Christmas in Plains was ushered in Wednesday evening when the annual Tree Lighting ceremonies were held in Pioneer Plaza. Santa Claus arrived for a pre-holiday visit with youngsters as the Plains High School Cowboy Band played "Here Comes Santa Claus".

The Rev. Bill Wright, pastor of First Baptist Church, shared the Christmas story from scripture. Carols were led by Patrick Hamilton, music director of First Baptist Church.

Child Welfare Board members Sarah Guetersloh, Janie Crawford and Malisa Rogers were on hand to take color snapshots of children in exchange for a food item. Those foods will be distributed to needy families at Christmas.

Harry Richardson served coffee compliments of Plains Lions Club and Toni Jones served the Extension Homemakers Council hot chocolate.

Special thanks are given to everyone who helped decorate the plaza for this, the eighth annual tree lighting.

Caprock Cotton Conference To Launch New Crop Year

The latest information to help cotton farmers plan their 1993 crop will be presented in Crosbyton Jan. 25-26 during the Caprock Cotton Conference. The two-day program, featuring national leaders in the cotton industry, will be at the Crosbyton County Pioneer Memorial Museum and Civic Center, 101 West Main St.

The conference is especially designed for growers of the Rolling Plains, South Plains and West Texas, said Rick Smathers.

The program has been approved for eight continuing units for licensed private chemical applicators who attend.

The first day's technical sessions will open with information on growing cotton with limited water. It will be presented by Dr. Dan Krieg, professor of agronomy at Texas Tech University, Lubbock. Dr. Harlan Thorvilson, professor of entomology at Tech, will discuss insect management.

Smathers and Mark Brown, extension entomology agent for Crosby and Floyd counties, will cover weed control. Roger Haldenby, Plains Cotton Growers coordinator of the boll Weevil diapause program, Lubbock, will report on that long-successful effort. The proposed boll weevil eradication program for Texas will be discussed by Dr. Ray Frisbie of College Station, coordinator of integrated pest management with the Extension Service.

The second day will be open with an update on work of the Extension Service by Dr. Chester Fehlis, associate director of that agency. Characteristics of the cotton plant's physiology which can benefit the farmer will be detailed by Dr. Kater Hake, National Cotton Council, Memphis. In February, Hake will join the Extension Service as cotton agronomist at Lubbock.

Management and economics of conservation tillage will be discussed by Dr. Wayne Keeling, assistant professor of systems agronomy with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Lubbock.

How About An Income Tax? No, thank you! By Monte Hasie State Board of Education

Really now, I have heard some smart folks say we ought to just pass a state income tax and forget it. There are those who think an income tax will lower our overall tax bite.

Wrong! Even if you're a large property owner, you can just add the income tax you would pay to your current property taxes. An income tax makes lawmakers believe we approve their past spending habits and they have a blank check for the future.

For example: California has a 10 percent income tax (if your taxable income is $40,000 in California, you owe the state an additional $4,000, plus federal taxes).

So what is the State of California's financial condition? It is on the verge of bankruptcy with an $11 billion deficit. California's lawmakers started with what they called a "nominal" income tax and, feeling that they had an unlimited supply of money, went "wild".

But, this is not California. We live in Texas. Our legislators would not do that. I hope that this is a correct statement. But, nonetheless, let's just look at what has happened in Texas. In the 1972-73 biennium, the total state budget was $7.9 billion. In the 1990-91 biennium, the budget had grown to $46.5 billion. The largest increase between bienniums (two year periods) in the history of Texas had been $5.7 billion. Halfway through this biennium (1992-93), it appears the budget could be $62 billion plus, an increase of $15.5 billion. This increase would be nearly twice the size of the total budget for 1972-73 or virtually three times the previous highest budget hike in the history of the state. Is this kind of increase justified?

What do we need in Texas?

1. We need a high quality public education system for the school children of Texas. Dr. Lionel "Skip" Meno, the Texas Commissioner of Education, says to achieve a world class system, public education needs approximately $3 billion. A high figure I think, but let's presume the amount is correct.

2. At the same time Texas needs some relief for school districts on past unfunded laws that have become the responsibility of local school boards, administrators and taxpayers.

3. We do not need the 14,000 new state employees, which, according to Forbes Magazine, we have acquired in the past 14 months. We need less state government - not more.

4. The local and state taxpayers of Texas need plain old relief spelled "l-o-w-e-r s-t-a-t-e s-p-e-n-d-i-n-g" in many areas, using the economies to fund our public education needs.

What is our hope? We have some, indeed we do. We in this area have state senators with conservative leanings. We have conservative Legislators with a similar philosophy and apparently we will have the new Speaker of the House in that corner as well. We need them to exorcise this demon of unbridled extravagance with reason and reality. They can do much and I believe they will.

It would be remiss to write this article without reference to the school finance plans which have been proposed.

1. The Leadership Plan. - Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

This plan - commonly referred to as the "fair share" plan - would have been devastating to the school children of Texas in general and to West Texas in particular.

It would have required a successful raid on the Available School Fund of Texas, which would have greatly increased local taxes in many school districts. In addition, local taxes in our area would have skyrocketed. Thank goodness for the House of Representatives, which would not stand for this plan. The Senate voted 29-2 in favor of an amendment which would allow this plan with Sens. Leedom of Dallas and Crier of San Antonio voting "no".

2. The Ogden Plan. - A much more realistic plan with some unacceptable pieces. It could, however, form the basis for some progress later. At least, it was legislation we could either support or reject without having to vote a Constitutional Amendment prior to knowing what we would be facing.

GIVES TIPS ON ESSAY REQUIREMENTS - Mario Avila was guest of Mrs. Rogers' English III classes recently to share tips on the essay writing contest sponsored by SCS.

WINS TICKETS TO SEE COWBOYS - Tammy Lowrey was the lucky winner of two tickets to see the Dallas Cowboys play the Chicago Bears Dec. 27 in Dallas. The winning ticket was drawn at halftime of the Dec. 1 basketball game by Linsey Cullins. There were 1,324 tickets sold. Profits went to the Junior Class of Plains High School.

Hunters Beware

The future of hunting was never more in jeopardy than today, and hunters need to be aware of their responsibilities to their sport, said Dr. Dale Rollins, wildlife specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"An array of animal rights organizations place the demise of hunting high on their list of priorities," Rollins said. At the same time, "the number of hunters is shrinking across the nation and in Texas."

The 1992 deer gun season began Nov. 7 in most counties in the state. Each year more than 600,000 Texas deer hunters head afield in pursuit of their favorite quarry: the whitetailed deer.

"Over half a million Texans will be serving as ambassadors for hunting over the next several weeks," he said.

Some hunters are blatant, perhaps intentionally, in actions that discredit hunting, he said. However, most hunters who behave unethically don't realize how bad it looks to a non-hunter.

"Decked out in the latest camo fashions, hunters are easy to identify and are very much in the public eye," he said.

A common problem concerns hunters not respecting the rights of non-hunters.

"I've seen hunters walk into a restaurant and relive their morning's hunt with boisterous blow by blow accounts that are not suitable for mixed crowds. Often as not, they arrive at the cafe or convenience store with blood on their camouflage pants and all over their arms," he said.

Hunters also should exercise common sense when taking photographs of dead animals.

"Take photographs while you're still in the field and before you field dress the animal. Clean up the animal, and yourself, to dispel the image that hunters revel in blood. Avoid the 'pickup tailgate' pose if possible."

Practice discretion with alcohol. "If you must drink, do so responsibly. Wait until the hunt is over. If you go into a liquor store, don't go dressed in your 'hunting uniform,' or camo clothes."

Additionally, be a responsible hunter. "Don't take a shot that may leave a wounded animal," Rollins said. "Follow up every shot as if the animal were hit. Know your limits as a marksman."

Some actions are illegal, such as leaving a carcass on the side of the road. Others are legal, but ethically questionable, such as transporting a deer on the hood of a vehicle.

Rollins recently produced a videotape, "Deer Hunting in Texas: Focus on Ethics." The program spotlights behavior that gives hunters and hunting a black eye.

The tape is available for $20 by sending a check payable to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at 7887 N. Hwy. 87, San Angelo, Texas 76901. The tape also may be checked out from county extension offices.

"As the recent elections will attest, public opinion is a powerful force,"

Rollins said. "As hunters, and others who benefit from hunting, we must strive to put our best foot forward each time we head afield. Otherwise we may find ourselves the ultimate target of society."

Fresh carrots will stay crisper if you cut off their green tops before storing them.
