Russian Reserves Move Into Line; Tide Not Turned

By EDDY GILMORE MOSCOW, July 30 (AP)—Reinforced by divisions which the Russians said were drawn from Finland and France, Field Marshal Fedor von Bock's southern front onslaught rolled deeper into the Caucasus south of Rostov today.

The Russian reserves moved into line today, but a counter-attack by the Red army back toward the tip of the Don bend within 80 miles of Stalingrad.

Ickes Predicts 200,000 Tons Of Rubber From Oil

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Petroleum Coordinator Ickes said today that the oil industry has covered capacity for production of 200,000 tons annually of butadiene.

Ickes said this would make possible the output of 240,000 to 250,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually over and above presently projected rubber programs.

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—A study of the capacity of the petroleum industry to produce butadiene for manufacture of rubber under the government's presently planned output of over 800,000 tons annually, was made by Wright W. Gary.

Several oil companies already are adjusting gasoline refineries to produce butadiene, Ickes said.

Fire Insurance Rates Reduced

AUSTIN, July 30—A sweeping, statewide reduction in fire insurance rates, announced today by Matten Hall, state fire insurance commissioner, will result in an estimated saving of $3,200,000 to Texas policy holders during the next 12 months.

The new rates, affecting many classes of insured property and amounting to as much as a 25 per cent saving in the case of dwellings in future insurance costs, will become effective on policies written after Aug. 1.

The greatest saving in any class will apply to dwellings. Estimated to exceed $2,625,000 within the next 12 months, this benefit will reach more individual property owners than any other class.

Over the figures was a sign: "They shall hang together."

Controversy has existed for several years over the administration of the medical school.

About the time Admiral George Dewey took Manila, Texas was beginning to feel mighty growing pains.

Slayer Executed By Firing Squad

SALT LAKE CITY, July 30 (AP)—Donald Lawton Condit, 25, was executed by a firing squad today for the slaying of Harold A. Thorne, Salt Lake City salesman.

Condit, a hitchhiker whom Thorne had given a ride, chose this way to die in preference to hanging, after he was convicted of first degree murder.

Five men from Iron county where the crime took place, fired the lethal volley. One of the guns carried a blank but none of the executioners knew which of them held that gun.

The execution was without untoward incidents. Witnesses were admitted into the prison yard after the condemned had been strapped to a chair facing a curtained recess where stood the firing squad.

Texas Plainsmen Squadron To Leave For Training Soon

Sixty West Texans, many from Pampa and this section of the Panhandle, have joined the "Texas Plainsmen" Naval Squadron and will leave August 17 for training.

The squadron quota has been filled and plans are being made by Chief C. M. Norman to recruit another squadron. Membership is open to men between the ages of 18 and 26 who are unmarried, have graduated from high school, and can pass the required tests.

When the 60 men leave for training they will be given a squadron insignia, designed by Harold Bugbee of Clarendon, which is a frying pan, representing the Panhandle section of Texas, and superimposed thereon is a cowboy riding a charging buffalo. The cowboy has a brace of "thimbusters" in his hands.

The Plainsmen will go to the University of Georgia for pre-flight training.

Each city from which Plainsmen have volunteered will be asked to send representatives to Amarillo for the big going-away party.

Young men from Pampa and this section who have joined the Plainsmen include: William V. James, Canadian; Joseph Farrington Lewis, Pampa; Albert LeRoy Murry, Miami; Jack D. Harold Osborne, Miami; Cecil D. Arguments Heard In Nazi Saboteur Trial

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Argument on the claim of seven of the eight Nazis who came by submarine equipped to blast and burn America's war plants that they have the right of trial in civil courts was resumed at noon today before the supreme court.

Eight of the nine justices were present. Justice Douglas, who was absent yesterday because of the long train trip from Oregon, arrived overnight and took his place between Justices Reed and Byrnes.

The only member missing was Justice Murphy, who disqualified himself because he is on duty as a lieutenant colonel in the army.

Attorney General Biddle resumed his argument in opposition to the petition of the prisoners for a writ which would remove the accused from the custody of the army and place them before the civil courts.

Hitler Armies Race Toward Caspian Sea

By ROGER D. GREENE Associated Press War Editor Adolf Hitler's invasion armies, racing toward the Caspian sea, reported today they had cut the last major rail line to the Caucasus oil fields, while in the north the Russians declared they had beaten off all German attempts to hammer wedges into Soviet lines above Stalingrad.

Late dispatches indicated that the Germans had found a "soft spot" in the Russian defenses east of Rostov and were exerting their main efforts in a drive to isolate the Caucasus.

Meanwhile, amid widespread agitation for an Allied invasion of western Europe, Sir Stafford Cripps told parliament in London that plans regarding a second front could not be divulged.

Sir Stafford, Prime Minister Churchill's spokesman in the house of commons, said the government would not be able to reveal such plans "even in secret session"; but in response to a member's question, he added:

"I can tell him now, we have intentions."

London newspapers mentioned Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. Army chief of staff, as a possible Allied generalissimo for a second front.

In the Soviet campaign, the situation appeared to be growing rapidly more acute in the northern Caucasus, where the Russians acknowledged fresh Nazi advances at several points.

Ickes Disagrees With OPA Official On Gas Rationing

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Petroleum Coordinator Ickes today declared that nationwide gasoline rationing was not needed now as a measure to bring about larger deliveries of petroleum to the rationed Eastern states.

The statement, made at his press conference, differed sharply with the position of Joel Dean, gasoline rationing officer in the office of price administration who said yesterday a recommendation for nationwide rationing, endorsed by himself and OPA Chief Leon Henderson, now was before President Roosevelt.

Ickes declined to discuss the possibilities of universal gasoline rationing as a rubber conservation measure.

As to the Eastern petroleum situation, the coordinator told newsmen that next winter "we may have to ask people to set their thermostats at 65 degrees or even lower, and to eliminate heat from several rooms of homes."

He referred to about 1,250,000 homes in the East, and other establishments using fuel oil for heating.

Tomorrow Last Day To Buy Bonds For This Month's Quota

Tomorrow is the deadline for residents of Gray county to purchase enough victory bonds and stamps to put the county over its $144,300 quota. Although no official figures can be secured, it is believed the county passed the $100,000 mark in sales yesterday.

Tomorrow is also the last day of the contest among Pampa retail clerks to see who will win a $50 victory bonus for making the most sales during July and who will win other attractive prizes in bonds and stamps.

A number of clerks are battling for first place in the contest with others gaining rapidly. Pampans are asked to make their purchases of bonds and stamps through clerks entered in the contest.

Transportation Arranged For All Guests Planning To Attend Annual Primrose Tea Tomorrow Afternoon

No effort is being spared in making arrangements for the comfort and pleasure of men and women 65 years of age or more who will be honor guests tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock at the third annual primrose tea sponsored by the City Council of Church Women on the lawn of the First Methodist church parsonage.

Cars will call at the homes of the guests to take them to the party and will take them home afterwards if any of the following members of the transportation committee are notified early enough to make arrangements: Mrs. C. P. Buckler, telephone 122; Mrs. Sherman White, 1084; Mrs. Frank Perry, 800; Mrs. Paul Briggs, 1417; Mrs. D. V. Burton, 247; Mrs. W. S. Dixon, 597; and Mrs. D. S. Buckner.

Each man and woman in Pampa or vicinity who has reached the age of 65 is invited to attend this party which is given each summer by the Council of Church Women. The invitation committee, headed by Mrs. Clyde Carruth, has mailed special invitations to all eligible guests whose names have been turned in. Mrs. Carruth stressed today that no one should stay home for lack of a special invitation, since it has been impossible for the committee to secure the names of all eligible persons in the community.

Chairman of arrangements is Mrs. Price Dostler, who is making every effort to see that nothing is left undone which will contribute to the enjoyment of the guests. A Pampa Mortuary ambulance will carry anyone to the event who is unable to ride in a car.

Mrs. S. A. Hurst, president of the Council, and presidents of the women's organizations of the churches affiliated with the organization will act as hostesses. All members of the groups represented in the Council are urged to be present to help entertain the honor guests.

Awards will be given to the oldest man and the oldest woman attending all three primrose parties. Also prizes will be given to the man and woman whose native states are the farthest distance from Pampa.

In addition to Mrs. Carruth and Mrs. Dostler, those who have assisted in planning the mutual affair are Mrs. Frank Hall, general chairman; Mrs. C. P. Buckler, transportation chairman; Mrs. F. R. Gilchrist, program; and Mrs. C. L. McKinney, refreshments.

Following the program, which will be given in-groups, will be a social hour.

By Doing Your Housework You Aid In War Effort, Says Club Leader

AUSTIN, July 30—Women should do their own housework as their first contribution to the war effort! This bit of advice is offered by Mrs. J. V. Walker, president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, who believes that women can help in a great measure towards the prevention of inflation by working more in their own homes.

"Household workers and domestics are becoming scarce, what with entering war production plants as workers," Mrs. Walker told reporters in her office at headquarters building here. "When household servants quit the housewife is going to work in war production plants, she should then do her own work if at all possible, for in that way only can she hope to keep down the price of labor and prevent drastic wage increases for domestics," she said.

"The 70,000 women in the Texas Federation of Women's clubs do not want inflation and they see the fundamental need of control of wages of all sorts in order to keep down prices everywhere," Mrs. Walker said. She reported that the Texas clubwomen are writing to their congressmen to that effect. Mrs. Walker said that she is sympathetic with Leon Henderson's program of ceiling prices and thoroughly believes in the proposed government control of wages.

When asked if her proposal that housewives do more and more of their own housework wouldn't draw complaints from most women, Mrs. Walker stated: "Patriotic women refrain from complaints at hardships and restrictions brought on by emergencies of war effort because they are fast realizing that this war is a total war!"

Mrs. Walker, who was recently in Canada with her husband attending the Rotary International convention at Toronto, said that American women can learn much from the "wholesome attitudes" of the women of Canada. "We may think war restrictions in this country are severe but they compare in no way with those placed upon the women of Canada. The wealthy Canadian women must pay extremely high luxury wages and the working women an of Canada is hit hardest of all because she must submit to enforced savings from her salary check each pay day," she concluded.

Mrs. Walker expressed grateful appreciation for the sincere friendliness of the Canadian government and its peoples to visitors from the United States.

Parents' Courage Will Help Make Brave Post-War World

By RUTH MILLETT

"This war is only part of the picture which your generation faces today. For if the war is costing us a fearful price, it is also developing for us new techniques and possibilities. It is placing at our disposal an industrial plant—a set of developed resources—that will simply be beyond price."

"We shall have the most magnificent opportunity any nation ever had. To accept that opportunity we really need only have the good pioneer sense not to be frightened by it just because it calls new mental attitudes and new habits of thought."

This is the view of the future that Donald Nelson offered the 1942 graduates of the University of Missouri. His courageous attitude toward the "new world" was a helpful thing for college graduates, many of whose careers are having to be postponed because of the war.

But it was even better medicine for their parents. For the young men and women who finished their education this month aren't as a group fearful of the future.

Whatever world they go into as adults is going to be a new world to them. For until their education is behind them and they strike out on their own, they are in a sheltered world. They know the real world only in theory.

But their parents know the old world. In it they fought their way to the place where they were able to educate their children and give them a start in life.

Parents' NEEDED THAT PEP TALK They know they got along fairly well in the world as it was, and the thought is a shock to them. They don't want to have to think of their children having to make their way in a world that is vastly different from the one in which they succeeded in earning a living.

So they needed the pep talk Donald Nelson gave the group of university graduates far more than the graduates needed it themselves. Young folks naturally take a "So what?" attitude toward the theory that the world is going to be different after the war. Older folks are the ones who think that could be only a calamity of overwhelming proportion.

Nazis See Bottom Of Oil Reserves Says Oil Weekly

NEW YORK, July 30 (AP)—The German high command already can see the bottom of its oil reserves, the Oil Weekly said today in a summary of Axis petroleum resources and supplies. "There can be little doubt that the Axis of the West now is gravely concerned over its deficiency of oil," the trade journal said in a group of articles on the world's petroleum. "The bitter fighting in southern Russia is a desperate struggle for oil, as well as a part of supreme effort to dispose of an exasperating enemy," the Oil Weekly added.

Basing its figures on known statistics and calculations of use, the magazine estimated Germany had for its present Russian campaign about 2,000,000 tons of fuel oil after deducting reserves for the western part of occupied Europe. (A rough conversion figure would be seven barrels to the ton.) It estimated Germany used 12,000,000 tons in 23 weeks of Russian war last summer and fall.

Against the slim total, however, was balanced tremendously stepped up production of 240,000 tons a week, double the output at the beginning of the war in 1939 and 50,000 tons weekly more than at the start of the war with Russia. The sources were listed as lignite and coal liquefaction, benzene, coal tar distillation, alcohol mixture with oil, native and Polish fuel oil and Rumanian crude.

11 Employees Of Airline Killed

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30 (AP)—Eleven Northwest airlines employees were killed when a U. S. army cargo transport plane crashed shortly before 8 a. m. today on Wold-Chamberlain field during the take-off. Fire which broke out when the plane crashed so badly burned several of the bodies that identification was not possible. The known dead, announced by Northwest airlines officials: Kenneth S. Olson, 28, Minneapolis, co-pilot. John F. Fisher, 26, Freemont, O., co-pilot. Leonard O. Larson, Northwest airlines mechanic. Leo D. Hinesley, Northwest airlines mechanic. Wilbur G. Rose, Paul F. Parlin and Winston A. Luchau, all Northwest airlines groomers.

The plane, a 247 Boeing 10 passenger, was loaded with 270 gallons of gasoline before the takeoff. The ship, formerly owned by United Airlines, belonged to the government and had been acquired by Northwest airlines to use as a cargo ship on the northern division. It was operated under the ferry command. Olson and Fisher had boarded the ship to make a check flight. The Northwest airlines mechanics and groomers went aboard. The ship, Northwest airlines employees who witnessed the crash said, was about 200 feet up when it seemed to nose up, swing over to one side, stall and crash. Fire which broke out was quickly extinguished.

Newspaper Trucks Permitted To Make Two Deliveries

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—Trucks delivering newspapers in metropolitan districts of less than 200,000 population will be permitted under revised regulations of the office of defense transportation to make two daily deliveries instead of one as previously ordered. The ODT announced yesterday that in such communities trucks will be permitted to make a morning paper delivery and an evening delivery to the same point daily.

Revised orders, effective Aug. 1, also grant a three-months exemption to trucks carrying metal scrap or rubber from the mileage-reduction regulations. Trucks carrying ice will be allowed to make more than one delivery daily to another carrier and may make two deliveries daily to any industrial air conditioning plant or retail dealer.

The exemptions from daily delivery restrictions also were extended to contract and private motor carriers engaged in deliveries to vessels and trucks operated in connection with mining, smelting or refining operations under war production board priority orders.

Showy Ray "Sugar" Robinson Picked To Kayo Sammy Angott

By HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, July 30.—Sammy Angott has pushed and pulled and hugged and tugged himself out of many a tough spot, but numerous sharp-shooters suspect he is conceding to Robinson a bit too much in their ten-round match at Madison Square Garden, July 31.

Lightweight champion Angott is spotting Sugar Robinson speed, punch, weight, height, reach, and age. Spoiler Angott has climbed out of the resin innumerable times, but a lot of the boys have an idea he won't be able to pull himself together if dumped this trip by the Harlem jitters who fights in flurries and whose style is so pleasing to the trade.

They met in Philadelphia just a year ago. In the second round, Robinson nailed Angott with a right to the chin which sent the Washington, Pa., mauler sprawling to the canvas. It did not seem that Angott could pull himself back into one place, but he managed to stagger to his pins and survive the pounding he took for the balance of the round.

ANGOTT WAGES UPHILL BATTLE Starting with the third round, Angott began a terrific uphill fight and by the time the tenth and final round arrived had almost brought the contest to even terms.

Robinson got the decision, but veteran observers believed Angott most surely would have scored had he been a 12-rounder. The negro youth was thoroughly spent at the finish.

Angott's story is that he took Robinson for a nobody then and will be on his toes this time. But he also will find that Robinson has come a long way since their last outing.

Robinson is the last fighter to win from Angott, who went on from there to win a clear claim to the lightweight leadership in a bout with Looney Lee Jenkins. Among less important starts, Angott has repelled Bob Montgomery in non-title affairs and successfully defended his crown by grace of a highly debatable decision over Allie Etoiz.

Robinson, in the year since he fought Angott, moved out of the lightweight division into the welter. ROBINSON HAS WON 121 FIGHTS IN ROW. He has the remarkable record of being unbeaten in 121 fights—89

25 Negro Baseball Players Of Major League Caliber

KANSAS CITY, July 30 (AP)—There are at least 25 negro baseball players of major league caliber, believes J. L. Wilkinson, co-owner of the Kansas City Monarchs, champions of the Negro American league.

The possibility of negroes breaking into big-time baseball was raised by William E. Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who said he would hold tryouts for negro players. Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis previously asserted there was no ruling against the use of negroes in organized baseball.

"I think it would be a fine thing for the game, even though we would lose some of our stars," commented Wilkinson. The Monarch boss said he had discussed the situation in Chicago Tuesday night with his prize chafel, Satchel Paige, kingpin of negro pitchers. Although Wilkinson has a 2-year contract with Paige, he said he would hold the right-hander, "I certainly won't stand in your way if you have a chance to play."

Satch, who holds decisions over the Dean brothers, Bob Feller, Schoolboy Rowe and many other major league stars, probably would have to be tendered a pretty sizeable chunk of money for his signature. He has received as high as $2,000 for a single game, and considering that he works in more than 80 games a year, his recompense would rank him with the highest salaried athletes in the game.

Although Wilkinson didn't say so, there is at least one prospect ready made for the Brooklyn Dodgers if they go shopping in the negro leagues. He is Jack Matchett, 28-year-old Kansas City pitcher, who sometimes operates from the mound accompanied in full dress ensemble topped by a plug hat. Such antics might startle even Flatbush.

Manush Shows His Age On His Back GREENSBORO, N. C., July 30 (AP)—Baseball players show age in arms, legs, and face, but Heinie Manush, former major league now managing the Greensboro Red Sox, shows his on his back.

His number corresponds to his age—this year 41, last year 40, the previous season, 39.

Chisox Only Team To Win Doubleheader From Yanks

By JUDSON BAILEY Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago White Sox have been going nowhere in the American league ever since the season started, but they have attained one distinction denied every other club in the circuit. They are the only team to sweep a doubleheader from the world champion New York Yankees and they have accomplished the feat not once, but twice.

When the Sox first turned the trick in New York on June 28, the Yanks were in a slump and the Sox didn't get much credit. It was like picking on a man while he was down.

But they caught the champions last night at the crest of a winning streak that included four straight victories and 15 of their last 16 games and proceeded to whip the Yankees at the kind of ball for which New York is noted—slugging.

The first game was played at twilight and the Yanks gave Alky Donald a 5-1 lead with five runs in the third inning, two of them on Joe DiMaggio's 16th homer. Then the Sox slugged back to win 6-5 in 11 innings with old Sam West driving in four of Chicago's runs. He doubled for two to tie the score in the ninth, and singled home the deciding tally in the 11th.

The second game, played under the lights, saw the Sox take an early 5-2 lead, the Yanks tie the score in the sixth, and then Chicago come back with two runs in its half of the same frame to win 7-5.

This merely paced the Yanks' big first place margin to 12 games, because the Boston Red Sox were nosed out 7-6 in 11 innings at Cleveland when Roy Weatherly singled with the bases loaded.

At St. Louis the Washington Senators squeezed past the Browns again 11-10 with four runs in the ninth inning. There was scoring in every frame and ten pitchers were used, six by St. Louis.

The Detroit Tigers walloped the Philadelphia Athletics 12-7 in an affair that would have been considerably lopsided except for five Detroit errors.

In the National league the Brooklyn Dodgers enlarged their lead to eight games by beating the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in a twilight tussle that was halted in the last of the seventh by wartime dim-out regulations in the New York area.

The two doubleheaders which completed the senior circuit card were halted. The Chicago Cubs welcomed Van Lingle Mungo back into the majors a bit rudely, beating the New York Giants 4-2 even though held to seven hits in the first game.

The Pittsburgh Pirates took their first game at Boston 3-0 on five-hit hurling by Truett Frazier. Several after being shut out for seven stanzas by Al Javery. Then the Braves retaliated with a 6-5 decision in the nightcap in behalf of big Jim Tobin.

Softball Games With Amarillo Club Canceled Inability to secure a diamond has necessitated cancelling the scheduled softball games between two Pampa teams and two teams from the Amarillo Glider school here Sunday afternoon.

The only way Round Rinner park could be secured by the American Legion, sponsor of the games, would be to pay the insurance which was too much for the post to stand, Commander-Elect Ed Tracey said today.

The Jewelers and Mack and Paul were to have played the two army teams with admission to be old phonograph records, softball or baseball equipment or cash. The Jewelers went to Amarillo two weeks ago and defeated one of the army teams.

Today's Guest Star Pete Norton, Tampa (Fla.) Tribune—"It sounds like the truth." 8,180 citizens of New Jersey and 2,500 of New York, Kan., are in bets at the New Grand track last week. Arizona Lad Boots Home 13 Winners

CAMDEN, N. J., July 30 (AP)—An Arizona kid who "started to get lucky" after losing his first 25 races is showing his brother jockeys the fastest way around the new Garden State track—and he's still an apprentice.

Seventeen-year-old Darrell Clingman, a pale, freckle-faced boy with big hands, has booted home 13 winners and finished in the money in 43 of 60 starts to lead the riders' roster here since the park opened July 18.

With 12 other firsts picked up at Hot Springs, Jamaica and Delaware, he needs only 15 more to lift him out of the apprentice class and he's on an odds-on favorite to get them before the current 49-day meet closes.

Clingman was at home in a saddle before he ever saw a kiddy car and at 11 was riding cow ponies in straightaway races for the ranch hands back home in Ash Fork, Ariz.

"Then three years ago," he said, "Mr. John Bradley was guest at a dude ranch out home. He sent me a book on riding. I read it, and then I bought a kiddy car and a farm, breaking yearlings and stuff."

He's getting confidence now but still feels he has a lot to learn. "It takes an awful long time to be a good rider," said Darrell. "Take like using a whip. Generally, the owner makes you ride your first half-dozen or so without a whip. Then they make you practice a long time riding a bale of hay. You got to learn all sorts of things."

Jockey Clingman has already practiced something most turf folks overlook—his saving his money.

Oana Wins His Own Game With 390-Foot Homer

What Hank Oana lacked in pitching power he made up for in batting punch last night as the Fort Worth Cats won from the San Antonio Missions, 7 to 6.

The Missions hit three out of the park, two of these being by Jerry Witte, who had also three singles for a perfect night at bat.

But Oana hit what proved to be the winning blow, a 390-foot homer with nobody on base.

The Beaumont Exporters, five runs down in the ninth, made up that margin to tie the game and scored another run in the eleventh to defeat the Oklahoma City Indians, 9 to 8.

Anse Moore tallied the winning run when he singled, went to second on a passed ball and galloped home on a double by Dick Wakefield.

The Tulsa Oilers gathered 15 hits off three Shreveport pitchers and downed the Sports, 11 to 5. Harvey Storey was the leading Tulsa hitter with a home run, a double and a single.

Shreveport nicked Henry Wisse for 13 hits, but failed to bunch their blows except in the ninth, when they scored three times.

The Dallas Rebels, minus Merv Connors and George Jansco, who were sold to Fort Worth, took a licking from the Houston Buffs, 8 to 2.

Lefty Al Brazil gave the Reds just four hits as the Dallas team lost their fifth game in a row. The Rebels committed five errors and were hitless for six and a third inning.

The German high command asserted broadly that the Russian line of retreat to the east had been cut off in the great Don river bend, but gave no details.
Dispatches to Red Star said a gigantic seven-day battle was raging in the Don bend above Stalingrad, involving thousands of troops, planes, field guns, and tanks.
Red Star said the Germans reached the eastern bank of the river in one sector but were driven back.

To Death In Fall
SALEM, Ill., July 30 (AP)—Paul Lorenzo Perkinson, 40, aerial acrobat billed as the Great Lorenzo, fell to his death last night from a 116-foot pole during a performance before 15,000 spectators at the Marion county soldiers' and sailors' reunion.
The pole, on which Lorenzo was doing a balancing act, snapped about 10 feet from the top. He missed in a desperate effort to grasp a platform on which his wife, Vicki, was standing.

Hopkins' Pilots Scores

CHUNGKING, July 30 (AP)—Major John E. Allison, who flew Harry Hopkins to Moscow last year, scored one of the most spectacular individual performances by the U. S. Air force in China today by shooting down two of three Japanese bombers destroyed out of a nine-plane enemy squadron raiding Hengyang, Hunan province.
The blond, part-bald squadron leader who comes from Gainesville, Fla., shared honors with Capt. Albert J. Baumler, who accounted for the third enemy raider.

fitting 506 Texas towns and cities this year will mean a total saving over normal insurance costs of $2,773,000, the commissioner asserted.
Hall stated that in some instances the saving on fire insurance premiums since the early part of 1936 will amount to 63 per cent.
"Besides the property saved from fire destruction every year," he explained, "the cost of protection has steadily decreased. There is only one way in which we can preserve the savings record already attained and that is to continue the vigilant practice of fire prevention in every home and place of business."

NEWS AND YOU

of the present-day Associated Press.
These negotiations resulted in the Associated Press transmitting over shaky and uncertain telegraph lines its first news dispatch to Texas. So was born what is now one of the largest units in the world's greatest news-gathering organization.
This unit—the Associated Press service in Texas—is made up of 80 Texas newspapers, representing about 17 per cent of the population's membership of 1,400 newspapers in the United States.
They include large, small, and a few weekly newspapers. A majority of these newspapers are served by the association's own leased wire system. Commercial telegraph and telephone are used to transmit abbreviated reports to members in smaller communities.
The Associated Press' first report to Texas, made up of only a few hundred words daily, continued for about a decade. In 1912, the first Texas bureau was established in Dallas with Howard W. Blakeslee, now the association's science editor, in charge. Thereafter, the growth was rapid.
Three bureaus manned by a score of highly-trained editors and reporters are maintained in Texas. They are in Dallas, Austin, and Houston. Chief of Bureau Frank H. King, an AP veteran who has seen service in many parts of the world, is in charge of the Texas service. The Texas staff, editorial and traffic, numbers 48 full-time employees.
Special AP reporters in Washington keep on the alert for news of particular interest to Texas.
In addition to the editorial staff, the Texas staff handles its own leased traffic lines under supervision of Traffic Bureau Chief Livingston A. Francis. There are more than 11,000 miles of leased circuits in the state system.
Besides news supplied by the Texas membership—one of the requirements of every community—and gathered by staff writers, scores of special correspondents report by telegraph or telephone news from smaller communities.
The service to the larger Texas dailies has grown from a 1,000-word "teletype" (a skeletonized report transmitted by commercial telegraph) to more than 200,000 words daily—the equivalent of 125 columns of the average newspaper. This great volume of news is transmitted by the association's own teletype-writer equipment, which replaced the Morse operator in 1925.
In addition to its 285,000-mile network, the Associated Press operates the 20,000-mile wirephoto system, over which newspaper maps, charts, and other illustrations are sent to member newspapers with telegraphic speed. Two Texas members helped pioneer this service in 1935. Now, wirephoto telegrams, mounted news pictures made from wirephotos, provide an abundance of illustrative matter to Texas newspapers.
An integral part of the Texas service is the Texas State Mat service, a picture service devoted strictly to Texas news and events.
The Associated Press is a cooperative, non-profit organization, its purpose is the swift distribution of accurate, reliable and impartial news. The membership includes persons of every conceivable political, economic and religious advocacy. The one thing upon which they are united is so far as the Associated Press is concerned, is that it shall be wholly free from partisan activity. It is the theory of the organization that in a self-governing country like ours, the citizens, given the facts, will be able to form their own opinions respecting them.
The Associated Press concentrates on spot news and pictures, while Wide World, its great correlated service, provides a wealth of special material ranging from war interpretations to comic strips.
General headquarters for the association is in the Associated Press building, Rockefeller Center, New York. Affairs of the association are governed by a board of directors, all publishers of member newspapers, with a general manager directly in charge. The present general manager is Kent Cooper.
One of the directors is a Texan, Houston Harte, publisher of the San

Two former members of the Texas staff are now interned in enemy countries. One is Ernest Fincher, a native of Holland, Texas, who was stationed in Berlin when the United States entered the conflict. Before joining the Associated Press, he was on The San Antonio Express.
The second member is Richard Massock, a member of the Texas staff in 1925, who was chief of the Rome bureau when Mussolini declared war on the United States.

fighting for the Trans-Caucasus, the Lower Volga and the western shore of the Caspian sea.
The Communist party newspaper Pravda declared, however, that Germany was throwing her last resources into the offensive and said "it is necessary to understand that we cannot retreat."
"The enemy is not so strong as he appears to some scare panic mongers," the newspaper said.
A Pravda dispatch reported that German tanks were attacking in waves of 40 to 50 within the Don bend, where the country offers no natural obstacle to maneuver. Red army men were reported to have destroyed 123 tanks in one sector.
The Soviet information bureau announced last midnight that Soviet tanks and infantry had routed the vanguard of a German force southwest of Kletskaya, itself 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad, but the mid-day bulletin indicated a subsequent Nazi recovery with a report of fierce battles "south of Kletskaya."
"All attempts by the Germans to wedge into our defenses failed," the mid-day German communique said. "In one sector one of our tank units attacked and destroyed 30 German tanks and several hundred officers and men."
Captives were quoted by Pravda as telling Red army officers that the Germans were forced to move units from other sectors of the front into the Don basin defensive.
"In the Bataisk area heavy fighting is going on," the information bureau said. "The enemy has launched several attacks and advanced in separate sectors."
More than 300 miles to the north Russian troops overcame German resistance and advanced in several sectors of the Voronezh area on the upper Don, it was announced. A Nazi ammunition dump was reported seized in the recapture of a Voronezh front settlement.
A generally optimistic picture of the combat had been presented on yesterday's operations.
The army newspaper Red Star reported, however, that the invaders had made another crossing of the Don east of Rostov and pushed south against strong Russian resistance.
"Only by a self-sacrificing struggle will we hold the enemy from the south," the newspaper commented.
Red Star said a seven-day battle was raging southwest of Kletskaya, involving thousands of troops, planes, field guns and tanks. The Germans reached the western bank of the Don in one sector, but were driven back, the newspaper said.
Five battalions of Finns were reported among thousands of Axis reinforcements moved into action last Sunday.
Russians attacked them with bayonets. They killed 500 in one place and 200 in another, Red Star said.

CARGO PLANES

States and the Bethlehem Steel corporation would give "only one answer" if they received a call to convert some of their shipyards, and that "in my mind there is no question they would rise to the occasion."
About 30 per cent of the tools used in shipbuilding could be made available for cargo plane construction, he said, "and the efforts of every small manufacturer in the country could be enlisted by the government in supplying tools and materials needed."
Senator Lee is chairman of a military subcommittee which started hearings on the cargo planes at the same time that the defense committee opened its inquiry.

NAZI TRIAL

eight men and his decree that they be tried by a panel of seven generals.
The prime question before the court—raised by petitions for habeas corpus to deliver the prisoners from a military commission before which President Roosevelt placed them—was whether men such as these were entitled to the protection of civil courts as a matter of right.
Certainly not, contended Attorney General Biddle in precise, incisive accents emphasized with the flat of his hand. War "wipes out the rights of the alien," he asserted, and any "relief he may be entitled to in a court depends on the grace of the sovereign."
But yes, the men do have rights, argued Col. Kenneth C. Royall, a resonant Southern drawl. The tall colored, one of several army officers assigned to the defense, insisted that even if the prisoners be soldiers of the reich they could claim the shelter of the bill of rights while in this country.
A regiment of German soldiers caught landing on these shores would not have those rights, Royall conceded in response to questions from the bench which frequently interspersed the six hours of argument heard yesterday as the case opened. But the soldiers, he explained, would have other rights as prisoners of war—rights these defendants cannot claim.
The questions from the court made it clear that the seven justices sought to explore every possible claim the prisoners might have to rights both military and civil. Justice Douglas did not arrive from Oregon in time for the opening session and Justice Murphy disqualified himself because of his present military status.
Just before the solemn proceeding was resumed, lawyers got a laugh out of an anonymous telegram sent by a well-wisher to the defense counsel and tipping them to look up the famous Milligan case. The Civil war case is one with which every lawyer participating in the action is most familiar.
At issue is the validity of President Roosevelt's proclamation denying access to the civil courts to certain persons and his order that the eight accused be tried by a military commission.
It is the defendants' contention that they were not saboteurs at all—just refugees fleeing from Germany.
Addressing the court in his pre-manner, Biddle asserted that it was significant that the prisoners traveled back to Germany from the United States on money furnished by the German government, and that Herbert Haupt, youngest defendant and the only one who claims American citizenship, traveled on a German passport.
The attorney general asked the court to overrule the Milligan case, even though it decides to throw out the present case on the ground that the prisoners are not entitled to the civil courts.
He termed the Milligan case "bad law." In that case, the supreme court issued a writ of habeas corpus for an Indiana citizen who was held for trial before a military commission. President Lincoln defied the court's ruling in the matter.

Negroes Will Not Try To Vote Aug. 11

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 30 (AP)—Dr. J. M. Robinson, president of the Arkansas Negro Democratic association which organized the fruitless attempt of negroes to participate in Tuesday's state-wide Democratic preferential primary, said today no effort would be made by association members to vote in the regular primary August 11.

"They made their decision and made it stick," Robinson said. "We'll just let things cool off for a while until everybody gets level headed again."

He said all information on refusals of ballots to negroes Tuesday would be submitted to Thurgood Marshall of New York City, attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Voting officials cited state Democratic party rules that primaries were open to "qualified white electors" in refusing ballots to negroes.

The battle for the senatorial nomination in the August 11 regular primary developed into a neck-and-neck race between former Congressman John L. McClellan and youthful Attorney General Jack Holt of Harrison.

McClellan gained the overnight support of one of the candidates defeated in Tuesday's preferential primary while the other defeated candidate indicated neutrality.

Congressman David D. Terry, Little Rock, announced he would support McClellan, Congressman Clyde T. Ellis, Bentonville, congratulated the two top men in a statement containing no intimation of preference.

The Associated Press' final tabulation of unofficial returns covered 2,019 of 2,127 precincts gave McClellan 53,546 votes; Holt 52,757; Ellis 33,526; and Terry 26,486.

With nomination at next month's primary tantamount to election, the winner will succeed Senator Lloyd Spencer, an interim appointee ineligible by law to succeed himself.

Brook Hays, Little Rock, former farm security administration official, was the only federal office seeker to win nomination in Tuesday's voting. He polled 16,108 votes

Allied Bombers Hit Japanese Destroyer

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia, July 30. (AP)—Allied bombers hit a Japanese destroyer squarely off Gona Mission, on New Guinea's Papuan peninsula coast, and left the warship wreathed in smoke and scurrying toward shore, apparently for beaching, a headquarters communique announced today.

It was the fourth enemy ship accounted for by Allied airmen since the Japanese thrust their invasion force down the coast to gain their foothold last Wednesday, some 110 miles from the Allied base at Port Moresby on the opposite shore of the Papuan peninsula. In previous attacks three enemy transports were knocked out.

Allied planes made a destructive night raid on Gona Mission and destroyed an enemy pursuit plane in an air fight while skirmishing continued among Allied and Japanese advance units in the Kokoda area, about midway between Port Moresby and Gona Mission.

The Japanese made three night raids upon Port Moresby and sent two small formations over Darwin, northern Australian coastal city, early today. The communique said there were neither casualties nor

Attempt Made To Save Mrs. Henry From Electrocuting

LAKE CHARLES, La., July 30 (AP)—A last minute attempt has been made by attorneys to save Mrs. Annie Beatrice (Toni Jo) Henry from electrocution here Aug. 10 for the 1940 St. Valentine day slaying of a Houston, Tex., salesman.

Her attorneys yesterday applied for a preliminary injunction to stay the execution on the grounds that the act passed by the legislature two years ago changing capital punishment from hanging to electrocution is unconstitutional because it did not become effective in her case in the time required for all acts under the constitution.

District Judge Mark C. Pickrel ordered the sheriff to show cause by Friday why the injunction should not be granted.

Judge Bars Organizers From Plants

DALLAS, July 30. (AP)—Companies engaged in secret war production may deny access to their plants to union organizers or agents of the national labor relations board under a new federal court ruling.

The national labor relations board, Judge T. Whitfield Davidson ruled yesterday, has the right to examine the affairs of a corporation respecting its treatment of labor, but exercise of that right is subordinate to protection of military secrets.

He granted a declaratory judgment asked by the American Manufacturing company of Fort Worth which brought court action to determine its rights under military and naval contracts of a secret nature.

The defendants were representatives of the national labor relations board and the international association of machinists (AFL).

"The court realizes, the opinion said, that it has gone further than any court has gone and it may be necessary for a higher court to pass on this question.

Giving the labor board full authority to collect information outside of the plant pursuant to the Wagner act, the opinion added:

"What good will a union card be if an American has to pull a jirricksha for invading Japanese or what good will a man's plant be if it makes goods at Hitler's command?"

The opinion said representatives of NLRB sought to examine its books and records; that union organizers were soliciting its workers, and that organizers were telling workers that if they did not organize skilled union men on the job would be transferred to other plants.

It argued that to open its books and contracts to inspection would be violative of its contracts with the government, and thus authorize the government to breach such contracts.

Both defendants moved to dismiss the suit, saying there was nothing before the court for it to decide, and that the court did not have jurisdiction.

Strong Bomber Force Damages Saarbruecken

LONDON, July 30. (AP)—A strong force of British bombers, striking at Germany for the seventh time in 10 nights, did great damage in a concentrated attack last night on Saarbruecken, German steel manufacturing center near the French border, the air ministry announced today.

Nine planes were lost in the assault—the first on Saarbruecken since Nov. 8, 1940—the announcement said. Saarbruecken is a key railway junction as well as an industrial city.

Nazi air raiders, meanwhile, attacked widely separated areas in Britain, dropping a few bombs in the greater London area for the first time since June 3 and slugging at several points in the Midlands and East Anglia.

One of the Nazi targets in the Midlands was the industrial center of Birmingham where, the ministries of air and home security said, the raiders did some damage and caused some casualties.

A small number of casualties, including some fatalities, was reported from other areas.

Seven of the German planes were shot down, a communique said.

The RAF raid on western Germany was accompanied by a heavy aerial bombardment of the occupied French coast between Boulogne and Calais.

Another strong force of RAF planes roared out of the channel last night on a return from an attack on targets in northern France.

Sharp anti-aircraft fire punctuated by heavy bomb blasts along the French coast testified to the intensity of the attack.

Jury Considers Case

SAN SABA, July 30. (AP)—A jury today considered the case of Ollie Smith, charged with murder in connection with the slaying of Mrs. Florese Harkey Blossman March 29 in a dance hall near here.

Smith pleaded not guilty due to temporary insanity. He testified he was in love with the 36-year-old woman, the mother of three children and a member of a prominent ranch family.

Cargo Plane Crashes

MINNEAPOLIS, July 30. (AP)—A large cargo transport airplane being operated by Northwest Airlines for the U. S. army crashed on the takeoff at World-Chamberlain field here at about 8 a. m.

First reports were that at least six persons had been killed.

Kennedy's "History of Texas" was criticized in an old manuscript reprinted in part in the Texas Almanac of 1855, for referring to "Texans" instead of "Texians." "Texians," reads the manuscript, "has more euphony and is better adapted to the convenience of the poets who shall hereafter celebrate our deeds in sonorous strains."

There Are So Many Ifs

The news pages have been filled, of late, with so many apparently conflicting stories about rubber, all from apparently informed sources, that the subject should not be laid aside without considering further some important angles. There is one sure way to steer a safe course through the bewildering mass of contradictory reports. That is to keep in mind what we have been insisting for months, from time to time—Rubber is a problem only of time and critical materials. Apply this simple yardstick to every rubber story, and most of the contradictions vanish. That is true of all the many processes for making synthetics. Some are better than others. Some are cheaper. Some are quicker. But all involve the use of raw materials of which we do not have enough. And all involve considerable periods of time. We shall use some or several of these processes. But we have no right to use them beyond the amount absolutely necessary to win the war.

Apply the same yardstick to the sensational story carried by one group of newspapers recently, to the effect that the rubber industry now concedes that there is no necessary shortage—that with 165,000 tons of scrap and 3000 tons of virgin rubber, the industry can provide 75 per cent of normal pre-war mileage. There is just enough truth in the story to make it dangerous. It is one of those statistical projections based upon a hypothetical question, worthless unless all details of the hypothesis are sound. The industry was asked how many civilian tires could be produced if this, if that and if a lot of other things. Its answer depends upon all those ifs. But the ifs weren't publicized.

If motorists will drive at 35 to 40 miles an hour... Take a run today on a main highway at that speed, and note how many cars make you appear to be going backward. If there is no pleasure driving. Well, what is all the shouting about, anyway? And, especially, if the industry is given 3000 tons of virgin rubber. . . Not much, is it? But without that 3000 tons we expect to run 5000 tons short of the rubber absolutely necessary, before the end of 1943, to keep the war going.

Forget all the other ifs. Do you and we have the gall, with our fighting men falling short of their needs by 5000 tons of rubber, to demand that an additional 3000 tons be diverted so we may drive to bridge, to the movies, to golf or the beach? BUY VICTORY STAMPS

Educating The Germans
Emil Ludwig offers a worthwhile idea about something we can do, when we have won this war, to help prevent another in two or three decades. He suggests that, for a certain period, the United Nations must assume control over the Reich's arms, education and government. We aren't certain about government. We feel that when any people is deprived, by force, of certain fundamentals of self-government, great harm is inevitable. About control over German arms we can't imagine any controversy. Ludwig's contribution is the suggestion concerning education. It is his idea that only by inculcating a whole generation of Teutons with Christian principles of religion, philosophy and history, can we hope to eradicate the Hun-like characteristics which long have made Germany the scourge of the western world.

Sweet Home
Those who have wondered what effect even an inadequate and loosely administered gasoline rationing has on automobile use now are provided with a measuring stick. Voluntary restraint, to save rubber, plus fuel shortage, particularly acute in New York City, cut traffic over five toll bridges in the city by 25 per cent during the first six months of this year, and by 40 per cent during May and June, when vacation driving ordinarily would have been getting heavy. In the east, home no longer is a place to drop in between trips. It has been made a focal point of family activity. BUY VICTORY BONDS

The Nation's Press
LEND-LEASE IS NOT A PERMANENT SOLUTION
(Chicago Tribune)
The Sydney Morning Herald, one of Australia's most influential newspapers, calls upon the commonwealth government to disclose in the fullest detail its undertakings under the lend-lease agreement with the United States. It points out that the government "is traditionally opposed to secret negotiations." There will be a general disposition in this country to second the proposal that lend-lease dealings be given full publicity. The Sydney Herald assumes that lend-lease is not a temporary measure but is to continue not only thru the period of postwar reconstruction but even afterwards. The Herald suggests that the lend-lease act is designed to dovetail with the Atlantic charter's goal of "equal access to trade and raw materials" in the permanent economic reorganization of the world. Australia, it was stated, must be prepared "to make proper reciprocal concessions."

Any one who examines lend-lease in the light of a permanent working arrangement will see that its inherent limitations defeat any hope of basing a permanent economy upon it. It has no place in a money economy. It is not even a barter arrangement, for barter is trade on even terms without money exchange, whereas the tanks and planes we are shipping to Australia and the wool Australia may be shipping to us may be of unequal value, and probably are not even of approximately equal value. No economic system will survive if the benefits are to be virtually unilateral. Pump priming was tried and failed on a national scale, and it is hardly to be expected in view of the experience

Common Ground

By R. O. HOILES

"I speak the pass-word primal. I give the sign of democracy. By God I will accept nothing which all cannot have their counterpart in the same term." —WALT WHITMAN.

WHAT IS THIS THING INFLATION?

The Administration is so worried about inflation that it is willing to take away the inherent right that belongs to every man of exchanging his labor for the fruits of the labor of others, in order to try to prevent or halt inflation. But when we violate man's inherent rights to freely trade, we are on the road to a form of discrimination and oppression that is just as bad if not worse than wild inflation. As the term is generally used, inflation is raising of money prices. In reality, it is something entirely different from raising of money prices. It is raising of the amount of labor required to satisfy a want. The difficulty in inflation is that it penalizes some more than others. The big struggle is an attempt to shift the burden resulting from inflation onto the shoulders of others. Unions are doing this by increasing wages.

There is no such thing as inflation to the man who is getting his wages raised more rapidly than living costs rise. When this happens these people can put in less human energy to supply a given want than they did before. Then all the burden is on the man whose wages are not increased and on those who have fixed contractual income or who have credits or money. Their credits or money buy them less. Normally through war times, inflation is one way of making these people who have bonds, credits, life insurance, etc., indirectly pay for part of the war. Part of their purchasing power is taken from them by a rise in prices. If ceiling prices in any line are so fixed that the reward for producing them is less than it is in other activities, people shift from producing the articles on which there is less reward to producing other things on which there is a greater reward. Then people are not able to get the things that have ceiling prices out of parity with other things. To avoid this, sooner or later a collectivist government has to come into power in order to prevent people from having the right of choice of occupations. We are already hearing talk about this kind of a move to prevent farm help, which is relatively underpaid, from shifting to jobs where prices of the finished product will permit higher wages to be paid.

No Artificial Remedies
There is no more possibility of the Administration preventing real inflation, that is, a lowered standard of living for the people as a whole, by price ceilings or by collective bargaining or by wage stabilization, when we are producing less consumable goods than formerly, than there is the possibility of making two plus two equal six. The laws of wages and inflation were not made by man and cannot be controlled by him or by the state. The sooner the people wake up to the fact that our miracle administration is either grossly stupid or deliberately fooling the people in order to remain in control, the better off we will be. Then we will come to know that working longer hours and permitting efficient management to get the right man in the right job, will produce more and help us win the war quicker with less loss of life and keep our standard of living up from what it will be if we attempt to keep it up by artificial price ceilings and rationing and discriminatory taxes.

Of course, when a large fraction of our energies are used to produce non-consumable, destructive goods, there will be less goods to divide. That is what real inflation is. It is not fair or democratic for the government to permit some workers to avoid it by passing extra hardships on to others by raising the wages of some by collective bargaining and/or discriminatory tax laws.

It is for each to bear his own burdens. When he does not then others have to have double burdens. That it would work on an international scale. Flourishing international trade depends on the exchange of goods in reasonably free markets. The practice of exchanging goods for credit balances that in the long run cannot be satisfied or for nothing at all is only an extension of deficit spending on a world-wide scale.

STUDY DIRT EATERS OF SOUTH
Scientists Believe Craving Aries From Lack of Iron in Diet
(Time Magazine)
Many a homesick or sardonic Northern Negro, writing to Southern friends, says "Ship me a bag of good dirt to eat." Sometimes he means it. Even in the Yazoo-Mississippi delta, Negroes and whites send requests to their upcountry friends for a bit of red clay, declaring that black delta soil is "right bad eating." In certain parts of Mississippi, poor whites will walk miles for a spoonful of dirt from a favorite bank of clay, because it "tastes sour, like a lemon." In other sections of the South, some top their meals with a savory tablespoon of dirt, believing that it is "good for them," despite its constipating effects. What makes people eat dirt? Two scientists at Mississippi State College, Drs. Dorothy Dickens and Robert N. Ford, think they know why: lack of iron in the diet. Science News Letter reported some results of their investigation among 207 Negro school children in Oktibbeha County, Mississippi. At least a quarter of the children admitted eating dirt. Most of the dirt-eaters had less of the iron-rich foods, such as molasses, mustard greens, liver, in their diet than did the non-dirt-eaters. And as far as the scientists could find out, the craving for dirt (known as geophagia) has nothing to do with hookworm, as many doctors firmly believe, for hookworm is very rare in geophagous Oktibbeha County.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION
(The Honolulu Advertiser)
At the Republican territorial convention held here yesterday a resolution calling for statehood for Hawaii, but leaving the time for the acquiring of such status in the hands of Congress, was among suggestions offered to delegates. This was all well and good if the convention had the leisure to consider such a resolution, but so far as the hard facts in wartime Hawaii are concerned, it was just so much "waste time," and a superfluous motion. Desirable as statehood may be, few realists in this Territory expect it to be attained for a long time to come, and the GOPs indicated their own doubts in the matter by leaving it up to Congress. What Congress will do in the matter is something, in the words of the immortal L'I Abner, "any fool kin plainly see." We were a long way from statehood on December 7 and today we have multiplied that distance many times over.

People You Know

By Archer Fullingim

Judge S. D. Stennis, local attorney, says that he never did have any use for a yes-man in the government or elsewhere, but that in these times a man has to be either a yes-man or a no-man in his attitude toward our leaders' plan to win the war. Consequently, he says, he is a yes-man.

Join the navy and help Texas win the war! The navy is running short of men. It does not have enough men to man the new destroyers, battleships, cruisers which are sliding down the ways each week. So Gray county has been assigned a quota of 20 men for the month of August, and Gray county must raise that quota of men just as she went over the top in the Red Cross, in the USO drive, in the rubber drive. The navy can't draft men as the army does. It relies solely on enlistments for its personnel. You can't make a man join the navy; he just joins from choice, and that's the way it will be in August. Chief C. M. Norman, recruiter in charge of the Panhandle district, says that 22 men will equal enough men to man two navy guns. The quota, he explained, is based on the percentage population of the county as compared with the Panhandle district. Chief Norman is anxious about Gray county. "We want Gray county to meet its quota," he wrote. Well, Chief, Gray county will meet the quota all right. So you men and boys who have been thinking you ought to join the navy, give it another thought. Who'll be first? Who'll be second? Who'll be third? Before you go over to Chief Norman's office in Amarillo to join up be sure and give this column a ring so he can keep count. . . The navy needs skilled men, trained men to man the new ships. To train these men the navy has built new training stations and it has greatly expanded the facilities of old stations. Now the simple truth, writes Chief Norman, is that the stations and the ship building programs have outstripped the supply of men being secured thru ordinary recruiting channels. Every county in the Panhandle is being asked to do its bit. Chief Norman says, "The August and September drives to secure sailors will be the biggest since the war began. . . Join the navy and free the world."

The nation is crying for a patriotic song. Maybe that song is in your head. If so write it down and send it in. Publication in The News may help it along to fame. If you can't write the music for it send it in anyway because this column has a composer in the office who has agreed to write the music for any patriotic song that appears worthy. If your lyric is chosen you will be given proper credit. . . So get busy and write the words for that song you think will help win the war. You should have plenty of inspiration—Bataan, Corregidor, Pearl Harbor, the Flying Tigers, Midway, Guam, the Coral sea. . . Only yesterday Sigmond Romberg, leading American song writer, said that romance in songs is out for the duration. "The need is for songs that will arouse the nation's armed forces, not soothe them," he said. "Songs to inspire the fighting mood, rather than dreams of the girls left behind, are what we now need," he said, undoubtedly referring to such ditties as "One Dozen Roses" and "Jingle, Jangle, Jingle. . . So get busy, you can do it."

News Behind The News The National Whirligig

By ALBERT N. LEMAN

TIP: On the morning of December 7th, Secretary Knox announced, "I am proud to report that the American people may feel fully confident in their navy." A few hours later Japan made a mockery of his vanity. Yet had the administration heeded the storm warning flags that had been flying in the Orient since Russo-Japanese war days it never would have been caught so flatfootedly. But it took neither Nippon's threats nor preparations seriously and now the nation is paying through the nose for its blindness. The Knox incident is described by Frederick Moore in the book "With Japan's Leaders" just published by Charles Scribner's Sons. Because the author was for fourteen years the foreign counselor of the Tokyo government he had an inside view of the methods of conquest plotted by the Nipponese. He recalls how Admiral Nomura before the final break declared that the United States was underrating his country's ability, organization and reserves of resources. The ambassador questioned whether our appropriations of billions of dollars would offset the geographical and military advantages which his people already had, since it takes time to create armed forces and "a single great tree cannot be grown in a day by planting a million seeds." The emissary's tip is only one of many hints listed by Mr. Moore which should have put Washington on guard—but didn't. BUY VICTORY STAMPS

So They Say
Life in wartime is confusing. —LEON HENDERSON, federal price administrator. If after this war we do not succeed in causing Germany to pass through an internal change and revolution of the profoundest nature which will purify the German people from all the filth and evil into which Germany has been dragged not only by Nazism but also by its whole national political education of the last 60 or 70 years since 1870, and even since Frederick the Great, then we shall have a third world war in another 20 years or so. —Dr. EDWARD BENES, former president of Czechoslovakia. Politics are as the scaffolding to the cathedral. —JOHN DREWEN, former Hudson County, N. J., prosecutor, at swearing-in ceremonies of Federal Judge Thomas F. Meaney.

The mayor does all the talking for this administration. —JEROME DALY, secretary of the board of transportation of New York City. We Americans at home do not know the meaning of sacrifice. I say it is time we shed our general manners and customs and armed ourselves for the fight. It doesn't belong alone to our soldiers, sailors and marines. —Col. RICHARD C. PATTERSON, New York state chairman of the War Savings staff. The United States, as set forth in the Tanaka Memorial, whose author was met by Mr. Moore and whose bona fides are accepted by him. . . A "behind the news" sidelight to the events sketched in the book in this untold episode about Calvin Coolidge: When he retired from the presidency, he and his wife received an urgent invitation from the Nipponese cabinet to visit its country. But the shrewd Yankee did not swallow the bait. He had no illusions concerning the hidden intentions of the Japs and he did not choose to run off on an insincere peace junket. When he rejected the proposal he confided to an intimate friend that while in the White House he had gone to considerable lengths to avoid unpleasantness with the Asiatic state but that the policies developed by a predecessor (T. R.) in relation to Japanese expansion would bedevil the United States for fifty years to come. Franklin D. Roosevelt also misjudged the Mikado's leaders but—unlike his distant relations—he neither spoke softly nor carried a big stick. The inevitable result of this bluff is concisely set forth in Mr. Moore's volume—and in the story of Pearl Harbor.

Washington, July 30 (AP)—The senate judiciary committee Monday will consider the nomination of Alben B. Hannay of Houston as a federal judge for the southern district of Texas, Chairman Van Nuys (D., N.D.) announced. Van Nuys said he had received word that Senator O'Daniel (D., Tex.) was making an investigation with reference to the nomination and would give the committee a report by Saturday. In Houston, Hannay said he had received a telegram from O'Daniel at Fort Worth, reading: "My office in Washington already has been advised to notify the judiciary committee that I recommend you highly and that your appointment was highly satisfactory to me. Congratulations and best wishes." This advice had not been received in Washington late yesterday, O'Daniel's aides said. BUY VICTORY BONDS

Another question that arises is how far such massed bombing might carry us towards a victory—a subject which is a burning topic of debate at the moment. There are those who maintain that the war can be won in the air—a theory advanced as far back as 1921 by the late General Giulio Douhet, one time head of Italy's military aviation, who held that victory could be achieved almost overnight by employment of a vast fleet of bombers. Still, the Douhet theory has yet to be proved, and in any event the forthcoming Allied operations won't be on big enough scale at the outset to force an immediate decision. That bombing can play havoc with Hitler's war industries and transportation is a foregone conclusion, but the contribution which this will make towards victory will depend a good deal on the trend of the Russo-German fighting, or at least it so seems to me. If Hitler breaks through to fresh positions in the Caucasus, and hamstringing the Russian army, he will be able to bolster his lagging war industries in Czechoslovakia and other sections which won't be so much affected by the bombings as factories in Western Europe. In other words, he will be able to strengthen his own air-fleet and anti-aircraft defenses and so be better able to meet the Allied onslaught. On the other hand, if the Russians are able to hold the Nazis and keep them away from green pastures, German industry will decline with ever-increasing speed. This will mean a deterioration of Hitler's air defense and thus make the task of the Allied air-fleet the easier. Air Marshal Harris invited the German people to cast off Hitler's and make peace, thereby avoiding destruction of their cities. Without evidence to support the idea, I don't think we should bank on the Germans quitting solely because of bombing. However, there's one other interesting thought. Any Allied invasion of the continent must be preceded by a fierce aerial bombardment of coastal defenses, air bases, and transport lines. Once the bombing has cleared the way, we may get that second front.

The truth is that all this business merely dabbles on the edges of psychological warfare, which is an intriguing name but is still most woefully underestimated and misunderstood. To all too many people, psychological warfare means only propaganda via short wave radio. There's a lot more to it than that, but most of it comes in the realm of hush-hush military information. One extremely useful purpose of the foreign short wave analysis is in feeding back accurate information in occupied or neutral countries. When an Axis lie can be nailed down and the truth about any given situation be fed back into the conquered country by short wave radio, then it may do some good if it can be picked up and circulated through underground movements. That's a long-shot chance, but may be worth talking.

Berlin Broadcasting Are You Listening?

By PETER EDSON

This one is open to argument, but the question is whether the U. S. is doing itself more harm than good by spreading broadcast propaganda lies which the Axis short wave medicine men concoct and hope people will swallow. The way it works now, practically nobody listens to foreign shortwave broadcasts except the people who get paid for it. There's usually so much static that it's a fit to listen to and, under good receptive conditions, listening in on European stations becomes a once-in-a-while fad. People listen in on Lord Haw Haw and his succession of American counterparts now performing over the German station Debut, not to be informed but for a good laugh. Consequently, does it do any good to pick up the mouthings of these cute misinformation specialists, repeat them as government handouts, then broadcast them through the press and over the standard-wave radio?

The Federal Communications Commission's foreign broadcasting monitoring service now listens in on and records all these enemy radio stations. The transcript of all these words is run through a duplicating machine daily, and the gathered facts make up a book half an inch thick. It would take three or four hours to read it if any busy little government official had that much time. So a digest is made which can be read in half an hour or so, and nobody has that much time, either. It is probably necessary that all this recording be done, just for whatever clues may be picked up from the Axis-controlled mouthpieces.

MISINFORMATION MINE
So in various U.S. government departments men are assigned to study these reports and pick out the items that may be of interest to their chiefs, whether they be generals, co-ordinators, or assorted assistant secretaries. The program has become notorious for its inaccuracies and deliberate lies, these studies make the most complete analysis of misinformation ever made by man.

What good does it do? Well, a head of state has been evolved. Propaganda analysis experts who only a few months ago were probably respectable newspaper men, sit around behind their horn rims trying to figure out why the German radio took time to vigorously deny that cooking fats are being produced from the corpses of air raid victims in bombed cities. It doesn't stop there. A press release is prepared on this item, and the news is run in the newspapers and over the radio. Or if the German radio has told some nasty lie about the U. S., it is promptly and officially denied, and the denial is given more publicity than the original lie would have received. There hasn't been so much of this lately, but back in the days of the late unlamented Office of Facts and Figures, this was a daily occurrence. The theory behind this was that even though the original lie may not have received wide attention, the fact that it may have been planted anywhere made it necessary to spike the lie before it was spread further—by the very propagandists, by paid rumor mongers, by whispering campaigns and everyday gossip. Maybe so.

LIES RETOLD AS TRUTH
The other side of the argument is that, even though these original lies are labeled as such when printed or broadcast officially, so careless are the reading and listening habits of most people that most of these lies get repeated in gossip without the qualification that they are lies. The truth is that all this business merely dabbles on the edges of psychological warfare, which is an intriguing name but is still most woefully underestimated and misunderstood. To all too many people, psychological warfare means only propaganda via short wave radio. There's a lot more to it than that, but most of it comes in the realm of hush-hush military information. The disclosure by British Air Marshal Harris that a great Anglo-American air-fleet is about to scourge the reich, city by city, signals one of the major developments of the war, but while we can expect much from it we shall do well not to jump to the conclusion that this is a quick solution of all our troubles. One's first thought naturally is whether this aerial assault is likely to divert enough Nazi strength from the Russian front, and any easement would be all to the good of the Bolsheviks. However, the bombing can scarcely affect the situation vitally in the immediate future, and it's right now that the Reds need help.

Another question that arises is how far such massed bombing might carry us towards a victory—a subject which is a burning topic of debate at the moment. There are those who maintain that the war can be won in the air—a theory advanced as far back as 1921 by the late General Giulio Douhet, one time head of Italy's military aviation, who held that victory could be achieved almost overnight by employment of a vast fleet of bombers. Still, the Douhet theory has yet to be proved, and in any event the forthcoming Allied operations won't be on big enough scale at the outset to force an immediate decision. That bombing can play havoc with Hitler's war industries and transportation is a foregone conclusion, but the contribution which this will make towards victory will depend a good deal on the trend of the Russo-German fighting, or at least it so seems to me. If Hitler breaks through to fresh positions in the Caucasus, and hamstringing the Russian army, he will be able to bolster his lagging war industries in Czechoslovakia and other sections which won't be so much affected by the bombings as factories in Western Europe. In other words, he will be able to strengthen his own air-fleet and anti-aircraft defenses and so be better able to meet the Allied onslaught. On the other hand, if the Russians are able to hold the Nazis and keep them away from green pastures, German industry will decline with ever-increasing speed. This will mean a deterioration of Hitler's air defense and thus make the task of the Allied air-fleet the easier. Air Marshal Harris invited the German people to cast off Hitler's and make peace, thereby avoiding destruction of their cities. Without evidence to support the idea, I don't think we should bank on the Germans quitting solely because of bombing. However, there's one other interesting thought. Any Allied invasion of the continent must be preceded by a fierce aerial bombardment of coastal defenses, air bases, and transport lines. Once the bombing has cleared the way, we may get that second front.

Christie Colton badly injured young man... She was feeling a burning resentment against the letter-writers. What terrible things people could do in the name of patriotism.

AN EVENTFUL PARTY

CHAPTER VI
A PARTY people would never forget—

Well, at least Christie would never forget it, but she could not look ahead.

Right now, Jan was standing in the doorway of Christie's room. "Oh, twinnie, you're beautiful!" Christie breathed.

"Am I?" Jan asked, her voice stirred by excitement. "I really wanted to be tonight—for just once in my life I want people to stare at me. I'd like to be like you."

"Goodness, Jan, I never looked as beautiful as that. You're like Cinderella—only there won't be a prince for you tomorrow."

"I'm ashamed of myself," came Miss Sarah's voice. "I have been ever since I sent that note. I think you are a pretty brave girl, and I'm coming over as soon as I can get into my best dress. Anything else I can do for you?"

"You can call about a dozen people for me."

"Give me the names, but I think I know them already."

SOMEONE caught Christie by the shoulders and whirled her around. "Hey, young sprout!"

"Bart—LIEUTENANT!" Christie cried.

"Thought I'd surprise you. Like the wings?"

Christie could only nod, but her expression seemed to please Bart.

"Think you could live on as a Lieutenant's salary?"

"I know I could," Christie breathed, her voice electric with happiness. "You're volunteering for domestic service, this time, Bart. It might not be so exciting."

"Even K. P. would be exciting if you were in the kitchen," Bart glanced about. "Gosh, what a place to propose—and be accepted. Will you meet me in the library, later, so your fiancé can kiss you properly?"

"I'll slip away at 11," Christie said, happily.

Here and there, Christie could see some of those Miss Sarah had swung into line—"flu patients," and others who had been "out of town."

Somebody broke on Christie, and she saw Bart heading for Jan. Around 11, Christie managed to ditch a dance partner and made her way to the library.

The library was quiet, but some-

Stimson Says 'No' To Nye In Denying Harvest Furloughs

WASHINGTON, July 30. (AP)—Every interference with the rapid and efficient preparation of the armed forces for combat must be halted at once, Secretary Stimson said today in response to appeals for furlough of military personnel during the harvest season.

Exceptions to this policy, he said in a letter to Senator Nye (R-N. D.), were being confined to cases of extreme emergency, and excessive furloughs or leaves would "prejudice the progressive growth of our military power."

"If it should develop that the American people are confronted with a food emergency which cannot be met by the existing surpluses," Stimson added, "the use of military personnel may be considered, but only if all sources of harvest labor have been exhausted and the military personnel is employed as units and not as individuals."

Stimson wrote Nye that his department was being "besieged" by requests for release and furlough of soldiers on various grounds but that American participation in the war had brought a responsibility demanding rigid adherence to the objective of developing, in the shortest possible time, a highly trained military force.

Concluding that Stimson had "missed the point of immediate seriousness" involved in the Northwest harvest, Nye asked for a conference with the war secretary.

NO, this picture of a Baldwin-built M-3 Medium Army tank wasn't taken on the blistering sands of Libya, nor on the scorching deserts of northern Australia. It was made under similar conditions right here in the United States, on the test track of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, at Philadelphia, Pa.

Traveling at high speed through sand pits, up steep grades, over rough obstacles, each M-3 tank must pass grueling tests that simulate many of the actual conditions found in theaters of war. And they've got to pass 100 percent before they're allowed to leave for the fighting fronts. No wonder, then, the M-3's are the finest fighting machines of their weight in the world.

P. S. Hitler and Hirohito won't be happy to know that Baldwin's production of these modern monsters has just hit another new high.

Not Expected To Say So

WASHINGTON, July 30 (AP)—The Texas senatorial contest is being watched here with the keenest interest, but there is no official comment on either of the run-off election candidates, W. Lee O'Daniel or James V. Allred.

The experience of the special election in Texas last summer, when Senator O'Daniel won out over Representative Lyndon B. Johnson, is considered by some in administration circles here as a rebuff for so-called interference in Texas politics.

The administration openly and vigorously supported Johnson then against O'Daniel, and many observers here feel that Texans resented the action by official Washington in trying to influence their choice of a senator, so much so that many who otherwise might not have done so voted for O'Daniel.

Evidently with that experience in mind, administration spokesmen are declining to take a hand in the Texas contest this year, their private choice, unquestionably, would be Allred in view of the fact he had been held in enough esteem by President Roosevelt to have been appointed a federal district judge.

While the run-off campaign was getting under way, the senate secretary's office received an expense account filed by O'Daniel showing contributions and expenditures made in the primary campaign up to July 13.

The candidates in state primary elections are not required to submit campaign expense accounts to the senate secretary, however, and O'Daniel's was the only one on record here.

His statement showed that up to July 13 he had received contributions totaling $2,735 and had made expenditures totaling $1,448.88. Names of contributors were listed, but their addresses were not given.

700 High Class Sheep Up For Sale

SAN ANGELO, July 30 (AP)—More than 700 high class Ramboulléts are up for sale today at the San Angelo sheep show and sale.

Minor McVay of Eden, Tex., was named as a director and Guy Stanbaugh of Deere Lodge, Mont., was elected a director to succeed Joe King of Laramie, Wyo.

H. C. Noelke and Son of Sheffield paid $900 for a blue-ribbon yearling Corriedale stud ram to top the Cortadale division of the show and establish a record on individual sale for Texas, exceeding the previous peak of $600.

The ram was assigned to Malcolm Moncrieffe of Big Horn, Wyo. The top ewe yesterday was also a Moncrieffe yearling and went to Duwan Hughes of San Angelo at $160.

12 Million Pounds Of Shrimp Caught Off Coast Of Texas

(By The Associated Press)

Bronzed Texas fishermen, probing the briny depths of the Gulf and coastal bays, hit the fastest monthly pace in the history of the state's largest fishery during the last eight months, hauling 12,000,000 pounds of shrimp into Uncle Sam's food basket.

With the $750,000 which tinkled into fishermen's pockets from this catch, the total income of Texas fishermen soared to $1,250,000 for the period, boosting the state's shrimp industry to third place among the Gulf and South Atlantic states.

Though below Louisiana and Florida, Texas' average yearly production of shrimp now exceeds that of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, North and South Carolina.

From 637,500 pounds in 1880, the graph of shrimp production for Texas has seen it rise up and down until this year fish and shrimp yanked from the bellow gulf will exceed 25,000,000 pounds, says J. B. Arnold, director of the Coastal Division of the State Game, Fish and Oyster Commission.

Skipping over the Gulf waters which tinkle the Texas coast from Sabine Pass to Port Isabel are 624 boats engaged in fishing, compared with 338 in 1932. In the same period, vessels pursuing the elusive shrimp and fish jumped from 33 to 53 and trawls from 251 to 430, records of the commission reveal.

Over 1,800 Texans currently are employed by the Texas fishing industry.

From 1880 to 1918, Texas produced an average of 278,000 pounds of shrimp a year. In 1923 the annual catch had risen to 3,422,000 pounds and in 1927 it amounted to 11,832,000 pounds.

The rise in the catch was due to the advent of the other trawl, which first came into use in Texas right after the first World War. From 1927 to 1937 the average shrimp catch on the Texas coast was 11,721,000 pounds and the average value to the fishermen was $369,000.

Shrimp fishing is done in the salt water bays along the coast and a narrow strip offshore in the open Gulf. Very seldom do boats in Texas waters make catches offshore as far as ten miles or beyond.

In Louisiana there is a winter concentration of shrimp about 30 miles offshore, but no like concentration has been discovered off the Texas coast. According to fishermen, canners and wholesale dealers in the shrimp, three-fourths of the catch is taken in the bays.

The major inside fishing grounds are Matagorda bay, Corpus Christi bay, and West Galveston bay, in that order. Recently all of Galveston bay was closed to commercial fishing.

The largest outside fishing areas are off Galveston and Freeport. Outside fishing is also done along most of Matagorda peninsula and Matagorda island south to part of Padre Island below Corpus Christi pass, the most intensive fishing being in the vicinity of Aransas pass and Pass Cavallo.

In the early years of the fishery, shrimp were caught by means of large hand seines of 1½ inch mesh stretched. They were pulled by a crew of several men and some of them were 600 fathoms in length and over. Some seines were put down by poles and operated in water up to 20 feet deep.

Seines are still used to some extent in shallow water in Louisiana. With the advent of the other trawl they became a thing of the past in Texas waters.

All commercial shrimping in Texas is done by other trawls pulled behind power boats. The other trawl is a long funnel-shaped net with wings extending out from the open end, on both sides. The wings have a lead line at the bottom and a cork line at the top.

The average wingspread of a trawl is from 50 to 60 feet. The wings are tied to heavy wooden boards with strap-iron runners along the bottom side. The boards are attached by four chains, like strings of a kite, to ropes leading to the boat, so that the boards are pulled downward and outward when the boat moves ahead, keeping the trawl on the bottom and the wings spread out.

cooked, peeled and sold in unsealed gallon cans.

The second shrimp cannery in the country started business in Galveston in 1879 and produced 76,500 cans in 1880. The Galveston cannery remained in business only a few years and canneries were not reopened until 1923. Two operated that year. At this time the other trawl was coming into general use and canneries could be assured of a relatively steady supply of shrimp. In 1929 and 1931 there were six canneries.

Safety In Accident

VICTORVILLE, Calif., July 30 (AP)—Two men were killed and a third, Frank Filan, veteran photographer of the Associated Press, parachuted to safety in an accident involving two army bombardment training planes last night.

Killed were Sgt. Pilot Rodney M. Grim, 20, of the army air forces, and Clarence L. Block, 29, Los Angeles, civilian photographer for the West Coast Army Air Forces Training Center.

Filan was found wandering, dazedly, on the desert this morning, seven hours after the accident, by Lt. Clarence M. Skaggs and Lt. Col. A. J. McVea, who had set out in a jeep on a search, on a slender hope the star cameraman might have been able to use his parachute.

"I lost consciousness right after the accident," Filan told the officers. "but I came to and found myself falling, so I pulled the cord. As far as I know, I passed out again, and I don't know what happened then."

Filan was exhausted when he was found and was suffering from ankle and chest injuries and scalp lacerations.
