Farmers Not Going To Vote Blindly This Year, Prominent Editorial Writer Finds

The Texas farmer is going to "locate" himself before going into the polls this year, says an editorial writer in the Dallas News. Commenting upon the political outlook as affecting the farmer, The News says:

The American farmer is not going to vote blindly partisan fashion, in the coming elections, national and State. The old shibboleths will have little meaning for him, for he is, if not down and out, so near it that he shudders at the approach of the peril.

Never before in his lifetime has he received such low prices for his products, provided he can sell them at all. His land has lost value and is mortgaged; he sees his equity slipping away under the drainage of high interest payments and fees. If a tenant, he is more likely an object of partial or complete charity, as a reward for his toilsome work.

Farmers should read their common interests and speak with one voice. Beginning with the hour government, honest and efficient. High interest charges, excessive taxes and juggled land values should receive attention. State national banks should be understood as a part of the affected situation. The present tariff system, for example, adds to the cost of many products and living expenses; it also kills off export trade, deepening the price of cotton and wheat and drives it all abroad.

As long as the farmer remains a private citizen, he should take meekly whatever is put upon him by a government as a sort of doctrinal forebodings to wince to.

The Way of Life BRUCE BARTON WHY MEN DIE

Among the men whose friendship I enjoyed was the late C. W. Barron, owner of the Wall Street Journal. One day in Boston I received a message that he was sick in New York and wished to see me before he died.

He had been close enough to eternity, however, so that the experience left a deep impression. When his secretary went out of the room, we talked about Death. He told me two stories. The first was about a man who accumulated a large fortune, built a house on Fifth Avenue, put his feet on the window-sill, and said: "Now, I am going to enjoy myself." But he was like a watch spring which has been wound up tight for a long time, and, being suddenly released, snaps in pieces.

The second story had been told to Barron by a noted surgeon. A woman, taken to the hospital for a slight operation, died almost before the anesthetic was applied. The surgeon could not understand it. On looking into her history, he discovered that from the minute the operation was decided upon she had begun to prepare for the worst. She had made her will, given away her jewels, and divided her personal property.

Barron said that by the degree of their courage and faith men themselves determine how long they will live. I believe that is true—that those live who want to live; that when interest ceases, the heart stops. Montesquieu remarked that "the love of study is almost the sole passion that is eternal in us; all the others fall as this miserable machine which sustains them falls more and more into decay."

None of us can escape the process of decay, but there are many things I want to learn, so many places I want to see, that I hope to fool the old heart and kidneys for quite a while. And so, I trust, will you.

Breakfast Hints

TOMATO juice cocktail, which has proved such a sweeping popularity in the last year, is now almost as familiar on the breakfast table as ham and eggs. It is a perfect eye-opener especially for the man of the family who appreciates that cold, spicy tang at the start of his day.

Why not try making it yourself to be sure of an inexpensive morning nip that will start the day with a zest? Strain the juice from a large (2 lb.) can of tomatoes. To the liquid add salt and pepper to taste and a teaspoon of sugar. The sugar does not actually sweeten, but serves to blend the flavors and bring out all the refreshing spiciness of the other ingredients.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by REV. SAMUEL D. PRICE, D.D. International Sunday School Lesson For June 5

JOSEPH THE WORKER Genesis 41: 46-57 Rev. Samuel D. Price, D.D.

Joseph, the son of Jacob, had a great variety of trainings. The eleven brothers thought they were through with him and the implications of his dreams when those Midianite merchants led the Canaanites onward from Dothan in upper Palestine to far away Egypt.

There was no trouble in marketing such a slave. He finds himself in a better class home. The Hebrew lad soon rose to local prominence but this very success from hard work caused him to become the center of a plot by the designing wife in the house (Genesis 39: 1-20).

Whatever Joseph sought to do it was done well. When the two prisoners that were also confined were discussing their dreams, Joseph gave them the interpretations. One would be free, while the other would meet death. The butler promised under these circumstances that he would say a good word for Joseph. Follow this promise made to his final conclusion.

Joseph now stands before Pharaoh. Leaving he tours the land. Egypt was to have seven plentiful years when an abundant harvest would be gathered. He now assembled all the food which were as the sand of the sea.

Duty, honor, and faith kept Joseph sure and true. It carried him through and will accomplish the same for you.

Pioneer Who Carried Petition Requesting Organization Tom Green County Is Dead

SAN ANGELO—William S. Kelly, who mounted his cow pony to carry the petition from ranch to ranch calling for an election which created Tom Green county in 1874, is dead.

The 84-year old member of the first commissioners court of the county and member of the first grand jury in the county to investigate crime conditions died at his home here recently.

He was commissioned in 1874 by Governor Coke to help in organization of the county, and an oil portrait in the court house here bears tribute to his work in many things affecting the development of this area.

Funeral services were held from the First Methodist church, the cornerstone of which bears his name.

Mr. Kelly was first in a number of things in this county. He is credited with building the first house at Ben Ficklin, hauling lumber from Brenham 500 miles to erect the structure.

He also built the first house on West Beauregard, the site of the present two-story family residence. He had a part in the naming of several towns, Walls, Vancouver and Sherwood, managed the stage stand at Ben Ficklin, pioneered in irrigation farming and in the lumber business here, and helped in the solution of the courthouse fight in this city. He was also a member of the early day school boards.

He was graduated into carrying the mail for P. C. Taylor and Major Ben Ficklin at the age of 18, and was made postmaster at Goldboro, Alabama, when he was 21 years old.

In the meantime, the railroad came to Alabama, eliminating stage lines, and Maj. Ficklin and Taylor sought new fields of operation, coming to Texas. Through them, Mr. Kelly was induced to come to Ben Ficklin, arriving here December 17, 1871. He said one time that he didn't have star fare back and had to remain.

As he quit the stage line, taking the job harvesting hay for the stage line and the government. He secured two mowers and eight men and cut the hay off the prairie.

After good at Ben Ficklin, Mr. Kelly and his wife moved to San Angelo in October 1883, and he entered the lumber yard business with Geo. Lang. He bought out his partner and set out to William Cameron company in 1888. He managed the yard then until 1904, shipped out the business for four years, then came back, reselling to Cameron in 1908.

Mr. Kelly was active to most of the political battles waged here in the early years of the county, from the contest for the county seat to the selection of the site for the present courthouse. P. C. Taylor led the Tankersley drive to fire of the San Angelo crowd.

ADVANCE fashion information indicates that bathing suits will be scantier than ever this year—mere wisps compared with the Willow garments worn on the beaches only a few years ago. Pictured above are two of the very latest styles in bathing suits which suggest that coats of tan will be more extensive this summer. And in these modern days, of course, while enjoying the sunshine between swims, both men and women bathers will be reaching for cigarettes and inhaling the toasted smokes that are as kind to their throats as these 1932 bathing suits are to the eyes. The modern garments, however, are not only ornamental. Fashion experts say that the 1932 bathing suits are designed with an eye to utility as well as to beauty.

TURNING THE SPOTLIGHT ON MEMBERS COLORADO'S PRIZE WINNING H. S. BAND

By I. C. EURFAULTZ
(Special correspondent and not to be reproduced without special permission of the author.)
Hello, West Texans! Again we are giving you more details of the recent Broadway of America Motorcade.

At the edge of Douglas, Arizona, our cars stop for a moment, and now we proceed at only a few miles per hour. Naturally we wonder why the slow rate of speed is required. But, after arriving in the business district, our wondering ends when Mr. Scott Hamilton through his loud speaker thanks the Douglas Municipal band for meeting the motorcade and then marching ahead of us into the city. For the tenth time in two days, Mr. Hamilton announces, "The musical organization accompanying the Broadway of America motorcade is the Colorado, Texas Municipal band, which is efficiently directed by Mr. Roy Hester. You will note there are quite a few young men in this good-looking group. Excuse me, Roy, but I did not say that you were young too. And by the way, this band is unusual for a boy's band. That is because it also has some young ladies. They are the ones wearing the skirts. Well, folks, you know I like to talk, but I believe you would like to get something to eat, so will just add that someone has informed me we are near a line. You understand what I mean by a line. This fellow Hamilton with the silver streaked car and loud-speaking apparatus seems to never run out of soap, and his chatter is always amusing.

The motorcade is honored with a banquet in which buffalo steak adds delicious savoriness and also lends a historical touch. If we let our thoughts dwell upon a trip over this route a half century or more in the past, we realize that reception committees would have been redskins pouring forth plenty of hot lead and poison arrows. What a pleasant change now, because it's hot food and plenty of it that the friendly people of Douglas provide for us.

The banquet program is composed of several amusing and interesting numbers. But due to the fact that we West Texans are so interested in our Broadway of America band, it is only natural that we fully appreciate a trumpet duet by two of the finest looking young men of Douglas. We cannot give their names. The toastmaster introduces them, but the only thing definite we manage to hear is that one of them is his son. These two boys perform so splendidly that your correspondent personally wishes for two extra band uniforms to add such unexpected talent to our organization.

We cross the line in cars furnished by Douglas citizens. This time the line is not a hundred feet of water. It is merely two concrete posts, through which we enter to the Mexican town of Agua Prieta, which means dark, or muddy water. Stopping for refreshments, we find a small orchestra of Mexican talent playing for those who wish to dance. There is no admission to enter the dance floor. However, in each corner there is a funnel-shaped metal horn extending up and toward the center of the dancing space. In this horn we toss American money of the size and frequency as we desire. It is a fact that the same amount of exercise can be had by pitching dimes instead of quarters or half dollars, but if the orchestra slows down when dimes hit the horn it must be a poor idea for exercise.

Again it is daylight, and you and I stroll down through the lobby of Hotel Gadsden and talk with other early risers. During the past night, much interest has been aroused by the Akron passing over Douglas. However, we manage to change the subject long enough to find out that this city has a population of over 14,000, and its chief industries are copper-smelting and cattle-raising. Douglas also serves as port of entry for the output of numerous large companies operating mines in old Mexico. The Douglas airport is rated as one of the ten best ports in the entire United States, and is very popular for clearing planes into Mexico. One informant tells us that on account of so much unemployment everywhere at this time, there are many prospectors digging into the mountains near Douglas in hopes of finding gold. Possibly that band member was right yesterday in saying he saw evidence of gold-digging in the hillsides.

Well, here is Roy Hester again. Now he is laughing freely and we wonder why he is not looking sad with all this bunch to corral. His band is doing much to let the folks along the Broadway of America know that one West Texas city is proud of its opportunity to host the Broadway with a high class musical organization. Colorado citizens are eager to see advancement of this band in its work. Now Roy tells us of a joke he has just heard. "Some one in Agua Prieta had been drinking lemonade or something, and when the Akron was going over last night, this party rushed to the door, and remarked to two people standing at either side, 'Now don't carry me or don't hold me up. All you got to do is just steady me. That's all,

COMPLIMENTS TO AMELIA There have been some flying "stunts" since Col Lindbergh made his great solo flight to Paris just five years ago, which looked to non-fliers like sheer foolhardiness.

Amelia Earhart Putnam, the first woman to fly alone across the Atlantic, knew exactly what she was about. It is not for nothing that the English have nicknamed her "Lady Lindy."

There are getting peevish and there's no telling what they might do if things don't come to a head pretty soon.

J. D. Hall of Breckenridge was in Colorado Tuesday for a brief business visit. Mr. Hall was formerly president of the Breckenridge Chamber of Commerce.

The feat of this American girl proves, among other things, that a woman can do pretty nearly anything a man can do, which we knew already. It proves, however, that a skilled, well-trained flyer is not in great danger even if the plane misbehaves.

Amelia Putnam's success will doubtless start many other young women to take up flying. That is all to the good. Fifty years from now the young man or the young woman who doesn't know how to fly will be as rare as the one today who doesn't know how to drive a car.

ON THE JOB, CONGRESS Somebody whose familiarity with figures is on a larger scale than our has estimated that the uncertainty as to what Congress is going to do about taxes and economics is costing the people of the United States a hundred million dollars a day.

Any decision is better than no decision. The nation has been kept in suspense too long already. We know of some and hear of many more industries and business enterprises which are merely marking time until they find out what the new tax bill is going to be like.

What a wonderful artist—musician is memory. It plays the deepest harmonies, the softest melodies, the most soul-moving melodies, when it so tenderly thrums our heartstrings and causes us to live over again the glorious days when life was without the trials and responsibilities of maturity.

Flowers are emblematic of the virtues. They are concord and harmony made visible. They are sweet meditations given form and fragrance.

Then too, the violet is not alone in its modesty and indifference to the commendation of man. The woods and prairies are full of wild flowers beautifying the landscape and purifying the breezes with their fragrance.

Marvelous indeed is God's chemistry, which takes from the vilest soil the elements necessary to the growth and beauty, colors and fragrance of flowers.

God gave us the flowers and all the virtues, attributes and characteristics which they symbolize. And greater and grander, sweeter and still more beautiful, He gave us Him, who incarnated in Himself all the virtues and beauties man possesses and all the power, wisdom and love of God—the Flower which He loved more than all else—the "Rose of Sharon" and the "Lily of the Valley."

MUSIC AND FLOWERS The past two weeks we have written about both music and flowers, and have received some very high compliments on both.

Isiah said "Therefore the redeemed of the Lord shall come with singing into Zion—and sorrow and mourning shall flee away."

Nothing can so quickly, so fully, so heart-movingly bring to mind the sweet sunny days of childhood—the scenes of home, the joys of playtime, our own dear little room where mother came softly when she thought we were asleep to see that all was well with her hairpins, as do the songs of those days.

The hymns, ballads and sweet old melodies sung by the family during childhood days bring a flood of memories and tears. The sweet old love songs, some of which are still sung even by us "moderns," search out very hearts and paint for us in memory likeness of father and mother, sisters and brothers, stately trees and murmuring brooks, flower garden and peaceful meadow.

Flowers are emblematic of the virtues. They are concord and harmony made visible. They are sweet meditations given form and fragrance.

row into Joy, cruelty into Kindness, self-centeredness into Benevolent Solicitude for all mankind.

Music is one language that is everywhere understood. It notes can be read and sung everywhere. Its melody has the same effect, its harmony and euphony the same influence, in all nations.

There is music wherever there is harmony, order or proportion, and thus far we maintain the music of the spheres says one who loved the product of "the art divine."

Herein is the warrant for calling the making of music "the art divine." It implies to action and deeds of loving kindness, awakens the dormant virtues in the calloused and sordid.

It stimulates our noblest endowments, and urges to the utmost our best efforts for the accomplishments of holy and useful enterprise.

It comes as a song of rejoicing at his birth, as a dirge of sorrow at his death, and a hallelujah chorus of welcome as he enters the Celestial City, where he shall hear the voices of the "Choir Invisible," and Churubim and Seraphim shall sing forever in one grand chorus of heavenly melody.

MAIZE MARKET WILL BE OPENED BY LOCAL FIRM

The Colorado Milling Company will open a cash maize market on next Monday morning, according to announcement by Chas. Kyle. Daily quotations on the market will be paid for all grain delivered to the corporation's plant on West First street.

"We have obtained a most desirable connection for the purchase of maize and plan giving farmers of this territory the benefit of every advantage in the way of attractive prices for this commodity," Kyle said.

The company have just completed the installation of a modern threshing machine at considerable expense, and as conditions justifies the outlay by adding other features to their mill until it is fully equipped and can rank as a class A1 elevator and milling company.
