Garza Not Guilty On Dope Count

By Harry W. Cayce

Joe DeLaGarza walked into the Yoakum County Courthouse Tuesday facing a life sentence if convicted of possession of narcotics, and walked out at 6:35 p. m. a free man, after a jury deliberated about an hour and a half and found him not guilty of the charge. The Beeville, Texas father of seven children had been arrested May 8 in Plains by Deputy Sheriff Don Rogers, and charged with possession of marijuana after the deputy found a jar of reefer in DeLaGarza's boot.

The South Texas man professed his innocence, stating that a stranger had left the jar in the car. The mysterious person was never located by the police, and this played a major role in the defense and the prosecution. The prosecution alleged that there was no stranger that the 32 year old Beeville father maintained that he had given a ride to, and that the defendant had created the story. The defense maintained that there was surely such a person and that DeLaGarza was telling the truth.

The defense brought many reliable character witnesses into court for Mr. DeLaGarza, including Sheriff Jack Robinson, Beeville, and Peace Justice Robert Atkins of that city. They testified along with others that DeLaGarza was one of the city's most respected people. The defense proved that the young father of seven earned between $10,000.00 and $12,000.00 annually and that he is a devoted family man.

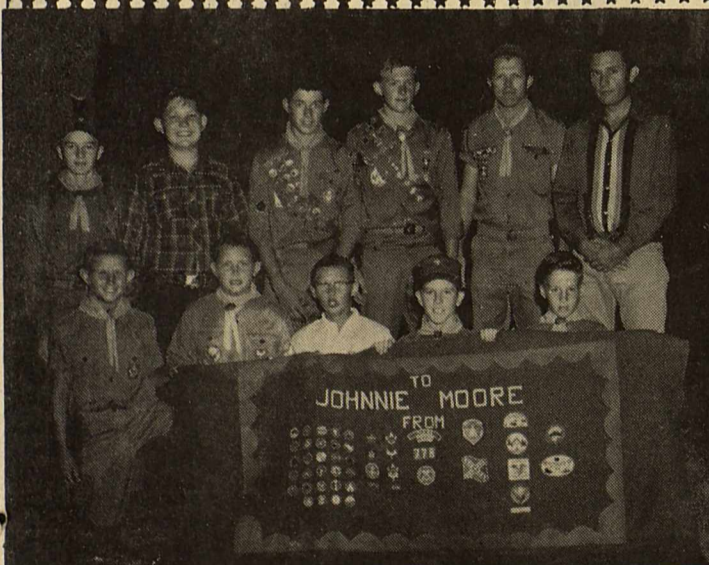

As the trial progressed and defense attorney Paul New developed his case, one could almost sense that the verdict would be for acquittal. The defense did not attempt to disprove that the substance found on the clean cut young father was not marijuana, and readily admitted that it was that drug, but developed their case around the stranger who DeLaGarza repeatedly affirmed left the package in his car.

Another key character witness was a Lovington, New Mexico teacher, Mrs. Seixain, who testified to the stability of the DeLaGarza family.

In an interview with The Record, DeLaGarza stated that he had been treated fairly by all concerned and was grateful to the people of Yoakum County for their kindnesses shown to him. He stated that he would return to South Texas and resume his job as an iron worker.

One of the DeLaGarza children, John, 14, was seriously injured when run over by a cotton trailer last Saturday. He was reported recovering in a Beeville hospital. Mrs. DeLaGarza did not come to Plains for the trial, but stayed in Beeville to be with her injured son.

E. W. Boedecker, District Attorney, Levelland, and Vernon Townes, County Attorney prosecuted the case, and Paul New was the defense attorney. Judge M. C. Ledbetter, Morton, presided.

Yoakum County Deputy Sheriff Don Rogers was called to the Ronnie Dunn place about 1 1/2 miles south of Bronco Sunday at 8:30 a. m. where Rosa Lee Watts was arrested for shooting her common law husband in the groin with a 12 gauge shot gun. Perry Watts was taken to the hospital in Denver City by Little Bob McDonnell where he is reported in fair condition receiving treatment for the gunshot wound. The patient was reported not to be seriously wounded, but had received painful wounds.

Mrs. Watts is being held in jail in Denver City in lieu of $1000 bond. The Watts are negroes.

Watts worked on the Dunn place and the two resided there. At press time Mrs. Watts had been unable to raise bond.

The Rough Riders Drill Team will participate each night at the Plains Rodeo. They will also enter into competition in the parade for local prizes.

Tex Parrott and Jim Cooke announced that the group will present four trophies to outstanding mounted groups in competition in the parade.

Members of the club extend their appreciation to all of the Plains people who have been their boosters this year. They particularly appreciate the efforts of those people who have gone out of town to the different rodeos to see their group in competition.

Sheriff Nabs

Sheriff Olan Heath reported that he arrested Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Goode about four miles south of Denver City this week-end after chasing the Goode car for several miles. Mrs. Goode was fined $100 plus costs for being drunk and Goode was released on $500 bond.

Dirt Gardeners Paint Signs

The Plains Dirt Gardeners would like to thank the following merchants for the opportunity of painting their windows to help advertise our local rodeo and Old Timers Reunion: Hawkins Food Market; Streetman's; Cogburn-Young Hardware; Whites; Curry-Edwards Drug; Marie's; Plains State Bank; Moore-Oden; Plains Oil Company; Texaco Station; Glover's Cleaners; Kirby's Barber Shop; Plains Farm Supply; Randall's Barber Shop; Plains Floral; E. O. Winkles Grain & Fertilizer; Woody Wilmeth Hardware; Lea County Electric; Ross Irrigation; Alma's; Paul Cobb's; and Bronco Gas. We are still taking orders and will work as long as possible.

In the past out of town artists have come in to do this work so the Dirt Gardeners decided to try their hand at painting our town. Members have been busy nearly every night for the past two weeks trying to decorate these windows before parade time today and we do hope you all enjoy them.

The following members have helped with the painting: Mesdames W.M. Overton; Eddie Taylor, Robert White, Neil Parks, J. B. Ashburn, Leon Lewis, Joe H. Thompson, Foy Cogburn and Wilson Duke.

Johnnie Fitzgerald, parade marshal, stated that the parade will start at the Rodeo grounds at five p. m. He said that all entries in the parade should be in the assembly area by not later than 4:30 and in the actual line not later than 4:50 p. m.

The parade marshal said that the parade will start on time and if entries are not in the line by the proper time that the parade will get underway without them.

The parade route will start at the rodeo grounds and will proceed west on the road north of the school. It will proceed west in front of the drug store and will turn at the Plains Courts and will turn east at Almas and proceed to the Denver City highway and will return to the Rodeo Grounds to disassemble.

Fitzgerald said that Sheriff Heath will assist in the parade, and will help with all of the details.

The parade marshal said that he expects that the parade this year will be the best in the 12 year history of the Old Settlers Reunion and Rodeo.

Dick McGinty, chairman for the Bar-B-Q requested that ladies bring cobbles and potato salad for the Bar-B-Q. He said that last year not enough cobbles were brought and that more will be needed this year.

State Rep. Jesse T. George will speak at the Lions Club today and will participate in the parade and stay for the Rodeo. Rep. George sent advance word that he wishes Plains the best Rodeo ever and will be here to help support it.

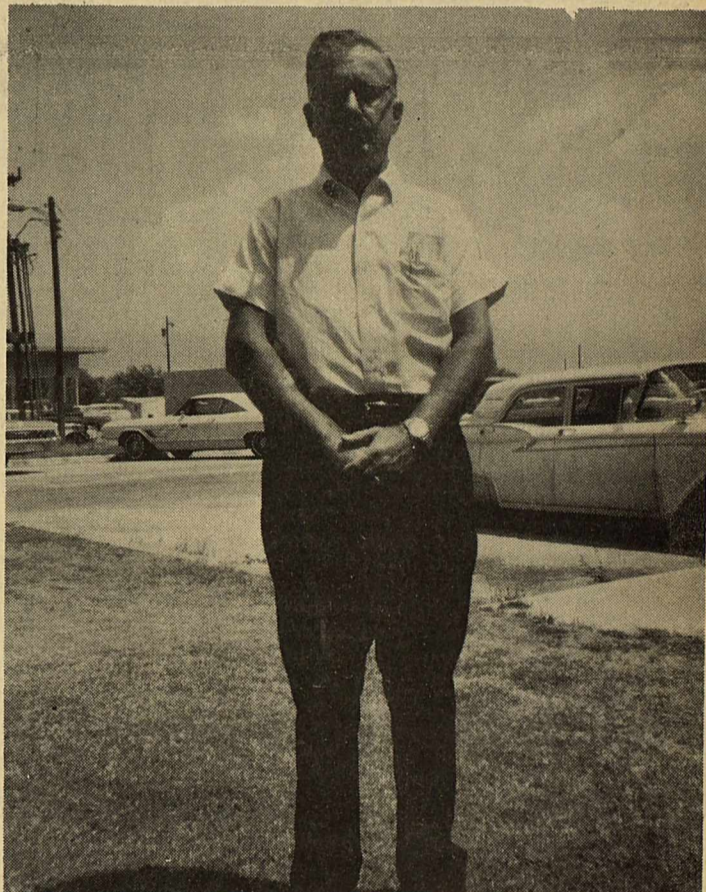

Roy McGehee, Chamber president urged the public to buy tickets from the Queen contestants and to support the Rodeo. McGehee said that he expects many out of town people to attend the Rodeo and Old Settlers Re-Union this year, and expressed his wishes for a booming success. He urged the public to support the Rodeo.

Final arrangements were being completed this week to stage the Old Settlers Re-Union and Rodeo in Plains August 5th, 6th, and 7th, said Gene Phillips, president of the Roping Club.

Phillips reported that all of the prizes are ready with the sponsors having been secured. Those businesses donating the belt buckles are:

The Queen's buckle, The Plains Record; Calf Roping, The Cowboy Store, Levelland; Queen's runner-up, Moore and Oden; Junior Calf Roping, George's 66; Team Roping, Woody's Hardware and Feed; Barbeck, Goodpasture Grain; Team Roping, B and D Flying Service; Barrel Race, Pic and Pay Grocery; Saddle Bronc, Johnnie James; Bulldogging, Bearden and Mobley; and Bull Riding, Plains Farm Supply. The buckles are silver with gold designs for each event.

The beefs were donated by Sherm Henard, Dick McGinty, Ty Field, Billy Winn, Gene Bennett, Bill Gray, and Phil Williams. These men donated the calves in order to make the Bar-B-Q a big success, and Phillips extended his appreciation to them for their thoughtfulness.

Charlie Gillis has been appointed county Auditor and will assume his duties September 1.

C. R. "Charlie" Gillis, long time resident of Yoakum County, Probation and Service Officer for the county has been appointed to the office of County Auditor effective Sept. 1st, said Judge Ledbetter this week in a release to The Record.

Gillis has been a resident of Denver City for the past 13 years. He is married and has four sons.

The new auditor stated that he would run his office to the best of his ability, and would serve all the people of Yoakum County.

Gillis stated that he made application for the position because it meant an advancement. The Auditors office pays more than Gillis was getting as probation officer.

"Charlie" invites the public to contact him at all times if his office may answer question or be of service to them. Gillis will continue to live in Denver City.

In District Court this week five cases were heard by Judge Ledbetter and the cases were non jury trials. The five defendants who pled guilty and the sentences received were:

What You Can Insure

Suppose you notice that a neighbor's children like to play with matches in their garage. If you are the dastardly type, a cunning idea might occur to you. Why not take out a fire insurance policy on that garage, wait for a fire, and then pocket the proceeds?

The catch is, you could not collect a cent on such a policy. For you have no "insurable interest" in the garage. Generally speaking, you cannot take out insurance on another person's property—or another person's life, either—unless you do have an insurable interest. The law says you must have something at stake, some motive for wanting that property—or that life—to be preserved.

UNCLE ZEB

CARL C. WOOD

That wasn't always so. In the early days of modern insurance, at Lloyd's famous coffee house in London, anyone could take out life insurance on anyone else. Lives of prominent persons became speculative free-for-alls. An inside tip about some dignitary's failing health could be turned into easy money. But twin evils became apparent: herd of cows, but it's not as easy to take a good bunch of cows and make a good many million out of it as it is to take a good bunch of cows and make a good many million out of it. Uncle Charlie Kilgore used to put it another way: "You can insure a puny interest in having the life can take a few oil wells and cover come with the requirement of an insurable interest."

What constitutes an insurable interest? The usual test is financial—whether you would suffer financial harm if the insured property was damaged or the insured life lost.

Thus, if you had a mortgage on that neighbor's garage, you would have the necessary insurable interest. The destruction of the garage would destroy something of value to you.

Similarly, in life insurance, a man has an insurable interest in his wife because she owes him services. And a wife has an insurable interest in her husband because he owes her support.

Even when the financial interest is not so clear, a clear sentimental interest will sometimes satisfy the courts. For instance, they usually uphold an insurance policy that a girl, engaged to be married, takes out on the life of her fiancé.

"The relation," explained one court, "naturally inclines her to the hope that his life may be prolonged."

Just Thinking

Mary Faulkner Payne

Another beauty spot I see each morning on my way to work is the flower-laden yard of Mrs. Nellye Glasscock. Every color of flower grows there and one can see Nellye out early watering and tending the flowers with the care only one who loves flowers and loves to make things grow could give.

Going through my notes and some material which I file away to use at some time, I find the following poem written by Martha Lucille Rhyne.

If you remember I shared one of her clever poems regarding income tax time, in March, Martha is employed by the Farmers Fertilizer Co.

The poem appeals to me as does its title, and I'm sure you will also like it:
THE SIMPLE THINGS OF LIFE
 The simple things of life are more precious than we know,
 The laughter of a child, the pure soft white of snow,
 The wind in the trees moaning soft and sweet,
 The warble of a little bird is really quite a treat,
 The fragrance of the violets in the early morn,
 The dog that follows you on each trip to the barn,
 The lofty mountain tops, the desert wide and bare,
 The little brook that gurgles as though it didn't have a care,
 To look upon a graceful tree, the sky so blue and wide;
 These simple things touch my heart and somehow make me satisfied.

The thunder as it rolls and rumbles, a deep caress;
 The lightning as it flashes and takes away your breath,
 My heart fills to bursting when the sunset paints the sky;
 Oh to know such beauty as the clouds go drifting by,
 The blossoms from the apple tree floating gently in the breeze,
 Makes me thankful to my God and I fall upon my knees,
 These simple things of life, so gentle and serene,
 After God has washed the earth with rain so pure and clean,
 The pleasures from the simple things take away the worst of strife,
 These things make me what I am - the simple things of life!

I picked up this cutie from Jack Wilson's column.
 "Investigators report that degree mills selling phony college diplomas are flourishing. It's the trend toward 'hire' learning."

I really thought Barry Goldwater had more originality than he shows in calling his new organization, "The Free Society Association." Seems to me he either compliments LBJ a la "Great Society" or in being a copy - eat or thinks he is powerful enough to coolly mislead the public into thinking he is the first colner of such phraseology.

Goldwater remarks (as ever devoid of can't) that though there were no Negroes yet in his Free Society Association - "we hope to get one."

I saw a satirical cartoon the other day of a rocket which an astronaut was about to board in an attempt to get to the moon. The conversation which the cartoon carried was the words of the astronaut who was saying, "I'd feel a lot safer if I didn't know that this thing was constructed by the lowest bidder."

This imagined comment by the astronaut, as I said, satire, however it does represent a requirement of many government projects. The lowest bid gets the job, though this does not always represent the greatest value for the money.

Private business has no such legal restrictions yet all too many purchasing agents base their decisions on price alone, without regard for quality.
 Price cutting can be done in only one way - by sacrificing quality for profits, and very few businesses can survive by either method. Either they lose customers because of dissatisfaction or go broke because they cannot meet their bills.

If that food bill at home seems to be getting bigger, don't blame it all on prices. Chances are, the family shopper is walking out of the store with bigger bundles.

Not only the small compacts save money on gasoline but according to the advertisements there is a carburetor that saves 30% on gasoline, a transmission guaranteed to save 80% and new spark plugs that save 40%.

I heard of a man who had trouble because he installed every one of the highly advertised parts in his compact.
 A friend says, "What's the trouble?"
 The man who was having trouble with his souped up car said, "Just that when I drive 10 1/2 miles the gas tank overflows."

Home Tips

By Mrs. Sudie M. Thompson
 County Home Demonstration Agent

Inviting, crisp, low-calorie salads and other vegetables add fresh flavor and vivid touch of color to summer meals.

Selecting and buying crisp fresh vegetables is only one step toward having that fresh flavor served at the dinner table, says Mrs. Joe Thomp-son, County Home Demonstration Agent.

Look for fresh, bright color when selecting vegetables. By-pass produce with discolorations and possible defects. Select just the right rough of ripeness in the vegetable, so the highest quality for the food dollar will be obtained.

Preparation of the vegeta-bles makes a difference in that "fresh" flavor, and in the nutritive value and texture as well.

A usual difficulty in cook-ing vegetables is that of over cooking. Vegetables should be cooked quickly in as little water as possible and served piping hot. The longer vegeta-bles are exposed to heat and air, the more Vitamin C they lose. Vitamins and min-erals move from the vegeta-bles into the cooking water which is often drained into the sink. Prolonged cooking also bring about a color change and loss of flavor as well as loss of nutritive value, says the HD agent.

We would like to express our sincere thanks for the many kindnesses shown to our daughter Cristy during her stay in the hospital. We thank our wonderful friends for their visits, cards, phone calls, gifts to her, and other thoughtfulness. We'd especially like to thank the members of the Hillside Church of Christ and the Young Homemakers for their help. May God reward you richly.

This past week more new S. C. D. plans were completed and mailed for typing. They are Martin Bundick, Albert H. Anderson and Carpenter place operated by Donald Bookout. Maps were received on the Raymond Sharin and Paul Williams places and these plans will be completed this week. New plan maps were ordered on the William Worsham place to be used in writing a Great Plains Contract. William plans to seed about 80 acres of grass on land that is now producing only Shin-oak.

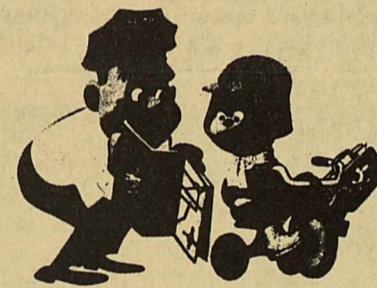

John B. Clare and J. B. Ashburn are planting Bermuda grass this week. Each of these cooperators have Bermuda pasture and are well pleased with the grazing. They are getting from their irrigated pasture. Some other cooperators that have irrigated pasture that is doing good are Lanny Smith, Cecil Tucker, Adel and Tom Box, T. J. Bearden, Lee Roy McCravy and R. M. Jones.

Just irrigated pasture needs the water, fertilizer and top growth to make the best growth so does native grasses. All plants produce growth in much the same way that is, water, plant food and air. The more leaf surface the more room to manufacture from raw material the needed food to grow more grass.

There is a growing trend to give plants the best opportunity to do their best just as there is to feed livestock so they can do their best, in fact we are actually feeding plants when we allow them to grow more roots and more leaf surface.

W. B. White, T. F. Fillingsin, M. W. Luna, Dick McGinty, Ty Field, Johnnie Fitzgerald and Charles Williams are some of the ranchers who are resting their grass to give it a chance to grow deeper roots, make seed and increase in vigor this summer.

Water Won't Run Out if

For as long as man has recounted time and history, water has been the single most valuable asset or property. Wars, both large and small, have been fought over the rights for water that was suitable to drink.

Modern Texas is today engaged in one of the most bitter struggles for water the state has ever known. This encounter will not be settled by gunfire, but rather by the vision of the agricultural people now living and tilling the land.

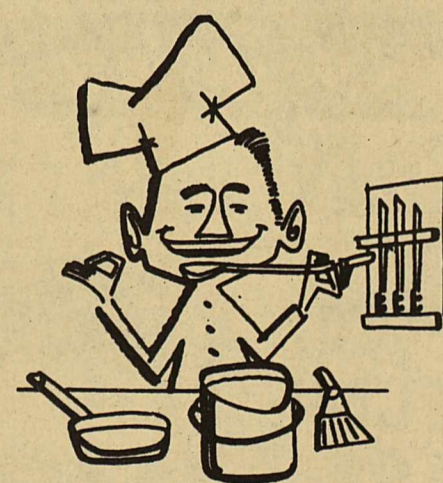

Agriculture is the basis for the total economy of Texas and the nation, and water is the basis of agriculture. Texas has been blessed with three products: water, good land, and people. The care of the first two is the responsibility of the latter.

The High Plains Research Foundation at Halfway, Texas has geared its entire research program toward finding better ways to use the underground water that we now have more effectively. Agricultural economy demands that the underground water resources now available are employed in such a manner as to receive the maximum conservation and perpetuation of the available supply.

Irrigation water found under the Plains of Texas is limited and non-renewable, but according to the Foundation, this does not mean that the area will ever run out of water. That is if the people start taking care of the supply now.

There is no substitute for water, either for human consumption or for irrigation crops. To enable the farmers to have a continuing supply of irrigation water, the Foundation has carried on for the past seven years research geared to cut the amounts necessary to produce crops.

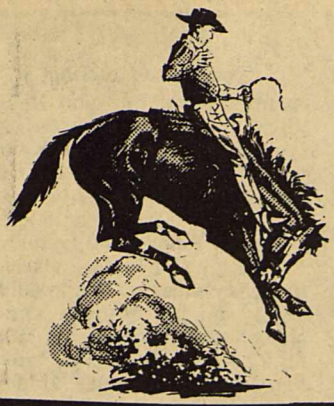

Research done at the Foundation to help conserve water includes: (1) artificial recharge of water collected in the natural playa lakes for storage; (2) parallel bench leveling to conserve water and reduce erosion; (3) development of the High Plains Foundation Farming System, to increase the yield and quality of crops on less water; (4) investigation into the proper balance of water and fertilizer to receive the maximum net return from the dollar invested; (5) flame cultivation to reduce the weed prob-

Pamper Your Personal Prosperity with Growth Vitamin $

Every drop of water, every bit of fertilizer that you put on a growing plant is returned to you in value... increased many times.

And every dollar spent at home instead of in some other community... promotes the growth and luxuriance of your own little personal prosperity tree.

We don't expect the neighbors to water and weed and fertilize our gardens so that we won't have to put out any effort on them. But a lot of us expect somebody else to do all of the trading at home that it takes to support and improve our jobs, our businesses, our schools and churches and other community helps to a richer life.

Trouble is... a lot of them are looking for us to keep the ball rolling while THEY go city-shopping.

Let's... every one of us... remember that loyalty to our home community is merely loyalty to our own economic welfare... that scattering our buying power leaves our own personal prosperity plant with less nourishment.

A weekly public service feature from the Texas State Department of Health

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Early this fall more than 240,000 young Texans will be entering public schools for the first time.

Even though the opening of school is still some weeks away parents are busy making preparations to insure that their child makes a smooth adjustment to his new environment.

The child's adjustment will be more rapid and satisfactory if he starts his school life in good, sound health.

Have your family physician or local clinic give your child a complete physical examination including an eye check. His teeth should also be checked by the family dentist. If these examinations show there are ailments or defects that can and should be looked after then follow the doctor's and dentist's advice and have them corrected, if possible, before you enroll him in school.

It's likely that your child has already been immunized against certain of the childhood diseases such as diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox. If not, have it done immediately either by your doctor or by the local health clinic. If all immunizations have been done previously, make sure your child gets the necessary booster dose.

Insist on your child's getting regular and sufficient hours sleep to help him enjoy school. He needs ten to twelve hours of sleep in a quiet, darkened room with an open window to build up his energy and offset his tiredness.

Proper nutrition is very important. When school starts, allow enough time for a wholesome breakfast. A good breakfast includes citrus fruit or juice, milk, whole grain cereal or bread, eggs or bacon or both.

Lunch and dinner should be leisurely meals. The new adventure of school is a pretty fast pace, but mealtime offers an opportunity for the family to pause and relax together.

Also, nearly every school district in Texas requires proof-of-age for first year students in the form of a certificate of birth.

You may obtain a copy by sending a dollar and half plus the name of the child, the date of birth, and both the father's and mother's names to the Records and Statistics Section Texas State Department of Health, 410 East 5th Austin, Texas.

The public is urged to come by the Museum and to bring the out of town guests to see the exhibits. The building is one of the first structures in the county.

Report From Sen. Tower

As you know, many persons in our state have joined in campaign seeking return to Texas of the flag that flew over the Alamo during the Siege of 1836.

A number of talented historians and newspaper columnists have suggested that overtures be made to Mexico, asking that Republic to consider returning the valiant banner. In addition our Legislature has passed a resolution on the subject, and I have introduced in the U. S. Senate a resolution asking the State Department to initiate talks about the Alamo flag with appropriate Mexican officials.

As you know, the exercise of foreign relations is a constitutional function of our President, and the State Department acts as his agent. It was not legally possible for newspapermen or even for the State of Texas to negotiate directly with Mexico about the flag, but the U. S. State Department can legally negotiate.

I am, therefore, most pleased to report to you that the State Department has agreed to undertake this task. It is now engaged in preliminary arrangements and will introduce the subject of the Alamo flag into talks with Mexican authorities.

While the return of captured flags is ordinarily not a matter for formal negotiation between sovereign nations, there is precedent for such returns when nations have advanced beyond past disputes into a good-neighbor status such as we now enjoy with Mexico.

In 1950 the United States returned a number of captured flags to Mexico. It was an act of friendship unique in history.

An act of our Congress, approved just 15 years ago this week on August 4, 1960, authorized President Truman to return to Mexico the flags, battle-standards and emblems of that nation which were captured by United States forces in the War of 1846 to 1848. That return by the U. S. establishes precedent under which we now hope Mexico will reciprocate.

The U. S. action of 1950 was an act of friendship and good will taken without qualification or condition. Any equal action now by Mexico probably would require action of the Mexican Congress; and the initiative, lies, quite correctly, with Mexico.

There were a number of flags at the Alamo on the day it fell but only one was sent by General Santa Anna to Mexico City. This was the sky-blue banner of the "First Company of Texas Volunteers from New Orleans." It was inscribed "God and Liberty."

The flag lies today in the Mexican National Archives at Chapultepec Palace in Mexico City.

With the passing of the years since the Alamo Siege and since the Border War between U. S. and Mexican Forces, there also has been the passing of bitterness between our two nations. Now, the people of our two countries are good and peaceful friends. Mexico has had its own revolution, and she proudly champions the principles of liberty and freedom. We march together in the quest for human betterment through peaceful means.

We have joined in such projects as the Chamizal and the Amistad Dam, upon which the first concrete is being poured this weekend.

In short, a new day has long since dawned in relations between our two countries.

It is fitting at this time, and in light of present good will between the people of Texas and the people of Mexico, that the flag of the Alamo be returned to its home.

It is most gratifying that the U. S. State Department should feel it appropriate to undertake talks with Mexico about the Alamo flag's return, indicating to Mexico through official channels the depth of feeling which Texans have for that flag.

I regard present U. S. - Mexican relations to be at a peak of good will and understanding. The friendship of our two nations is a graphic example to the entire free world that nations can live and work in peace and harmony.

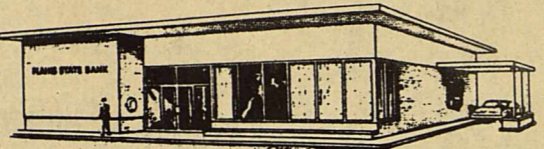

Certainly, in these times when some Communist nations blatantly breach their neighbors' borders and openly terrorize adjacent countries, we are especially thankful that Texas and Mexico enjoy a peaceful, cooperative border.

Return of the Alamo flag would be another building block, cementing the foundation of freedom and friendship between the United States and Mexico.

Administration Plan Would Broaden Powers of Secretary

An omnibus farm bill due to be voted on by the House of Representatives probably before mid-August could be the "death knell" for the cotton industry as well as many other segments of agriculture, according to Texas Farm Bureau President C. H. DeVaney. Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, termed it "anti-farmer, anti-consumer, and anti-taxpayer."

The bill, H. R. 9811 by Rep. Cooley of North Carolina, contains the Administration's recommendations for farm legislation and would provide four-year programs for dairy, wool, feed grains, cotton, and wheat and a cropland adjustment program. It was approved on a split vote by the House Agriculture Committee late last month. The controversial rice certificate program proposed by USDA earlier this year was not included.

Same Old Issues
DeVaney said the main issues involved in this bill are the same as in other omnibus farm bills of the recent past which were defeated: "direct payments to producers and use of such payments to force producers to conform to reduced allotments and loss of freedom to make usual management decisions." He added that the main provisions of H. R. 9811 spell out lower support prices and increased levels of direct payments, making producers more dependent than ever on the federal government for a major part of their net income.

Shuman said the House of Representatives "should reject this bill promptly and decisively and then begin work on constructive legislation." He said other bills are before both Houses of Congress that would "strengthen the market system, improve per family farm income, and reduce government costs."

More Dumping Powers
Both leaders noted that the Secretary of Agriculture would have extended discretionary powers to manipulate farm income through dumping of government-owned surplus stocks of farm commodities on the open market and setting price support levels, particularly after 1966.

DeVaney said the proposed legislation is not "temporary" in any manner of speaking.

"It is to be a four-year program with practically all provisions left to the whims of the Secretary of Agriculture after the first year," he said. "It would buy us the first year and hold us captive from then on."

Shuman pointed out the bill would not only make farmers more dependent on direct payments from the federal treasury for their incomes, but would also increase government farm program costs to taxpayers. At the same time it would "increase the processing tax on flour and raise the cost of bread to the consumers," he noted.

Strong Opposition
DeVaney said that, with the exception of two farm groups, most agricultural producers and segments of agri-business are opposed to the provisions of the omnibus bill.

"All are not opposed for the same reason," he said, "but a close analysis shows all opposition stems from rules that must be made if we accept the principle or philosophy of direct payments out of the federal treasury to support an industry."

lem and have the soil moisture and nutrients for the planted crop, not weeds; (6) new crops for the area that do not need as much water to make a good cash return to the farmer; (7) chemical hormones to reduce the water uptake of a plant and still maintain a high yield. Regardless of how much research either has been done or will be done in the future, people must be concerned of the availability of a good water supply. This includes both the farmer and the city dweller. The economic structure and development of the Plains is dependent upon an irrigated agriculture.

Some experts have stated that the income of the Plains could be reduced by up to 60 percent if the irrigated belt were to go back to a dryland agriculture. This need not be the case if the people who are now in charge of the land and the water supply will use the technology and research data that is available to them. Jim Valliant, Water Engineer for the Foundation, has stated that the Plains will never be without irrigation if care is taken now to preserve what we have. The war for water can be won on the farm only if the people wish it.
