WATER QUIZ

Heather Wheeley, right, raises her hand to answer a question posed by Joe Weaver, "Which room in the house uses the most water?" Also taking the water quiz is Wheeley's sister, Joanna. Weaver, who is with the Panhandle Groundwater District, gave a presentation on water conservation Wednesday to the Pampa Rotary Club.

Conserving for the future

■ Water district speaker offers tips on how to save water.

By TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com

Joe Weaver said he asks all the fifth-grade classes to which he presents to tell him where they think he will be in 50 years.

"Dead!" is the answer the kids typically give, Weaver said. After all, Weaver is no spring chicken and kids tend to be frank.

And while many of us, along with Weaver, will leave this earth long before the year 2063, most of the fifth-graders will still be around and need a suitable water supply for drinking, cooking, bathing and caring for their lawns.

Some may go into agriculture for their careers, which requires a lot of water.

Weaver, public relations and education manager for Panhandle Groundwater Conservation District (PGCD), travels to and fro in the Panhandle educating kids and adults alike on the necessity of conserving water.

The energy industry boom is all for naught if we run out of water, he said.

"It doesn't matter how much oil and gas we have, if we don't have water, it doesn't matter," he said. "It is our duty to conserve for future generations."

The numbers vary depending where you live in the Panhandle. But regardless of your specific locale, the levels in the Ogallala Aquifer have steadily declined over the past 50 years, Weaver said.

Along with Pampa, Amarillo, Lubbock, Plainview, Borger and several other cities in the Panhandle pump their water from the aquifer.

Weaver gave a pop quiz on water awareness to find out if Rotarians are "smarter than the average fifth-grader." "Which room in the house uses the most water?," he asked.

PRMC's Women's Expo scheduled for April 13

■ Third annual health event also for men, children.

By TIMOTHY P. HOWSARE
 thowsare@thepampanews.com

The third annual Pampa Women's Expo will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., April 13 in the Heritage Room at M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium.

The free event is open to the public and sponsored by Pampa Regional Medical Center.

109-mph tornado near Silverton Monday

■ This tornado is a good reminder that severe weather season is upon us.

By ZACHARY GREEN
 zgreen@thepampanews.com

Even though it was April Fool's Day, Mother Nature wasn't fooling around as a severe thunderstorm in Briscoe County dropped an EF-1 tornado. The EF stands for Enhanced Fujita Scale which was developed in 2007 to replace the Fujita Scale. The scale was revised to reflect better examinations of tornado damage surveys.

The top wind speed recorded from the tornado was 109 mph. The tornado was approximately 100 yards wide and was on the ground for 2 1/2 miles.

Jody James, meteorologist with the National Weather Service in Lubbock, said that the tornado damaged center pivot

Texas House names pecan pie state's official pie

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The House has formally named the pecan pie Texas' official state pie. Wednesday's ceremonial resolution doing so was sponsored by first-year Rep. Marsha Farney, a Republican from Georgetown, north of Austin. Since it was her first bill, Farney underwent a few minutes of gentle hazing after introducing the measure on the House floor. One of Farney's colleagues razzed: "Do you have a recipe?" Another wanted to know if she was saying "too bad to the apple pie," which some say is America's official pie.

Police: NM man tried to cut off girlfriend's toe

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — A former New Mexico shoe salesman accused of biting off part of his girlfriend's toe has been arrested again, this time for allegedly stalking the woman and trying to cut off her big toe with a cigar cutter. Santa Fe police say the incident Monday was the third attack by 27-year-old Daniel Anaya on his now ex-girlfriend, who has moved to Albuquerque and had obtained a restraining order against him after two previous toe-biting incidents. Police say Anaya, who used to work as a shoe salesman at a department store, tracked down the woman at her new home and attacked her, but she was able to fight back with a metal fork and escape. Anaya was arrested that evening after he returned to Santa Fe and sought emergency medical treatment.

Expo

and New Mexico are traveling to Pampa April 13 to be part of the expo, said organizer Chalenia Freeman. Freeman, a respiratory therapy manager at PRMC, said around 90 percent of the funds raised from the event will be donated to the Gray County Relay for Life.

"Most of the money collected from the booth fees are going to the Relay, except for the set up costs," she said. The Relay is sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

The number of booths in this year's event has nearly doubled since last year, Freeman said.

"Last year, we had about 35 or 36 booths and now we have at least 65 spaces that are already taken," she said.

This year's expo is not just for women, she added. "We will have a cardiovascular booth that will educate on the cardio side of health for everyone," she said. "There will be a lot of male vendors, including a man selling knives. We will have growth charts to give away to the kids, booths for kids' clothing, jewelry for kids, and, of course, food for everyone."

Some of the presentations geared toward women include sonograms and breast feeding.

irrigation systems, power poles and a barn.

James added the track of the tornado was approximately five to seven miles southeast of Silverton between State Highways 86 and 145. He said the tornado was on the ground from approximately 4:43 to 4:48 p.m.

"This early event can be a good reminder that we are well within the time frame for severe weather season," said Steven Cobb, meteorologist with NWS in Lubbock. "The storm developed within a cluster of storms over eastern Swisher County and moved east into Briscoe County before turning southeast toward Silverton."

According to Krissy Scotten, meteorologist with the NWS in Amarillo, the tornado season for the Texas Panhandle runs roughly from April 15 to June 15.

Now would be a great time to check that your NOAA weather radios are working properly and reviewing your severe weather safety plan, according to NWS.

Hagel warns of deep, new spending cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel warned Wednesday that sharply deeper cuts to personnel, health care and weapons systems will be needed across his department to put the brakes on spiraling costs and reshape the military for leaner budgets and new challenges.

Hagel said that escalating spending to maintain benefits, existing military structures and replacements for aging weapons programs are devouring funding needed for critical operations, training and equipment.

The Pentagon, he said, must reevaluate the size of its management and military command structures, which continue to grow even as the overall force numbers decline. And he put the Pentagon and the nation on notice that meeting this challenge will require spending cuts that are far more sweeping and dramatic than those seen to date.

"I am concerned that despite pruning many major procurement programs over the past four years, the military's modernization strategy still depends on systems that are vastly more expensive and technologically risky than what was promised or budgeted for," Hagel said Wednesday in remarks at the National Defense University at Fort McNair.

Water

The answer: The bathroom.

"How many gallons of water are in one inch of rainfall on a city block?"

That was a tough one, because some city blocks are bigger or smaller than others.

But one of the smarter Rotarians asserted the average city block in 300 square feet, so the answer would be 56,000 gallons.

Weaver said water conservation is not a hard concept for fifth-graders to grasp.

"I tell kids to turn off the water while brushing their teeth," he said. "It's not a lot of water, but it gets it into their minds to save water."

Other ways to conserve water include:

- Checking your lawn before you water. If it is still moist two to three inches deep, it does not need watering.
- Adjusting your lawn mower to a higher setting. Taller grass shades roots and holds moisture.
- When warming the shower, let the water run into a five-gallon bucket then use it to water plants.

By shortening your shower by a minute or two, you can save up to 150 gallons per month.

Another way homeowners can save water is by xeriscape gardening, which is choosing landscaping plants that require little or no supplemental water.

Rainwater is free, and gardeners can use anything from plastic garbage cans to 55-gallon barrels to collect water for their plants.

PGCD is a government entity created by the State Legislature in 1955. It is supported through property taxes and works to promote and implement water conservation and management strategies. It offers services from abandoned well capping and plugging, to agriculture loans, to education programs in the public schools.

For more water-saving tips and information about the district, visit www.pgcd.us.

The district's offices are located at 201 W. 3rd St. in White Deer and the phone number is 806-883-2501.

Another wake-up call from North Korea

Thirty years ago, on March 23, 1983, Ronald Reagan made a television address calling on the United States to build an anti-missile defense.

PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY

His rationale was compelling: Isn't it better to save American lives than to kill millions of the enemy?

Our enemy then was the fearsome Soviet missile force. Reagan's steadfast determination to build a U.S. anti-missile defense was why he won the Cold War at Reykjavik (as we now know from revealed Soviet documents) without firing a shot (as Margaret Thatcher famously said).

The propaganda against U.S. anti-missile defense started immediately after Reagan's 1983 speech with Ted Kennedy ridiculing it as Star Wars, and continues to this day. The building of an anti-missile system always posed the number-one non-negotiable issue between the United States and our enemies and, incomprehensibly, between conservatives and the Left.

We now face other enemies. But the Left is still dug in behind its opposition to saving American lives by an anti-missile system.

Barack Obama became president by spouting the typical left-wing, anti-defense policy and dreaming of the fantasy of a nuclear-free world. He seems to think diplomatic talks, combined with his personal charm, can replace peace through strength, but it can't.

One of President Obama's first acts was to effectively cancel the final phase of a Europe-based missile defense system because it was vehemently opposed by Russia. He started unilaterally reducing our nuclear deterrent in the hope our enemies would follow suit, which, of course, they didn't.

Obama chose Chuck Hagel as Secretary of Defense because he supported zero-nuclear foolishness. Hagel was on the board of directors of the Ploughshares Fund, which gave millions of dollars to spread zero-nuke nonsense and lift sanctions on Iran.

Obama used his State of the Union speech this year to breathe new life into his effort to reduce nuclear weapons around the world. He wants to cut our nuclear forces by about a third, but Communist North Korea is not responsive to these overtures.

North Korea's new boss, Kim Jong Un, is the 30-year-old grandson of the Communist tyrant who started the Korean War in 1950. Kim has now put our 28,000 U.S. troops at risk by declaring that the 1953 Armistice suspending the Korean War is null and void, so North and South Korea are in a "state of war."

U.S. defense experts believe that North Korean missiles can reach Hawaii and Alaska, but not yet the continental United States. North Korea has conducted a long-range missile test, a nuclear test and demonstrated a mobile launcher, all of which indicate that North Korea's technology is advancing faster than the U.S. had predicted.

Obama has now reversed his April 2009 decision to close our missile field in Alaska. The Pentagon says it will spend $1 billion to expand our West Coast missile-defense system by installing 14 additional ground-based missile interceptors at Fort Greely, Alaska (as originally planned by the Bush Administration). The Pentagon says it is also looking for a third U.S. site to protect our East Coast.

Sending U.S. B-2 stealth bombers from Whiteman Air Force Base in Missouri to drop dummy munitions on a South Korean island during a military drill with South Korea was another signal that Obama may have pivoted. That was clearly a message to Kim to be careful how he proceeds with his military provocations.

The B-2 bombers cost $135,000 per hour to fly, so two round trips to South Korea cost about $5.4 million. Since this show of force was primarily to defend

Choosing buying versus lending

Q: My husband and I are retiring, and we plan to move to a retirement community in about two months.

DOUG MAYBERRY

Our problem is that we have a choice of either buying or leasing a unit there, and we cannot decide what the best choice should be. What would you recommend?

A: It boils down to your best guess. Many retirees believe that in retirement it will be like living on a cruise ship without water. We cannot escape responsibilities, nor will we be able to learn if we made the best choice until a later date.

Take a sheet of paper and draw a line down the middle of it. Mark one side "pros," and mark the other side "cons." List items such as your likely future health, your financial capabilities, your social activities, pets in the community and the general amenities and maintenance and whether you're interested in attending classes.

Would leasing for a year offer you extra time to evaluate your lifestyle change? Could a year's lease that includes an option to buy prove beneficial? Will real estate prices go up or down? Should a negative unanticipated family development require you to help out? Is it better for you to buy or keep your nest egg handy? Is health care available?

Do not be surprised if other issues do not raise their heads. Many seniors like the idea of settling in and owning their home. Becoming a part of a new community and getting rid of a lot of maintenance details is a great stress reliever. Handling emotional, financial and family decisions for seniors is enough of a challenge for most of us.

However, remember the best part of retirement is that it provides the freedom we have looked forward to for most of our lives. HOORAY!

Q: Seniors as well as younger individuals sometimes get down the in the dumps for a couple of hours without justification. It just happens! I do not understand my negative thoughts and believe they are mostly based on loneliness, fear, boredom, missing friends or whatever. Do you have any suggestions to pep me up when I experience these downers?

A: A quick and positive solution that works is to distract yourself by reminiscing about your younger days.

Reminding yourself of a great belly laugh that you experienced with your family and friends will lift your spirits. You cannot beat laughing for a tune-up!

Exercise is one of the most satisfying pleasures we can enjoy. Flinging yourself out the door for a 15-minute walk will distract you and make you feel better and more upbeat. Just people watching reminds us of how happy a positive outlook can be.

Burst out loudly singing your favorite song and enjoy taking a few dance steps. Call up a friend and telling him/her you were just thinking about them and how much they mean to your life is a winner.

Lunch isn't too bad, either!

Assault on religious liberty part two

Two examples of how religious liberty has been assaulted in just the past two years in the U.S.

CHUCK NORRIS

Here are about two dozen more instances just for good measure, as reported by the Family Research Council, the office of Rep. Randy Forbes, R-Va., and various media outlets.

The following public institutions recently have joined the growing ranks of those that have banned the use of the word "Easter" in order to diminish or eliminate references to religion: East Meadow School District in New York, Prospect Heights Public Library in Illinois, Heritage Elementary School in Alabama, Manhattan Beach Unified School District in California, Flat Rock Elementary School in South Carolina and West Shore School District in Pennsylvania.

The Colorado Court of Appeals ruled that the state's annual Day of Prayer proclamations violated the state constitution.

Officials in Buhler, Kan., are removing a cross from the city's seal, which was placed on it four decades ago to represent the city's founders, who were immigrants fleeing religious persecution.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 10th Circuit ruled that crosses placed on Utah roadsides to honor fallen state troopers violated the establishment clause of the First Amendment.

A three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit ruled that a cross displayed as part of the Mt. Soledad Veterans Memorial in San Diego was unconstitutional.

--The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 4th Circuit ruled that a North Carolina board of commissioners' prayer policy was unconstitutional because the prayers mentioned Jesus too frequently.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 11th Circuit ruled that a Florida city commission's practice of offering an invocation at the beginning of each meeting was unconstitutional.

For decades, the Sussex County Council in Delaware had opened meetings with the Lord's Prayer, but after a yearlong court battle challenging the practice, the council agreed to replace it with a recitation of Psalm 23.

Other lawsuits by activist groups targeting the tradition of city and county council prayer are sweeping the nation. Here are a few more recent headlines. In North Carolina: "Prayer in public meetings debated in Greenville" (journalists Kristen Hunter and Jonathan Rodriguez). In New Jersey: "New Invocation Policy Includes Indemnification Waiver for All Council Members" (Gal-lowayTwpNews.com). In California: "Rialto City Council defends public prayers before meetings" (The Sun). In Michigan: "Prayer at Oakland Twp. meeting draws ACLU's attention" (The Associated Press). In Georgia: "Cave Spring rethinking Lord's Prayer issue" (Rome News-Tribune). In Washington: "'Christ' ban signals apparent end to Longview council meeting invocation" (The Daily News).

Officials at the Department of Health and Human Services denied funding for the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops' successful program for sex trafficking victims because of the church's teaching on human life.

In the wake of Hurricane Sandy, many New York synagogues and other houses of worship discovered that they were ineligible for financial assistance from the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Presidential administration officials refused to intervene in the closing of the U.S. Commission on International Religious Freedom.

Walter Reed National Military Medical Center drafted a policy that prohibited individuals from using or distributing religious items during visits to the hospital.

Retired Army Lt. Gen. Jerry Boykin, a Delta Force war hero, couldn't speak at West Point because of his Christian faith.

The Air Force Academy apologized for merely announcing Operation Christmas Child -- a Christian-based charity and relief program designed to send Christmas gifts to impoverished children around the world.

The Marine Corps considered tearing down a Camp Pendleton cross meant to honor fallen heroes.

The Navy relocated a live Nativity scene at a base in Bahrain to the chapel area.

Air Force officials suspended a 20-year-old course on war theory because of its religious aspects.

Yet, as reported in the Los Angeles Times in November 2011, the Air Force is building "an $80,000 Stonehenge-like worship center" for followers of "Earth-based" religions, including "pagans, Wiccans, druids, witches and followers of Native American faiths."

The Department of Veterans Affairs censored references to God and Jesus during prayers at Houston National Cemetery.

The Pentagon released new regulations forcing chaplains to perform same-sex weddings despite their religious objections. However, members of the Congressional Prayer Caucus worked tirelessly to ensure that the final version of the 2013 National Defense Authorization Act included key religious freedom protections for service

Funny Filler

Have a friend give you NOUNS, ADJECTIVES and VERBS. Then read the silly story aloud. Prepare for big laughs!

My grandma has a delicious recipe for split pea soup.

Some people may not like it, but I sure do!

She starts with a cup of finely shredded _____ and cup of _____ peas. She adds a pinch of _____ and a teaspoon of _____.

The most surprising ingredient is a gallon of _____.

She stirs all the ingredients in a large _____ over medium heat. If they are in season, Grandma adds some fresh _____ and lets the soup simmer for a few hours. This allows the _____ to blend nicely with the other ingredients.

The soup is good during the _____ winter months, but is also good on a _____ day, too.

I told my grandma that she should sell the recipe to a big _____ company or to a local restaurant. I am sure customers would _____ over it. People would _____ from miles around to try this _____ soup.

But until that happens, I will fill a large _____ and enjoy it all by myself!

service members generally and chaplains specifically (Section 533). The Pentagon revoked approval to use the logo of each service branch on the covers of Bibles sold in military exchange stores. What is going on in the U.S. military? Apparently, the military's urge for neutrality is officially and fundamentally transforming into hostility toward faith. What is so difficult for the feds to understand about the free exercise clause in the First Amendment, which says they "shall make no law ... prohibiting the free exercise" of religion?

Long gone are the days when the commander in chief wrote the prologue to the Gideons Bibles given to service members, encouraging them to find strength and courage from the contents. That's what President Franklin D. Roosevelt did before the start of World War II: "As Commander-in-Chief I take pleasure in commending the reading of the Bible to all who serve in the armed forces of the United States. Throughout the centuries men of many faiths and diverse origins have found in the Sacred Book words of wisdom, counsel and inspiration. It is a fountain of strength and now, as always, an aid in attaining the highest aspirations of the human soul."

The only fight left is for we the people to defend our First Amendment's freedom of religion, not espouse or enable the freedom from religion. Start in your own town, and take the battle all the way to Washington. South Korea, we should take Donald Trump's suggestion and send the bill to South Korea, which they can pay with the money they are making out of the U.S.-Korea Free Trade Agreement. We were promised that the U.S.-Korea Free Trade Agreement, supported by Obama and passed by Congress in October 2011, would create U.S. jobs by promoting U.S. exports to South Korea. That pie-in-the-sky promise was always a lie; the agreement promoted only imports, particularly cheap Korean cars coming into the U.S. without paying any U.S. tariff or tax.

But that is not the worst of the free-trade trick played on Americans. South Korean products are especially cheap because South Korea hires 44,000 North Korean workers, paid 25 cents an hour, at the Kaesong Industrial Complex located just north of the North-South boundary.

The workers' wages at this sweatshop are paid directly to the North Korean government, which skims off up to 45 percent.

North Korea's Kaesong profits are estimated to provide 36 percent of North Korea's national income, so the U.S.-Korea Free Trade Agreement has forced Americans to finance North Korea's nuclear program to threaten us.

Tax Freedom Day arrives April 18 in 2013

■ Adds 21 additional days of government spending.

SUBMITTED

Washington, D.C. — Tax Freedom Day will arrive on April 18 this year, the 108th day of 2013, according to the Tax Foundation's annual calculation.

Americans will work well over three and a half months of the year before they have earned enough money to pay this year's tax obligations at the federal, state, and local levels.

Both higher federal taxes and rebounding incomes contribute to this year's date, which is five days later than in 2012.

In the new Tax Foundation study, "Tax Freedom Day 2013," economists William McBride, Ph.D., Elizabeth Malm and Kyle Pomerleau also calculate how long Americans would have to work in order to close the federal budget deficit.

In order to pay for all spending in the current year, the government would need to raise an additional $833 billion in taxes, pushing Tax Freedom Day to May 9.

"This year, Americans will work five days later than in 2012 to pay all of their taxes. The total tax bill at all levels comes to approximately $4.2 trillion, or 29.4 percent of their total income," said McBride. "That means Americans will pay more in taxes in 2013 than they will spend on food, clothing, and housing combined."

The total tax burden borne by residents of different states varies considerably, not only due to differing state tax policies, but also because of the progressive structure of the federal tax system.

This means higher-income states celebrate Tax Freedom Day later: residents of Connecticut (May 13), New York (May 6), and New Jersey (May 4) face a significantly higher federal tax burden than lower-income states.

Residents of Mississippi and Louisiana will bear the lowest tax burdens in 2013, with Tax Freedom Day having arrived for them on March 29th.

Also early is Tennessee, where Tax Freedom Day arrived April 2.

Historically, the date for Tax Freedom Day has fluctuated significantly. The latest-ever nationwide Tax Freedom Day was May 1, 2000 — meaning that Americans paid one-third of their total income in taxes. A century earlier, in 1900, Americans paid only 5.9 percent of their income in taxes, meaning Tax Freedom Day came on Jan. 22.

Five major categories of taxes dominate the tax burden. Individual income taxes — including federal, state and local — require 40 days of work. Payroll taxes take another 24 days of work. Sales and excise taxes, mostly state and local, take 15 days to pay off.

Property taxes take 12 days, and corporate income taxes take another 9.

For more information, go to Taxfreedomday.org.

A goat walks into a bar in Butte; taken to shelter

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — Butte barflies may have thought they had one too many when a goat walked in to one tavern.

A patron called to complain early Sunday that somebody brought the female pygmy goat into an unidentified Butte bar.

The Montana Standard reports an animal control officer picked up the goat outside the bar and took it to a shelter.

Chelsea Bailey Animal Shelter Supervisor Jacki Casagrande says if the owner doesn't come forward by Wednesday, shelter workers will begin the process to adopt it.

Casagrande says it's the first time an impounded goat has been brought to the shelter.

The shelter workers are calling the goat Shirley, and they say it is sweet and friendly.

Pa. sheriff nicknamed 'Duke' to stay on ballot
DOYLESTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A judge says the Republican incumbent can remain on the May 21 primary ballot for sheriff of an eastern Pennsylvania county along with his nickname, Duke.

Tom Lingenfelter, a political activist and Republican challenger in the May 21 primary in Bucks County, wanted incumbent Sheriff Edward "Duke" Donnelly kicked off the ballot for using his nickname.

The Bucks County Courier Times reports Wednesday that Bucks County Judge Gary Gilman found that the nickname isn't confusing to voters, nor does it suggest Donnelly is claiming some "hereditary distinction or nobility title" as Lingenfelter alleged.

Simply put, the judge says, "If strikes me that if George Herman Ruth was running for office, then there would be no objection to him appearing on the ballot as Babe Ruth."

Lingenfelter says he'll appeal.

Dear Abby...

By Pauline & Jeanne Phillips

DEAR ABBY: My husband, "Wade," and I went into a convenience store near our home that we frequent regularly. A new employee — a pretty, much younger girl — stared at Wade with an expression of recognition and surprise on her face. When I asked him what that was about, he laughed it off and said I was "imagining things."

The next time we saw her, Wade acted nervous and started talking fast, as if trying to distract me. He seemed to be avoiding eye contact with her. She ignored me while obviously trying to lock eyes with Wade. The third time, she again ignored me but smirked and giggled while we were checking out. Then she shouted, "See ya later!" to my husband as we were walking out the door. When I turned, I caught Wade glaring at her.

When I asked why he did it, he replied, "I looked at her like that because she was acting like an idiot." When I asked why she'd be acting like an idiot if they didn't know each other, he started screaming at me. He called me crazy and threatened to leave me if I bring the subject up again.

Should I ask her why she seems so amused by my husband? And why is he angry at me? — SMELLS SOMETHING FISHY

DEAR SMELLS: By all means ask because I'll bet she is dying to tell you. Your husband may have been seeing her or someone she knows. He attacked you because he felt guilty about something and didn't want to discuss it.

It proves the truth of the adage, "The best defense is a strong offense." Believe me, you have my sympathy, but you need to get to the bottom of this, so don't put it off.

DEAR ABBY: What do you call additions to your family that result from second or third marriages? Our daughter died several years ago. I refer to her widower as my son-in-law, but what term should I use when I introduce his new wife? She has two daughters from a previous marriage — sweet girls who call me "Granddad." Technically, they are not my granddaughters — but what are they?

These are just two examples of modern relationships that seem to require a new vocabulary. I have tried searching the Internet for answers without luck. Any suggestions? — FAMILY MAN IN TEXAS

DEAR FAMILY MAN: When introducing your late daughter's husband and his wife, try this: "This is my son-in-law 'Sam' and his wife, 'Virginia.'" If you're asked for clarification, which I doubt will happen, give more details. As to the woman's daughters who are not blood related to you, because they call you "Granddad," refer to them as your granddaughters and leave it at that.

DEAR ABBY: Where does the priest get the ashes for Ash Wednesday? — MARY IN VISTA, CALIF.

DEAR MARY: Traditionally, palm branches from the previous year's Palm Sunday are burned to create the ashes, and those ashes are retained for the next year's Ash Wednesday. Some people keep the palm fronds from the last Palm Sunday tucked behind a cross or a religious picture in their home and bring them to be burned. I have this on good authority. (When I told a priest I would have guessed they were left over from the Inquisition, he laughed.)

Officers will be elected and committees will be formed to help with various aspects of the tournament, which will be held this fall at the Stilling Basin in Spring Canyon.

Volunteers are needed to assist with planning, stuffing gift bags for participants, and for day-of-tournament activities such as registration, cooking and assisting youngsters who have never fished. All interested parties are invited to attend Sunday's meeting.

For more information, call Win Bishop at 806-857-2541.
