Korean airport blast kills five, injures 19

By The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — A powerful explosive device blasted the crowded terminal building at Seoul's Kimpo International Airport Sunday, killing five Koreans and injuring 19, police said.

Police said 13 victims were seriously hurt. Local news media accounts said as many as 35 were injured in the air terminal, the main arrival point for the Asian Games set to open Saturday.

A statement issued by Kang Min-chang, director of South Korea's national police, pointed an accusing finger at communist North Korea, charging North Korea with planning "impure, barbaric and wicked schemes aimed at disrupting the successful hosting of the games."

The statement said all the victims were Korean and that initial investigation found that "an explosive device" went off outside the terminal.

It said the mid-afternoon explosion occurred in or near a steel trash can outside the terminal's ground-floor waiting area.

Witnesses said the blast knocked about 50 people off their feet and sent scores screaming and running away in panic.

Broken glass and debris covered the sidewalk outside and the information counters and furniture inside the terminal. Shoes, scraps of clothing, bloodstains and bits of flesh spotted the area.

Security measures, always intense in South Korea, have been increased in recent weeks with the approach of the games. About 100,000 people in the national police, plus other paramilitary forces and special units, were put on alert.

A heavy concentration of security forces was stationed at the airport.

South Korea has feared that North Korea or others might try to mar the games and this nation's image as a host. North Korea refused to take part in the games, saying they were one more event aimed at perpetuating the division of the Korean peninsula.

The peninsula has been divided into the communist North and the anti-communist South since the end of World War II. The 1950-53 Korean War deepened the division, and a demilitarized zone separates the two sides.

The police director said the explosion was similar to two explosions in 1983 — at Taegu, South Korea, and in Rangoon, Burma.

One blast damaged the American Cultural Center in the southern city of Taegu, killing one person and injuring four people. The blast in the Burmese capital in October 1983 killed 17 visiting South Korean officials. The explosions were blamed on North Korean saboteurs.

The regional games this year are attracting more than usual interest because Seoul is scheduled to host the 1988 Summer Olympics. The successful staging of the Asian Games is seen as a prerequisite to bringing off the next, bigger event.

By Sunday, more than 1,000 of the estimated 5,000 athletes and officials from 29 countries expected for the Asian Games had arrived. Up to 160,000 visitors are expected for the games.

Reagan, first lady wage war on drug abuse

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan — joined by his wife, Nancy, in appealing for a "great new, national crusade" — pledged aggressive government action against drug abuse Sunday but said the key to its success will be the courage of individual Americans.

"I will announce tomorrow a series of new proposals for a drug-free America," the president said in a joint address with the first lady from their living room in the White House.

Reagan didn't disclose details of the proposals but said they would bring federal spending on combatting illegal drugs to $3 billion.

"As much financing as we commit, however, we would be fooling ourselves if we thought that massive new amounts of money alone will provide the solution," he said.

"Your government will continue to act aggressively, but nothing would be more effective than for Americans simply to quit using illegal drugs."

"I'm mindful that drugs are a constant temptation for millions," Reagan said. "Please remember this when your courage is tested: You are Americans. ... No one — ever — has the right to destroy your dreams and shatter your life."

Mrs. Reagan spoke especially of the effect of drugs on young people, saying, "For the sake of our children, I implore each of you to be unyielding and inflexible in your opposition to drugs."

Won't you join us in this great new national crusade?" she asked.

The speech climaxed a week of focus by both the administration and Congress on the drug menace.

The president said his proposals to Congress, where the House already has passed a drug abuse bill, "will toughen our laws against drug criminals, encourage more research and treatment and ensure that illegal drugs will not be tolerated in our schools or in our work places."

But, he added, "Let us not forget that in America, people solve problems, and no national crusade has ever succeeded without human investment. Winning the crusade against drugs will not be achieved by just throwing money at the problem.

"What an insult it will be to what we are — and whence we came — if we do not rise up together in defiance against this cancer of drugs."

Reagan began the joint address with introductory remarks in which he said, "Drugs are menacing our society ... They're killing our children."

The first lady joined in, saying, "Today, there is a drug and alcohol abuse epidemic in this country, and no one is safe from it — not you, not me, and certainly not our children, because this epidemic has their names written on it."

"We can help by using every opportunity to force the issue of not using drugs to the point of making others uncomfortable — even if it means making ourselves unpopular," she said.

Of drug dealers, Mrs. Reagan said "For every door we close, they open a new door to death."

"Now we go on to the next step — making a full commitment that we will not tolerate drugs anywhere, anytime, any place," she said.

It was the second time in four years that the Reagans had made a joint broadcast speech on the issue.

The White House said details of the president's legislative package will be announced this week. The Democratic-controlled House voted 392-16 Thursday for a $2 billion anti-drug bill that calls for the use of military to stop the flow of drugs into the country and would permit the death penalty for some drug-related murders.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Friday the White House agrees with the Pentagon in opposing the provision calling for the use of troops on the Mexican border. He said the Justice Department spoke for the administration in endorsing a provision for an optional death penalty.

Retreat agenda packed

SA opposes cuts in student aid

By JILL JOHNSON
News Staff Writer

The Texas Tech Student Senate's busy agenda during a weekend retreat at Ceta Glen Christian Camp included the passage of a bill requesting the U.S. Congress Federal Budget Committee to maintain adequate student aid levels.

The bill, which opposes any attempt by the federal government to cut funding for student aid, was introduced to the SA last spring by senator David Fisher from the graduate school, and presented to SA members for preliminary approval Saturday and Sunday.

The senate also approved a bill to support U.S. Sen. Mark Andrew's amendment before the budget committee to increase funding for discretionary educational programs by $1.2 billion.

The U.S. Senate Budget Committee passed a resolution including a freeze on campus-based and need-based programs. The freeze eliminated about $200 million from the Guaranteed Student Loan program. The amendment would restore all programs to the pre-sequestered level and allow for inflationary increases in the budget.

A bill focusing on restructuring the SA endowment fund also was passed at the meeting. The bill, introduced by Fisher, Terri Scott, a representative of the College of Arts and Sciences, and Russell Gray, from the graduate school, stressed the need for additional scholarship money to honor students excelling in service to the Tech community.

"A student endowment fund would benefit the students of Tech," Fisher said.

Criteria for student scholarship consideration includes classification of sophomore or above, an overall 2.5 grade point average or grades in the top 10 percent in the college enrolled and service contributions to the Tech community.

In other business, the senate approved its proposed fiscal budget for the 1986-87 school year. The total $61,953 budget, which was approved unanimously, includes $32,968 for executive officers' salaries and benefits, $23,458 for SA maintenance, materials and operations and $5,527 allocated for travel expenses.

SA members also elected Rick Lambert, a senator from the College of Arts and Sciences, to serve as president pro tem.

Lambert said he wanted the office "to learn the rules better and for future use if I run for senator again."

The SA also elected senator Rob Parker from the College of Business Administration to serve as the senate's sergeant-at-arms.

The sergeant-at-arms works to maintain business proceedings during senate meetings and is responsible for removing any unruly individuals from a senate meeting. Parker also will be in charge of keeping the ballots on senate votes.

The SA's next senate meeting will be at 8 p.m. Thursday in the University Center Senate Room. SA President Bill Caraway said the agenda will include a senate vote for final approval of the SA's new fiscal operating budget.

Tech freshman dies in auto accident

By MICHELLE BLEIBERG
News Staff Writer

A Texas Tech student was killed and another was seriously injured Sunday in an early morning traffic accident in Abilene.

William Curtis Mercer, an 18-year-old freshman business administration major from Wichita Falls, died from internal injuries received in the accident. Passenger Paul Roland Lovelace, an 18-year-old freshman in the College of Arts and Sciences, received serious injuries and underwent emergency surgery Sunday at Humana Hospital in Abilene. Lovelace, who is from Abilene, was listed in stable condition Sunday afternoon. Both students were residents of Coleman Hall.

Abilene police reports indicated a 1973 blue Chevrolet Caprice driven by Thomas Irving, 44, of Abilene was traveling on Industrial Road when the vehicle collided at a right angle with Mercer's 1985 black Chevy Blazer on FM 17/50.

Police said a stop sign faced the direction in which Irving was traveling. Police reports did not indicate whether Mercer was driving the Blazer.

The driver of the Caprice and passenger Rosemary Young also received serious injuries and underwent emergency surgery. Reports on their condition were unavailable Sunday afternoon.

Greek quake death count reaches 17 miles southwest of Athens, at 8:24 p.m. Saturday.

The tremor destroyed all but three of 120 homes in the village of Elaiochori, 12½ miles east of Kalamata. The bodies of three villagers were found beneath the rubble, the ministry said.

Seven bodies were found elsewhere, including two men crushed in a car when a building toppled over. Neither police nor hospitals have issued an official list of those killed.

Angeliki Papadopoulou, wife of a Greek air force officer, survived 17 hours buried in a 25-foot heap of concrete rubble from the collapsed five-story apartment building near the waterfront. She was flown to Athens with leg injuries.

"The cement is pressing on my head; I can't move," she shouted repeatedly to rescue workers drilling down to reach her.

The bodies of her husband George, a fighter pilot, and her two young children were found hours later.

Also among the seven dead in the building were three teenagers in a second-floor apartment.

"I left them in my living room with the TV, my son, my nephew and my niece. They're lost," fruit merchant Vassilis Barkas, weeping openly, told The Associated Press.

A senior police officer at the site of the collapsed building said police, firefighters and soldiers found 13 people alive.

Yiannis Svongos, who heads the state-run Anti-Seismic Protection Organization, said a four-member French team flew in from Marseilles with a sniffer dog to trace still-buried quake victims.

Firestone sponsors auto car clinic for women

By JOHNNA BROWN
News Staff Writer

Changing tires, checking the oil and jump-starting a dead battery may not be every woman's idea of how to spend a couple of weeknights next month, but those females interested in learning the basics of their cars can do so through Firestone.

Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. is presenting "Every Woman's Car Care Clinic," a free program designed to explain to women the working components of the modern-day auto in basic language. The clinic is scheduled for Oct. 1-2 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Firestone South Plains Mall location at 6002 Slide Rd.

Glenn Davis, Firestone's south-central regional consumer affairs analyst, said the two-day women's clinic will cover the six major systems of the automobile in simple, novistic terms.

"We are not trying to make mechanics out of women," Davis said. "We just want them to be able to help themselves if they are stranded on a road somewhere with a flat tire."

The cost-free clinic will provide women with a basic handbook and hands-on experience in changing tires and oil, jump-starting a car and other simple, everyday road needs, Davis said.

"We do not have the ability to get very technical," he said. "Therefore, we will be familiarizing women in an area where they do not get enough information."

Mike Shelton, West Texas Firestone market manager, said women will be more comfortable dealing with auto service centers because they will have a better understanding of how their cars work.

"If a woman gets stuck out on the road with a broken-down car and a mechanic tells her she needs to buy a complicated part or her car will burn up, she will be able to tell him that's hogwash," Shelton said.

Davis said the car care business has bred a few people who will take a customer's money for no good reason and that it is basically because of a lack of knowledge of what that customer is driving.

"This is a chance for women to learn how to question a mechanic intelligently — to be able to protect themselves," Davis said.

Shelton said the assistant store manager from one of the Lubbock stores will be on hand to help instruct the women in the class.

"She will be able to show women how to maintenance their cars without getting dirty," Shelton said.

Firestone has offered this type of seminar for 12 years and has taught more than 70,000 women how to maintain their cars, Davis said.

The classes will be taught by Davis,

Shelton, store manager Don Wolf and Shirley McClure, assistant store manager. At the close of class on Thursday, each participant will receive a certificate for attending the seminar.

According to Davis, class size is limited, so interested women need to contact the store for a reservation at 797-4821.

Soviets distort testimony, says journalist

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW — American newsman Nicholas Daniloff on Sunday denied Soviet claims that he admitted taking part in a CIA operation and said Kremlin officials were using a "crude distortion" of his testimony to undermine his credibility.

Daniloff, 51, a correspondent for U.S. News & World Report magazine, repeatedly denied he ever worked for the CIA or had any connection to an intelligence agency. "And that, please believe me, is the God's full truth," he said.

He gave his first detailed account of his Aug. 30 arrest and 13 days at Lefortovo Prison during a news conference at the U.S. Commercial Office, a building near the U.S. Embassy.

Daniloff looked more fit and rested on his second full day of a tenuous freedom arranged through diplomatic negotiations last week.

He said being released to the custody of the U.S. ambassador "is a great relief from the sort of mental torture that I have had to bear over the last two weeks.

"I am terribly anxious to get back to the United States, to be back with my children," he said. "You ask me how I feel. Frankly, I feel like a sneaker that's been through a wringer."

Daniloff noted that he still faces a three-count espionage indictment, must be available for questioning and is not permitted to leave the Moscow area.

Similar restrictions apply to Genadiy Zakharov, a Soviet physicist and United Nations employee charged in New York with espionage. He was released to the pretrial custody of Soviet Ambassador Yuri Dubinin in exchange for Daniloff's conditional release here.

The Moscow correspondent reiterated his contention that he was set up by the KGB as an attempt to gain Zakharov's release.

On Saturday, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told a news conference that Daniloff admitted taking part in a Central Intelligence Agency operation to establish contact with a Soviet citizen.

"I consider that a crude distortion of my testimony," Daniloff said.

Hot air

To make it rise, Mickey Simms fires up his balloon, The Basket Case, during Saturday's balloon rally.

It was a dark and foggy morning as I headed toward Reese Air Force Base to attend the Second Annual Hot Air Balloon Rally Saturday.

The chill in the air was fierce, the base a madhouse. Hundreds of people had braved the early hour and the cold weather to see 36 magnificent hot air balloons fill the sky.

Military personnel attempted to keep things organized, which was no easy task considering the crowd's excited anticipation. Voices bellowed through bullhorns at the crowd, directing them to where the balloons would take off.

Upon my arrival, I roamed the masses to find Spike Wideman, coordinator of the event. He told me I was riding in Mickey Simms' balloon.

I ran around like a mad dog in search of Simms. I must have made a spectacle of myself, because he found me before I found him.

There were nine of us who helped Simms. I was a member of the ground crew. That's when the fun began.

The Harrigan's corporate balloon headed the morning's launch. Its amazing size and color floated up and out of sight. After it took off, all the other balloons were free to float.

Like a flash, vivid colors and sounds consumed the air. Suddenly

Simms was yelling "Hop in, let's go, speed it up!"

I didn't ride the first time around. I got in the truck with Mickey's wife, Sue, and the rest of the crew, and we chased the balloon.

Simms radioed us and said they were coming down. It was my turn to ride.

The balloon came down, two hopped out and two of us replaced them. We were off.

We ascended to cloud level within a matter of seconds. I felt like king of the mountain. I felt like I could see the whole world.

Like all good things, the ride had to come to an end. The fog was enveloping us and fuel was running low. It was time for our final descent.

My nerves were a bit shattered as I saw the ground looming closer and closer. "Prepare yourself for a little jolt," Simms yelled.

Jolt? What was that supposed to mean? Why was he screaming that at me? Boom; I found out.

It was a bumpy landing, but all came out OK. We packed up the gear and Simms surprised us with champagne, and we toasted to good times.

Open wide

Balloonist Mickey Simms and members of his ground crew hold open the mouth of the balloon to fill it with hot air.

Wine Classic proves to be a 'grape' experience

By MICHAEL STEPHENS
Lifestyles Staff Writer

Chardonnay, Sauvignon, Zinfandel, Piper. Those are not the names of members of a hockey team. They are the names of guests featured at the Lubbock International Wine Classic III that was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Friday and Saturday.

Those who have scoffed at Lubbock's ability to host a quality wine festival have been silenced by the turnout of the past three years. This year's Classic was deemed a success, with attendance counted at more than 1,000, said Connie Chapman, spokesperson for the event.

The celebration, which included a gourmet lunch and dinner, lectures and a Grand Tasting, has become more popular as the years wear on, and if turnout for the tasting was any indication, it will continue to gain a following.

While the festival's success also will have to be determined by the wineries that participated, Chapman said the Wine Classic has continued to pull in larger attendance each year.

"We'll definitely keep on growing year by year," she said.

Friday's events were highlighted by the Grand Tasting at the Lubbock Plaza hotel. With more than 65 wineries present, there was much to sample. Despite the crowded quarters (only two-thirds of the Plaza's atrium was used for the festival) all present seemed to enjoy themselves.

Because of the great number of winemakers in the tasting, there were many variables involved in the sampling. For instance, some of the wines were lacking in any distinctive taste or sensual appeal. Having so many different representatives of the industry also enabled almost everyone to find something they liked.

The Classic Grand Tasting encountered some difficulty with the rude actions of those wishing to turn the Wine Classic into some kind of social event. Despite the bad apples, the evening in general was worthwhile for anyone who enjoys a great glass of wine.

Saturday's events wrapped up with a soldout gourmet dinner at the Plaza. The guest of honor was California winemaker Bill Jekel. In an interview, Jekel spoke of his special love for the business and revealed his somewhat controversial thoughts on wines and the people who make them.

Jekel, a former executive in television advertising, opened Jekel Winery in Arroyo Seco, Calif. Since he began making his wines and wine blends, his winery has increased tenfold. Jekel explained why he went into the rather risky wine business.

"I have an intense love for wine and had made wines at home," Jekel said. "After my son had majored in viniculture, I decided it was time to open my own vineyard. We planted the vines in 1972 and opened the winery in '78."

As with many businesses, Jekel said he sees the wine industry being revolutionized by technology and feels the California winemakers are the driving force in that evolution.

"Change is a necessary thing, and you certainly can't expect European winemakers to try anything different," he said. Jekel then pointed out, "I think wine coolers are a good example of the changing the industry is going through. My winery is experimenting with wine blends."

Whether winemakers want to change is irrelevant, Jekel said, because young beginners will continue to change winemaking in the United States.

"I think the number of new wineries (at the Wine Classic) shows there will always be those ready to ferment new parts of our industry," he said.

Like Jekel, many people associated with the extravaganza walked away with a smile. With few hitches, the Lubbock International Wine Classic III pulled many local wine drinkers into an event their taste buds will remember for quite a while.

Ex-student making most of opera career

By MISSY COSTELLO
Lifestyles Staff Writer

Tambra King will be spending the next seven months of her life wearing a red cape, being pursued by bears and entertaining wisemen. The former Texas Tech student, who received her bachelor's degree in vocal performance in 1983 and her master's at Tech in May, will be touring with the Connecticut Opera beginning Oct. 1.

The opera company will be touring the East Coast until April, giving both children's shows and mainstage productions. They will be performing three times daily while rehearsing another show simultaneously.

King will play lead roles in the children's operas "Little Red Riding Hood" and "Goldilocks." She also will perform in "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and will sing the soprano solo in Carl Orff's "Caramina Burana."

King's fascination with music began in the second grade with piano lessons, but soon her teacher persuaded her to join a choir. A voice teacher later fostered her interest in operatic music by giving her tickets to the Dallas Opera. Finally, King's high school choral director suggested that she study music at Tech and specifically recommended Tech professor John Gillas.

According to King, Tech is not usually thought of as a "music school" but is becoming more well known. She said the increased recognition is not due to any substantial faculty changes; rather, "simply because more people are singing."

Would King recommend Tech to other students considering the study of music? "In a second," she said. "Tech is sorely underrated. UT and North Texas are highly rated musical schools, but in Texas, I don't think there's any place better than Tech for a vocal degree. I don't think there's any school with more opportunities or more interest than Tech, or any better teachers than the Gillas."

Gillas' wife, Mary, also teaches in the music department.

King's ultimate goal is "like that of any singer — to sing at the Met (the New York Metropolitan Opera)." Other than that, she said she would be happy to get any steady singing job but that she would especially like to sing in Europe, specifically Germany.

"In a field that's 99 percent unemployed," she said, "I'm just happy to have a job."

Air McMail crashes, burns as Testaverde shines

By KENT BEST
Sports Editor

MIAMI, Fla. — Texas Tech coach David McWilliams looked like the lone survivor of an airplane crash. The downcast eyes. The cheerless smile.

The sheer wonderment of it all. The Raiders' rookie skipper also looked like he needed a drink. Nothing strong or bitter, thank you. Just something to wash away the sour taste of defeat.

On second thought, better make that a double.

"It's pretty evident that I didn't do a good job of preparing our team for this game," McWilliams said after his first and only loss as a collegiate head coach. "Now it's my job to go back and analyze what happened."

What happened was a 61-11 loss to the second-ranked Miami Hurricanes Saturday night — the worst defeat in Tech's 61 years of football and the most points ever allowed by Tech. The domination was complete.

The Hurricanes scored 21 points in the first quarter, seven in the second, 26 in the third period, and seven more in the fourth enroute to 538 yards of total offense.

Tech, which ran 25 more offensive plays than the 'Canes, could muster only 317, of which only 66 came on the ground.

It was supposed to be a battle between two wide open offenses. What it became was a Miami highlight film.

Led by All-America quarterback Vinny Testaverde, the Hurricanes scored touchdowns on four of their first five possessions as the Tech defense never found a way to put the clamps on Miami's famed passing game.

Testaverde, who was hot on the Heisman campaign trail this night, completed 16 of 27 passes for 330 yards and four touchdowns, and he toted one in himself on a 12-yard scramble. He mercifully left the game late in the third quarter.

Meanwhile, Tech quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver completed only 15 of 38 for 145 yards and no TDs. In all, Raider quarterbacks (Monte McGuire replaced Tolliver in the second half) put the ball up 53 times, completing 22, with two intercepted.

Air McMail became Air McCesna barely a week after it had riddled the Kansas State secondary for 41 points.

"There's really no comparing Miami with Kansas State," Tech rover Leonard Jones said in one of the few understatement of the night. "Kansas State tried a lot of tricky stuff. Miami just came straight at us."

McWilliams was equally impressed.

"I said that we would continue to throw the football," he said. "But it's hard to get down to a team like Miami 21-0 in the first quarter. The score changes the way you can work your offense."

The 'Canes wasted no time in changing any thoughts Tech may have had about upsets as Testaverde threw touchdown passes of 19, 49 and 33 yards on Miami's first three possessions.

The Tech secondary, concerned with Miami's speed at the wide receiver positions, blanketed the sidelines. Unfortunately for the Raiders, Testaverde wasted no time in exploiting the middle of the field.

Halfback Alonzo Highsmith had a game-high five receptions for 121 yards and two touchdowns.

"They did an excellent job of throwing to their backs, and that kind of disrupted our defense," McWilliams lamented.

Oddly enough, the Miami defense also had some difficulty defending against Tech's shorter passes. Fullback Isaac Garnett led Tech with five receptions for 45 yards, and I-back Ervin Farris had four catches for 21 yards.

Tech's points came on a 43-yard Scott Segrist field goal in the second quarter and a 12-yard touchdown pass from McGuire to freshman tight end Kevin Sprinkles late in the third period. A two-point conversion pass from McGuire to split end Wayne Walker ended the Raiders' scoring.

Ranger manager brings baseball theme into restaurant venture

By The Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Bobby Valentine has his sights set on a fifth-place finish in 1987.

Valentine the restaurateur, that is, not the American League manager-of-the-year candidate.

The Texas Rangers manager has opened his fourth Bobby Valentine's Sports Cafe restaurant, across I-30 from Arlington Stadium at Collins. The other three are in his hometown of Stamford, Conn., where he began his career as a restaurateur.

His success as an entrepreneur appears to be considerable, considering his first career love is baseball.

"I always wanted to be a Hall of Fame baseball player, but I had an injury that shortened my career," Valentine said.

"I was retired in 1979 and was out of baseball. The restaurant business seemed like a place I could go into business for myself and put my energy, if not my expertise, to work."

As many a celebrity before has learned, Valentine discovered there is more to operating a restaurant than licensing a marketable name.

"With the new opening and (it) being the fourth place, it's still extremely hard work," Valentine said. "It's long hours ... and a lot of people you have to deal with."

Valentine's latest restaurant venture began when Arlington real estate investor Glen Terrell and Carey Don Risinger approached the Ranger manager about converting the existing operation at the location, a place with a '50s and '60s theme called The Cafe, into a sports restaurant and bar.

"I thought there was a void when I got here," Valentine said. "I thought the people would enjoy having good food in an ultimate sports environment. So far, that's been the case."

Valentine and Risinger bought the restaurant and began the conversion. The baseball manager drew the plans, moved walls and put a boxing ring in the restaurant's center.

He decorated the place with his family's collection of sports memorabilia. Baseball and sports cards are visible through the clear table tops. Four Louisville Sluggers, including Pete Incaviglia's model C243, serve as front door handles.

"There's a little for everybody," Valentine said. "There's no doubt that it's the most expensive wallpaper in the country. When you think that a Joe DiMaggio autograph is going for about $40 — and I have a couple of them on the wall — for 800 square inches, that's pretty expensive wallpaper."

Because of its owner and location, the restaurant is intended to be a forum for baseball discussion, something Valentine is prepared to handle. "I've lived with it," he said. Valentine was building his first three restaurants while he was a New York Mets third base coach.

"People would come in and say, 'There's no way you should have sent that runner last night,'" he said.

"When you're coaching third, the spotlight is on you even more than it is as a manager. There is subtle second-guessing when you're manager. There's direct second-guessing when you're third-base coach."

Baseball observers like to see Valentine establishing Arlington roots. When Valentine arrived in Arlington, many expected him to be in training to be Tommy Lasorda's replacement as manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It's a commitment that I'm making," Valentine said. "I hope the community does understand that."

Perhaps the most marketable Ranger ever, Valentine defends his high visibility.

"I did the computer thing for the computer," Valentine said of his Epson endorsements in broadcast and print advertising. "I wanted a computer in the office and our budget didn't call for one, so I went out and traded some advertisements for a computer."

Has the low-key Valentine created any excitement with his restaurants?

"I finally took a stand against prostitution in my hometown," Valentine said. "I had a running battle with a few of the local girls who kept walking in front of my restaurant.

"It finally got to the point where I went out and expressed my displeasure until the police came. When they came, I asked them to make a choice — either get rid of me or get rid of the girls."

Valentine spent the night in jail for disturbing the peace.

"I was quite loud and I was upset," he said. The case generated publicity, and the prostitutes no longer are visible in Stamford.

Has the restaurant any visiting baseball personalities? Some of the Seattle Mariners were in earlier last week.

"We haven't had any umpires yet," Valentine said.

Soccer team shuts out NMMI in opener

The Texas Tech soccer team whipped New Mexico Military Institute, 10-0, at home Friday in its season opener.

The defending Southwest Conference champion Red Raiders put the game away early by scoring eight goals in the first half.

Returning All-SWC performer Derek Sholeen paced the Tech attack with three goals, while Joe Naughton led the defense to the shutout win.

Newcomer Jerry Reneau helped

Tech jump in front early with an assist to Chad Driskill, who converted the goal.

Eight of Tech's 11 starters are back off a 12-2-3 squad. However, Tech played without Jimmy Richmond, a co-Most Valuable Player of last season, who missed the match with a knee injury.

The Red Raiders will travel to Wichita Falls Friday to play Midwestern University in the second match of the season.

Ruggers take forfeit win in first match

The Texas Tech rugby team opened its season on a winning note Saturday but didn't get a uniform dirty in the process.

The ruggers took a forfeit victory over the University of Dallas in a match that was scheduled for Tech's sports club field outside the Student Recreation Center.

The Red Raiders, coming off a 16-4-1 season and a Texas Rugby Union Division C championship, will meet their traditional rival the Odessa Mad Dogs at 2 p.m. Saturday in Midland.

"We were really wanting to play this last weekend," said Tech player Bobby Medigovich. "But they (the Mad Dogs) will be a real challenge for us. Last year we played them to a 4-4 tie. We're going to go down there and beat them this year, though."

LSU deals Tech spikers first loss

By DON WILLIAMS
Associate Sports Editor

The Texas Tech volleyball team dropped its first match of the year Sunday, losing in five games to host Louisiana State in the Tigers' tournament.

The Red Raiders ripped nationally ranked Purdue, however, in three straight games Saturday.

LSU came from behind to down Tech 19-21, 15-7, 15-4, 12-15, 15-9, dropping the Raiders to 5-1 for the season.

"LSU was the strongest team we've played this season," said Tech coach Donna Martin. "Our kids played well overall. We were really intense for long periods, and then we would run into a lapse of concentration that allowed LSU to run off five or seven points."

The Tigers were unranked going into the tournament but just missed making the most recent Collegiate Volleyball Coaches Association poll.

The win over Tech upped LSU's record to 2-2 after the Tigers bounced back from losses to nationally ranked Arizona State and Arizona last weekend.

Kelley Bronk and Allison Hetterich led Tech's offensive attack against LSU with 11 kills each. Paige Russell added nine kills and Becky Boxwell had eight.

Hetterich and Susan Kelly were the defensive leaders with eight blocks

Bronk Boxwell

15-6, 15-12 to deal the Boilermakers their first loss of the season.

Individually, Tech was led by Bronk and Boxwell, who had nine kills apiece.

Hetterich added five blocks.

The Raiders' 10-game road trip will continue Friday and Saturday at the New Mexico State University tournament. Tech will face the host Aggies at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

and 17 digs, respectively.

The win over 17th-ranked Purdue Saturday had special significance, because Martin starred for the Boilermakers' nationally rated teams of the mid- to late 1970s.

The Raiders swept Purdue 16-14,

Also entered in the tournament are Kansas State and Ohio State. The Raiders will meet one of those teams in a non-tournament match Saturday and will play the other for third place or the championship.

Cowboys whip mistake-prone Lions, 31-7

By The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — Tony Dorsett ran for 117 yards and a touchdown while Danny White passed for one TD and ran for another as the Dallas Cowboys completely dominated the Detroit Lions in a 31-7 NFL victory Sunday.

The Cowboys took advantage of two key Detroit mistakes for 17 points in the second quarter as they improved to 2-0. The Lions slipped to 1-1.

Dorsett, who was listed as a questionable starter because of a sprained left ankle, carried the ball 23 times. He swept around right end for a 5-yard touchdown one minute into the second quarter after the Cowboys had recovered a James Jones fumble.

Dallas made it 14-0 with 1:01 remaining in the second quarter when White, who completed 20 of 31 for 184 yards, hooked up with Timmy Newsome on a 15-yard TD pass play.

Moments later, Detroit punter Mike

Black fumbled at the Lions' 9-yard line and Rafael Septien kicked a 27-yard field goal with one second remaining in the half.

Dorsett appeared to have scored on a 34-yard run with 12:41 remaining in the game, but after checking a television replay, officials ruled he was stopped inside the 1. White dived in for the score on the next play.

Herschel Walker, who was used sparingly in the contest, scored on a 7-yard run with 8:07 remaining for a 31-0 lead. Walker gained 51 yards in six carries.

Jones scored on a 1-yard dive for Detroit with 3:00 left in the game.

The Cowboys rolled up 388 net yards compared with Detroit's 184. The Lions were penalized eight times for 70 yards and lost three of four fumbles.

"I can be sympathetic to Detroit," said Dallas coach Tom Landry. "They had things happen this year that were happening to us last year. They couldn't catch the ball, and they had the penalties and the fumbles."

"When you play that way, then you can't do much about it."

"I expect more from my team," said Detroit coach Darryl Rogers. "We had terrible field position. As it kept going, it got worse."

Dorsett draws praise for playing with ankle sprain

By The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — The tug-of-war for the hearts and minds of the Dallas Cowboys shifted from Herschel Walker to Tony Dorsett after Dorsett threw away his crutches and led the team to a 31-7 NFL victory over the Detroit Lions Sunday.

Walker, who dominated the nation's headlines after he filled in for Dorsett in the Monday night game, said Dorsett deserved to have the starting tailback job again.

"Tony was doing real well," Walker said. "You know, if you got something working for you, you don't want to change. You just want to go out and attack people. Once you start changing, you throw the offense off."

Detroit coach Darryl Rogers was especially impressed with Dorsett's courage.

"Dorsett is a tough, tough running back," Rogers said. "Some of our guys go down with a sprained ankle and they come back in two or three weeks. Dorsett sprains his ankle and he's back up in seven days. He has never been given credit for how tough he is."
