Christian Science Church Services

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, June 6.
The Golden Text is: "Whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forth: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it." (Ecclesiastes 3:14).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein. He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered: the Lord is gracious and full of compassion." (Psalm 111:2,4).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "All substance, intelligence, wisdom, being, immortality, cause and effect belong to God." (Page 275).

Sunday School Lesson
Text: I Peter 3:13-17; 4:12-16; 5:6-10.
By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
When thou art converted strengthen thy brethren," said Jesus to Peter.
Peter, whom Satan desired to have and whom Satan sifted as wheat, but for whom Jesus prayed, was indeed converted, and our lesson tells how mightily he strengthened his fellow Christians under persecution.
To have a good conscience, he assured these Christians, is better than everything else. To suffer for righteousness' sake is to find God's blessing, and Christ's presence is real to those who share the fellowship of His sufferings.

The man who would help and comfort others in times of distress and trial must himself have a deep faith and an unwavering courage. Boastful Peter, who had denied his Lord in a moment of weakness, had now become a man of faith and courage.
The thing that stands out concerning him is the calmness of his judgment and the evidence of a solid, well-disciplined life. Peter is no longer the headstrong, impulsive man, talking and venturing without thinking. Where he had once been all for quick and ill-considered action, now his counsel is "Be sober, be watchful."
But he is still the man of action. The difference is that he has become a very humble Peter, feeling the need of his reliance upon God.
He writes of the "mighty hand of God" and he assures these Christians that if they humble themselves, free themselves of self-will, God will exalt them and use them. Peter, who was so self-confident and so self-sufficient, now places all his confidence and his trust in God.
How much the world needs today the message of Peter, and the example of Peter in showing how God can give strength and spiritual power to the impulsive and easily discouraged Christians today are again passing through fiery trial. The fellowship of Christ's suffering has a very real meaning. To know that God cares and to find the strength that He gives is to find life's greatest experience.
We are living in a world today in which many supposedly strong, ambitious, aggressive men have been shown to be weak, and in which weak men have been made strong as they have listened to the voice of duty and have risen above all motives of safety and selfishness. May their numbers ever increase, and may we all become more like them!

Zion Lutheran Church Service
"Look up beyond the stars" will be the topic of the special address for the Sunday after Ascension to be delivered at 11 o'clock by Rev. Wolter, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church.
Using Ephesians 1:13-23 as a Scriptural guide, Rev. Wolter will point out how the person who "looks up beyond the stars" through faith in Christ will see everyone of his fellowmen as a creature of God intended to be his fellow traveler moving on toward heaven and the blessed inheritance; then everything from the smallest to the greatest thing in a Christian's earthly career becomes a holy thing, and it were, because it is a prelude to that great and glorious experience of being with Christ.
"Lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world," Matthew 28:20, will be the topic of Rev. Wolter's 7:45 p. m. address, which words guide a Christian to think of Jesus as the Great Present Reality, for it is this He promised to be in the final words which He spoke to His disciples as He ascended up into heaven.

Church of Nazarene Church Program
Church of the Nazarene Sunday School starts at 9:45 a. m. and at 11:00 a. m. we begin with a special "Children Day" service. Evangelistic Service will be held at 8:00 p. m. Monday morning, June 7th, at 9:09 a. m. we begin our "Daily Vacation Bible school."
At so many of our homes both mother and dad are working to help the war effort, so lets employ the children, and send them to the Daily Vacation Bible school.

Central Baptist Sunday Services
Regular services will be conducted at the Central Baptist church Sunday at which time Rev. Sumrall, pastor, will preach.
In observation of the fact that Rev. Sumrall begins his fourth year's work with the church next Sunday he has chosen to speak on the subject: "A Stone of Success," using the words of Samuel, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." Earnest prayer and plans have been made for the success of this service. The many blessings of the Lord upon the church will be remembered in this service.
"God's Victory Day" will be the title of the evening sermon at 8 o'clock. All of us are thinking of victory, the word has become our slogan and word of hope and inspiration. If man wins great victories how much greater will be God's victory over sin and Satan.
All who do not worship at other churches are urged to attend with us. At the close of the service Sunday evening several people will be baptized thus uniting with the church. We are praying for a successful day and we invite every member of the church to share the day with us.

Well-refrigerated meat, fish, and poultry left-overs can be used in Monday's dinner as Group 5 to save costs, extra work, and to give "pleasant eating," as such dinners must be well planned and based on tested recipes.

Actress Charges Chaplin Father Of Unborn Baby

LOS ANGELES, June 4 (AP)—Movie comedian Charlie Chaplin was under court order to day to answer charges, contained in a civil suit, that he is the father of 22-year-old Joan Berry's unborn child.

The action was filed yesterday by Mrs. Gertrude Berry of New York, whose daughter declares Chaplin promised her a film career but permitted a $75-weekly contract to expire last October, before she had appeared in anything but camera test shots.

The suit petitions that Chaplin be named father of the child and ordered to pay $2,500 monthly, beginning immediately, for its support, as well as $10,000 for Miss Berry's medical care and $5,000 for court and attorney's costs.

It states that Chaplin and Miss Berry have never been married, and that he denies paternity.

Chaplin, instructed to appear June 17 on a show-cause order, issued this statement last night, through his attorneys:

"Miss Berry states her unborn child was conceived in December, last. The first claim made upon me by Miss Berry was in May, and was accompanied by demand for payment of $150,000. I am not responsible for Miss Berry's condition."

Miss Berry said yesterday: "I spent many evenings with Mr. Chaplin at his home. We studied Shakespeare together. I worked hard—very hard. Mr. Chaplin coached me in diction, voice control and all the other technical dramatic arts."

Then, through her counsel she made this statement: "I would not think of bringing suit if it weren't for the other party involved—my baby. All I want is to insure the establishment of the child's paternity. I am in no wise interested in any money from Mr. Chaplin for myself, and I would never take the matter to court if it were not for the baby."

When her contract expired, Miss Berry said, she was without funds. Overwrought, she took an overdose of sleeping pills, she stated, and, arrested on a vagrancy charge, was granted probation provided she left suburban Beverly Hills.

Then, several weeks ago, she was rearrested for probation violation after assertedly entering Chaplin's Beverly Hills home through a window and creating a disturbance, but subsequently was released when the county jail physician declared her condition "consistent with that of pregnancy."

Instead of offering one scholarship as an award for the coed with the prize winning garden, four scholarships will be given to the four best gardeners.

The awards were announced last year after the university offered a course in gardening and agriculture for coeds in an effort to stimulate home food production.

If you operate too many electrical appliances on a circuit at one time (appliances whose wattage totals more than 1800 watts) your fuse blows out. For example—the electric iron shown at left takes 1000 watts, the electric toaster 600 watts and the electric coffee-maker 600 watts—a total of 2,200 watts! They Aren't Impressed

It may be a headache for a brass hat who has spent years winding himself up in red tape and putting a new length of ramrod in his back every time seniority day rolled around and brought him new and more impressive shoulder ornaments. But the thing that makes American fighting men lovable to the nation, and dreaded by its enemies, is their utter refusal to be impressed by bumptious tradition.

Thousands of young officers who but recently were students, clerks, foremen and farmers have carved their names in the tablets of American history as superior fighting men. They are the same irreverent youngsters who, until they were sent into battle, amused themselves sticking pins into the stiffness of military etiquette and formulae.

Here, from a glossary provided by a naval ensign, is how they interpret some of the bromides their professional superiors have worked out through the years for military correspondence.

"Referred for remarks." An unscrupulous method of making a junior officer do all the work so that his senior need only add the word "forwarded," and sign his name.

"I approach the subject with an open mind." I am completely ignorant of the whole subject.

"A growing body of opinion." Two very senior staff officers agree.

"Opinion is widely held." Three very senior staff officers agree.

"Under consideration." Papers are temporarily mislaid.

"Under active consideration." I'll have somebody start looking for the file.

"I concur generally." I haven't read the paper and don't want to be bound by anything I may say.

"All orders issued by my predecessor are to remain in force." I haven't read them yet, but will alter them as soon as I find out what is in them.

"This matter is being dealt with separately." The writer hopes it will be forgotten before anything has to be done.

"Being in all respects ready for sea." Navigator, senior officer and sufficient gin are on board.

These definitions, obviously, are on the burlesque side and do not reflect the sincere respect that most junior officers feel toward most seniors. But also they cut right through the stuffing in the shirt.

Did you ever try to put up a false front for a bright child? Well, it's just as silly to try to impress a reserve officer.

Argentine Justice

Argentina doesn't rate very high with other Americans right now, while she holds back from hemisphere solidarity against the Axis. That shouldn't prevent us from giving three rousing cheers for Judge Tobal of the criminal court, who fined a couple for naming two of their children Zoroaster and Jupiter.

Too many men and women have gone through life hiding the shame of silly names that were pinned on them before they were able to do anything in self-defense. Once such a tag is attached, publicly, it is all but impossible to shake. There always is some wise guy to dig the buried moniker out of the deepest grave.

BAYONETS IN HOT SPRINGS (Daily Oklahoman)

American citizens are somewhat startled when they learn that 200 helmeted soldiers are standing guard in Hot Springs, Va., to keep the public from learning what is going on at the international food conference in that mountain resort. It is something entirely new in their American experience.

But why should they be startled? In nearly every country on earth the exclusion of the public would be accepted as a matter of course. In most of the countries the exclusion would be expected. In all countries that are ruled by despots the exclusion of the public is the unvarying rule.

The only reason why Americans are surprised by the use of the bayonets to keep back the reporter is that it is something new in America. It is something new in the United States for the government to employ the policy of kings who can do no wrong. But it is not new in Europe or the Orient. In fact, it is a custom hoary with age. It has been the unbroken rule of Tudor and Stuart and Romanoff and Hohenzollern and Coburg and Bourbon and Savoy from an age when the mind of the people was to be kept in the dark.

All of us know how Hitler manages one of his conferences. Reporters and cannon fodder keep their distance and they approach the conference gates at the peril of their lives. Storm troopers stand ready to make short shifts of the audacious citizen who manifests any interest when his country is being bought or sold or committed to a cause that is fraught with the issues of life and death. Most of Hitler's important conferences are held at a mountain stronghold, somewhat similar to Hot Springs, Va. And all of them are held behind a line of ready rifles and bristling bayonets.

Our western bureaucrats who are so eager to ape the habits and customs of the totalitarians will have a long way to go before they succeed in convincing the people that issues of great pith and moment are none of the people's business. They will have an even longer way to go before they teach the people to positively love government by bureaucrats and bayonets. But give them time. Give them time. In the course of the years the people may be taught to accept as both righteous and inevitable their exclusion from all contact with, and all view of their governing authorities. They may even live to see a line of steel thrones around the congress and all state legislatures.

Wasn't it Alexander Hamilton who once referred to the people as a great beast? Well, what can a great beast know about international food conferences? Why shouldn't a beast be prodded with bayonets when it gets too close to a conference that could be arranging to put all Americans on short rations in order to feed the people of the alien world?

In any event we shouldn't register too much excitement when we read of the helmets and bayonets of Hot Springs. Maybe that is just a beginning. Maybe we shall see a great deal more of that kind of business ere long. Certainly we shall have a lot of it if we don't quit voting for it.

One of our generals sang during a recent air raid on Antwerp. We have reliable reports, however, that the bombing was worse than the singing.

Common Ground

By R. C. HOILES "I speak the past-word primal, I give the sign of democracy. By God I will accept nothing which cannot have their counterpart of on the same terms." —WALT WHITMAN.

THE WITCHHUNT OF CHURCH MAGAZINE EDITORS

I have been reading a couple of editorials in two church magazines on the coal strike. One was in the Christian Century and the other in the Christian Advocate, the latter being the official magazine of the Methodist church.

After one reads these magazines, he is more and more convinced that the modern church leaders are hunting witches and their idea of a witch is any man who produces wealth faster than they can produce it.

The Christian Century makes a lot of untruthful statements. For instance, the editor contended that under free enterprise the employer could judge his own case and enforce his own judgment upon labor.

But he never explains if that were true, why it is that wages have increased one and one-half per cent a year for 150 years under the system which, he says, puts labor at the arbitrary will of the employer. The employers must have been very generous if his statements are true. The fact of the matter is, however, that the employer must pay his employees as much or more than any other employer in order to get them. And this bidding against other employers who have better tools or are better managers, wily nifty forces wages up as we accumulate knowledge and tools.

When the employer pays as much as any other employer is willing to pay, or as the worker can earn working for himself, he is paying all the employer is worth, no matter how often these inexperienced, covetous people say he is not.

After making a lot of other absurd statements, the editor of the Christian Century says, "But we are not presuming to offer a formula."

Of course, he nor anyone else who believes in collective bargaining can offer a formula. There is no formula, if the law of supply and demand is abandoned, but force and robbery. When people do not believe that the employer is equally free to trade his labor to the man who will reward him the most, as the worker is equally free to trade his labor to the employer who will reward him the most, the only alternative is force. These church leaders have been advocating sorcery, black magic—that there was some way of having the workers free without having the employer also equally free.

The Christian Advocate, Roy Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate, blames our condition in the coal mines on the people of means not giving the church official enough money to send young ministers and deaconesses into the coal mine districts.

Yet, in the same article, Roy Smith talks about the coal miners standing ready to seize their rights. But, of course, Roy Smith, nor the editor of the Christian Century, Charles Morrison, neither could define how to arrive at what the coal miners, and the coal operators rights are. Both of them seem to be obsessed with the idea that if the price of coal increases, it will come out of the pockets of the rich instead of out of the pockets of other workers and, thus, lower the real wage of other workers. The real rich probably do not buy one-tenth of one per cent of the coal mined.

These church leaders do not seem to see that they have been the very ones who have been preaching doctrines that are bound to lead to civil war in industry. They do not seem to understand that the success of one man in being able to produce more and sell for less, does not mean the failure of another, as it does in war. It means the benefit of every other human being unless men believe they can have rights without responsibility. Yet this church editor has the nerve to say give us more money so we can explain. They do this even when the leaders themselves have no impersonal rules of conduct as a guide in their teaching.

Yes, the church leaders have been largely responsible for bringing on these strikes by their social creeds, by their failing to preach the Ten Commandments, by the lack of meekness, by their desire and covetousness of their leaders to distribute the wealth that other men produced. They seem to have forgotten Jesus' statement when He said, "Who made me a divider over you?"

One Safe Test

The National Civil Service Reform League, which long has been a bulwark of the merit system in government employment, adds its voice to protest against the McKellar bill, which would require Senate confirmation for all appointments to administrative positions that pay from $4500 up.

"This proposal," the League warns, "is a direct threat to the war effort. It strikes at the very heart of the merit system principle of selection for public positions. It makes a career system virtually impossible. It places a premium on political connections of persons whose capacity may be mediocre. Those who rely on merit and ability alone are placed at a decided disadvantage."

The intent and the effect of the McKellar bill should be recognized clearly by all who are interested in the efficiency of our mastodon federal government, which has close to three million men and women on its payrolls, exclusive of the armed services.

Ostensibly—and there is not too much reason to go behind the claim—the bill is designed to give Congress control over all persons who help to make federal policy.

This desire is increased, if not inspired, by the extent to which, under wartime laws, properly or improperly the executive departments are making and altering law so that congressmen have no idea what the law may be at any given time.

The bill is aimed at what Senator McKellar and many others regard as usurpation of unconstitutional powers by a vast and expanding bureaucracy. It arouses much sympathy in the public breast.

Nevertheless, its effect, unless human nature has changed overnight, would be to make state and local party leaders the judges as to who should fill every responsible job in Washington. Their judgment inevitably would rest upon the party loyalty and activity of candidates, rather than upon ability to serve the nation in time of stress.

"Senate confirmation," the League warns, "neither prevents over expansion of personnel nor assures against the appointment of over-zealous and officious bureaucrats. It substitutes one evil for another by inevitably injecting the patronage system."

And the League adds: "The World War has now brought the United States to the point where but one test can safely be applied to our public service—competence."

WELL, ALMOST AS BIG, ANYHOW

The National Whirligig News Behind The News

By RAY TUCKER

HOSTILITIES — Congressman Fred Bradley's futile attempt to crash the gate at the Hot Springs food conference has a serious aspect. It highlighted in a dramatic manner resentment on Capitol Hill directed against the secrecy with which the Administration is managing the war and preparing peacetime arrangements.

Democrats and Republicans observed that they had to wait for Churchill's arrival to obtain an authoritative report on the North African triumph and his prospective significance. Later the British Prime Minister sat with the Foreign Relations Committee of both chambers and satisfied their hunger for news in so far as he could divulge the background of great events.

The State Department has deliberately prevented key Representatives from questioning our own and United Nations diplomats on matters of vital interest to the Legislature. The House Foreign Affairs Committee has frequently asked that policy-making appear before it for interrogation but the requests have been denied. Likewise military and naval staffs have avoided inquiry by groups of lawmakers charged with handling problems connected with the conflict.

The earlier resolution for creation of a Foreign Relations Advisory Council has been pigeonholed despite the general belief that there should be closer liaison between the men at opposite ends of Pennsylvania Avenue. Ten months before Pearl Harbor the same Senators proposed that the Secretary of State report on the danger of trouble with Japan and on our preparations to meet it was given the same silent treatment. Had Mr. Hull provided our earlier losses in that area might have been written.

It is true that the conduct of hostilities and the framing of treaties are vested in the Chief Executive. But F. D. R. would facilitate both objectives if he took into account the wishes of the colonists who must appropriate the money and ratify all post-bellum agreements.

SECRETARY — A small coterie of House Republicans is preparing data designed to strike at the star chamber proceedings through which the Army and Navy are renegotiating contracts not paid prior to April 28, 1942. The critics will charge that the methods employed are arbitrary, discriminatory and destructive to numerous corporations which made heavy sacrifices to meet the nation's need of munitions.

Many companies voluntarily turned back millions of dollars because volume production enabled them to manufacture weapons at lower cost than the figures originally fixed in 1939 and 1940. Others were hauled before boards that operate behind closed doors and forced to take reductions which, the concerns maintain, will bankrupt them or strip them of postwar reserves.

Principles complained is that the two parties follow entirely different rules. Secretary Stimson's accountants, for instance, are passing out settlement permitting from fifty to one hundred per cent higher profits than the Navy Price Adjustment agency allows, which made discrimination against certain firms. Some are allowed to keep a high percentage on all business, while others doing the same or more important types of work are cut deeply.

The men in actual supervision of these readjustments are Under Secretaries Patterson and Forrestal. Both are able and conscientious, but they cannot handle these matters in person as they exercise full control approximately eighty per cent of the nation's total current expenditures.

"The entire renegotiation system," is certainly one of Nazi justice, where an appointee of a politician can dish out to a contractor anything his opinion dictates. The general setup is bad enough without making it worse by surrounding the entire procedure with complete secrecy.

IRRITATES — When Western governors and officials recently met in San Francisco, Earl Warren, chief executive of California, requested delegates from each commonwealth to rise for formal introductions. Listed on the program as coming from Oregon was Ivan Block,

Around Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

Remember Small Fry? Of course you do. A 12-year-old named Donald O'Connor who stole the show as Bing Crosby's kid brother in the motion picture, "Sing You Sinners," filmed five years ago. Played in several other films and then disappeared from the screen.

Well, the other day Universal studio previewed a picture entitled, "Mister Big," starring Donald O'Connor. The invitations said, "The prize surprise of the year." And for once a Hollywood invitation told the truth.

Donald O'Connor, now 17, is the prize celluloid surprise of 1943. There's no doubt about it. The picture makes Small Fry the Mr. Big of Hollywood. He's a one-man show.

He sings eight numbers, plays the piano, mugs, plays the clarinet, fences, swings the classics with a school orchestra, does a blackface routine, jitters, does an impersonation of a ration-mad grocery clerk, swings a Greek drama and makes love like Clark Gable. Prize surprise is right.

SEATTLE, June 4 (AP)—Joseph E. Davies, President Roosevelt's emissary returning from Russia, landed unannounced and unrecognized at Boeing Field early Tuesday, it was disclosed today.

The former ambassador's plane taxied to the end of the field and stood there.

"I was wondering why they were so snooty," Schuyler M. Gardner, 21-year-old control tower operator, recalled today, "when the pilot asked me over the air if there had been any transportation provided he didn't say who they were."

"Nobody around here this time of night," I told him. He said he thought there should be some cars to meet them. I told him there just weren't, but I might come down and help them out.

Cavendish drove his old sedan alongside the plane, and piled luggage in the front seat with the pilot.

"There were a couple of tired-looking older men along, so I told them they could sit in back. I made three trips, in all, taking baggage and everything into the plane. Not until dawn disclosed 'Mission to Moscow' in English and Russian lettering on the nose of the plane did Gardner sense the identity of his distinguished passengers—Davies and Dr. Arthur F. Chace, traveling companion.

"Now I guess I'll rope off that back seat; save it to show posterity," Gardner said.

TYLER, June 4 (AP)—Ways of increasing food production were discussed by agricultural leaders, chamber of commerce managers, county agents and farmers from 71 counties of East Texas met here yesterday. The meeting was sponsored by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce.

George E. Adams, vice-director of the extension service of Texas A. and M. college, outlined the problem of food and feed shortage and how East Texas farmers might contribute to the total program by overcoming some of the losses suffered from recent floods in Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma and other states.

He said Texas is shy at least 200,000 of the former 300,000 migratory farm workers.

Trans-Ocean Air Freight

By PETER EDSON Pampa News Washington Correspondent

FIVE-HUNDRED trans-Atlantic airplane flights are now being made each week, exclusive of the ferrying flights to deliver combat planes on the other side, which go one way only. The 500 flights referred to are transport flights, hauling passengers, mail and cargo. They cover all routes, whether by way of Iceland, non-stop from Newfoundland, by Bermuda and the Azores, or even the South Atlantic crossing to Africa.

If the 500 flights per week, over 70 flights per day, sounds impressive—and it is when you compare it with the pre-war schedule of three flights per week, get out your pencil and figure it a little further. The average cargo which one of these planes can carry on a transoceanic hop is six tons. Five hundred planes carrying six tons apiece is 3000 lanes of cargo moving by air each week.

One ordinary Liberty ship can carry 10,000 tons of cargo. Assuming that it would take the Liberty ship two weeks to make a crossing, it could still deliver 86 per cent more freight in its one crossing into weeks than can now be hauled in 500 plane crossings a week for two weeks.

There you have in proper perspective the air transport situation as it is today, without taking into consideration the element of cost. When you start figuring up the costs of moving freight by air, you run into some really astounding figures, though in war times, when speed is first consideration, costs are entirely secondary.

DOMESTIC AIRLINES COSTS EDWARD WARNER, vice-chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, delivering the Wilbur Wright memorial lecture before the Royal Aeronautical Institute to put this factor in proper light when commercial airlines have to go out and compete with steamship companies and still show a profit.

The cost of operating a domestic commercial airline is figured at over 68 cents per revenue mile flown, but that includes all salaries, maintenance, ground services, depreciation and solicitation of business. Most of his business was, of course, passenger carrying, cargo being only 4 per cent of the passenger load.

The minimum of just moving mixed freight by air, exclusive of ground services and business solicitation, is now 20 cents per ton mile. Substitution of freight for passenger by the use of all-cargo planes cuts the figure to 15 cents per ton mile. Allow for profit on the operation and the figure must become 16 cents or more.

But Mr. Warner anticipates an increase in the efficiency of planes in the post-war period, with a consequent reduction in costs which he carefully estimates may be as much as 15 per cent. Applying those figures to his previously developed cost figures, he concludes that the best possible post war rates will be 14 cents per ton mile for cargo, or 1-2 cents per passenger mile for passengers.

BY AIR AND BY SEA THESE figures are for speeds of under 200 miles an hour and on flights where frequent refueling is possible. If the speed requisite is to be 250 miles an hour, the cost per passenger mile must jump to 4 cents and the cargo cost to 19 or 20 cents per ton mile.

Taking the lower figures for slower, most economical flight speeds, the best commercial rate that can now be anticipated for moving a ton of cargo by air, the 3,300 miles from New York to Lisbon or Liverpool is $462.

Compare that with the accepted shipping cost figure of less than 1 cent per ton mile—about $30 per ton for 3,300 miles even in war time with higher insurance and crew bonuses to pay—and you begin to get the real feel of what post-war flying development is up against if it is to pay its own way, without tremendous subsidies.

It is through social and political institutions that here are made to last. Unless the idea of international collaboration is embodied in political institutions it will remain a polite platitude.

Today's War Analysis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Writer

Again today Allied headquarters in North Africa report naval bombardments of the port-city but powerful Italian Islands of Pantelleria, which the National Geographic Society aptly describes as the cork in the Mediterranean bottle-neck between Sicily and Tunisia.

Shelling of this fortress is taken by the continent as further substantiation of the belief that the occupation of the island is imminent. This is on the basis that such bombardment often is the final step—though not necessarily—in preparation for such an operation.

It's true that the Mediterranean is feverish with signs of approaching invasion. Not only Pantelleria but the great island of Sicily and neighboring Sardinia, also have been so thoroughly sowed with bombs that it shouldn't be long before they are ready to bring forth fruit.

Spain has further reports of movements of great United Nations convoys in the western end of the Mediterranean and this naturally gives a fillip to Axis speculation.

It's quite possible that Allied strategy may contemplate the occupation of Pantelleria before proceeding with invasion of Sicily, Sardinia and perhaps the Italian mainland. The reason would lie in the fact that Pantelleria is a mighty dog strategically.

This cocky little island, which contains only thirty-two square miles, stands right in the middle of the eastern mouth of the ninety-mile-wide channel between Tunisia and Sicily, and is in position to raise hub with Allied shipping. All our vessels must go through this narrow channel and run the gauntlet of Pantelleria's big guns.

Invasion of Sicily will be no child's play, and the Allies need absolute freedom of movement in the channel if and when that operation begins.

Pantelleria, a volcanic knob in the Mediterranean, is sometimes called the Italian Malta, which is by way of being a back-handed tribute to England's powerful naval and air base on the island of Malta, lying a little to the southeast of Pantelleria. Mussolini fortified his possession heavily in 1937 in order to counter Malta.

It's well that we should be acquainted with Pantelleria, because it really is an important item in Allied calculations for that area. Its strategic value has been recognized for thousands of years and it was fought by the ancient Romans and Carthaginians.

POSSUM SHOWS UP KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Three-year-old Carolyn Parks liked to run away into the wood near her parents' suburban home.

Her father, Floyd Parks, sought to discourage such sojourns by telling her an opossum would get her if she didn't stop her wanderings.

Carolyn immediately demanded to see such an animal. To quiet her pleadings her father took her on an imaginary hunt in the back yard. He peeped in an old stump where—A mamma possum scowled with a brood of little ones.

Carolyn stays home now.

They Call It Pacific

by CLARK LEE

"There's Not Much Left of Our Air Force"

Chapter 5 IN the newspapers of the next morning, Tuesday, December 9, there was nothing to cheer us up, but the rumors were all encouraging. I heard that within four hours after the Pearl Harbor attack American planes had located and sunk the Japanese carriers which had launched the bombing and fighting planes against Hawaii. That sounded like the way the United States would do things, and we all believed it.

Another rumor had American forces on the way to Wake Island, where U.S. Marines were besieged. We boasted, "They'll knock hell out of those Japs and sink all their ships quick!" Someone said that a convoy had left the Hawaiian Islands for the Philippines. The problem looked simple to us in Manila. All the United States had to do was load those ships, put soldiers and guns aboard, and get them started out here. Of course, they might run into trouble, but the United States had never dodged a fight and this was American territory under the American flag.

Meanwhile, the Philippine government called up more recruits. Hundreds and hundreds of them were drilling outside the Walled City as I drove to the office. The government also rounded up most of the Japanese in Manila. Soldiers arrested some five thousand of them in Manila alone and found them ready to be taken to internment camp. They had purchased small suitcases of similar size which were packed with clothing, toilet articles and food, proving that they had been warned that trouble was coming.

There seemed to be a great deal of coming and going, and considerable confusion, around MacArthur's headquarters. The officers we talked to were serene but uncommunicative. They seemed to have much information from the areas where the Japs had landed. The USAFEE communiqué reported some patrol fighting in progress around Wigan.

News from other parts of the Orient didn't look so good. The Canadians were being pushed back in Kowloon toward Hong Kong Bay. Thousands of Japs were landing in Malaya. Guam was definitely finished.

FROM everything we could learn the first few days, Japanese forces that had landed in northern Luzon were not very large. But they were reported to be building a band of fire, Aparri. We wondered why our planes weren't chasing them out. We studied the maps with civilian strategists who pointed to Lingayen Gulf and told us: "The southern shore of the gulf is the obvious point for a major landing and attack on Manila. We have known about it for years and are prepared to fight there. It is the most heavily defended area of the island, with the exception of Corregidor."

During the day the Japs bombed Davao again and other isolated small places here and there in the islands. That night, after midnight, the planes came to Manila. I'd just gone to bed when I heard the motors. They weren't the motor torpedo boats. They sounded different—more menacing, more purposeful. They seemed to be coming from the northwest, directly across Manila Bay. I went to the window and tried to follow the planes by the uneven sound of the motors.

Down to the left where Dewey Boulevard left the bay and curved inland, there were many explosions. Although more than two miles away they shook the hotel. Within a few seconds a huge fire sprang up, and from that minute on until late in January there was not a time when the night skies of Manila were not brilliant with fires, and the skies blackened in daylight by clouds of smoke. Watching the fires eat down home and offices and churches and piers, I thought many times of Genghis Khan and his hordes of terror spreading death and ruin over the earth.

That night the planes made only one run on their target, then circled and headed out across the bay. They had been guided by flares and small brush fires ringing Nichols Field, and they hit their target squarely. One 1,100-pound (500 kilo) went squarely through a hangar, wrecking the planes inside. Several parked planes were destroyed. I telephoned Cronin, who was on duty at the office, and dressed and went out into Lupa's Park

Aviation Cadet George B. Cree, son of Commissioner and Mrs. George Cree of Pampa, has arrived at Ferrin Field, Sherman, Texas, to enter the third phase of his schooling toward graduating as a pilot and an officer. Cadet Cree will be at Ferrin nine weeks before he moves to advanced training and finally receives his wings as a pilot.

CANADIAN—Seven Canadian men are in the Seabee and stationed at Camp Perry, Va. They are Lawrence Teague, son of W.C. Teague, who has been at Perry the past eight months as master plumber at the camp, home last week on a furlough, Frank Catterton, Elton Miller, Woody Woodington, Roy Crim, Calvin Isaacs, and Brady Hanna.

William Grant Lindley, above son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess D. Lindley, of Canadian, was a member of the 43-E Class of aviation cadets to graduate from the army forces advanced flying school at George Field, Lawrenceville, Ill., on Friday, May 28.

He received the silver wings of a flying officer and was commissioned a second lieutenant in the army air forces.

Lieutenant Lindley entered pilot training September 23, 1942, attending flying schools at Greenville, Miss., and Albany, Ga., before going to George field. Before he enlisted for pilot training he had attended Park college.

Aviation Cadet Jesse Doyle Enloe, 24, above, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.C. Enloe, 207 N. Ward, and a graduate of Pampa High school, has completed basic flight training in the class of 43-G at Gardner Field, Calif., and has been sent to an advanced flying school.

Upon successful completion of this course he will receive a commission as flight officer or as a second lieutenant in the air corps reserve. Cadet Enloe was accepted for aviation cadet training on July 3, 1942 at Sacramento, Calif., was a radio man for two years in the air corps before he began cadet training. He attended New Mexico State college, Silver City, N.M., after graduating from high school here.

The Japanese ship was part of a convoy headed toward Lae, New Guinea. Escorting warship offered heavy antiaircraft opposition and Japanese fighter planes attempted to assist in protecting the ship which apparently was carrying much needed supplies for enemy troops. The attack was made in a storm. The entire crew was cited for meritorious achievement requiring skill, courage and perseverance.

Pvt. Wilson E. James Jr., son of county treasurer and Mrs. W. E. James, is now stationed at Salt Lake City. He has been assigned to the medical department. Before going to Salt Lake City, he was at Camp Walters, Mineral Wells, where he was inducted April 7, then at Camp Kohler, Calif.

ports he had received that the revolution was supported by the Argentine Army and Air Force. Argentine Ambassador Felipe Esplé declined to comment on the reports but expressed great interest in developments. He said he had no official information.

The disturbances developed as Argentina, the only American nation maintaining relations with the Axis, was in the throes of political campaigning in which Castillo's "Policy of Prudence" is a major issue.

Observers recalled that two of the official parties of Argentina were scheduled to convene today to appoint candidates for the next presidential elections.

They said this fact might be the main cause, or at least one of the reasons, of the military movement.

Castillo has clearly intimated he favored the election of senate president Robustiano Patron Costas and Manuel De Iriando as the next president and vice president of the Republic.

"The situation is in the hands of the army," a police official said.

Observers noted that the decree authorizing the appointment of general Marquez was counter-signed by rear admiral Mario Fincafi, minister of Marine, "in the absence of the minister of war," Pedro Ramirez.

CASTILLO

Janetiro conference resolution to break relations with Axis countries.

Argentina's present internal troubles date from the conference of American foreign ministers at Rio de Janeiro just after Pearl Harbor. Accustomed to function as a counterpoise to United States leadership in the western hemisphere, Argentina found at Rio that many American nations had already declared war or severed relations with the Axis powers, or had predetermined their policies without benefit of Argentine guidance.

President Castillo instructed Foreign Minister Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, Argentine delegate to the Rio conference, to accept no commitments which would compromise Argentina's freedom of action.

Argentina went no further at the conference than acceptance of a resolution recommending that the American republics sever relations with the Axis but leaving herself free to determine how and when she would comply. Then Castillo decreed a state of seige.

Castillo's neutrality policy has held since Pearl Harbor, backed by the state of seige by which he suppressed criticism. The president indicated at the time that the purpose of the decree was to check totalitarian propaganda, which had fostered unrest from the time Hitler assumed power in Germany.

The cleavage between Castillo's conservatives and the Socialist and radical opposition has grown more bitter during his regime. Castillo wants neutrality and isolationism; the opposition, led by Dr. Honorio Pueerredon, favors closer cooperation with other American republics and franker support of the United States.

the army. He commented that there was nothing startling or new about that and that the rule is a simple one and applies to all, not only the miners.

Mr. Roosevelt went on to say that if anyone is deferred because he is engaged in an occupation essential to the war, he normally remains deferred as long as he continues to work.

But as soon as he stops work, he stops that work for the nation, and then becomes liable for army service, the president said.

A great deal, he said, had been unnecessarily made of that feature in the newspapers.

Asked about those miners who have dependents, the president said they would be treated just like everyone else.

To a question as to whether alien laws might be invoked to deal with the strikers, the president replied he did not understand what was meant. He added that aliens are inducted and the same rules are applied to them as to citizens.

The nation's 500,000 striking coal miners were confronted with a momentous choice—obeying President Roosevelt's command to return to work by Monday or sticking by the union's half-century old refusal to dig coal without a contract with the operators.

Reaction from the idle coal fields was sparse and wary. The president gave the strikers four days to think it over, and to contemplate these possibilities:

1. Adverse public reaction as coal supplies dwindle, steel production plummets downward, and congress acts on anti-strike legislation.

2. Loss of their deferment from military duty, which has started already in Alabama and Tennessee by gubernatorial order.

3. Use of federal troops to protect men who want to work in the government-operated mines from demonstrations by pickets.

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, who takes the position he never ordered the walkout, could send the men back, but after a long meeting yesterday he held his own counsel. The men quit Monday midnight when their contract expired, the union says.

Only two of 50 miners interviewed in the Pittsburgh section indicated they would go back without orders from Lewis himself.

Hugh White, vice president of the U. M. W. in Illinois asserted: "I don't believe the order means a thing. The miners are, if anything, more bitter now than at the time or President Roosevelt's last back-to-work order because negotiations for their new contract have lagged."

West Virginia mine union sources said they believed the men in the AUSTIN, June 4 (AP)—The average cost of living in Texas has risen 21.6 per cent in the last two years, the labor department reported in its latest monthly survey.

The report showed retail food costs had reached a new high of 34.7 per cent over April, 1941, considered normal, while the cost of clothing was up 25.5 per cent.

Of 85 basic items surveyed in 19 cities, the greatest increases were in the costs of meats and fresh vegetables, the department said.

The average food cost in May increased 9 per cent compared with 1.05 per cent in April.
