Courts to decide tax status of schools that discriminate

WASHINGTON (AP) — After weeks of political jousting, the battle over tax breaks for racially discriminatory private schools is shifting back to the courts.

A federal appeals court barred the Reagan administration from giving the exemptions "to any school" that discriminates against blacks.

And the Supreme Court, returning Monday from a four-week recess, is likely to face a second case in the emotionally charged tax dispute.

Congressional leaders, meanwhile, say they're not about to go ahead with the administration's request for legislation reimposing the 1½-year-old ban on tax exemptions for discriminatory schools that Reagan scrapped Jan. 8.

Thus, court action again is becoming the focus of the bitter controversy over whether the Internal Revenue Service should grant these schools a tax-exempt status.

Reagan claims the IRS had no authority to ban the tax exemptions for such schools in 1970, but legal scholars and many in Congress, citing a number of favorable court decisions, sharply disagree.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., says the Supreme Court should decide whether the ban was legal — or whether new legislation is needed.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., adds that he sees "no justification for the position of the administration that additional legislation is necessary."

In the first court case, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia on Thursday barred the administration from granting tax-exempt status to any racially discriminatory private school.

The appeals court's open-ended order thus helps Reagan and his aides by taking the dispute out of their hands for the indefinite future.

The appeals court acted in a case aimed at forcing the government to revoke tax exemptions issued to schools that allegedly discriminate against blacks. The court issued the injunction while it studies the case further.

The injunction's greatest immediate impact is on two schools whose appeals are before the Supreme Court: Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., and Goldsboro Christian Schools in Goldsboro, N.C.

The government said it planned to grant those two schools tax exemptions even before it became clear whether Congress would act. The IRS previously had denied the exemptions because of the schools' racially discriminatory policies based on religious beliefs.

The administration, in announcing the policy shift Jan. 8, also asked the Supreme Court to drop the Bob Jones and Goldsboro appeals. It said the shift in policy made the cases legally irrelevant.

The move requested by the Reagan administration would have a key impact: it would wipe out lower court rulings that could be used to challenge tax breaks given to racially biased schools.

But the appeals court decision has prompted the administration to consider asking the U.S. Supreme Court to decide the issue after all. The New York Times reported Saturday.

Justice Department spokesman John Russell had no comment on the newspaper report.

HAPPY REUNION. When Mrs. Nona Payne, center, was unable to attend the Saturday meeting of the board of directors of the Cowboy Hall of Fame held in Amarillo, the directors and staff members attending the meeting hopped on a chartered Trailways Bus and visited her at Coronado Community Hospital, where she is a patient. Visiting with Mrs. Payne, a board member who has contributed much to the museum located in Oklahoma City, is Dean Krakel, left, executive vice president, and Joe Gordon, Pampa attorney and board member. Labor escalates war of words

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) — Despite intense peace-making efforts by Vice President George Bush and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., organized labor is escalating its war of words with the Reagan administration.

Anti-administration resolutions poured from copying machines at the AFL-CIO's executive council meeting here last week as leaders of the 15 million member federation accused Reagan of mishandling the economy and failing to stand up to the Soviet Union over Poland.

The labor policy-makers went on record against "new federalism" and any direct U.S. military involvement in El Salvador. They accused the administration of retreating on a generation of progress in civil rights and helping the poor, the sick and the out of work.

And in a major departure from its hawkish tradition, the AFL-CIO leadership said it could not support a blank check for the Pentagon.

Federation President Lane Kirkland raised the level of rhetoric to a new high, calling the administration's tax and spending policies "Jonestown economics."

By week's end, Kirkland showed his exasperation when he was asked at a news conference if his perception of the Reagan administration had changed at all following the executive council's meetings with Bush and Haig.

"Good God, Almighty!" he roared to reporters. "I would suggest you go back and peruse our detailed analyses of every aspect, corner and facet of this administration's program."

"We are deeply dissatisfied with the concrete proposals and policies of this administration over a wide range of issues. And I think we have not been reluctant or timid in elaborating what those differences are and stating them. We haven't moved around on little bitty cat feet."

Relations between the administration and organized labor plummeted last summer when Reagan fired some 11,500 striking air traffic controllers. But in December, Reagan met with the entire AFL-CIO executive council at the White House and asked for a fresh start.

Kirkland had visited the White House several times since then, but some union leaders complained those sessions often little more than public relations gimmicks with differences between Reagan and labor left unresolved.

feel he will run for re-election," Rollins said.

Interviewed on Cable News Network's "Newsmaker Saturday" program, Rollins said Reagan, 71, has not directly indicated that he will run for a second term.

But he said the White House's game plan for the 1982 congressional and gubernatorial elections "certainly put some characteristics in for an '84 campaign."

Advisor says Reagan will seek second term

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's new chief political adviser said Saturday that he thinks Reagan will seek re-election in 1984.

"Every indication that I have is that the president feels very definitely that it's going to take longer than one term to carry out his program," Edward Rollins said.

"Although he had not announced his intention ... which is not unusual for an incumbent in his first year, personally I

STEPHEN A. PURVES

Assistant administrator named at local hospital

Appointment of Stephen A. Purves as assistant administrator for the 126-bed Coronado Community Hospital has been announced by Norman Knox, hospital administrator.

Knox said Purves is moving to Pampa from Roanoke, Va., where he completed an Administrative Residency Program at Roanoke Memorial Hospital. Purves received his Master of Science in Health Card Administration from Trinity University in San Antonio.

A native of Roanoke, Purves completed his undergraduate work at Springfield College, Springfield, Mass., where he graduated cum laude in 1978 with a Bachelor of Science degree.

Son of a career military serviceman, Purves attended high school in Germany before returning to the U.S. to attend college. His wife, Mary Anne, is a registered nurse and a graduate of Roanoke Memorial School of Nursing.

A physical fitness enthusiast, the new assistant administrator lists golf, tennis, and racketball as personal interests.

"We are very fortunate to be able to attract such top notch professionals in health care," Knox said. "Steve will be a tremendous asset to the hospital in helping us reach our goals in providing quality patient health care."

Pampa Employment office to reopen soon

The Pampa office of the Texas Employment Commission, along with those in Borger and Herford, are to reopen as the result of reinstatement of funding cut earlier this year by the federal government.

The reinstatement has enabled the Texas Employment Commission to reopen 71 offices it closed or was planning to close and to halt new layoffs of about 500 employees, the agency announced Friday.

Some offices will reopen as early as Monday, including the one in Hereford, a TEC spokesman said.

But the offices in both Pampa and Hereford will not be reopening as rapidly, according to Bill Day of Amarillo, TEC district director.

The buildings which formerly housed the Pampa and Borger TEC offices, which were vacated by the state agency when the offices were closed Jan. 31 due to lack of adequate funds, have been leased to other occupants by their owners.

Day said a representative from the premises department of the state TEC will be in the area this week to assist him in locating new buildings for the two offices. The Hereford office will reopen at the old location, which had not been rented, utilizing two TEC workers who had been commuting to Amarillo from their Hereford homes.

Four Borger workers and one from Pampa have also been commuting to the Amarillo TEC office since the offices were closed in the two cities.

Four workers from Pampa, one from Borger and three from Hereford resigned their positions rather than drive to work at Amarillo, Day said.

The TEC offices in Pampa, Borger and Hereford each had five employees before the TEC cutback forced closing of the three offices.

The new funds, approved by Congress last week, restore only the cuts made in December. TEC spokesman Jerry Biscoe said at Austin. The agency's budget was cut once before, so the agency does not expect to rehire about 800 employees laid off before the December cutbacks.

In January, TEC announced the Feb. 1 closing of 59 offices to meet reduced funding levels, and announced layoffs of 500 more employees. When further budget cuts were announced, 12 more offices were scheduled for closing.

"It is the intent of the commission to restore operations to all areas which were previously served," a TEC statement said. "However, in many situations, it will probably be necessary to modify staffing of the local office operations in order to comply with budgetary constraints."

Home town greets Dozier with parade and festivities

ARCADIA, Fla. (AP) — This town of 6,000 stopped the clock and borrowed a page from the past Saturday to welcome home its reluctant hero and native son, U.S. Army Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier.

Dozier, in full military dress, and his wife, Judith, were driven in an open car for a four-block parade that covered the main street from one end to the other to celebrate his return after surviving a kidnapping at the hands of Italian terrorists.

The festivities drew nearly 5,000 townsfolk and a sheepish admission from the general, a NATO commander, that he looks forward to the day when the attention subsides.

Blushingly, he agreed with his wife when she told reporters, "I'd just as soon get out from in front of your lights, to be honest."

Ex-con gets new start

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Ex-con Lawrence Williams got his diploma from trade school after a 16-month effort that included nights sleeping in cars or in the park — and a lot of help from strangers, he said Saturday.

"I didn't realize there were that many people that would just straight out help you," he told The Associated Press Saturday after hundreds of dollars in offers poured in after his story appeared in news reports.

The stories told how Williams had overcome hardship to complete a course in welding, but could not get a diploma because he could not scrape up $125 he owed the school.

Those accounts, however, also said Williams had lived in a tiny Volunteers of America collection box for the entire 16 months.

Warren Miles, live-in director of the St. Jude's Residence where Williams now lives, said he doubted that any donors would be upset when they learned that Williams actually spent only two nights in the collection box.

"The people I dealt with before always wanted something," said Williams, 24. "All the help I received so far is no strings, and I greatly appreciate that."

Among the offers coming into St. Jude's was a $125 donation from a county official to allow Williams to get the diploma he had earned at San Diego Technical Institute. A bank official also offered an interest-free loan to help Williams pay off the $2,446 he borrowed earlier to pay a portion of his school tuition, and a college professor offered to pay off the loan balance.

Williams paid his bill Friday, got his diploma and is set to begin work as a welder Monday at Jordan Steel.

Canadian horse a world champion

CANADIAN — A horse owned by Dan and Jolene Urschel has been named world champion quarter running horse for 1981.

Special Effort, a 1979 sorrel stallion, earned the title by having earned the all-time record amount of $1,026,721.

The horse won all nine races he entered in 1981, including the Kansas, Rainbow and All-American Futurities. Special Effort was also named champion 2-year-old and champion 2-year-old colt in balloting by the American Quarter Horse Association's 44-member racing committee.

The horse was sired by the Thoroughbred, Raise Your Glass, and out of Effortlessly by Double Devil.

For days Arcadia had been preparing for the big event. A podium was built beneath the "Tree of Knowledge," an old moss-laden oak that for years has served as the focus of activities in this quiet cattle and citrus country.

The townspeople gathered beneath this tree to pray when Dozier was kidnapped from his apartment in Italy by Red Brigade terrorists on Dec. 17.

The same people kept a candle vigil in their homes throughout his 42 days of captivity, and when he was freed in a police raid Jan. 28 they again gathered beneath the tree for a public prayer of thanksgiving.

Hundreds of big yellow bows hung from the branches overhead as former classmates reminisced aloud, telling the crowd anecdotes about the Dozier family's pioneer days in Arcadia, before Jimmy went off to West Point 31 years ago.

"I was overwhelmed," Dozier said after the reception, where outsiders were barred from formally participating. "I sort of feel like a toad in a hail storm."

VA delays constructing new medical facilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration is holding up construction of new medical facilities for hundreds of communities until it can determine whether they really are needed.

Even though he anticipates outraged opposition, VA administrator Robert Nimmo said he is reconsidering $2.7 billion worth of construction of new, modernized or replacement hospitals, clinics, nursing homes and domiciliarys, or residences for aging veterans.

All the projects under review already have been approved by Congress and are due to be built in fiscal year 1984 or later. Fiscal year 1984 starts Oct. 1, 1983.

Some of the facilities may never be built, he said, if they cannot be justified under new criteria to be developed by the VA.

Another $1 billion worth of fire, safety and seismic-related construction scheduled for after 1983 will not be delayed, Nimmo said.

"I'm going to get tons of flak," Nimmo said in an interview Friday in which he discussed his new policy. As chief of the VA, Nimmo runs the nation's biggest medical care system.

The VA annually provides free treatment to nearly 20 million veterans — 1.8 million hospital patients and 18 million outpatients — at 172 hospitals. Often the VA hospital is the largest single employer in a community.

STREET PATROL. A Polish army officer and his radio operator man a checkpoint on a snow-covered street in Warsaw recently, as an armed foot patrol walks in background. Regime may try ousted officials

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Parliament will debate economic reforms and formation of a state tribunal to judge the wrongdoing of former Communist Party officials, the official PAP news agency said Saturday.
Officials have said former party leader Edward Gierek and his closest aides might be brought before such a tribunal. Parliament meets next Friday and Saturday to take up the proposal.
Gierek and his cabinet have been blamed for bad economic planning that led the nation into crisis, including a $28 billion foreign debt and a social upheaval that spawned the independent union Solidarity.
Gierek and scores of other officials lost their posts in the wake of widespread August 1980 strikes that launched Solidarity, the first labor federation free of party control in the Soviet bloc.

Creation of a tribunal to try Gierek and the others apparently would aim at easing public anger over widespread food shortages and other economic woes in Poland, which has been under martial law since Dec. 13.
Some officials said interned Solidarity leaders may also be brought before the tribunal, but apparently they would not include the union's sequestered leader, Lech Walesa, who has not been charged with any violations so far.
Meanwhile, the party paper Trybuna Ludu quoted a statement issued by Walesa through a Roman Catholic priest last week as proof of Western propaganda efforts against Poland. The statement denied Walesa signed leaflets urging protests against martial law.

"If statements were falsified, then by whom?" the paper asked. "In whose interest is it? Certainly not the authorities." The paper blamed Solidarity extremists for falsifying statements to create the "illusion" of a strong underground which can be quoted by Western reports.
State television adopted the same theme in a commentary on the recent shooting of a police officer on a crowded streetcar. The commentary also said another soldier had his gun and ammunition stolen recently on a Warsaw street.
It concluded with a warning that Poles should think of the price "we will have to pay if we don't manage to restrain those for whom political ambitions are more important than the interest of the country."

Irish Sinn Fein party falls short

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The opposition Fianna Fail Party fell slightly short of a majority in the general election, but former Prime Minister Charles Haughey said he expected to win enough support from independents to form a government.
Haughey's conservative Fianna Fail won 81 seats in Parliament, Prime Minister Garret FitzGerald's Fine Gael 63, his Labor coalition partner 15 and independents seven.
It takes 83 seats to form a majority in the Parliament, or Dail, because one of the 166 seats is held by an independent, non-voting speaker.

Haughey told reporters he would begin negotiations with the other six independents before the Dail convenes March 9 and said, "I am confident that I will be forming the next government."
Two of the independents, Neil Blaney and Tony Gregory, are known to favor Fianna Fail but could go to the other side if offered concessions, political analysts said. Another, Jim Kemmy, has said he would support the party if it dumped Haughey — an unlikely event.
The three remaining independents are candidates from the Marxist-oriented Sinn Fein The Workers Party who have said they would back FitzGerald's coalition, but say they are willing to listen to Haughey.

"We're prepared to negotiate," Workers Party president Tomas MacGiolla said. "But we'll demand considerable budgetary concessions."
The party, which made its first electoral impact in Thursday's balloting, sprang from the outlawed Irish Republican Army but severed ties with the Northern Ireland guerrilla organization in 1969.

National Guard aids flooded Idaho communities

By the Associated Press
Water lapped at sandbags protecting the Idaho governor's mansion Saturday as National Guardsmen were sent to build temporary bridges to families trapped by floods in the Pacific Northwest.
With many rivers already overflowing their banks, a new wet storm packing gale-force winds hit the coast of Oregon and Washington where more than a week of rain has touched off mudslides and left highways and bridges awash.
While most of the nation enjoyed mild weather, up to 7 inches of rain fell during the night in south Texas, prompting a flash flood watch, and Nantucket, Mass., got 4 inches of snow driven by 45-mph winds.

Flooding aggravated by melting snow also was reported across central and southern Indiana, where many highways were closed and some communities had crews filling sandbags. The Wabash and White rivers and other streams were on the rise. Thousands of acres of farmland were under water.
In Washington state on Friday, two police officers were parked in a West Seattle neighborhood doing paperwork when a mudslide crashed down on two nearby homes.
"We were just sitting there talking, and the other officer said, 'Oh my God, a landslide!' and then all I could see was the trees coming down the hill with a bunch of dirt," said Officer David Bey. "I doubt if the entire thing took more than two seconds."

The slide knocked a garage into a bedroom of one of the homes and heavily damaged the second house, Bey said.
Idaho Gov. John Evans declared a state of emergency for flooded Washington County on Friday, then went home to a flood in his own front yard.
Sand Creek, which flows just a couple of blocks from the governor's mansion in north Boise, had flooded an eight-block area. Water deep enough to float kayaks and canoes was flowing in the street in front of the mansion.

Some of Pontiff's magic touch seems gone

EDITOR'S NOTE: The writer accompanied Pope John Paul on his eight-day African tour.
By DENNIS REDMONT Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — He pounded drums and hummed African hymns. He joked with nuns and a Marxist president. He delivered policy pronouncements in French, Spanish, English and Polish — without stumbling once.
But Pope John Paul II, "the athlete of faith," as some Vatican prelates call him, seemed to have lost some of his magic touch as he breezed through four African countries on an eight-day trip that ended Friday.
The torrid, 8,000-mile expedition took the pope through oil-rich Nigeria, Gabon, Marxist-ruled Benin and Equatorial Guinea, a former Spanish colony barely back on the road to economic subsistence and religious freedom after more than a decade of murderous repression.
In Benin, the leader of the revolution, Mathieu Kerekou, told the pontiff under the portraits of Lenin, Stalin, Marx and Mao Tse-tung that the pope had an equal place in his heart.
In Nigeria, his triumphant return to the Christian region that was once Biafra was marred when Moslem leaders failed to show up at a meeting aimed at warming up dialogue between Islam and Christianity.

And in palm-fringed, modernistic Libreville, Gabonese poured out their hearts with lilting-beat music for the pope's arrival but far from filled a stadium where the pope addressed workers, students and professionals.
The pope's message wasn't particularly pleasant to hear — that African society was built too thin for a few at the top, that violence brings "no effective solution" to social conflict, and permissiveness and waste pervaded youth who rejected Christ.
Many of the pope's 34 other speeches also failed to stir some of the 2 million people who saw the white-robed pontiff in person and the millions of others who watched him on television. Many walked away after getting a glimpse of the pontiff as he read through a dozen pages of a homily.

"Pope John Paul has the dimension of a myth, of a personality, which suddenly becomes approachable," commented an African-based French-Dominican scholar, Rene Luneau. "But when people get in close, or start listening they don't always hear what they want. So they don't respond."
An underlying question is whether any of the pope's former spark has been lost because of the May 13 assassination attempt, in which he was wounded.
Papal doctor Renato Buzzonetti, who accompanied the pope at arm's length throughout the trip, was categorical.
On of John Paul's physicians, Wladislaw Wiszcki of Krakow, Poland, said his compatriot even joked at the end of the tour: "Is it already over?"

District clerk is stepping down

Gray County District Clerk Helen Sprinkle has announced that she will not be seeking re-election to the post which she has held since 1953.
"I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to the voters of Gray County for your loyal support and consideration during my tenure of office as District Clerk of Gray County.

These years have been both pleasant and rewarding and I have been most grateful to you," she said.
"My chief deputy, Mary Clark, has been employed in this capacity for four years and has proven to be dedicated, honest and efficient in all her work. She is a candidate for the position of clerk of the District Courts of Gray County," Mrs. Sprinkle said.

Testimony will resume Monday in ex-chief's trial

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Dallas computer magnate H. Ross Perot will be called as a defense witness when the federal perjury and conspiracy trial of former Tyler Police Chief Willie Hardy resumes Monday, a defense attorney says.

Hardy and his wife also are expected to be called to the stand as defense attorneys try to rebut government contentions that Hardy violated the rights of defendants picked up in a scandal-ridden drug raid in 1979.

The former police chief, who stepped down to deputy chief after his indictment, is accused of lying at the trials of two drug defendants about former narcotics agent Creig Matthews' drug use during an undercover investigation.

On Friday, three former security guards employed by Perot testified that they escorted Matthews and another former agent, Kim Ramsey Matthews, who is now Matthews' wife, from Dallas to trials in Tyler.

The three said they had no knowledge of drug use by Matthews.

The head of security for Perot's Electronic Data Systems Corp., Robert Snider, testified that Perot gave him instructions to "provide a safe house in Dallas for Creig and Kim and to give them safe conduct from Dallas to Tyler."

Snider said he had daily contact with the former agents while they were under Perot's protection from November 1979 through early 1981.

Snider said he did not know how Perot became acquainted with the narcotics agents.

The defense also presented a videotaped deposition by Dr. Richard Toranto, who said he treated Matthews for a gunshot wound to the right arm and thigh in October.

GM loses rebate round

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — General Motors Corp. has lost another round in its legal battle over a rebate program the Texas attorney general contends violates the state's Deceptive Trade Practices Act.

State District Judge Jerry Dellana extended Friday a temporary restraining order barring the automobile manufacturer from charging car dealers their share of a nationally advertised bonus program known as "Let's Get Moving."

Dellana set another hearing for Tuesday.

The case came back to Dellana's court after U.S. District Judge H.F. Garcia of San Antonio denied General Motors' motion to have the issued decided in federal court.

"It's not the court's place" for Justice "to impose his personal social philosophy on the Texas corrections system," Estelle said. "He has never faced election nor would the people choose to elect him if they were given the opportunity."

Estelle said that Justice's ruling that the prison system was unconstitutional had a "crass, gross, almost incredible lack of literary skills. He wore out adjectives in describing what he had never visited."

Estelle said that within 40 miles of Justice's courtroom were five prisons the judge could have visited, but he refused to do so.

Barge carrier back in port

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Salvage crews towed a listing freighter towards Galveston Bay Saturday after it collided with a barge carrier in international waters about 110 miles southeast of Galveston.

Two sailors aboard the Liberian-registered cargo ship African Pioneer were injured when it collided in heavy fog with the 892-foot U.S. barge carrier Delta Norte early Friday morning.

The Delta Norte, which has a hole above the waterline, was brought into port Saturday after Coast Guard inspectors declared the vessel safe.

Roy Sijthoff, a spokesman for Smit American Salvage Co. of New York, said a topline was placed on the African Pioneer about 11 p.m. Friday.

Sijthoff said crews would try to bring the vessel, which was listing to the starboard side, into Galveston Bay for inspection.

"It's in pretty bad shape," said a Coast Guard officer, who asked not to be identified.

Sijthoff said salvage experts planned to examine the vessel to see what could be done to make it seaworthy.

The African Pioneer's 26 crew members abandoned the vessel after the collision and were picked up by the Delta Norte.

Albert Alexander, 37, remained in intensive care Saturday with a broken leg and ribs, said a John Sealy Hospital spokeswoman, who asked not to be identified.

Alexander was injured when he fell two decks and was submerged in diesel fuel, authorities said.

Herman Manfred, 61, remained hospitalized with a crushed hand and a broken shoulder.

The National Weather Service reported near zero visibility when the two ships collided at 5 a.m. Friday.

Prison director lambastes judge

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Texas' prison director says federal Judge William Wayne Justice should disqualify himself from hearing a complaint against the special prison master because Justice "is part and parcel of the problem."

"Going into his (Justice's) courtroom is like playing poker in a strange town without a clean deck," W.J. Estelle said Saturday in a speech and question-and-answer session before the Texas Associated Press Broadcasters.

Estelle said Justice should not try to run the Texas prison system because he is "insulated from the real world," and has shown "crass, gross, almost incredibly bad literary skills."

Estelle's department has filed a complaint against the special prison master Vincent Nathan, claiming Nathan is withholding information about inmates who have deadly weapons.

Justice is scheduled to hear arguments on the complaint next month.

Estelle said it isn't fair for Justice to preside over the hearing because he appointed the special master.

Justice ruled the state's prison system to be unconstitutional in 1980, and appointed Nathan to enforce court-ordered reforms.

Estelle claims that since Nathan began work last June, there has been a significant increase in violence at state prisons.

There have been 11 recorded incidents of major violence at Texas prisons since the master was appointed, according to Estelle. He said there were only six such incidents in the eight previous years.

Estelle said that he agreed that federal courts should have the right to determine if prison conditions are constitutional.

"But he (Justice) has overstepped the bounds by telling the state how to correct the system," he said.

Estelle said he was happy to hear that the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco has recently ruled that a federal district court judge has no business directing efforts to correct unconstitutional conditions at the Washington state penitentiary.

Search for family turns up body

LAKE DALLAS, Texas (AP) — Searchers looking for four members of a missing Denton County family discovered the body of a young man Saturday.

But the corpse was not believed connected with the disappearance of the Kenneth Merrilat family that friends last saw Feb. 14 as the family departed on a weekly hunt for firewood.

The body was found after searchers moved the hunt from the Lake Lewisville area north of Dallas to Lake Grapevine, according to Lake Dallas Police Chief Y.G. Carr.

"It looks like it's an 18-year-old or 19-year-old male," Carr said. "Not the Merrilats at all. We've found something we haven't been looking for."

Carr said the body had not been identified. No other details were immediately available.

Merrilat, 32, his wife Alice, 27, and daughters Kayleen, 6, and Kendra Lee, 5, were last seen last Sunday as they left their home to gather driftwood for their home

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Back to the drawing board for tax appraisal budget

We hope taxing entities represented in the Gray County Tax Appraisal District will take a close, hard look at the $500,000 plus budget and register their vetoes with the board within 30 days.

If no veto is recorded, the budget will be considered automatically approved by that entity. If a majority of the entities veto the budget, the board will then have to revise the budget before it can be reconsidered. The Gray County Tax Appraisal District board approved the budget in their last meeting by a vote of three to one. Approving the budget were Jimmy Wilkerson, Lloyd Hunt and Bill Gething. Voting against the approval was Carl Kennedy. Dr. Robert Lyle left the meeting before the vote was taken.

While it is true that the state legislature has mandated the counties to form a central appraisal board to carry out the function of uniformly appraising all property for all taxing entities, we feel there is plenty of room for austerity in the district's budget.

The state has furnished some $29,000 towards start-up of an office but have made no requirements we know of that this office be of a certain size or have a certain number of employees. Their only mandate is to get the job done.

We feel the citizens of this county want our appraisal district to get the job done cheaply as well.

We think it can be done. But it may not involve as sophisticated a structure as Chief Appraiser Charles Rand might desire.

It appears to us Rand has seen a good deal coming and is writing his own ticket. It appears he plans to make this district another full-blown bureaucracy, complete with new cars and a staff of appraisers.

It seems only fair that for taking on additional duties that his current salary of $32,000 be supplemented, but to the tune of $12,000? We feel a smaller raise could be granted and still compensate for added duties.

We're not so sure Rand should even serve as the Chief Appraiser.

We feel the board may have acted hastily in automatically retaining the city-school tax appraiser when there might be an equally qualified individual out there who might accept the job for less.

We think the board is tackling this job backwards.

Just as other boards must prepare budgets by first estimating their income, then fitting their expenses and salaries into that budget, we think the tax appraisal district should do the same.

The board should have first determined how much money they wanted to spend. They could have examined what each entity paid for appraisal services last year, for example. They could estimate how much each entity would save, or could offer, through centralizing this tax appraising function. With one agency carrying out the appraisal function for many, surely some savings could be found, or at least no additional expenses incurred to the taxpayers.

We all know too well the economic reality that once a new government agency gets started, costs are only going to escalate if only because of inflation. But this agency needs to start with a half million dollar budget.

After determining how much the entities could afford, they could then examine how much work the office will require in terms of man hours. How many people will this work require? While job descriptions are a hassle and seem a formality to many, they might be appropriate to this type of agency. Then what would be a good salary for an individual qualified to do this work, within the context of how much the board has to spend. According to board member Carl Kennedy, salaries for chief appraiser in neighboring cities is in the $19,000 range. The board could then advertise for applicants. Who knows who might be looking for a job?

We also agree with Kennedy, who seems to be the only member of the board who has the taxpayers' interest at heart, that spending $80,000 on renovating an old school cafeteria into an office with carpeting and ceiling fans is a bit exorbitant when something less would get the job done.

Perhaps renting an office ready for use would be cheapest. We don't know for sure, but we're not aware that anyone has checked.

As a comparison, County Tax Assessor-Collector Marge Gray has a budget of $207,000 for her many duties. Her office includes 10 deputies. This budget pays her salary, her deputies' salaries, retirement, insurance, notary bonds, telephone and postage expense, equipment rental and $7,000 for tax data from Pampa Independent School District, outside appraiser Thomas Y. Pickett and Western Data. This includes a substitution in McLean. Her office is charged with responsibility for assessing and collecting county taxes, issuing liquor and motor vehicles licenses, motor vehicle title transfers and issuing voter registrations.

Rand proposes 16 persons for the office, himself and three appraisers and 12 clerical workers. Rand says the three appraisers will work entirely for the tax appraisal district. He is to spend 70 percent of his time on tax appraising duties and 30 percent on collection of taxes for the school system. Clerical personnel will spend 60 percent on tax appraising and 40 percent on school collections.

The only tax appraising duties of the first three years would be parcels outside the Pampa Independent School District and industrial and mineral properties.

Budgeting is something we working people do all the time.

We daily face the facts that when you can't afford it, you don't go out and buy it.

Board members, except for Kennedy, are accepting like pabulum what has been put forth by one who has much to gain from this.

With a half million dollars being charged proportionately back to the taxing entities, who must then raise the money with the only weapon they have — namely taxation — it's apparent to us that unless care is taken, unless this budget soundly vetoed, the new tax district will cost us more taxes.

While we in the Panhandle abhor the formation of yet another governmental agency, knowing full well that it will increase taxes, it seems the rest of the state has yet to discover this fact.

Until that fact is discovered by our less enlightened Texans, it seems our best alternative is to prove we can do the job efficiently and with a reasonable amount of money.

By ROBERT WALTERS
WASHINGTON (NEA) — While President Reagan is publicly espousing enhanced financial independence of the states, his administration is quietly attempting to destroy one of the states' major sources of revenue.

The Justice Department — acting on behalf of the State, Treasury and Commerce departments — has endorsed a legal challenge mounted by a group of multinational corporations seeking to force abandonment of a method widely used by the states to compute corporate tax liability.

Similar civil suits have been repeatedly filed in recent years in both state and federal courts by major corporations, but the federal government never before has joined in the attack on state taxation systems.

The unprecedented Justice Department action raises doubts about the sincerity of Reagan's commitment to the "New Federalism" under which the states would assume a substantially expanded role in funding government programs.

Although previous legal challenges generally have been rebuffed by the

Feds attack states' taxing courts, the current effort could — if sustained by the U.S. Supreme Court, where the case is not pending — deprive the states of $700 million or more in annual revenues.

At issue is the "unitary method" of taxation, an approach that emphasizes the consolidated financial activity of not only the parent corporation but also all of its various domestic and foreign subsidiaries and affiliates.

A formula based on three factors — sales, payroll and property — is utilized to determine what portion of the corporation's total business is conducted in the state and thus legitimately subject to taxation.

If states are deprived of the opportunity to rely upon the unitary method, corporations can evade taxation through internal accounting techniques to manipulate their financial records.

The pending court case involves the right of Illinois revenue authorities to use the unitary method in imposing state taxes on the Caterpillar Tractor Co., based in Peoria, Ill.

Although the Illinois Supreme Court has upheld that procedure, the decision is being appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Co. Supporting that legal challenge are Mobil, Gulf and other multinational corporations as well as the federal government.

An unfavorable court decision could cost California $485 million yearly in lost revenues. Other estimated annual state losses include $75 million in New York, $28.5 million in Utah, $25 million in Illinois, $10 million or more in Kansas, $7.5 million in Montana and $2 million or more in New Hampshire.

"The issue vitally impacts state revenues," Oregon Gov. Victor Atiyeh, a Republican, said in a recent letter to the president. "The imposition of such a federal restriction on state's methods of taxation constitutes a serious encroachment by the federal government into prerogatives rightfully belonging to the states."

In another strongly worded protest letter recently sent to the White House, Utah Gov. Scott Matheson, a Democrat, warned that "the states' effective participation in this (New Federalism) partnership cannot be maintained if the administration of our own constitutionally guaranteed fiscal powers is unilaterally stripped away."

Rep. Byron Dorgan, D - N.D., in another letter to Reagan, said federal intervention in the lawsuit "appears contrary to everything the administration stands for in the area of federalism and states rights."

Added Dorgan: "The Justice Department position would deprive the states of hundreds of millions of dollars in revenues which they need desperately to cope with the massive federal budget cuts... It would compel the states to grant an enormous new tax break to corporations."

Indeed, the available evidence suggests that the Reagan administration is considerably more concerned about slashing corporate taxes than aiding the states to assume the new financial responsibilities imposed on them by the federal government.

Letter to editor

Dear Editor:

I was humiliated and shocked to read that the Gray County Tax Appraisal Board adopted a $500,000 budget for the new Tax Appraisal. If this budget is approved by the taxing bodies, it should be classified as the "EL GRANDE RIPOFF" of the last decade.

I have paid local taxes for the past fifty year and I am interested. During this period we have had three taxing bodies, namely, the County, City and School and for many years we have had on our payroll one or more outside appraisal firms for handling Oil, Commercial and Industrial businesses. Now we hire a third group of experts at an exorbitant figure to handle our affairs. Are we assured that this new tax group has the qualifications to do the job? Are we dispensing with the services of those already on our payroll including the County, City and School tax offices?

We have already put on the backs of the elderly home owners and the young people an unreal tax burden, where does all this end?

I commend our County Judge for his stand as well as the Pampa News for giving us the information of this sad state of affairs.

Sincerely,
E. C. Sidwell

Weathering heights, in depth

By D.R. SEGAL

The weather is news. That is an item of solemn wisdom I have been laying on editors for years. I was never able to convince them of course but television has made believers of them all. Not so long ago most papers — this one included — put weather down at the bottom of the page in a skinny little box that said it might rain tomorrow and get up to 75 and what else is new? Now, we give weather almost as much space as we devote to Seantor Schmitz and Jane Fonda.

The high cost of messages

One of the problems with everyone's foreign policy these days is that countries have decided to send more and more expensive messages to each other. In bygone ye-rs, an ambassador delivered a message to a foreign government in a leather briefcase. The foreign secretary would then call in the ambassador and hand him his government's reply. It was all neat and tidy and a very cheap way of keeping in touch with each other.

But now the price of message has gone sky high.

This is how governments are communicating with each other:

The President calls in his Secretary of State: "I want to send a message to the Soviet Union that they better stay out of Central America. Give the El Salvador government $5 million in arms."

"Yes, sir."

A few days later the President calls the secretary, "Have we had a reply to our message to the Soviets?"

"It just came in. The Soviets have delivered 50 MiGs to Cuba, as well as new ground-to-air missiles."

"Get off a tough message to Cuba right away. Send a squadron of Huey helicopter gunships to Honduras, and make sure they know we're going to give Guatemala anything they ask for. Sign my name to them so they know we mean business."

"Right, sir. By the way we just got a message from France. They're supporting the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua by selling them 100 Mirages. What is our reply?"

"Give the government of Trinidad two submarines and a missile cruiser to inform Mitterrand we disapprove of the sale."

A few days later the President is being briefed by his National Security Adviser. "Libya is protesting our vote in the United Nations on Israel and has sent us a message by supplying the PLO with Russian-made heavy artillery."

"What kind of reply do you suggest we send?"

"We could give Sudan 200 U.S. - made

What spooked us, of course, was television.

Television stations have "meteorologists," a term with which I can't say I've come to grips. It has been my experience that these "meteorologists" read stuff off the U.S. Weather Bureau wire while pointing to an insanely intricate map that nobody in his right mind would try to make any sense out of. They gab about needing chains on the easterly slopes of the Rockies while pointing to Ogden, Utah, and most of them think Georgia is a "middle Atlantic" state.

I am very fond of a Los Angeles TV weather reporter who is a "doctor" of something or other — divinity, medicine, chiropractic? He has elevated meteorology to the level of vaudeville, which I enjoy very much. He lopez around like a demented gnome, gesticulating, grimacing, endowing the weather report with a cheerful lunacy which makes a rain shower in Jackson Hole sound like front page news. Weather reporters on the nationally televised morning news have settled on an antic exuberance, exploding the weather at us before we've had time to gather our wits about us. They don't always agree and that gives you the opportunity of picking the weather report that suits your purpose.

One Los Angeles station has a nice little fellow giving the weather. He is almost apologetic when he has to say you can't haul house trailers up to Arrowhead due to the winds. He's rather shy, I gather, and not entirely at ease when the anchorlady and the sports reporter engage him in what he TV industry calls "happy talk." I like him, too.

I am told that weather reporters are very important to television newscasts and they are inclined to see themselves as super stars and take a great deal of attending to. On newspapers you just clip the stuff off the wire and send the satellite picture (sometimes 24 hours old) down to the engraver. Nobody gets a byline for it and the work can be done satisfactorily by somebody called Hey You because nobody can remember the kid's name. As the late Westbrook Pegler once remarked about things in general, 'tain't fair.

"Did L.L. Bean loan you that nice looking outfit for walking in the woods at Camp David?"

Would stopping 'blue Mondays,' just bring about bluer Tuesdays?

NEW YORK (AP) — Some Wall Street analysts have proposed a simple remedy for the stock market's current ailments: Close the exchanges every Monday.

Though the market has had its problems all through the first seven weeks of 1982, most of its worst moments have occurred on "blue Mondays."

There was Monday Jan. 11, when the Dow Jones industrial average fell 16.07 points. Then came Monday Feb. 1, when it dropped 19.41 points, and Monday Feb. 8, when it fell 17.60.

If the aggregate loss of more than 40 points recorded on Mondays so far this year could somehow be stricken from the record, brokers point out, the average would show only a drop of about 10 points from its close at 875.00 on New Year's Eve.

In the past week, when the markets actually were closed on Monday in observance of Washington's birthday, the prescription didn't seem to bring much relief, though.

The beginning-of-the-week selloff was merely postponed until Tuesday morning, when the Dow Jones industrials fell more than 13 points in the first half hour. After that, the market steadied, and the average finished the week with a 9.51 loss at 824.30.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index dropped .66 to 65.43, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was down 5.43 at 269.57.

Big Board volume averaged 52.17 million shares a day, against 46.67 million the week before.

Legislators say faith slipping in Reaganomics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress are returning from a 10-day recess after hearing from their constituents that faith in President Reagan's economic program is beginning to slip.

"The question is, do we keep the faith?" said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont. "And, if so, how much longer should we?"

Concern over a deteriorating economy, projected record budget deficits, increased defense spending and reductions in popular domestic programs is eroding support for Reagan's economic program, according to dozens of legislators contacted by The Associated Press.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., Reagan's closest friend in the Senate, said Nevadans with whom he met "are solidly behind the president." But he acknowledged "I sense among businessmen a growing alarm about continued high interest rates."

Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., said, "The president's still popular and everybody hopes his program succeeds, but as the layoffs continue and interest rates don't come down, many groups are pulling back and are really worried."

Congress reconvenes Monday after the break to observe Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays and will continue its scrutiny of the president's recommended $757.6 billion spending plan for the 1983 fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

Reagan said during a news conference Thursday that he hoped Capitol Hill criticism of his budget proposals "might soften" after members of Congress "heard from the folks back home. Because I think there is widespread support for continued cutting of government spending."

Pampa native is promoted

SLM Instruments, Inc. has announced the promotion of Dr. Robert D. Fugate to vice-president of sales. Fugate was promoted from customer applications manager, a position he has held since joining SLM in 1978.

The promotion was announced by SLM President, Dr. Richard D. Spencer, who named Fugate as instrumental in the acquisition by SLM of the American Instrument Co. (AMINCO), recently. Spencer indicated that he anticipates SLM sales to increase to more than twice the present level immediately, an additional increase of 50 percent over the next year as a result of the acquisition of the 60 year old firm. According to Spencer, SLM has experienced an average growth of 50 percent yearly since it was founded in the early 1970s. Spencer said that Fugate's new title is in line with his job function, which has been to spearhead the company's sales effort since he first joined SLM.

Before moving to Urbana, Fugate was involved in research that led to a Doctorate of Philosophy in chemistry from the Texas Tech University, awarded in August, 1978. Prior to his doctorate, Fugate received a B.S. in microbiology from the same institution in 1975.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

Your Home Is Your Castle

AUSTIN — Texas is the only state in the nation that does not allow second mortgages on homesteads. In this state, lenders may foreclose mortgages on only three types of debts: purchase money mortgages, home improvement loans and tax liens.

We do not think this is consistent with a system of free enterprise. Your home is your castle, and you should be able to do what you please with it.

Of course, not everyone agrees. Many people argue that if the ban on second mortgages were lifted, homeowners would borrow money for frivolous reasons, then "blow" the loan money, and lose their homes.

Undoubtedly many would. However, that does not seem like a good reason to stop everyone else from borrowing money on their homes for good reasons, like educational expenses, medical bills, or to start a business. Government has better things to do than protect us from ourselves.

The present law would require those homeowners to sell their homes to get their money out of them. It seems to make more sense to allow them simply to borrow the money, which is a much simpler way to accomplishing the same thing.

The value of all homesteads in Texas in 1980 was about $71 billion. That is a lot of collateral to be locked away from people who may need it.

Because the ban on this type of borrowing is in the state constitution, changing the law would be a two-step process. First, the Legislature would have to pass a resolution to put the question on the ballot. Then, the voters would have to decide if they thought it was a good idea.

This amendment process guarantees the protection of the interests of the public. Homeowners tend to be voters anyway, so the vote would be one of most representative tallies in history. Of course, any registered voter could participate.

Before this subject comes before the Legislature, we want your opinion. Tell us whether you think homeowners should be able to take out a second mortgage. Write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Nazarene Church names new pastor

The First Church of the Nazarene, located at the corner of West and Buckler streets, has called the Rev. Daniel J. Mappus to be its new pastor.

Mappus succeeds the Rev. L. Edward Barker who resigned to accept a position with the Pampa Police Department.

Mappus will come to Pampa from his previous assignment in Burkburnett, he has pastored Nazarene congregations in Abilene, and Weatherford, Texas; Hot Springs, Gwynn's Island and Bristol, Va.

With 14 years pastoral experience, he has led four congregations in major building and relocation programs.

He was educated at Virginia Tech and Nazarene Bible College. He is married to the former Mabel Andrews of Covington, Va. They have three children, Heather, 12, Jennifer, 7, and Bridget, 4.

REV. DANIEL J. MAPPUS

Mappus has been active in community affairs and is past president of the Mathes County Ministerial Association, and past president of the Chesapeake Interdenominational Camp Meeting Association.

State; local officials don't want tab for new federalism

WASHINGTON (AP) — State and local officials converged on the nation's capital Saturday to tell the Reagan administration they don't want to get stuck with the tab for the president's "new federalism."

Democratic governors, many of whom are expected to press for their own version of Reagan's proposal to transfer 43 federal programs to state control, met with the party's Senate leadership to discuss strategy.

The National Governors' Association opens its three-day winter meeting here Sunday; the executive committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures meets the same day.

When the governors go to the White House on Monday

Club welcomes area new-comers

The Pampa Rifle and Pistol Club extends a welcome to all new-comers in rifle and pistol shooting.

There are events scheduled for each Sunday and for all new-comers or unclassified shooters there is no charge.

Trophies and pins will be given to the winners of each class. Those seeking information on the monthly scheduled matches and for memberships may call Joe Reed at 665-3601.

to meet with Reagan and Budget Director David A. Stockman, the National Association of Counties will be convening a two-day legislative conference.

Getting more local control over programs has widespread support among state and local officials, but they also have expressed fears whether they will have enough money to maintain their new responsibilities.

"The governors applaud the boldness of the president's initiative and his willingness to negotiate the specifics of an intergovernmental sorting out," said Republican Gov. Richard Snelling of Vermont, chairman of the governors' association.

But he added that "the plan gives rise to a number of issues that must be more fully explored, including the impact of the fiscal 1983 budget cuts on the states."

Bridge stakeout team should have heard car

ATLANTA (AP) — A police officer on stakeout may have been asleep when he says he heard a "big loud splash" in the Chattahoochee River last spring, a sound expert testified Saturday at the murder trial of Wayne B. Williams.

Prosecutors contend the splash was made by the body of Nathaniel Cater, 27, the last of 28 young blacks slain in a 22-month string of killings here. Williams is charged with murdering Cater and Jimmy Ray Payne, 21, two of the victims.

Williams, 23, first came to the attention of police about 3 a.m. on May 22 when police recruit Robert Campbell heard the splash and other members of a stakeout team saw Williams' car on a bridge above. Cater's body was found downstream two days later.

The sound expert, Mark Oviatt, testified for the defense that Campbell should have heard Williams' car cross a metal expansion joint on the bridge before hearing the splash — unless he was asleep.

Campbell testified last month that the expansion joint usually warned him of approaching traffic, but he did not hear or see Williams' car before hearing the splash. He denied being asleep, and prosecutors contend Williams sneaked onto the bridge with his lights off to avoid detection.

Oviatt said Williams' car was driven over the expansion joints at various speeds while a machine measured the sound at the river level, where Campbell was stationed May 22. "A person with normal hearing could hear the expansion joint sound" when the car was moving as slowly as 4.3 mph, Oviatt said.

Oviatt's test results disputed Campbell's testimony that prosecution experiments showed a car traveling at less than 10 mph could not be heard below the bridge. But under cross-examination, Oviatt conceded the noise could have been different in May because of seasonal differences, including temperature.

Prosecutors also contended that the machine Oviatt used to measure the sound could not show what Campbell did or did not hear.

Saturday's special court session, held to speed up the 8-week-old trial, was cut short after the morning's testimony because defense lawyer Mary Welton became ill. The nature of her illness was not disclosed, but a bailiff said it was not serious.

Oviatt said he headed a team of acoustical experts who took Williams' car to the bridge at 3 a.m. Friday to recreate the bridge incident and measure the sound levels.

Meanwhile, there was a report that a carpet installer acted as a witness for a home improvement loan taken out by Williams' parents in December 1971.

A report in Sunday's combined editions of The Atlanta Journal and Constitution said Homer and Faye Williams took out a loan of $1,973.88, including interest, on Dec. 17, 1971, with Southern Prudential Home Improvement Corp.

Klansmen jeer as blacks march

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga. (AP) — About 350 blacks strode past jeering, hooded Ku Klux Klansmen Saturday on an 11-mile march to Monroe to demand an investigation of what they allege are a "series of unsolved murders" of blacks in rural Walton County dating back to 1946.

Marching three abreast, the column of protesters snaked past white-columned homes here on its way north on Georgia 11, bound for the courthouse in Monroe, the county seat.

At least 30 law enforcement officers were on hand before the march began at noon.

State Patrol Capt. William Usry estimated about 200 whites had participated in a shouting match with blacks before the march began.

Edward Fields, grand dragon of the Knights of the KKK, said his followers were protesting the march because if you "give them an inch, they'll take a mile. Now you have seen how far they can go."

The black marchers carried signs reading "KKK Go Home" and "Keep Black Beautiful."

Walton County District Attorney John Strauss said

one white man was arrested on weapons charges and several firearms were confiscated, but no violence was reported.

Strauss said the march was prompted by an investigation of the death of Spec. 4 Lynn Jackson, a black soldier found hanged here on Dec. 8.

Livestock show slated

PANHANDLE — Carson Carson Livestock Show will be Saturday, Feb. 27, 1982 at the County Agriculture Barn in Panhandle. The judge will be Kenneth Woodward of Panhandle State University.

The judging will begin Saturday morning at 8:30 a.m. with the pigs followed by lambs. Beginning at 1 p.m. there will be the judging of steers, followed by heifers.

The shows will include approximately 46 steers, 10 heifers, 151 pigs and 113 lambs.

The sale will begin at 7:30 p.m. There will be approximately 24 steers, 55 pigs, and 34 lambs offered for sale. The animals sold will be determined by their placing in their respective classes. Auctioneers for the sale will be Jack Howell and Bennie Regan.

Gasoline dealer's group foresees 90-cent gas

HOUSTON (AP) — Fierce competition will drive the price of regular, self-service gasoline down to 90 cents a gallon in the Houston area within two months, says a spokesman for a Texas gasoline dealers group.

"Prices will continue to fall for the rest of this year without a doubt," Glenn Nilsson, executive director of the Lone Star Service Association.

"In today's market, consumers have so little brand loyalty they'll drive out of a station for a 2-cent differential."

Oil allowable at 100 percent

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Railroad Commission Thursday extended Texas' 100 percent oil allowable through March, which would climax a decade of all-out production in Texas.

Setting the market production factor was routine, and neither of the two commissioners present — Jim Nugent or Mack Wallace — commented.

As usual, the commission made certain exceptions to the 100 percent factor, holding the East Texas Field, for example, to 86 percent of potential to avoid possible waste.

Nugent noted in announcing the March allowable that major buyers of Texas crude oil submitted nominations to buy 2,449,402 barrels a day next month, an increase of 3,082 barrels daily from February.

Water buffalo most misunderstood, underutilized animals in world

WASHINGTON (AP) — The water buffalo is truly a fine creature, a source of food and energy for millions of people around the world, says the National Research Council. But the great horned water buffalo also "is perhaps one of the most misunderstood and underutilized animals in the world," says the council. It has a new report aimed at debunking "some of the common myths" of the buffalo. Some cattle producers and tractor salesmen, however, may take exception to some of the report's assertions. It implies, for example, that the water buffalo might be better at pulling a combine out of a muddy wheat field than a $75,000 tractor.

"It is widely believed that the water buffalo is mean and vicious," the report said. "The truth is, however, that unless wounded or severely stressed, the domesticated water buffalo is one of the gentlest of all farm animals. "Despite an intimidating appearance, it is more like a household pet — sociable, gentle and serene. In rural Asia, the care of water buffaloes is often turned over to small boys and girls aged about 4 to 9." The potential of the water buffalo has been slow to catch on in the United States, however.

ESTATE TAX SEMINAR

We will take an in-depth look at Estate - Income Tax planning for farmers and ranchers. It will be February 25 and 26, in the Starlite Room, Coronado Inn, Pampa. This program is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Discussions will cover new tax regulations and how changing economic conditions have special meaning for the farmer and rancher. This seminar is especially designed to help you reduce estate taxes and pass your operation on to the next generation.

Registration is limited and the cost is $10, which includes lunch and materials. Pre-registration is needed before February 22. Call 669-7429 or come by the County Extension Office, Courthouse Annex, Pampa.

The program will be conducted by Wayne Hayenga, Project Group Supervisor in Farm Management and attorney; Texas Agricultural Extension Service, College Station; and Marvin Sartin, CPA, Amarillo. Each day the program begins at 8:30 a.m. and adjourns around 3:30 p.m.

WHEN TO SPRAY WEEDS IN WHEAT

Good moisture and growing conditions last fall got wheat off to a good start and most September and October planted wheat is now fully tillered. This means it can be safely sprayed with hormone-type herbicides without risk of yield loss. Wheat planted in November and December may need a little time after spring growth resumes to become fully tillered. Broadleaf winter annual weeds such as tansy and treacle mustard, false flax and pepperweed also got off to a good start and are competing for all limited moisture. The young weeds or rosettes can be seen easily as they may be an inch or two in diameter. An application of 1-3 to 1/2 pound of 2,4-D active ingredient will do a good job of eliminating the weeds if moisture stress is not too great. Spraying should be done when daytime temperatures are up to 55 degrees and preferable at the beginning of a warming trend. Winds should be less than 5 miles per hour to assure uniform distribution on the target area. Avoid spraying near trees and farmsteads to minimize risk of damage to susceptible plants. If spraying is needed when wheat is not fully tillered or after it begins to joint in the spring, MCPA should be used instead of 2,4-D. It is quite effective on most broadleaf weeds and the risk of crop damage is reduced. The price of MCPA may be slightly greater than for equivalent rates of 2,4-D.

TIME TO CONTROL CATTLE LICE

Lice cost U.S. cattlemen more than $50 million annually, so it's important to control them.

Lice begin to reproduce rapidly with the onset of cool weather, so peak populations on cattle occur in late winter and early spring. Uncontrolled lice can soon infest a whole herd because with cold weather, cattle tend to bunch up more so that the pests can move easily from one animal to another. Heavy hair coats on animals during cold weather also afford protection for the parasites and allow for increased production.

Both types of lice — bloodsucking and biting — infest cattle. Sucking lice pierce the animal's skin and suck blood while biting lice feed on particles of hair, scale, scab and skin exudation.

Lice infestations irritate animals, causing itching, scratching and rubbing on fences or anything else available. This produces denuded areas, bruises and lacerations on the affected animals. Heavily infested animals will have an unthrifty appearance and will suffer weight reduction, decreased milk production, anemia or even death. Lice infested animals may also be more subject to infectious diseases. Heavy lice infestations often stunt calves.

Spraying or dipping infested animals with the proper insecticide is the most effective means of controlling lice. However, properly placed and maintained dust bags offer effective control and save both time and labor. Position dust bags prior to lice buildup so that cattle can become accustomed to using the bags. A dust bag station should serve about 30 head. Depending on cattle size, place the bags so that they hang 18-24 inches above the ground. Forced-use dust bags where they are placed so that cattle must pass under them to get feed or water, begin to control lice sooner than those used free-choice bags can be about effective as forced-use types.

In a spraying or dipping program, an animal must receive a thorough soaking in each of two applications 14-18 days apart to effectively control lice. The second spray or dip will kill any live hatching from eggs that were laid prior to the first spraying. When spraying, use a high pressure (250 pounds per square inch) and thoroughly wet animals to the skin.

For a list of effective insecticides for controlling lice, obtain a copy of "Suggestions for Controlling External Parasites on Livestock and Poultry" at the County Extension Office.

Check the label on the insecticide container and pay particular attention to warnings, restrictions and waiting periods, especially if some of the cattle are being prepared for slaughter.

KOCHIA PRODUCTION MEETING

There will be a meeting on Kochia Production, Thursday, February 25 in Amarillo at the Texas A & M Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd., West. The program will be from 6 to 9:30 p.m. and will feature:

Dr. Dale Fuehring — Agronomist at the New Mexico State University Research Center at Clovis.

Dr. Duff Skiles — Veterinarian and Kochia producer at Hereford.

Dr. Larry Hollis — Texas A & M Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Lab at Amarillo.

And four area producers that have produced Kochia under irrigated and dryland conditions.

Anyone interested in learning more about Kochia production is invited to attend.

THE FIRST TEXAS IRA

Now you can beat the 80's while building for your future.

Now First Texas is offering an important new retirement plan for all working people: The First Texas IRA*.

A tax break now. A big bundle for the future.

With a First Texas Individual Retirement Account, you can deposit up to $2,000 a year into an 18-month certificate, $2,250 if your spouse doesn't work, or $4,000 if you're married and you both work. That money comes straight off your 1982 taxable income, helping you now. And because the interest you earn with a First Texas IRA is tax deferred, you'll accumulate more money for your retirement than you ever imagined. Check the chart to see how bright your future can be with a First Texas IRA.

IF YOU SAVE THIS MUCH EACH MONTH:	You'll Have This Much Saved At 65*
	25	30	35	40	45	50
$50	$594,121	$324,763	$176,496	$94,882	$49,957	$25,229
$100	1,188,242	649,527	352,991	189,764	99,915	50,458
$167	1,984,364	1,084,710	589,496	316,905	166,858	84,264
$333	3,968,728	2,169,420	1,178,992	633,810	333,716	168,528

*If you deposit the above monthly amounts into an IRA (Roth or Simplified Employee Retirement Plan), you will have accumulated the amount listed above at age 65, assuming a 12% interest factor. (The interest rate could be higher or lower depending on market conditions.) Chart illustrates the accumulated savings for an individual $167 per month or the maximum yearly contribution of $2,000. Employed married couples may deposit $333 per month or $4,000 per year. There are tax and interest penalties for early withdrawal.

A plan that's fully insured.

A First Texas IRA is not just a great way to build for your future. It's a safe way. Every account is insured up to $100,000 by the FSLIC. This

FIRST TEXAS Savings Association
We have ways to beat the 80's.

protection is separate from any other insured First Texas account.

A special bonus: FREE CHECKING.

At First Texas, we think it's important that you start building your future today. So, to get you moving, we're offering three months' free checking to new customers that open an IRA. So come by the First Texas office nearest you today and open your IRA. After all, your future starts in the 80's.

*Starting January 1, 1982. If you are making a contribution for your 1981 tax year, your individual limit is $1,500. If you are making a contribution for your 1982 tax year, your individual limit is $2,000.

Reporter tells cancer experience

By LAURA RICHARDSON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Cancer is a disease that runs like this: First you think you have it. Then you wait. Then you know you have it. Then you wait. Then you are treated for it. And then you wait.

I first thought I had it on Nov. 9. I knew I had it Nov. 20. Treatment began Dec. 21.

They told me on Tuesday I'm cancer-free. If I stay that way five years, I'm cured. So now I'm waiting.

With cancer, you wait to be cured, or to die, but more than that you wait for it to make sense, for its great and trivial torments to become — possibly — reasonable.

I can't tell you how it is. Your chances are excellent," the doctor said.

I never took chances. But while I was sparing myself ordinary risks — no, I won't go to Europe, the plane might crash — my body was preparing this terrible betrayal. It risked everything.

The German philosopher Hegel said that man, the only animal that knows it must die, carries death in his consciousness. Death is in us.

Not me, I jogged.

I was going to live forever. As soon as I knew more about life, I would write books. In the meantime, I would prepare myself. Suddenly after 31 years, I was left holding my plans and very little else.

In the hospital, you stop being a person and become someone's job. Your body is outraged so many times the experience becomes banal. You watch other people enduring pain so terrible you hate yourself. There is no privacy. You are publicly humiliated.

In the Intensive Care Unit at Methodist Hospital in Houston, a pregnant teen-ager was forcibly intubated. She screamed.

A man cursed monotonously, ceaselessly, hatefully. A tiny child, hopelessly crippled, lay crumpled in a crib. An unconscious woman in lush middle age was bathed by a nurse and a high school boy, an orderly.

Her nakedness was pathetic and terrifying.

"This can't be real," I thought.

Drugs washed over the palisades of consciousness again and again, until existence became a sort of horror-comedy watched with morphine-bright eyes. Sleeping in the continual half-light of the ward, I sometimes dreamed I had no pain.

I never dreamed anything else.

My breast bone had been broken. My throat had been slit at the base. Long fat tubes ran into my chest. Slender tubes ran into each hand and into my bladder. I was connected to bottles and bags, and I stank. My hair was matted and filthy. I itched.

Nothing killed pain.

Late one night after I could walk, I crept to the nurses' station and tried to tell the woman there that the pain was inoperable, it was too much.

"Can't you think of God, and offer this pain to Him?" she said.

Another nurse said my problem was I had never had a baby.

"If you had," she said, "you would know what real pain is: labor."

I was shocked. I laughed at her until she shrugged and left.

I had been initiated into a sorority I didn't want to join, and suddenly found my sisters everywhere. One day, while a thick oil dripped into my lymph system through cuts on my insteps, a nurse sat beside me patting my hand and talking about her cancer.

She had had a mastectomy and planned reconstructive surgery.

"They can make you a new nipple, either from part of the one that's left, or from your labia," she said. "I think I'm going to have it made out of labia, and just not tell my husband where I got it."

We both laughed. Our bodies were dear little dirty jokes.

"All in vein!" I giggled at a young doctor who was explaining the injection of a blue dye.

"Miss Richardson," he said sternly, "some things are serious."

Cave explorers fight elements, superstitions

EDITOR'S NOTE — It's like mountain climbing — only in reverse. Cave explorers are set to try for a world depth record next month in southern Mexico. They'll also have to worry about local Indians, who believe the cave explorers are devil worshippers, or worse.

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Writer
It will be something like a journey to the center of the Earth as a team of cave explorers, led by two Texans, plans to push for a world depth record within a remote tropical plateau in southern Mexico.

The high plateau is riddled with passages, and inhabited by superstitious Mazatec Indians, who believe the cave seekers are devil worshippers and warlocks, and have cut explorers' ropes in the past.

The search for the world's deepest passage, an attempt to link a newly discovered cave with an interlocking system of shafts and water-filled passages, will require weeks underground and strategy similar to a mountain-climbing expedition, says Bill Steele, co-leader of the Huautla Project.

The project, named for the plateau in Mexico's Sierra Mazateca, has already discovered about 9,000 feet of vertical cave and descended 500 shafts in two years of exploration there, he says.

Sistema Huautla is presently the third deepest cave in the world, but Steele says linking it with another cave, Nita Nanta, would add 150 meters in depth.

A connection would place the network close to or beyond the 4,624-foot depth of Reseau Jean-Bernard in France, now considered the world's deepest cave.

Plans call for 15 spelunkers to camp in a cathedral-sized room 2,460 feet underground in the new cave, Nita Nanta, and search for unexplored passages that may join the system.

Descending the 49 drops to the room will require a half-mile of rope and hundreds of pounds of gear and compressed, freeze-dried food, says Steele, a Boy Scout official from San Antonio.

To achieve greater depth in Huautla, cavers have searched for higher entrances on an 1,800-foot ridge and also extended the lowest point downward, sometimes by climbing high walls and backtracking.

The terminal room where explorers turned back during a previous expedition last May is 300 feet wide and 400 feet long, with 200-foot ceilings and three waterfalls, he says.

Expedition members, including Steve Zeman of Austin, pushed one passage in Nita Nanta to a depth of more than 3,000 feet before discovering a side route that leads to the large room.

The cave, discovered in 1980, is considered meter-for-meter a world-class challenge, says Dr. Bill Stone of Washington, a structural engineer and cave diver who with Steele dove a flooded passage in 1979 to set the present Huautla depth record.

Members of previous caving expeditions have been taunted by Mazatecs who cursed them with shouts of "brujo," meaning witch or warlock, he says. Caving ropes have been cut and stolen, Stone adds.

In 1968, a spelunker watched in horror as an Indian chopped through a rope with a machete, hurling an explorer who was climbing on it onto a ledge 200 feet above the bottom of a pit. In 1978, Stone says, villagers wielding rocks threatened him as he guarded ropes for other cavers.

"Until 1964, the area was sealed to outsiders," he says. "Then the government built a road into there. But the Indians, who speak pure Mazatec, resented visitors, especially 'gringos' going inside caves. They thought they were communing with the devil or looking for gold."

Despite these problems, explorers continue to return to the area. In another phase of the last expedition, members of the U.S. Deep Caving Team, led by Stone, carried miniaturized diving tanks developed from lightweight space shuttle components to a water-filled passage 861 meters below ground.

"The idea was to build a new scuba system," Stone says, "with tanks designed for the space shuttle."

Harvesters defeat AHS

Despite a first quarter lag and a fight early in the fourth quarter, the Pampa Harvesters closed regular season play with a 58-52 win over the Amarillo Sandies.

A vocal crowd of 3,600 watched the game in Pampa's "Green Pit." Pampa closed out the regular season with an overall record of 25-4. Amarillo High fell to 19-8. About the emotion packed game, Pampa head coach Garland Nichols said, "It was just one of those battles. Everybody went at each other hard, and the rivalry is still there." The traditional Pampa-AHS rivalry ended with last night's game as Pampa moves to class 4A next year.

The Harvesters were off to a slow start early in the game, with the Sandies leading by as many as four points. Then a Pampa scoring burst, led by 6'4" senior Terry Ray Faggins, ended Amarillo's early dominance of the game. Faggins hit three straight buckets to put Pampa in the lead 20-16. The senior continued his sparkling performance through the first two periods, giving the Harvesters a 28-26 lead at the end of the first half.

The Sandie defense, which held Pampa in check through much of the first half, vanished in the third quarter, and Pampa raced to a 10 point lead. Amarillo head coach Allen Simpson said, "We could not get the ball inside during the second half. They took us out of our offense, and Pampa just lined up tighter with a low screen. They are a fine ball club."

The fourth quarter saw the frustrations of both teams spent in bench clearing fight - tempers flared and punches flew. It started when Pampa's Meryl Dowdy and Sandie Don Dunavin pounced on a loose ball at the same time. Pampa's Faggins arrived on the scene just in time to join the melee. Both benches cleared and the coaches and Pampa Athletic Director Lloyd Waters separated angry basketball players. Dowdy was ejected from the game with a flagrant foul violation and fat lip. Judging the tension of the crowd and players, coach Nichols said, "I felt something might break out."

Faggins took high scoring honors with 20 points, and Mike Nelson added 15. Charles Nelson and Coyle Winborn threw in 9 apiece, and Terry Ferguson scored 3. Amarillo was led by Tony Gilbreath with 14 points, followed by Keith Scales and Lance Simpson who both scored 12. Raynard Scott dumped in 6, and Dan Dunnivan and Graham Thompson hit 3 each.

Pampa won the first half district championship and will face Tascosa in the district title game, if Tascosa gets by Caprock Tuesday.

MUSCLE UP HIGH. Pampa's Mike Nelson, 22, goes up high for a shot during the Harvesters 58-52 win Friday over the Sandies of Amarillo High. Waiting for the rebound underneath are Sandie defenders and Phil Jeffery, 23, and Charles Nelson, 40. The last regular season game of the year featured a bench-clearing melee which resulted in ejection from the game for Pampa's Meryl Dowdy. If Tascosa beats Caprock Tuesday night, the Rebels and first-half champion Harvesters will clash in the 3-5A district title game. (Staff Photo by John Wolfe)

Weiskopf leading Open

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Weiskopf gave himself high marks after gaining the lead after two rounds of the $300,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

"I played well, very well. I had no bogeys and that's always satisfying. I putted better and drove better. And I wasn't bad on Thursday," he said Friday after finishing 2 strokes ahead of Johnny Miller and five others with 67-67-134.

"There is always a little added pressure when you're leading. I think I'm playing "A-minus," he said. Since 1973, when he won the British Open and the World Series of Golf, Weiskopf generally has been an also-ran, but awfully close to the top. He finished second in the Los Angeles Open last year, 2 strokes behind Miller's course record 14-under par 270.

Included in the runner-up group with Miller entering today's third round is first-round leader Jerry Mauney, who skidded from a competitive course-record 63 in the opening round to a 73 for the second.

Tom Watson added a 67 to his opening 69 to move into contention. Weiskopf, aiming for the $54,000 first prize, enjoys the 7,029-yard Riviera Country Club Course with its par 35-36. He said it played easier on the second day than on the opener, when it was still damp from recent rains.

Watson, the perennial money-winning leader, has been in a slump but said his second round was pleasing because of his putting and all-around play. "There is nothing wrong with my swing," said Watson.

World times fall at SD track meet

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mary Decker Tabb, newly crowned as the world's No. 1 female miler, wasn't celebrating after a record-shattering night in the Jack in the Box Invitational indoor meet.

Her quest to become the first woman to run a sub-4:20 mile would have to wait. And she said she would cancel a commitment to run tonight in San Francisco because of a sore ankle. "I'm disappointed extra much," the 23-year-old sensation said.

Clocked in 4 minutes, 20.5 seconds, Tabb now owns the fastest-recognized time in the world in her specialty. The effort bettered the previous mark of 4:20.89, set outdoors, by Lyudmila Veselkova of the Soviet Union in 1981. Two years ago, Decker ran a 4:17.55 but it was disallowed because it came on the oversized track in Houston's Astrodome.

During the night, three world indoor marks fell and a fourth was voided in a mild controversy.

Pole vaulter Billy Olson continued his remarkable assault and Willie Banks soared into the record book with a triple jump of 57-1 1/4.

Olson, the outdoor champion in 1981, upped his world indoor mark from 18-9 1/4 to 18-9 1/2 and Banks, voted the meet's outstanding performer, knocked four inches off the year-old mark held by Great Britain's Keith Connor.

Banks, coming off an injury that cut into his training, credited his performance to a hometown crowd.

Derby champs share genes

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Genuine Risk, the filly who made racing history by becoming the first of her sex in 65 years to win the Kentucky Derby, has earned another line in the record book.

The 1980 Kentucky Derby winner has been bred to 1973 Triple Crown winner Secretariat, marking the first time in thoroughbred history that two Derby winners have been mated.

The stallion and the filly were bred Friday afternoon at Claiborne farm near Paris, Ky., where Secretariat stands at stud.

"I think she'll make a great mother," said Bob West, who, with his father operates Waterford Farm at Midway, Ky., where Risk is being boarded.

Another great filly who entered the breeding shed Friday was Bold'n Determined, Risk's archival in 1980.

Fitness First!

By Tim McGaughey
Youth Center Director
Spot Reducing

Spot reducing is a system of exercises that promises to reduce flab from the selected areas of the body: generally the hips, thighs, waist, and abdominal area. Most people mistakenly believe that fat can be eliminated simply by exercising the affected area. Actually, nothing short of surgery can remove fat from one specific area!

Passive exercise has also been mistakenly heralded as the answer to fatty areas. Vibrator belts, rollers, sauna belts, sauna suits and electro-exercisers have all been given to the public as great spot reducers. The fat beaters and burners have no credibility as far as fact is concerned. Fat burns at 360 degrees, and the vibrators might be an effective way to tenderize meat, but there is no possible way for them to "burn off" or "beat off" fat.

The only way for fatty deposits to be depleted is if the caloric demands of the body exceed the calories which are consumed. Usually the body takes off fat in the reverse order that it puts it on. This is because the body calls for energy from all over and not from just one "Spot." INSTEAD of doing sit-ups to reduce a bulging waist line, get out and run, walk, jog or swim. By using many muscles to exercise with, more calories will be used, and as a result, the fat will come off.

Aerobic Dance Classes

Aerobic dance classes are getting organized. Linda Nowell is our instructor. She has extensive jazz dance experience, and has just finished aerobic training receiving an excellent rating! The Youth Center is offering classes free to fitness center members, tennis members or unlimited combination members. The classes will cost $35 for non-members, $15 for persons with Youth Center memberships and $10 for persons with jogging memberships. The 9:00 Monday-Wednesday class is full, but there is another class forming on Tuesday-Thursday from 4:30 until 5:30 in the afternoon. If interest is high enough there will be another class offered. There is babysitting available from 8:30 until 11:30 each morning at the cost of $1.00 per toddler or pre-schooler.

Volleyball Season

Volleyball season is ready to start, and there will be a few changes this year. Mixed play will be on Monday nights for competitive teams that go to weekend tournaments. There will also be a mixed recreational league on Thursdays, women on Tuesdays and men on Wednesdays. There will be a limit of 14 teams per league at a cost of $35 per team, first 14 paid teams will be taken. If you have any questions call the Youth Center at 665-0748.

Advanced Lifesaving

Advanced lifesaving will be offered on Tuesday nights from 7 to 10. The classes will start March 2 and run for four to six weeks. This is an excellent opportunity for persons 15 and older to get training needed for summer lifeguard jobs. There is no charge for the class, but you must have the books. Entrance requirements include sound physical condition and being able to swim the four basic strokes. Sign up with Bill Banks at the Youth Center office.

Panhandle to host vb tourney

Panhandle will host a double-elimination benefit volleyball tournament March 18-20 in the spectator and high school gyms.

The tournament is open to both mixed and women's teams with play starting March 18. Entry fee is $25 per team and should be mailed, along with a roster, to Kathy Neusch, Box 601, Panhandle, Tex. 79068 no later than Thursday, March 11. More information can be obtained by calling 806-537-3655.

Proceeds will be used to benefit speech and hearing impaired students in the Panhandle area.

Holmes-Cooney fight no earthshaking event

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

So the big heavyweight title fight between Larry Holmes and Gerry Cooney has been placed on the back burner until June 11.

One, two, three — now let's all inhale deeply and emit a mammoth yawn.

Ho hum. In mid-June, major league baseball will be in full swing. Jack Nicklaus and his par-busting pals will be sharpening their blades for the U.S. Open the following week in Pebble Beach, Calif. John McEnroe, Bjorn Borg & Co. will be moving onto the continent for the French and Wimbledon tennis championships. JoAnne Carner and all those golfing pin-up women will be in the midst of their big LPGA title bash.

Meanwhile, the entire globe will be all aglow over the World Cup, the every-four-years centerpiece of the most universal of all sports — soccer — starting its long grind two days later in Spain.

Although matching two unbeaten gladiators, a black man and a white, this is not the kind of battle that will have pulses pounding and flares streaking through the skies.

It's a squareoff between a young, fragile giant from Long Island, who has seen less than six rounds of action in 30 months, and an aging champion who was forced too long to live in the shadow of the charismatic Muhammad Ali.

There's a question of how good either of them is at the present moment and who will be the least jaded when the bell rings in Las Vegas, Nev., June 11.

Cooney, the pride of suburban Huntington, L.I., is an awesome hulk of a man — 25 years old, 6-feet-6, 225 pounds, yet one whose arms are too heavy for his chassis.

He can fell a mule with a hook that moves only seven inches but, in uncorking such murderous blows, he is inclined to pull loose shoulder muscles that hold it all together. He has been prone to other injuries.

This is what forced postponement of the March 15 fight in Las Vegas, for which each fighter had been guaranteed $10 million.

Cowtown Marathon to feature western hospitality

By Judy Alter

Of the Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine
FORT WORTH—The Fourth Annual Cowtown Marathon on Saturday, Feb. 27 promises to be the wildest and wooliest ever!

A mounted cowboy will fire the starting gun and the Tarrant County Sheriff's Posse will ride herd on the crowd. The Boy Scouts of America, Carswell Air Force Base, Fort Worth Firefighters and cheerleaders from local high schools will all have a part in making the Cowtown a major community event.

The 26.2 mile race will begin at 9 a.m. near North Main and Exchange Avenue when the starting gun will be fired by Cowtown Charlie (imersonated by North Side businessman and rodeo producer Steve Murrin).

The one-loop marathon, certified by the Athletic Congress, will take runners from historic North Worth to the downtown area, Trinity Park and southwest Fort Worth to a point near Hulen Mall, then back along Hulen, Vickery and Montgomery Streets, through several residential areas and finally to North Main and Cowtown Coliseum, race-day headquarters. The winner is expected at the finish line, in front of the coliseum, around 11:20 a.m.

An accompanying 10-kilometer (6.2 mile) race will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the same starting line. Runners in the shorter race will circle through the downtown area and return to the coliseum.

The Cowtown Marathon office at 1501 Merrimac Circle is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. During race week, it will remain open until 7 p.m. Race day registration will be taken at the Cowtown Coliseum from 7 to 8 a.m. No registration is possible after 8. For more information call (817) 870-9784.

Some 3500 runners are expected in the two races that are sponsored by Fort Worth National Bank, Fort Worth Star-Telegram and the Institute for Human Fitness of Texas College of Osteopathic Medicine. Runners from Alaska, New York and Florida have registered for the event. Hector Ortiz, winner of the 1981 marathon, will be among the entrants. Ortiz will try to beat his time of last year, 2:21:36.

Western hospitality will set the tone of the race. A variety of activities have been planned for runners and their families. Games for children will be conducted in the arena by students from Texas Christian University, and nearby Billy Bob's Texas plans a chili cookoff on the parking lot at noon.

Each runner's packet of directions include a variety of invitations from North Side businesses and restaurants, along with a map of the area so that spectators can wander, browse and shop while waiting for their favorite runner to cross the finish line.

Runners on the course will also get a taste of Cowtown hospitality. Cheerleading teams from 11 local high schools will be stationed on the course to encourage runners with shouts and songs, and the marching band from Wedgwood Middle School will play just prior to the firing of the starting gun for both races.

Cowtown Charlie will conduct the 3 p.m. awards ceremony at which first, second and third place trophies will be awarded to male and female winners in both races, along with first, second and third place trophies in each of 14 age groups for both men and women. The winner of the marathon will receive an all-expense paid trip to the Boston Marathon in April.

UP AND OVER. Billy Olson added another 1/4 inch to his old record at the Jack-in-the-Box Invitational track meet in San Diego Friday night in the pole vault event. For Olson it raised the world indoor mark to 18 feet 9 1/2 inches. (AP Laserphoto)

Allen takes CFL front office job

MONTREAL (AP) — George Allen, the fourth winningest coach in National Football League history, has emerged as owner Nelson Skalbania's man to sort out the chaotic troubles of the Montreal Alouettes.

Allen, 59, was named president and chief operating manager of the Canadian Football League team Friday, with the option to eventually buy majority ownership.

"I feel I've proven myself as a coach," said Allen, whose career record is 120-54-5. "One of my goals has been to be an owner."

But Rams owner Carroll Rosenbloom fired Allen after only two exhibition games, saying he wasn't satisfied with the direction in which the team was headed. Allen's departure was hastened when several of the Rams walked out of training camp to protest his harsh training methods.

The Alouettes present Allen with a formidable challenge, but he said he's eager to begin.

"I don't consider it a challenge," Allen said. "I consider it an opportunity to do something for the CFL, for the city of Montreal and for the Alouettes."

Allen, whose job will be to rebuild a team with a dismal 3-13 record in 1981, said Montreal needs a three-year renovation project.

"There's no doubt in my mind we can turn this club around, otherwise I wouldn't be up here," Allen said. "There's only one way to go and that is out."

Said Skalbania: "George said it's a three-year building program, but I hope it will be one year — I think we have the talent now."

Allen says one of his first priorities is to meet with Vince Ferragamo and sort out the future of the quarterback, who had a woeful season with Montreal after a much-heralded arrival from the Rams.

"As a former coach, you hate to give up someone you know," said Allen, who had a brief look at Ferragamo back in 1978, while coaching the Rams for part of their exhibition schedule.

Also on Allen's agenda is interviewing the 13 or 14 candidates he said have applied for the Alouettes' head coaching position, left vacant with the firing of Jim Eddy last month. Allen isn't ruling out the possibility that he will coach the team himself.

"If I don't find one, and the other areas of the club are in good hands, I would consider coaching myself," said Allen.

NBA Roundup

The Kansas City Kings weren't in the best of shape when all they had was Johnson (Steve) & Johnson (Eddie). It turned out what they really needed was another Johnson.

Newly acquired Reggie Johnson came off the bench to score a career-high 27 points and pull down six rebounds as the Kings trounced the San Diego Clippers 113-97 Friday night and climbed out of the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division cellar. Johnson, acquired in a trade earlier this week with Cleveland, scored 12 points in the third quarter.

Reggie King added 15 points, Steve Johnson 14 — plus a game-high 10 rebounds — and Ernie Grunfeld 13 to help the Kings to their second straight victory. After trailing by as many as six points in the first quarter, the Kings outscored San Diego 19-4 in the first six minutes of the second period to open up a 44-30 lead.

Elsewhere, the Milwaukee Bucks whipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 106-88, the Philadelphia 76ers downed the Utah Jazz 132-117, the Houston Rockets cooled off the New Jersey Nets 103-96, the San Antonio Spurs shaded the Denver Nuggets 126-121, the Los Angeles Lakers swamped the Golden State Warriors 126-106, the Boston Celtics beat the Portland Trail Blazers 127-117, the Atlanta Hawks outlasted the Seattle SuperSonics 127-122 in four overtimes and the Phoenix Suns trimmed the New York Knicks 104-90.

Sidney Moncrief scored all of his 26 points in the first three periods, helping Milwaukee extend its winning streak to 11 games, longest of the NBA season. The Cavaliers have lost seven in a row. Brian Winters, who scored 10 of his 20 points in

Aggies dump Texas

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M guard Milton Woodley and forward Claude Riley provided a first and second half scoring punch with 19 and 16 points Saturday as the Aggies rolled over Texas 91-70 in a Southwest Conference basketball game.

Woodley hit 15 of his points in the first half as the Aggies took control early and never were tested by the Longhorns, who lost for the seventh time in eight games.

Riley scored seven points over a three-minute span in the second half when the Aggies pulled away to a 61-45 advantage with 10:40 left in the game.

The victory boosted the Aggies to a 9-5 SWC record and 16-8 for the year. The Longhorns continued their tailspin, dropping to a 6-8 SWC mark and 16-8 for the year.

Texas center LaSalle Thompson provided a late-game scoring punch for the Longhorns and finished with 22 points. Virdell Howland added 15 points and Dennard Holmes added 14.

A&M center Rudy Woods also contributed to A&M's second-half runaway. Woods, who had four points at halftime, finished with 16.

Four named to Hall of Fame

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Hal Greer, Willis Reed, Frank Ramsey and Slater Martin, all standouts on championship teams, have been elected to the Basketball Hall of Fame.

The former stars of the National Basketball Association will enter the shrine along with Clarence "Big House" Gaines and the late Everett Case, who were picked for their coaching accomplishments, and Al Duer, who was selected in the contributor category.

Results of the election by a 16-member committee, whose composition was not disclosed, were announced Saturday. Twelve votes were required for induction.

At enshrinement ceremonies on May 3, the seven new members will join the 125 individuals and four teams already in the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame on the Springfield College campus, where James Naismith invented the game in 1891.

Besides their individual achievements, all four players were part of championship clubs — Greer with the Philadelphia 76ers in 1967, Reed with the New York Knicks in 1970 and 1973, Ramsey seven times with the Boston Celtics, and Martin four times with the Minneapolis Lakers and once with the St. Louis Hawks.

Case, who died in 1966 at the age of 65, compiled a 377-134 record in 19 seasons as coach at North Carolina State after building a 726-75 mark as a high school coach in Indiana.

Gaines, of Winston-Salem State, is the winningest active college coach. Duer was executive secretary of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics from 1949 to 1975.

Greer, the eighth leading regular-season scorer in NBA history with 21,586 points, called his election "a great honor" but a belated one.

"It's a little tarnished because it took a little longer than I thought," said Greer, who became eligible for induction five years after his retirement in 1973.

Now 46 and in the real estate business in Philadelphia, the 10-time NBA all-star said, "I don't think I got very much support from the 76ers" in helping him get elected.

Like Greer, Reed said he felt he would make the Hall of Fame eventually and called his selection "a very distinct honor."

The 6-foot-10 Reed poured in 12,183 points and grabbed 8,414 rebounds during his 10 regular seasons as the Knicks' center after being drafted on the second round in 1964. He was the NBA's rookie of the year in 1965 and most valuable player in 1970 and was on seven all-star teams.

"When I started playing the game back in Bernice, La., I never even thought I'd play college basketball. When I played college basketball (at Grambling), I didn't think about playing pro basketball," said Reed, now head basketball coach at Creighton.

"It's just the ultimate honor that I could ever receive," said Ramsey, 50, the valuable "sixth man" of the Celtics' glory years. "I would certainly think that our seven championships in nine years probably had something to do with it (getting elected)."

Martin, 56, began his career with the 1949-1950 Lakers, who won the NBA title, and ended it with the 1959-1960 Hawks, who lost to Boston, and Ramsey, in seven games in the playoff championship.

Less is more in Spring & Summer Hairstyles

All-American looks, entitled "American Images", are the highlights of Spring - Summer 1982 hairstyles, according to the 58,000 member National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association.

Spring - Summer is the season for the best in American designer activewear this year, and the same holds true for American on-the-go hairstyles.

American Images are free-moving, multi-layered hairstyles in various lengths that feature fluffiness and airiness, says Doris Williams, Association Styles Director.

"Less is more this year from the skirt length to the hair length. We will see much new emphasis on shorter hair, especially in the briefer American Image hairstyles, which create versatile illusions of overall length through longer, fitted nape areas," Ms. Williams explained.

The longer, fitted napes are spotlighted in both female and male haircuts for spring - summer. Most hair is swept back from the forehead, with enough length to add changes to the front and sides of the styles.

"There is no one way that salon clients will want to look. The free-flowing American Image hair designs provide enough variety and options to interest just about everybody," Ms. Williams said.

American Images continue fashion's fascination with variety and change. Female design lengths are short medium and long, which is just above the shoulders. The male length is primarily determined by how daring the client wishes to go with the hair length in the nape area.

The spring - summer hairstyles are perm designed to add fluffiness and airiness, without curl, in both the female and male cuts.

Structural perms throughout the top of the head add fullness to hair that is accustomed to lying close to the head. Surface perming and graduated support perms are individually designed to meet the client's particular volume, shape and curl needs.

For evening, some of the classic short female styles will have a chignon on the nape or crown. Switches, twists, braids and other ornamental hairpieces will be used to add drama to the coiffure. Longer hairstyles will be styled atop the head for evening, often with additional hairpieces that take the length to an even higher dimension.

Other hair accessories include a variety of forehead bands, the mark of the achiever. The headbands may be scarves, ropes, feathers, beads or whatever compliments the hairstyle together with one's apparel.

Haircoloring emphasis for spring - summer includes spot lighting, which produces soft natural highlights, tri-level coloring and circle of lights, which creates a circle of highlighting color in the interior of the hair design.

Spring - summer American Images are hairstyles designed by the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists Association's Coiffure Design Committee under the leadership of NHCA Styles Director Doris Williams. Coiffure Design Committee members include Gary Bray of Huntsville, Alabama and Vincent Farriselli of Hamden, Connecticut.

MRS. CHARLES MILLER

Doggett, Miller exchange vows

Jeanette Lee Doggett and Charles Purse Miller were united in marriage on Feb. 20 in an evening ceremony in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Claude Cone, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doyle W. Doggett of 1601 N. Faulkner. She attended Pampa High School and West Texas State University. She is employed as a teacher and coach for Pampa Middle School.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Miller of 2336 Aspen. He is a graduate of Pampa High School and employed by Thurmond-McGlothlin, Inc.

Music was provided by Stacy Bennett and Jay Miller.

The bride was attended by Donna Briscoe, her sister, who served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sherry Doggett, Jenny Archer and Linda Rader.

The groom was attended by David Miller, his brother, who served as best man. Groomsmen were Layne Clark, Steve Busse and Jay Miller, brother of the groom.

Ushers were Tommy Doggett and Paul Coals.

The bride wore a luster glo satin gown with lace and tulle bodice and pearl-embossed neckline with an empire waist with bell sleeves and lace cuffs. The satin skirt had a lace overlay and chapel length train. The finger-tip veil of tulle was caught and gathered on a pearl-embossed caplet.

A dance was held at Pammel Hall after the ceremony to honor the bride and groom.

The reception was held in the parlor of the First Baptist Church. Assisting with the reception was Donna Craig, Irma SanMiguel, Kay Warren, Carol Blake and Mary Clark.

After a honeymoon trip to Crested Butte, Colorado, the couple will make their home in Pampa.

MRS. JIMMIE ADAMS, JR.

Jones, Adams united in afternoon ceremony

Wanda Kay Jones and Jimmie Charles Adams, Jr. were united in marriage on Saturday, Feb. 6 at 4 p.m. The ceremony was performed in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church in Spearman, Texas. The Rev. R. Q. Harvey, who is a great uncle of the bride from Waco, Texas, performed the double ring ceremony. Organ Music was provided by Mrs. E. N. Pack. A reception followed in the Fellowship Hall of the First Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Don Jones of Spearman and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Jones and Mrs. W. R. Morrison, all of Pampa. She attended Clarendon College.

The groom is the son Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Adams Sr. of Clarendon. He attended Amarillo College and is presently employed at Ingersoll-Rand Oilfield Products.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and chose a formal length white gown of organza and re-embroidered chantilly lace. The waltz-length veil was attached to a lace-covered Juliet cap.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Thomas Wayne Tolleson, Bridesmaid was Cindy Chesher.

Best man was Daniel Spear and groomsmen was Mack Garrison, brother-in-law of the groom. Ushers were Dan Hall and Mack Garrison. The groom wore an off-white tuxedo.

Assisting at the reception were Ronda Leeper, Judy Garrison, Lorene Tolleson and Pam Edwards.

The couple will make their home in Pampa.

Dear Abby

Man with hairpiece will eventually blow his cover

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 26-year-old woman who has been living with a wonderful 30-year-old man for three months. We have a very compatible and loving relationship and have begun to talk about marriage.

The problem: Although we are both very open and honest with each other, he has not been entirely honest with me about something. He wears a hairpiece, and he thinks I don't know it. I doubt if any of his friends know because no one has ever mentioned it. He must be very sensitive about it because many times he could have told me, but he very carefully kept it from me.

Abby, it makes absolutely no difference in the way I feel about him. I would love him with or without hair, but his deceitfulness is what bothers me. I've thought of a dozen different ways to tell him I know, but I hate to hurt him. Your advice would help.

BOTHERED

DEAR BOTHERED: Don't regard his reluctance to bare his soul as "deceitfulness." It could be vanity and insecurity. If you hate to hurt him, be quiet and be patient. One of these days (or nights) he'll blow his cover.

MRS. DOUGLAS ABERNATHY

Couple united in evening ceremony

Rahna Tackett and Douglas Roy Abernathy were united in marriage Saturday, Jan. 30 at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church in White Deer with the Rev. Harold Abney, pastor, officiating.

The reception was held in the Community Center of White Deer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lowrance of White Deer and C. C. Tackett of Pampa. She is a 1974 graduate of White Deer High School. She is employed by Pampa Tent and Awning.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hilton Abernathy of Kingston, Tennessee. He is a 1975 graduate of Roane County High School and is employed by Ingersoll Rand.

Matron of honor was the brides sister, Sandra Sutterfield. The best man was Junior Minnich.

Carla Dittberner played "You Light Up My Life", on the piano, while Kimberly Barbee lit candles in a cascade of blue carnations and white roses.

Paula Lester sang "Let It Be Me" accompanied by Carla Dittberner.

Amanda Tackett was flower girl, registrar was Tina Barbee. Mrs. Sherry Tackett and Robin Barbee were hostesses.

The bride wore a formal length gown of sheer white chiffon. The dress featured a lace covered bodice with a sweetheart neckline. Seed pearls and sequins accented the front bodice and covered buttons extended down the sheer lace back yoke. The gown featured long, full accordion sleeves gathered at the wrist on wide lace cuffs. The natural waistline extended to a full accordion pleated skirt. To compliment her gown, the bride chose a white picture hat.

Following a brief trip to Amarillo, the couple will make their home in Pampa.

Foreign Food Festival

Cuisine from Germany and Japan will highlight the Foreign Foods Festival sponsored by the Gray County TEHA. The Festival is set for Wednesday, Feb. 24, in the Courthouse Annex meeting room.

The Festival will begin at noon with a Foreign Foods tasting luncheon. Persons attending are asked to bring a favorite foreign food dish. A recipe booklet will be compiled of those recipes submitted by Monday, Feb. 22.

At 1 p.m., the program will begin. German Cuisine will be the first featured topic presented by Agnes Taylor, Hartley County Extension Agent. Next on the program will be Mrs. Janie VanZandt, local homemaker, a former County Extension Agent. Her presentation will be on Japanese Cuisine. Both the German and Japanese programs will include information on the country's culture relating to food, food habits, food preparation techniques, serving styles, utensils and recipes from the country.

The Foreign Food Festival is open to all interested persons. The only "fee" required is a foreign food dish for the noon luncheon.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socio-economic level, race, color, sex, religion or national origin.

To store silver cutlery for long periods without its tarnishing, put the pieces in long, sealed, air-tight glass jars.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl. My mother says I can't wear pantyhose until I'm 14, I can't wear makeup until I'm 15, and I can't go out on dates until I'm 16.

My biggest problem is that I am underdeveloped. All the girls in my class have more than I do. I want to wear a bra, but my mother won't let me because I don't have anything to put in it. The boys make fun of my flat chest. It makes me feel like crying. I'm cute — at least people say I am — it's just my body that is totally inadequate. When I tell people I'm in the eighth grade they think I'm lying.

What does a girl do when her body isn't right for her age?

UNDERDEVELOPED

DEAR UNDERDEVELOPED: Be patient. Some girls are late bloomers. You could be one of them. The boys who make fun of you because you're underdeveloped aren't worth worrying about. In the meantime, concentrate on developing your mind. An empty head is a bigger turnoff than an empty bra.

DEAR ABBY: Should a father accept his 26-year-old daughter's lifetime habit of always being late? Or should the daughter conform to her father's demands that she be on time?

Last week my wife and I invited our daughter, her husband and their two children to a 4 p.m. dinner. My wife worked all day preparing a nice company meal to be served promptly at 4. Our daughter, who has never been on time for anything, decided to take advantage of the after-Christmas bargains and go shopping in the afternoon (without her family) at the mall.

At 3:50, our son-in-law called to say his wife wasn't home yet so they would be at least an hour late as they live 12 miles from us.

I told him to forget the dinner, that my wife and I would enjoy the food while it was hot.

Abby, I've lived 59 years and was never late to anything. I happen to believe that if a person wants to be on time, he can be. Do you think I was wrong to cancel the dinner?

BURNED UP IN DULUTH

DEAR BURNED UP: No! Chronic lateness try to train others to conform to their irresponsible behavior. Too bad your son-in-law and grandchildren had to miss the dinner, but I don't blame you for cancelling it.

Peeking at Pampa

Ever so many beautiful Valentine parties were given last week. The most lavish one I heard about was the tea dance hosted by Gay and Fred Ammeter, Eunice and Bodie Bohot, Dell and Coyle Ford, Bill Fry, Bernice and Sam Goodlett, the E. J. Lewises, Vivian and John T. Locke, Shirley and Gene Lunsford, Babe and Ted Mastin, Grace and Bill Monroe, Pauline and Al Wagner, Virginia and Jimmy Wilkerson and Jean and John Tatum.

Decorations carried out the Valentine theme, with red table cloths topped with white lace hearts and a gorgeous centerpiece of the same colors. Hostesses were all in red or white gowns, as were many of the lady guests. One man was heard to say he'd never seen so many red dresses in one place at one time, said there must have been 30 or 40 of them at the party, adding to the beauty of the Heritage Room.

Dick Morton's orchestra was at its best with dance music; and the buffet was sumptuous. Even the icy weather did not dampen the spirits of the happy crowd.

Did you go to the Beta Sigma Phi Valentine Dance last weekend? We did and saw many Pampans dancing to the music of Wells Fargo. Jana and Rick Whaley were a delight to watch. Isn't Rick's beard handsome?

Noticed the girls of the Pampa Singles Club had their hands full keeping up with the fancy footwork of Henry Urbanczyk. Such a lovely group and having so much fun.

Know a lot of you enjoyed the annual sausage meals served by St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church on Sunday, Feb. 7, at noon and again in the evening. Know I don't ever want to miss it. Always a mouth-watering, home made treat, including sausage, potato salad, beans, cabbage slaw, pie and more. The men seemed to be in charge Sunday, working hard to keep the overflow crowd eating happily.

Among them were Emil Urbanczyk stirring the beans, Dean Monday passing seconds (and thirds and fourths) of sausage, Virgil Ackfeld refilling coffee cups, Father Hynes filling in wherever needed — and a kitchen full of other men, older and younger, giving the crowd a marvelous feast.

Understand the Pampa Rotary Club had a great evening at their Sweetheart Banquet on the 9th in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn. George Warren, president, was in charge, and Bill Leebetter was program chairman. A delicious buffet was served by Jim Hayden, and tribute to the ladies was given by Mike Ruff.

A special honor was given to Fred Neslage by Travis Lively, making Fred a Paul Harris Fellow, so named for the founder of Rotary and a much coveted honor. The club donated $1000 to the International Foundation in honor of Fred's long service to the club. Fred's wife, Dorothy, was beside him. The program for the evening was presented by the P.H.S. Show Choir under the direction of Billy Talley. The 11 young people delighted the audience and prompted a standing ovation. Singing, playing instruments, doing solo work as well as group numbers, the Show Choir was a wonderful success.

The group is composed of Brandi Huff, Amber Schultz, Angela West, Doretta Bruce, Melissa Mackey, Darla Benham, Sherry Berry, Jim Waddell, Brian Welborn, Kevin Luck and Jeff Hinkle.

Each number was well received — and the encore number featured the young men singing "Elvira", with Brian Welborn putting out the bass solo as well as do the Oak Ridge Boys on their best-selling record of the song, the audience said.

Heard that the Al Wagners and the Bill Monroes had a lovely vacation in Phoenix recently. The men played golf every day while the ladies shopped, then all four enjoyed the area's night life each evening.

Guests of C. B. and Faye Reece for dinner and dancing, not long ago, were Lillian and Marvin Hedquist of North Dakota. The Hedquists were visiting a relative who lives near the Reeces. A charming couple, heading west to avoid the cold of the northland.

It was an informal gathering of family, friends and just plain folks who turned out for the recent combined concert of all the Pampa bands for the annual concert dedicated to Nona Payne. The bands were cheered on in good Pampa style. Enjoyed seeing so many young ones at the concert. (Maybe they should sell popcorn to add to the festive atmosphere.)

Saw Dietta and Jerry Pope and their four children, three boys and a girl. Such an attractive family, so happy with each other. Dietta is the daughter of Majuanta and Forrest Hills.

A much loved couple are Hattie and Mack Harmon, always friendly. Hattie is so attractive, is the mother of Mildred Grider, R. C.'s wife, and Maxine Milliron, Ralph's spouse.

Surely every older (not really old, of course, just required to 55 or older during this year) golfer knows that the Tri - State Senior Golf Tournament will be held here in July. Players come from many states for this event, enjoying dinners, banquets, putting matches, bridge playing and various other activities. Most golfers bring their wives and make it a week of fun and fellowship. Floyd Sackett and his staff at the Chamber of Commerce will assist the association's officers, who are Otis Garner of Austin, president, and Otis Nace of Pampa, secretary. The event is always a boost to Pampa's economy.

Ever notice Ruth Riehart's bright, twinkling eyes? Must mean she's a happy lady. Husband, Bruce, always looks happy too. A fine couple to know. Happiness to you too!

Dr. Lamb

Colon cancer too common

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently three acquaintances, all male, have been diagnosed as having colon cancer; two are terminal cases. I am alarmed at this seemingly high incidence and question if this form of cancer is on the increase. From everything I have read, this was supposedly one of the more remote forms of cancer. Does this form of cancer have a higher incidence rate in the Midwest? Also, is this form of cancer diet related to the absence of roughage?

DEAR READER — You have been reading the wrong information if you read that colon cancer was uncommon. The truth is cancer of the colon and rectum is the second most common serious cancer in both males and females and also the second most common cause of cancer deaths based on 1973 to 1976 statistics. Things have not changed much since then. It is extremely important that the public learn this and cooperate in measures to control this serious form of cancer.

In men these cancers are responsible for 12 percent of all cancer deaths and in women 15 percent. The incidence of cancer of the colon appears to be higher in the Northeast states than elsewhere and it is almost nonexistent in many populations of the world — apparently where the population eats differently. "Differently" includes consuming large amounts of bulk in the diet. There is some argument about the merits of these observations, whether the diet or something else accounts for the observed differences.

One of the best detection tools for cancer of the colon and rectum is a series of slides of stool specimens that are studied for blood. Those individuals with positive specimens are examined in greater detail.

PATRICIA FRIPP

Knife and Fork Club to present 'Barber Shop Humorist'

It will be barber shop humor time for members of the Top O' Texas Knife and Fork Club when they meet at the Coronado Inn on Thursday, March 4 at 7:30 p.m.

Patricia Fripp, the speaker, is one of the most unusual success stories of our time. Less than ten years ago she was a barber in a small shop in a small town in England.

Then she came to the United States with only 500 dollars, a pair of scissors and a determination to succeed.

Today she owns her a hairstyling shop in the heart of San Francisco's financial district and is one of the most sought after speakers in America.

Ms. Fripp spends about seventy percent of her time speaking on better attitudes, creative thinking and time management.

In addition, she is a business consultant to many industries, has been featured in a film on "Good Communications" which is being used by the Dale Carnegie organization and is a contributing author to four books.

Members may bring guests to this meeting. Tickets are $7.50 each and must be purchased at the registration desk of the Coronado Inn by 1 p.m. on Wednesday, March 3.

If someone complains that their mail takes so long to reach its destination it must be going by Pony Express, they may be taking a page from U.S. postal history.

Over a 1,900-mile route from St. Joseph, Mo., to Sacramento, Calif., the Pony Express used 190 relay stations, 400 personnel, 420 horses and 70 riders. Delivery time was 10 days in winter and eight in summer. The Pony Express was discontinued in 1861 after 15 months of operation when the company went bankrupt.

Caffeine -- its effects and how to avoid it

BY DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

Do you have to have a cup of coffee or a cola beverage the first thing in the morning? Are you irritable if you miss your coffee break? Do you find a cup of coffee satisfying either during or after a meal? If you answered "yes" to these questions, you are just one of millions of Americans who consume 160 billion cups of coffee each year.

If you answered "no" to these questions, don't feel left out of the caffeine consuming group. Do you drink tea, cola beverages or eat chocolate? Do you ever use non-prescription medications to keep you awake or use Anacin, Excedrin, Dristan, aspirin, weight loss drugs or cold medication? If you answered "yes" to any of these questions, you are also ingesting caffeine.

WHAT IS CAFFEINE?

Caffeine or Theine is a stimulant to the central nervous system. It is found in coffee, tea and present in small quantities in the cola-bean and kola nut. Tolerance of caffeine varies widely among individuals. A normal person can tolerate the amount of caffeine in most beverages without apparent discomfort, but people with a peptic ulcer or cardiovascular disease usually must restrict their intake of caffeine-containing products because of the stimulant effect.

EFFECTS OF CAFFEINE ON THE BODY

In small doses (1 or 2 cups), it can: increase alertness, reduce fatigue, increase awareness and increase ability to concentrate.

Doses of 1 gram or the equivalent of 10 cups of coffee can cause: insomnia, restlessness, excitement, headaches and irregular heartbeat.

Chronic consumption of large doses (12 or more cups) can cause: mild delirium, anxiety and benign breast tumors. During pregnancy, caffeine consumed in large quantities may cause birth defects.

HOW TO AVOID CAFFEINE

Caffeine is addicting. Withdrawal symptoms do occur and they include irritability, restlessness or lethargy, nervousness and headaches. Experts suggest that we should: (1) begin slowly; (2) reduce the number of cups of coffee you drink each day; (3) drink half as much as you were; (4) switch to weak tea brewed with a tea bag; (5) once you are drinking only a few cups of weak tea per day, switch to a beverage that is caffeine free.

Also be aware that drip coffee contains more caffeine than percolated coffee and "boiled" coffee contains the greatest amount of caffeine.

For a chart listing the caffeine content of beverages and non-prescription drugs, contact the County Extension office.

SPRING FLING '82

Attention all of you folks over age 55, there is an Extension camp just for you! The three day opportunity takes place at the Texas 4-H Center on Lake Brownwood. Dates this spring are: March 30-April 2, April 13-16, and April 27-30. The three day camps are filled with recreational and educational activities designed for the modern adult. Cost for the entire event is $54.50. This includes room, board, all meals, refreshments, linens and insurance. For more details and for registration forms, contact the County Extension office.

Mending Mature Marriage

New approach to long-festering resentments

BY LOUISE PIERCE

"DEAR LOUISE: After 40 years of being badgered by a selfish wife, I've finally started fighting back. When we were young, raising kids and both working, I put up with her always insisting she have her own way.

"We went to her church and I wore the clothes she picked out for me, even suits and underwear and socks. I gave up golf because she said she needed me at home. She made out our monthly budget, almost to the penny and spent the money we both made. I was a slave, willingly, I guess, but still a slave.

"Now that the kids are grown and gone with us left with a fairly good retirement, G. is still bossing me. I get so mad I could yell at her. I haven't yet but I can't stand it forever.

"Do any of your other readers have this problem? If they do, what do you tell them to do? B. N."

DEAR B. N.: Yes, others, both husbands and wives, have told me of similar difficulties.

I used to tell them to write out their grievances because resentment is usually relieved, often banished completely, by being put down in black and white. I still recommend that method in many cases, especially for mates whose annoyances are comparatively minor.

But for long-festering resentments like yours, I now recommend a different attack. It is being used effectively by big business, by sports figures, by those in the creative fields, and others.

In this method, you yell — as loudly as you want to as long as you feel like it.

You don't scream at the person you resent. That's not necessary. You can avoid a confrontation with your longtime (and, I assume, long-loved) wife. You don't have to yell at any one person. You just yell.

Some industrial plants have these "anger-release" sessions regularly. They get groups of employees in a big room and let them holler, using names if they want to, objecting to conditions, to handicaps, to home unrest, anything — until they have worn themselves out and gotten the anger out of their hearts. Reports are that they feel better after the shouting. They are tired — but settled down.

Not long ago a TV program showed the training of baseball umpires. They were going through a session of yelling at each other, playing "insult the umpire" or something like that. It was considered an excellent procedure to follow in their route toward the big leagues.

I hope, B. N., you can find a place alone, where your wife cannot hear you — and tell the empty world all the furious objections you wrote to me and any more you feel. Shout at the top of your voice, yelling all your annoyances, until the bitterness inside you is gone.

Then, without rancor, have a serious talk with your wife. Remind her that she made all the house rules before your retirement. Tell her kindly that you now want to make half the decisions, at least the ones that pertain to you. She may be glad to share the stress of her longtime strain.

If she persists in being sole boss, go on yelling in private.

"DEAR LOUISE: My husband wants to help me pick out my clothes, my groceries, everything. He even goes to the beauty shop with me. He's just started this foolishness since we retired. How can I get him to quit without stirring up a big fight between us? D. D."

DEAR D. D.: You can't. And you shouldn't. You ought to be overjoyed that he wants to be with you all the time, now that he can.

Some retired husbands leave the house right after breakfast and don't come home until dinner time. They prefer domino games, golfing, breeze-fanning and other pastimes with other men, rather than spending their days (and often evenings) at home with their wives.

Appreciate your husband's attention and get used to it. It means he loves you.

Write DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa, Texas 79065.

Turnbo celebrates 85th birthday

Y. E. Turnbo celebrated his 85th birthday in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence Marak, on Sunday, Feb. 14.

His other daughters, Mrs. Jack Alexander and Mrs. Bob Johnson were also present to share in the festivities. In addition to phone calls and gifts from his five sons and grandchildren who could not attend, Mr. Turnbo received a birthday card from President Reagan, congratulating him on his 85 years.

Mr. Turnbo was born on Friday 13th and has always said it was a lucky day.

ROSY SHERBERT

Refreshing dessert drawn from two sources.

Pink or red rhubarb (about 2 pounds)

1/2 cup water

1 teaspoon grated lemon rind

2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

1/2 cup fresh orange juice

1/2 cup grade B maple syrup

2 large eggs

1 cup sugar

1/4 teaspoon salt

Trim and rinse rhubarb; cut crosswise into 1-inch slices — there should be 4 to 4 1/2 cups. In a 2- to 3-quart covered saucepan bring the rhubarb and water to a boil, stirring occasionally; boil until rhubarb is tender and loses its shape—about 10 minutes. In a food processor with the metal blade puree the rhubarb until very smooth; return to saucepan; add lemon rind, lemon juice, orange juice and maple syrup; stirring constantly, bring to a boil. Stand in a bowl of ice and water until cold — about 15 minutes. In a small bowl, beat eggs slightly; gradually beat in sugar until thick and ivory color; whisk into rhubarb mixture with salt. Freeze in a 2-quart electric ice-cream freezer, following manufacturer's directions. Turn into suitable containers and store in freezer. Let soften briefly in refrigerator or at room temperature before serving. Makes 1 1/2 to 2 quarts.

Mrs. Jim Collins honored at tea

A coffee was held in Pampa Wednesday for Mrs. Jim Collins, wife of Congressman Jim Collins and the 55 local women who attended the coffee were treated to stories about life in Washington.

Congressman Jim Collins is currently vying for the senate seat.

The coffee was held at the home of Mrs. Sandra Watkins and Mrs. Betty Bates, Gray County Headquarter Chairman for Jim Collins, sponsored the event. Mrs. Marty Price, Mrs. Katie Key and Mrs. Carolyn Price served at the reception.

Mrs. Dee Collins, a veteran of 11 years in Washington, told the group of her experiences with various Presidents.

She has worked with Presidents Ronald Reagan, Gerald Ford, and Lyndon B. Johnson and had anecdotes about these presidents and their families as well as various other Washington dignitaries.

Mrs. Collins is involved in civic, cultural, educational and political activities in Dallas and Washington.

She is a graduate of Wellesley College, and is a Durant Scholar.

She is a member of the Advisors Council of the National Federation of Republican Women, the Advisory Council of the Texas Federation of Republican Women; president of the Republican Congressional Wives Club; treasurer of the Congressional Club; secretary of the Congressional Wives Prayer Group; member of the executive board of the Texas State Society of Washington.

She is on the executive committee of the North Texas Arthritis Foundation Board; a member of the board of the Baylor Medical Center; secretary of the Dallas Tuberculosis Association; member of the Dallas Chapter of the American Red Cross and the Texas Girl Scout Council.

She is currently director of the Wayne Gossard Corporation of Tennessee and is the first woman to serve on the board and is currently chairman of the Women's Committee of the Smithsonian Institute.

Elite Italian wines make debut

By TOM HOGE

AP Wine and Food Writer
Most American wine lovers keep watch for new entries from abroad as many fine foreign wines previously unavailable are cleared for export.

Recently hotels, restaurants and wine stores in New York State obtained access to a limited supply of fine wines from estates in Italy, and they should prove popular with those willing to pay a little more for quality.

The imports are being handled by two young women, Lesley Appleby and Julia Sette. "I grew up in Italy and acquired a taste for the wines, as did my father," said Miss Sette, who now lives in New York City.

"We got into wine importing nearly two years ago, when my father discovered a wine that appealed to him during a visit to Italy, only to find that it was not being exported.

"He asked me to see if I could find a way to bring the wine in legally, and that's how it all began.

"We became interested in importing fine Italian estate wines that were unavailable in this country and finally set up our organization in August 1980. But it wasn't until November 1981 that we got the first bottles."

German bacteriologist Dr. Robert Koch announced in 1882 that he had isolated the bacillus of tuberculosis. Although he was unable to perfect a cure for the disease, his work was useful as a means of diagnosing tuberculosis in animals intended for food. Koch transformed the science of infection with his improved methods of bacteriological investigation and is recognized as a pioneer in that field.

The idea was to bring in a limited quantity of these wines from a number of small vineyards, owned for the most part by aristocratic Italian families who had been making them for several hundred years.

The wines are being distributed on a more or less personal basis to exclusive eating places and bottle shops in New York State.

I recently sampled some of the reds and whites and found them generally excellent.

A bottle of Chianti Montemurlo from a vineyard in Tuscany had a fine bouquet and was smoother than most Chiantis I have drunk.

I also liked a golden Tocai from the Veneto region which dates back to the 16th century and is said to have been a favorite of Napoleon during his campaign in Italy. This, I was told, is not to be confused with the famous Hungarian Tokay.

Generally such choice wines are not used in mixed drinks, but I found that the Chianti Montemurlo is delicious in a mulled wine punch. Here is the recipe.

- 2 cups Chianti
- 1 pint cranberry juice
- 1 can (1 pint 2 ounces) pineapple juice
- 1-3rd cup brown sugar firmly packed
- 1/4 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves, ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Butter to taste

Combine all ingredients except butter and heat slowly to a simmer, stirring occasionally. Ladle into mugs or heat-proof glasses, dotting each with a little butter. Makes 12 four-ounce servings.

P.E.O. SISTERHOOD
Chapter C.S. of the P.E.O. Sisterhood will meet Feb. 23, with Margaret Williams at 1114 Christine with Hilda Duncan as assistant hostess. The president Elice Sailor will have the program.

BETA CHAPTER
"Where Do We Want to Be in the Future?" was the theme of a program presented by the professional affairs committee at a meeting of Beta Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Feb. 13 at Lovett Memorial Library.

Presenting the program were three former chapter presidents of the honor society for women teachers, Essie Mae Walters of Pampa, Myra Nell McLaughlin of Miami and Dorothy Dodgen of Shamrock.

Committee reports were given by Marjorie Gaut, membership; Mary Dean Dozier, research, and Willie Mae Mangold, projects. The treasurer's report was read by Edyth Jackson for Anne McAnelly, who was unable to attend.

At a board meeting preceding the regular meeting, Jane Steele was appointed chairman of scholarship and achievements to replace Bessie Mae Hext of Canadian, who transferred her membership when she moved.

Hostesses were Edyth Jackson, chairman, Wanda Goff, Nova Mayo and Jane Steele. Mary Dean Dozier assisted in the absence of Miss Mayo.

Pampa Temple 41 held a public installation of officers on Feb. 1 at 8 p.m., at the Lodge Hall, 315 N. Nelson.

A brief history of Pythianism was given by Pauline Beard, presiding officer.

The following officers were installed under the direction of Maggie Smith, installing officer: Pauline Beard, past chief; Lucille Smith, most excellent chief; Nadine Meers, excellent senior; Thelma Barton, excellent junior; Cecil Dawes, manager; Stacy Stubbs, secretary; Pearl Barnard, treasurer; Marie Boyd, protector; Cordelia Mayes, guard; Alletha Altman, musician.

Refreshments were served to 28 members and guests. LAS PAMPAS CHAPTER DAR

The Physical Characteristics of George Washington" was the program topic for the Las Pampas Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held recently in the Flame Room of Energas Co. Mrs. P. R. Britton presented the program describing the physical appearance of this great leader, whose 250th birthday anniversary we are celebrating this month. He was taller and larger than the average male at that time and this factor increased his effectiveness as a leader. Washington inspired confidence, trust and admiration needed so much during the difficult years of founding the United States of America.

Mrs. J. S. Skelly, Jr. Regent presided over the monthly meeting. A prayer written by George Washington was read by Mrs. L. A. Barns as the devotional. The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Mrs. J. S. Spearman and the American's Creed by Mrs. Tom Cantrell followed by singing the Star Spangled Banner. Mrs. Leldon Hudson reviewed and discussed the Resolutions passed by the National DAR Society.

Silver medals and certificates of award were presented to Mary Hill and Leslie McQueen winners in the American History Month Essay Contest sponsored by the Las Pampas Chapter.

Members were reminded of the Annual Colonial Tea to be held at the Senior Citizens Center Sunday, Feb. 28 at 2:30 p.m. Mrs. James Vaughn is in charge of arrangements for the tea.

PAMPA GARDEN CLUB
Mrs. W. Lee Moore and Mrs. W. R. Campbell were hostesses to the Pampa Garden Club in the home of Mrs. W. R. Campbell.

The President, Mrs. A. B. Cross, presided over the business meeting. Plans were made for the Pilgrimage to Miami Museum March 1.

Mrs. Rue Hestand gave the program, "Proposed Landscaping of the Parking Area of Pampa High school".

Mrs. Hestand and Mrs. John Gattis had obtained first hand information from city officials for this program and shared with members the plans for parking at the high school.

All members present expressed their appreciation for the program. Mrs. V. M. Osborne shared some timely tips.

EL PROGRESSO
Members of El Progreso Club met in the home of Mrs. Louise Brown for the Feb. 9 meeting.

Mrs. Roy McMillen, president, conducted the business meeting. The collect was led by Mrs. Glenn Radcliff. Mrs. W. R. Chafin, acting secretary, read the minutes.

Mrs. Glenn Radcliff, Mrs. Tom Perkins and Mrs. Kermit Lawson were named to the program committee for the coming year.

Mrs. Glenn Dawkins program chair introduced Mrs. W. R. Chafin, who gave the program on Israel. Mrs. Chafin greeted members with "Sajlom" meaning "Hello".

Mrs. Chafin gave a brief history of Israel and then showed slides of her recent trip. Stops were made in Athens, Rome, Tel Aviv and Jerusalem where the West Wall and several markets were visited. Also viewed were the Mount of Olives, King David's Tomb, Mount Zion, Sea of Galilee, River Jordan and various other locations.

Mrs. Chafin pointed out the difference in the architecture in the Jewish and Arabic towns. She showed pictures of apartments that were solar heated and said that the apartments are built bullet proof but not bomb proof.

Mrs. Chafin showed several unusual pieces of jewelry that she had received while in Israel where she attended a Jewish wedding.

Refreshments were served by the hostess. The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. O. K. Gaylor, Feb. 23.

RHO ETA CHAPTER
Rho Eta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met in the Flame Room of Energas Co. on Monday, Feb. 8 at 7 p.m.

Vice President, Zindi Richardson, conducted the first bi-monthly meeting of Rho Eta Chapter with 12 members and 2 guests attending. Mrs. Carol Carpenter and Mrs. Pat Lee were visiting from Preceptor Chapter.

Jamilou Garren announced plans for the February service project. It is to be the Reading Fundamental Program. The chapter will be contacted in the future as to how they can help.

Members decided to conduct spring rush and were urged to turn in any prospective members names as soon as possible.

There will be a city council meeting Thursday, Feb. 11, at 8 p.m. in the home of Joan Vining at 1701 Fir.

Social chairman, Darla, urged everyone to attend the Valentine Dance pre-party at 7 p.m.

Hostesses were Darla Pulse and Marti Houseman.

A cultural program on "Diet" was presented by Jamilou Garren.

The next meeting will be Monday, Feb. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Reddi Room of Southwestern Public Service Co.

VARIETAS STUDY CLUB
The Varietas Study Club met in the Pampa Club Tuesday, Feb. 9 at 1 p.m.

Mrs. W. A. Bohot was hostess for a Valentine Luncheon. Table decor was in red and white with a large centerpiece of Valentine flowers. Mrs. B. G. Gordon, president, presided.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Georgia Mack had charge of the program and spoke on the topic, "Pampa, My Home Town". She gave the history of Pampa, touching highlights of agriculture, oil, industry and early citizens. She then invited members to answer prepared questions on their knowledge of early-day history here. Several members came to Pampa in the 1920's and recounted their lifestyles then.

A letter of thanks was read from M. D. Anderson Hospital in appreciation of the box of wigs sent to patients there by the club.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. LaDon Bradford of 2237 Dogwood on Feb. 23 at 2:30 p.m.

Roll call was taken with 18 members present. Members were reminded of the Valentines Dance held on Feb. 13.

A pre-party was held in the home of Lisa Crossman. Members supplied snacks.

Members met at Robertta Florist to help with Valentine deliveries.

The program was presented by Rev. Paul Ragle, who spoke on coping with life crises.

Hostesses for the meeting were Theresa Conner and Joanne Taylor. The program was arranged by Kim Lancaster and Barbara Dean.

The next meeting will be held Feb. 22 at 7:30 p.m. in the home of Marilyn Lee of 1600 N. Sumner.

GOODWILL HOMEMAKERS
The Goodwill Homemakers Club met with Mrs. I. T. Goodnight, Jr. of 922 Jordan St. on Feb. 16 at 2 p.m.

The meeting was opened with the club prayer and a short devotional. The president, Mrs. G. B. Hogan, conducted the business meeting. Roll call was answered by naming a past president's wife. Minutes were read and the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. A. P. Coombes. Council report was given by Mrs. Cecil Barnett.

An interesting program was given by Donna Brauchi, County Extension Agent, on low cost decorating.

The door prize was won by Mrs. L. V. Smith. One guest, Mrs. Mary Jane Slaymaker, attended the meeting.

Refreshments of pie, tea and coffee were served by the hostess, Mrs. I. T. Goodnight, Jr.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. G. B. Hogan of 914 Somerville on March 2 at 2 p.m.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

Astro-Graph
by bernice bede osol

Although your social engagements may increase greatly in the year ahead, maintain close ties with old friends. Remember: They stuck by you in your less-popular days.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Friends fond of you want to help you in every way they can today, but don't ask more of them than you would do if the roles were reversed. Predictions of what's in store for you in the seasons following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your new Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 499, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10101. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Avoid trying to probe too deeply today into the personal affairs of a friend. He or she may have certain things they'd rather not discuss at present.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're very capable of doing that to which you set your mind today, but others may receive more credit for your actions than you reap for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It would be wise today not to boast of something you hope to achieve. There's a chance conditions could go awry and alter your timetable.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Should you be called upon to manage something for another today, treat the situation as seriously as if it were your own. Don't use halfhearted assurances.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The aspects indicate this should be a pleasurable day, provided you don't overindulge. Try not to be the last one to leave the party.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your resourcefulness will be accentuated today, enabling you to work things out which worry stymie others. Strive to use your talents without acting superior.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In events which offer a little friendly competition, you're likely to have a slight edge over your competitors today. It's not, however, a good idea to make bets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Happenings in financial and material today should come off to your liking today. The problem: Once you have something in hand, you might not handle it too wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The right answers will be found today in situations where you rely upon your logic. This won't be true if you put too much credence in wishful thinking.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Conditions are a bit unusual today, to the point where you could be fortunate materially, yet not so lucky in keeping the good will of those involved. Be on guard.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Everything should go very pleasantly today regarding social encounters with friends. Business associates, however, might be hard to deal with.

TALKING POLITICS. Actress Sissy Spacek is shown during a scene from her latest film, "Missing," a Polygram-Universal release that was made in Mexico last year and traces the disappearance of Charles Hornman, a Harvard-educated writer and filmmaker who was taken from his Santiago home by the Chilean military. Ms. Spacek plays the role of Hornman's wife, costarring with Jack Lemmon, who assumes the role of the man's father. (AP Laserphoto)

Sissy Spacek in 'Missing'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sissy Spacek remembers her trip to Argentina a few years ago: "I was there doing publicity for 'Carrie,' and I really knew nothing about the politics of the country. I found out from people who told me of friends and relatives who had disappeared. Also revealing was the fact that I couldn't go anywhere without a bodyguard. Even when I went jogging in the park, two men with guns went along with me — and had a lot of trouble keeping up."

The actress' education in Latin American politics was furthered with her new film, "Missing," which she made in Mexico last year. Although the locale isn't specified in the movie, the story obviously takes place in Chile, during the 1973 overthrow of the Allende government. The Polygram-Universal release uses real names in tracing the disappearance of Charles Hornman, a writer and filmmaker who was taken from his Santiago home by the Chilean military. His wife and father, played by Miss Spacek and Jack Lemmon, battle the country's rulers — and their American co-conspirators — to learn of the young man's fate. It is a powerful indictment of United States complicity with military oppression, co-written and directed by an expert in political melodrama: Greek-born Costa-Gavras, who also made "Z," "The Confession" and "Special Section." "I met Costa eight months before the picture began," Miss Spacek recalls. "I had seen several of his pictures and had been impressed with them. He told me the story of the Hornmans, which he had first seen as a tiny news item. Then he read the book by Thomas Hauser and was certain he wanted to make the movie. "I figured I had to talk politics with Costa-Gavras, and he must have thought, 'She's a perfect fool.'"

Anderson was an aspiring singer-songwriter when he helped build the present Opry House, which replaced the Ryman Auditorium as the home of the famed country music show in 1974. A carpenter's helper, he worked on the roofing crew. "I carried boards and stuck brass clips in concrete to hold on the shingles," he recalls. "One thing about it, I can look up now at the roof and say I'm glad it doesn't leak," he says with a chuckle. Anderson, 27, is a modest, laid-back, slow-talking singer whose hard-core country style has been compared to George Jones, Merle Haggard and Lefty Frizzell. He remembers that it was winter when he worked atop the Opry House structure, and says he didn't have to worry about bosses

'The Love Boat' to continue cruising

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lauren Tewes has a great travel agent — in five years she's cruised 25,000 miles on "The Love Boat" to Mexico, Alaska, Australia, the South Pacific and the Caribbean. ABC has just renewed the hit series for two more years. Next season Miss Tewes, as cruise director Julie McCoy, has booked tours to Rome, Turkey and the Greek Isles. And the year after that, if negotiations work out, it will be China. Miss Tewes was a last-minute addition to "The Love Boat," which has been sailing on a sea of whipped cream since 1976. She joined the show when it became a regular series the next year after several shakedown cruises with various crew members. "I was in the third and final pilot," she says. "I was cast the day before we went into production. They had tested a number of actresses and were getting right down to the wife. I'd just done a 'Starky and Hutch' for Aaron Spelling and was on the lot at the time they were looking. When they called me in for an audition at ABC I didn't even know what I was auditioning for." Miss Tewes was an aspiring actress and a full-time waitress when she landed a part on "Charlie's Angels." Then she almost immediately lost the role. "I was working at the restaurant at 6:30 a.m. when I got a call from the producers," she says. "I wasn't supposed to report for several days, but it had rained and I was in the cover scene. I laughed and said, that's funny, but I'll see you on Thursday. I was not smart. I didn't realize that if I didn't show up right then I'd lose the part. "My agent called and said, 'Are you crazy? They're recasting right now.' I said, 'Are they crazy? That's my part.'" She rushed to the set, and after that came more roles in Spelling shows until "The Love Boat," which he produces in association with Douglas Cramer. Along the way she was a nurse in a pilot called "Aeromeds," which she says was "about saving the world with helicopters." Miss Tewes — pronounced "Tweeze" — says she feels her character has developed about as much as she can in a show with six regular characters and eight guest stars a week. She says, however, "Something I found out is that the fans who write us want to know more about the characters than we tell them." One thing they can find out this coming Saturday is that everybody on "The Love Boat" knows how to sing. The series, which has gone in many different directions, has its first "Hey gang, let's-put-on-a-show" musical. Lending a hand as relatives of the crew members who just happen to be around are Carol Channing, Ann Miller, Ethel Merman, Della Reese, Van Johnson and Cab Calloway.

Off-Broadway show being seen on cable

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Scrambled Feet," a sassy, satirical revue, had a well-received run off-Broadway in 1979. But Jeff Haddow, its young co-star and co-author, never considered it a cable-TV prospect.

"But it's sure nice they picked it up," he says, laughing. His is not the only off-Broadway show cable TV has picked up. It's got the hit "Table Settings." And "The Dance and the Railroad," staged last year at Joseph Papp's Public Theater. Broadway tapes include "Camelot," "Sweeney

Todd," "Piaf," "Pippin," "The Gin Game," "Candida," "Purlie," "Morning's at Seven," "Gemini" and even "The Canterbury Tales." "Lena Horne: The Lady and Her Music," a Broadway smash, eventually will be cable-taped. So will Broadway's current "Othello," with James Earl Jones and Christopher Plummer. More is on the way. And consider the heavyweights now in cable-theater: Divisions of ABC and CBS, The Entertainment Channel, a joint venture of RCA Cable and Rockefeller Center Cable, and Home Box Office and Showtime. The infant cable-theater industry finally is under way, taking its first hopeful step to a potential home audience that at last estimate had 20 million cable-TV subscribers across the United States. What impact will all this have on live theater? The question is put to Joseph Papp and the heads of Broadway's fiercely competitive Shubert and Nederlander empires. "It's really difficult to say," cautiously replies Robert Nederlander. His group — it has 11 New York theaters and outlets in 10 other cities — teamed up in 1978 with RKO Pictures to develop video projects that include cable-theater. "Our hope is that this will introduce theater to a great number of people, that they'll like it and eventually go see new shows, whether on Broadway, off-Broadway, or in any city around the country." Papp, now negotiating a contract with ABC's cable division, says it's too early to tell: "It's had no great impact on theater at the moment, except to give everybody great expectations."

Singer helped build the Grand Ole Opry House

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — John Anderson helped build the Grand Ole Opry House about 10 years ago. Now he's accomplished enough as a performer to sing inside. So talented, in fact, that he is a finalist for a Grammy award for his catchy song, "I'm Just an Old Chunk of Coal (But, I'm Gonna be a Diamond Someday)."

Anderson was an aspiring singer-songwriter when he helped build the present Opry House, which replaced the Ryman Auditorium as the home of the famed country music show in 1974. A carpenter's helper, he worked on the roofing crew. "I carried boards and stuck brass clips in concrete to hold on the shingles," he recalls. "One thing about it, I can look up now at the roof and say I'm glad it doesn't leak," he says with a chuckle. Anderson, 27, is a modest, laid-back, slow-talking singer whose hard-core country style has been compared to George Jones, Merle Haggard and Lefty Frizzell. He remembers that it was winter when he worked atop the Opry House structure, and says he didn't have to worry about bosses scrutinizing his work after climbing on the roof. "One thing about the roof, we had it all to ourselves," he says. "I was working at the restaurant at 6:30 a.m. when I got a call from the producers," she says. "I wasn't supposed to report for several days, but it had rained and I was in the cover scene. I laughed and said, that's funny, but I'll see you on Thursday. I was not smart. I didn't realize that if I didn't show up right then I'd lose the part. "My agent called and said, 'Are you crazy? They're recasting right now.' I said, 'Are they crazy? That's my part.'" She rushed to the set, and after that came more buildup of combustible gas within the Unit 2 reactor building apparently was due to an instrument error, plant officials said. The Unit 2 reactor is closest to the camera.

Crews enter reactor building, no combustible gases are found

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Officials lifted a minor emergency declaration at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant early Saturday after failing to find combustible gases detected earlier with hand-held instruments.

The "unusual event" alert — the lowest of four emergency levels — was called at 5:25 p.m. EST Friday after the gases were detected by technicians preparing for a routine entry into the containment building in the morning. At one point officials said they "conservatively assumed" the gases included hydrogen.

The alert was ended shortly after 2 a.m. Saturday, an hour after three technicians making a 17-minute trip inside the containment building found no sign of the gases.

"Samples taken from the entry showed everything was normal," TMI spokesman John Fidler said, adding that monitoring would continue and workers might enter the building again later.

Officials were not sure if an instrument failure had led to the earlier report of a buildup of combustible gases.

TMI was the site of the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident on March 28, 1979. At that time, the reactor core was extensively damaged after cooling water was lost through a malfunctioning pressure relief valve and the emergency cooling system was turned off, according to a government report.

Officials said the meters used by technicians Friday afternoon showed only that a combustible gas was present. An analysis of an air sample brought outside by the technicians registered 1.5 percent concentration of hydrogen, said Robert Arnold, president of GPU

Nuclear Corp., the plant's operator.

But the measuring device then recorded the same level of hydrogen both inside and outside the building, Arnold said. The air outside the building actually has much smaller quantities of hydrogen, indicating the instruments probably were incorrect.

"We certainly had a condition we did not fully understand," said Arnold, who declared the unusual event after conferring with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Technicians took remote control readings on purge lines that carry ventilated air from the plant, but could not find detectable traces of the gases.

The first hint of trouble came Friday morning when plant instruments indicated oxygen levels in the building were about 3 percent below normal, Arnold said.

Technicians sent in Friday afternoon found oxygen levels 12 to 15 percent lower than normal at one spot in the containment building. At another spot in the huge building, about 60 feet away from the reactor, their instruments showed the presence of combustible gases, Arnold said.

On the light side

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP) — A jigger of horseradish and an 8-ounce chaser of Tabasco sauce cost an 18-year-old man a $100 court fine for crashing into eight parked cars while in a daze from the spicy brew.

Kenneth P. Chiaccio of Delran said he swallowed the hot condiments on a dare while drinking at a Cherry Hill bar on Oct. 30. He said he blacked out after his tangy drink and didn't know he had smashed into one parked car in the Moorestown Mall parking lot and seven others several blocks away.

Police found him sitting in his disabled car across the street after the accidents.

Superior Court Judge Paul R. Kramer fined Chiaccio $100 on Thursday after physicians verified that the hot concoction could make a person black out and behave in a bizarre manner.

Burlington County Prosecutor James A. Ronco said the County Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph DeLorenzo confirmed documented cases of strange behavior sparked by "too much of the extremely spicy substance."

Chiaccio pleaded guilty Feb. 4 to two counts of failure to report a motor vehicle accident.

Defense attorney Ronald McCulloch introduced as evidence a medical report that concluded Tabasco sauce, derived from hot peppers, and horseradish can restrict the flow of blood to the brain.

NEW YORK (AP) — Norman Mailer says he "never went around thinking" jailhouse writer Jack Henry Abbott would kill somebody — and he believes Abbott surprised himself when he killed a young waiter.

Abbott was convicted of manslaughter Jan. 21 in the killing and is awaiting sentencing.

"I think a great many people, when they kill somebody, are surprised by it," Mailer told interviewer Dick Cavett in a two-part show to be broadcast Feb. 24 and 25 by the Public Broadcasting Service.

Mailer had corresponded with Abbott during his imprisonment, and testified on Abbott's behalf at his parole hearing.

Their correspondence focused on "In the Belly of the Beast," a book by Abbott that was published shortly before he stabbed Richard Adan, a young waiter and aspiring actor, in a dispute outside a Manhattan restaurant July 8, 1961.

Mailer said he wished Abbott had been brought long more slowly — that the book had not been published at that moment, that Abbott could have been placed in a halfway house away from the city and its conflicts, that Mailer had spent more time with him.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Rudolf Nureyev will star with the Boston Ballet in a road production of "Don Quixote" during opening week of the 1982 World's Fair, an exposition official says.

A company of 120 dancers and musicians is expected to make its final stop May 4-8 here as part of a five-week North American tour, Julian Forrester, the fair's entertainment vice president, said Friday.

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's most famous film director, Andrzej Wajda, will travel to Paris to receive the "Cesar" award for his creative work, which includes last year's prize-winning film "Man of Iron."

Wajda, who has kept himself in seclusion here since the advent of martial law last Dec. 13, won the Cannes Golden Palm award last year for "Man of Iron," a blend of fiction and documentary on Poland's social upheaval during 1980.

The film is no longer being shown here.

The morning daily Zycie Warszawy said the Cesar award is the French equivalent of the Oscar, and that Wajda is the first Polish director to receive it.
