Local Farmer Featured In Fort Worth Paper

An area farmer, Ben Roming, was among the 26 Texas farmers/ranchers featured in The Fort Worth Star Telegram Farm and Ranch Awards program this year. Now in its fourth year, the program selects these honorees with help from agriculture experts considering more than 1,100 nominees.

The nominations came from county, district and state agents of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, professors and scientists at Texas A&M and Texas Tech universities, U.S. Department of Agriculture officials, agricultural suppliers, Texas Parks and Wildlife officials, farm and ranch organizations, veterinarians, the Texas Department of Agriculture, crop and livestock merchants, other farmers and ranchers.

The following article was written by Worth Wren Jr and was published in the Fort Worth Star on Sunday, January 31.

Ben Roming, 52, is one of Texas' scrappiest farmers, raising some of the state's best pumpkins and sweet corn.

This vegetable grower jockeyed his business through several weather disasters, refused to declare bankruptcy a few years ago and sold land and equipment to cover debt. He cut his operating costs to the bone and continues to market his crops to regional wholesalers, major supermarket chains, retail nursery chains and other customers in and out of the state.

Roming is a driven man, typically living on less than four hours sleep nightly. He's often roaming the state to land new customers, maintain old customers and swap farm equipment to pay his travel bills and reduce other costs. He believes in personal service and follows up with regular phone calls.

Judy Roming, his wife, has shared the stress, helps with some field chores, works in the farm office and still rides the wide open marketing rage with her husband.

Olivia Mendoza, his bilingual office manager, helps with the

Rotary Hears Program On New City Tax Dollars

Several questions have risen on the subject of "Where our new city tax dollars are going to be placed." Jay Messenger, with the Industrial Foundation spoke briefly on the matter to Rotarians Tuesday.

Messenger stated that, "Being a private organization and not a part of the city, a new board of directors has been elected." He went on to say, "City sales tax dollars belong to the city, and will probably return to the city by the fourth quarter of 1993 to be used for economic development or used for new projects.

He states that, "the city intends to appoint a 5 member board to serve at the pleasure of and responsible to the City Council on uses of the money."

He says that the purpose of the Industrial Foundation is to stir ideas and the city will then make the decisions on where it is to be used.

The Industrial Foundation is currently organizing a membership drive. Messenger states that "if we broaden membership, more weight is carried on projects and more voice is going to be heard on how the money is spent."

He states that there is currently a business in Muleshoe putting together a poll to render the money.

Messenger reminds us all that the key thing in economic development is "who you know, and what you can do with who you know." "Businesses are influential to other businesses."

Messenger said that it is unknown if there will be another bid for a prison site in Muleshoe. He states that the tax dollars are belonged to the Guadalupe Society and has taught Sunday School. She is past president of the Church's Parish Council and is currently coordinator for the church's Sunday School Program. She is involved with the Bailey County Chapter of the American Heart Association, Child Welfare board and Chapter I Parent Advisory Committee. In 1987 the Texas Parent Coordinating Council of the State of Texas recognized Janie with the Community Contributor Award.

"A very caring person, Janie has provided organizations in this community with information about families in need at Christmas so that Santa might make his stop at those homes. She has been invaluable in building better relations between the school system and families in the community. She is also involved in a program to encourage students to finish school by teaching them

Life Management Skills and building their self-esteem.

Upon being notified of this award, Janie commented that the best part of the job was getting to really know the students better through involvement with parents; "I get to know where they are coming from." Her personal reward comes from the knowledge that "I am really contributing something. Otherwise, I would have retired a long time ago." Janie Acknowledges that she has benefited from the guidance and wisdom of other members of the school district over the years. She specifically mentioned Elizabeth Watson, Katherine Sanders, Tom Jinks, and Georgia Pena as helpful mentors.

Sam Harlan called the regular school board meeting to order and Curtis Shelburne gave the invocation. Minutes of the

Rising Lumber Prices Threaten Housing Recovery

In 1992 consumers paid $5.9 billion more for lumber and plywood than they did in 1990. At an average of 15 thousand board feet per house, the home buyer in 1992 paid $1,200 more than in 1990, just for the lumber.

"This year promises to be more of the same, but worse", says Donnelly, Executive Vice President of the nine thousand member National Lumber and Building Material Dealers Association (NLBMDA). Already lumber prices at the sawmill are 40 percent higher than they were for the same period last year. "The shrinking inventory of logs at the sawmills and a growing decline in the land available for timber harvesting may soon turn the first time home buyer into an Endangered Species," Donnelly says. "Our members are already telling us of cases where home building projects have been delayed or canceled because of higher lumber prices. One of our Connecticut members told us a home builder canceled construction of his home in Litchfield county, CT, because the price of the lumber he needed jumped from $32,000 in October to $44,000 in January," he added.

The problem: Environmental set asides and new forest practices that prevent the use of traditional harvest methods. A judge in the Pacific Northwest has slapped an injunction on 13 national forests in Oregon, Washington, and Northern California inhabited by the northern spotted owl.

The Forest Service was prepared to offer 1.6 billion board feet of timber for sale but cannot do so because of the injunction (at 15,000 board feet per house this represents about 106,000 homes).

Vitamin C May Be More Of A Hinder Than A Cold

If you're trying to prevent a cold, taking huge doses of vitamin C may cause more problems than the virus you're trying to avoid.

Researchers at Arizona State University found that two people complained of chronic diarrhea after taking 500 milligrams of vitamin C daily, said Dr. Mary Kinney Bielamowicz, nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Although the amount given was eight times the recommended daily allowance, it is commonly found in just one pill.

When researchers increased the dosage to 2,000 milligrams a day, two more people complained of dry nose and nosebleeds. The sample in the study was small—nine men and women—yet, any supplement may cause problems if not taken as recommended, Bielamowicz said.

"Many people have a habit of taking vitamins on an empty stomach, when most labels tell you to take them with food," she said.

Breast Cancer Screening Programs

The Breast Cancer Screening Program of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and High Plains Baptist Hospital of Amarillo will continue community outreach clinics for early detection of breast cancer.

Funding is available through the Texas Department of Health for screening mammography for Texas residents qualifying for financial assistance.

Early detection of breast cancer is the major goal of cancer control for each woman seen in the clinic. The clinic provides low cost screening which includes a breast exam by a Registered Nurse trained in breast cancer detection, teaching of breast self examination, and a mammogram.

Currently, the most effective method known to win the battle against breast cancer is early detection. Early detection is best done by following the guidelines recommended by the American Cancer Society for breast cancer screening for women who have no signs or symptoms of breast cancer. The guidelines are:

1. Learn and perform breast self-examination every month.
2. Have a physical examination every year.
3. Have a mammogram according to the recommendations by age.

Age
35 to 40—One baseline mammogram
40 to 50—A mammogram every 1 to 2 years
Over 50—Yearly mammograms

Martha Johanna Miller

Phil and Sharon Miller of Mansfield announce the birth of a daughter, Martha Johanna, born February 9, 1993 at 11:56 a.m. in Arlington Memorial Hospital. Martha Johanna weighed 7 lbs. and 6 ozs. at birth.

She has two brothers, Mark Alan, who is six years old, and Jonathan Roy, who is eight years old.

Her grandparents are Bob and Martha Miller of Arlington, Roy and Johanna Winkle of Muleshoe, and one great grandmother, Minnie Winkle of Bronte, Texas.

"The high acidity in vitamin C can especially cause stomach problems."

For those who think vitamin C can help prevent the cold virus during bad weather, Bielamowicz recommends getting it naturally by eating foods high in the vitamin.

Fruits rich in vitamin C are oranges and orange juice, grapefruit and grapefruit juice, lemons, strawberries, berries and papaya. Raw vegetables that provide good sources of the vitamin are greens, broccoli, tomatoes, cabbage, green peppers, brussels sprouts, and cauliflower.

"Vitamin C is destroyed by heat," Bielamowicz said, "so ordinarily, eat uncooked fruits and vegetables to meet nutritional needs."

More than 100 different viruses cause colds, which are spread by coughs, sneezes, kissing and the common use of drinking glasses and other personal objects that have been contaminated.

Bielamowicz said people cannot cure colds, but can help prevent them by following these steps:

- * Protect your health by eating a balanced diet and getting plenty of rest.

- * Avoid being around those who have colds, especially when they are coughing and sneezing.

- * Don't use items that may have been contaminated by someone with a cold.

"If you do come down with the symptoms of a cold, drink plenty of liquids and take cold medications that you know work for you," Bielamowicz said. "See your doctor if you have high fever, severe headache, chest pains or other symptoms."

School Finance Amendment Best Plan

By Joe Rankin, President Texas Farmers Union

The Texas Legislature acted responsibly in approving a constitutional amendment for providing a reasonable solution to avoid shutting down public schools this summer. If approved by the state's voters in May, this proposed system will help both the state and local school boards move their attention from financing our schools to the equally serious business of educating our children.

The amendment will ask voter to approve "recapture" which allows the state to redistribute some local property tax dollars from the wealthier districts to provide more equity. Although this solution is far from perfect, voters should remember that this will probably meet the court's definition of providing an equitable system of financing schools. Otherwise, a judge in Austin will be telling everyone how the system is going to be financed—and he won't wait to ask us.

Thanks to the leadership of Speaker Pete Laney, House Public Education Committee Chair Libby Lineberger, Representative Dan Kubiak and others who worked long and hard on the issue, this program will allow us to maintain local control of our school districts. The amendment has a cap of $1 per $100 valuation that each County Education District (CED) can levy. With this ceiling, the CED's can never increase the rate above this level. Local school districts will still be able to set their own local rates and have any future bond programs approved by the voters of the local districts. Finally, districts can ignore state education mandates unless the state provides the money to carry them out. This is welcome news to taxpayers and educators alike.

All in all, although the system still relies too much on the horse and buggy property tax system, the proposed constitutional amendment is the best vehicle we can expect this year.

But that doesn't mean that we can sit back in our easy chairs and relax. We still must develop a system of funding our public schools which will not place such an undue burden on property taxpayers. That old horse has been pulling this wagon for far too many years, especially when we consider how much the state has generated economically in the past generation.

We need to all pull together one more time and approve this constitutional amendment for our public schools. But we should all realize that this is nothing more than a bandaid approach to funding public education. We need to take a hard look at a realistic approach and a different method in funding our schools which will move us away from reliance on the antiquated property tax system. Otherwise, we will be flying into the twenty-first century on a nineteenth century system of taxation.

People who never make mistakes are poor companions.

The only plan that counts for much is one that's carried out.

"La Fanciulla Del West" To Be Broadcast

Giacomo Puccini's "La Fanciulla del West" (The Girl of the Golden West) will be broadcast live from stage of the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday afternoon, March 6, at 1:30 p.m. Eastern Time, over Texaco-Metropolitan International Radio Network.

Girl Scouts Council Seeks Women Of Distinction

Caprock Girl Scout Council is accepting nominations for "Women of Distinction" who will be recognized at an October dinner held in their honor. These are women who are or have been members of the Girl Scout Movement as girls or adults; believe that membership in the organization had made an impact on their lives; have had a direct and powerful impact on American girls and women; serve as positive role models for girls, are persons of influence and importance and have made a significant contribution to their society; exhibit the qualities of the Girl Scout Promise and Law in their lives; and are current or former residents (living or deceased) of the 18 county Caprock Girl Scout Council.

Girl Scouting exerts a powerful influence on the future lives of its members and on the future itself. A 1991 study, "Girl Scouts: Its Role in the Lives of American Women of Distinction," examines what Girl Scouting has contributed to the lives of today's prominent female leaders. Louis Harris and Associates, Inc., surveyed a cross section of women listed in Who's Who of America. Sixty-four percent of women identified themselves as former Girl Scouts. Almost 72 percent of the women made a firm connection between their experience in Girl Scouting and their later success life. They reported that Girl Scouting was a positive experience, helping them with their self-confidence, moral values, and social conscience.

To nominate a woman of distinction, contact the council office at 745-2885. The deadline for nominations is May 1.

Girl Scout Week Is March 6-12

Girl Scout Week celebrates the beginning of Girl Scouts in the United States. On March 12, 1912, Juliette Gordon Low met with 18 girls in Savannah, GA, and formed the first Girl Scout troop. Today, more than 3 million girls are members.

During the week, Girl Scouts in the 18 county Caprock Council will work on community service projects and celebrate the beginning of Girl Scouts.

Membership in Girl Scouts has been proven to be an important factor in the lives of successful women. In a study conducted by Louis Harris and Associates, Inc., a cross section of women listed in Who's Who of America were surveyed. Sixty-four percent of the women identified themselves as former Girl Scouts. Almost 72 percent of these women made a firm connection between their experience in Girl Scouting and their later success in life. They reported that Girl Scouting was a positive experience, helping them with their self-confidence, moral values, and social conscience.

Hart-Miller Exchange Wedding Vows

Kerry Anne Hart and Brandon Kurt Miller exchanged wedding vows January 23, 1993 at 6 p.m. in the Post Church of Christ. Paul, D. Jones, minister, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Hart of Post. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Miller of Muleshoe, Texas.

Mothers of the bride and groom were seated to music of "The Wedding Song" provided by Christa Atchison and Jeff Anderson, both of Lubbock.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a romantic gown of white satin and schiffli lace. The bodice was encrusted with sequins and pearls, and featured a v'd neckline, Juliet sleeves, and a basque waist. The full ballgown skirt was highlighted at the back waist with a bow and flowed to a semi-cathedral trained adorned with lace motifs.

To complete her attire the bride wore a pearl spray half wreath, with a double illusion pouf and a two-tiered waist length veil. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis cascading with laced pearls and english ivy.

Following tradition, for something old was a handkerchief belonging to her great grandmother. Something new was her wedding dress and veil. Something borrowed was her slip and for something blue was a blue garter. She carried pennies minted in both bride's and groom's birth years in each shoe.

The song "Friends" was sung as the bridal party entered. The maid of honor was D'Lynn Young of Lubbock. Bridesmaids were Roseann Smith of Tyler, Alicia Pettyjohn, Dena Ruiz, and Kim Mossier all of Lubbock. they wore tea length gowns of jewel tones of emerald, rose, wine, purple, and sapphire blue. The bodice featured a sweetheart neckline, short pouf sleeves and a basque waistline with low v'd backs accented with a bow. Bouquets of white gardenias were carried by each attendant.

Junior bridesmaid, Kelci Hart, sister of the bride, wore a matching gown of turquoise and carried a similar bouquet.

The ring bearer was Kevin Hart, brother of the bride. He carried a white satin pillow adorned with white bows. His tuxedo was identical to the grooms.

Candlelighters were Keith Hart, brother of the bride, and John Colby Miller, brother of the groom. Candles were lit to "To Me".

Serving as best man was Scott Miller of Canyon, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Ken Hicks of Arlington, Damron Henson of Los Colinas, Johnny Cooper of Lubbock and Guy Brockman of Lazbuddie.

Ushers were Scott Treadway of Midland and Lance King of Lubbock. Keith Hart and Jon Colby Miller also served as ushers.

The groom wore a black tuxedo with a white shirt and black accessories. His boutonniere was a gardenia. The groomsmen and ushers wore black tuxedos with a medley of jewel tone tie and cummerbuns.

The church was decorated with ficus and dogwood trees with miniature lights. Soft candlelight was provided by tall tapers in a silver candelabra. An arch of english ivy, white bows and miniature lights completed the setting. Jeff and Christa sang "I'll Be Here" after the lighting of the unity candle.

Christine Issacson of Houston, sister of the groom, and Gloria Hart, sister-in-law of the bride, registered the guests in the foyer of the church.

The reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church. The bride's cake was a four-tiered white cake with crystal columns and a crystal Precious Moments bride and groom on the top. Red punch and mints were served from crystal appointments.

The groom's table featured a red velvet cake adorned with chocolate dipped cherries and holly. Mixed nuts and coffee were served from silver appointments.

Wedding guests threw birdseed as the bride and groom departed. Following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will make their home in Muleshoe, Texas.

The bride was a 1987 graduate of Post High School and attended South Plains College. She is employed by Methodist Hospital.

The groom is a 1986 graduate of Lazbuddie High School and attended West Texas State University and Texas Tech University. He is self-employed.

Another 400 million board feet in 118 Forest Service Contracts already awarded cannot be harvested because of concerns over the marbled murrelet. In September 1986 there were over 10 billion board feet under contract in this area. The equivalent amount in 1992 was three billion board feet.

These are but a few examples of how a poorly written Endangered Species Act is being used to halt timber harvesting and drive up the prices consumers pay for wood products.

that it does not consider the economic or social (human) impact of the decisions made in its name. Our members have been saying for years that it would take a crisis before people, both private citizens and elected officials, would begin to listen to the concerns expressed over the inequities of the Act. Now that individual consumers are being directly impacted in the form of higher prices for all wood products, they are starting to pay attention. It is about time unfortunately, some consumers see the lumber dealer as the bad guy because it is at the lumber yard that the consumer is introduced to higher prices. I tell our members to tell their customers to call their Congressman, they wrote the Act and are the only ones who can change it and correct the problem," Donnelly concluded.

telephone and fax marketing chores. Sweet corn customers include Kroger, Albertson's other chains and wholesale produce distributors.

His Howden, Ghost Rider, Jackpot, Baby Pam and other varieties of pumpkins have gone statewide and out of state.

His potential profit per acre of pumpkins exceeds the potential gross on cotton and most other crops that can be raised in the area, Roming said.

But, as it is for his corn, his out-of-the-pocket operating costs alone are high risks every year--from about $800 to more than $1,000 an acre for the corn and $350 to $650 an acre for pumpkins.

Pumpkin customers range from Albetson's, Harrington Produce of Dallas and Selvidge Produce of Houston to Affiliated Food Stores of Keller, H.E.B. Grocery of San Antonio, some retail nursery chains and Winn-Dixie's Fort Worth-based Texas division.

The Romings have been farming on the fine sandy loam soils of Bailey County since 1959, when they raised cotton and grain sorghum.

He planted their first pumpkin crop in 1967 and first sweet corn in 1986. He dropped the other crops.

Last year he planted about 750 acres of pumpkins and 400 acres of sweet corn, all irrigated.

"If the weather leaves us alone, we can make 25,000 to 35,000 pounds of pumpkins even in the sandiest soils," said Roming. His best average yield has topped 40,000 pounds and the worst, just over 3,000 pounds.

He has averaged harvesting about 15,600 ears of sellable sweet corn an acre and produced as high as 18,000 ears.

Those are high rates, from 60 percent to 80 percent of the total crop going as fancy grade corn. It has both the quality and uniform appearance that supermarkets demand, Roming said. The rest, still good-eating corn, is sold at the farm, given away and fed to his landlords' cattle, he said.

But he also has had major corn losses due largely to lingering heavy rainfall and some drought.

Additionally, Roming is custom-farming wheat for his landlords' cattle to graze on and for his annual crop rotation with pumpkins and sweet corn. He leases his own 370 acres into this rotational grazing strategy.

Also included in the venture are 160 acres he leases from his three grown daughters and 640 acres from other landlords. He custom-farms or has grower agreements on an additional 600 acres.

In 1989, the wind, rain and light hail storm that struck his bumper-looking sweet corn crop brought out Roming's gritty determination at its best.

Roming estimates he had the potential of harvesting about 19,000 sellable ears of corn that year.

The storm hit after he had harvested about 50 percent of the crop and blew over the stalks while rain showers continued for a few days.

Roming and his farm were worked frantically with one corn picker, outfitted with special long pickup fingers added, to retrieve all the dropping ears.

But he needed a second picker. The nearest unit known to be available was in Illinois. So in the middle of the night, Roming and his banker awakened a friend of Roming's to drive to Illinois and pick up the machine.

During the three days the friend was gone, Roming and his crew continued to harvest the dropping corn in fields with standing water.

He had to drive the tractor pulling the picker only one way down the rows, deadhead at the end and drive back to the head of the rows to start over again. That was to keep the four-wheel-drive tractor wheels from running over the reclining crop and to allow the picker to pull in the leaning ears.

The second picker arrived in time to help finish the harvest, and the losses came to only about 10 percent to 15 percent of the crop, Roming said.

He figures the tireless efforts of his crew and the second machine salvaged about $150,000 of sellable corn, and his crop averaged more than 16,000 marketable ears per acre.

In the 1980s, Roming sold about 1,100 acres of farmland and excess equipment to slash heavy carryover debt. He refinanced some remaining debt.

Much of the squeeze came with the decade's deflating farmland values, which hit his loan collateral. But he kept the new corn picker and plans to buy a third to ensure a faster harvest.

Now Roming's operating needs are financed largely by three of his wholesale distribution customers, and Roming said his farm is poised to clear remaining debt and forge ahead in the next few years if the weather permits.

But Roming has taken on yet another major chore.

He's challenging a U.S. Department of Agriculture interpretation of the federal crop disaster programs during the last several years. The interpretation, he said, favors competing pumpkin growers in other states, including those just 15 miles away in New Mexico. The annual programs have provided them with larger disaster relief checks for losses similar to those on Roming's and other Texans' land, he said.

His administrative appeals probably will end up in a lawsuit, Roming said.

To save on labor and liability costs, Roming does all of the pesticide spraying on his crops.

To prevent ear worm invasions, that means he sprays the sweet corn at night and sometimes gets no sleep before rising to the next day's chores, he said.

Roming scavenged the state for quality building materials and parts to build his packing shed's cooler and other processing facilities.

James Crane Tire Co.

Mike Hahn of James Crane Tire Co., 322 N. 1st, Muleshoe, announces the installing of a Hunter Engineering computerized wheel aligner. It's one of the first systems of its type used in this area.

The system uses the latest in microprocessor computer technology. All alignment readings are displayed on a CRT screen. The aligner automatically compares vehicle specifications against the actual condition of the vehicle and displays the difference on the screen. During vehicle adjustment, special displays on the screen show the operator exactly how much adjustment is required to bring the vehicle within specifications. It's automatic. The system even checks itself to see if everything is okay each time it's turned on.

The new aligner also features Hunter's "Total Alignment" concept which relates all four wheels to a common vehicle centerline. For this reason, instruments are used on all four wheels, not just the front.

The end result is a degree of accuracy, ease of operation, and dependability not available with a conventional wheel alignment system.

The James Crane Tire Co. invites you to call 272-4594 for an appointment to have your car or light-truck in for a "Total Alignment" using the latest equipment. Or is you're interested in just seeing how this amazing machine works, you can stop by anytime.

Revised Hydrologic Atlases Series Now Available

Revised Hydrologic Atlases depicting ground water availability as of 1990 within the 15-county High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 service area are now available to the public.

This is the third edition of the Hydrologic Atlas series, which is updated every five years.

The Atlases cover the portions of Armstrong, Bailey, Castro, Cochran, Crosby, Deaf Smith, Floyd, Hale, Hockley, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Parmer, Potter and Randall Counties within the Water District. The revised atlases for Cochran and Lynn Counties do not include the portions of the counties annexed into the District in 1992.

"The preparation of the 1990 atlases continues the effort of the Water District to provide interested persons a reasonable estimate of ground water availability within the district," said Don McReynolds, Technical Division Director.

McReynolds used water-level measurements from the District's observation well network and measurements from supplementary wells to prepare altitude-of-water table maps for 1990. These maps were used with previously constructed maps showing the altitude of the base of the Ogallala Formation to prepare saturated thick thickness maps depicting ground water availability as of 1990.

Each Hydrologic Atlas packet contains a descriptive booklet and four county maps. Contour lines on the individual maps depict the approximate altitude of the base of the Ogallala Formation, the approximate altitude of the water table, the approximate altitude of the land surface and the saturated thickness of the Ogallala Formation.

The maps in each county atlas provide a wide range of ground water information:

*Subtracting the value for the base of the Ogallala Formation from the altitude of the land surface gives the approximate thickness of the Formation. Knowing the amount of saturated thickness helps landowners gauge the expected yield of a water well.

*Subtracting the value of the altitude of water table from the altitude of the land surface gives a landowner an approximation of the depth-to-water.

Copies of the 1990 Hydrologic Atlases are available by contacting the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District NO. 1, 2930 Avenue Q, Lubbock, Texas 79405-1450 or by calling (806) 762-0181.

News From Teel Bivins
State Senator

State Sen. Teel Bivins (R-Amarillo) announced he is introducing legislation to reform Texas' intrastate trucking laws to generate competition and reduce prices. The bill also would strengthen safety requirements for carriers.

"Texas' trucking laws are complex. They stifle competition and keep rates high," Bivins said. "It's cheaper to truck goods to another state than to other towns inside Texas. This encourages warehouses and manufacturers to locate in a neighboring state and ship into Texas rather than to bring their jobs here."

"About 20,000 to 35,000 new jobs would be created in Texas over the next 10 years if our trucking laws are reformed. The jobs would not only be in trucking but manufacturing as well," Bivins said.

The trucking reform bill would:
--Reduce red tape: "The paperwork needed to break into the trucking business is costly and time-consuming. Many people get frustrated and give up as they try to hurdle the many bureaucratic obstacles. That must change," Bivins said.

--Enlarge commercial zones: The bill would establish unregulated commercial zones for towns 25,000 and larger. Boundaries would be based on county lines. "Under this provision, a small-business without the bureaucratic hassles," he said.

--Expand small-town service: "If fewer than five carriers are serving a town, that would show sufficient evidence of need, allowing a person to easily obtain a permit," Bivins said. The bill also would allow the state to require existing carriers to serve a small town if service becomes inadequate.

--Enhance enforcement of safety laws: The reform bill would adopt maximum penalties for violations of Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations and Hazardous Materials Regulations. It also would allow the state to revoke certificates and permits for excessive safety violations. An applicant's bad safety record could be a basis to deny an application.

--Create more flexible rates; On Sept. 1, 1993, carriers and their shipping customers could negotiate a rate ranging between 20% above and 50% below a baseline rate set by the Railroad Commission. On Jan. 1, 1995, the commission would set a maximum rate below which shippers and carriers could negotiate their own rates.

--Ease entry requirements into business: "Currently, if a carrier wants to serve an area, it must prove its services are necessary. As of Sept. 1, 1995, the entry requirement would simply be that they're fit, willing and able to do the job," Bivins said.

State Sen. Teel Bivins (R-Amarillo) introduced legislation to suspend drivers licenses for persons convicted of all drug offenses. Current Texas law requires licenses to be suspended only for felony drug offenses.

Under federal law, a portion of Texas' federal highway funds could be withheld if the state law is not expanded, Bivins said. Senate Bill 387 would make that expansion.

"Last session, I wanted to suspend drivers licenses for persons convicted of all drug offenses, but the bill was amended during Senate debate to include only felony convictions," Bivins said. "Now the federal government says that's not good enough--that we must strengthen the law or risk losing millions in highway funds."

The state's highway funds could be jeopardized unless a new law is in place by April 1, 1993. About $39.4 million would be withheld for fiscal year 1994, followed by $39.4 million in 1995, $75.7 million in 1996, and $75.7 million in 1997.

One thing that fiction often has on life is the happy ending.

Perry Says EPA Decision Is Step In The Right Direction

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry applauded the Clinton administration's decision to ask Congress to revise a law that prohibits even the most minute trace amounts of pesticides in processed foods.

"The Environmental Protection Agency's call for change regarding the Delaney Clause is a step in the right direction," Perry said. "The California court's decision last summer places a unbearable burden on our farmers as well as consumers who could face higher food prices. "Food safety is a major concern of all agricultural groups and each producer, and the food industry certainly knows more about--and is able to detect smaller amounts of--pesticide residues than it did 10, 15 or even 20 years ago."

"This issue served its purpose at a time when parts per hundred could be detected. But today, when we can measure parts per billion, it's become as outdated as my grandfather's push plow.

"I hope that Congress listens to scientific facts and not hysteria and addresses this issue quickly," Perry said.

People only get old; life is constantly new and full of change.

BAROMETER for the FUTURE

Webster says that a barometer is an instrument measuring the weight or pressure of the atmosphere, foretelling and measuring changes of weather and altitude.

If God were to place a barometer on our lives, would we be cold, lukewarm, or on fire for the Lord. The past we can not change. . . the future is up to us.

"... what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all His ways, and to love Him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul." ATTEND CHURCH REGULARLY

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Traveling With The Texas Angler

by Keith R. Warren
Back in the mid 1960's electric fishing motors came into the fishing scene. They certainly created a lot of interest then, and now they are standard equipment on most freshwater and saltwater fishing rigs.
Electric trolling motors today are much more sophisticated than they were only a few years ago. Technological advances have helped manufacturers create extremely powerful as well as efficient motors for virtually any type of fishing.

Saltwater fishermen are discovering what bass fishermen have known for years. These lightweight work horses will allow them to move locations quietly and quickly. However, corrosion has been a problem with use in saltwater until recently.

Trolling motor industry leader Minnkota has introduced the saltwater sealed Turbo Pro. This motor is designed specifically for saltwater fishing with components that resist corrosion, including a composite graphite shaft that will flex up to 35 degrees without breaking. This allows oyster bed fishermen to run the motor against the bottom without bending the shaft. This motor is available in both bowmount or transom mount. Saltwater sealed trolling motors are more expensive than freshwater models, but anyone who has ever tried a freshwater trolling motor in saltwater knows that they will not stand up to the corrosion.

For freshwater fishermen trolling motors are available for all sizes of boats. From flat bottom boats and canoes to high performance bass rigs; there's a motor that will fit your rig.

Texas' bass fishermen primarily use two types of bow mount motors. They are hand controlled models and foot control models. The later is preferred by those who sit while fishing. My choice for a trolling motor on my bass boat is a Minnkota (324) Turbo Pro. This hand controlled 24 volt motor has a 48" composite graphite shaft that flexes when I hit underwater objects.

Our lakes and bays are becoming more congested with aquatic vegetation. This makes for some great fishing, but also makes it very frustrating to fish if you don't have a weedless trolling motor.

The Minnkota Turbo Pro is more weedless than any other motor I've seen. The large prop (called "the weedless wedge") actually pushes weeds away from the motor, allowing the operator better ability to fish heavy cover. Other trolling motors call themselves weedless; however, they provide a smaller bladed prop for operation in thick vegetation. By changing to a smaller prop, you lose power and rather than pushing the weeds away from the motor, the blade cuts the grass.

My advice to anyone who is interested in purchasing a trolling motor is to purchase the most powerful trolling motor you can afford. Before the purchase, ask around and see what other fishermen think about their motor. If possible, try out your choice on someone else's rig.

There are lots of electric trolling motors on the market. Check out the selection and choose one that will fit your needs. Just to give you an indication of how much I use my trolling motor, it's used about 8-10 times more each day than my outboard.

To Dye--Or Not To Dye In Your Automatic Washer

Did you know you can use your washing machine to DYE your clothes?

(NAPS)—Those bedroom curtains are perfectly good—except for the faded color. They're too large to dye in a pan or in the sink. Is it O. K. to dye them in your automatic washer?

"You bet," say home economists, from Whirlpool Corporation, "but with reservations." Most important, they say, for really good color results, and clean-up of the washer after a dyeing cycle, you need hot (130°F or above) water. If you've lowered your water heater setting to save energy, you may need to raise it for dyeing.

Beyond that, Whirlpool home economists suggest:

- Follow dye package instructions exactly for pretreatment, dye quantity and best fabrics for dyeing.
- Clean washer immediately by running it through a complete hot wash cycle at the high water level, using detergent and one cup of chlorine bleach. The washer's plastic parts (such as the agitator in automatic washers) may absorb some of the color, but will not transfer it to subsequent loads.

Diatary Fat

Today people across the country are cutting the fat out of their diets. Many don't realize however, that a certain amount of dietary fat is needed for energy. The energy produced from fat is used for muscle movement, and stored fat is the primary source of fuel for aerobic exercise.

According to Sandra Feldman, R.D. dietitian at Methodist Hospital, fat has many other uses.

"Fat is used for the transmission of brain and nerve signals, to keep our skin smooth, to cushion body organs and to maintain optimum body temperature," she said.

A certain amount of fat is especially important in children's diets--children under two-years of age should not be placed on any type of a fat restricted diet.

But although fat is a necessary part of the diet, an excessive amount of dietary fat can cause weight gain. Feldman suggests the following for maintaining a healthy fat/body percentage:

- *Drink eight glasses of water each day.
- *Consume 20 to 30 percent of total caloric intake from fat.
- *Avoid eating saturated fat, instead substitute monounsaturated and polyunsaturated varieties.

*Exercise regularly.

"What's important for people to realize is that they need to strike a balance between too much and not enough fat in their diets," said Feldman. "If 20 to 30 percent of your total caloric intake is coming from fat then that's a good balance."

Feldman suggests the following formula for tabulating 20 percent fat consumption:

$$\frac{\text{Calories per Day} \times .2}{9} = \text{Number of Fat Grams}$$
