Williams found guilty in Atlanta youths' murders

WILLIAMS AFTER GUILTY VERDICT. Wayne B. Williams, center, is taken from the Fulton County courthouse in Atlanta Saturday night after he was found guilty of murder in the deaths of two Atlanta blacks. (AP Laserphoto)

ATLANTA (AP) — A jury found Wayne B. Williams guilty with surprising speed Saturday of murdering two young black men, ending a sensational trial stemming from the string of 28 slayings that terrorized this southern capital for nearly two years.

A "heartsick" Williams, still insisting he was innocent, was immediately sentenced by Superior Court Judge Clarence Cooper to two consecutive life prison terms. The 23-year-old Williams will be eligible for parole review in seven years. The defense said an appeal was likely.

"We the jury find the defendant Wayne Williams guilty on count No. 1 and guilty on count No. 2," District Attorney Lewis Slaton said, reading from the verdict handed him by jury forewoman Sandra Laney in the packed fourth-floor courtroom in the Fulton County Superior courthouse.

The defendant, dressed in a brown suit, remained seated at the defense table, surrounded by deputies and out of sight of reporters, as the verdict was read. Then, accompanied by his lawyers and his father, Homer Williams, he strode to the podium and said in a calm, steady voice:

"I maintained all along through this trial my innocence and I still say so today."

"I hold no malice against the jury, the prosecutors or the court," he said. "I hope the person or persons who committed these crimes can be brought to justice. I did not do this."

He then was hurried out by deputies to be driven back to the county jail where he has been held since his arrest last June.

Jurors declined to discuss the case with reporters as they left the hotel where they were sequestered throughout the trial.

"We were there for eight weeks and you don't explain that in a few seconds," said Edward Derum, a former Detroit policeman who is now a salesman in nearby Roswell.

Asked if he felt confident of the decision, he shook his head indicating yes. Asked how he felt, he said, "I'm tired."

Alvin Binder, Williams' attorney, described him as "fairly calm, very disappointed, sort of heartsick."

Although Williams was charged in only two deaths, prosecutors presented evidence in 10 additional slayings of young blacks in an attempt to show a pattern of killings that included the Payne and Cater deaths.

Binder said he thought Cooper's decision to allow that evidence would be the main basis for an expected appeal.

Binder also said he believed "it was the fibers" the convicted client — a reference to the textile strands the prosecution said linked Williams to his victims.

Slaton said he was confident the case would hold up under appeal and refused to rule out the possibility that Williams would be charged in some of the other slayings.

"I believe the closing of the task force (investigating the 28 slayings) is going to be for someone else to decide at a later date," Slaton told reporters.

The prosecution had said it would not seek the death penalty, and Georgia law allows for no lesser sentence than life imprisonment on a murder conviction.

Deputy Sheriff T.H. Connally said any defendant sentenced to more than five years in prison is entitled to appeal his sentence to a review panel but must give 30 days notice he will do so.

Before court recessed, Williams' father told the judge: "I feel that this is an error in justice. I don't see how anybody anywhere could find my son guilty of anything. It's unjust, and I will say that anywhere in the world."

Williams' mother, Faye, whose emotional appeal for acquittal had closed the defense case, was not in the courtroom, but she told reporters at her home later the verdict was "most frightening news I've heard" since her son was arrested last June.

"I feel like my life is over," she said.

Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young called the trial "eminently fair," and Dr. Joseph Lowery, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said, "There's no reason not to believe that they delivered what they believed was a justifiable verdict."

Payne's mother, Ruby Jones, said she felt "satisfied they finally came up with something to explain my son's death," but parents of some of the other victims expressed doubt the whole case had been solved.

"The prosecutors' job was to prove he was guilty and they did not," said Camille Bell, whose 9-year-old son, Yusef, was slain in November 1979. Mrs. Bell's son was not one of the 10 additional deaths brought into the trial.

Pampa native killed in helicopter crash

SAN MARCOS — A native of Pampa and graduate of Panhandle High School was killed in a helicopter crash Friday near San Marcos.

Donald Dwaine McKenzie, 42, was pronounced dead at the scene of the crash by Hays County Justice of the Peace Becky Sierra. McKenzie was the pilot and only occupant of the small, two-seat helicopter. He had reportedly taken off from Tim's Air Park, north of Austin, around 7:30 a.m. The helicopter was southbound after take off and crashed in a field, about one mile south of San Marcos.

McKenzie was a charter helicopter pilot and flight instructor. The Federal Aviation Administration in San Antonio is investigating the cause of the crash.

He moved from Panhandle to Amarillo about two years ago. McKenzie had been living in Austin about two weeks before the crash.

Services for McKenzie are pending with Smith Funeral Directors of Panhandle. He was a member of Calvary Baptist Church in Panhandle.

Survivors include his wife, Linda; a daughter, Tammy of Longview; two sons, David and Dan, both of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester R. McKenzie of Panhandle; and a sister, Jody McKenzie of Fort Worth.

Judges redraw state congressional districts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — With one judge calling the state's plan to redraw its congressional districts an "insidious" attempt to dilute minority voting strength, a three-judge panel redrew the districts Saturday.

The plan handed down by U.S. District Judges Sam Johnson of Austin, William Wayne Justice of Tyler and Robert Parker of Beaumont goes far beyond the changes requested by the U.S. Justice Department when it rejected the Legislature's plan Jan. 29.

Texas gained three congressmen because of population growth shown by the 1980 census, boosting its delegation from 24 to 27.

The congressional districts as approved by the Legislature in August were expected to eliminate at least one Democratic congressman and carve a new district expected to elect a Republican.

Minority organizations challenged the plan as unfair to blacks and Hispanics.

The court plan, in redistributing minority voters the judges said were "packed" into certain districts, preserves Dallas Rep. Jim Mattox' seat for the Democrats but leaves the new "mid-cities" district, which had been considered a toss-up, heavily Republican.

The changed districts include those currently represented by Reps. Jim Collins, R-Dallas; Jim Mattox, D-Dallas; Kika de la Garza, D-Mission; Martin Frost, D-Dallas; and two newly-created districts in southern Tarrant County and South Texas.

A new Harris County district was left unchanged.

Mattox had opted to run for attorney general after the Legislature's plan added the heavily-Republican Park Cities area of Dallas in his district. Under the court plan, the Park Cities revert to Republican Rep. Jim Collins' district.

At a news conference in Dallas Saturday afternoon, Mattox said he would stay in the attorney general race, although he said his phone had been "ringing off the wall" with constituents urging him to seek reelection.

"I feel rather vindicated by the court decision," Mattox said. "Because I knew all along that the efforts by Governor Clements were illegal and now both the Justice Department and the court have said that."

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, also benefited from the court order. Under the Legislature's plan, he would have been in the position of facing a minority candidate in a heavily minority district.

But the court redistributed the minority vote in Frost's district and gave him about 50,000 voters in Arlington, which had been part of the new "mid-cities" district between Fort Worth and Dallas.

Meanwhile, state Rep. Dee Travis, who had filed to run in the Republican primary for Mattox' seat, found himself living in Jim Collins' district.

"As far as I can tell they put all of the announced Republican candidates in the same district (in Dallas)," Travis said.

"I feel like it's probably a pretty political decision, because it's the same plan — or very similar to — the plan we defeated in the Legislature. This is the Maury plan. It's certainly not an accurate reflection of the will of the people."

Collins is running for U.S. Senate. His district is expected to remain Republican.

The ruling also moved up to March 12 filing deadlines for 16 districts that most recently had March 19 deadlines. The affected districts are 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 14, 15, 18, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26 and 27. The remaining districts' deadline was Feb. 1.

In his written opinion, Johnson said the task of increasing minority voting strength was difficult because "neither Congress nor the courts have articulated a precise prescription. There is no mechanical formula."

Justice complained that the court plan did not go far enough, particularly by failing to make any changes in Harris County districts.

He accused the Legislature of packing minority voters into one district for an "insidious effect on minority voting strength in Harris County."

Justice also took Republican Gov. Bill Clements to task for his support of the Dallas County plan. Clements was adamant in his support of a minority district in Dallas.

But Justice said in his opinion that Clements' "strong sense of the unfairness of the existing apportionment was intertwined with his partisan political position as a leader of the Texas Republican Party."

The ruling also took Cameron County out of the 15th district, represented by Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, who has served the Rio Grande Valley in Congress since 1964. The county was placed into the new 27th district.

When the Justice Department overturned congressional redistricting on Jan. 29, it ordered that more Hispanics be placed in the new South Texas district.

The federal agency, which enforces the 1965 Voting Rights Act, criticized keeping both Hidalgo and Cameron counties in de la Garza's district.

City, school may pay twice for appraisals

BY JEFF LANGLEY
Staff Writer

Property owners inside the combined Pampa city - school tax district might technically pay twice for appraisal work already completed.

The possibility was raised by Gray County Tax Appraisal District Board Chairman Jimmy Wilkerson at a tense board meeting Thursday.

The combined city - school tax office of Charles Rand and his staff reappraised all property inside that district in 1981. The taxpayers paid for that appraisal work, and now, the new Gray County Tax Appraisal District wants to use that same data through 1984. But if the single appraisal district, funded by all 10 taxing entities, uses the school - city appraisals already completed, the district may have to pay for the privilege.

In front of a throng of angry taxpayers, Wilkerson said that the district might have to pay "a token fee" for later use of the already completed appraisal data. That remark brought a shout from a lady, "You mean the taxpayers have to pay for that twice?" Wilkerson said after the meeting he did not know what the "token fee" might be, but simply mentioned it as a possibility. Dr. Robert Lyle, a member of both the appraisal board and Pampa school board, said he would not favor charging the tax appraisal district for this already completed property appraisal.

Rand's initial 1982 $532,000 tax appraisal budget called for expense of $35,000 for new vehicles for him and all of his appraisal assistants. But after several taxpayers questioned the need for the vehicles last Thursday, Rand said, "I'm not stuck with the vehicles. If we need to do away with them tonight, I'm all for it. I could favor paying mileage, but only if the men using their own vehicles don't have to pay out of pocket." He told the crowd

Thursday he did not know what mileage rate would be required for employees to break even on expenses. But at the board meeting, Feb. 15, mileage was discussed and Rand said he figured it would take 40 or 45 cents per mile to recoup expenses on personal auto use.

The discussion of vehicles and mileage began Thursday when Harry West, 717 E. Browning, addressed the board and questioned Rand's statement about cheating on mileage. At the previous board meeting Feb. 15, Rand said an employee might cheat on mileage, so buying new vehicles might be cheaper. West said, "If that's the attitude, I don't see why your assistants should be working for you, or why you should be working for us." Rand defended his employees as honest, and Wilkerson chimed in, "Sometimes things are discussed which should not be discussed."

The entire meeting Thursday was actually called to discuss the appraisal services budget with the 10 county taxing entities who pay a share of the budget based on revenue collected. Representatives of the entities took the floor first, and none said their elected panels supported the budget wholeheartedly, while most said it would be vetoed.

By law, the taxing entities have 15 days to veto the appraisal services contract and 30 days to veto the appraisal services budget. Wilkerson said the appraisal board will wait for the entities vote and ask for specific suggestions about how to revise the budget. He said when his board gets the recommendations, the board will meet again, probably in mid-March.

At Thursday's meeting, Wilkerson unveiled a revised appraisal services budget, which figures expenses for only the 10 months remaining in 1982. The revised budget also includes a salary cut for Rand and his appraisal staff. Based on 10 months and the salary cuts, the revised 1982 budget is around $473,000, down from the annual $532,000, approved by the appraisal board Feb. 15. Rand's salary for the remainder of 1982 would be around $32,000, or an annual amount of about $38,000. However, that revised budget has not been officially adopted by the appraisal board.

The budget for appraisal of all county property is now in the hands of the taxing entities. To veto the budget, a majority of the nine elected panels must meet and vote no on the issue.

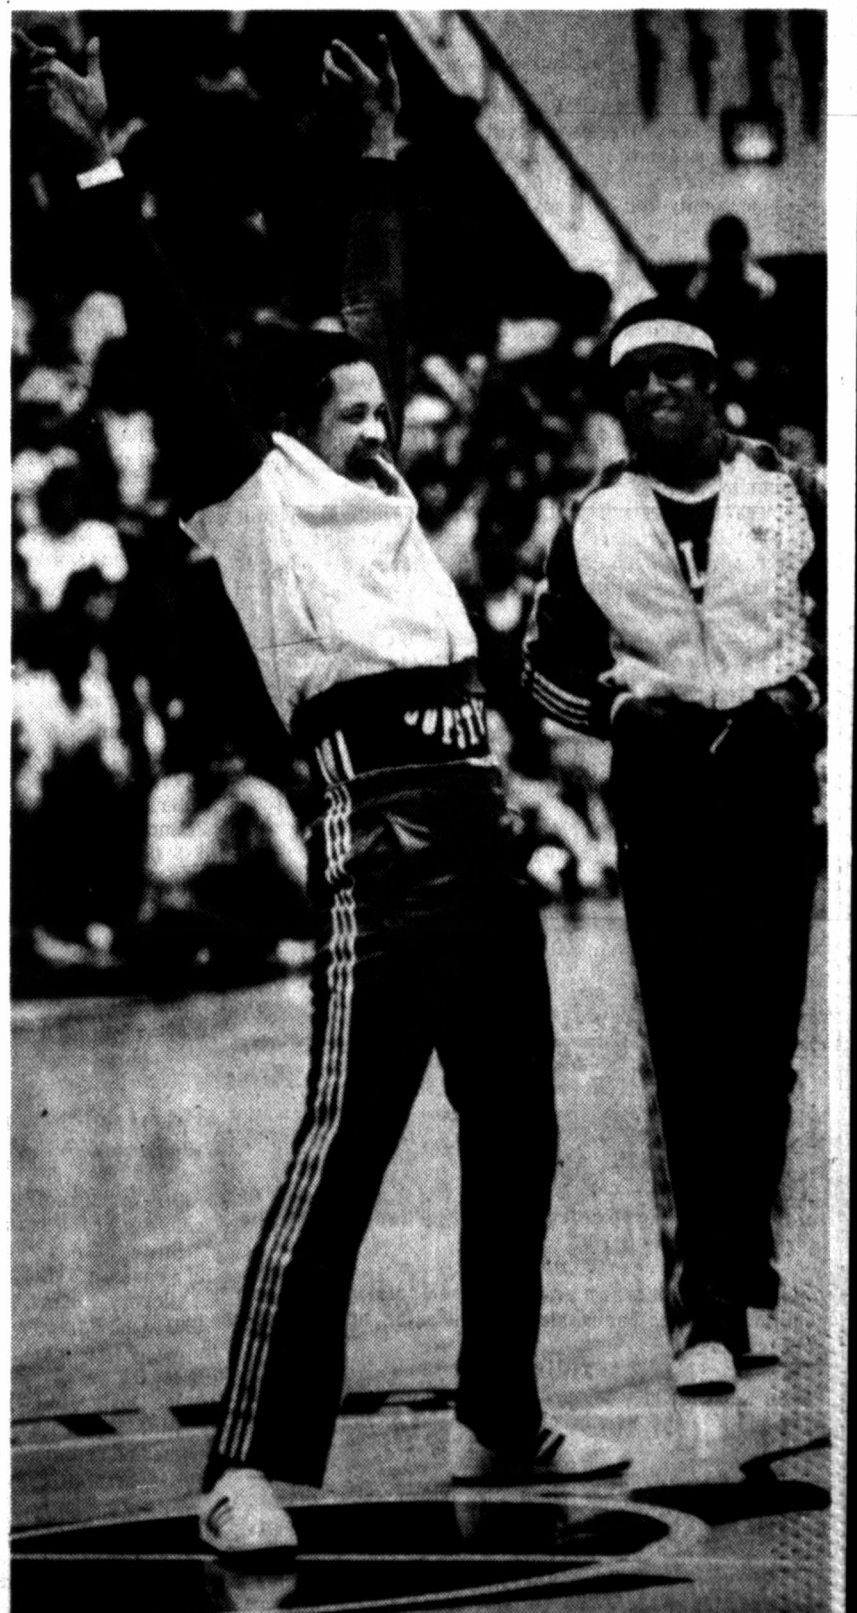

They must register an official resolution on matter and file it with appraisal board secretary, Lloyd Hunt of McLean. All of these actions must beat the deadline of March 15, or the budget will stand as it is.

Many of the taxing entities are pushing that 30-day deadline to the limit.

The Lefors and Alanreed school board will consider the issue at meetings March 11. The Pampa City Commission does not meet again until March 9, and City Manager Mack Wofford said Saturday that there is no indication that the issue will be placed on panel's agenda. The McLean City Commission will hear the issue at a meeting March 9. The Lefors City Commission and McLean school board both meet March 8. The Grandview - Hopkins school board meets March 4, and the Pampa school board meets March 2. The Gray County Commission, the group which has been most vocal against the budget, will be the first to consider the issue at a meeting Monday.

Much like a voice vote in Congress, where individuals are not identified on the record, the Gray County taxing entities can pass the appraisal budget by simply doing nothing. Not voting on the issue constitutes automatic approval.

All of the March meetings of the Gray County taxing entities are open to the public.

DALLAS COWBOY HOOPSTERS. Butch Johnson, left, gives the high sign of victory in a benefit basketball game Friday at the Amarillo Civic Center. The Pokes traded in the pads for sneakers to raise money for kids incorporated athletic programs.

Egging on Johnson is the Cowboy's great running back Tony Dorsett. The Cowboy exhibition was played after the Pampa victory over Tascosa, and it helped boost attendance to around 5,000.

Helms asks Reagan to withdraw support of Salvadoran regime

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chastized the Reagan administration Saturday for failing to act strongly enough in Central America and called on the president to withdraw U.S. support for El Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

"When the Reagan administration took over, there was a forthright recognition that the arms supply for the revolutionary movement was coming through Nicaragua and Cuba," Helms said in a speech to the Conservative Political Action Conference.

"Recognition of the problem almost stopped there," added the senator, who is chairman of the Western Hemisphere subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "Much of the Carter policy apparatus on Central America stayed in place."

Helms said that was why he attempted to block action on many of President Reagan's appointments to State Department posts.

Citing examples of what he considers policy mistakes, Helms said, "In El Salvador, the administration continues to support the land reform as the foundation of its policy."
"And we continue to support Duarte," he said. "Now, Mr. Duarte, let's face it is far to the left of George McGovern."

McGovern, the former senator from South Dakota and 1972 Democratic candidate for president, epitomizes to conservative activists the most liberal wing of American politics.

Helms described Duarte as "our standard bearer" in El Salvador and said the U.S. government has made him "the only game in town."

He asked, "Was there any alternative in El Salvador?"

"The answer is, yes. We didn't have to embrace land reform. We could have pointed out that the land reform is a vast failure...."

"And, yes, we might have withdrawn our political support for Mr. Duarte and let the natural political life of El Salvador take over," Helms continued. "There are many honest and attractive politicians in El Salvador, men who are for the free enterprise system, who are absolutely faithful to the United States, who are for human dignity, who are for traditional values."

"But by our support, by our unquestioning support for Duarte, these potential candidates are prevented from assuming their normal role."

Helms referred to the government headed by Duarte as "left-wing socialist."

Helms spoke shortly before Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. addressed the conference. President Reagan spoke to the conference Friday night.

A number of conservative activists have urged the president to fire Haig.

Helms said that since Reagan took office "there's been an improvement in foreign policy implementation, but we've got a long way to go."

At their awards banquet, the conservatives gave a special citation to Zdzislaw Ruraz, the former Polish ambassador to Japan, who defected to the United States after martial law was imposed in Poland.

Other awards went to four Republican and two Democratic members of Congress - Sen. William Armstrong, R-Colo., Republican Reps. Delbert Latta of Ohio and Barber Conable and John LeBoutillier, both of New York, and Democratic Reps. Phil Gramm and Kent Hance, both of Texas. Gramm and Hance were key members of the group of conservative Democrats who supported the Reagan economic program.

Officials of thirteen states to study Rock Island bankruptcy

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) - Top officials from 13 states that last year lost much of the transportation bloodline of the farm and shipping industry - their railways - are to meet at the end of this week to discuss ongoing Rock Island Railroad bankruptcy proceedings.

The two-day meeting is designed to "identify issues of mutual concern, form coalitions based on similar interests and discuss potential courses of action," according to a letter Kansas Gov. John Carlin sent to governors and attorneys general in states where the railroad once operated.

"The goal of the meeting is to develop a strategy to deal with problems created by the default of the Rock Island," said Jim Townsend, Oklahoma rail coordinator.

Townsend wants to continue negotiations with Chicago Rock Island & Pacific trustee William Gibbons for purchase of the 887-mile north-south tracks between Herington, Kan., and Dallas-Fort Worth, Texas, and for the 760-mile east-west "Sunbelt" line between Amarillo, Texas, and Memphis, Tenn., with a sell-back option to the Santa Fe.

He also hopes to litigate the bankruptcy case to the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago to ask for clarification of the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission to grant operating permits.

His fourth goal is to gain approval in Washington D.C. of the second portion of a bill by U.S. Sen. Nancy Kassenbaum, R-Kan.

The highlight of Thursday's meeting is a question-answer session with Chicago Rock Island & Pacific trustee William Gibbons, the most controversial figure in the sluggish bankruptcy issue, which has been plagued with nearly a generation of lengthy delays.

Gibbons, 61, was appointed in March 1975 by former law partner and U.S. District Judge Jack McGarr in Chicago to oversee Rock Island reorganization.

At the time, Gibbons predicted the railroad would "be around forever" if a $100 million dollar federal loan was approved. The newly formed U.S. Railway Association twice turned down the loan, putting into motion what has been called the largest liquidation in the country.

The 128-year-old Rock Island had had a promising beginning, coming to be known in the 1920s as the "mighty fine line" for its dependable shipment of goods and products.

In 1963, officials of the 60-mph railroad foresaw possible financial trouble and attempted to merge with Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

An application was filed the following year with the ICC, which took six years to recommend the merger and an additional four years for final approval.

The issue was complicated by several other railroads that cross-filed for the merger.
By Nov. 24, 1974, when final approval was handed down, conditions had changed so much that the merger was no longer feasible.

In the decade it took the ICC to issue the approval, the Rock Island had performed only basic maintenance, expecting the line to be sold at any time. The "mighty fine line" had deteriorated to a 20-mph railroad. Rock Island officials filed for bankruptcy on March 17, 1975.

Reorganization began and millions of government dollars and loans eventually were poured into railroad to head off the impending collapse. By 1979, the Rock Island was costing taxpayers $500,000 a day to operate.

On Sept. 26, 1979, the ICC declared the CRI&P "cashless" and unable to continue rail service. Four months later, McGarr ordered the liquidation of the railroad. In August 1980, it was shut down by a crippling strike.

"We can blame the ICC for the failure of the Rock Island line," Townsend said. "It's a classic case of bureaucratic bungling."

Gibbons attributes the downfall of the railroad to inflation.
"Double-digit inflation, oil prices increasing by 100 percent and the strike," he said. "They eventually got us."

Gibbons has stuck with plans to sell to the highest bidder on the vast Rock Island holdings, which extend from Lake Michigan to the Rockies and from Tennessee to the Gulf of Mexico.

County to consider controversial budget

Gray County Commissioners will consider the $532,000 budget and contract for the 1982 Gray County Appraisal District during its regular meeting at 9:30 a.m. Monday.

As one of the taxing entities in the Central Appraisal District, the Gray County Court has the right to veto the proposed budget.
If five out of the nine taxing entities adopt an official resolution to disapprove the budget and file it within 30 days with secretary of the tax appraisal board Lloyd Hunt of McLean, the budget will not take effect. The appraisal board must then come up with a new budget within 30 days.

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy was the only member of the Central Appraisal District Board to veto the proposed budget when it was first presented.

In other business, commissioners will hear a report from St. Clair Auctioneers of Amarillo on the auction of real and personal property at Highland General Hospital.

Commissioners will consider an adjustment in the Gray County Sheriff's budget to provide for officer training and a contract with the District Probation Department.

Requests from Cabot Corporation and the Phillips Petroleum Company to cross county roads with pipelines will be heard.
Commissioners will discuss the plat for the Frasheir Acres East Subdivision.

A presentation by the Southwestern Public Service Company for work on the McClellan Creek Project Site 2 is on the agenda.

The County Lateral Road Mileage for the State Department of Highways will be certified.

The court is to meet in executive session to discuss a personnel matter.

Illinois fluoridation ruling may effect similar case in Texas

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — A ruling declaring Illinois' fluoridation law unconstitutional may have national and even international importance, an attorney for the plaintiffs says.

"It's splendid news," said John Graham, a Minneapolis attorney who represented the plaintiffs in the Illinois class action lawsuit and is pursuing similar causes in Pennsylvania and Texas. "It means that for the second time in open court, we have been able to prove that the weight of the evidence shows that a substantial harm exists."

Judge Ronald Neimann ruled Friday that the state fluoridation law violated the Illinois Constitution and ordered the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and the state Department of Public Health to stop its enforcement. Neimann ordered the Alton water company to halt fluoridation.

He said the law — which requires the fluoridation of public drinking water — amounts to "an unreasonable exercise of police power."

Richard W. Cosby, first assistant Illinois attorney general, said his office will appeal the decision and would go to court Monday to seek a delay in enforcement of Neimann's order.

Cosby said if properly worded, the decision could apply statewide. But, he said the ruling probably will have no immediate effect outside Alton.

The decision came a year and a half after a trial before Neimann on a 14-year-old lawsuit filed against the state and Alton's water company by fluoridation opponents.

"In view of the plaintiffs' evidence, even though it has long been recognized that artificial fluoridation of public water supplies helps fight tooth decay, a risk exists of serious health hazards," Neimann wrote.

He said there was insufficient evidence to support the state's claim that fluoridation is a safe means of promoting dental health.

Edward G. Moorman, chief counsel for the Illinois Pure Water Committee, which filed the suit, said Neimann "wasn't saying that fluoridation causes cancer. We don't know what causes cancer. He was saying that faced with a certain amount of evidence, there are facts it causes some harm."

"The truth has been suppressed in this long enough," said Ruby Hale, an Alton resident who spearheaded the suit after organizing the committee in 1968. "It's a great victory, important because now the people have the right to choose."

Illinois State Dental Society spokeswoman Susan Nye disputed the findings, saying, "We don't feel there is a health risk and certainly we'll support the state's position in an appeal."

Graham said Neimann's decision reinforces a precedent-setting 1978 judgment in the Court of Common Pleas in Allegheny County, Penn. Scientific research was introduced in that case to allege that fluoridation was harming the health of water users in suburban Pittsburgh.

Feds request state records in bid rigging

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — State Transportation Department officials have confirmed they turned over certain records to Justice Department officials, but said they did not know whether there was any connection with a reported investigation of collusion and bid rigging among contractors.

Federal sources told The Associated Press Saturday that a couple of the firms targeted for investigations in other states had done some business in the past in Oklahoma.

Attorneys from the Justice Department's anti-trust division in December requested documentation on bids for all highway construction projects during two six-month periods in 1979 and 1980.

The attorneys broadened the request earlier this month to include all bid information on all projects for the years 1977-1980.

Verne Bradley, acting director for two weeks while Director R.A. "Dick" Ward is out of state, said his staff has compiled and has sent to investigators a portion of the material requested, all of which is public record.

Information provided the federal agents includes project advertisements, copies of company bids and department computer tabulations on each project listing the amount of material expected to be used and the unit cost, Bradley said.

"We have no evidence that any employee is under investigation," said Jon Powell, assistant director for public affairs.

An ongoing 18-month federal probe has resulted in indictments, convictions guilty pleas and continuing investigations in 12 states.

Bradley said Ward in December requested a meeting with Justice Department representatives "to gain information with which we might better examine this state's bidding policies in order to guard against collusion in Oklahoma."

The attorneys told the state officials they intended to look at Oklahoma as well as other states, he said.

During the meeting in Kansas City, state officials reviewed Oklahoma procedures with the federal agents, Bradley said. No change in procedure resulted from the meeting, he said.

A similar meeting occurred on Feb. 18 in Oklahoma City.

Treaties not best way to limit arms

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Formal treaties may not be the best way to limit nuclear arms, participants at a University of Texas conference suggested Friday.

McGeorge Bundy, former national security adviser to Presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson, said the United States should consider moving away from the formal treaty process and make agreements on arms control subject to a majority vote of both houses of Congress.

James Goodby, ambassador in the State Department's Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs, said "the problem with the treaty approach is that it has been affected by the cycle of the four-year presidency."

Joseph Nye, a Harvard professor who was deputy undersecretary of state in the Carter administration, said he thought the treaty process should be retained, but it should not be considered "as the only game in town."

Nye proposed more informal approaches such as regular meetings between U.S. and Soviet officials at various levels to discuss arms issues of common interest.

He said there also should be talks to see whether either side is flexible and talks that might lead to more limited agreements such as those that have banned nuclear activity in outer space, seabeds and Antarctica.

The two-day conference on nuclear negotiations was sponsored by UT-Austin's Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs.

Joggers cleared of running in street

HIGHLAND PARK, Texas (AP) — Two runners have been cleared of charges they jogged in a street of this affluent Dallas suburb.

Mark Kendrick, 30, and Susan Sanders, 28, were ticketed Feb. 12 for crossing a street under a new ordinance prohibiting jogging in a roadway.

The pair contended they were crossing the street to avoid a dog.

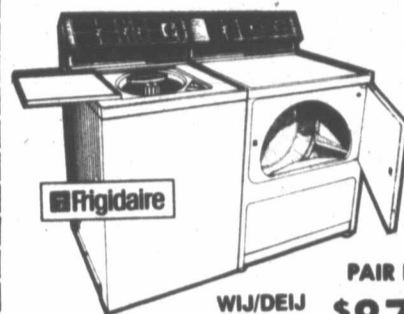

Judge Pat Robertson found them innocent Friday, saying they "have a perfect right to cross the street to avoid being attacked by a dog."

Officers have given $15 fines to 13 people in the last three weeks for violating a state code that prohibits pedestrians from walking in the street. Highland Park adopted the law in 1967.

For years "officers didn't do anything about it until we started getting complaints from motorists," said Police Chief Henry Gardner. "We started warning and warning people, but occasionally we'd have an injury because of jogging. We were trying to get compliance without tickets."

About a month ago, a jogger running in the street was injured seriously when she was hit by a car.

Taxpayer's message to appraisal board is clear

After Thursday night's meeting of the Gray County Tax Appraisal District Board, we hope board members and members of the taxing entities got the message from taxpayers on the proposed $500,000 budget.

And despite the confusion of facts and figures and official double talk, we hope the taxpayers got the message.

The message to the tax board was clear — a budget of $500,000 is too much — a staff of 16 is too many — a chief appraiser's salary of $44,000 is too much. Do it the cheapest way possible. Period.

We think the message received by the taxpayers was clear as well — these guys, with the exception of Carl Kennedy, are serious about wanting to spend our money — and it's going to be an uphill battle to stop them. Maybe even some hard work.

Three legal steps have already been taken by this board: 1) The contract with the school system has been approved by both boards. 2) The board has already given its stamp of approval on the $500,000 budget. 3) Charles Rand has been named Chief Appraiser.

The contract could be nullified by vetoes from five taxing entities if the vetoes are registered with the board secretary Lloyd Hunt of McLean by Tuesday. While this is not likely to happen, it is possible.

The budget itself can be quashed by five vetoes registered with Hunt by March 15. We gathered from the meeting that even the school board plans to veto the budget.

The chief appraiser works at the pleasure of the five-man board.

But rather than strip the budget back to a bare bone minimum, it seems the majority on this board may prefer to nit-pick the budget with so-called "budget cuts."

Such as the one suggested Thursday.

Rather than eliminate 12 to 14 workers, the budget-makers, Rand and the school staff who employ the city-school tax workers, threw us a crumb. They decided to cut $17,000 in salaries. They also decided to talk about the budget in terms of 10 months, instead of 12 months. Both reduced a $532,000 budget to $473,000.

The board, again with the exclusion of Kennedy, seem unconvinced that farming out the work to two outside appraising firms would save money. Truth of the matter is they don't know if it would save money. They haven't checked. The board could even ask for bids, see how much the bids for such an appraisal job would be and then decide if they want to farm out the work.

While Rand claims his in-house operation can do the appraising more cheaply on a per parcel basis in the long run, how long a run does he need at $500,000 a year before it gets any cheaper?

Even Rand would not project his future costs.

If advertisements for bids were made throughout the state, perhaps as far south as Dallas and Houston, the current $15 per parcel might be less. In addition, the taxpayers would save on the costs of overhead, salaries, vehicle purchases, mileage, and $80,000 for remodeling.

It would be a nice gesture of one of the taxing entities involved to offer housing to the tax appraisal district office at a nominal rate. The county courthouse was mentioned.

We would prefer to see this office operate independently — separated from the school's clutches, separated from the school's tax collection office and separated from the school's tax collection duties, where so many people seem to be required.

We would like to see a one-man, one-secretary office, without new carpeting and ceiling fans, where outside appraisals are simply reviewed by the Chief Appraiser, certified and mailed or delivered to the ten taxing entities.

From our point of view, a secretary might not even be required during this first year.

The salary, we feel, could be set within the $19,000 - $34,000 range and the lower the better.

We want only to hire a person who will do the job efficiently and honestly. We don't want to hire the star appraiser of the Panhandle and his staff.

It was mentioned during Thursday's meeting that the county sheriff who has worked for the people of Gray County some 20 odd years only makes $21,360 plus his apartment and mileage. The opinion was where are we putting our values — when we place an appraiser's salary at $44,000.

We agree wholeheartedly with Kennedy's remarks that adoption of this budget would be disruptive, not only to our community but to the entire district. Disruptive to public officials who are making less money with many times more responsibilities, who are making less money while placing their own lives on the line. Disruptive to taxpayers, who will be paying for this. It will indeed be, as Kennedy said, a great disservice to the people of this community, if the taxpayers' budget intentions are ignored.

The taxpayers' agreement with Kennedy is not enough, however. He does not form a majority of the board by himself. He is outnumbered 4 to 1. It may take the continued pressure of the presence of taxpayers at these meetings to see that the board follows their intentions.

The board's plan now is to accept suggestions for changes to the budget from each taxing entity which vetoes it. Board chairman Jimmy Wilkerson told us the board would meet again in mid-March to consider these changes.

Sounds like piecemeal stuff to us, unless the taxpayers again put on a show.

Letters to the editor

Dear Editor:

If the "appraisal staff" have cars furnished for them, if the city police have cars furnished for them, why — oh why — does the county sheriff and his deputies furnish their own vehicles?

The sheriff and his deputies patrol the same county roads the appraisers would travel.

Mr. Rand may be good at his job, but that good????

NAME WITHHELD BY REQUEST

To the Pampa News Editor:

As one fortunate enough to have become a homeowner in Pampa, through great efforts, I would like to know just what Mr. Rand will be doing as he collects our taxes to pay his $44,000 salary until 1983.

With utilities constantly rising, I don't understand how our Commissioners who are in favor of this budget can be cold-hearted enough to impose another unnecessary tax on their neighbors.

And just what will this tax do for the City of Pampa? Will we see improvements in our schools, streets and county roads? What about city employees, who are grossly underpaid?

I, for one, do not want to see one of Mr. Rand's employees pull up in front of my dwelling (very modest, I might add), in a new vehicle to assess my property for his extravagances.

Signed,
Kathleen Z. Sexton

To the Pampa News Editor:

As a single, self-supporting female taxpayer and property owner, I want to appeal to all other single, self-supporting women, or people on Social Security or fixed incomes, to make known their feelings about the proposed budget.

How can I continue to live in a desirable neighborhood, be self-supporting, and maintain a decent standard of living, if I hardly have enough money to pay utility bills and the ever increasing living expenses, without having taxes increased? No wonder people resort to welfare!!!!

I have never called on anyone for anything, but I am now thinking that in order to maintain my home I might have to consider renting a room or a portion of my home in order to meet expenses.

Do any of you on the appraisal board have this problem? If not, try to consider those of us who do.

Signed,
Ernestyne J. Pulse

Dear Editor:

I am submitting my application as Chief Appraiser for Pampa. I feel my budget to be much more what the Taxpayers would want. Also I would humbly accept $30,200 for ten months of work. And, if need be, ride a horse around Pampa, like in times past, assessing taxes.

On the more serious side, "Is this what our taxes were raised for?" To give Mr. Rand an increase of $13,000, $80,000 for remodeling, and $35,000 for new vehicles for his staff to ride around in? Couldn't they drive something economical like Chevettes? It would also save Gas.

I feel as a taxpayer and a voter, I deserve a voice. If we give him this,

By ART BUCHWALD

The black republican

By ART BUCHWALD

The hardest thing for the Reagan administration to find is a "qualified" black person to appoint to an important position in the government. By "qualified," we mean somebody who is against busing, job-training programs, welfare, food stamps, government-subsidized housing, as well as equal-opportunity litigation.

But when the administration finds a black who's willing to buy the whole conservative package, he's welcomed into the government with open arms. I don't want to brag, but I know one, and if all goes well he could become a rising star in the Republican Party.

His name is Thomas Jefferson III, and I ran into him in Brooks Brothers where he was being fitted for a suit.

"How goes the civil rights battle?" I asked.

"I'm not into civil rights any more," Thomas told me. "Here's my new business." He handed me a card.

It read, "Thomas Jefferson III, Chairman, Black Citizens for the B-1 Bomber."

"That's a heavy title," I said. "What do you do?"

"Anything they ask me to."

"Who do you mean by they?"

"The Republican Party."

"I thought you were a Democrat."

"I used to be until I decided there was no future in it. There are too many blacks in the Democratic Party, and there's no opportunity there. But if your black Republican you can write your own ticket. There are so few of us that when they find one, they can't do enough for you."

"Such as?"

"Well I'm particularly in demand for Republican fund raisers. Not only don't I have to pay $1,000 for dinner, but they always sit me on the dais. When I was a Democrat, I was lucky to get a seat near the kitchen door. You know when they introduce the head table and the Master of Ceremonies asks everyone to hold their applause? Well when they introduce me the audience can't then we had better be prepared to give him a raise in the next year and so on. Why the sky could be the limit!

I would like to see his budget revised with more money flowing into improving our fair City. Let's see more Community affairs, Better Schools and teaching conditions. More supplies. Because that's what we're taxed for in the first place.

I'm all for the American way and the free opportunities we have to prosper. Apparently Mr. Rand is too!

I applaud Mrs. Gray and Judge Kennedy for fighting this. But they cannot do it alone. They need our support, whether it be in letters or phone calls. It seems much easier to sit back and not get involved. But in this issue, I feel we need a voice. The budget has not been approved yet, so why don't we start calling the board members and voice our opinions. Let them know how we feel! Maybe, just maybe, they'll have to think twice on the issue. Let's WIN this time.

Sincerely,
Carrie Burdett

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter to suggest a new approach to our Tax Appraisal Board. The Appraisal Board approved an outrageous and exorbitant budget of hard earned taxpayer dollars and expected us to go along with it like lambs to a slaughter. They found out Thursday night at the budget meeting that the taxpayers did NOT want Mr. Rand's big budget and free spending high salaries, new cars, and expensive new offices for our new tax appraisers. There was only one man on the Tax Appraisal Board with guts, integrity and a good common sense of what the taxpayers wanted, to stand up and say this budget is ridiculous, but I am bound to it by the majority vote of this board. That man was Judge Carl Kennedy, and every taxpayer owes him a special thanks for standing alone and trying to protect our tax dollars.

My suggestion to the tax appraisal board is to use some of the good qualified personnel that we have been getting along with for over 25 years. I am referring to Margie Gray, the County Tax Assessor Collector, and her staff that have over 100 years of combined experience in assessing and collecting taxes for Gray County.

We could pay her an additional amount for taking on this responsibility and becoming a Certified Tax Appraiser that the law requires, but nothing near the $44,000 salary and $11,000 new car that Mr. Rand is requesting. She could contract all of the 36,280 parcels in Gray County out to fair, unbiased, and independent tax appraisers like Troy Sloan that was used last year. His appraisals cost the taxpayers approximately $15.00 per parcel for 3,405 parcels and hopefully, we could get a lower rate if he or some independent appraiser would bid on all of the parcels except the 18,285 oil and gas parcels that cost us $22,000 to have appraised.

At this rate of $15 per parcel, his total appraisal would only be $270,000 as compared to the $532,000 annual budget that Mr. Rand would like. By having Margie Gray become our Certified Tax Appraiser, we would not need three assistant appraisers, new cars and new $80,000 offices for she could use the office we have been using for more than 40 years, and save the taxpayers of Gray County approximately $200,000 per year over this proposed budget.

By doing this, we would use the most experienced, qualified personnel that we could get, save the taxpayers a huge tax burden, and send Mr. Rand with his big budget, big salaries, new cars, and fancy new offices on to a new big city where he and his big budget would be better appreciated.

You gentlemen of the Appraisal Board volunteered and were appointed to this board to serve the taxpayers and the will of the public. I think that you must admit that the will of the taxpayers has not been served by this BIG budget and I respectfully ask you to consider my idea or any other responsible plan that would lower our staggering tax burden.

Signed,
Dan Chapen

To the Editor:

Recently you ran an editorial on the publication of my book, "The Car Book."

The theme of the editorial was that somehow I had "ripped off" or "mugged" the taxpayer. A quick review of the facts surrounding the publication of this guide may lead your readers to another conclusion.

Last year the Department of Transportation published a book called "The Car Book." Its purpose was twofold, first, to use the marketplace, rather than regulations to improve the safety and performance of automobiles and second, to provide the consumer with access to automobile information paid for with their tax dollars. President Reagan's campaign promise to "take government off the backs of the people and let the marketplace work" precisely described the concept behind the popular 1981 edition of the book. The overwhelming response from the 1.7 million Americans who wrote for the book belies your editorial's suggestion that Americans did not need this information.

When the Reagan administration came to Washington, Secretary of Transportation Drew Lewis called the book "anti-industry" and stated that consumers today do not need help in buying used cars. Secretary Lewis, despite the fact that the data for the book had been collected at taxpayer expense and despite the fact that I arranged for the book to be published at no cost to the government, refused to make it available to consumers in 1982.

Because I felt so strongly that this information be made public, I personally updated, revised and added to the information, on my own time, using my own money. I not only gave up my job for this effort, but I also invested my life savings in the project. I would have much preferred to do this as a member of the Department of Transportation because I feel the government has a responsibility to share with the public information collected about automobiles at their expense.

I am proud to say that through my efforts information on the safety and performance of 1982 automobiles is now available to the American car buyer in the 1982 edition of "The Car Book." The full color, 80 page book rates the 1982 cars in five categories of safety and performance. In addition, the book provides information on which tires last the longest, which child safety seats pass the toughest standards, how to compare warranties, how to buy a used car and much more.

Your editorial suggests that the automobile industry felt the data was incomplete and misleading. Yet the automobile industry has not provided more "complete" or less "misleading" information about the safety and performance of their products. When was the last time your readers heard the manufacturers provide meaningful, comparative information in their ads? (Except, of course, the federally mandated EPA fuel economy figures.)

The editorial also refers to a government official who said the 1982 version of "The Car Book" contains only nine pages of new information. That is a bold-faced lie. The book contains over 4,400 pieces on data on automobiles, over 4,000 are brand new and never before published.

You also claim that the information can be found in other publications or is available through the government. Again, these claims are simply not true. The information in the 1982 edition of "The Car Book" is unique. Moreover, I am sure that any of your readers who have attempted to get the federal bureaucracy to answer even one question are well aware of how difficult it would be to obtain hundreds of pieces of information on 87 different automobiles.

I wish consumers did not have to pay for this information. However, when you consider that the average price of a new General Motors car is over $10,500, $4.95 is a small price to pay for information that will help the consumer make an informed purchase, one that may even save his or her life.

Sincerely,
Jack Gillis

Today in history

Today is Sunday, Feb. 28, the 59th day of 1982. There are 306 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Feb. 28, 1974, the United States and Egypt re-established diplomatic relations after a seven-year breach.

On this date:
In 1594, British royal physician Roger Lopez was arrested for conspiracy to poison Queen Elizabeth I.

In 1942, Japanese forces landed in Java, Indonesia, during World War II.

In 1946, Switzerland announced that its army would stop using the Prussian Goose Step when marching.

Social Security panel free of politics in finding solution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of President Reagan's advisory commission on Social Security said Saturday that the panel is "free and unshackled" to consider any solution to the system's fiscal problems — even those opposed by the administration.

Alan Greenspan, who chairs the National Commission on Social Security Reform, warned, however, that "it's not going to be easy to reach a consensus which will be sufficiently broad to carry the nation with us."

Reagan stayed away from the panel's initial meeting Saturday to avoid giving a partisan tenor to the commission's work, said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

But in a letter read by Greenspan, Reagan exhorted the 15-member panel to produce "a truly bipartisan solution to this great national problem" by the end of the year.

Reagan said there was "no more important domestic problem requiring resolution than restoring the integrity of Social Security ... without penalty to those dependent on the programs. Every American of every age has an important stake in the success of your work."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., told his fellow panel members, "We may have to do something on a temporary basis in Congress this year with Social Security, notwithstanding the president's indication that we should not. ... There are several proposals to freeze this and freeze that."

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., has proposed a freeze on all federal cost-of-living increases, including the one due 36 million Social Security beneficiaries in July, and other government spending as an alternative to Reagan's fiscal 1983 budget and its $91.5 billion deficit.

Asked if Reagan was opposed to a freeze on the cost-of-living increase, Speakes said, "We'd just have to wait and see if it comes to us and in what proposal."

Reagan created the commission after abandoning his own controversial Social Security proposals of last May that would have delayed cost-of-living increases and slashed early retirement, disability and all other benefits.

Some Wall Street analysts are warning economy could get worse

NEW YORK (AP) — As bad as the current condition of the economy is, some Wall Street analysts are warning that it could get considerably worse.

In the mainstream financial community, economists don't use a word like "depression" loosely. But lately the chance that the United States might be headed for some sort of depression has become the subject of open conjecture.

"I don't think it's a probability," said S. Jay Levy, a Chappaqua, N.Y., economic forecaster. "But for the first time in the post-war era, I think it's a possibility."

At E.F. Hutton & Co., the nation's third-largest brokerage house, chief economist Edward Yardeni rates the likelihood of a depression at 30 percent.

His position is by no means universal. "There's no doubt the economy is still sinking," Otto Eckstein, chairman of the forecasting firm of Data Resources Inc., recently observed, but "so far there's no reason to believe this is doomsday."

Officials in the Reagan administration, for their part, continue to forecast a recovery in the months ahead. Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the president's economic advisory council, predicted on Thursday that the beginnings of an upturn would show up in the second quarter, to be followed by strong growth in the second half of the year.

Says Yardeni of the administration's position, "They don't share my concern about how fragile the economy is."

Fears about the direction of the economy intensified early in the past week, when the stock market suddenly stopped responding to declining interest rates and took a sharp drop.

After rising more than 8 points in early trading Monday, the Dow Jones industrial average tumbled to a loss of more than 13 by the close. At 811.26, the average stood at its lowest point in nearly two years.

The market subsequently rallied, and the Dow closed Friday at 824.39, up 09 for the week.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index slipped 10 to 65.33, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was down 3.44 at 266.13.

Big Board volume averaged 56.24 million shares a day, against 52.17 million the week before.

Still, Yardeni says there is a danger of the kind of depression that he defines as "a severe recession that's awfully hard to get out of."

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

THE SENATE OF TEXAS

NOW THE GOOD PART

AUSTIN — While we stand by our earlier column that federal budget cuts of the Texas Employment Commission will hurt Texas, there is at least one part of the President's budget plan that we support.

Texas has paid about $8 billion into the federal highway fund since 1956, but the federal government only has returned about $6 billion of that money to us for our highways. In other words, we have donated about $2 billion to other states for their highways.

Twenty-five percent of Texas highway taxes must go into a federal highway trust fund. We put more into that fund than we are allowed to take out.

Only two other states have received a smaller portion of highway funds, compared to the amount they put in the trust fund. In 1980, we got about 88 percent of our money back.

We could use that money. We have 73,000 miles of highways in this state, which is more than any other state, and may be more than any other nation in the world, except the United States. We all know that many of these roads are in bad repair.

In fact, we have 7,746 miles of road in this state in "poor" shape and 32,000 in only "fair" shape. We have 15,197 bridges that need work to bring them up to standards. That's the greatest number of bad bridges in any state in the union.

So we see that even though we have the best system of highways in the world right here in Texas, we could use that $2 billion that we have given Uncle Sam since 1956.

However, there is one catch. The President may put the responsibility for highways back into the hands of the states, but keep the old highway tax formula.

If you are tired of being rich uncle to our poor out-of-state highways, write to us and tell us. We will be sure the President gets your message. Write to Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Williams's expulsion debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the Senate prepares to begin debate Wednesday on whether to expel Sen. Harrison A. Williams Jr. for his conduct in the Abscam case, supporters say it would take "something akin to a miracle" to keep him in the Senate.

Senate sources indicated that Williams' supporters may try to get the matter sent back to the Senate Ethics Committee so that evidence relating to the government's pursuit of the case can be fully examined. They are expected to argue that the same tactics used against Williams could be used against other senators.

Williams, a New Jersey Democrat, has said evidence developed since the ethics committee vote last summer on the activities of the FBI and its operatives, notably Melvin Weinberg, have not given proper attention.

But other Senate sources maintain that Williams' conduct and not that of the government is at issue.

Williams' chief defender, Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, said last week that "the odds are not in favor" of Williams and that if the debate were held then — nine days before it was scheduled to begin — Williams would be expelled.

Earlier, he told a reporter for a Hawaii newspaper that it would take "something akin to a miracle" to defeat the expulsion effort.

The debate has been postponed three times since the ethics committee recommended last summer that Williams be expelled for "ethically repugnant" conduct in connection with his dealings with a phony Arab sheik.

Gardening by Moonsigns

Don't push your luck in spring gardening

By LOIS BOYNTON

The Moon will be increasing: 1 - 9, 25 - 31. The Moon will be decreasing 10 - 24. The Fruitful Signs are: 4 - 5, (Cancer); 13 - 14, (Scorpio); 23 - 24, (Pisces); 31 (Cancer).

The Semi-fruitful Signs are: 1 - 3, (Gemini); 8 - 9, (Virgo); 15 - 17, (Sagittarius); 20 - 21, (Aquarius); 25 - 26, (Aries); 29 - 30, (Gemini); 6 - 7, (Leo).

The warm spring like days in February have caused the elm tree buds to swell and they will soon be blooming.

But don't push your luck too far. We can still have a heavy frost in April, even as late as May.

Before using compost, place in an oven meat bag in the oven at 170 degrees for 45 minutes, this will purify the soil and prevent depeping - off.

In preparing a sprouting medium for tiny seeds, use two parts compost, two parts vermiculite and two parts commercial soil mix (Jiffy - Mix). Sieve over this a thin coat of damp sphogumn moss. Distribute carefully, then sprinkle the seed over the moss. Place a folded newspaper over the seed and gently press the seed in. Now place the seed pan in a container of water until the surface is moist. This will prevent washing and burying the tiny seeds. When the surface is moist, lift the seed pan out of the water and set in a warm place, 65 to 70 degrees. Cover with glass or clear plastic. They should sprout in two to three weeks.

We all want to make the first planting of each crop as soon as it can be done safely. But we need to check with a zone map fist. We are in zone 3, and the map says we may have frost as late as May 10th, so we need to keep this in mind.

Get your garden diary going and keep at it. Make diagrams that show the kinds and positions of the various species and varieties of plants. Be sure to keep records of sowing and planting dates, the length of time before they sprout, dates of transplanting and blooming. I have mentioned this before, but I think it is so very important. Such notes can be of great value and pleasure in future years, building and rewarding at the same time.

To solarize your soil, thoroughly soak the plot with water. This soaking increases the soil's conductivity of heat and is necessary, because moist heat kills organisms at lower temperatures than dry heat. Next cover the plot with clear polyethylene plastic, not black plastic. Bury the edges in a trench dug around the plot. Leave the plastic in place for three to four weeks. Plastic laid during the hot summer months, when the light intensity is greatest, can heat soil to 140 degrees F. High enough to kill pathogens but leave beneficial microorganisms unharmed.

This solarization kills fursaium and certicillium wilt - producing fungi and greatly reduces nematodes and weeds. During this process the pasteurization by the sun will penetrate to a depth of 12 to 18 inches.

Knowing how to safely remove tree limbs can be a fairly simple procedure. Limbs need to be taken off when they are dead diseased, or growing in an unwanted direction. When two limbs grow too closely together on a tree, it is best to eliminate one. Always use a tree-pruning saw when removing limbs. Loppers won't be large enough.

To remove limbs that are two or six inches in diameter. You should make three cuts.

This will guide the fall of the limb and prevent its weight from stripping the tree's bark.

First make and undercut about 6 to 12 inches from the trunk, cutting one - third to one - half of the way through the limb. Make the second cut on the limb's upper side, about an inch beyond the undercut. This cut connects with the first cut, leaving a stub that allows you to hand-guide the limb's fall.

The third cut is to sever the stub from the trunk as smoothly as you can and as close to the trunk as possible.

Once the stub is removed, paint the wound with orange shellac to seal and protect it from insects.

If you have a fresh pineapple, why no grow the top and double your pleasure? Take a sharp knife and cut the foliage off with about one - half inch of the pineapple, and leave it on a sunny windowsill for a week, or so. Then plant it with the bottom two inches in potting soil. Firm it well and set it on a sunny windowsill. It will soon form roots, and the plant will eventually be 1 to 2 feet tall. And perhaps if you cover the plant with a plastic bag when it reaches its full height, and put a couple of ripe apples inside the bag with the pineapple for 2 to 3 weeks, you may encourage it to bloom. And you just might have a little pineapple for yourself.

There is a simple test for soil readiness: if a handful of soil remains in a moist ball after it is squeezed, the soil is still too wet to work. If it crumbles like chocolate cake, it is ready. Working wet soil compacts it and is likely to ruin it for the rest of the season. So it does not pay to work the soil before it is ready.

As soon as it is ready, plant some of the cool - weather crops such as peas, turnips, beets, onions, and others.

March is an important month, but our gardening year has no beginning or end, it is a continuous cycle and all the months are important. March is a month of promise as well as progress. This is the time to plant fruit and nut trees. Get them into the ground before the buds swell. When planting, prune tops to compensate for root damage. Keep centers open.

Start sowing vegetables indoors to set out after the damage of frost is past. Start tomatoes, peppers, broccoli, eggplant, and cabbage and others. A little bottom heat will aid in germination.

Start planning your garden. Did you try some new varieties last year? What varieties were your favorites? Consider rotating crops so that the same vegetable is not planted in the same plot year after year.

Save wood ashes from your fireplace or stove to add to Irish potato plantings. Ashes are rich in potash, or dust cole crops as a deterrent against cabbage butterflies. Potatoes benefit from a thick mulch cover.

You should join a garden club. Enroll your children in a 4 - H club.

Leprosy increases blamed on transient influx along border

NUEVO LAREDO, Mexico (AP) — An increase in leprosy cases along the U.S. border is attributable largely to infected transients coming from other parts of Mexico where the disease is more common, a group of health officials studying the problem was told.

More than 80 members of the Pan American Health Organization, representing both Mexican and U.S. health professionals, met Thursday in Nuevo Laredo to receive information about leprosy and discuss methods of dealing with it.

The two-day meeting ends today.

Although the state of Chihuahua has one of the lowest incidences of leprosy in Mexico, 40 cases of leprosy were reported recently in Juarez, Chihuahua, across the border from El Paso, Texas. That sparked concern about the rapid increase in the disease so close to the U.S. border.

The Mexican states with the highest incidence of leprosy are Guanajuato, Guerrero, Michoacan, Oaxaca, and Nuevo Leon, according to Dr. Enrique Escobedo Valdes of the National Secretariat of Health in Mexico City.

Now you can beat the 80's while building for your future.

Bitter cold caused rise in nation's food prices

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bitter cold that hit farmers from Florida to the Dakotas last month was a major culprit in food prices surging upward, says the Agriculture Department. Not only did the freezing weather hurt tender vegetable and fruit crops in southern growing areas, it hampered the normal marketing of crops and livestock across wide areas of the country.

Partly as a result, food prices overall in the first three months of this year are expected to average about 2 percent higher than they did in the fourth quarter of 1981, a monthly analysis said Thursday.

"This increase is largely due to reduced supplies and higher prices for fresh vegetables and frozen concentrated orange juice, caused by the January freeze in Florida and smaller vegetable acreage nationwide," it said.

"However, the basic situation of large food supplies and weak consumer demand still persists for most of the agricultural sector, which will limit retail price movements for most foods through midyear."

William Leshner, assistant secretary for economics, said food prices this year, as in 1981, will rise mostly because of higher marketing costs for transporting, processing and merchandising food after it leaves the farm.

The department is sticking by its earlier forecast that food prices, overall, will rise about 7 percent over the entire year, compared to a 7.9 percent gain in 1981. That would be the smallest increase in five years.

Leshner's analysis followed a Labor Department report which showed food prices rose 0.7 percent in January.

"The increases in the past month were largely confined to higher vegetable prices combined with rising marketing costs," he said. "Large supplies generally continued to depress farm prices."

Severe cold weather in Florida hit winter production of tomatoes, green peppers, beans, squash and cucumbers, the report said.

Even so, it said: "Damage from the freeze appears to be smaller than occurred during the 1981 freeze, and larger vegetable imports from Mexico this year will offset some of the supply reductions."

"However, retail fresh vegetable prices will likely remain high until late winter and spring when acreage that was replanted following the freeze will be harvested."

Lettuce prices rose sharply again in January, up almost 50 percent, following a boost of more than 30 percent in December.

WHEAT PASTURE BLOAT

Wheat pasture forage with a high percentage of water leads to frothy bloat and grass tetany. Dr. B.A. Stewart, Soil Scientist at the USDA Conservation and Production Research Laboratory at Bushland, Texas, and three other researchers determined this in a three-year study in Texas and Oklahoma.

Frothy bloat and grass tetany usually cause 2 to 3 percent death losses on wheat pasture on the Southern Great Plains. This is bad enough, but sometimes losses jump up to 20 percent. Stewart says most severe losses occur in the spring after a cold winter when the soil is wet and temperatures rise fast. Under these conditions, wheat plants take up a lot of water and nutrients. This increases the level of potassium in the forage to above normal levels, which can cause grass tetany. The percentage of carbohydrates decreases, which in turn increases chances of bloat.

Stewart and his USDA co-workers, Drs. D.L. Grunes, Thea, New York; A.C. Mathers, Bushland, Texas; and F.P. Horn, El Reno, Oklahoma, determined nitrogen (N), potassium (K), calcium (Ca), magnesium (Mg), phosphorus (P), and total nonstructural carbohydrates in wheat pasture forage at Bushland, Texas, and El Reno, Oklahoma, for three winters during the mid-'70s. They found that N, P, K, and water content of forages increased about 2 weeks earlier than growth increased yield of dry matter. This condition was at its worst at El Reno during the spring of 1978. The winter had been so wet and cold that forage samples could not be collected from January 12 to March 14. Then it warmed rapidly, causing ideal growing conditions. The N and K in the forage increased dramatically. The K increased from 2 to 4.5 percent in 2 weeks. Unfortunately, Mg and Ca did not increase rapidly. This increased the ratio of K and Ca and Mg up to 5.0, which is very hazardous to lactating cows. Ratios above 2.2 are considered dangerous, according to Stewart.

The scientists found also that N in forage increased rapidly under these conditions. High nitrogen in forage leads to increased concentration of fatty acids. This causes foam formation in the rumen, which results in bloat.

In looking over all of their data, the scientists noticed a common denominator. When conditions leading to grass tetany or bloat came about, wheat forage contained a high percentage of water. In other words, measuring dry matter in the forage would be a good indicator for the hazard of grass tetany and bloat.

Although studies were not conclusive, Stewart and the other scientists think that wheat forage that has at least 25 percent dry matter is safe. There is some hazard when dry matter ranges from 18 to 25 percent. If dry matter drops below 18 percent, there is a good chance that bloat and grass tetany will be a problem.

The scientists advise people with cattle on wheat pasture to watch for weather conditions leading to rapid growth after a cold spell and take the following precautions. Lactating cows should be put on other pasture, and young calves and feeder cattle should be fed some hay or other dry feed. Feeding cattle molasses salt blocks with an anti-foaming agent will decrease the chances of bloat. These precautions should be continued until wheat growth starts and dry-matter content of the forage increases.

SOIL COMPACTION

Soil compaction can act as an unseen enemy to farmers and reduce crop production. Commonly called a "hardpan," compacted soil can literally "choke off" plant roots so that they're unable to get water or nutrients.

Probably the most evident plant symptom of compacted soil is a shallow root system. Plant roots may be unable to penetrate a severely compacted soil and may grow horizontally, resulting in what some farmers call "crow feet" in such crops as cotton that have a tap root.

Along with stunting plant roots, soil compaction may affect seed germination, seedling emergence and other phases of crop growth and production.

Poor stands, poor plant growth, discolored plant leaves and premature wilting may signal problems due to compacted soil. However, many of these same symptoms can also be due to dry weather, nutrient deficiencies and other factors.

Excessive soil compaction also reduces water penetration and increases runoff and soil erosion. Water standing in a field may signal a soil compaction problem since water infiltration is slow in a hardpan area.

The best way to identify a hardpan is to dig a hole at least three feet deep and look for crop roots in the subsoil, then the next crop should also be able to move to that depth.

A farmer can also use a sharp rod or soil probe to check for hardpans. You should be able to push the rod into the soil at a fairly constant rate until compacted soil is reached. The average person will have trouble pushing the rod through a hardpan.

What causes soil compaction?

Some soils are naturally compact, especially subsoil material. Excessive tillage, which reduces the size of soil granules, and tillage or other field operations when soil is wet are two major causes of soil compaction.

In fact, any machinery operation results in soil compaction, whether it's planting, cultivating, fertilizing or harvesting.

Farmers should limit the use of heavy equipment and the number of tillage operations to those required to keep soil productive. Avoid tillage if it does not improve soil physical conditions, promote water infiltration and aeration, help weed control, incorporate crop residues into the soil, prepare a seedbed, or help wind and water erosion.

Vacuum unit at McKee refinery to be completed in April

AMARILLO — Construction is expected to be completed in April on a new vacuum distillation unit at Diamond Shamrock Corporation's McKee refinery, north of Dumas.

J. E. "Ed" Prater, vice president and general manager of manufacturing for Diamond Shamrock's Oil and Gas Unit, says the new vacuum unit will be an important addition to the refinery.

"Having this new unit in operation will mean the refinery will be able to process more crude oil and produce additional gas oil feedstocks for our fluidized catalytic (FCC) unit," Prater said.

The new 25,000 barrel per day unit will play a key middle role in the processing of crude oil into finished petroleum products at the refinery. The unit will produce gas oil from petroleum residuals coming from initial atmospheric processing of crude oil. This gas oil is then charged through the refinery's FCC unit to produce motor fuel blend stocks and other products.

By increasing the refinery's vacuum capabilities, Diamond Shamrock will be able to reduce the 12,000 to 15,000 barrels per day of gas oil that it is currently having to purchase from outside sources to meet the needs of the FCC unit.

To supply the needs of the new vacuum unit, Prater says additional sources of atmospheric petroleum residuals will be secured by either processing additional crude oil or by purchasing topped crude from other refiners. With the new unit in operation, the refinery's overall crude processing capability will increase from its current rate of 60,000 to 65,000 barrels of crude oil per day to about 70,000 barrels per day.

Building the vacuum unit, like most maintenance and construction projects at the McKee Plants complex, is being done almost entirely by plant construction crews. Although part of the mechanical engineering for the unit was performed by an outside company, Prater says Diamond Shamrock will obtain substantial savings in building costs and operating time by having plant crews doing the work.

Engineering work has already started on plans to increase the capacity of the FCC unit from its original design capacity of 32,500 barrels per day to 45,000 barrels per day.

Amarillo High wins district swim meet

AMARILLO—Paced by Cindy Raymond, Pampa finished second with 64 points in the girls' division of the Class 5A swim meet Friday at the Maverick Club.

Amarillo High piled up 117 points to win the girls' title.

Miss Raymond, a senior, captured both the 200 IM (2:15.97) and the 100 freestyle (57.58) for the Lady Harvesters. Miss Raymond also teamed up with Amy Raymond, Brianna Marsh and Julie Turner to win the 400 freestyle relay in 4:08.06.

Also placing for Pampa were Julie Turner, second, 100 breaststroke (1:18.49); third, 200 IM (2:30.94); Amy Raymond, second, 100 backstroke (1:06.87); Julie Rabel, third, 100 butterfly (1:17.55); third, 200 freestyle (2:27.06); Brianna Marsh, third, 100 freestyle (1:01.50); second, 50 freestyle (27.61).

In the boys' division, Amarillo High collected 118 points to win the title.

Pampa finished third with 53 points. Clay Douglas was the only first-place finisher for Pampa as he zipped to a 2:07.10 clocking in the 200

IM. Douglas also took second in the 500 freestyle in 5:09.77.

Richie Hill placed third in the 100 breaststroke (1:08.58) and fourth in the 100 butterfly (1:04.36) for the Harvesters. Raymond Hill took fifth in both the 100 butterfly (1:04.36) and 200 freestyle (2:13.82). Cody Moore placed second in the 100 freestyle (53.02) and third in the 50 freestyle (23.89).

Shawn White placed second (291.05) in diving and David Fatheree was third (290.80).

Pampa's 400 freestyle and 200 relay teams finished third and fifth respectively.

Stadler takes lead in Doral Golf Open

MIAMI (AP) — Struggling Craig Stadler dropped a critical 40-foot putt to bogey the final hole and salvage a 73 that left him in sole control of the lead Saturday in the third round of the $300,000 Doral-Eastern Open Golf Tournament.

Stadler, who also led the first and second rounds, had to make a remarkable turnaround to retain the top spot at 208. He was eight shots under par on the windswept, 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club.

A single stroke back at 209 were Jerry Pate, Andy Bean and Mike Nicolette. Pate shot a 69 in the gusty winds. Bean matched par 72 and the longshot Nicolette, who said he's "only looking to finish in the top 20," had a 71.

Jack Nicklaus, who once shared the lead after a birdie-birdie start, Scott Hoch and Cal Peete were at 210. Peete shot a 70, Hoch 71 and Nicklaus a 72.

"It was very erratic," Nicklaus said. "I just didn't play well at all. I guess you could say my golf game was on vacation."

Ray Floyd, winner of this event the last two years, had a 75 and was at par 216. Lee Trevino had 75-221.

The chunky Stadler, a two-stroke leader when play started, immediately encountered difficulties, going 4-over par after six holes.

That opened the gates for a flock of challengers, and Bean, Nicklaus, Nicolette and Pate all shared the lead at one time or another. But, one by one, they began dropping back, and Stadler regained his composure.

He got back to even par for the day with a mammoth, 80-90 foot birdie putt on the 17th hole.

Then he faced the pivotal 18th, a water-guarded, 437-yard par-4 that Stadler called "the toughest finishing hole on the tour."

His assessment proved correct. Of the seven men atop the standings, only Peete and Nicolette were able to make par. The other five — Nicklaus, Bean, Pate, Stadler and Hoch — all had bogeys. Pate dumped his third in a bunker. Nicklaus made a remarkable recovery from shallow water, then blew a 5-6 foot par-saving putt. Bean 3-putted. It was a golfing horror show.

Norway leads Nordic Ski Championships

OSLO, NORWAY (AP) — Thomas Wassberg, the bearded Swede, won the 50-kilometer race at the World Nordic Ski Championships Saturday — the classic event among the world's cross country races, along the up-and-down woodland trails at Holmenkollen.

Wassberg was timed in 2 hours, 32 minutes, 9 seconds.

Yuri Burlakov of the Soviet Union was second in 2:32:34.3 and Lars Erik Eriksen of Norway was third in 2:32:49.9, keeping alive Norway's streak of winning a medal in every event in these championships.

America's Tim Caldwell skied one of his finest-ever races to finish 14th. For the American team, competing without its greatest star, Bill Koch, Caldwell's performance was a tonic. He did much better than anyone in the U.S. camp expected.

Caldwell, from Koch's hometown of Putney, Vt., was timed in 2:41:16.3.

"This was one of the toughest races I have ever skied," Caldwell said. "All my hardest races have been over the 50-kilometer course here at Holmenkollen, but the conditions made this one harder than usual."

"I did much better than I expected. I was especially pleased with my performance over the second 25 kilometers."

Caldwell was running 23rd at the 25-kilometer mark, but climbed nine places before the finish.

The race was run in bitterly cold weather. Wind shook snow off the pine trees all along the course, making the track slow.

Koch, who has been staying in Oslo with his wife, Kate, and their two small daughters, won a bronze medal in the 30-kilometer race at the start of the championships. He reported sick with a virus two days ago and had not trained since.

The U.S. team delayed a decision until just before the race, but then pulled Koch out of the lineup.

"It would have been wrong to race him in these conditions," a team spokesman said. "This is one of the toughest races in the world."

Don Simoneau of Livermore Falls, Maine, who substituted for Koch, finished 21st in 2:46:36.0.

Two other Americans, Jim Galanes of Brattleboro, Vt., and Craig Ward of Lake Placid, N.Y., failed to finish the 31-mile-long race.

The championships were set to end Sunday with the 90-meter jumping.

Thus far, Norway has won seven gold medals, Sweden and the Soviet Union two each, and Austria and East Germany one each. The Norwegians need to win Sunday's ski jumping to set an all-time record of eight golds in one world championship.

BLOCKED SHOT. Pampa's Coyle Winborn and Phil Jeffrey (23) team up to block a shot attempt by Tascosa's James Dawn (24) in the District 3-5A playoff game Friday night in Amarillo's Civic Center Coliseum. Pampa won easily, 71-55, to advance to bi-district competition

Pampa buries Tascosa in second half to win title

By L.D. STRATE
Pampa News Sports Writer

AMARILLO—It was supposed to be a more dramatic down-to-the-wire-type game, but Pampa did away with all the suspense early in the second half enroute to a convincing 71-55 District 3-5A playoff win over Tascosa before 4,200 fans Friday night in the spacious Civic Center Coliseum.

It was Pampa's third district championship in a row, all under coach Garland Nichols.

Tascosa had forced the playoff by winning the second-half title and defeating Pampa, 67-65, in the process Pampa had won the first half crown and had whipped Tascosa, 79-72.

The first half of the rubber match showed promises of being a seesaw struggle throughout the night as the score was deadlocked a dozen times. But Pampa's Mike Nelson, who was the game's top scorer with 22 points, converted a pair of foul shots and a 12-foot jumper, to give the Harvesters a four-point lead, 34-30, at halftime.

Tascosa closed within three, 31, on Pat Farrell's foul shot early in the third quarter, but the Rebels would not enclose.

Senior guard Jimmy

Barker, noted more for his defensive prowess than his scoring ability, tallied six of Pampa's next seven points, and the Harvesters quickly had a 10 point lead (41-31) with five minutes to go in the third quarter.

Pampa outscored Tascosa, 15-5, in the third quarter and the Harvesters had a commanding 14-point advantage, 49-35, going into the final eight minutes.

Pampa's defensive strategy going into the game was to flood Tascosa's left side since game films had revealed that the Rebels took about 70 percent of their shots from there. The strategy must have worked since Tascosa hit only 38.7 percent (24-62) from the floor.

Tascosa's high scoring guard Reggie Lee hit only four of 12 shots the first half and four of 13 the second half. He finished with 18 points. Tascosa's other potent scorer, James Dawn, wound up with 16 points after spending some time on the bench due to foul trouble.

Coyle Winborn and Terry Faggins joined Nelson in double-figure scoring with 12 and 11 points respectively. Winborn hit six of seven shots while Nelson downed nine of 14 attempts. Faggins collected eight rebounds to lead Pampa in that category.

Barker and Charles Nelson added eight points apiece while Terry Ferguson had six. Phil Jeffrey and Marty Cross, two points apiece.

With Faggins, Winborn and Charles Nelson scoring mainly on inside shots, the Harvesters hit 59.2 percent (29-49) from the floor.

Pampa hit 72.2 percent (13-18) from the foul line, including a perfect 10 of 10 the fourth quarter. Ferguson, a junior reserve guard, hit six of six from the line the final quarter.

Ninth-ranked Pampa, now 26-4, tackles District 4-5A champion Plainview at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the WTSU fieldhouse in Canyon for the bi-district crown. The Harvesters will be out for revenge after a 63-61 loss to Plainview during the regular season.

Tickets go on sale at 9 a.m. Monday in the Pampa High athletic office. Tickets are $3 for adults and $1 for students. Tickets are $2 at the gate for students.

There are 800 tickets available. Pampa fans are urged to sit on the south side of the gym.

Mobeetie downs Lefors, 54-45

MOBEETIE—Mobeetie defeated Lefors, 54-45, Friday night to force another game to determine the District 3-1A champions.

Danny Hilburn paced Mobeetie with 16 points while Wade Hathaway added 14.

Cody Allison had 14 for Lefors while Richie Kidwell had 12.

Ashford sets record in 60 yard dash at indoor meet

NEW YORK (AP) — Evelyn Ashford has run the fastest time by a woman in the indoor 60-yard dash, but is it 6:54 seconds or 6:48?

The swift Ashford, "rising to the occasion" in a big meet, recorded the 6.54 Friday night in the USA-Mobil Indoor Track and Field Championships at Madison Square Garden.

A week earlier at San Diego, she ran 6.48.

Both times eclipsed the previous world indoor best of 6.60, set this season by Jeanette Bolden.

The faster clocking, however, still is being disputed because of an alleged irregular start. Now that she has the record, however, Ashford said the time would not matter.

Ashford, named the outstanding women's track and field athlete in the world for 1981, explained that at San Diego, "several girls beat the gun, but the films of the race show that I didn't, so that could be the record. It's still being studied and a decision will be made on it shortly."

She added, after beating Bolden for the first time this year, "Oh well, if I don't get that one, I have this one."

Bolden also went under her previous best, finishing second in 6.59. Chandra Cheeseborough, voted the outstanding performer of the national championships, wound up third in 6.62.

Cheeseborough, of Tennessee State University, also broke her world indoor best in the 220-yard dash with a 23.25 clocking in the trials, then won the final in 23.46 and led the Tigerbelles to runaway victories in the women's 880-yard and sprint medley relays.

After the meet, Ashford revealed that she would skip the entire outdoor season, where she was so successful last year.

The performances by Ashford and Cheeseborough highlighted a meet that was dominated by the women.

Unheralded Joan Hansen, a senior at the University of Arizona, won the women's two-mile — her first attempt at that distance — in a world indoor best time of 9:37.03.

NBA roundup

Sizzing Pacers continue to dominate San Antonio

By The Associated Press
Jack McKinney figures the quickest way to a victory is at a full gallop.
The Indiana coach put the theory into practice Friday night and the Pacers ran off with a 108-100 victory over San Antonio, their sixth victory in eight games and their fifth in a row over the Spurs.
In Friday night's other National Basketball Association games it was Los Angeles 116, Philadelphia 114 in two overtimes; Chicago 116, Atlanta 110 in one overtime; Boston 122, San Diego 110; New Jersey 110, Portland 106; Washington 100, Kansas City 98; Houston 111, Golden State 95; Seattle 98, Utah 97, and Phoenix 131, Denver 122.

"We've changed our offensive theory and our offensive ideas. Our entire offense is based on the running game. It picks us up.

We're not slowing down in any area," McKinney said after guard Don Buse scored a season-high 23 points, handed out 10 assists and limited George Gervin, the NBA's scoring leader, to 24 points, nine below the Iceman's average.
Even Stan Albeck, the Spurs' coach, had to hand it to Buse. "His direction of their offense was the key," Albeck said. "Certainly his shooting had a direct effect on the overall game." Buse hit 11 of 14 shots from the field, including one three-pointer.

Johnny Davis added 21 points for the Pacers. Lakers 116, 76ers 114
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored five of his season-high 41 points in the second overtime period as the Lakers ran their winning streak to six in a row and snapped the 76ers' streak at 10 victories.
Andrew Toney, who led

Philadelphia with 27 points, put the 76ers up 99-97 on a jumper with 10 seconds to go. But Abdul-Jabbar sent the game into overtime with a pair of free throws. He hit on 17 of 27 shots from the field. He also had 19 rebounds and five blocked shots.
"He carried us tonight," said Lakers Coach Pat Riley. "The guy's got just about everything he's always had."

Bulls 116, Hawks 110
Reggie Theus of Chicago sent his game into overtime by sinking a rebound at the buzzer to tie it 100-100. And in the fifth period, Artis Gilmore's hook shot with 25 seconds remaining broke a 110-110 tie, then Ricky Sobers added four points to snap the Hawks' five-game winning streak.
Theus had 23 points for the Bulls. Eddie Johnson had 27 for Atlanta.

GOING TO LEFORS. Ricky Palmer, offensive line coach for the Pampa Harvesters the past three years, has accepted the head football coaches' job at Lefors High. Palmer replaces Jim Allen, whose coaching contract was not renewed. Lefors, which didn't have a football program for three years, logged a 6-2 record last season against mostly junior varsity teams. Lefors enters Class A competition next season.

Cougars edge Aggies to gain bye

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Cougars, accustomed to last-second heroics, created some excitement for their fans and won a bye into the semifinals of the Southwest Conference tournament all in one afternoon Saturday when they nipped the Texas Aggies 96-93.
Although the Cougars are assured of the bye, they held out a chance to share the SWC title with Arkansas, which met Texas Tech Saturday night.
The Cougars, currently the hottest team in the SWC with eight straight victories, blew a 14-point lead midway in the second half and had to have two clutch free throws in the final two seconds by Akeem Olajuwon to clinch at least second place in the SWC standings.
"They never gave up," said Houston forward Michael Young, who scored 27 points. "They came back and played good defense and rebounded well. There were times when there wasn't really anybody on me. I was pretty open."

Olajuwon escaped the goat's role with his free throws after missing a pair of dunk shots.
"Akeem is going to have to practice those dunks with his eyes open," UH Coach Guy Lewis said. "We'll be working on that Monday believe me."
Young hit 11 of his 15 shots from the field and Larry Micheaux was good for seven of eight shots from the field and went four for four at the free throw line.

Bradley wins in overtime to take MoValley crown

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Bradley used clutch free throws in overtime to edge eighth-ranked Tulsa 82-79 Saturday and win its second Missouri Valley Conference basketball championship in three years.
The victory boosted the Braves' season record to 20-9 with 13-3 in the conference. The Golden Hurricane bowed out at 21-5 and 12-4.
Bradley connected on nine of 11 free throws in overtime, including two by Mitchell Anderson with two seconds left to clinch the victory.

Kerry Cook, who attempted only one free throw all season, hit two with eight seconds left in overtime to put Bradley ahead 80-77.
Leading Bradley's scoring was Vince Winters with 18 points. Steve Harris topped Tulsa with 22.
Bradley took a 37-31 halftime lead as Winters got 10 points.
Tulsa stormed to a 59-55 lead with 8:16 left. But Bradley rallied and David Thirball's 29-foot jump shot in the final 39 seconds knotted the score 67-67 and sent the game into overtime.

CFL coach takes Cougar job

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Jim Burrow, a six-year veteran of the Canadian Football League, is hanging up his cleats to become offensive coordinator for the Washington State University football team.
He replaces Golden "Pat" Ruel, who said earlier this week he was moving to Texas A&M to take a $15,000-a-year raise and work for former WSU Coach Jackie Sherrill.
Burrow, 28, is a Nebraska graduate who has helped the Cougars during the spring for the past five seasons.
After being drafted in the eighth round by Green Bay of the National Football League, he spent the 1976 season with the Packers before switching to the CFL.
He played on Montreal's 1977, '78 and '79 Grey Cup teams, was with Montreal and Calgary in 1980 and spent last year with Ottawa. In 1979 and '80, he was an All-Eastern Conference selection at strong safety.

Steve Morton, a Cougar assistant since 1975 who has been coaching tight ends and helping Ruel, takes charge of WSU's offensive line this spring.
"I have known Jim all of my life," WSU Coach Jim Walden said Friday. "I coached him in high school and at Nebraska."
"In my mind, he always played big and acted big. He will do an excellent job."
Burrow "understands the secondary, so that will help him as a tight-end coach," he added.
"I couldn't be working for a better person than Coach Walden and for a better university than Washington State. I am very proud to be a part of the program," Burrow said.

Tar Heels roll by Duke

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — No. 2 North Carolina endured a 45-minute power outage and, behind James Worthy's 20 points, turned the lights out on Duke 84-66 in Atlantic Coast Conference basketball Saturday.
The victory enabled the Tar Heels to tie Virginia for the conference championship at 12-2 after No. 1 Virginia was upset by Maryland 47-46.
The lights went out on both clubs after 1:34 when a power outage struck the south portion of the University of North Carolina campus.
Worthy scored 16 of his points as the 24-2 Tar Heels rushed to a 42-17 halftime lead.

Matt Doherty, who was four-for-four from the floor, and senior Chris Brust each added eight first-half points.
The Tar Heels led by as much as 40-12 after Worthy slammed a dunk over Duke's Jay Bryan and added the free throw.
Worthy was supported by Sam Perkins with 12 points, Doherty and Michael Jordan with 11 each and Brust and Jimmy Black, who contributed 10 each.
Duke, which closed out its regular season at 10-16, 4-10 in ACC play, was led by Vince Taylor's 22 points and Chip Engelland with 20.

Lady Sandies win

Liz Jones poured in 27 points to lead Amarillo High to a 57-44 win over Lewisville Friday in the opening round of the Class 5A Region I Girls' Tournament in Midland.
Bev Boyer led the losers with 11 points.

Virginia falls in overtime

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Adrian Branch scored the last of his 29 points on a jumper from the foul line with one second left in overtime as Maryland defeated top-ranked Virginia 47-46 Saturday.
The loss ended a 15-game winning streak for the Cavaliers, 27-2 overall and 12-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.
The Terps, who had lost in overtime to Virginia earlier this season, forced the extra period Saturday when Herman Veal sank a field goal as time ran out in regulation.
Jeff Adkins sank the front end of a one-and-one foul situation to give Maryland a 45-44 lead with 4:33 remaining in overtime.

Ralph Sampson — Virginia's 7-foot-4 center, who was held to one field goal — then sank two free throws with 4:10 left to put the Cavaliers back on top 46-45.
Maryland held the ball the rest of the way before the winning shot by Branch. The Cavaliers argued that they had called time out, but after officials conferred, the game was declared over.
Branch scored 18 of Maryland's 24 points after the Terps had taken a 23-21 halftime lead. Craig Robinson led Virginia with 11 points, while Sampson and Jeff Jones had eight apiece.

West Virginia win streak comes to an end at hands of Rutgers

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — Kevin Black scored a team-high 18 points Saturday to lead Rutgers to a 74-64 upset victory over sixth-ranked West Virginia, ending the Mountaineers' 23-game winning streak, the longest in the nation.
Rutgers improved its overall record to 18-8 and 9-5 in the Eastern Eight, while the Mountaineers dropped to 24-2 and 13-1.

Joining Black in double figures for the Knights were Clarence Tillman with 15 points, Brian Ellerbe with 13, and Chris Nieberlein with 10. Reserve Darius Griffin came off the bench to add nine.
With 4:57 left in the game, the Mountaineers closed within 52-50 on a jumper by Greg Jones. But Rutgers took over, scoring 10 of the next 12 points to grab a 62-52 lead with 2:18 remaining, and then running off 10 of the next 16 points.
Both teams came out hot in the second half as West Virginia tried to reduce a 26-20 Rutgers' halftime lead. Nieberlein gave Rutgers an 8-point lead on a 3-point play, 34-26, with 16:55 left. Jones, who scored 15 points, and Phil Collins, who scored 12, answered for the Mountaineers, making the score 34-30 with 16:19 left.

LSU jolts Kentucky

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Derrick Taylor, Steffond Johnson and Howard Carter combined for 72 points and Louisiana State ran off 21 straight points in the first half to jolt No. 7 Kentucky 94-78 Saturday.
The loss knocked the Wildcats out of the co-lead in the Southeastern Conference. Kentucky went into the game tied with Tennessee for the SEC lead and needed a victory to gain at least a share of the title.
Kentucky led 23-20 with 8:43 to play in the first half when LSU went on its scoring binge. Taylor scored seven, Taylor six, and Johnson a pair of three-point plays in the run, as LSU boosted its lead to 41-23 with 2:45 left in the half.

LSU went ahead by 35 in the first eight minutes of the second half, and Kentucky never came closer than the final margin.
Carter finished with 29, Taylor 24, and Johnson a career-high 19 plus 10 rebounds in a reserve role. In ending a five-game losing streak, LSU built its record to 11-7 in the SEC and 14-12 overall.
Derrick Hord led Kentucky with 24, Chuck Verderber chipped in with 14, and Jim Master added 11. Kentucky fell to 13-5 in the SEC and 20-6 overall.

Chiles denies trade rumors

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas Rangers owner Eddie Chiles denies that team officials are trying to work a trade for Pittsburgh outfielder Dave Parker.
Chiles, the Rangers' majority stockholder, said a trade to send Rangers outfielders Al Oliver and John Grubb and pitcher Danny Darwin to the Pirates for Parker and first baseman Jason Thompson no longer is being considered.
"The Parker thing is totally dead," he said. "It will not come up again. I can promise you that. Neither will any trade involving Danny Darwin or Al Oliver."
Texas vice president Eddie Robinson had told reporters at the Rangers' training camp in Pompano Beach, Fla. that "Parker is just the guy we need."
And Ranger manager Don Zimmer chimed in. "I'd love to have Parker."
Chiles slammed on the brakes, however, when he learned Parker's annual salary, through various incentive clauses, could exceed $1 million.
"I don't think we could go that high," said Chiles. "It would be too inconsistent with our wage and salary structure to get a million-dollar player."

Valenzuela still unsigned

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

The Los Angeles Dodgers and their star pitcher Fernando Valenzuela are 3,000 miles apart geographically but, philosophically, the separation is 300 times as wide.

The chubby Mexican who dominated 1981 baseball headlines is alone by the telephone in Los Angeles, waiting for the Dodgers to recognize him for what he is — a rare jewel instead of just another young pitcher coming off a fine rookie season.

At the other end of the continent, in Vero Beach, Fla., Al Campanis, Dodger vice president in charge of player personnel, is unpacking his suitcase for the start of spring training with his mind on the nugget he left behind.

It could be a long wait. "We're very far apart," said Antonio DeMarco, Valenzuela's manager-adviser, by telephone from the West Coast. "not just in the realm of money but in philosophy."

"Fernando never talks of money. He is not hungry. He is not a selfish man. He just wants to be appreciated for what he is, what he has done, what he is certain he can do."

The Dodgers insist on adhering to tradition, to precedent, to rules. They don't take into account that Fernando is a unique human being who in 1½ years achieved more than some ballplayers achieve in a lifetime." From Vero Beach, Campanis acknowledged that there was a huge gap in the two stances — the star performer and his employer.

"We are offering him 2½ times as much as any second year player has received in the entire history of the game," the Dodger executive insisted. "We appreciate what Fernando did for us last year but we feel his demands are unrealistic."

Neither DeMarco nor Campanis was willing to indulge in the "numbers game" but unofficial estimates are that Fernando is asking a cool $1 million while the Dodgers are offering in the neighborhood of $350,000 to $400,000 — not exactly a slum neighborhood.

Valenzuela played last season for $40,000. No other baseball personality — not Pete Rose, not Reggie Jackson, not Mike Schmidt — last season created the same electric excitement or loaded so many ballparks.

Most baseball traditionalists have lined up with the Dodgers, saying it is outlandish for a raw kid to demand such a windfall on such a short performance record. Realists contend Valenzuela should be measured on merit rather than a time or age scale. We agree with the latter.

Bench eyes third-base job

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Johnny Bench wanted some tips on how to tackle his new position, so he went to two experts on playing third base — Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt and the New York Yankees' Graig Nettles.

What Bench learned was unexpected. "Strangely, neither Schmidt nor Nettles seems to do anything alike," Bench said. "Graig plays deep and close to the line. Mike is in much closer and shaded toward the shortstop side."

"What I have to decide is what is best for me. Mike picks up bunts and short hops with his bare hand and is a master of the off-balance throw. That might be difficult for me."

"I asked Graig about fielding bunts and he said, 'The Yankee pitchers are paid enough to take care of their share of them.' I liked that."

The 34-year-old Bench is still listed as a catcher in the Reds' 1982 media guide and he reported along with the rest of the club's catchers and pitchers last week. But he's got his eye on the third-base job left vacant when Ray Knight was traded to Houston for center fielder Cesar Cedeno.

"If I had to catch, I doubt if I'd be here," said Bench. "The aches and pains and the worry about serious injury were getting too much for me to handle. I don't know how much this will prolong my career. I'm not worried about that now."

Instead, after an off-season of personal misfortune, Bench is concerned about mastering the fine points of fielding his new position.

Bench, who had his house burn down and his 1975 World Series ring stolen in the off-season, said he arrived at training camp in a good frame of mind.

"I'm more excited about myself and the team than I've been in a long time," he said.

He said there was a lot of work ahead in making the transition from catcher to third baseman. But he thinks his expertise behind the plate is an indication that he can handle the new position.

"I've always been very quick moving around from the catching position, and I have enough of that left to do the job at third base," Bench said. "But the fine points are there to be mastered."

Bench said he talked to Schmidt and Nettles in connection with his "Baseball Bunch" television show. He also spoke with former Reds Coach Alex Grammas, who advised him to play up fairly close at third base.

Pampa girls take sixth in track meet

Pampa placed sixth with 37 points in the Pampa Girls' Top O' Texas Track and Field Invitational Saturday at Randy Matson Track.

"It was real good meet," Pampa coach Frank Belcher said. "There were a lot of quality people in it."

Defending champion Tascosa won the 13-team meet while Amarillo High took second.

"We competed a lot better than we did last year," Belcher said. "Even in the events we didn't place in, the girls bettered their times. We beat two of our district opponents, Palo Duro and Caprock, so I was pretty pleased with our overall results."

Pampa's Jessica Marcum tossed the shot 34-3 to claim the first-place medal in that event. Miss Marcum also took fourth in the discus with a 98-2 toss.

Freshman Kristi Hughes, who will be out at least two weeks with a hamstring pull, took second in the high jump (5-0) and fifth in the triple jump (33-2).

Leana Young was sixth (31-2) in the shot put while Rebekkah Guenther took fourth (33-8) in the triple jump.

Pampa's 440 relay team (Tina Greenway, Tjua Buntun, Joan Burns and Leslie Albus) ran a 51.5 to place fourth.

In the junior varsity division, Pampa's Whitney Kidwell won the shot with a 33-3 heave. Melissa Reed threw the discus 75-0 to take fifth.

Rockets for sale?

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Maloof says his family often has discussed selling the National Basketball Association franchise because it is such a big investment of capital.

"As a good businessman, you always have to look at proposals," said Maloof, a member of the Rockets executive committee. "Anything is for sale at a price. I can't say we wouldn't look at an offer."

Gavin Maloof, Mike Maloof's brother, is president of the Rockets. Their late father, George J. Maloof, purchased the Rockets in 1979 but Gavin took charge of the franchise when the elder Maloof died Nov. 29, 1980.

Gavin Maloof and chief financial adviser Bud Reynolds have denied they are considering selling the club.

Mike Maloof, however, said: "We talk about it a lot because we have such a big investment in the club."

The family will be asked to make an even larger investment after this season, when the contract of center Moses Malone expires.

Under the NBA's right of first refusal system, Malone could become the highest paid player in pro sports. Some league observers think Malone could earn $2 per year.

The elder Maloof, founder of an extensive hotel, trucking and beer franchise fortune in Albuquerque, N.M., purchased the Rockets in 1979 for $9 million.

Tennis teams compete at San Angelo

SAN ANGELO—Pampa High tennis teams failed to place in the San Angelo Invitational Friday and Saturday.

Pampa made some headway in girls' B doubles with Colene Holfacket and Sheryl Starnes reaching the semi-finals before being eliminated. The pair drew a first-round bye due to their No. 1 seeding, and defeated Stacey Larue and Patricia Richardson of Lakeview, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 in the quarterfinals. They fell to O'Keefe and Burks of San Antonio Madison, 6-2, 6-2 in the semi-finals.

In boys' A singles, both Billy Price and Mike Spence reached the quarterfinals before bowing out. Price fell to No. 2 seeded Rom Challakella, 6-2, 6-4 and Spence lost to Taylor Fife, 6-3, 6-0.

"I was really disappointed in our results," Pampa tennis coach Stacey Foster said. "We didn't do as good as I thought we would. We had some get battered and bruised after that ski weekend and I think that was one of our problems. We've been playing good, but we were moving kind of slow this weekend."

There were 20 teams entered in the tournament, which was delayed two hours because of snow.

Pampa enters the Hereford team tournament this Friday and Saturday.

El Baba claims Southwest Handicap

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — El Baba won his seventh straight race Saturday when the 3-year-old Arkansas Derby hopeful defeated Moro by three lengths to win the $50,000 Southwest Handicap at Oaklawn Park.

Owned by Mrs. Joe W. Brown and ridden by Don Brumfield, El Baba paid $2.60, $2.40 and $2.20 as the favorite and ran the muddy six furlongs in 1:12.3-5.

Loblolly Stables' Moro, under Jack Kaenel, returned $2.80 and $2.60. Johnny B. Fast, with Alan Patterson aboard, paid $3.20.

The other 3-year-olds in order of finish were Mr. Ward, Royal Dan, Hale Herk and Luckluster. The field was narrowed to seven when Lost Creek, owned by Loblolly Stables, Tempest Star and Lucky Point scratched.

El Baba left the starting gate on the outside in good position. He led briefly but let Johnny B. Fast take over the lead midway through the back stretch. Brumfield kept El Baba off the pace until making his rally on the turn. As they headed into the lane, El Baba surged forward, easily outgained Johnny B. Fast and was handridden to the victory.

El Baba, trained by Dewey Smith and a leading candidate for the Arkansas Derby, stretched his career earnings to more than $200,000. He is undefeated. The narrowest victory the colt has posted was a head decision over Talk Of The Times in the Sugar Bowl Handicap at New Orleans on Dec. 31.

Jockey Pat Day had three winners Saturday when he rode Consarned in the first, Mac-Lar in the third and J.C.'s Man in the eighth.

The daily double coupling Consarned in the first and Burn Pacific, ridden by John Lively in the second, Nos. 2 and 2, paid $81. The crowd of 33,804 wagered $3.8 million.

Fiddleatune, owned by Everett Lowrance, was assigned 115 pounds and heads a field of 16 older fillies and mares in Monday's $20,000 allowance feature.

Armstrong, Nolan hired by Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Two former National Football League head coaches have signed with Dallas as assistants to Cowboy head coach Tom Landry, the team announced today.

Neill Armstrong, head coach of the Chicago Bears the past four years, and Dick Nolan, former head coach at San Francisco and New Orleans, joined Landry's staff.

Armstrong, 55, will replace assistant coach Ermal Allen and will be in charge of what Dallas calls quality control, a job that includes evaluating and rating the other 25 teams in the NFL as well as charting the Cowboys' own tendencies.

Nolan, 49, defensive coordinator at Houston last season, will be the receiver coach and will work with offensive coach John Mackovic in coordinating the passing game.

Working on making aloe vera a household staple

By SALLY CARPENTER
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Clinton H. Howard has made a career of turning sluggish businesses into million-dollar ventures. And for his next feat, he wants to transform aloe vera's image from sturdy houseplant into that of household staple.

For centuries, the succulent stalks have been used as a home remedy for minor cuts and burns, primarily in parts of the world where the tropical plant grows naturally, such as Hawaii and the American Southwest.

Aloe vera's folkloric roots were damaged, however, when the medical community examined the juice just beneath the plant's skin and pronounced it a laxative.

"Today, we throw that part away," said Howard, president of Ava Care, Inc. It is the water-colored pulp inside the leaf that forms the base of the company's products and that "has a lot of very valuable properties," he said.

"Howard's company claims the 'most complete line of aloe vera products in the world' — ranging from skin cream and toothpaste to household cleansers and health drinks.

—About 37,000 distributors in 13 countries sell some 200 products, including vitamins and cosmetics. Aloe vera products comprise about 35 percent of total sales volume, Howard said.

—In 1971, when Howard purchased the company — then called Ava Cosmetics Inc. — sales were less than $10,000 a month and the product line was about a tenth of its current size.

—In fiscal 1981, revenues were $17.5 million, a 36 percent jump over the previous year.

—Growth is projected at 50 percent this year, with about 2,000 distributors coming on board monthly, Howard said.

—We have restructured it from a cosmetics company to a broad-based skin care, cosmetics, health care-type product," he said.

Howard, who estimates the worldwide aloe vera market at about $100 million a year, sees the figure rising to $1 billion in the next few years.

And he intends to be at the forefront of the market through expanded distribution and through the work of the two scientists who run Ava Care's research and development laboratory.

The company has patented one process — to chemically stabilize the aloe vera — and Howard expects more patents to be forthcoming.

"We are really investing heavily in research," he said. "As our research develops products, we will tend to set up a subsidiary to market those products."

Howard also sees an advantage his location in the Dallas area, which he calls "the aloe vera capital of the world."

The primary reason is that some of the world's best aloe vera is grown in Texas' Rio Grande Valley. Howard said the South Texas soil conditions foster better crops than in other places where the plant is grown, such as Florida, Mexico and the western United States.

Although several processors are located in the Dallas area, Ava Care does some processing itself and is building a new plant for that purpose, Howard said.

Armed with a chemistry degree from Rice University and a master's degree from the University of Texas Southwest Medical School, Howard made his first investment with $600 at age 29.

The company, American Biomedical Corp., was the first medical laboratory chain to go public with its stock and subsequently was sold to Revlon for $13 million.

"It was easy to see that that industry was going to boom and change from the mom-and-pop laboratories to the big chains," said Howard.

He repeated his success in the radiopharmaceutical field, in which radioactive drugs are used to treat disease.

"I don't start companies just with the idea of selling them. I start companies and if the circumstances present themselves because of a change in the industry or a change in circumstances, it's better to merge it in with some other company," Howard said.

He launched Ava Care after being introduced to the direct-sales business as court-appointed president of a bankrupt company that he returned to profitability.

"My entire graduate work and background was in the health care field. So what appealed to me was the potential of aloe vera as a natural substance that obviously had healing properties that no one had really developed," Howard said.

Aloe vera, Howard says, can moisturize skin through its enzymes, provide nourishment as a health drink and relieve pain as a topical agent for cuts, burns and scrapes.

Until he can convince the medical community of aloe vera's worthiness, Howard must continue to battle the plant's tarnished image.

Dear Abby

Woman's pregnant past bears lively record

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, a woman in Jonesboro, Ill., wrote: "Dear Abby: I gave birth to three babies in 25 months and one week. Dates of birth are July 19, 1956; June 21, 1957; and Aug. 26, 1958. I was wondering if I'd broken a record. — Busy Mom"

Your response was: "Dear Mom: Perhaps a mother who has delivered twins or triplets may have topped you, but for individual births, I'd say you were out in front again."

Well, Abby, I have that lady beat. Is there a prize? I gave birth to three babies in 23 months and one week. Dates of birth are: Aug. 23, 1959; June 25, 1960; and Aug. 15, 1961. My real name is Nina Beckman, but you can sign me ... EXHAUSTED IN PLATTSMOUTH, NEB.

DEAR EXHAUSTED: Unless someone else writes in to top your record, you win. There's no prize, but if I were to offer one, it would be a two-week vacation at your local Holiday Inn. Alone!

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet you never heard a problem like this before. I've been married for 26 years. I am 45 and my husband is 55. We have three grown children. I was a model and still do some modeling in addition to holding down a part-time secretarial job.

A few years ago, my husband started to go bald, so he used some of my dark-brown eye makeup to cover the bald spot. The balding he got, the more makeup he used to cover it up. It became more and more obvious until people began to look at him and snicker. It's terribly embarrassing to me, but he thinks it looks better than a bald spot.

I hate to go anywhere with him because he looks so foolish. Last year he started to lose his teeth! Now he has only one tooth left in his mouth! Abby, can you imagine a man going around like that in this day and age? He has insurance where he works, but he won't go to a dentist. With no teeth, he looks like an old man.

Our son announced last week that he is getting married later this summer and he asked his father to fix himself up for the wedding. (Quit painting his head and get some teeth.) My husband flatly refused, saying, "I'm happy. Why should I?" I love my husband, but I can't go on this way. Please give me some suggestions.

NOWHERE TO TURN

DEAR NOWHERE: Let your husband know that you love him and want to be proud of him, and if he wants to hide his baldness, there are some wonderful hairpieces available. Also tell him that going toothless is bad for his general health and makes him look old and unattractive. Beg, plead, bargain, do whatever you can to convince him. If he turns a deaf ear, please get him to a doctor for a complete physical checkup.

DEAR ABBY: "Sleeping with Sidney" wrote to ask if there was anything wrong with a grown woman sleeping with a baby blanket she had had since day one.

That letter reminded me of my own situation. I'm nearly 30, have been married for 10 years, and I still sleep with my tattered little baby blanket.

A few years ago I asked a therapist if there was anything wrong with this habit, and she asked me a few simple questions: Is it hurting anyone? Is it harming you? Do you enjoy it?

The conclusion: If it isn't hurting anyone, isn't harming you and you enjoy it, it's OK.

NUFF SAID IN BREMERTON, WASH.

DEAR NUFF: And well said. Those three questions could be applied to any activity about which one has doubts. And one more should be added: Is it legal?

Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Dr. Lamb

Even sensible diet may cause side effects

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have not had a menstrual period for four months. I am 5 feet 7 and have lost 20 pounds in five months on a well-balanced diet and exercise program. I now weigh just under 120 pounds and have stopped dieting. Is there any connection between weight or fat loss and interruption of the menstrual periods? Please explain.

DEAR READER — Congratulations. Your story should be encouraging to all of those who want to follow a sensible program. You evidently lost about a pound of fat a week, which is far better than those dramatic massive weight losses (which are often water loss). Following a balanced diet you run less risk of damaging your liver from fatty infiltration of the liver itself, serious chemical imbalances and changes we attribute to starvation or near starvation.

Even a well-balanced diet that restricts calories can lead to undesirable effects. A good study at the University of Minnesota years ago showed that healthy young men put on a balanced diet of 1,600 calories a day with adequate protein had such problems as loss of hair, loss of interest in sex, poor healing, feeling cold and personality changes. Despite the advantages of being slim there are dangers along the way.

Yes, loss of fat may cause a woman to lose her menstrual periods. In a woman, fat tissue has an endocrine function. Some of the forms of estrogen are chemically converted to more active forms of estrogen in body fat tissue. This is offered as one explanation for why heavy women have a greater risk of uterine cancer than thin women. The effects of being thin on menstruation is seen in lean women athletes or even thin ballet dancers. The cycle normalizes when normal body fat is regained. But remember you can be irregular for many reasons and if you do not resume normal function soon you should see your doctor.

Meanwhile I am sending you The Health Letter number 16-2, Dangerous Dieting, which outlines the problems with most fad diets today. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 24-year-old male. For the past eight years I have been a female impersonator. I do shows all across the United States and next year will take on a role in a TV program. My manager wants me to start having breast treatments to develop breasts.

I don't know where to start. I really have thought about this. What hormone is used for this? How often is the hormone taken? What are the effects on muscle tone and facial hair? And how would I go about seeing a doctor for this procedure? I need some information to help me decide on this. Your answer may affect my future and profession.

DEAR READER — Show biz is show biz but the game of life is real. You are playing around with your real life. The only medicines that might help you develop breasts are female hormones. They feminize you in the process. They decrease your normal male sex drive and will decrease all of your secondary sexual characteristics such as prominent facial hair.

I would suggest you see a psychiatrist to help you evaluate what you want to do with your life. It is your life, not your manager's, and you should make the decisions not him.

Cancer drive slated to begin

Bob Phillips, special gifts chairman, is kicking off the American Cancer Society's 1982 educational and fund raising Cancer Crusade in Pampa.

The special gifts drive is slated to begin on March 2 and end on March 15, Phillips said.

Regarding the use of the money, he said, "Nearly four-fifths of the total national budget (78 percent) goes into programs of cancer research, public and professional education, patient services and patient rehabilitation. About a third of the total goes into research alone."

Phillips stressed the fact that "60 percent of all funds raised by the Society remain in the state for local use in programs of cancer control. When you give to the Crusade fund you can feel confident that your gifts will be well used."

Beware of fraudulent land schemes

BY DONNA BRAUCHI
County Extension Agent

"Let the buyer beware!"

Yes — especially in today's fast paced world where fraudulent practices, deceptions and misrepresentation are seemingly characteristic of the American market system.

This time of year brings with it one of the largest frauds in Texas — that dealing with land sales. These land deals are characterized by offers of free gas money, expensive prizes and a real estate investment that's hard to beat. It is usually available for no more than a drive to a new resort, lake or exclusive residential development.

Many Texans have made this trip seeking a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow and finding only aggressive sales people followed by months of filing complaints.

Formal complaints filed with the Texas Attorney General's office against developers and land sales corporations include: refusing to issue federally required property reports designed to reveal debts on the property or other liabilities, false promises of future site improvements, abusive or high pressure sales tactics, deceptive advertising and switching lots after the contract had been signed.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST LAND SALE FRAUD
Land or real estate shoppers should:

(1) Beware of the developer who comes calling through mass mailings and telephone solicitations. If the property is so valuable, why are they trying so hard to sell it by mail or telephone solicitation to probably everyone in the neighborhood?

(2) Never buy land sight unseen.

(3) Do not sign anything until you or your lawyer understand all the documents.

(4) Learn the land's "real market value", not just its price. One way to learn the market value is by asking a reputable real estate agent in the area for prices of similar property. A better method is to have the land independently appraised.

(5) Get all prices of recreational facilities or services, such as roads, water and sewer in writing.

(6) Federal law requires developers to supply buyers with a property disclosure report before they sign a sales agreement. However, the report is worthless to buyers who fail to read it prior to signing, or those who merely flip through the document with the salesman.

(7) If the salesman refuses to let you take the report and sales agreement home for review, "Don't sign, just leave".

Learn to enjoy what's leftover

DEAR LOUISE: Last night I opened the fridge and spilled little bits of stuff all over the floor. Glass dishes broke, scraps of food scattered all over and we spent over an hour cleaning up.

"My wife bawled me out real loud. Said I ought to have looked when I opened the door. Said I knew she had to save stuff when we didn't eat it all because we'd save a lot of money if we ate the same thing two or three times."

"Trouble is, though, she hardly ever gets out the leftovers for us to finish eating. She just lets the spoonfuls of stuff sit there in the fridge till they spoil, and then she throws them away."

"Why do women keep teaspoonsful of stuff they never eat? S. F."

DEAR S. F.: We wives save leftovers for the reason your wife gave you — because we believe they'll make another meal and thus save money. You say your wife "hardly ever" uses up the little bits — of, which means she does it sometimes. Be glad she is helping the food budget that much.

Lots of times there isn't time to go shopping during a busy day. So when the husband and wife come home from jobs, visiting, out of town trips, etc., it is an immense relief to find enough leftovers in the refrigerator to be combined into dinner. If that hasn't happened to you, it may some day. If it does, you'll be glad you didn't have to run out and buy groceries at ten o'clock at night and have your evening meal just before midnight.

All kinds of leftovers have values if you look for them. Couples who think they no longer love each other and contemplate separation are often counseled to stop and remember the good times they once had together. In many cases there is enough leftover joy to cause them to hesitate and wonder whether a new life with a new mate would ever bring as much joy as the first one with its leftover memories.

If illness befalls a couple or finances fail or other tragedy strikes, they can find leftover enjoyment of their past life if they look for it. In winter we remember the warm days of summer and it makes the snow easier to endure.

Next time you feel irritated by the leftovers in the fridge, remember how much you liked the first meal — and stop fretting. Also, open the refrigerator door with caution to avoid scrambled egg on your face.

DEAR LOUISE: I hate substitutes! And I get them from my husband all the time. He seems to think he's doing me favors when he brings home anything similar to what I said I wanted. I usually take the gifts back and exchange them. That makes him mad because he says it means I don't love him. Well, sometimes I think maybe I don't, at least for the moment.

"He likes to go grocery shopping but he never gets the brands I tell him to. And the presents he gets me! He heard me say I wanted light blue satin house shoes to match my robe, so he ran out and bought me some dark blue woolly ones. I've still got them and absolutely hate them. He said they were all he found."

"But the worst thing was when he brought home a new coat for my birthday. I'd mentioned that I was going to buy one, so he beat me to it and acted like he thought I'd be pleased. I wasn't. I'd planned to get a red coat with a gold belt. He brought me a black coat with no belt at all. It's hanging in the closet and I don't expect to wear it at all. But if I go out and buy the kind of coat I want, it will hurt his feelings, and he'll call me ungrateful."

"He says I should appreciate what he gets for me because it means he loves me. And it bothers him that I tell him to get his own gifts from me, so they'll be what he wants. He says I should buy his presents and he'll like whatever I get."

"What would you do with such a husband? C. N."

DEAR C. N.: I'd love him for loving me. I'd take the time and trouble to buy gifts for him. If he bought me presents, I'd accept them lovingly and use them for his sake. But the next time I wanted something special, I'd keep still about it at home and do my own shopping.

Write DEAR LOUISE, Box 616, Pampa, Texas 79065.

Peeking at Pampa

Seems as if the whole town was shocked to learn that Bob Phillips, our Superintendent of Schools, is resigning as of mid - January, 1983, after 30 years in educational work and the last six years in Pampa. Of course he'll head our school system for another year from now.

Heard that Helen and Charles Dimmler had a delightful surprise not too long ago. She is a sister of Fred Brooks and visited here several times before the Dimmlers moved to Pampa from New York. Both Helen and Charles are dedicated church workers, and, while in the east, they became friends of a minister and his wife, Wesley and Mary Allen. They had not heard from the Allens since leaving New York — nor did the Allens know the whereabouts of the Dimmlers.

Recently Helen and Charles attended a one - day seminar at a Pampa church, having no idea who the speaker would be. When they walked into the meeting, there were their old friends, the Allens. The visit continued into dessert at the Dimmler's house. Meeting old friends again is always a joy.

Lots of more lovely parties the last two weeks. Rex Perrin made fine music for dancing for the monthly shrimp peel at a night spot a week or so ago. He's a real whiz on that horn.

Dancers included John and Edith Rankin, among the finest in Pampa. Have heard many people talk about the Rankins' excellent performance in the days of big square dance clubs here, as well as the ballroom performances. Such smooth dancers, so perfectly matched to each other's steps. And it's just wonderful to see them both in good health again, looking and acting the way they used to.

Always charming are the Rex McKays. They're so well - dressed, so friendly. And she has the prettiest hairdos, always exactly right, as if she just came from the beauty shop. Suppose she sleeps sitting up?

Just heard that First Methodist Church is getting a very special new pipe organ, the gift of Joe Gordon in honor of his late, lovely wife, Anne Lee. By the time this is printed, the organ may have been dedicated. Understand organist Tracy Cary and Choir Director, Chuck Weatherford went to New York to help select it — and the choir is completely excited. Such a splendid gift to give!

Remember when the Presbyterian Church here was given their magnificent organ, some years ago. The church was filled for the dedication and a famous organist came to Pampa to present the opening concert, as I remember. Was most impressive.

Nice to see Homer D. and Mary Johnson out eating and dancing. Such personable people — and so able to stay the same size year after year. Most of us gain a little here and there, but not the Johnsons.

Another couple who never seems to gain an ounce are the Trustys, Jim and Valta. Would like to know their secret — exercise, dieting, whatever. They're excellent dancers. Maybe that helps to keep them thin.

Continuing to mention slender figures, what about Marilyn Craddock? Surely weighs no more than she did as a teenager. Heard one man calling her "the teenaged grandmother".

Understand our spell of warm weather brought out the golfers, joggers and gardeners in droves. Also kids and dogs. Won't it be great when summer gets here? Love that sunshine!

If you want to see a big smile appear, just ask Irl Smith about his latest awards. He and Irene have just returned from the Panhandle Professional Photographers Convention and Irl walked away with the trophy for "Best Print of the Exhibit". This print also won him a first place in the "Portrait Entries" plus winning a second place with another entry. Pampa is always well represented by Irl and Irene.

If your weekly grocery budget didn't quite stretch this week, even after couponing, just reconsider your blessings. You could be in Sheila Dena A. Fassi's position and have to survive on $75,000 for three weeks.

If you have never attended a Chamber of Commerce breakfast at 6:45 in the morning, you have missed a treat. Even at this early hour Pampa people are bright, witty and friendly. Some of those beaming were Georgia Mack, Dr. Louis Hayden, Tommy Bowers, Claude Cone and many others. The breakfast was hosted by First National Bank and many of their long time employees. One in particular, who stands out, is 38 year employee, Eunice McMillen. Floyd Watson always shows enthusiasm when he introduces his personnel.

LIFESTYLES

Erma Bombeck's At Wit's End

For a total of 26 days out of each year, I am one year older than my husband.

Did you hear that, world? For you and for my husband who treats me like a Greek ruin, let me repeat it. Until March 19, I am one year older than my husband!

I don't know why he makes such a big deal out of it. Fourteen out of every 100 wives in this country married "younger men." Yet during those 26 days, he displays a mean streak in him that is almost frightening.

We'll be standing around at a party and someone will say, "Does anyone know the verse to 'Stardust'?" Then, this stranger for whom I have borne three children and trimmed the hair over his ears when he's between haircuts will publically turn on me and say, "That was before my time, but maybe Erma knows." You'd think in 26 days he'd have heard someone humming it.

During that brief period of time before his birthday, he doesn't let a bit of trivia get by him. Who was Lincoln with at the time he was assassinated? Ask Erma. Was Melanie's baby in "Gone with the Wind" a boy or a girl?

Ask Erma. What was Bill Shakespeare Really like? Ask Erma.

I told him the other night, "I'm sick of your taking cheap shots at my age. Men don't get flak for marrying women younger than they are."

"That's different, he said. 'They're supposed to be. That's how our culture is set up.'"

"You are saying there's nothing wrong with your friend, Frank, who at 51 is marrying a girl young enough to be his granddaughter?"

"She's not that young," he said. "She has training wheels on her brain. How can he relate to a wife who classifies bras as 'antiques'?"

Don't ask me why society has divined that men must be older and taller than their wives.

Since men are slower to develop than women, I figured I did him a big favor taking him off the shelf and raising him until he caught up.

It's only during the period from Feb. 21 - March 19 that I realize my limitations. What can you do in 26 days?

New book club formed

BOOK CLUB

A Pampa Book Club has been organized by Judy Marcum under the sponsorship of United Methodist Women. Monthly meetings will be held every third Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The next meeting is scheduled for March 16, at the home of Mrs. Wallace Birkes, 2356 Aspen.

The spring reading list includes Margaret Truman's "Murder in the White House," March 16; Irving Stone's "The Origin," April 20; and "Covenant" by James Michener, May 18. The group meets to discuss the assigned book and to share any other books they are reading. Guests are welcome.

Whenever feet and shoes get together, some odor may occur from time to time, but it doesn't have to knock your socks off! These tips may help.

• There are 250,000 sweat glands in a pair of feet, pouring out half a pint of moisture each day. The moisture provides breeding ground for bacteria. Wetness and bacterial growth can cause foot odor and can lead to fungal infections such as athlete's foot, say Scholl foot care experts.

• Waterproof Boots help keep gold air and wetness away from feet. But they lock foot perspiration inside. To help lessen the buildup of dampness and odor, try porous, washable insoles inside boots; wear light, absorbent cotton socks, and slip out of the boots as soon as you come in from the cold.

New dental service offers 'house calls'

CHICAGO (AP) — How can you visit the dentist if your wheelchair doesn't fit through the office door? How can you clean your teeth if you don't know what a toothbrush is? How do you get a cavity filled if you can't get out of bed? These are just a few of the obstacles that prevent the institutionalized, homebound and handicapped from receiving the dental care they need. Dr. Robert H. Griffiths, president of the American Dental Association, points out. Many of these people, he adds, need care very badly because their teeth have often been neglected for years.

A few years ago, the dental profession decided to do something about this problem. Griffiths reports. Working at the local, state and national levels, dentistry has devised a variety of programs aimed at improving the dental health of handicapped persons and those confined to homes or institutions.

Several of these programs are run by the National Foundation of Dentistry for the Handicapped, an organization supported by the ADA and the Kellogg Foundation. More than 33,000 handicapped people in 34 communities across the country now benefit from the foundation's Campaign of Concern.

In each participating community, a dental hygienist operating under the supervision of a coordinating dentist visits facilities that care for the handicapped. The hygienist assesses the dental health of each individual, cleans teeth, and refers those who need additional treatment to dentists or clinics that have agreed to accept handicapped patients.

An important part of the program is teaching and motivating the handicapped to care for their own teeth.

"At a time when physicians who make house calls are a remembrance of the past, increasing numbers of dentists are treating patients in their homes," said Griffiths. The Foundation of Dentistry for the Handicapped and a growing number of dental societies now sponsor mobile dental vans, which are manned by volunteer local dentists.

These vans are equipped with everything from chairs to X-ray machines that a dentist needs to treat patients. The vans travel to nursing homes, long-term-care facilities and patients' homes. Dentists can either work on patients inside the van or bring portable equipment from the van into the home.

Surveys have shown that many dentists would be willing to treat handicapped patients if they felt more confident of their expertise in this area, Griffiths notes. Accordingly, many dental schools have added courses in the treatment of the handicapped.

Continuing education courses on this topic for practicing dentists are now widely available and the ADA has recently begun publishing a journal entitled Special Care in Dentistry, he says.

Rich as Ronald does silly humor

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"Most of the jokes on the album are dumb. It's silly humor," says Rich Little, talking about "The First Family Rides Again" on Boardwalk Records.

"When President Reagan says we're going to develop new sources of energy, we're building a pipeline to the sun. And a senator says you'd be burned up before you got halfway there. And Reagan says, not necessarily, we're going to build it at night, the real President Reagan has to like it. He knows it's so silly. Nobody can really take that seriously."

"It's not a class A humor but it doesn't offend; it's too silly. It's my kind of humor."

He hasn't heard from President Reagan, Little says. "Hopefully, he is listening to the album, not using it as a dartboard."

The next day, Rich's press representative calls to say that the president answered a letter from the record's producer, Earle Doud, asking him to comment on specific scenes. She quotes, "I could not comment on individual cuts because Nancy and I howled at the entire album. I'm certain that they dubbed in my voice instead of using Rich Little's."

Doud produced "The First Family," the best-selling record using Vaughn Meader's voice as President Kennedy. He also did "Welcome to the LBJ Ranch," which is said to have sold well for a comedy album.

Little didn't hear either LP "Hail to the Teeth" or "The Washington Hillbillies," done about President Carter.

Little says, "Earle Doud wanted to do one with me on Carter. It's a shame we never did. I don't know the reason why we didn't do it."

"The Reagan album came about because there were so many things to talk about. You could touch on the movies, his Western image, his family. But we had to wait a year. You know more about them after a year. You learn about things that happen to him, the china, the jelly beans, the expressions he uses."

In the scene called "The Big Game," Rich Little does the voices of President Reagan and Ford. Roger Peltz does President Nixon and Richard Paul does President Carter.

We remark that we were surprised that Little didn't do Nixon. "I was surprised, too," Little says. "I wish I had but we had a good cast of people on the album. We did it in front of an audience. If I got up and did every voice, the rest of the cast wouldn't have anything to do."

"I'm known for Nixon but I haven't got a monopoly. I thought it sounded pretty good. Also, if I'd done it, I think Roger and Roger would have ended up with nothing to do. And these guys are good. We took their air traffic controller bit away. One was doing the voice of Humphrey Bogart and one was doing George C. Scott. It didn't come off too well so we read it later, differently, in a studio."

Vaughn Meader is heard, briefly, on this album. Little says, "He was brought in to do Teddy Kennedy. Somebody had a wonderful idea for a sketch on 'Family Feud' between the Reagans and the Kennedys. They wrote it and then Richard Dawson decided he didn't want to do it. They needed him to make that piece work, so they didn't do it."

"It's too bad Vaughn had almost nothing to do. He is a very clever man."

"I used to do Clark Gable on the radio and people would say I looked like Gable. They heard it and pictured it and it was perfect."

"I enjoyed radio more than TV. You made your own pictures."

Little, born in Ottawa and still a Canadian citizen, moved to the United States in 1965. He, his wife and daughter live in Malibu, Calif.

The hardest voice for him to do on the album, Little says, was Reagan's. "Most of the others I've been doing for years. I haven't been doing him as long. The morning we taped I listened to a press conference for an hour and put it in my head, to refresh myself."

Has he ever tried to sound like somebody and not been able to? Many times, he says. "I never got Bob Hope too good, or Spencer Tracy or Ed McMahon. Dick Cavett I've never done in public, though I've tried to get him. I make him sound like Bugs Bunny."

And who tells Little when he has it just right? Himself, he says. "That's one of the keys to doing impressions, hearing it when you're doing it. Most people can't hear themselves until they hear it back on a tape recorder. A person who does impressions has to have the ability to hear it as you do it."

"When I'm on stage performing, I'm my own worst critic. I tell myself I'm missing this, not concentrating enough, the tone is bad, the PA system is terrible, this is not working."

He considers Jimmy Stewart his most successful, soundwise.

"If you look like the person you're doing, it'll help the sound with the audience. And sometimes the sound is so good people will swear you look like the person you're doing."

The Big Bomb Theft

THE GAZA INTERCEPT. By E. Hunt. Stein & Day, 302 Pages. $12.95.

What would happen if an Arab terrorist managed to steal a U.S. neutron bomb and used it to destroy one of Israel's chief cities? Author E. Howard Hunt thinks it would probably touch off World War III.

In "The Gaza Intercept," Hossein Bakhari, a megalomaniac who dreams of becoming leader of the Arab World, pulls off such a theft in a series of audacious if unlikely moves.

First Bakhari gets hold of a secret American document which spells out where the United States keeps its neutron bombs, controversial weapons which can kill populations by radiation but leave buildings undamaged.

With this information, Bakhari and his fanatical followers proceed to shoot their way into a NATO base in Belgium and make off with two neutron warheads.

The theft stuns official Washington and prompts a top-level meeting at the White House.

The president is told that a terrorist with Bakhari's track record probably intends to use the bomb to wipe out Tel Aviv, or Jerusalem. This, predicts the defense secretary, would probably impel Israel to use its atom bombs to level Arab capitals in reprisal.

As a result, the defense chief says, the Soviet Union would probably destroy Israel and the United States would be drawn into the maelstrom.

The plot centers around Bakhari and Jay Black, a New York advertising executive of Jewish descent who teams up with Mossad, the Israeli secret service, when he hears what is going on.

Black promptly falls in love with a beautiful Middle Eastern girl and confides in her, not knowing that she is an Arab terrorist. Despite this and his inexperience in the cloak-and-dagger world, Black turns in a spectacular performance. He manages among other things, to learn secret information that Mossad veterans had been unable to ferret out.

But, despite frequent use of coincidence and situations that strain the reader's credulity, Hunt turns in a highly suspenseful story that holds the interest.

Insuring household valuables

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

For years, homeowners were warned that most of their houses were underinsured because inflation had increased values so substantially.

The problem of inadequate coverage on structures became less and less severe as more and more insurance policies carried provisions that automatically kept coverage in line with rising prices.

Generally, the coverage of the contents of a house is equal to half the amount of the total insurance. So, as the total coverage goes up, the coverage on the contents also goes up. What has happened, though, is that, in many cases, the increase is not enough to cover the actual cash value of better-than-average furniture, carpets, drapes, etc. Policy holders can protect themselves from partial recovery for the loss of such items by getting an endorsement to the homeowners policy that provides for "replacement value on contents." With that endorsement, claims are paid on a "new for old" basis. Without the endorsement, claims are settled on the basis of cash value that takes into account depreciation.

It is the high quality, difficult-to-replace items — such as jewelry, paintings, sculptures and antiques — that present particular problems, since homeowner policies limit their coverage to an amount far below the actual cost of replacement. On silverware, for example, most states limit coverage to an amount very much below what it would cost to buy a new set.

We asked Charles Rinehart, an executive for the Fireman's Fund insurance companies, about this.

"People who have this type of property," he said, "should ask their insurance agents to look into personal property floaters. Floaters are written for specific articles, with the coverage limits selected by the policy holders. Once the value has been set, the amount should be reviewed annually to make certain it is keeping up with the times."

Regardless of the type of insurance involved, people should complete a detailed inventory of their property. Most insurance agents have property inventory forms, available free of charge to their clients. The lack of complete property inventories is so acute that, with policies for high-value houses, some insurance companies will take photos of the property and present it to the policy holder in a bound volume.

(Home do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

by bernice bede osol

You should increase your knowledge and hone your skills in your chosen field in the year ahead. Achievement lies in this direction, so don't change course to where you'd have to begin anew.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't say anything about others today you wouldn't want said about yourself. If you can't be complimentary, it's better to remain silent. Predictions of what's in store for you in each season following your birth date and where your luck and opportunities lie are in your Astro-Graph, Mail $1 for each to "Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio-City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you may be tempted to hold back for fear that others may not treat you as kindly as you would treat them. Set the example. They'll follow.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) In situations calling for teamwork today, give associates ample room to maneuver and direct your collective actions. You'll function best as the backup.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your possibilities for achieving what you set out to do today are very good. Though you may make some mistakes, Lady Luck will help smooth them out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Friends are likely to have more faith in you today than you will have in yourself. When the score's tallied you'll see they're right.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Changing conditions tend to work to your advantage today. However, in ways that you think you might be lucky, you may not be. You will be in areas you may have discounted.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Seek the counsel of wiser heads today if plans you've recently conceived aren't working out properly. Their corrections will put you on the right track.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions relating to your material security could suddenly take a turn for the better today. Someone interested in your well-being may engineer the upswing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In dealing on a one-to-one basis today, you may go in thinking you are the giver and others are the takers. It's possible the opposite is true.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're pretty good at starting tasks today, but finishing them may be another story. Fortunately, you'll have others take up where you left off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 12) There's a possibility you could unintentionally do something today which friends might find offensive, yet you'll be forgiven because they'll know you didn't mean it.

LIVING PROOF. Lew Hunter on movie 'Desperate Lives'

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The spark for "Desperate Lives" came when writer Lew Hunter and producer Terry Keegan decided to make a movie showing how drug addiction had affected their sons.
It's not an autobiographical film, said Hunter, "but it's to say that millions of youngsters are on drugs, and we have a problem."
Hunter, who also wrote "Fallen Angel," an examination of child pornography, said, "This is a story I didn't have to research. Both Terry and I lived the story. Through our children, through my high school Sunday School class, through my coaching youngsters on various sports teams, and generally through working with loving teen-agers."
"It's only autobiographical to the extent that we use some of our experiences," he said. "The time the boy's head falls into the mashed potatoes — that happened to Terry's son. The automobile accident involved my son. The others were incidents we had heard or read about.

"I think what makes it different is that most things you see about drugs are about somebody else's family," Hunter said. "It couldn't happen to us. What I'm saying is that we're all in trouble, parents and children."
Hunter, a husky man with hair so blond it's almost white, said, "One reason we didn't want it autobiographical, beyond personal reasons, is that we didn't want people to say, 'That's their kids.' We wanted to make it universal. Our children became a springboard for a more general story."
"Desperate Lives," on CBS Wednesday night, is filled with the horror stories familiar to many parents. Doug McKeon and Helen Hunt star as a brother and sister who fall victim to drug abuse. Tom Atkins and Diane Ladd play their parents. Diana Scarwid is the young high school counselor through whom the story is told.
"We want to tell America we really have a problem," Hunter said. "Most people are not really aware of it. But it's so immense we can only support our children. Only they can turn it around."

John Jakes hops to hard cover

By David Handler
NEW YORK (NEA) — John Jakes is being called America's best-read writer, America's master storyteller, a publishing phenomenon. Hard to argue with. He has, after all, sold 30 million books since 1974. In 1976, Jakes became the first writer in history to have three books on the best-seller list in a single year.
All of them paperback originals. All of them under the umbrella of the "Kent Family Chronicles." Jakes penned eight Kent novels starting with "The Bastard." Each has sold over 3 million copies. And now, with that astonishing success under his belt, Jakes has finally published his very first hard-cover novel, "North and South."
His publisher is according him royal treatment — a 200,000-copy first printing, a suite at the fabled Algonquin Hotel. Jakes, a robust, unpretentious, 49-year-old Midwesterner, is America's newest and hottest literary star.
"I'm grateful that this has happened," says Jakes. "I'm pleased to find an audience. That to me is the most important thing about writing — having your work reach people, having them respond to you. That hadn't happened before."

novels, children's books, westerns, six historicals under the name "Jay Scotland" and a bunch of mysteries. He wrote many of them on assignment, including the fabled Kent series, which a book packager brought to him in 1974.
No longer. "My main concern now," says Jakes, "is whether the $2.95 reader will make the jump and follow me to a higher price."
"North and South" is a big fat page-turner about two rich American families in the years before the Civil War. One, the Mains, own a South Carolina rice plantation. The other, the Hazards, are Pennsylvania iron tycoons. A Main son and a Hazard son meet as cadets at West Point. The lives of the two families are then intertwined. This is the first of three volumes Jakes expects to write on the families.
"Ultimately," says Jakes, "it's the story of the black and white question. Racial assimilation is the oldest test of our democracy, and the most important one. It goes back to 1619 when the first slaves landed and it's still with us."
Like his Kent saga, Jakes describes "North and South" as "history, painlessly presented." Jakes thinks of himself as first and foremost a storyteller — a pretty good one. But he is also aware that his may be the only account of U.S. history that some of his readers will ever get. He feels a responsibility to be accurate.

"I do all sorts of research," he says. "I go out of my way. I read the good secondary sources, then follow that with primary sources like diaries and old newspapers. For 'North and South' I spent a week at West Point going through their library. They have a journal there that was kept by an 1848 graduate. He described his cadet days to the smallest detail. That sort of thing is very useful."
Jakes says he was as astonished as anyone by the runaway success of the Kent books. "At the time that I began them people were pleased I took a positive view of this country and what it stands for. This was right after Vietnam and Watergate. People were hungry to be reminded of some of the good things we've done. And I think people still like to read good stories."
Jakes was born in Chicago and has a master's degree in literature from Ohio State. He used to work in a Dayton, Ohio, advertising agency during the day and bang out those paperbacks in the evening. "It would take me three to four weeks to write one," he recalls.

Frank Drebin a straight-arrow cop

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's nothing funny about law enforcement — except when detective Frank Drebin is behind the badge.
Drebin's investigations and his single-minded dedication to duty leave a wake of mayhem that Fearless Fosdick would envy.
Leslie Nielsen stars as Drebin on ABC's "Police Squad," which brings the deadpan humor of "Airplane" to television. Drebin is a straight-arrow cop whose shots always seem to ricochet.
One detective is so tall his head is always cut off at the top of the screen. The lab technician explains science to kids a la Mr. Wizard, and makes ballistics tests by shooting into tapes of old Barbara Walters interviews. Drebin's snitch, Johnny the shoeshine boy, is a fount of erudite knowledge. Each week's guest star is murdered before the opening credits finish. Some of the humor is on-target satire, some of it's just plain cornball, but all of it's unexpected and bizarre — and funny.

ABC begins the first of six "Police Squad" episodes on Thursday, March 4.
Jerry Zucker, Jim Abrahams and David Zucker, the trio behind "Airplane," are the creators and executive producers.
The new show replaces "Mork and Mindy" while ABC decides the fate of that comedy series. If "Police Squad" is a hit, it could become a permanent replacement for "Mork and Mindy," which has fallen onto hard times after a brilliant first year in 1978.

The white-haired, handsome Nielsen, the son of a Royal Canadian Mounted policeman, has played many a stalwart cop in his long career, but he's no stranger to comedy. He was the doctor in "Airplane," and on "M-A-S-H" he was a colonel with such a high casualty rate that the doctors conspired to keep him in the hospital to save lives.
"The thing that turns me off is when people try deliberately to be funny," says Nielsen. "I won't laugh. An actor can be cute or the director can point the camera to show where the punch line is."
"Airplane" never tried to say anything was funny. They just ran everything out like a gigantic buffet. They never said this is funny. You were left to decide for yourself.

Chapin writing musical about bank robber

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Chapin, all 6-foot-5 of him, is writing a musical about little Willie Sutton, the late, prolific bank robber.
He has a new album coming out, "In the City of Mercy."
He's musical director of off-Broadway's "Cotton Patch Gospel," a swing, bluegrass and country-music update of the New Testament that sets the story of Christ in modern-day Georgia.
He recently taped an NBC special about "Cotton Patch" the network is offering its stations today, Feb. 28. He's getting set to plunge back into concert and club work. Quite a lot of activity.
But it has new meaning for him now.
For years, the lanky singer-composer lived contentedly in the shadow of his older brother, pop star Harry Chapin, who wrote 16 songs for "Cotton Patch," the elder Chapin's second musical since 1975. Broadway and "The Night That Made America Famous."

Then the man whose hits began with "Taxi" and include "Cat's in the Cradle" and "W.O.L.D." was killed at 38, in a fiery car crash on Long Island.
Tom, 36, suddenly had to rethink his life, his work, step up his pace to fill, in his own way, the void left by his brother's death.
"It brought home to me how fragile life really is," says Chapin, who after Harry's death immediately pitched in to help complete "Cotton Patch," then still in its tryout stages.
It opened here last November and still is in business. And now he's working with the show's director and co-author, Russell Trezy, on his first musical, the tale of bank-robber Sutton, telling it through nine women in Sutton's life.

He hopes to finish it by the end of summer, then decide where to try it out. In addition to that and promoting his new album, he's also forming a new band.
"It's been a hectic season for me," says Chapin. But he also plans to do some benefit concerts to continue his late brother's well-publicized campaign to eliminate world hunger.
"End world hunger — yeah, that sounds ridiculous," he muses. "But a hundred years ago, so did the notion of ending slavery."
"Harry," Tom Chapin says, "left an incredible legacy of music and activism. And there's no way I could or would want to fill his shoes. Maybe my brother James said it best at the memorial service."
"He said, 'Yes, everybody's been saying, 'Carry on with Harry's work,' and that's great. But the last thing he'd want us to do is try to fill his shoes."

Does movie 'The Seduction' promote guns?

By Dick Kleiner
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (NEA) — Almost all of the cast and production executives of the new film "The Seduction" were here for the premiere. It turned out to be an interesting film — but not for the reasons the people who made the film intended.
"The Seduction" is obviously designed to lure TV viewers out of their homes and into the theaters, because the cast is almost entirely TV-spawned — Morgan Fairchild of "Flamingo Road" and Andrew Stevens of "Code Red" and Vince Edwards of "Ben Casey" and points west.

Only Michael Sarrazin is not strictly a TV name.
It is a suspense film — beautiful young blonde at the mercy of maniac — but the film also turns out to have a message, which the producers insist was more-or-less accidental. "The Seduction" turns out to be a film that seems to promote the use of guns.
The beautiful young blonde and her boyfriend, after the maniac annoys her with increasing frequency, go to the police. They explain the problem and the police officer (Edwards) listens and then says there is nothing he can do, because the man has broken no laws. "What can we do?" they ask.
"Get a gun," Edwards, the film's authority figure, says. David Schmoeller, who wrote and directed the movie, insists that the movie is not pro-gun propaganda.
"I'll be very disappointed," he says, "if the National Rifle Association takes any comfort from the film."
He says there is a big difference between what a person believes and what a character in a film believes. "I've never had a gun in my life," he says, "and I don't think I ever would. No, I wouldn't have a gun in my house. But I cannot impose my attitudes on the attitudes of the characters I create. It's two entirely different things."

Schmoeller says that "The Seduction" is based on a true story of a Southern California woman who was harassed by a man, and what happened to her. In the real story, Schmoeller says, the girl went to the police, as Morgan Fairchild does in the film, to ask what she could do. And, in reality, the police advised her differently.
"They said, 'Have him killed,'" Schmoeller says. Irwin Yablans, co-producer with Bruce Cohn Curtis, says that he was burglarized and the investigating policeman did suggest to him that he get a gun.
"I've never in my life had a gun," Yablans says. "But I'm seriously thinking about it. Sure, it's dangerous, but the alternative is just as dangerous."
Andrew Stevens says he believes in gun control, although "it is not a crusade with me."
"I think," he says, "that the bigger issue is that police protection is not offered to persons in the public eye — stars and others in the public eye — until something has actually

Dudley Moore happy in America

By Dick Kleiner
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Dudley Moore says that his mad, bad, sad days are behind him. But every once in a while something happens to set him off and the old Dudley Moore — the terror of the West End — returns.
His eyes were flashing as he sat in his motor home in downtown Los Angeles. He was making a movie, "Six Weeks," in which he co-stars with Mary Tyler Moore (apparently, the producers felt they should implement the old proverb, the Moore the merrier) and he was still angry.
"There's a little anger left," he said. "I got rid of most of it in the letter."
He said he had just dashed off "a nasty letter" to a film critic in London, immediately after having read that lout's review of Moore's film "Arthur," which had recently opened in London.
"The English critics don't like 'Arthur' as much as the American critics did," Moore said, "and that's their privilege. But it was what this one man wrote that got me angry. I can't remember his exact words, but it was enough that I had to write, which is something I've never done before."
He did remember one thing the critic had written — a complaint about the bad words John Gielgud used, which prompted Moore to say, "They should only hear the way Gielgud talks off-camera!"

him, having fun means drinking. But he could stop any time he wanted to.
"I am basically a happy man these days," he says. "I have always been happy when I performed, but there were years when I was not happy as a person."

ELIZABETH TAYLOR at London news conference

Burton not invited to Liz's birthday party

LONDON (AP) — With a trail of husbands and headlines behind her, actress Elizabeth Taylor celebrated her 50th birthday Saturday, surrounded by friends, flowers and celebrities — but no ex-husbands.

Richard Burton, groom at the fifth and sixth of her seven marriages, flew into London from Italy on Saturday hours before a star-studded birthday was being held at a London nightclub. Amid speculation the couple might try a third reunion.

But the British actor's name was conspicuously absent from the 120-member guest list for Miss Taylor — back in the capital where she was born. She is to star in the West End production of her Broadway hit, "The Little Foxes."

Burton flew in to appear in a Sunday production of Dylan Thomas' "Under Milk Wood" to raise funds for a memorial plaque to the Welsh poet in Westminster Abbey's Poets' Corner. He went straight to London's Dorchester Hotel.

Miss Taylor's two daughters, Liza Todd and Maria Burton, were among the guests at the party, thrown by "Little Foxes" producer Zev Bufman — the actress' frequent recent escort. She announced recently that her seventh marriage, to Sen. John Warner, R-Va., was over.

Warner's daughters, Mary and Virginia, were, however, attending the party.

Chancellor in running for NBC News chief

NEW YORK (AP) — John Chancellor, the "Nightly News" anchorman, and Reuben Frank, who ran the division from 1968 to 1973, apparently are among the candidates to succeed William J. Small, who abruptly quit as president of NBC News.

At least one highly placed source said Friday that Small, who took the job in September 1979 after a long career at CBS News, was forced to resign. Small, in a statement, cited "differences in management style" as the reason behind the unexpected announcement.

He refused to elaborate on the decision.

Coincidentally, a former colleague, William Leonard, retires March 1 as president of CBS News. Van Gordon Sauter, a former president of CBS Sports, succeeds Leonard.

NBC said a successor to Small would be named next week.

Sources at NBC and others in the broadcasting field, all of whom asked not to be named, listed Chancellor, Frank, Richard Wald, another former NBC News president now an executive at ABC News, and Robert Wussler, a former president of CBS now with Cable News Network, as possible replacements for Small.

The announcement of Small's resignation apparently caught people at NBC and in the industry by surprise. One source attributed the resignation, at least in part, to friction between Small and NBC President Robert Mulholland.

NAMES IN THE NEWS

NEW YORK (AP) — A star-studded crowd turned out for the show as stage, screen and television actor Ben Gazzara married German model Elke Kriewert in a civil ceremony.

The bride was dressed in a floor-length gown, trimmed in hand-made champagne-colored lace. She wore white flowers in her hair during the double-ring ceremony performed Friday by Justice Alfred M. Ascione.

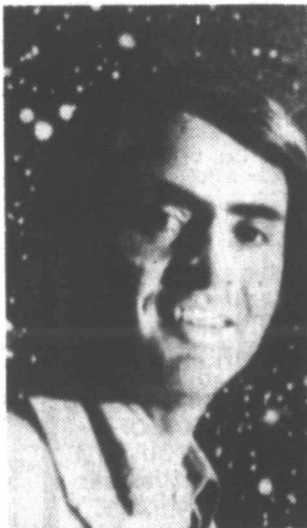

Actors John Cassavetes and Peter Falk served as best men for Gazzara, 51. Among the 100 guests at ceremony in the mid-Manhattan hotel where Gazzara lives were actors Anthony Quinn and Michael York, author Gay Talese, choreographer Bob Fosse and director Robert Altman.

Both the bride and the groom have been married before.

The Duesseldorf model, who is in her mid-30s, met Gazzara in Europe last year during the filming of "Inchon," in which Gazzara starred. Mrs. Gazzara was an assistant to director Terence Young at the time.

The couple will spend a three-week honeymoon in Brazil before returning to Italy, where Gazzara will work on his next film.

Help available locally for Vietnam veterans

Help is now available locally for veterans of the Vietnam conflict and their families through two weekly meetings of local veterans.

Veterans interested in being members of the Top O' Texas Chapter of the Vietnam Veterans Association periodically meet on Wednesday night at 7 p.m. in the Chamber of Commerce office. The group now needs only four members to officially form its chapter.

The association can provide information about medical, housing and financial benefits, such as business loans, available to the Vietnam veteran. Help with employment problems, legal problems and problems associated with the suspected effects of Agent Orange is also offered.

The association, while just forming, plans to become involved in a campaign with Congressmen and senators for better benefits.

The association also has established a fund for local veterans and is soliciting donations from the public. The fund is to be used to assist veterans with medical expenses and other needs.

Each Tuesday night, veterans meet with local counselor Dave Brummett to discuss the special problems of the Vietnam veteran. Brummett said group discussions center around the problems of readjustment, coping with every day living, marriage and relationship problems, after combat experiences.

Brummett, who is executive director of the Top O' Texas Counseling Center, says the group meetings offer the Vietnam veteran "an avenue to ventilate their feelings that they haven't been able to express because no one understands the complicated anger and rage."

"These meetings can help the veteran be able to accept the fact that it's okay to have these thoughts he has, how not to carry them out and to understand why he has them," Brummett said.

"We also want family members to contact us if they are having problems," Brummett said.

Vietnam veterans who simply want to extend a helping hand or a willing ear to a fellow veteran are also welcome at the veterans' meetings.

Brummett, who leads the discussion sessions, has been employed in counseling for the past ten years, serving as a counselor with Panhandle Planned Parenthood, Amarillo College, Team Resources for Youth, Inc., and Pampa Family Services Centers. He has counseled in family planning, marriage and family counseling, drug and alcohol therapy and geriatrics. He recently has expanded his practice to include Vietnam veterans, experiencing the special problems associated with Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder, and family members who want to learn more appropriate ways of relating to the veteran. The Top O' Texas Counseling Center is located in Room 530 of the Hughes Building.

Thomas plaque placed in Abby

LONDON (AP) — Nearly three decades after Dylan Thomas' alcoholic rampage of a life ended at 39 in New York, the lyrical Welsh poet is to receive formal homage from the British nation Monday.

His daughter, Aeronwy, will unveil a memorial plaque to him in Poets' Corner, Westminster Abbey, honoring the author of "Under Milk Wood" and such now-classic poems as "And Death Shall Have No Dominion," "In My Craft or Sullen Art" and "Do Not Go Gentle into That Good Night."

Placed between tributes to Lord Byron and George Eliot, the plaque for the school teacher's son from Swansea reads:

DYLAN THOMAS
27 October, 1914 — 9 November, 1953

"Time held me green and dying
"Though I sang in my chains like the sea."
The line comes from one of Thomas' masterpieces, the poem "Fern Hill," a peaceful haven of his schoolboy years.

There was argument over the delay in admitting the "enfant terrible" of British letters into the hallowed ranks of Tennyson, Browning and other masters of verse memorialized in Poets' Corner, visited by 3 million tourists a year.

On the 25th anniversary of Thomas' death, a petition signed by 10,000 people urged the dean of Westminster, the Very Rev. Edward Carpenter, to find space for the poet, and President Carter expressed surprise at Thomas' omission on a visit here in 1977.

Bereaved parents relive their children's deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Diane Zamkoff waved her last goodbye to her son Randy two years ago, just before a truck slammed into his motorcycle. He was 20.

Mitzi Carver's daughter Debbie set out for Disneyland on Independence Day 1980 with two friends. The driver lost control of the car, and 17-year-old Debbie died.

Six years ago, Jim Burwell read his 20-year-old son's suicide note. "He jumped off the roof of a college building," Burwell says. "The best explanation is he was too sensitive, too self-critical."

Three times a month, these parents relive their tragedies — on purpose. They belong to "Compassionate Friends," a self-help organization that unites them with thousands of bereaved parents in the United States, Canada, England, Israel, Australia and New Zealand.

Outsiders might see morbidity here, but Ms. Carver, a 49-year-old department store supervisor, said she found sanity.

"When you lose a child you think you're the only one. You think you're going crazy," she explained in her suburban Simi Valley home.

"Once I found the group I realized I wasn't alone. I lost my mother three weeks before my daughter died, but losing a child is like losing a part of you."

The death of a close relative is always devastating. Ms. Zamkoff agreed, "but you've been conditioned to know that at some point your parent is going to die. It's like losing the past. Losing a spouse or sister is like losing the present, but losing a child is losing the future."

Burwell said the Anglican priest who founded "Friends" in Coventry, England, was a hospital chaplain faced with two couples whose sons died the same day.

Introducing them, Father Simon Stephens "saw that as in anything, you can understand better if you have the experience," said Burwell, an insurance salesman and father of four other children.

Dealing with grief — and seeing others who have — is the point of "Friends" chapter meetings, which usually draw about 50 people. As individuals introduce themselves and their circumstances, a topic of discussion evolves. Ms. Zamkoff said occasionally formal topics are discussed or speakers visit.

A dozen members of the San Fernando Valley chapter also organized twice-monthly mini-meetings. The chapter has a reference library, 24-hour telephone line and newsletter, all run by volunteers.

Marian Balster, administrative director at national headquarters in the Chicago suburb of Oak Brook, said chapters are largely autonomous.

creationism versus evolution. Sagan, however, says he has no time for such "pseudo-science."

The challenge was issued in a full page advertisement in Thursday's edition of The Paducah News newspaper.

Sponsored by 23 Churches of Christ, the advertisement begins, "We challenge evolutionists to engage in a four-night, public, oral debate on the question of the ultimate origin of human beings."

According to the Rev. Jim Cannon, pastor of the Lone Oak Church of Christ, the challenge stems from the recent court battle in Arkansas in which a state law requiring the teaching of creationism in public schools was overturned by a federal judge.

During the legal proceedings, which were often called a modern-day version of the Scopes "monkey trial," dozens of evolutionists and creationists gave their points of view from the witness stand.

Sagan, an astronomer and professor at Cornell University, has sought to debunk creationism, which contends that human beings were placed on Earth by a supreme being.

LONDON (AP) — Traveling under the names Mr. and Mrs. Hardy, Prince Charles and Princess Diana arrived home Saturday from Charles at the wheel. On Feb. 18, soon after the couple arrived on the vacation island of Windemere, two mass-circulation dailies, The Sun and The Daily Star, published pictures of the pregnant princess in a bikini, taken by staff photographers.

After Buckingham Palace complained, the newspapers apologized and withdrew their reporting teams — although The Sun reprinted one revealing picture alongside its apology.

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) — Rock musician Ike Turner has been acquitted of a charge of assault with a deadly weapon stemming from a shooting last April that injured a newspaper delivery man.

Turner, formerly of the soul-rock Ike and Tina Turner Review, was found innocent Friday by a Superior Court jury after two days of deliberations. He had been accused of firing two shots at Andrew Francis of the South Bay Daily Breeze, Francis, 49, was slightly wounded in the ankle outside Turner's suburban Los Angeles home.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP) — Craig Davis left Los Angeles with 25 cents in his pocket, a pack on his back, and a plan to walk across the country to raise $25,000 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

a Bahamas vacation, a trip which provoked royal anger over pictures of the bikini-clad princess published in two London tabloids.

The royal couple arrived at London's Heathrow Airport on a commercial airliner, landing in heavy fog which forced several other flights not equipped with a blind landing system to divert or wait until the weather cleared.

The 20-year-old Diana, who is expecting a baby in June, wore a blue and white gingham smock and angora jacket. Her blond hair was deeply bleached by the sun.

She smiled and waved to airport workers before the couple drove off in a car with
