Texas mom who glued kid's hands to wall gets life sentence

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas woman who admitted to beating her 2-year-old daughter and gluing her hands to a wall is to be sentenced.

Elizabeth Escalona pleaded guilty July 12 to injury to a child. The young mother is scheduled to be sentenced Monday and faces up to life in prison.

Her daughter was in a coma for two days after the Sept. 7, 2011, incident. The girl and her siblings have since been taken into state custody. Police records show the toddler's siblings told investigators their mother kicked the girl in the stomach repeatedly and hit her with various objects before gluing her hands to the wall. She was in a hospital for a week.

Dallas police say Escalona was mad about potty training problems.

Woman arrested for hitting girl over ice cream

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A woman has been arrested for allegedly hitting a 10-year-old girl who refused to share ice cream with her daughter.

The San Antonio Express-News reported (bit.ly/SFxnH3) Sunday that the 10 year old bought ice cream Saturday and began playing with nearby children.

A 4 year old asked the older girl for her ice cream, and when she refused, tried to grab it. Police say the 10 year old then slapped her hand away.

The older girl began walking home but the mother of the 4 year old, Talysa Herron, approached and hit her in the face. She then followed her home in her car.

The 10-year-old's mother, Cyndi Lafontaine, confronted Herron but was herself punched and beaten until police were called. Herron has been charged with injury to a child.

Austin water main break leads to road collapse

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Utility officials say a water main break in Austin has caused part of a street to collapse and cracked sections of pavement.

Authorities say the damage to York Boulevard in northwest Austin was discovered Monday morning.

Austin water utility spokeswoman Jill Mayfield says the road has been closed for the repairs. Some water outages were reported in the neighborhood as the line was shut down. Officials are trying to determine what caused the water-line break.

A cold front moved through the Austin area over the weekend. The National Weather Service says temperatures early Monday were in the low 50s in Austin.

World champs win wife-carrying contest

NEWRY, Maine (AP) — A Finnish couple has added to their victories by taking first place in the North American Wife Carrying Championship at Maine's Sunday River ski resort.

Taisto Miettinen and Kristina Haapanen traveled from Helsinki, Finland — where they won the World Wife Carrying Championship — for Saturday's contest. The Sun Journal (bit.ly/Q30QWq) reports that the couple finished with a time of 52.58 seconds on a course that includes hurdles, sand traps and a water hole.

The winners receive the woman's weight in beer and five times her weight in cash.

For Miettinen and Haapanen, that meant a check for $530. They shared their beer winnings with the second- and third-place finishers — Jesse Wall and Christine Arsenault of South Paris and David and Lacey Castro of Lewiston.

W. Pa. town to vote on parade chairs

CANONSBURG, Pa. (AP) — A western Pennsylvania borough council is set to vote on a compromise policy to solve concerns about people who put out curbside chairs to reserve seats for the borough's popular Fourth of July parade.

The issue has come to a head in Canonsburg because some people have put up chairs to save their seats nearly two weeks in advance. Some folks tether the chairs together with rope or chains, or link them to utility poles. That can block access to sidewalks and causes other problems when the chairs blow over in stormy weather.

On Monday night, council will vote on a new policy banning the chairs until 6 a.m. July 2.

Officials don't want to ban the practice entirely because the chair-placing has become an event unto itself, with many residents decorating their chairs in a festive way.

LaFave

Scheutzon on bass, Bobby Kallus on drums, Bryan Peterson on piano and John Inmon on guitar.

Joining the group at the last minute was BettySoo Terry, an Austin-based singer/songwriter whose interpretation of "Vigilante Man" was one of the highlights of the concert.

The song was about how union organizers for the Oklahoma migrants who moved to California during the Dust Bowl were harassed or even murdered by local thugs and even the police.

In true Bob Dylan style, Fracasso performed solo with guitar and harmonica.

LaFave said that Woody's words and music are not only revered by folk artists such as Dylan and Pete Seeger, but also by rock musicians like Jimmi Hendrix and John Lennon.

Though Guthrie is in the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, he is not in the Country Music Hall of Fame, LaFave said.

LaFave believes the reason is probably because of Guthrie's outspoken political views.

According to LaFave, Guthrie was neither "right wing, left wing or chicken wing." He simply believed that all races should be treated equal and that workers should be paid a fair and honest wage.

LaFave said Guthrie was pegged by some in the establishment as "Godless communist."

"When Woody would apply for jobs, they'd ask him, 'Mr. Guthrie, what religion are you?' and Guthrie would put down 'all.'"

When he was told he couldn't put that on his application, Guthrie would write "none."

LaFave said Guthrie was not a communist and had written page after page protesting against Hitler and fascism.

The concert ended with a song along of Guthrie's most famous tune, "This Land Is Your Land."

LaFave brought on stage the few members of Guthrie's family who were attending, along with a local residents who were organizers of the concert.

Winning the day means the same as winning the election

WASHINGTON (AP) — It can be something as small as positioning the candidate at just the right camera angle or as big as catching the opponent in a campaign-altering slip of the tongue.

Every day, the ground troops of Team Obama and Team

NANCY BENAC

Romney set out in pursuit of a common goal: winning the day. Moment by moment, hour by hour, they scramble, maneuver and hustle to gain an inch here, a foot there on the opposition.

Driving it all is the belief that by stringing together enough small, daily victories, they can help their candidate win the one day that truly matters — Nov. 6, Election Day.

If they lose the day on Monday, they will work harder to win it on Tuesday. If they lose on Tuesday, there's always Wednesday or Thursday. Until time runs out.

Each day opens with a mental push of the reset button.

When Obama underperformed in his first debate Wednesday night, his handlers worked all the harder the next morning — in briefings, conference calls, television appearances, attack ads and more — to frame Romney's debate narrative as dishonest. Republican rapid responders served up rejoinders in real time.

Winning the day becomes a state of mind that motivates but also has the potential to distract.

It's what fires up the volunteers, the interns, the media monitors, the cable TV guests, the road warriors, the press wranglers, the local party officials and all the others who make up the infrastructure of a presidential campaign and propel it through long, wearying months and even years.

"It helps you get up at 5 in the morning so that the doughnuts and coffee are ready when the volunteers come in at 6 or 7," says Paul Begala, a Democratic consultant and adviser to a pro-Obama super political action committee who helped create the 24-hour war room for Bill Clinton's winning presidential campaign in 1992.

Campaign partisans scour every word from the opposition in search of openings to exploit. Most of that turns out to be wasted effort. But no one knows what one sentence could veer off-message and end up becoming a Moment that will reverberate in the political echo chamber.

"Any change in direction is something that we can grasp on to and then use to get into the news cycle and get into the narrative," says Republican National Committee spokesman Kirsten Kukowski, whose emails fly at all hours.

■ The Democrats pounce on Romney's caught-on-tape comment that it's not his job to worry about the 47 percent of Americans who don't pay taxes. Tweets, email, press releases, YouTube clips fly.

■ The Republicans pounce on Vice President Joe Biden's offhand reference to a middle class that has gotten "buried" over the past four years. More tweets, email, press releases, YouTube clips ensue.

Both incidents have become threads in the ongoing campaign narrative.

Other moments just pass by, quickly forgotten in the daily blur of a campaign.

■ Romney's road team scrambles to set up an impromptu meet-and-greet when his plane lands in Ohio at about the same time as an honor flight of aging veterans just back from visiting Washington memorials.

"I'm drunk!" one vet announces as he carefully makes his way down the ramp. "Better now," he says when he reaches the ground.

"Better now!" Romney repeats.

Fire Prevention Month

Fire safety should be practiced year round, not just October

October is Fire Prevention Month and for the 28th year the Pampa Fire Department is going to all the schools in the district to teach fire safety to our young people.

The first school to get a presentation by the PFD was Travis Elementary on Friday.

Though the inclement weather prevented the firefighters from demonstrating some of their equipment, such as the ladder truck, the kids nonetheless got important lessons on how to stay safe.

If weather permits this week, kids will get a demonstration of the ladder truck and get to see the "smoke house."

"The program is to educate the children about fire prevention," said Fire Marshal Mike "Big Mac" Ryan.

As important as it for kids to learn fire safety, adults need to be informed as well. Here are some important tips from the Centers for Disease Control.

■ Never leave food unattended on a stove.

■ Keep cooking areas free of flammable objects (such as potholders and towels).

Avoid wearing clothes with long, loose-fitting sleeves when cooking.

■ Never smoke in bed or leave burning cigarettes unattended.

Do not empty smoldering ashes in a trash can, and keep ashtrays away from upholstered furniture and curtains.

■ Never place portable space heaters near flammable materials (such as drapery).

Keep all matches and lighters out of reach of children. Store them up high, preferably in a locked cabinet.

■ Install smoke alarms on every floor of the home, including the basement, and particularly near rooms in which people sleep.

Use long-life smoke alarms with lithium-powered batteries and hush buttons, which allow persons to stop false alarms quickly.

■ If long-life alarms are not available, use regular alarms and replace the batteries annually.

Test all smoke alarms every month to ensure they work properly.

■ Devise a family fire escape plan and practice it every six months. In the plan, describe at least two different ways each family member can escape every room, and designate a safe place in front of the home for family members to meet after escaping a fire.

■ If possible, install or retrofit fire sprinklers into home.

It is our hope that fire prevention and safety in our city is practiced year round, and not just during October.

Can stocks continue to rise as earnings fall?

NEW YORK (AP) — One type of investor buys stocks when everyone is convinced that corporate earnings will fall. He buys because he thinks they're wrong and earnings will rise instead. Call him the contrarian.

Another type of investor buys when everyone thinks that earnings will rise. He buys because he thinks they'll rise even more than expected. Call him the eternal optimist.

Now, the three-and-a-half-year-old bull market may have produced a third type of investor, an undiscovered breed with a curious strategy for success: He expects earnings to fall but buys anyway because he hopes it won't matter.

Call him the blind-faith investor. Or maybe just blind.

"How do you explain where the stock market is?" Barclays Capital stock strategist Barry Knapp said Thursday, as the Standard & Poor's 500 inched higher yet again. "Stock prices are not warranted by the fundamentals."

The financial reporting season begins Tuesday, when Alcoa announces third-quarter results.

Brace yourself: For three months, stock prices have risen while, in seeming contradiction, Wall Street analysts have slashed estimates for earnings.

Earnings for July through September are expected to drop 1.3 percent compared with a year earlier for S&P 500 companies, according to S&P Capital IQ, a research firm.

That would break an 11-quarter streak of rising earnings that began just after the Great Recession ended three and a half years ago. Earlier this year, analysts had expected earnings for the quarter to rise 7 percent.

To be fair to the bulls, it's generally future quarters that investors should be most concerned about, not the one that just passed. That's a time-honored rule of investing.

But analysts have been cutting estimates for those quarters, too. They've lowered forecasts for earnings growth for each of the next two quarters by a third since the summer, and as much as half since the beginning of the year.

The bad news started in July, when UPS, the world's largest package delivery company, said the global economy was slowing and lowered its 2012 profit forecast as a result.

Then FedEx said that shipping volume had fallen to recession levels, and that investors should expect lower earnings. Norfolk Southern, the giant railroad company, cut its forecast, too.

The flurry of so-called negative pre-announcements ranged across industries — from steel maker Nucor Corp. and Applied Materials Inc., which sells semiconductor-chip-making machines, to Starbucks and Tiffany & Co.

On Tuesday, Fifth & Pacific, the company behind Juicy Couture products, said sales were weakening and it was likely to report lower earnings than expected, too. Investors pushed its stock down 11 percent in just a day.

Tally it up and 78 percent of companies issuing pre-announcements have suggested they will disappoint, according to FactSet, a financial data provider. That is the worst reading since FactSet began keeping records six years ago.

The problem is companies are running out of ways to increase earnings. You can see that in the results for the previous quarter, from April through June. Earnings for companies in the S&P 500 barely rose from a year earlier, just 0.8 percent.

U.S. economic growth has slowed to an annual rate of 1.3 percent, practically stall speed. Meanwhile, the old formula that companies have used to compensate — pulling more profit out of each sale by trying to run leaner — suddenly isn't working.

You can only cut expenses and squeeze workers so much, and many companies seem to have reached the limit. Profit margins are falling for the first time in the recovery, after hitting a record of nearly 9 percent, according to Goldman Sachs.

The other way U.S. companies have posted higher profits is by selling more abroad. But many of the 17 countries that use the euro have fallen into recession. And developing countries are facing headwinds now, too. China, India and Brazil are slowing. On Wednesday, the Asian Development Bank slashed its growth forecast for emerging economies this year and next.

So what's kept stocks rising? One theory is loose monetary policy.

The Federal Reserve announced last month a third round of bond-buying to try to stimulate the economy.

That followed a bold plan by the European Central Bank to buy government bonds of struggling countries in its region.

2009 "BUSINESS OF THE YEAR"

New downtown boutique has something for everybody

SHABBY CREEK opened on Cuyler Street in mid-September.

By GAYDEN HAYS
ghays@thepampanews.com

Shabby Creek brings a new flavor to the downtown and has a little bit of something for everyone.

Owner Stacy Helms and her partner, daughter-in-law Samantha Helms, have included a "shabby chic" look that any shopper can appreciate.

They have home decor, antiques, baby clothes, handmade as well as nationally known jewelry lines, scarfs and refurbished furniture.

The store's original art deco look from the 1950s has been carried out through out the store, and adds to the friendly atmosphere and the shabby chic merchandise.

Helms started making handmade jewelry at home, and as the demand grew for her jewelry and furniture, she decided a location other than her home was needed.

"My first love is restoring old furniture pieces, but that takes up a lot of space. Finally this location on Cuyler became available, and it freed up space in my home and garage," commented Helms about why she decided to open her shop.

When Shabby Creek opened, well-known clothes maker Sandra Britten moved her ladies, misses and junior clothing line into the store.

Not only do they carry sought-after local clothing, they also have a wide selection of what are called "burnouts."

Shabby Creek will hold an open house on Nov. 3. They are now getting all the latest fashions and home decor ready for the Christmas season.

For more information, call Helms at 440-1144, or browse their selections at 209 N. Cuyler St. in downtown Pampa.

There are some things that never change

TOM MARGENAU
Creator's Syndicate

I'm reading a good book, the title of which I'll give you in just a minute. I want to share some intriguing passages from the book with you. But in doing so, I'm going to leave some words blank. I want you to fill in those blanks. Here's a little hint: the section of the book I am sharing with you involves a relatively new major government program that a certain political party wants to repeal. Here are the passages.

1. "The GOP, and much of the nation's business community were intent on killing (blank)."

2. "(Blank), the Republican party's presidential nominee, lost control of his campaign to the party's conservative diehards.

3. "So he made slashing attacks on (blank) and promised to repeal it if elected."

My hunch is that many of you filled in the blanks this way: 1) Obamacare, 2) Mitt Romney and 3) Obamacare.

Unfortunately, if those were your answers, you are wrong and score a failing grade. Here are the correct answers: 1) Social Security, 2) Alf Landon and 3) Social Security.

The book I am reading is called "Citizens of London," by Lynne Olson. It tells the story of three influential Americans, living in London in 1940, who stood by Britain during its darkest hours -- that period of time when essentially Great Britain alone was defending freedom against the ravages of Hitler's war machine. For those of my readers who are not history buffs, America before Pearl Harbor was dominated by isolationists who did not want our country to get involved in "that European war."

But three forward-thinking men were working behind the scenes, serving as emissaries between Winston Churchill and Franklin Delano Roosevelt, trying to funnel as much military and humanitarian aid as possible from the United States to England.

I'm sure most of my readers have heard of two of those men. One was Averell Harriman, the hard-driving millionaire who owned railroads, established the Sun Valley ski resort in Idaho, dated celebrities and became our ambassador to Russia in 1943. But in early 1941, he was running FDR's "Lend Lease" program in London. The other was Edward R. Murrow, the CBS newsmen who became famous for his realistic and touching radio broadcasts from bomb-ravaged London.

However, I'll bet many of my readers never heard of the third influential American. And in fact, I picked up the book at my local library because I had a small connection with him. His name was John Gilbert Winant.

Winant was a very interesting person. In the 1920s, he had won national acclaim as the youngest and most progressive governor in the country, as governor of New York. But in the 1930s, as pointed out in Citizens of London, "this rising Republican star with presidential dreams forfeited his political future by attacking the GOP for its slashing assaults on the New Deal." In 1941, FDR appointed Winant to replace the isolationist -- and thus not very popular -- Joseph P. Kennedy, father of John F. Kennedy, as our ambassador to Great Britain. It is in that role that John Winant was arguably the most influential and helpful American in Britain's hour of need.

But the name John Gilbert Winant attracted me to read this book for another reason. For you see, he was the first Commissioner of Social Security -- the agency that I worked for from 1973 until 2005.

In 1935, President Roosevelt appointed Winant to head the three-man board that would administer the new federal agency charged with running the Social Security program. FDR did so in part because he wanted the well-known Republican to help thwart the fierce GOP opposition to the new law.

Still, Senate Republicans filibustered and held up funding for the fledgling agency. But Winant and the other two board members, with minimal resources, worked tirelessly to hire staff and patch together a network of regional and field offices that would begin the daunting task of registering most workers in this country, assigning them a Social Security number, and setting up a system to record their earnings and eventually pay them monthly benefits.

Now, back to my "fill-in-the-blank" quiz. I find it very intriguing that the very same issues that faced America in the 1930s continue to face us today. We have always been arguing about what role the federal government should play in our lives.

I think only my most diehard "get the government off my back" conservative readers would disagree with me when I point out that the right wing Republicans were on the wrong side of the Social Security debate in the 1930s. And by the way, they also adamantly opposed the creation of the Medicare program in the 1960s, and history has proven they were on the wrong side of that debate, too. I guess only time will tell if they are now on the wrong side of the health care, i.e. "Obamacare" debate.

If you have a Social Security question, Tom Margenau has the answer. Contact him at thomas.margenau@comcast.net.

Fair

Residents attending the fair had an opportunity to see PRMC's new radiology equipment and get a full-panel blood test for only $20, Morse said.

Typically, the tests cost around $120, he said.

PRMC's Surgical Department had one of the more popular booths. There, people had an opportunity to try out the same equipment used by surgeons to perform a microscopic gall bladder surgery.

As people manipulated the surgical tools, they could watch their accuracy with the equipment on a video screen as they picked up tiny plastic rings and dropped them on tiny pegs.

Next to the simulation, a video played of an actual gall bladder surgery.

Pampa resident Mary Echols gave the simulation a try and said she was pleased with the fair.

"They have a lot of good information here," she said.

Pampa Regional Medical Center departments participating were: Human Resources, Surgical, Physical Therapy, Golden Phoenix and Behavioral Health Services Outpatient Program, Dietary, Respiratory, Laboratory, Radiology, Pharmacy Department and OB.

Pampa Medical Group doctors and clinics participating were: Dr. Adams, Dr. Cintron, Dr. Romeo and Dr. Waechter, Dr. Ladd, Women's Health Clinic and Genesis Clinic.

Health providers and organizations participating were: Hansford Manor Nursing Home from Spearman, Texas, Pampa Fire Department, Alcom Med Alert, McLean Care Center from McLean, Texas, Meredith House, Family Med Now, Lion's Eye Bank, Accolade Home Health, National Home Health, Interim Home Care and Hospice, Integracare Home Health, Shepard's Crook, Pampa Nursing Center, Texas Agri Life Extension, Texas Department of State Health Services, P.A.C.T., Coronado Health Care Center, National MS Society, Wheeler Nursing and Rehabilitation, from Wheeler, Texas, EMS, Hospice Care of the Southwest and Coffee Memorial Blood Bank Mobile Unit.

Obama's handlers let a muscular Florida pizza-maker hoist the president off the ground in a big bear hug during a drop-by at the man's restaurant. "Look at these guns!" Obama enthuses about the man's biceps.

In theory, all of this moment-by-moment activity is supposed to reinforce the candidates' broader message to American voters.

"We had a good week last week. There's no doubt about it. We have to have a good week this week and the week after. So I think we take it one day at a time," Republican Party Chairman Reince Priebus said Sunday on CNN's "State of the Union."

Romney spokeswoman Gail Gitcho said GOP responders stand poised to tweet, email and otherwise magnify any misstep by the other side.

"We find our openings, pick our spots and then we drive it," she said.

Obama's campaign team members declined to publicly discuss their day-to-day operations, but carry out similar operations.

For any positive motion that can come out of a win-the-day mindset, there's a risk that campaigns can get so caught up in day-to-day skirmishes that they lose sight of the big picture.

Romney senior strategist Stuart Stevens likes to preach the long view. He's been known to remind staffers that "the key is winning the election, not winning the day."

But Begala thinks that message may have gotten lost by the Republicans, saying the Romney campaign has been "all over the map" with talk of the debt clock, violence in Libya, currency manipulation in China, and more.

Without a clear vision, he says, "every day becomes an Etch a Sketch, it becomes a zigzag."

But somebody still has to get up early and get the doughnuts.

Lady Harvesters squeak past Wellington for third victory

BARB AMRHEIN
For The Pampa News

Although it took the Pampa Lady Harvesters cross country team 10 years to win a first place trophy, this year's team earned its third first place trophy this season, Saturday capturing the Canadian Invitational Cross Country Meet.

Terra Truitt won another individual title, and J'Cee Holmes took the second place position to lead the Lady Harvesters to a score of 28 points, just ahead of Wellington with 32 points. Host Canadian finished a distant third with 85 points.

Truitt covered the approximately 1.8 mile course in 11 minutes 12 seconds with Holmes finishing in a time of 11:32, but the key to the team win became Reata Collins running the course in 12:20 to edge out Wellington's fifth runner in 12:23 for 10th place overall to preserve the win.

"I'm very pleased with their effort," Pampa cross country coach Mark Elms said.

"We love to win."

With Truitt and Holmes the only veterans on the team, Elms knows that getting his young runners to finish closer to his seniors is a key to the Lady Harvester success, especially on Saturday.

While Wellington runners finished in the third, fourth and fifth positions, Yesenia Soria and Claire Hopkins took the seventh and eighth places and Reata Collins the 10th spot to give their team the win by putting all five scoring runners ahead of Wellington's fifth runner.

"We're working on getting our three, four and five runners closer together and also Elms is pleased with how his team has become the most successful girls cross country team in a decade.

"We waited 10 years, and this year we have three wins and two seconds," he said. "Hopefully we can keep that going."

White Deer also participated in the meet.

Ashley Parsley, finished in sixth place in a time of 11:51, and was the lone Lady Buck to crack the top 10.

Both White Deer and Pampa, as well as Kelton junior high runners, are expected to run at the Lanthrop Memorial run at West Texas A&M University's Horse Center in Canyon Saturday.

DIGGING. Diamond Marrufo sets up the Lady Harvester offense by passing a ball during a recent match verses Dalhart. The Lady Harvesters begin the second round of district play as they travel to Perryton Tuesday, and then Host River Road Saturday at Pamp High School. Saturday will be Pink Out and all attending are asked to wear pink to the game.

Lady Harvesters solid in loss to Dalhart

GAYDEN HAYS
GHAYS@THEPAMPANEWS.COM

The Lady Harvesters came out super strong in game one verses the Dalhart Wolves on Saturday winning 25-21.

Junior Madison Joyce played amazing offense at middle hitter to fire the Lady Harvesters up.

This is the second match in a row that Joyce has hit the ball hard and consistent. She led the team at the net with 11 kills and 3 blocks for the match. Joyce also had 2 service aces.

Diamond Marrufo led the defense in game 1 with 5 digs.

The second game against the Lady Wolves was very close.

Many Lady Harvesters contributed with kills and although the lead changed several times, Pampa came up short 26-24.

In game 2, Maddie Fatheree led the team with 8 setting assists while hitters Taylor Eubank, Madison Joyce and Caragan Niccum had 3 kills each.

In game three, hitting errors hurt Pampa's chance to take the match.

The score was 25-21, Lady Wolves.

Although Pampa had superb hustle and teamwork in game four, the Lady Harvesters had lost too much momentum and gave up the final game 25-17.

Sophomore Eubank led the team in kills with three and also had two assists in the final game.

The Lady Harvesters seem to be picking up momentum as the district season heads into the second half. Pampa seemed to surprise the competition in its first round of district games and hope to top their opponents in their final match ups.

The Lady Harvesters meet Perryton tonight in Perryton. The Lady Harvesters are currently 2-2 in district play.

Statistics for the lady Harvesters verses Dalhart: Madison Joyce, 11 kills, 3 blocks, 2 aces; Taylor Eubank, 10 kills, 1 block, 2 aces, 5 assists, 1 dig; Maddie Fatheree, 5 kills, 1 block, 1 ace, 20 assists, 1 dig; Callie Brewer, 7 kills; Diamond Marrufo, 10 digs; Taylor Giles, 4 digs, 2 aces; Allison Noble, 4 kills; Caragan Niccum, 3 kills.

Pampa to begin district play versus Perryton Friday night

By GAYDEN HAYS
ghays@thepamanews.com

The Pampa Harvesters begin district play Friday night against the Perryton Rangers at Harvester Field at 7:30 p.m.

The Harvesters roll out of non-district play with a 1-5 record, while Perryton sports a 3-3 record.

"We went through the ringer, had our nose bloodied, maybe even hit the mat a time or two, but our team is like Rocky, we have more resolve now with district play beginning," said Pampa Head Coach Heath Parker.

While teams strive to win all non-conference games, the next four will determine if Pampa is able to continue until the next round, the Texas State 3A Playoffs.

Parker scheduled non-conference schools that were at a higher level than the opponents Pampa will play in its own district.

This allows the coaches to address problem areas that need to be addressed before district play begins this week.

"This week more of our kids voluntarily showed up to see Perryton game film, because they all know that district play is where it counts," said

Parker. The Rangers have had several opponents in common with the Harvesters. Perryton has played Dumas, losing 49-29, beat Bushland 10-3, and lost to Canadian by a score of 28-14.

In the history of the Pampa-Perryton rivalry it all comes down to less than a touchdown on the scoreboard.

Two years ago, Pampa was able to seal their victory on a fake punt and went on to run out the clock to beat the Rangers.

The opposite happened last year when an unexpected on-sides kick allowed Perryton to hold on in a close game against the Harvesters.

Based purely on the scores of the games, Pampa should have the upper hand, and with the improved play of the defense led by strong play by Chris Howard, Chris Garcia and Kyler Allen. The Pampa defense the last two games have held opponents 150 yards under their season average.

Offensively, the Harvesters have shown a spark, grinding out 233 yards against the No. 4-ranked Canadian Wildcats Friday night at Harvester Field. Led by the running of quarterback Ryan Smith and Sammy Smith, the Harvesters will also rely on steady play from wide receivers Taylor Woods, Tyler Powell, as well as tight-end Cager Osborne.

The Perryton Rangers will play the typical David Flower's defense that all of his previous teams are known for, solid in the basics, and pressing and overly aggressive from the corners.

In the Lubbock Cooper game, the Rangers allowed Cooper to move the ball up and down the field. However, when the opposition crossed into the "red-zone," inside the 20-yard line, they denied them points. ---

Lubbock drove within the 20-yard line nine times, and only was able to come away with points twice.

Offensively, the Rangers will look to run the ball first and want to control the tempo of the game, if possible, on the ground.

But running the spread offense, allows for more passing opportunities which their outstanding receiving core has exploited against previous opponents this year.

"This will be a typical Texas high school first round district game, whichever team wins will have the inside track to the playoffs, and both teams know it," said Parker on what to expect Friday night.

Pampa will play at Harvester Field, Friday at 7:30 p.m., gates will open at 6:30 p.m.

Soda industry: Vending machines will show calories

■ Coke, Pepsi, Dr. Pepper to list calories.

CANDICE CHOI
AP Food Industry Writer

NEW YORK — As criticism over sugary sodas intensifies, Coke, Pepsi and Dr Pepper are rolling out new vending machines that display just how many calories are in their drinks.

The machines will let customers see the calorie counts for drinks before making a purchase. They will launch in Chicago and San Antonio municipal buildings in 2013 before rolling out nationally.

The American Beverage Association, which represents Coca-Cola Co., PepsiCo Inc. and Dr Pepper Snapple Group Inc., said Monday that the machines will increase the availability of lower-calorie drinks and remind consumers to consider alternatives with messages such as "Try a Low-Calorie Beverage."

A 12-ounce can of regular soda typically has about 140 calories and 40 grams of high-fructose corn syrup. Most diet sodas, which are sweetened with artificial sweeteners such as aspartame, have zero calories.

Starting next year, Coca-Cola says its vending machines in the two cities will feature calorie information for each beverage choice. The Atlanta-based company notes that it already provides calorie information on the front of its drinks rather than just on the nutrition panel on the back.

The move comes as the soda industry has come under increasing fire for fueling obesity rates. Last month, New York City approved a plan to prohibit the sale of sugary drinks over 16 ounces in the city's restaurants, movie theaters and stadiums. The beverage industry aggressively fought the measure, saying it takes away customer choice.

Soft drink makers are also dealing with shifting consumer habits. On a per capita basis, soda consumption in the U.S. has been declining since 1998, according to the industry tracker Beverage Digest. The decline is partly the result of the growing number of beverage options, such as flavored waters, bottled teas and sports drinks.

As a result, Coke, Pepsi and Dr Pepper are focusing on developing more diet drinks, as well as expanding into other types of drinks to reduce their reliance on sodas.

Living room built around NYC Columbus statue a hit

KAREN MATTHEWS
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Anyone hoping to commune with Christopher Columbus on Columbus Day will be disappointed: He's booked solid. Monday's tickets to the conceptual art installation that surrounds a 13-foot statue of the explorer with a well-appointed living room have all been snapped up.

The exhibit, "Discovering Columbus" by Japanese artist Tatzu Nishi, has become a must-see cultural attraction in New York since it opened Sept. 20. Some 20,000 people have made the walk up six flights of stairs for the up-close view of Columbus, as well as the unique views of Midtown Manhattan and Central Park.

"Living room in the sky? I thought 'Cool. Check it out,'" said business analyst Brianna Goodman, who visited this past week. "I would never have thought to build a living room around a statue, but it made it like an intimate setting. And then the view from up there!"

Artist Martha Bone said the walk up and down the stairs was well worth it. "It was one of the best installations I've ever seen. ... It's my city. I like to know what's going on in it."

The exhibit is being presented by the city's Public Art Fund, and free timed tickets can be reserved at www.publicartfund.org. Another 80,000 are slated to see the exhibit before it ends Nov. 18.

"What I have been absolutely thrilled about is that I think the project has really captured the imagination of New York," said Public Art Fund director Nicholas Baume.

Not everyone is a fan. John Mancini, executive director of the Italic Institute of America, said the artwork turns the 1892 statue by Italian sculptor Gaetano Russo into "a stage prop."

"How can one artist hijack the work of another artist?" he complained.

The statue rests on a 60-foot granite column at the southwest corner of Central Park. Columbus' marble features usually are visible only from afar.

For his first installation in the United States, Nishi has perched Columbus' home atop scaffolding that encases the column.

The statue rises out of a large coffee table so that it seems to preside over a highbrow salon. Pink wallpaper, designed by the artist, depicts American icons Elvis Presley, Marilyn Monroe and Martin Luther King Jr.

Because Time Warner Inc. and Mayor Michael Bloomberg's media company are sponsors, the magazines include Bloomberg Business Week and the TV is on CNN with the sound on low. Fresh newspapers are laid out every day.

Visitors can plop themselves on the sectional, admire the views and scan the titles on Columbus' bookshelves, which include Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass," Barack Obama's "The Audacity of Hope" and books about baseball and American history.

"I was really enjoying trying to figure out who are these people who live in this apartment," said art therapist Bonnie Hirschhorn.

daily horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, Oct. 10, 2012:

If ever you were to have a proclivity for intensity and drama, it would be this year. You easily could be mistaken for a drama queen or king. Communication, especially with those close to you, forces your mind's eye to see beyond its current vista. Good luck comes through openness and detachment. Travel and/or education also will play a significant role in your life this year. Be careful not to overstep in your grandiose mood, or else you could end up being unhappy when you return to your normal self. If you are single, a friendship could be vital to a special relationship. Once you meet this person, you could have difficulty landing on the ground for a while. If you are attached, do more as a couple. Work on your friendship, too. A party is always better with a LEO!

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★ You might want to let a difficult situation alone and instead watch how others work through it. Listen to your inner voice. Do not avoid incoming calls, especially as it is likely that you will hear good news. Tonight: Paint the town red.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Your home life always is important, and you go out of your way to maintain a steady domestic life. Having priorities is important, but handling the other areas of your life is equally imperative. A friend or loved one has an unusually creative suggestion. Tonight: Mosey on home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You make that extra effort, and others respond accordingly. Use positive thinking in order to manifest a wish. Your thoughts and words have an effect. An older relative or boss could be evasive, yet you know that he or she demands a lot. Tonight: Hang out with friends.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Curb a need to go overboard. You might feel quite touched by someone's thoughtfulness. You also feel unusually secure when dealing with this person. Don't worry so much about tension between you and a child or new friend. You cannot change his or her personality. Tonight: Use some self-discipline.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ Thoughts that come to you in your sleep might be unusually significant right now. A close friend might be the perfect person to share this information with, as he or she could give you feedback. You very well might be able to manifest this idea, but on your schedule. Tonight: All smiles.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ You might not want to be an active participant in what goes on today, as you could be thinking about a proposal. A boss or higher-up has a lot to share. This person has been observing you, and feels as if you are giving 100 percent of yourself. Your presence encourages others to break past boundaries. Tonight: Not to be found.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ Zero in on priorities. You cannot get past a problem without first having a discussion with a key resource. You might be making judgments that could prevent you from accomplishing an important goal. News comes in through a call or an email that delights you to no end. Tonight: First, find your friends. The rest will happen naturally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You understand your role in a project, and you don't hesitate to do what is needed to accomplish the end results. A partner teams up with you and helps you accomplish more. A brainstorming session will open up a door, though you might feel hesitant to walk through it. Tonight: Up late!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Let your mind expand as you play around with a certain situation. You might start to see a situation far differently, or in many different ways, as a result. Someone you like and who is lucky for you suddenly appears. Make plans to get together as soon as possible. Tonight: Reach out for someone at a distance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Deal with individuals directly. The conversations that ensue will demonstrate their caring. Team up with someone who has the same goals as you, but offers something different. Your instincts are excellent, so follow through on a hunch. Tonight: Brainstorm over dinner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You'll discover much more of what is happening with others. You could get feedback from loved ones when trying to make plans. You suddenly might realize how much fun you could have with a certain person. Schedule a meeting for as late as possible. Tonight: Spontaneity works well.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You have a lot to do, and you will get it done -- as long as you do not allow someone to distract you. Your imagination could lead you down some interesting paths today, even literal ones. Understand why a partner might be negative about one of your suggestions. Tonight: Get to the gym.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: Many women like surprises. Most men don't. My wife can't understand that. She recently "surprised" me by informing me she had made non-refundable arrangements for us to visit a foreign country. She said I had once mentioned that I'd like to see it. I have no recollection of saying so, but I suppose it's possible.

Abby, I am physically barely able to endure such travel. My balance is bad and walking is extremely painful for my legs and hips. I wish she would have discussed her plan with me in advance. It's possible she wanted very much to go and suspected I'd tell her it would be unwise for me to do it.

Now that we're locked in, I'll go. But if it becomes too arduous, I'll tell her that we're going to have to leave the group and return home immediately. Perhaps that would help her understand that she should talk to me about a plan that includes me before implementing it. Abby, can you comment? — GOT AN UNWELCOME SURPRISE

DEAR SURPRISE: What your wife did was wrong; she's well aware of your physical limitations.

Foreign travel isn't cheap. Before laying out sizable chunks of money, most couples discuss the expense. I think your method of handling the situation is a good one, particularly if no accommodations can be made for your disability by the company arranging the trip.

P.S. I'm advising you to get travel insurance well in advance.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a beautiful woman. She's divorced with two kids, 15 and 17. I believe the 15-year-old boy is feeling threatened by my presence. He has become very "clingy" to his mother and tries to get between us.

I love both of her kids and treat them like my own. I know it's a delicate situation and I want to do the right thing. The disrespect he shows me is becoming an issue, and I know his mother won't do anything about it. I have mentioned it a few times and nothing has changed.

I know she would be crushed if I ended this relationship, because recently she asked me to move in by Christmas. Marriage has been discussed prior to or shortly thereafter. Please help. — DISRESPECTED IN OHIO

DEAR DISRESPECTED: Do not move in with this woman unless she first agrees to premarital counseling with you to ensure that you're both on the same page regarding parenting, and then family counseling with her children. As much as you care about them, you are not their parent. Because your ladyfriend appears to ignore problems when they arise, without counseling nothing will change. Be warned.

DEAR ABBY: Our son and daughter-in-law have invited us for Thanksgiving in another state. We'll fly there with my husband's mother.

Recently my daughter-in-law mentioned that we may all (11 of us) be going to some sort of buffet instead of making the dinner at their home. We would also end up paying for the meal. I would much rather cook for them than eat and pay for a Thanksgiving meal at a buffet or restaurant. How can we get this across to our son and daughter-in-law without hurting their feelings? — NO BUFFET FOR US IN LEAVENWORTH, KAN.

DEAR NO BUFFET: How about saying it in plain English? Tell them you would be glad to prepare the dinner, and if your daughter-in-law would help you, the task wouldn't be onerous for either of you.

P.S. Unless the men are "all thumbs" in the kitchen, they could pitch in, too. Multigenerational rituals are the glue that keep a family together.

BP sells Texas City refinery

The Associated Press

FINDLAY, Ohio — BP has finally found a buyer for its Texas City refinery, one of the largest and most complex in the U.S.

The total value of the deal could reach $2.5 billion.

Marathon Petroleum Corp. will pay $598 million for the refinery and other nearby pipelines and fuel terminals, plus $1.2 billion for the inventory of oil and petroleum products owned by the plant. Marathon may have to pay another $700 million over 6 years if certain unspecified conditions are met, the company said Monday.

The refinery has a troubled history. A 2005 fire and explosion at the plant killed 15 workers and injured nearly 200 others.

BP PLC been trying to sell refining and other assets to help cover costs associated with the 2010 Deepwater Horizon explosion and oil spill. Since 2010, BP has agreed to sell $35 billion worth of assets, and the company said it expects that to rise to $38 billion by next year.

BP announced in February of 2011 its intention to cut its U.S. refining capacity in half by the end of this year by selling the Carson refinery in Southern California and the Texas City refinery. BP agreed in August to sell the Carson refinery to Tesoro Corp.

The Texas City refinery processes 451,000 barrels of oil per day.

U.S. refiners have been generating enormous profits in recent months because they have been able to buy U.S. crude at prices lower than most competitors around the world. There has been a huge increase in oil production by U.S. drillers and a relative glut of oil in the middle of the country.

Refiners are then able to sell their gasoline, diesel and jet fuel at elevated world prices. U.S. exports of petroleum products are on pace to set a record this year.

U.S. refiners are also benefiting from natural gas prices that are far lower than what their world competitors are paying. Natural gas is used to cook oil into refined products.

In early trading Monday Marathon Petroleum shares jumped 7 percent to $58.73.
