Faust, 45, who was to be introduced at a news conference today as the school's 24th head football coach.

Faust has been head coach at Moeller since 1963, during which time his teams have posted a 174-17-2 record. On Sunday, Moeller crushed Massillon 30-7 to win the Ohio Division I championship for the fifth time in the last six years.

Moeller finished the season with a 13-0 record, won 33 straight and 70 of the last 71 games. Moeller also captured 12 greater Cincinnati football championships and three mythical national titles.

While some might not consider a high school program — even a fantastically successful one like Moeller's — sufficient training for a major college job, Faust's organizational skills and his program rival those already in place at many colleges. Consider the following:

- At Moeller, Faust had 18 assistant coaches, 15 of them working full-time. The program also had 25 student managers.
- From the sophomore class up, some 210 players participate in the program out of a total enrollment of just more than 1,000 students.

UIL head says controversial rules needed in school athletic programs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Judges pressured by their friends and neighbors could destroy public school athletics if they keep interfering with school rules, says the director of the University Interscholastic League.

"Where we run into problems are the emotional cases in which a judge elected by the people in the community issues an injunction against a league rule. By the time we appeal it, the season's over. That's what kills us. It's going to wreck the league's program if it continues to increase," said Bailey Marshall.

UIL Athletic Director Bill Farney said such episodes have occurred in the past two years in Falfurrias, Marshall, Beaumont, Corpus Christi and Brownsville.

The non-profit UIL was organized in 1910 and has — through trial and error in cooperation with administrators — built a vast operation that oversees public school contests ranging from athletics to music and drama.

It has a reputation of playing no favorites in promptly punishing those who violate UIL rules.

The league's word was law and seldom questioned until two years ago when U.S. District Judge Finis Cowan issued a temporary restraining order to keep the league from declaring former Houston Madison star Greg Kite ineligible for attending a summer basketball camp.

In July of this year, federal judge George Ciro ruled the summer camp ban was unconstitutional.

The UIL appealed to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Marshall worries that a key point in the argument against the summer camp rule could affect every rule in the UIL book.

The argument is that the ban on summer basketball and football camps takes away parents' rights to decide how to educate their children.

"This really concerns us," Marshall said in an interview, "because our rules set seasons as far as workouts go, state that students cannot take a college course in music if they are in the (school) band and prohibit extra typing courses if they want to compete in (UIL) typing contests. All our rules could be affected if somebody wanted to pursue them."

Following a transfer. Seniors are exempt.

The rule withstood a class-action lawsuit this year but it is so unpopular that a special league committee proposed changes.

Basically, the committee proposal would abolish the one-year rule.

Any transfer student would be immediately eligible if his parents signed a statement — in the presence of school officials — that they had a bona fide resident in the new district and they were not moving for athletic purposes.

College Football

Why Hugh Green is No. 1 in 1980

By Murray Olderman

PITTSBURGH (NEA) — Hugh Green, the best college football player in the nation, is above all a realist. Being the best doesn't mean being recognized as such.

This is the time of year when they start passing out mythical awards. Prime among them, of course, is the Heisman Trophy, a hunk of bronze donated annually by the Downtown Athletic Club of New York to the top varsity player in the land. The winner is to be announced on Dec. 1.

Symbolically, the sculpture depicts a man with a football tucked under his arm in the act of running.

Hugh Green's forte, however, is running after the ball — an exercise he has done with great zest and remarkable accomplishment for four years at the University of Pittsburgh.

He received All-America attention as a freshman in 1977, the year he arrived from Natchez, Miss., to seek a college education. And he has been an undisputed All-America each of the last three years, one of the longest sustained defensive achievements in the history of college football.

But it won't, barring an epochal upset, win him the Heisman bauble.

That probably will go to the likes of South Carolina's George Rogers, college football's leading runner. And Hugh knows it.

"It's been an offensive player's award," said Hugh in a class — during which he met an inquisitive writer at the Pitt Gymnasium. "I'm the type of person that if I get involved with one goal, I'm going to go for it. I think about the Heisman, but I haven't my direct hopes put on it. If I give that 100 percent and really think I deserve it and don't get it, I'm depressed."

Hugh won't allow himself to get depressed because he knows that since 1949, when Leon Hart of Notre Dame picked up the trophy (he was a mountainous end, noted mostly for offense), no lineman has won the award.

Pitt, through publicity man Dean Billick, has projected Green as a superstar and mounted the obligatory campaign to get him national attention. But the problem is that once the season starts, defensive ends don't score touchdowns or make headlines.

There are dramatic aspects to the Green story. He came out of an all-black environment in the deep South, not the kind of kid you normally expect to see wind up at an urban school like Pitt. His mother died when he was young, but he was raised lovingly by an aunt in fairly comfortable surroundings.

Jackie Sherrill, the Pitt coach, found him because he was scouting a back from Pascagoula, Miss., named Rooster Jones. Sherrill (who was raised in Biloxi, Miss.) noticed in game films a kid from opposing North Natchez who was making every tackle. Green had already signed a conference letter of intent at Mississippi State. But he was persuaded, along with Jones, to come to Pitt.

The first time Green visited the campus, on a grim January day, he called his aunt and told her he was coming home. He didn't like all that "black snow" on the ground. But the genuine warmth of the people he met at the school reversed his decision.

"It was a challenge to me," he recalled. "I sort of opened up things for a lot of guys down South. Guys from my school who had ventured out to big schools couldn't handle it emotionally. And it's been good for me. I've traveled on NCAA tours with people like Jerry Robinson (UCLA and the Philadelphia Eagles) and Rolland James (Tennessee and the New England Patriots), and that helps me. People expect you to speak with a deep South accent, but I don't."

When the football season started, Green was a regular from the first game of his varsity career — on national television against Notre Dame, though he was held out for the first play. He came in at 6 feet and 202 pounds, modest size for the battle in the pits. But he told Sherrill, who was thinking of making him a line-backer, that he felt more comfortable at defensive end.

SWC stats Bears' McElroy has firm lead in interceptions

By The Associated Press

The Southwest Conference football team race is over—in more ways than one—but there will be a bunch of individual races decided Saturday in the final round of games. Baylor has the 66th championship locked up, Houston can do no worse than tie for second and SMU can do no worse than tie for third.

Team statistical leads are almost as cut and dried. Baylor appears to have the total offense, rushing offense and rushing defense titles tucked safely away and TCU has a comfortable cushion in pass offense.

That leaves only total defense and passing defense to be settled. Texas would need to hold A&M to less than 113 yards Saturday to replace Baylor as the total defense leader and Arkansas would have to limit Texas Tech to less than 207 passing yards to hold its pass defense lead.

Individually, it's a whole different ball game as Baylor's Vann McElroy appears to be the only leader with a championship assured. McElroy has eight interceptions for the season with Texas' Mike Hatchett, Texas A&M's Leandrew Brown and Texas Tech's Tate Randle all needing three in their final appearances Saturday to catch the Baylor junior.

Baylor's Walter Abercrombie is also closing in on a pair of titles. He has a 279-yard rushing lead and a 304-yard tandem-offense lead on A&M's Johnny Hector, the only player with a chance to catch him in either.

Hector gained 191 yards last Saturday in the Aggie's 13-10 victory over TCU, moving from sixth to second in rushing. Otherwise, everything is too close to call, even by national-television election projection standards.

TCU's Steve Stamp moved back into the total-offense lead as Baylor held Texas' Donnie Little to a net of six yards. Stamp finished his season with 156.3 yards per game. Little needing 210 yards against the Aggies to catch him and Arkansas' Tom Jones needing 383.

All passing and receiving categories are still up in the air. Six of the seven passing-efficiency leaders will be in action Saturday, as will six of the top nine receivers. Tech's Renie Baker needs eight catches to pull even with leader Bobby Stewart of TCU, who completed his season Saturday with 46 receptions.

Arkansas' Steve Cox, owner of the nation's top punting average all season, is getting a late challenge from SMU's Eric Kaifes. The latter completed his season Saturday with a 44.6-yard average on 68 punts, now trails Cox by 2.1 yard per kick.

SMU kicker Eddie Garcia is leading SWC scorers by just a tenth-point over Texas kicker John Goodson. Goodson needs seven points to tie or eight to overtake Garcia. Just 3.1 yards separate the top two kickoff returners Derek Holloway of Arkansas (23.9) and Billy Cannon of A&M (20.8). And Houston's Lonell Phea has a 1.4-yard lead over SMU's John Simmons in punt returns. Phea can retain that lead against Rice Saturday.

SCHOOL BOARD STYMIED ON NEW MEMBER
DALLAS (AP) — After five hours of voting — 36 ballots — Dallas school board members retired Monday night without deciding who should fill a vacant board seat.

The place 5 position was vacated in May when trustee Robert Price resigned because of an apparent conflict with state nepotism laws. Board members then chose attorney Lorenzo Brown to fill the unexpired portion of Price's term, but last week a court ruled Brown ineligible to serve because he failed to meet the letter of state election law requirements.

Trustees were supposed to pick Brown's successor Monday night but, after narrowing the field to three candidates, could not agree on a winner. The most votes any of the candidates received was four, and five are needed to pick a new trustee.

Finally, at 11:30 p.m., board member Jerry Bartos announced he had other business to attend to and walked out of the meeting, whereupon the remaining members voted to adjourn until 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The business of Brown's successor will resume then.

DALLAS CITY MANAGER TO LEAVE POST NEXT YEAR
DALLAS (AP) — Dallas City Manager George Schrader may be leaving the city in less than a year, the Dallas Morning News said Monday.

Schrader hinted that 1981 will be his last year with the City of Dallas, the newspaper said, during a municipal retreat at Lake Texoma earlier this month.

The city manager told the gathering he hoped "somebody will send me an invitation" for the opening of a new central library, scheduled to be dedicated in late 1981.

Schrader's departure would not surprise many members of the Dallas City Council. In fact, one council member has suggested privately that the biggest challenge the council will face next year will be picking a new city manager.

Schrader has been the target of some isolated but bitter complaints by city employees the past six months, particularly by bus drivers during the recent, ill-fated strike against the city transit system. They accused the manager of being cold and aloof, and refusing to discuss their demands.

THREE RECOUNTS NEEDED IN RACE FOR CLERK
MCKINNEY (AP) — It took three recounts and almost three weeks to decide who had been elected Collin County clerk but when the smoke had cleared, Margie Craft had won.

By one vote.

Mrs. Craft was sworn in Monday after county commissioners completed a canvass of votes in her battle against Democrat Helen Starnes, a former chief deputy clerk.

The Republican asked for a recount after early results showed Mrs. Starnes had won by a 291-vote margin.

The recount showed Mrs. Craft, appointed to the job last summer, had won by a 41-vote margin. But a second recount cut the margin to five votes.

Mrs. Starnes then requested a manual recount and was declared the winner, by the slimmest possible margin.

CHURCH FINED ON GAMBLING CHARGE
SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A judge has fined the First Church of Divine Truth $500 on its plea of no contest to a charge it attempted to set up and promote a gambling operation.

Judge Carolyn Spears also ordered that $4,000 in cash confiscated in a raid on a bingo operation be turned over to the state.

Attorney Stewart J. Alexander entered the plea Monday in Bexar County Court-at-Law on behalf of the church, located near Canyon Lake. In a plea bargain, the judge ordered equipment seized in an Aug. 15 raid returned to the church and dismissed felony gambling promotion indictments returned recently against five members of the church's congregation.

DRIVERS REJECT CONTRACT
SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Bus drivers have rejected a new contract on grounds it would last two years rather than one year, according to a drivers' union official.

Officials for the union and VIA Metropolitan Transit continued negotiations for a new contract after the drivers voted 221-101 Monday to reject a contract proposal.

A union official who did not want to be identified said the drivers generally liked a proposed 10 percent wage increase, but wanted a one-year contract instead of two years.

The drivers currently earn $6.37 an hour. The current contract, which will expire next July, provides for two 10 cents an hour wages by next April 1.

TEENAGER SHOT BY POLICE
SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A teen-age suspect shot in the leg by a police officer was listed in fair condition Tuesday at Bexar County Hospital.

Patrolman Chrisoforo Vieyra Jr., pursuing on foot two suspects who abandoned a stolen pickup truck, said he fired the shot at one of the youths who appeared to be carrying something in his hand after both teen-agers refused his warnings to stop.

The shooting happened after the two youths drove into a used car lot in one pickup, parked it, got into another and fled with police in pursuit.

GEORGETOWN HIGH SCHOOL TAKES HONORS
AUSTIN (AP) — Georgetown High School took top honors Tuesday in the state marching band contest cut short by cold and rainy weather.

Georgetown won the Class 4A competition based on its afternoon performance. The evening portion of the contest was cancelled because of the weather.

Medina Valley won the 3A contest, and Castroville won in A. The 5A contest went to Austin Crockett on Monday. Howe won the 2A contest.

ATTORNEY GENERAL UPHOLDS CITY DECISION
AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Mark White said Tuesday the city of Port Neches does not have to disclose the amount of a gift pledged by a donor until the gift is made.

The opinion was requested by H.P. Wright, Port Neches city attorney.

A donor has pledged a substantial sum to the city to build a library. However, the donor has asked the amount be kept secret until paid in full by Feb. 1.

White said the city "need not" disclose the amount until the donation is made.

MAN ORDERED TO MENTAL HOSPITAL
AUSTIN (AP) — William Riley, accused of murdering and dismembering Austin car salesman Jack Cooney III in 1976, has been transferred from Rusk State Hospital — a maximum security unit — to Austin State Hospital.

Travis County District Attorney Ronald Earle said Riley, 29, was transferred here after psychiatrists at Rusk determined he was no longer "manifestly dangerous."

But Police Sgt. Bill Landes, who worked on the case, said, "Everyone in Austin is in danger as long as that man's out there."

Earle said although mental health officials no longer consider Riley "manifestly dangerous," they maintain he is still not competent to be tried in the shooting death of Cooney.

"This is their world of smoke and mirrors," said Earle.

Cooney's headless, handless and legless torso was found on a sandbar in the middle of the Brazos River near Hearne, about 100 miles northeast of Austin.

Two-day work week solves nursing problem in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Faced with a crippling shortage of nurses, officials at Baylor University Medical Center came up with a unique work program they hope will cure critical staffing ills and boost the morale of its nurses.

The plan — called the TwoDay Alternative — employs nurses for two 12-hour shifts on Saturdays and Sundays for full salary. Those nurses have the rest of the week off.

The hospital's other nurses now will work Monday through Friday, a work week almost unheard of in the 24-hour profession.

"The nurses are overjoyed, they're ecstatic," said nurse recruiter Carole Ellerbe. "I think we are going to have some nurses more happy in their careers and we are close to filling our vacancies."

The weekend workers be on the job for 12 hours for two stretches on Saturday and Sunday. The day-shift weekenders will be paid for a 36-hour week, the late shift will get paid for 40 hours and both categories will enjoy the same benefits other staff nurses receive.

"It's great," concurred Tricia Ault, a pulmonary-unit nurse. "They work 24 hours, yet they are paid for 36 to 40 hours with full benefits. Can you imagine that?"

Mrs. Ault predicted that other Dallas-area hospitals will go to the same plan because their nurses are "leaving like you wouldn't believe."

"It will mean extra money and so much extra time," said Maureen Brewer. "Time is money. If I can work 24 hours and get the same pay, I certainly will."

The hospital administration also is happy, since a severe shortage of nurses at the facility apparently has been alleviated by the plan. The hospital had been averaging 40 nursing vacancies per shift.

But after announcing the plan, personnel workers interviewed 200 nurses and hired 100 of them in five days. Most quit other nursing jobs.

"That's not bad for one week's shot," said senior vice president Bob Hilly. "It just might be good enough for the Guinness Book of World Records."

Baylor, like many other hospitals in this area, was hit by as many as 20 new vacancies a month as unhappy nurses left for other jobs with better pay and more flexible working conditions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Conditions affecting you and your family are beginning to change for the better. Evidence of this may be apparent today, but don't press too hard.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Park up your ears today when one whose opinion you trust offers advice and counsel. He or she may have the solution which has been evading you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Much can be accomplished today, but it may be necessary to be a bit more assertive. Put yourself on a schedule that competes industriously.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your instincts in business or money matters are quite good today. Listen to what others have to say without diluting the value of your own ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This should prove to be a lucky day in matters where you're involved with important persons. You'll know how to conduct yourself for maximum advantage.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) To achieve what you hope to gain today, a second effort may be required. This should be no problem. You'll have ample reserves to draw upon.

Y.O. Ranch holds first longhorn production sale Family services workers second-guessing budget MOUNTAIN HOME, Texas — Under sunny Mountain Home skies, Oct. 31 marked the first Y.O. Ranch longhorn production sale.

Auctioneer Eddie Wood of Wynnewood, Okla., gavelled off 64 head of registered longhorns for a per lot average of $2,967.

Gary Green of Van Horn, Texas, and Red McCombs of San Antonio participated as guest consignors. Green's three heifers averaged $2,233; and his bull brought $1,900 for a total average of $2,150. The Y.O. sold 55 lots for an overall average of $2,951, as four bulls averaged $2,350 and 51 heifers $2,998.

Pediatric Cardiology of Santa Rosa Hospital in San Antonio received $1,100 as Red McCombs purchased a young buffalo heifer. The Schreiner Family, owners of the Y.O. Ranch, donated the animal with all proceeds to the hospital.

This event was one more celebration for the Y.O. Ranch's centennial year, which has been commemorated with previous events of a Centennial Gala Celebration — a black tie and boots affair for over 3,000 guests in April — the 1980 Trail Drive Reunion in April and the Seventh Annual Longhorn Sale on the Y.O. in June.

The second annual Y.O. production sale will be conducted Friday, Oct. 23, 1981.

Family services workers second-guessing budget

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Agencies concerned about the welfare of children and families should expect to face legislators head-on to spend while there are programs, a Houston-area senator says.

And while there are indications the 1981 Legislature might be reluctant to spend funds to protect battered children and families in crisis, Sen. Chet Brooks said he still is optimistic money will be available.

"Just because a person bears the title of conservative or Republican doesn't scare me off," said the Democrat from Pasadena.

Brooks told a forum Tuesday that three Legislative Budget Board members had blocked funds to protect abused children, but he promised protection money would be placed in the state budget after the lawmaking session starts Jan. 13.

"We will scratch, scrounge, divert and do the best we can on a priority basis," said Brooks, chairman of the Senate Committee on Human Resources.

"I think there's reason to be hopeful," he said. "I think you will see some good decisions made both in legislation and funding."

L. Fredrik Buss of Austin, president of the Texas Institute for Families, said a national preoccupation with productivity gives persons interested in human services "a very practical kind of leverage" because "family members under stress cannot be a productive worker."

"Just gossiping about it won't do," he said in urging legislative lobbying.

Brooks said he visited state prison units last week, and the overcrowding is so bad that "the only reason we haven't had something worse than Santa Fe, N.M., is the administration is enlightened enough to forestall it" by stressing educational services and work programs.

Three prisoners are sleeping in cells designed for one, five are housed in cells designed for three and up to 130 prisoners are sleeping in dormitories that should hold 80, he said.

In an effort to deal with overcrowding, Brooks said, round-the-clock work shifts are being used so one-third of the prisoners are "on the job at all times."

"We obviously have to address this question this session," said Brooks.

Brooks said in the past year 6,000 instances of staff injury by patients have been reported by the state's mental hospitals and schools for the retarded. He said $6 million in worker's compensation has been paid to persons in human services in the past year with $4 million going to mental health workers. "This is a very good example of the magnitude of the problem," he said.

Brooks and Buss, a savings and loan vice president, spoke to the Issues Forum for Children and Families, sponsored by the Texas Institute for Families and United Way.

Psychic helps police in investigation

SAN ANGELO (AP) — Police say a Dallas psychic has given investigators "extremely sensitive" new information in the effort to track down the bandit who killed a jewelry store clerk nine months ago.

Police Chief Travis Johnson said authorities contacted John Catchings after the self-described psychic helped locate the body of a missing Ennis electrician last month.

He said Catchings provided details on 10 different aspects of the investigation during an initial 90-minute meeting with police at an undisclosed date.

Catchings also led authorities to a 22-caliber firearm that police believe the bandit may have used to shoot Sheila Gay Elrod, 22, to death on Feb. 12.

Ms. Elrod was apparently alone when an unknown number of bandits robbed the store of jewelry valued at $100,000. Authorities said she was shot five times.

Johnson said divers searched for two days before finding the weapon in the Concho River near two downtown-area bridges. He declined to provide any more details about the firearm, which was sent to Dallas for ballistic tests.

"The first thing he (Catchings) told us was that the weapon was in the mud under the bridge," Johnson told the San Angelo Standard-Times in an article published Tuesday.

Johnson declined to divulge any specific details, saying the "information is extremely sensitive."

"The investigation is continuing. That's all I can say at this time," said Johnson.

Johnson said Catchings is helping with the investigation free of charge, but noted that a $15,000 reward is being offered for information in the case.

"I would guess Catchings would be entitled to the reward when the case is resolved," he said.

TV's Flo has 'twin' with Boston accent

By Anita Gogno

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (NEA) - "I'll have a tuna and cheese delight," says the businessman in a slightly rumpled suit as he maneuvers onto a stool at the lunch counter. "Hiya, Bill! How 'bout a little afternoon dee-light, ha-ha," laughs the shapely manager as her customers exchange grins. "You know, she reminds me so much of that waitress on TV. What's her name? Flo, yeah, Flo." murmurs a young woman to her companion.

remind them of Flo," Mrs. Francavage admits. "I always say I wish I had her money. Even little old ladies tug me on the sleeve and say, 'You look like that one on TV.'"

Ann Francavage's reddish-auburn hair is worn in a high upsweep much like Flo's. And her mischievous eyes sparkle in the same way when she spins an amusing yarn for her customers.

Mrs. Francavage's resemblance to Flo is not intentional. "My daughter does my hair like this," she says. "And I guess that's the big thing, the hair. Oh, and the jokes."

Jokes are frequent at the lunch counter, as observers can surmise from Mrs. Francavage's infectious laughter.

"Some of the customers look flabbergasted when I tell 'em my jokes," she says. "They say, 'Where'd you ever hear that one?' I tell 'em I keep a file on jokes the customers tell me."

Mrs. Francavage watches her television lookalike and enjoys "Alice." But she hasn't seen many episodes of "Flo."

"Flo says 'kiss mah grits' when she gets excited," says Mrs. Francavage. "I say 'my livin' nerves.'"

Do her nerves bother her when business is especially heavy at the lunch counter? "It never gets to me," she replies. "I just joke it off. It eases the tension."

At luncheon, almost every booth and table is occupied. Still, Mrs. Francavage always takes a minute to greet customers by their first names.

Unlike the Texas-bred Flo, Mrs. Francavage is a native of Boston. A trace of her accent is evident as she speaks.

But she has lived in this Pennsylvania town since her wedding 32 years ago to a Pottsville sailor who was stationed in Boston. They have six children and four grandchildren.

Crew evacuated from drifting pipeline barge

PORT ARANSAS, Texas (AP) - A tugboat battled choppy seas and high winds in the Gulf of Mexico early today while trying to steer a drifting pipeline barge away from offshore oil rigs, the Coast Guard said.

Helicopter crews evacuated 11 crewmen from the "Enterprise" Tuesday before the tug arrived to keep the barge clear of rigs located about 15 miles southeast of Corpus Christi, officials said.

The Coast Guard said 29 crewmen stayed on board while a larger tugboat attempted to tie on a line and pull the barge in port.

The "Enterprise" radioed a distress message about 3:20 p.m. Tuesday after it broke loose from its moorings near Mustang Island.

Helicopter rescue units were called in immediately because 60 mph winds and swells of up to 20 feet made a sea rescue impossible, authorities said.

The whole thing was swaying and rocking when the helicopters got to us," said crewman Junior Sunday. "But the helicopters were pretty steady and started hoisting us out. We weren't desperate to get off, but we saw the opportunity."

The smaller tug was not able to pull the barge into port, increasing the danger of a possible collision with an oil rig, officials said. The vessel was not believed to be in danger of running aground.

Coast Guard officials said a tow line broke and a tugboat pulling the "Enterprise" slammed into the barge. The barge then was anchored in the gulf while the tugboat headed for shore to seek medical attention for a youth who suffered a broken leg and arm in the collision.

The barge broke free of the anchor in choppy seas, officials said.

A Coast Guard officer, who asked not to be identified, said 29 crewmen elected to remain aboard the vessel after another tugboat attached a tow line.

The barge had drifted to within two miles of Mustang Island, located east of Corpus Christi, by the time a tow line was place on the vessel, the Coast Guard officer said.

Representatives of the owner, Martech International of Louisiana, said crewmen were forced to abandon a $100,000 pipe-laying apparatus when the anchor lines snapped.

Strong tremor felt at Mount St. Helens

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) - A strong harmonic tremor, one of the biggest to rock the volcano recently, rumbled under Mount St. Helens early today, a U.S. Forest Service spokesman said.

The subterranean shaking may mean the mountain is building to another eruption, said Ben Hurliman, night director at the Forest Service volcano center.

"It was one of the bigger ones we've had so far," he said.

"It started out with a pretty good burst, lasted two or three minutes and still has some quiver to it," he said about a half-hour after the tremor began.

A University of Washington geophysics spokesman said the tremor began at 2:43 a.m. PST and appeared slightly larger than a seismic burst at 8:54 p.m. Monday. Harmonic tremors have continued at a low level for about a week, first beginning Nov. 17.

The tremors, named for their rhythmic motion on seismographs in contrast to the sharp jolts of earthquakes, indicate the movement of molten rock within the mountain.

SNOW BLANKETS FIELD EQUIPMENT Tuesday in Pampa. Pampa officially recorded five inches of snow, netting .31 inch of precipitation. The low this morning of 12 degrees is a record for this date in Pampa. Snow and moisture left on city streets was a frozen sheet of ice for drivers today.

Bus shooting related to walkout, driver says

DALLAS (AP) - A Dallas Transit System driver whose bus apparently was fired upon Tuesday says he believes the incident was related to a month-long walkout.

"I worked all the way through the strike, and I had threats and whatever, but I ignored all that and kept working," said Charles Moseley.

Although no bullet was found in the bus, police said they believed the projectile that shattered a window came from a small-caliber pistol.

No one was injured.

Two men were taken into custody shortly after the incident was reported at 8:35 a.m., but were cleared later. One of them, however, was booked on an unrelated charge when a .22-caliber pistol was found inside his car.

Officials say hurricane aid stalled in red tape

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - Four months after Hurricane Allen slammed into South Texas, officials of the stricken cities complain that they are helplessly mired in a frustrating tangle of federal red tape.

Lower Rio Grande Valley mayors told a Texas Coastal and Marine Council hearing that they have been stonewalled and short-changed by the government agency set up to ease the flow of federal relief funds.

"We've spent $10,000 picking up brush alone," Mayor Jeff Burke of Rio Hondo said at the Tuesday hearing. "They've offered us about that much for all our damage, including only $3,800 for roads."

Burke and others were critical of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

"We had potholes before the storm and now the road bases are damaged. I feel like FEMA is responsible for our roads being totally destroyed," Burke said of his city of 2,000.

FEMA representative Bill McCada attended the council meeting, but offered no explanation of its operations.

Port Isabel Mayor Quirino Martinez told of a similar problem with road repairs. He said officials at the bayfront resort community estimated highway damage at $325,000 but federal officials offered only $48,000.

"We'll just have to let some roads go down the drain," Martinez said. "The federal people gave us six months to appeal and show that our roads deteriorated that much."

FEMA has received more than 28,000 applications for aid such as Small Business Administration loans, family grants, income tax credits and temporary housing.

Brownsville Mayor Emilio Hernandez complained that the FEMA "one-stop" disaster office for the area should have been located closer to the coast, instead of in Harlingen, 25 inland.

FEMA officials said they decided on Harlingen because of its central location to residents of McAllen, Edinburg and other Lower Rio Grande Valley towns.

"Many people had no way to get to Harlingen," Hernandez said.

Sens. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, and Raul Longoria, D-Edinburg, criticized FEMA disaster coordinator Dale Milford, for not sending someone to testify at the hearing.

"You go back and tell Mr. Milford that he's a public servant and taxpayers pay his salary," Longoria told McCada. Truan said Milford had told him in a letter that he probably would be able to meet with the council in November.

Officials said there was little they could do to avoid evacuation traffic jams like the ones that developed as thousands fled the coast while Allen churned in the Gulf of Mexico.

"We do not know how many people were responding to the mayor's recommendation to evacuate," said Jack Goolsby, Brownsville civil defense director. "No one has any capability to determine where they (residents) are going to go and when."

South Padre Island Mayor Glen McGehee said his town recently passed an ordinance requiring an engineer's seal on seawalls built in the resort community. Hurricane Allen's 12-foot surges eroded sand under and behind several seawalls, causing foundation damage to a few beachfront buildings.

McGehee repeated his complaints voiced earlier this fall about insurance adjusters being lax at settling flood and wind policy claims.

"They seemed to settle a lot of small claims first, to get a good image, and then waited on the bigger ones to fight the big battles."

Tasty Fare TO TOAST THE Holiday Season

The holiday season is a time for crackling fires glowing in the hearth, with the house, its rooms polished and shining, filled with the fragrance of home-baking inviting one and all to come home again. As the tantalizing aromas waft throughout the house, diners will have little trouble forecasting that the holiday feast will be something truly special.

It is a busy time for the cook whose gifts from the oven make each holiday memorable. Yet if the cook is to enjoy the holidays as much as her guests, she must devise numerous short-cuts that will limit time spent in the kitchen. The idea is to serve a maximum of guests with a minimum of fuss. These holiday recipes require a minimum of time to prepare and will help cooks to join in the season's festivities.

DELICIOUS CREATIONS for the Christmas holidays can be made in a jiffy with frozen puff pastry. Here the basic pastry dough has been fashioned into different shapes and sprinkled with nuts or sugar or filled with raspberry jam as in the little square tartlets.

HOME FOR the holidays and a get-together dinner with old friends in front of a glowing fire features a luscious roast chicken dressed with a delicious package corn bread stuffing that has been enhanced with sausage and apricots and chopped nut meats.

This recipe for roast chicken dressed with a luscious Apricot Corn Bread Stuffing is perfect for a get-together dinner during the holiday season.

- CHICKEN WITH HOLIDAY CORN BREAD STUFFING
- 1 pound bulk sausage
 - 1 1/2 cups chopped onion
 - 1/2 cup chopped celery
 - 1/2 cup apple juice or water
 - 1 package (8 ounces) corn bread stuffing
 - 1 1/2 cups chopped pecans or walnuts
 - 1/4 cup chopped parsley
 - 2 cans (17 ounces each) apricot halves or peach slices, juice reserved

1 chicken, about 6 pounds salt and pepper to taste juice of 1 lemon

In a large skillet, break up sausage and cook until browned. Add onion and celery, cook until tender. Add apple juice, bring to a boil. Add stuffing, nuts, parsley and apricots; mix lightly. Wash chicken and pat dry. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Stuff body and neck cavities and sew or skewer openings. Pack remaining stuffing in a small, greased casserole. Roast chicken at 350 degrees for 2 hours, or until leg can be moved up and down easily. Bake casserole 30 minutes or until hot. Mix reserved apricot juice and lemon juice. Brush chicken with juice every 15 minutes during roasting. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

The cook will be able to join in the pre-dinner festivities, for once the roast is placed in the oven, it requires little attention. The question of doneness can be answered accurately with a roast meat thermometer.

For the roast to be at its flavorful, tender best, it is important that it be cooked slowly from the beginning to the end. While it was once sometimes thought that a roast should be seared or cooked at a high temperature at the beginning to seal in the juices, it is now known that cooking at a high temperature actually causes loss of juices. Cooking at a slow, constant oven temperature means the roast is more uniformly cooked. Less attention is required, there is less spattering and the roasting pan is easier to clean.

For a festive accompanying salad featuring holiday colors serve the beef roast with eye-catching Crunchy Celery Circles. Celery ribs are filled with a cream cheese mixture, assembled in a log shape and cut into circular slices that are served on tomato slices. Horseradish, chopped walnuts and chopped pimiento add flavor interest to the cream cheese, making it especially complimentary to the roast beef.

- BEEF RIB ROAST
- 3 to 4-rib beef rib roast
- * Place roast, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in the thickest part of roast. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees F.) to desired degree of doneness. The meat thermometer will register

140 degrees F. for rare; 160 degrees F. for medium; 170 degrees F. for well done. (Since roasts usually continue to cook after removal from oven, it is best to remove them when thermometer registers about 5 degrees F. below the temperature of doneness desired.) For a 4 to 6-pound roast, allow 26-32 minutes per pound for rare, 34-38 minutes for medium and 40-42 minutes for well done. For a 6 to 8-pound roast, allow 23-25 minutes per pound for rare, 27-30 for medium and 32-35 for well done. For easier carving, allow roast to "stand" in a warm place 15-20 minutes after removal from oven.

- CRUNCHY CELERY CIRCLES
- 1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese, softened
 - 3 tablespoons chopped walnuts
 - 1 teaspoon prepared horseradish
 - 1/4 teaspoon onion salt
 - 1 jar (2 ounces) chopped pimiento, drained
 - 7 to 8 ribs celery hearts, 6 inches long
 - 2 medium tomatoes, each cut crosswise into 4 slices
- Combine cream cheese, walnuts, horseradish and onion salt; stir in pimiento. Generously fill 3 to 4 of the smallest ribs with cheese mixture; press filled sides together to form a circle. Fill remaining ribs with cheese mixture; press each against celery cylinder. Spread remaining cheese mixture in between ribs and form into a large cylinder. Wrap and chill thoroughly. Cut crosswise into 3/4-inch circular slices. Place each celery circle on a tomato slice and serve on lettuce. 6 servings.

Although quite different in fact and flavor, each of these holiday treats is made with a delicate puff pastry. If you think that making Christmas goodies with puff pastry might be too difficult and time-consuming, you needn't worry. Each of these delicious creations is easily made with wonderfully convenient frozen puff pastry which does away with all the chores of sifting, mixing, rolling and chilling of the dough.

- CARAMELIZED PUFF PASTRY COOKIES
- 1 sheet frozen puff pastry
 - water
 - granulated sugar
- Thaw pastry 20 minutes at room temperature. Unfold and cut with a small biscuit cutter into 1 1/2-inch rounds; roll each round on a lightly floured surface to a 3-inch-long oval. Spread sugar, 1/8-inch thick, on a flat surface. Brush one side of each over lightly with water. Put ovals, moistened-side-down, on sugar. Press lightly with fingers to make sugar stick and then transfer, sugared-side-up, to ungreased baking sheet. After all pastry ovals have been sugared, put baking sheet in refrigerator to chill 30 minutes. (This will ensure even baking.) Bake cookies, in a preheated 450 degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes until puffed, and sugar caramelizes and turns a light golden brown. Watch cookies carefully and remove them as they are done. Makes 25 cookies.

- RASPBERRY KISSES
- 1 sheet frozen puff pastry
 - 1 egg beaten with 1 teaspoon water
 - raspberry jelly
- Thaw pastry sheet 20 minutes, then unfold. On a lightly floured surface roll to 18-x-12-inches. Cut in half crosswise to make 2 (9-x-12-inch) rectangles. Brush one rectangle with egg mixture and cut into 1 1/2-inch squares. Top each with about 1/2 teaspoon jelly. Cut other sheet into 1 1/2-inch squares and cut a small "X" in the center of each; put on top of jelly-topped squares. Press edges together to seal and put on ungreased baking sheets. Chill until ready to bake. Bake tartlettes in preheated 425 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes until puffed and golden brown. Transfer to wire racks to cool completely. If desired, after baking add more jelly to each tartlette. Makes about 48 tartlettes.

- PUFFED WALNUT TWISTS
- 1 package (17 1/4 ounces) frozen puff pastry sheets
 - 1 egg beaten with 1 teaspoon water

- 1/4 cup granulated sugar
 - 1/2 cup ground walnuts or almonds
- Thaw pastry 20 minutes, then unfold. Brush each pastry sheet with egg mixture and sprinkle evenly with sugar and walnuts. Cut each sheet lengthwise into two rectangles. Cut rectangles crosswise into 1 1/2-inch-wide strips. Twist strips to make a spiral and place on ungreased baking sheet. Bake in a preheated 400 degree oven for 15 to 18 minutes until puffed and golden brown. Transfer to wire racks to cool completely before serving. Makes about 80 twists.

- LOVE KNOTS
- 1 package (17 1/4 ounces) frozen puff pastry sheets
 - confectioners' sugar
- Thaw pastry sheets 20 minutes and unfold. On a lightly floured surface roll one sheet to a 16-x-10-inch rectangle. Cut lengthwise along fold lines to make three strips. Cut each strip crosswise at 2-inch intervals to make a total of 24 small rectangles. Using a small sharp knife cut a 2-inch-long slit in the center of each rectangle; pull the short end through the slit to twist. Put on an ungreased baking sheet. Repeat with remaining rectangles, chill or freeze until ready to bake. Bake knots in a preheated 425 degree oven for 10 to 12 minutes until puffed and golden brown. Transfer to wire racks to cool completely and then toss in confectioners' sugar to coat well. Makes about 48 love knots.

- HOLIDAY NUT STICKS
- 1 package (17 1/4 ounces) frozen puff pastry sheets
 - 1 egg white
 - 1 cup confectioners' sugar
 - 2 cups coarsely chopped walnuts
- Thaw pastry sheets 20 minutes. In a small bowl mix egg white and sugar until smooth and creamy. Unfold pastry sheets; spread each evenly with about 3 tablespoons sugar mixture. Sprinkle with nuts. Cut each sheet lengthwise into 3 rectangles (10-x-3-each). Cut each rectangle crosswise into strips measuring 1-x-3-inches. Put strips on ungreased baking sheets and bake in a preheated 375 degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes or until puffed and golden brown. Cool on wire racks. Makes about 60 sticks.

- Chocolate Sticks
- Substitute 2 squares (2 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate, finely grated and 2-3rd cup chopped candied fruits for the walnuts in the above Nut Sticks recipe.

FOR A HOLIDAY meal of good food and good cheer, serve an impressive beef rib roast with a colorful celery and tomato accompaniment.

THE WEEDER'S GUIDE

By Earl Aronson

Of all the holidays, Thanksgiving seems the most appropriate time to dress up the table with fruits, vegetables and nuts as well as flowers and plants.

A display of horticultural products will add much to the festive occasion. Table centerpieces of fresh fruit and vegetables go back as far as our colonial days, when fresh flowers were not available so late in the season.

Today it is easy to make an arrangement of red and yellow apples, oranges, grapes and bananas, not only for their color but to help satisfy the Thanksgiving appetite. The supply may be replenished as they disappear.

Add dried flowers, colored leaves, grains and nuts. You can still find oak leaves, pine needles and acorns to point up the season's bounty. Our holly bushes this season have produced bountiful red berries and shining green leaves that last a long time.

Arrangements with dried materials may be enjoyed for weeks, even until the Christmas holidays.

Here are a few suggestions for decorating the table:

Carve out the inside of a pumpkin. Insert a saucer and set a potted flowering or foliage plant in it. Even a small pumpkin with a 3-or-4-inch pot of trailing ivy makes an attractive centerpiece. A few straw flowers inserted will add color.

A scooped-out larger pumpkin may be filled with fruit. Just cut off the top, scrape out seeds and pulp and fill it with the fruits available in the market at this time. Holly twigs or other foliage or plants will make it even more attractive. Scallop or make designs on the rim.

Wicker baskets filled with flowers or fruit, corn, squash and carrots are another possibility. Look around the house for likely containers, urns or oriental vases from which vines may cascade. Dry pussywillow branches can provide tall effects. Fill a bowl with bright maple leaves or yellow mums.

We know of one junior garden club that made table favors of "turkeys" and distributed them to a nursing home for Thanksgiving. They used 3-inch pine cones for bodies, pipe cleaners for legs, construction paper for tails and heads, and pasted them on cardboard. Another project was dried arrangements, utilizing Chinese lanterns, milkweed pods, bitternest, snowberries and small pine cones.

As a cornucopia of late season vegetables, cauliflower, cabbage, broccoli and radishes will offer a splash of green and a bit of red.

Other decorative possibilities are Indian corn, heads of grains, such as sorghum, and colored leaves. Bronze chrysanthemums are excellent.

One thing to remember when using fresh fruit and vegetables with flowers in the same arrangement: Fresh fruit and vegetables give off ethylene gas which tends to shorten the life of fresh flowers.

The City of New York recently received as a gift from Tokyo a 328-year-old "Shogun" lantern, 10 feet tall and weighing 3 tons, and installed it in the Brooklyn Botanic Garden.

A feudal lord dedicated the stone lantern on April 20, 1682, at the Kan'ei Temple in Ueno Park, Tokyo, to the memory of the third Shogun, Tokugawa Iemitsu. The gift commemorates the 20th anniversary of the sister-city relationship between Tokyo and New York. The lantern is made of Komatsu, a stone now rare. It is near the entrance to the Japanese Hill and Pond Garden, which was designed in 1915 by the Japanese architect, Takeo Shoto.

(Any queries about gardening problems must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Laser levels fields

SACATON, Ariz. (AP) — Laser beams are being used to level Gila River Indian Reservation farm fields, saving thousands of acre-feet of water annually in irrigation, a spokesman for the farms says.

The leveling effort has been an annual affair since 1968, but it wasn't until two years ago that, guided by the laser beams, workers were able to hone the fields to a nearly flat surface.

"We used to eyeball it to see if it was flat," said Jack Palmer, who has been the farms' manager for 12 years. He predicted farms will use the laser technique increasingly "because it's a more efficient use of water."

A farm will use from 30 percent to 40 percent less water by switching to laser-beam leveling, Palmer said, depending on "how bad a condition you were in at first."

Since planting and harvesting are done year-round on almost all of the farms' 16,000 acres, leveling the fields also is a constant task.

A laser device, rented from a Casa Grande company, is mounted on a pole 12 to 15 feet above the ground in the center of fields being leveled. The device emits a signal picked up by a sensor mounted on a box scraper, which is dragged around the field by a tractor.

The sensor transfers the signal to an electronic control box, which raises and lowers the scraper with a hydraulic valve. The sensor can be set for any degree of slope.

The scraper constantly adjusts itself as it is pulled through the field. When over a high spot, the scraper is lowered and scoops dirt into a bucket. When over a low spot, the bucket tips out dirt, filling the space.

There is also a screen with a digital read-out in the tractor, giving readings on the high and low points in the field.

Palmer says laser-leveling is a slow, painstaking process, especially the fine touch-ups at the end. It takes three rigs about two weeks to level 40 acres.

"But then we have a flat field," he said. "We save water and it also takes less time to irrigate a field."

He said water could be "pushed" through flat fields in about half the normal time.

BROWN RICE SUPPER DISH
So convenient because meat, rice and vegetables are cooked together in a large skillet.

- 1 pound mild Italian sausage, cut into 1-inch lengths
- 1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 and 2-3rds cups water
- 1 cup parboiled brown rice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon dried thyme

16-ounce can tomatoes, drained and coarsely chopped
1 medium green pepper, seeded and diced (1/4 inch)
16-ounce can chick peas (garbanzos or ceci), drained and rinsed

In a 10-inch skillet gently fry sausage until cooked through and browned; remove sausage and reserve. Drain off fat and measure 2 tablespoons of it (adding oil, if necessary, to make this amount) and return to skillet. In this fat gently cook onion and garlic until tender but not brown; add water and bring to a boil; add rice, salt, pepper and thyme; cover tightly and over low heat cook until rice is tender and all water is absorbed — about 50 minutes. Stir in the reserved sausage, the tomatoes, green pepper and chick peas; heat through. Makes 6 servings.

Coat captures the eyes

By Judy Love

What's versatile, warm and this season's eyecatcher? The natural answer is a coat sweater that looks terrific over sportswear separates.

One bulky beauty buttons up the front and has a generous hood and big pockets for extra warmth. Best of all, if you're handy with the knitting needles, it will be in your wardrobe as fast as knit one, pur! two.

This super Irish knit sweater features horizontal stripes in a flattering mix of warm browns and naturals. The classic style and neutral colors will easily coordinate with sporty separates you already may have — tweed trousers, neutral color and patterned shirts and casual corduroys. Put it with a simple pleated skirt, nubby textured tights, flat shoes and you've got an unbeatable new fashion look. It's a terrific addition to your wardrobe, or makes an excellent gift for your favorite Irish friend.

Work this up in a bulky, toasty yarn, such as Bernat Blarney, a natural wool, using Size 6 and Size 8 knitting needles. You will need seven buttons and approximately 18-21 ounces of yarn, depending upon size.

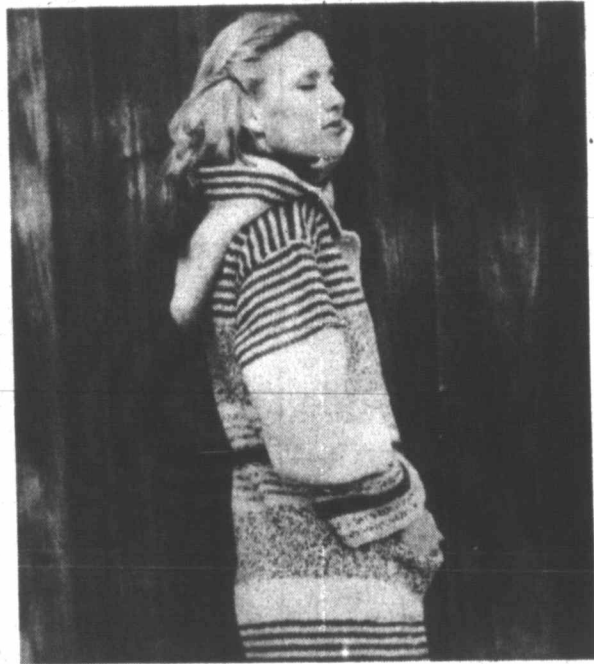

Instructions are sized for small (8-10), medium (12-14) and large (16-18), and may be ordered by sending 50 cents to Stitchin' Time, P. O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet $565 and don't forget to include your name, address and zip code.

KNIT KNACKS

Dear Judy Love: How do I change colors when making designs requiring more than one color? I've tried tying knots, but that doesn't look neat on the back side and sometimes it pulls stitches out of shape. — J.N., Knoxville, Tenn.

Dear J.N.: This question is asked frequently by my readers. Here's a simple suggestion: Work in the first color until you are at the end of that section and you have two loops remaining on your hook. At this point drop the color you are now using, pick up the new color and work these two remaining loops off the hook and continue using your new color until another change is required. Not so hard, is it? — Happy knitting, Judy Love.

THE IRISH KNIT coat sweater features a generous hood and big pockets — a classic to pair with sporty separates.

Roof improves resale value

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — By using a little foresight, a homeowner might find that a long-lasting roof will help him get the price he wants when it's time to sell his house.

When the time comes to reshingle the house, the owner should first decide approximately how long he plans to live in it, says Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., a shingle manufacturer.

Then buy a shingle that will last twice as long. The owner stands a better chance of getting the price he wants for the house if the roof is in good condition, since people who buy a house don't want to buy a new roof, too.

Lovett Memorial Library is featuring children's books this month. Some noteworthy new additions to the children's section shelves follow.

"We Laughed a Lot, My First Day at School," by Sylvia Tester. The first day of school as seen through the eyes of a 6-year-old.

"Shaggy Dog's Tail Tale," by Donald Charles. Shaggy Dog projects his fear of the dark onto his dog in this humorous book for children.

"Gymnastics: The New Era." A guide to all that's happening in gymnastics today — from equipment, beginning exercises and Olympic scoring to interviews with top U.S. gymnasts.

"Nobody Likes to Lose," by Lydia Marshall. A girl who loses at swimming finds she's a winner against herself in this story of the emotions involved in competition.

"Cathy and Company and the Green Ghost," by Alice Schertle. Mysterious notes in the clubhouse signed by "the Green Ghost" provide challenges and scares for Cathy and Company.

"Soup's Drum," by Robert N. Peck. There are fireworks all around when Soup and Rob rearrange the Fourth of July celebration to suit their own scheme.

"Roller Skate Mania," by Ed Radlauer. A complete look at the hottest craze around — presented with simple text and full-color photography.

"Magic Monsters Learn About Health," by Jane Moncure. An assortment of engaging monsters introduces children to good health habits.

"Kids Do Amazing Things," by Arthur Myers. A collection of nine stories describing outstanding physical and mental accomplishments of boys and girls under 12.

LIBRARY EVENTS
"How to Make a Gingerbread House" will be the subject of a demonstration Dec. 4 at 10 a.m. in the library. A pattern for an easy and inexpensive gingerbread house will be available to those attending and the demonstration house will be the door prize.

This program is part of Lovett Memorial Library's special emphasis on Christmas. It is sponsored by the Friends of the Pampa Library and is open to the public.

Library Story Time, a Friends of the Library project headed by Margaret Nadler, is now in its sixth year. Volunteer readers help Mrs. Nadler and a cookie-eating puppet named Frida tell stories and play games each week.

Story Time takes place on Thursdays from 10-10:30 a.m. and from 3-3:30 p.m. Morning sessions are full, but the afternoon sessions are still open.

Powerful memoir of war

GOODYEAR DARKNESS: A Memoir of the Pacific War. By William Manchester. Little, Brown. 401 Pages. $14.95.

William Manchester, who long ago won note as biographer, novelist and historian, now turns his literary skill to a totally different task — a personal look-back at World War II. What emerges is a powerful work indeed.

He focuses on the individual experiences, including his own, of those who took part in the major battles of the Pacific.

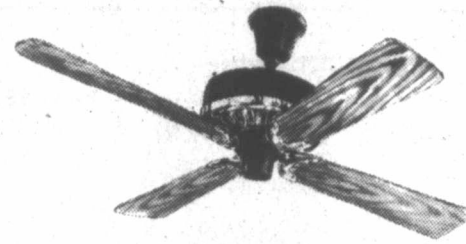

Here in gripping detail are the heroics, the terror, the bewilderment, the blunders and the bloody agony of human beings, what it's like to kill and to come within a gnat's eyelash of being killed.

Beset by lingering nightmares from his own ordeal, and having tried in vain for years to write about the war, Manchester sought to exorcise the ghosts by revisiting scenes of major battles. And one by one they are graphically fought over again through accounts of those who survived. The less-than-careful reader may get the impression that the author took part in all of the combat described. He did not, but he certainly was in some of the fiercest. Manchester's narrative technique is an odd and seemingly unnecessary one, employing a sort of backward projection method. But let's be forgiving, since he says he found that was the only way he could write the story.

DEAR ABBY

No sorrow at this party's parting

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: About the question, "Who else is coming to the party?" You say it's bad manners to ask. I say, sometimes it's good to know. I recently broke up with John, the man I had lived with for two years. It was a very unpleasant parting with much bitterness on both sides. All our friends were aware of it. A couple with whom John and I had been very friendly invited me to a party and told me to bring a date. The man I brought was an old friend of whom John had always been insanely jealous. When we arrived at the party I was shocked to see John there. I had all I could do to keep John and my date from each other's throats. Everyone there knew what was going on. It was a miserable experience. Afterward I asked this couple why they had invited John and me to the same party, and they said, "You are both our friends, and we didn't want to choose between you." They should have told me that they had invited John, so I could decline. Now I'm sorry I didn't ask, "Who else is coming?"

Do you still think that would have been rude?
SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR SAN FRANCISCO: No. In your case, it would have been shrewd.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for the letter from the policeman who resented mothers who threaten their kids by telling them that if they don't behave, a policeman will lock them up in jail. I'm a nurse, and I resent parents telling kids who are in the hospital, "If you aren't good, I'm going to get the nurse and she'll give you a shot!" Then they wonder why kids are afraid of doctors and nurses.

My sister is a school teacher, and she has told me that parents threaten their children with "the teacher." Then they wonder why kids hate school.

JOY IN TULLAHOMA, TENN.
DEAR JOY: And in some quarters the surest way to scare a kid is to say, "I'm going to tell your mother." (And Mamma says, "Just wait until your father comes home!")

DEAR ABBY: It is appalling to think that people will stoop to sneaky, devious methods to get rid of their company. Whatever happened to honesty? What's wrong with saying, "Well, folks, I've enjoyed your company and we've had a pleasant evening, but it's getting toward my bedtime and it's time to say good night." Then see them to the door cheerfully and go to bed without any feeling of guilt. A lie is still a lie.

HATES A LIAR
DEAR HATES: Nothing is "wrong" with simply announcing that the party is over and it's time to go home. But no matter how you phrase it, it's still sending the company home, and that takes courage.

DEAR ABBY: This is for SENSITIVE, who was embarrassed and annoyed because someone he called "English Teacher" insisted on correcting his grammar in the presence of others. To paraphrase Lord Chesterfield's advice to his son: Wear your education like your watch. For use, and not for show. D.H.R. IN PA.

Computers help kidney patients

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Computerized informational retrieval systems are helping physicians match donors with patients in need of kidney transplants, reports a management information publication. The largest of the systems, says MIS Week, is the Southeastern Organ Procurement Foundation located here. It maintains information primarily on kidney patients but also lists emergency cases awaiting heart or cornea transplants. Currently the data base contains information on more than 4,500 potential recipients in 42 states. Information on patients in need of a transplant is entered into the data base at a center that links the hospital to SEOPF. The medical information includes tissue-typing (identifying the protein and carbohydrate substances located in the chromosomes of white blood cells) as well as a hospital code and telephone number so that if a match becomes available arrangements for delivery can be made quickly.

Jobs open in computers, electronics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite continued high unemployment figures in most areas of the nation reflecting wholesale layoffs, there are a few bright spots on the job horizon.

At least two key industries — computers and electronics — are currently experiencing acute labor shortages, according to U.S. Department of Labor statistics.

Industry sources, personnel executives and the help-wanted columns of daily newspapers confirm that jobs in these fields are literally going begging. In California alone, reports the American Electronics Association, an industry trade group, thousands of positions with electronics firms are unfilled.

To meet the demand for technically trained specialists, privately operated vocational schools and institutes have been proliferating. The National Association of Trade and Technical Schools, with headquarters in Washington, D.C., estimates there are now well over 3,000 such educational enterprises around the country.

Enrollments have never been higher. In the 560 schools formally accredited by the association, approximately 300,000 students will be attending classes this semester.

The NATTS attributes the growth of proprietary vocational schools to the relatively small number of in-house instructional programs sponsored by industry directly, and the inadequate performance of the public schools.

The latter often provide courses that are too generalized and unfocused, notes Robert Stevens, an association official.

"Today's job hunter wants intensive, very practical, no-frills instruction that will assure immediate employment," he says.

Jobs in both the computer sciences and electronics will be even more plentiful during the next few years in the opinion of Kingsley G. Bewley, president of the Chicago-based Bell and Howell Education Group, operators of DeVry Technical Institutes, a network of technical training institutes in the United States and Canada.

"Career opportunities could not be better," he says. "The demand for skilled people far exceeds the supply."

Bewley says a 98 percent placement record for graduates who request assistance is not unusual.

Most private, vocational training institutions, he explains, are single-minded in their emphasis on post-graduate employment.

Curricula, stripped of all extraneous subjects, are tailored to meet the specific needs of potential employers. Instruction is concentrated and closely related to on-the-job situations. School operators maintain a close liaison with industry to insure that courses they offer are designed to produce quickly marketable skills.

The vast majority of students attending technical schools and institutes are recent high-school graduates, but rising unemployment brought on by the recession is helping to attract increasing numbers of older enrollees, says Stevens.

Many students now hold bachelor's and advanced degrees in overcrowded professions with bleak job prospects. The number of women taking such courses is also growing rapidly — nearly 40 percent in many of the computer schools.

Women, particularly, are being courted by industry for these non-traditional, technical-oriented positions, Stevens says.

"They frequently have greater manual dexterity than men because of their smaller hands, ideal for this type of job," he points out, adding that heavy work is rare since miniaturization is now almost universal throughout the electronics industry.

Computer programming — writing the programs, or instructions, that are fed into computers — similarly offers unlimited job opportunities to women, according to Stevens.

He reports that many women are also getting into the so-called "hardware" segment of the industry as technicians,

Telephone numbers prove valuable for agent

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Anyone who's ever been snubbed by a secretary, rebuffed by an agent, put off by a manager, or otherwise left hanging on the line will appreciate Marty Ingels.

"I am tenacious," says Ingels, who is the first and still the biggest of the celebrity brokers. "I'm an expert at only one thing — I know how to reach anyone, anywhere on the telephone."

If you want a movie star to plug your product, open a supermarket, or head a charity drive, the man who will fight his way through all the hangers-on to get him for you is Ingels. The only time he was at a loss was when a woman asked him to find work for her singing squirrel.

Ingels, a standup comic until an anxiety attack sent him home for nine months, is a nonstop talker, a promoter, a hustler and a scrappy terrier who hangs on until you say uncle.

When the anxiety attack hit him, right in the middle of an appearance on Johnny Carson's "Tonight" show, he knew he was washed up as a comic.

"I didn't know what I was going to do," he says. "Then it occurred to me that everybody in the world is trying to get through to somebody. I was always able to do it. I had everybody's telephone number, and I could sell anybody anything."

Ingels has the telephone numbers of 15,000 celebrities on file. He got Orson Welles, Howard Cosell and the late John Wayne and many others to sign on the dotted line. He's working on such super holdouts as Robert Redford, Barbra Streisand and Paul Newman.

Last year he put nearly $8 million into the pockets of celebrities. Unlike an agent, he doesn't take a cut from the star.

but instead is paid a finder's fee by the talent buyer.

A man like Ingels became necessary because advertising agencies couldn't get past the phalanx of agents and managers that surround most stars. The agents, seldom consulting the stars, were saying no. It was bad for the image or they wanted more money. And often as not the stars were unemployed at the time and wondering why the money wasn't coming in.

Ingels, onetime star of the ABC series "I'm Dickens — He's Fenster" (he was Fenster), is married to actress Shirley Jones. He courted her with the same tenacity he shows in pursuing a reluctant star for a commercial. It took him six weeks to get her telephone number, which he finally got by bribing a secretary.

Ingels calls his marriage "a beautiful, romantic story written by Neil Simon." As a matter of fact, 20th Century-Fox wants to film it, and Ingels and Jones have agreed to play themselves.

He rarely leaves his Beverly Hills house. He conducts most of his business over the telephone while wearing a pair of red silk pajamas.

Ingels conceived the celebrity clearing house plan while he was still laid up. He wrote 10 leading advertising agencies and outlined his proposal. Nine wrote back — and three asked for help in getting through to celebrities.

"The American Cancer Society was trying to get through to John Wayne — and couldn't reach him," he says.

"I didn't want to talk to anybody representing Wayne. I said, who's the person who brings him his coffee in the morning? I got to that girl, sent her flowers and perfume, and wrote a telegram that she brought to him. He called me immediately."

SAYS HE WON'T BE RETRIED. Frank Walus, accused of being a former member of the Nazi Gestapo and a participant in war crimes, said Tuesday he has been told that the U.S. Justice Department plans to drop all charges against him and not retry his case.

Thanksgiving programming conflicts with the cooks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thanksgiving is the best holiday, I think, but it's not quite properly arranged as far as television is concerned.

I might as well admit that I've evolved (or dissipated) to the point where television plays a role in holidaymaking at my house, especially at Thanksgiving.

Unfortunately, the best Thanksgiving TV is on when you don't need it: that is, during the day. NBC starts early in the morning, with the Macy's Parade, Santa's first appearance of the season.

This year, as seems to be the trend in parades, the Macy's procession is going to seem more like a mobile disco than a holiday parade — the Captain and Tennille, the Spinners, Stephanie Mills, Jerry Orbach and Chita Rivera are among those who'll be singing (singing!) in the parade.

Still, Macy's parade will have all those balloons, including the 50-foot Snoopy and the 57-foot Mickey Mouse, as links to tradition.

About mid-morning, PBS is presenting a live holiday montage, featuring Thanksgiving observances from a Baptist church, a fox hunt in Massachusetts and Thanksgiving dinners with a Nebraska family and a San Francisco foster home.

CBS has some swell children's programming, including a cartoon version of "The Nutcracker" and "The Adventures of Sinbad."

And CBS has its own Thanksgiving parade extravaganza, a three-hour job hosted by William Conrad.

And of course, there is football. CBS will broadcast its traditional Detroit Lions game and NBC will televise the Seattle-Dallas game.

When Pop is visiting (as he is this year), the turkey cook starts at about the same time the Macy's Parade does. Pop is chef, which means that he gets to direct the rest of us — preparing Grandma Jo's sausage stuffing, minding the fire (or the air-conditioning), peeling the yams, cutting onions and the like.

This done, and the turkey cooking, Pop breaks out the bourbon and egg-nog and we all sit around and tell lies for a while. Then comes supper, followed by dessert, and the traditional Indian poker game.

By evening, when we're too stuffed and tired to do anything else, we're ready for TV. But TV, for some reason, has already finished with Thanksgiving and moved on to business-as-usual. The closest thing to a network Thanksgiving show on Thanksgiving night is NBC's "The Sound of Music."

But this year, this Thanksgiving, we are saved. A local station, channel five, is broadcasting a Thanksgiving night Japanese sci-fi festival. Featured are not one, not two, but THREE Godzilla classics — the original (in which Raymond Burr plays the lead human), plus "Godzilla on Monster Island" and "Godzilla's Revenge."

Johnny Carson continues close vigil of privacy

By Craig Tennis

One of the primary reasons Johnny Carson has been able to keep such a solid foothold at the top of the heap is his deliberate, well-ordered way of life.

Everything in his domain -- from his marriage to his houseplan to the setup of his show -- has been engineered to meet his needs in the most smooth-running and efficient way possible.

When he's in town, and hosting the show, his average workday falls -- like almost everyone else's -- into certain, predictable lines. He's not required in the studio until 2 p.m. (three and a half hours before taping time) and so -- unlike almost everyone else -- he has most of the day free. He likes to spend that time at home.

Virtually every morning he will play tennis with one of a group of buddies ranging from Steve Lawrence to Ricardo Montalban, but most of the rest of his daylight-at-home hours are passed in solitude in his office-cabana.

There he has a giant, seven-foot television screen on which he likes to view cassettes, watch daytime talk shows, or study video tapes of himself playing tennis with the ball machine. A room downstairs also contains his drum set, a favorite toy. (If he gets to practicing especially hard one day and if he feels confident, you'll usually see the fruits that night when he does an impromptu set with his pencils at the end of a commercial break.)

Some of Johnny's peaceful morning hours are of course spent working, preparing for the evening's show. Johnny will go through the morning papers or watch the news, looking for current event items he can mold into jokes for the monologue.

Then there are the repeated phone calls, beginning early on, from the show's producer, Fred de Cordova. Fred supposedly calls to let Johnny know how the show is shaping up, to run down the list of guests, topics, and features as they are set.

At about 1:30 in the afternoon, Johnny changes, gets into his Mercedes coupe, and makes the 20-minute journey over the hill from Bel Air to the NBC studio in Burbank. He always drives himself. His refusal to use a chauffeur is partly an aversion to the "big shot" image he so despises in Hollywood, but it is mostly due to his strong sense of personal privacy -- he likes to mind his own business and he doesn't want anybody, not even a chauffeur, to know what that business might be.

At the studio he pulls into the parking space marked by a sign with his name on it and a painted star on the asphalt. Johnny then ducks into the building and hurries to his office, which is located on the second floor behind the studio control room.

Johnny's inner office is about 10 feet by 25 feet, with a private shower and bath. One wall contains bookshelves and the private TV monitor that enables Carson to look in on what is happening in "The Tonight Show" studio without actually plunging into the fray. Along the opposite wall there's a comfortable couch, and a coffee table that bears a few well-chosen objets d'art. The decor is all done in subdued, tasteful earth tones. The real focus of the room, however, is the medium-sized window over the couch. The thing that makes that window so interesting is that it wasn't always there. When Johnny learned that NBC had built Redd Foxx a window in his dressing room, he told them, "If Red needs a window, then I need a window." And he had them cut through a foot of concrete to comply.

Improved vocational rehab now available to veterans

WACO - Improvements in the way the Veterans Administration helps disabled veterans are the "most important since the program was established in 1943" according to Max Cleland, Administrator of Veterans Affairs.

Cleland was referring to recent legislation which gave his agency broad new authority to improve vocational rehabilitation for disabled veterans. The law also increased GI Bill education allowances.

The Congressional action, approved by the President on Oct. 17, 1980, permits VA to go beyond its traditional role of preparing disabled veterans for the job market to helping place them in jobs suited to their individual disabilities.

For those veterans disabled so severely that employment is unfeasible, VA can now provide "independent living" counseling and support. A pilot program to be launched next fiscal year will offer special help for up to 500 severely disabled veterans with a reduced level of help from others or independently.

Other program modifications made possible by the "Veterans Rehabilitation and Education Amendments of 1980" include:

-Veterans eligible for both vocational rehabilitation and the GI Bill may now receive the higher payments of the GI Bill while at the same time receiving many of the services of the vocational rehabilitation program.

-Monthly allowances were increased by 17 percent.

-The basic eligibility period was increased from nine to 12 years after the veteran leaves service. During the period the veteran normally receives 48 months of payments and services, but extensions are permitted in both categories for veterans with serious employment handicaps.

-Veterans training in federal agencies may now receive the higher institutional training allowance rather than on-the-job rate.

-Individual written rehabilitation plans leading to jobs or independent living must be developed for each veteran by VA. The veteran may appeal if he does not agree with VA's plan for him.

-With certain exceptions, incarcerated veterans may receive training allowances.

-VA may now pay room and board in lieu of subsistence allowance for a veteran pursuing rehabilitation at a special facility.

-Employers may be reimbursed by VA for certain necessary added costs in developing on-the-job training programs for disabled veterans.

-VA may now conduct research and special projects related to rehabilitation, develop on-going professional training for counseling and rehabilitation personnel, and recruit an advisory committee of service-connected veterans and personnel distinguished in the general and special fields of rehabilitation.

Some 26,000 handicapped veterans are currently receiving VA vocational rehabilitation services. More than 839,000 have been trained in the program. In fiscal year 1980, VA expenditures in vocational rehabilitation exceeded $90 million.

Guidelines on these programs for VA field offices are being developed at VA Central Office in Washington.

Pilgrims would recognize little

COLLEGE STATION - American forests and forest practices have changed dramatically since the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock back in 1620.

When Pilgrims first reached America, they found vast, largely unbroken expanses of forest. To these early colonists - accustomed to the smaller, limited forests of their homelands - the American forests undoubtedly appeared limitless.

These early colonists found the forests useful. From the forest they cut timbers for buildings and fuelwood for warming and cooking fires. The forest also harbored wildlife which - though limited in numbers due to the general absence of browse beneath the closed forest canopies - furnished meat for their tables.

The forests also were forbidding and restrictive. Unseen enemies hid among the trees, ambushing and attacking from the shadows. Forests also meant hard work for the colonists, who had to clear land on which to plant their crops and build their homes.

Early settlers who followed the Pilgrims also envisioned America's forest resources as limitless and acted accordingly. The great abundance of forest land prompted a "cut out and get out" harvesting philosophy which prevailed into the early part of the twentieth century.

During this period, companies and individuals cut all trees without concern for renewing the forest. Land was plentiful. It was easier to cut out and get out than to replant or reseed land and wait for the trees to again grow to merchantable size.

Another harvesting method - called "high grading" by foresters - was also prevalent during this period. Only the highest quality trees were left standing, a practice which created thousands of acres of low quality timber. According to the Texas Forest Service, many acres of low quality forests exist in Texas today, primarily under non-industrial private ownership.

Today, Texas' forest resources are becoming more limited everyday. The burgeoning growth in and around metropolitan areas such as Houston and Dallas indicates the truth of this statement.

Faced with a shrinking land base, soaring land prices and rising processing costs, forest product companies have adopted intensive forest management policies for their lands. Like traditional farmers, tree farmers cannot afford to let expensive land sit idle.

If the Pilgrims landed in America today, they would probably be comfortable with the intensive forest management practiced by commercial timber growing companies. Even back in the Pilgrims' day, European forests - because of their limited size - were intensively managed. Today, European forests are still more intensively managed than their American counterparts.

Present-day Americans will do well to follow the example of our European neighbors and learn to more fully utilize their forest resources. Failure to do so will mean higher prices in the future for houses and other products made wholly or partially from wood.

Forests are part of our American heritage - a renewable resource to be used wisely.

Newspaper representative's murderer tagged with reward

MOBILE, Ala. - Rewards totaling $5,000 are being offered and composite drawings of a possible suspect are being circulated following the slaying of Harold Judy, the newspaper sales representative whose body was found September 20th, near Datil, New Mexico. He had been shot in the chest. He had been missing since September 11th.

A $3,000 reward is offered by Judy's employer, Berkley - Small, Inc., of Mobile, Alabama, and a $2,000 reward is being offered by the Crime Stoppers, Inc., of New Mexico. Both rewards are for information leading to the arrest and conviction of Judy's killer or killers.

Information for the composites was provided by three persons who read newspaper reports of the search and who had seen Judy's missing motor home and were able to describe one of the occupants.

Judy was a western sales representative for Berkley - Small, Inc., a Mobile, Alabama, based company and the major supplier of circulation products to the newspaper industry. He covered the states of Wyoming, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. On business trips Judy traveled in his 23' Open Road motor home, a beige vehicle with brown striping bearing the Colorado license number SS 2589 and with "B S EXPRESS" and the Berkley - Small name lettered on the right side. The vehicle, occupied by two men, was spotted several times, first in Arizona and then in California.

Judy worked at the DANVILLE (ILL.) COMMERCIAL NEWS for 27 years with assignments as sports editor, promotion manager, operations manager and employee relations manager. He held offices in the International Newspaper Promotion Association and had been a member of the Associated Press Writers Association and the Golf Writers Association. He joined Berkley - Small in 1977. He was 53. His wife, Barbara, and their son, Scott, will continue to reside in Littleton, Colorado.

Physicians earned as many as 22 Continuing Medical Education credits for attending the scientific seminars. Osteopathic Physicians are required to earn 150 CME credits every three years in order to maintain American Osteopathic Association membership.

Some 4,000 osteopathic physicians, spouses and guests attended the five day postgraduate session sponsored by the AOA and twelve speciality practice affiliates.

More than 125 authoritative speakers -- D.O., M.D. and Ph.D. -- from throughout the nation presented papers at the meeting. Among the topics covered were sports medicine, holistic health care, allergies, emergency medicine and preventive medicine.

Although only five percent of the physician population, Doctors of Osteopathy, D.O.s, provide total health care to more than ten percent of the public, some 20 million Americans.

Police appeal for dating customer help

MIAMI (AP) — Police who think a 40-year-old photographer may have been killed by a man she met through a dating service are appealing for help to women who have encountered problems with computer dates.

"We think there are other incidents in which women were victimized by the same man but not killed. We want to talk to anybody who ever had a problem with a computer date who tried to get money from them in any way," Homicide Sgt. Mike Gonzalez said.

Detectives found lists in Anita Babbette Greenstein's home containing the names of more than 100 men referred to her by a half dozen dating services.

They believe the killer's name is there, "but there are just too many to properly investigate each one," Gonzalez said.

The case began when Ms. Greenstein's parents, concerned that it had been three days since they heard from her, entered her home Aug. 21 and found it had been ransacked.

The next day, Ms. Greenstein's body was discovered 170 miles north of Miami, near Yeehaw Junction in Osceola County. The barefoot woman, clad in underwear and a striped bathrobe, had been strangled.

Three $200 checks were cashed on Ms. Greenstein's bank account.

Her car was found abandoned several miles from her home.

Tips can help insure delivery of holiday mail

By Harold Blumenfeld

Now is the time for all good men and women to again begin thinking about mailing their Christmas cards and gifts. Here are some tips to help cut the costs of this annual effort.

When you purchase a gift, ask the store for a box in which you can mail it. Some stores will even do the wrapping and mailing for you.

Otherwise, you may be able to pick up a suitable mailing container at the grocery or drug store. You need not re-wrap the box in plain paper if it is strong enough and has no printing on it.

Do not tie a package with string or seal it with cellophane or masking tape. Instead, use a filament-tying or kraft-paper tape.

You can save the money you usually spend on expensive wrapping paper by substituting remnants of colorful wallpaper or fabric.

Wrap children's gifts in pages from the color comic sections of the Sunday newspaper. The kiddies will get double pleasure — from the gift and from the comic strips.

You can also save money by forgoing commercial greeting cards.

If you have retired and moved to another city, consider sending a round-robin letter to the gang at your former office or shop, place of worship and social organization.

Old friends will appreciate the news of you and your family. Chances are that your letter will be circulated or displayed where everyone can read it.

Another way to cut the cost of seasonal greetings is to buy a batch of regular 10-cent postal cards. They are already stamped, which saves you time and money.

Then buy two or three felt-tipped marking pens in different colors and make your own greeting cards. Family and friends will appreciate your personal message on a hand-decorated card more than they would a costlier mass-produced card.

If you do send formal greeting cards, update and narrow down your mailing list to a select few.

I recommend buying such cards from the United Nations, because your money will help UNICEF feed hungry children in all parts of the globe. For your convenience, you may place a credit-card order toll-free by dialing 1-800-331-1000.

Use ZIP codes to speed delivery of your greeting cards and gift packages. If you don't have this information, you can get it in person or by phone from your post office.

There is no reason to spend additional money to send a card or parcel by domestic airmail. All mail is now transported by air to distant locations in the United States.

Remember, it costs 15 cents for the first ounce of first-class mail and 13 cents for each additional ounce.

The Postal Service probably will not deliver an envelope or post card that is smaller than 3½-by-5 inches. Letters and post cards more than 6½ inches high by 11½ inches long cost an extra 7 cents if they weigh one ounce or less.

Double-check the address on every card and letter. Put the address on only one side of a package.

Your return address in the upper left-hand corner of a letter or package — as well as on a piece of paper inside the package.

If a gift package weighs more than a pound, you might save money by shipping it via United Parcel. But you must enclose the gift in a strong cardboard box and either deliver it personally to the local UPS office or pay a pick-up charge.

Whatever you do, send out your gifts and greeting cards early to beat the holiday rush.

And let me be the first to wish a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all!

Home grown Christmas trees available

COLLEGE STATION — Don't just buy any Christmas tree this year — buy a Texas - grown Christmas tree.

"While the supply of Texas Christmas trees is still short, more and more of them are coming on the market," points out James W. Chandler of Overton, area forester with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. "Some 30,000 should be ready for market this year," he predicts.

"There are some 225 Christmas tree growers in Texas at present with about 1,350 acres in production. At 900 to 1,000 trees per acre, that's more than a million trees," he says.

Most trees are being grown in East Texas and are Virginia pines, notes Chandler. A few tree farms are also being established in central and western areas with the variety Pinus Eldarica which is more tempered to drought conditions.

According to the forester, many trees were lost to drought this past summer, even where intensive management was carried out.

"Christmas tree plantations need plenty of care and management," emphasizes Chandler. "Trees usually reach market size in three to five years and may be sold wholesale to civic groups and other retail outlets or on a choose - and - cut basis."

Texas - grown Christmas trees offer a lot of advantages over those shipped in from the Great Lake States and the Pacific Northwest, says the forester. These advantages are mainly freshness, fragrance and novelty. Most trees shipped to Texas have to be cut about two months earlier while Texas trees can be cut only a short time before being offered for sale.

"Some 5 million Christmas trees are sold in Texas each year," says Chandler. "This represents more than $50 million in sales. As Texas production increases, Texas - grown trees will take a larger portion of these sales."

Listening post on universe hidden in West Virginia hills

By BARRY RENFREW
Associated Press Writer

GREENBANK, W.Va. (AP) — Among West Virginia's apple orchards and rambling old farmhouses stands a row of gigantic dishes staring into space, silently eavesdropping on the hum of the universe.

The radio telescopes of The National Radio Astronomy Observatory, located in the Greenbrier Valley near the Virginia border, hunt for sounds of life across the universe, turning radio blips and static into pictures of galaxies that would take spacecraft hundreds of light years to reach.

They also reach back into the origins of time, hunting for debris and other clues from the explosions and stellar collisions that formed the first stars and planets at the birth of the universe.

"It's as if we're on the shore staring out across an endless sea without ever knowing where it goes or ends," says a guide leading the way to the telescopes.

George Russano sits in the observatory's control room, poring over calculations of an experiment on the birth of stars. Around him banks of sophisticated computers whir and click.

"We're trying to understand what makes a star, what triggers star formation and the evolution of galaxies and galactic structures," Russano said.

"We're looking for what started it all."

The giant telescopes — rotating metal dishes up to 300 feet in diameter and two acres in size — stand in the fallow fields of farms that were purchased when astronomers established a listening post on the universe here in the early 1960s.

Crumbling buildings still dot the observatory's grounds, and deer and rabbits roam freely amid the spindly legs of the telescopes as they turn slowly to track distant stars and planets.

"It's all a bit obscure, I suppose," Russano said. "Someone once did a calculation that the articles in which we publish our findings are read by three people in the whole world."

Scientists built the nation's first major radio observatory in the sleepy valley because its seclusion helped protect the extremely sensitive telescopes. (The Greenbank observatory is now aided by installations at Socorro, N.M., and Tucson, Ariz.)

The telescopes, tuned to detect the finest details on distant worlds, can be sidetracked and confused by a transistor radio or the electric starter of a car. Radio stations and many types of machinery are banned in the area.

Astronomers and technicians travel around the observatory grounds in old 1950s diesel taxicabs that don't need electric starters. An old yellow school bus takes larger parties around the observatory.

As one of the cabs lurches and sputters down the road to the telescopes, Wally Oref, an observatory official, explained. "The government said we had to buy American and the scientists said we had to have diesels — these were all there were."

Oref recalled the observatory's early days when radio astronomers were expanding humanity's knowledge of the universe almost daily, discovering new galaxies and charting the unseen quadrants of the sky.

The days of dramatic discoveries have passed and the telescope's crews now spend most of their days filling in details, he said.

"We're mainly preoccupied with the day-to-day drudgery of mapping the universe. And that's what we'll be doing for years and years to come," Oref said.

The steady routine of mapping a universe that human eyes may never see is occasionally broken by unexpected discoveries.

Shoe polish ban sought

HOUSTON (AP) — A Dec. 1 hearing has been scheduled on the state's petition for a temporary injunction barring the sale of a shoe polish until it is properly labeled.

The suit filed by the consumer protection division of the Texas attorney general's office alleges Super Coat is being sold without advising purchasers it contains toluene, a toxic substance that can cause someone to get "high" or cause physical and mental harm if inhaled.

State District Judge Peter Solito granted a temporary restraining order last week prohibiting sales without proper labeling.
