Pantex cleanup to be $60 million

AMARILLO (AP) — U.S. Energy Secretary Steven Chu says federal officials estimate it will take $60 million to fix flood damage to the Pantex nuclear weapons facility and resume full operations.

Chu on Wednesday visited the Amarillo-area facility where nuclear weapons are assembled, dismantled and modified. He inspected some damage after about 10 inches of rain swamped parts of Pantex on July 7.

Chu says the Energy Department is seeking federal funds for the Pantex flood cleanup.

Perry defends race record

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican Gov. Rick Perry, who's criticizing Democrat Bill White over language he used with a black audience, says he's used the power of his office to improve race relations in Texas.

Perry pointed out Thursday that he appointed Wallace Jefferson, a descendant of slaves, to the Texas Supreme Court as the first black justice. Perry also noted he appointed Latina justice Eva Guzman.

Perry's campaign criticized White on Wednesday for having said he wants to be a "servant" to Texans while Perry wants to be a "master."

White's campaign said he's used that language many times before and that it's not racial. Black legislators came to White's defense.

Perry addressed a Texas Association of Broadcasters event, where White was scheduled to speak later Thursday.

CAT to build in Texas

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Caterpillar Inc., the world's largest maker of construction and other heavy machinery, said Thursday it will build a hydraulic excavator manufacturing facility in Victoria, Texas, that will employ more than 500 workers.

The facility will triple Caterpillar's hydraulic excavator production capacity in the U.S., and double the number of Caterpillar's U.S. employees making excavators. Construction on the 600,000-square-foot structure will begin next month, with production expected to start in mid-2012.

"Based on our comprehensive review of possible locations, Victoria's proximity to our supply base, access to ports and other transportation, as well as the positive business climate in Texas made this the ideal site for this project," said Gary Stampanato, Caterpillar vice president with responsibility for excavators.

Caterpillar received a $1.18 million grant from the Texas Enterprise Fund as part of its commitment to build in the state, Governor Rick Perry said Thursday. Since its creation in 2003, the TEF has invested more than $397 million in securing job-creating projects in the state.

BP agrees to pay penalties

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beleaguered oil giant BP has agreed to pay a record $50 million fine for failing to correct safety hazards at its Texas City oil refinery after a 2005 explosion killed 15 workers.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration said Thursday it is still working to collect another $30 million for other penalties that the company is contesting.

While the fines pale compared to the billions BP is committed to paying out for damages caused by the massive oil spill at its well in the Gulf of Mexico, it stands as the largest penalty issued in OSHA's history.

OSHA initially had proposed $87 million in penalties last October, but later reduced it to $80 million.

BP had contested the entire amount before agreeing to pay $50 million for hundreds of violations that it was supposed to fix under a 2005 agreement with the agency. OSHA said that BP had failed to make the improvements quickly enough, while BP had sought additional time to complete the repairs.

Condemned man impaired?

HOUSTON (AP) — A Mexican national on Texas death row has won a federal appeals court decision that allows him to try to show he's mentally impaired and can't be executed for a killing during a 1995 robbery in Houston.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday in the case of 44-year-old Virgilio Maldonado.

Maldonado, from the western Mexican state of Michoacan, already had a record, including a bank robbery and another slaying, when he was condemned for the shooting death of Cruz Saucedo. Prosecutors said Saucedo was killed for marijuana, money and a gun.

The mental impairment issue previously was rejected by a state court. The federal appeals court now will hold its own hearing. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled mentally impaired people can't be put to death.

Death sentence upheld

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal appeals court has upheld the death sentence of a Corpus Christi man condemned for the 1998 killing of his girlfriend's 4-year-old daughter.

In its ruling, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals is critical of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals for deciding earlier that the trial attorneys for 31-year-old Richard Vasquez did a constitutionally sound job.

But the New Orleans-based court says, in a decision posted late Wednesday, that Vasquez wasn't prejudiced by the lousy trial lawyering. It's affirmed the Nueces County jury's decision that Vasquez should die.

Vasquez was 18 when authorities said he fatally beat Miranda Lopez because his girlfriend wouldn't tell him where she had hidden some cocaine. Court documents identified Vasquez as the girl's "stepfather."

Men charged with murder

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston police say two men are charged with capital murder over last weekend's shooting death of a 14-year-old girl during an apparent robbery.

Police say 22-year-old Melvin Alvarado and 18-year-old Jonathan Lopez-Torres remained in custody Thursday with no bond set. No jail information was immediately available on whether the men have attorneys.

Police say both were arrested Wednesday over the killing of Shatavia "Tae" Anderson. The teen's body was discovered last Saturday in a field near the family's apartment complex.

Sgt. Billy Bush says the girl was shot in the back.

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas attorney general sued the Obama administration Wednesday over its new deep-water offshore drilling moratorium, claiming it is unjustified and federal officials did not contact the state before issuing the ban.

Attorney General Greg Abbott filed the 18-page suit in federal court in Houston against Department of the Interior Secretary Ken Salazar. The ban halted the approval of any new permits for deep-water projects and shut down drilling at 33 exploratory ocean wells in the wake of the BP spill in the Gulf of Mexico.

In his lawsuit, Abbott called the ban "an unjustified, arbitrary and capricious policy that will inflict harm upon coastal communities."

Also, the suit said, federal officials did not coordinate with the state or consider the economic impacts before issuing the moratorium. Texas is one of the nation's most active oil refinery states. State figures show there were 86,900 jobs in oil and natural gas extraction in April and an additional 107,800 in support industries.

Interior Department spokeswoman Kendra Barkoff defended the ban but declined to comment specifically on the Texas lawsuit.

"The Deepwater Horizon/BP oil disaster has made it clear that we need better health, safety and environmental standards for drilling operations," Barkoff said in an e-mailed statement. "The temporary pause on deep-water drilling that Secretary Salazar has put in place is simply common sense, and we continue to stand behind it."

The current moratorium replaced one that was blocked by the courts. The Interior Department says it's meant to give to give oil and gas companies time to implement adequate safety measures. The ban is in effect until Nov. 30, unless federal officials determine deep-water drilling operations have gotten safer.

Also Wednesday, the Justice Department asked a federal judge who overturned the initial moratorium to throw out that court challenge filed by several offshore service companies, arguing that it is moot now that the new ban is in place.

Company lawyers, however, claim the second moratorium is a "carbon copy" of the first and is a sham designed to circumvent U.S. District Judge Martin Feldman's earlier order by prolonging the court challenge.

The new ban does not seem to deviate much from the original moratorium in that it still targets deep-water drilling operators while defining them in a different way.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Aug. 12, 1960, the first balloon communications satellite - the Echo 1 - was launched by the United States from Cape Canaveral.

On this date:

In 1859, poet and English professor Katharine Lee Bates, who wrote the words to "America the Beautiful," was born in Falmouth, Mass.

In 1867, President Andrew Johnson sparked a move to impeach him as he defied Congress by suspending Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton.

In 1898, fighting in the Spanish-American War came to an end.

In 1944, during World War II, Joseph P. Kennedy Jr., eldest son of Joseph and Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy, was killed with his co-pilot when their explosives-laden Navy plane blew up over England.

In 1962, one day after launching Andrian Nikolayev into orbit, the Soviet Union also sent up cosmonaut Pavel Popovich; both men landed safely Aug. 15.

In 1970, President Richard Nixon signed the Postal Reorganization Act that abolished the U.S. Post Office Department in favor of the independently run United States Postal Service.

In 1978, Pope Paul VI, who had died Aug. 6 at age 80, was buried in St. Peter's Basilica.

In 1985, the world's worst single-aircraft disaster occurred as a crippled Japan Air Lines Boeing 747 on a domestic flight crashed into a mountain, killing 520 people. (Four people survived.)

Ten years ago: The Russian nuclear submarine Kursk and its 118-man crew were lost during naval exercises in the Barents Sea.

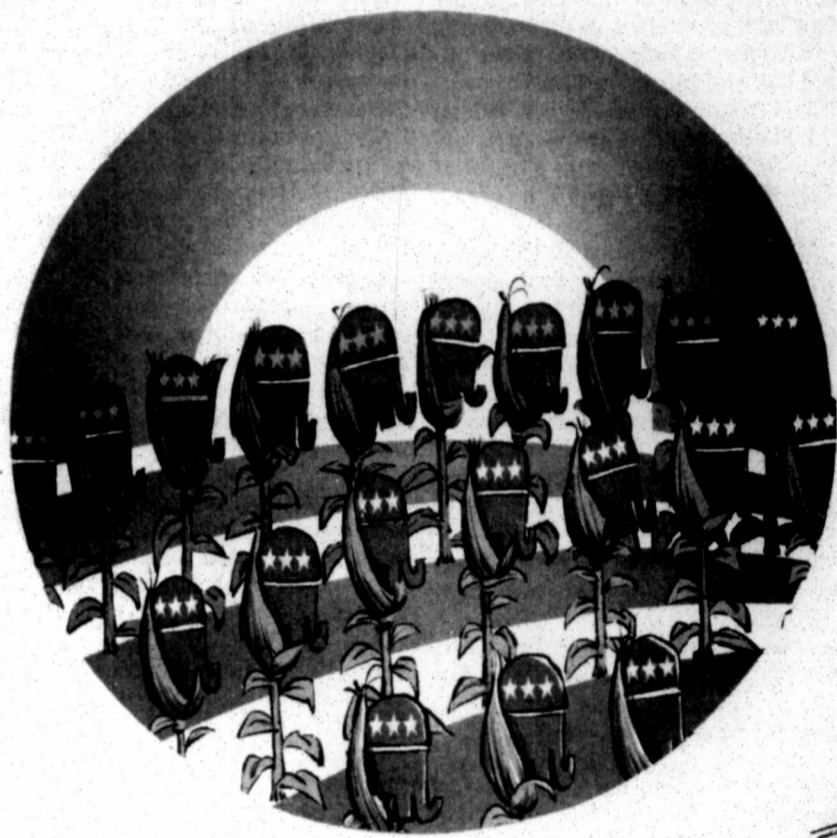

Five years ago: A NASA spacecraft, the Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter, began a seven-month voyage to the Red Planet.

One year ago: Sen. Arlen Specter, D-Pa., heard a fresh chorus of taunts from opponents of health care reform at Penn State University; Specter said they were "not necessarily representative of America" but should be heard.

Dems claim to like GOP's primary choices

LIZ SIDOTI
AP National Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Hard pressed for good news this election season, President Barack Obama's Democrats claim to see a silver lining in the Republicans' choice of political novices, sometimes mistake-prone, for critical Senate races.

Snubbing the GOP establishment's recruits, Republicans this week chose Ken Buck in Colorado, a county prosecutor who insulted his tea party backers and talks about significantly reducing the Education Department, and Linda McMahon in Connecticut, a former World Wrestling Entertainment executive shown on video kicking her performers in the crotch.

Those two join tea party-preferred candidates Rand Paul in Kentucky and Sharron Angle in Nevada, campaigners who have struggled with embarrassing missteps and cable-ready gaffes.

"Whatever folks say about the general atmosphere, the tea party takeover of the Republican Party is really producing real millstones for them," Democratic Party Chairman Tim Kaine said in an interview Wednesday. He called Buck, McMahon, Paul and Angle "wacky" with "ideas about the role of government that are way outside of the mainstream, that are just going to be offensive to people."

Anyway, that's what the Democrats hope. They argue their experienced candidates have the upper hand in general election match-ups with these untested folks.

Sen. John Cornyn, the head of the GOP Senate campaign committee, doesn't buy it.

"That's wishful thinking on their part," he said in an interview. "This election's going to be about jobs, spending and debt." And on those measures, Cornyn said, Democrats will lose because it's Obama's policies that are "outside of the mainstream and extreme." He accused Democrats of trying to change the subject by tearing down GOP candidates who were nominated. "Every single one of them is on the side of the American people," said Cornyn.

This is no ordinary year. An anti-establishment fervor has swept the country. Voters are down on lawmakers of all political stripes. In a June Associated Press-GfK poll, only a little over a third said they'd like to reelect their own congressman, while more than half said they want someone else. Just a quarter of the public approved of the Democratic-controlled Congress. Other surveys show support in the teens.

At a time of animosity toward Washington, is political experience really such a plus?

Out-of-power Republicans seem to have enthusiasm on their side, fueled in part by tea party activists. On Tuesday, for example, 406,588

Republicans voted in Colorado's Senate primary while 338,184 Democrats cast ballots in their contest, sobering numbers for Democrats looking ahead to November when turnout will be critical.

As they did earlier to Paul and Angle, Democrats wasted little time Wednesday in portraying both McMahon and Buck as extreme.

Sen. Robert Menendez of New Jersey, who leads the Senate Democrats' campaign effort, disparaged McMahon as "a corporate CEO" who "built an empire peddling violent, sexually explicit material that glorified the exploitation of women and the mentally disabled."

In turn, Cornyn of Texas called McMahon a self-made businesswoman and a "political outsider with a fresh perspective." He castigated Democratic state attorney general and rival Richard Blumenthal as a "career politician."

"Career politician." Fighting words in this election year.

Bennet, the Colorado Democrat who was appointed to the Senate and is seeking his first full term, proudly declared in his own primary victory speech:

"This election was the first time my name has ever appeared on a ballot." Never mind that his campaign was run by experienced operatives. And ignore the crowing from the Democratic National Committee, which promoted the fact that Obama's Organizing for America made 11,500 calls and knocked on nearly 3,500 doors in the final four days on behalf of the senator. Democrats plan a unity rally in Denver on Thursday that includes defeated primary candidate Andrew Romanoff.

Democrats insist that because of the candidates the Republicans are nominating, Obama's party now has an excellent chance to hold onto or, in the case of GOP-held Kentucky, pick up seats that were considered in jeopardy or out of reach at the start of the year.

But polls in Kentucky show Paul, the Republican, comfortably leading state Attorney General Jack Conway, the Democrat, less than three months before the election to succeed retiring GOP Sen. Jim Bunning.

And surveys show hotly contested races in Nevada, where Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid is unpopular and trying to fend off the upstart Angle, and in Colorado where Bennet is up against Buck.

In Connecticut, Blumenthal leads McMahon, but polls show his hefty advantage has shrunk this summer and McMahon - a wealthy candidate willing to spend millions - appears to be gaining steam.

If these Republicans are as deeply flawed as Democrats say they are, why are the contests so competitive?

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: "Devastated in Oklahoma" (June 18) asked how she can be supportive of her father, who is battling lung cancer. I was in a similar situation 3 1/2 years ago when my dad was diagnosed with multiple myeloma, a cancer of the blood.

It was terrifying witnessing the physical impact it had on my dad. I realized there wasn't anything I could do for his pain -- that was up to his doctors. But I figured out what I COULD do: I could raise money for cancer research.

I joined the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society's Team in Training and trained for an endurance bike ride while raising money for cancer. It was the greatest experience not only for me, but also for my dad, who was extremely touched by the number of donations. It gave him a morale boost.

I would like to encourage "Devastated" to look for a similar program in her area. It may help her deal with the diagnosis, knowing she's helping current and future patients just like her dad. "Devastated" doesn't have to be an athlete to sign up. I didn't even own a bike when I started the journey! — EMMY IN ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.

DEAR EMMY: Taking a proactive stance is an excellent suggestion and one I am happy to pass along to "Devastated." Read on:

DEAR ABBY: With two cancer survivors in my family, I heartily endorse your advice. Even when we faced a 10 percent chance of survival, we worked, prayed, researched and talked about hopeful prospects. It helped us all in valuable ways.

There were dark days, but love of family, attention to medical messages, prayer and forward thinking can make a huge difference in the healing process. This is a time for "Devastated" to bond in new ways with her father. — BEEN THERE, TOO

DEAR ABBY: My mother was diagnosed with lung cancer, too. She had one-fourth of her left lung removed. We thought it might be the end for her, but it certainly wasn't. She lived for seven more years, and I cherished the extra time I had with her. I hope "Devastated" will treasure every second with her father now. — BARBARA IN NEW MEXICO

DEAR ABBY: As a father of two and grandfather of four, I know there is nothing more wonderful than being involved with one's progeny. "Devastated" should know that when her father comforted her, he was given the opportunity to do what a father loves to do -- show love to his child. And believe me, to know he was needed was a comfort to him as well. She need not worry. She is right where she needs to be. — PAPA IN HAYWARD, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: "Devastated" should consider hospice if her father decides to stop treatment. It's a godsend and costs nothing. Most of all, she needs to let her father comfort her and to be her daddy for as long as possible. It will make him feel better. Let him know she loves him and will support any decision he makes. It is OK to cry, and to cry with him. — MARY IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR ABBY: My brave, strong, loving father was killed instantly in a car accident. When I learned about it, I wished I had him to comfort me. "Devastated" is fortunate to still have time with her father.

She should not feel guilty about her feelings; they are perfectly normal. She needs to be his daughter first, his second pair of ears throughout his treatment and his caregiver if needed. The strength will come when she needs it. — STILL MISSING MY DAD

2010 Property Tax Rates in Gray County General Fund

This notice concerns 2010 property tax rates for Gray County General Fund. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the taxing unit used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the taxing unit can set before taxpayers can start tax rollback procedures. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

	General Fund	Farm to Market/ Flood Control Fund
Last year's tax rate:
Last year's operating taxes	$6,278,928	$583,149
Last year's debt taxes	$113,756	$0
Last year's total taxes	$6,392,684	$583,149
Last year's tax base	$1,450,970,085	$1,441,653,894
Last year's total tax rate	0.440580/$100	0.040450/$100
This year's effective tax rate:
Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$6,369,854	$581,053
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$1,427,379,767	$1,421,630,764
= This year's effective tax rate for each fund	0.446262/$100	0.040872/$100
Total effective tax rate (Maximum rate unless unit publishes notices and holds hearings.)	0.487134/$100	0.040872/$100
This year's rollback tax rate:
Last year's adjusted operating taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property and adjusting for any transferred function, tax increment financing, state criminal justice mandate, and/or enhanced indigent health care expenditures)	$6,342,580	$581,053
+ This year's adjusted tax base	$1,427,379,767	$1,421,630,764
= This year's effective operating rate	0.444351/$100	0.040872/$100
x 1.08 = this year's maximum operating rate	0.479899/$100	0.044141/$100
+ This year's debt rate	0.008265/$100	0.000000/$100
= This year's total rollback rate for each fund	0.488164/$100	0.044141/$100
This year's total rollback rate	0.532305/$100

Statement of Increase/Decrease
 If Gray County General Fund adopts 2010 tax rate equal to the effective tax rate of $0.487134 per $100 of value, taxes would increase compared to 2009 taxes by $26,451.

NOTICE OF NEW U.S. COINS

GOV'T KICKS OFF BRAND NEW STATE QUARTER PROGRAM: Congress has now given their approval to begin the release of the new State Quarter Dollars. There will be 56 coins in all, each featuring a newly designed coin from every state and territory. Don't be mistaken, these are not the old State Quarters that you get in your pocket change every day. These are all new coins from the U.S. Mint's new America the Beautiful Quarters™ Program.

New state coins go to public free

State population figures used by the World Reserve determine how many residents from each state who beat the order deadline to claim the Collectors Coin Chest for just $9 get the entire first year of never-circulated U.S. Gov't issued coins free

By R. K. Berry

(UMS) - "They'll be practically clawing each other's eyes out to get the new State Quarters free."

So says Timothy Shisler, Chief of Coin Operations at the private World Reserve Monetary Exchange.

"Everyone who gets in on this will be among the first to get the U.S. Government's dazzling new coins," Shisler said.

The entire first year of these valuable coins are being given away free to everyone who beats the deadline to cover shipping and the $9 claim for the new Collectors Coin Chest.

So, what's the catch?

Just be absolutely sure to call the toll free hotline before the 48-hour deadline ends if you want to get the entire first year's coins free.

This is all happening because the World Reserve is issuing the new Collectors Coin Chest to the general public to protect and display the entire first year's set of the U.S. Mint's® first ever America the Beautiful Quarters™.

"This new State Quarter Program could end up being even more popular than the original 50 State Quarters® Program," Shisler said.

Coin values always fluctuate, but believe it or not, the original State Quarters have already increased up to an amazing 400% in collector value just months after the program ended. "So who knows what these new coins could bring someday," Shisler said.

Never-circulated coins like these are among those most likely to increase in value. That makes getting the Collectors Coin Chest a real steal since everyone who does is getting the entire first year of the new U.S. Gov't issued coins free.

Rations of the new coins are uncertain because each one is only minted for just 78 days and all of them will be released and delivered according to the U.S. Government's release schedule. So once they're gone, they're gone. These coins will never be minted again. "That's why readers need to call right now to get the entire first year of never-circulated coins for free," he said.

"These new State Quarters will be highly sought after and are extremely popular to hand out as gifts for friends and family. They are the perfect gift for any occasion," he said.

To make sure readers don't get left out of this free giveaway they need to call the Toll Free Hotline number before the 48-hour deadline ends.

"At the rate we anticipate giving these coins away we may be forced to give away more than $1 million dollars of these valuable new coins to the general public. So, if lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered," Shisler said. ■

HANDOUT BEGINS: The free money giveaway begins for state residents precisely at 8:00 am today. The World Reserve is giving residents the entire first year of the new U.S. Gov't issued coins free. But residents need to be absolutely sure to call the Toll Free Hotline for their state before the 48-hour order deadline ends to get the coins free.

How to get your Free Coins

Find your state below and be among the first to call the number before the 48-hour deadline ends. State residents who do are getting the entire first year of the new Gov't issued U.S. coins free just by covering shipping and only $9 for the new Collectors Coin Chest. All of your free coins will be delivered in accordance with the U.S. Mint's® release schedule. However, if you miss the deadline you will be turned away from this free offer and forced to wait for future announcements in this or other U.S. publications, if any.

Critics: Dems' new jobs bill will cost Texas schools

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Democrats in Congress rejected state Republicans' pleas — and the threat of a lawsuit — on Tuesday and helped pass a jobs bill that critics say will cost Texas schools more than $800 million.

President Barack Obama then signed the $26 billion jobs bill intended to protect 300,000 teachers and other nonfederal government workers from layoffs.

A state-specific provision requires Gov. Rick Perry to promise Washington that Texas will maintain certain state education spending levels through 2013. Perry has said the requirement is unconstitutional because the Texas Constitution prohibits him from committing future state spending.

He issued a statement Tuesday, saying he would continue to work with state leaders "to fight this injustice."

"It is unfortunate that Washington continues to play partisan games with Texans' tax dollars and the very future of our children," Perry said. "Texas will not surrender to Washington's one-size-fits-all, deficit-spending mindset or let Washington do to the Texas budget what they have done to the federal budget."

Lt. Gov. David Dewhurst issued a statement saying he has "asked the attorney general's office to explore all legal options to ensure Texas is treated fairly."

Dewhurst, a Republican, said last week he would file a lawsuit against the federal government if the language was not removed.

A spokesman for Republican Attorney General Greg Abbott called the legislation "constitutionally flawed."

"The attorney general's office is continuing to coordinate with the leadership as we weigh the state's options," said Abbott's spokesman, Jerry Strickland. "But Texas taxpayers can rest assured that we are prepared to take whatever legal action is necessary to ensure that our schools do not suffer financially from the Doggett amendment's discriminatory — and constitutionally questionable — provisions."

U.S. Rep. Lloyd Doggett, the Austin Democrat who crafted the amendment, called the protests "phony legalistic arguments."

He and other Democrats say the provision isn't unconstitutional and Perry should simply agree to the terms so schools can get an estimated $800 million intended to spare them from layoffs.

The Texas constitution says no "appropriation of money be made for a longer term than two years."

Doggett's amendment has been endorsed by Texas Association of School Boards and other statewide educator groups.

Democrats in Congress said they put forth the provision, which also would bypass state lawmakers and send the federal aid directly to school districts, because of the way the state handled federal stimulus dollars last year.

Texas lawmakers used $3.2 billion in federal stimulus money to replace state money and ended the legislative session with billions in the state's Rainy Day Fund, Doggett said.

"You can be sure that Texas is singled out by this legislation — it was singled out by the governor who grabbed $3.2 billion of federal aid to education to bailout a mismanaged state government," he said. "We didn't send that federal aid for education to Texas to plug a mismanaged state budget. We sent it to help our schoolchildren."

He said the provision in the jobs bill was intended to ensure state officials didn't divert education dollars to other parts of the budget if they received more federal aid.

"Today, in order to avoid history from repeating itself, we demand accountability, we demand support for quality public education and local control of education and not more mismanagement and interference from the state of Texas."

Coach Cavalier inspired many in coaching career

aglover@thepampanews.com

Former Harvester David Robinson first met former Pampa Head Football Coach Dennis Cavalier during a high school practice when he was in 6th grade.

"I was over on the practice field and I was dreaming that I could play for him (Cavalier) one day," Robinson said. "I came over there with my own ball, working on my stutter steps and jukes. Practice was over and he walks up to me and was like, 'Who are you?'"

"I told him that I was David Robinson. He said 'Good to meet you. Are you going to play for me one day.' I said 'Yes sir, I am.'"

Robinson is one of the many alumni team members who played for Coach Cavalier during his time as PHS football coach. Cavalier died of a heart attack on May 24, 2003 while he was mowing his lawn.

"Robinson wanted to play the best he could for Coach Cavalier and did the necessary work to do so as he entered the program at 5'2 and 128 pounds.

"I got to the point if I was going to play this sport it was time to hit the weight room and take this program seriously," Robinson said. "Let this program not only develop me but help me develop in the program."

Robinson said Coach Cavalier also helped him off the field. Coach Cavalier inspired all of his players. Though he has passed, his players are still touched by him today.

Robinson said he always felt better after he visited Coach Cavalier's office then before he went in.

"He helped me personally to get bigger, get tougher and get mentally tougher," Robinson said. "Helped me stay on top of the books. Coach Cav is a coach, but he was more of a father."

Pampa strength and conditioning coach Scott Lewis, who started coaching with Cavalier in 1981, said former players always came back and visited him.

"Year after year, players from 10 years and 20 years came back because he developed that relationship with them," Lewis said. "They never forgot him and he never forgot them."

Ramon Martinez, the team captain of the Pampa alumni team, said Cavalier was a down-to-earth coach and was inspired to play his hardest.

"I had a very great relationship with him," Martinez said. "It took a while for him to trust me because from the beginning he didn't think I had what it took. That's what gave me the drive and energy to prove myself that I did have what it took and I was proud to be a Harvester... After he saw what I had to do, he was all about ready to see me play."

Martinez said he was honored to be the first Hispanic starting running back in Harvesters history.

"It's really an honor and privilege that carries me today," Martinez said. "I've always wanted to give the Hispanic community someone to look up to. That we still have the athleticism to come in and compete and bring in the best effort we can do to win games."

Luis Martinez said Coach Cavalier was a great motivator and is the reason for this team to form.

"If it wasn't for Coach Dennis Cavalier being in Pampa for the football program, I don't think this team would be here today," Martinez said. "Not only was he a great man, he was a great motivational talker. He had a way with words that would light a firecracker on your butt and make you get up and do something."

Head football coach Heath Parker played on Cavalier's first three teams (1987-1989) and said they developed a bond right away.

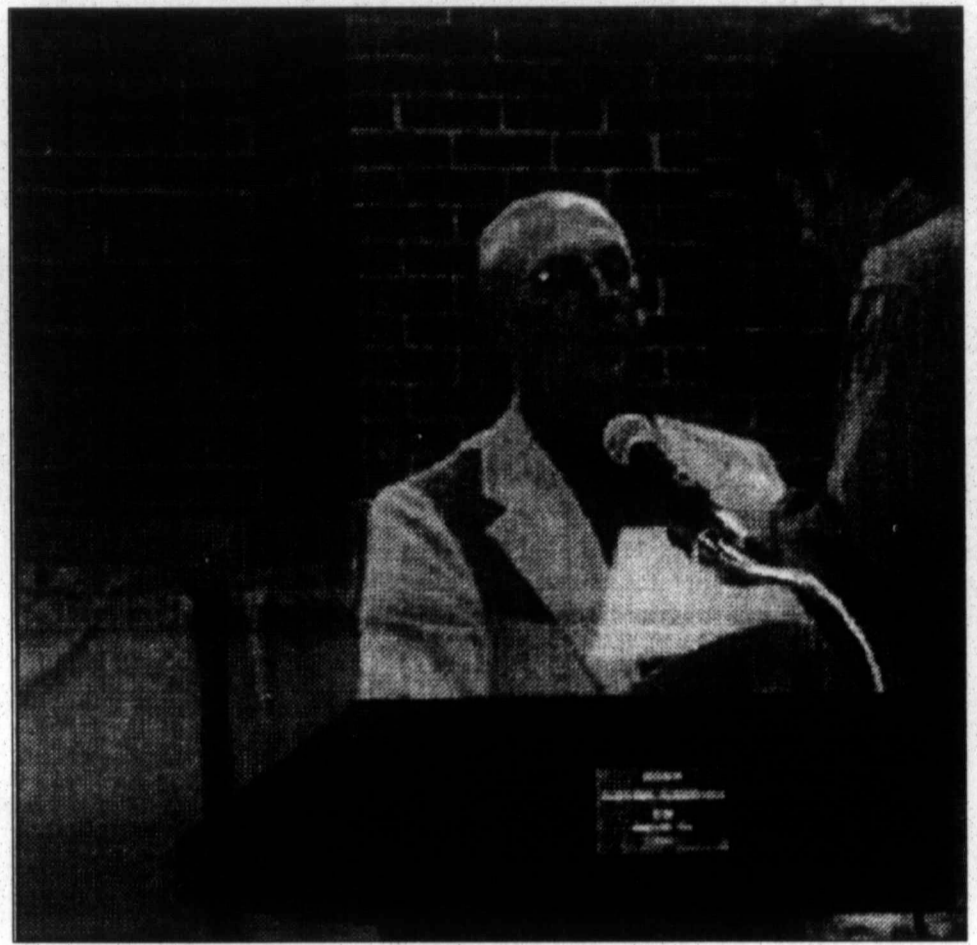

"So many things I do as a coach are what I learned from him (Cavalier)," Parker said. "You got to do it with your own style, but the roots and essence of what I believe in is what he taught us as players and the coaches underneath him."

Lewis said Cavalier cared about his coaching staff.

"He and his wife helped my wife and I during a tough time," Lewis said.

Kathy Cavalier, widow of Coach Cavalier said he was an amazing man and it was a privilege to be his wife.

"When we would go out he would introduce me to people as Coach Cavalier's wife," Kathy Cavalier said. "I never got tired of that and never felt that it affected my identity. We had many years of being involved in a career he loved."

Parker, who would succeed Cavalier as coach, said that the season after Cavalier's passing was hard.

"It was such an emotional time for everyone in the program," Parker said. "It was such a feeling of we didn't want to let our coach down. Nothing changed from what we were doing from a program standpoint, we were just missing our leader."

Lewis said Cavalier's death was very hard because he knew him for many years and his impact on his family.

"I had been with Coach Cavalier since 1981," Lewis said. "We were probably best friends. We traveled to basketball games together, baseball games together, anything involved with Pampa athletics. It was hard for me and my family because 2003 was my son's senior year and Coach Cavalier and his family had been there for the birth of my son. His wife helped care for my son in preschool when my wife was teaching. So they had an active role in raising my son and daughter."

Kathy Cavalier said their daughter was a senior when Cavalier passed away a week before school was out and the whole community was devastated. But Cavalier knew where they had to have the funeral.

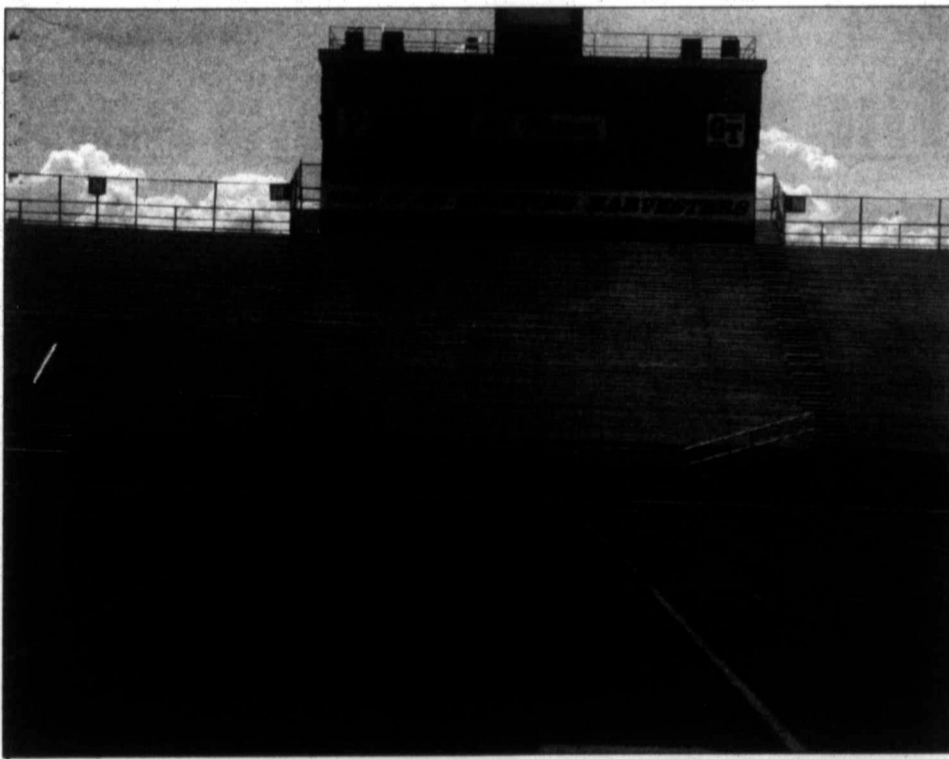

"We had his service at Harvester Field because there wasn't a church big enough to hold it," Cavalier said. "The home section was packed with 2,000 people. 100 coaches from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas were there who worked with him or were friends with him. It was very uplifting. We gave him his final game and pep rally."

Today Pampa's alumni team is playing to honor his memory.

"He brought the best out of all of us," Ramon Martinez said. "Made us boys to men and it was really something special to be a part of. It's something to reflect back on again and do it all over. Show everyone how special it is."
