Leftist tribunal court charges U.S. prisoner

By The Associated Press

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The leftist Sandinista government formally charged Eugene Hasenfus at a hearing before a tribunal Monday with terrorism and violating public order.

If convicted, the 45-year-old American would face up to 30 years in prison. He was captured Oct. 6 by government troops after surviving the shooting down of a plane ferrying supplies to U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

The written charges against Hasenfus were presented by Justice Minister Rodrigo Reyes in a small courtroom packed with journalists.

Reyes said the charges were "violating the public order and security, criminal association and terrorism." The justice minister said government documents turned over to the court included Hasenfus' confession.

The court's president, Reynaldo Monterrey, then read the accusations out loud and they were translated to English by an interpreter.

Although the government's Voice of Nicaragua radio reported that Hasenfus had arrived, reporters at the scene saw only a green government truck believed to be carrying Hasenfus pull up to the courthouse. It drove away, however, without unloading anyone.

It was unclear whether he actually appeared in the courtroom.

Hasenfus' wife, Sally, arrived at the court moments before the session began, accompanied by U.S. Consul Donald Tyson.

Hasenfus' Nicaraguan lawyer, Enrique Sotelo Borgen, also attended the session. Portions of it were broadcast live on government radio.

The lawyer criticized the government for making it impossible to see Hasenfus before the trial started.

"They have kept him isolated. We have not managed to see him. It is not until now that the public trial opens," Sotelo Borgen said. "He has not had the advise of counsel."

Hasenfus, his Nicaraguan attorney said, "is in a legally indefensible position because he has been unable to see his attorney or his family before the trial."

Hasenfus, of Marinette, Wis., was captured a day after a C-123 cargo plane was shot down by Sandinista troops. Three others aboard, two Americans and a third still not identified, were killed.

The cargo plane was ferrying supplies to U.S.-backed Contra rebels who are fighting to overthrow Nicaragua's government.

Hasenfus' wife and his brother, William, arrived in Managua Sunday night and were met by U.S. Embassy officials at Augusto Cesar Sandino International Airport. They did not speak to reporters.

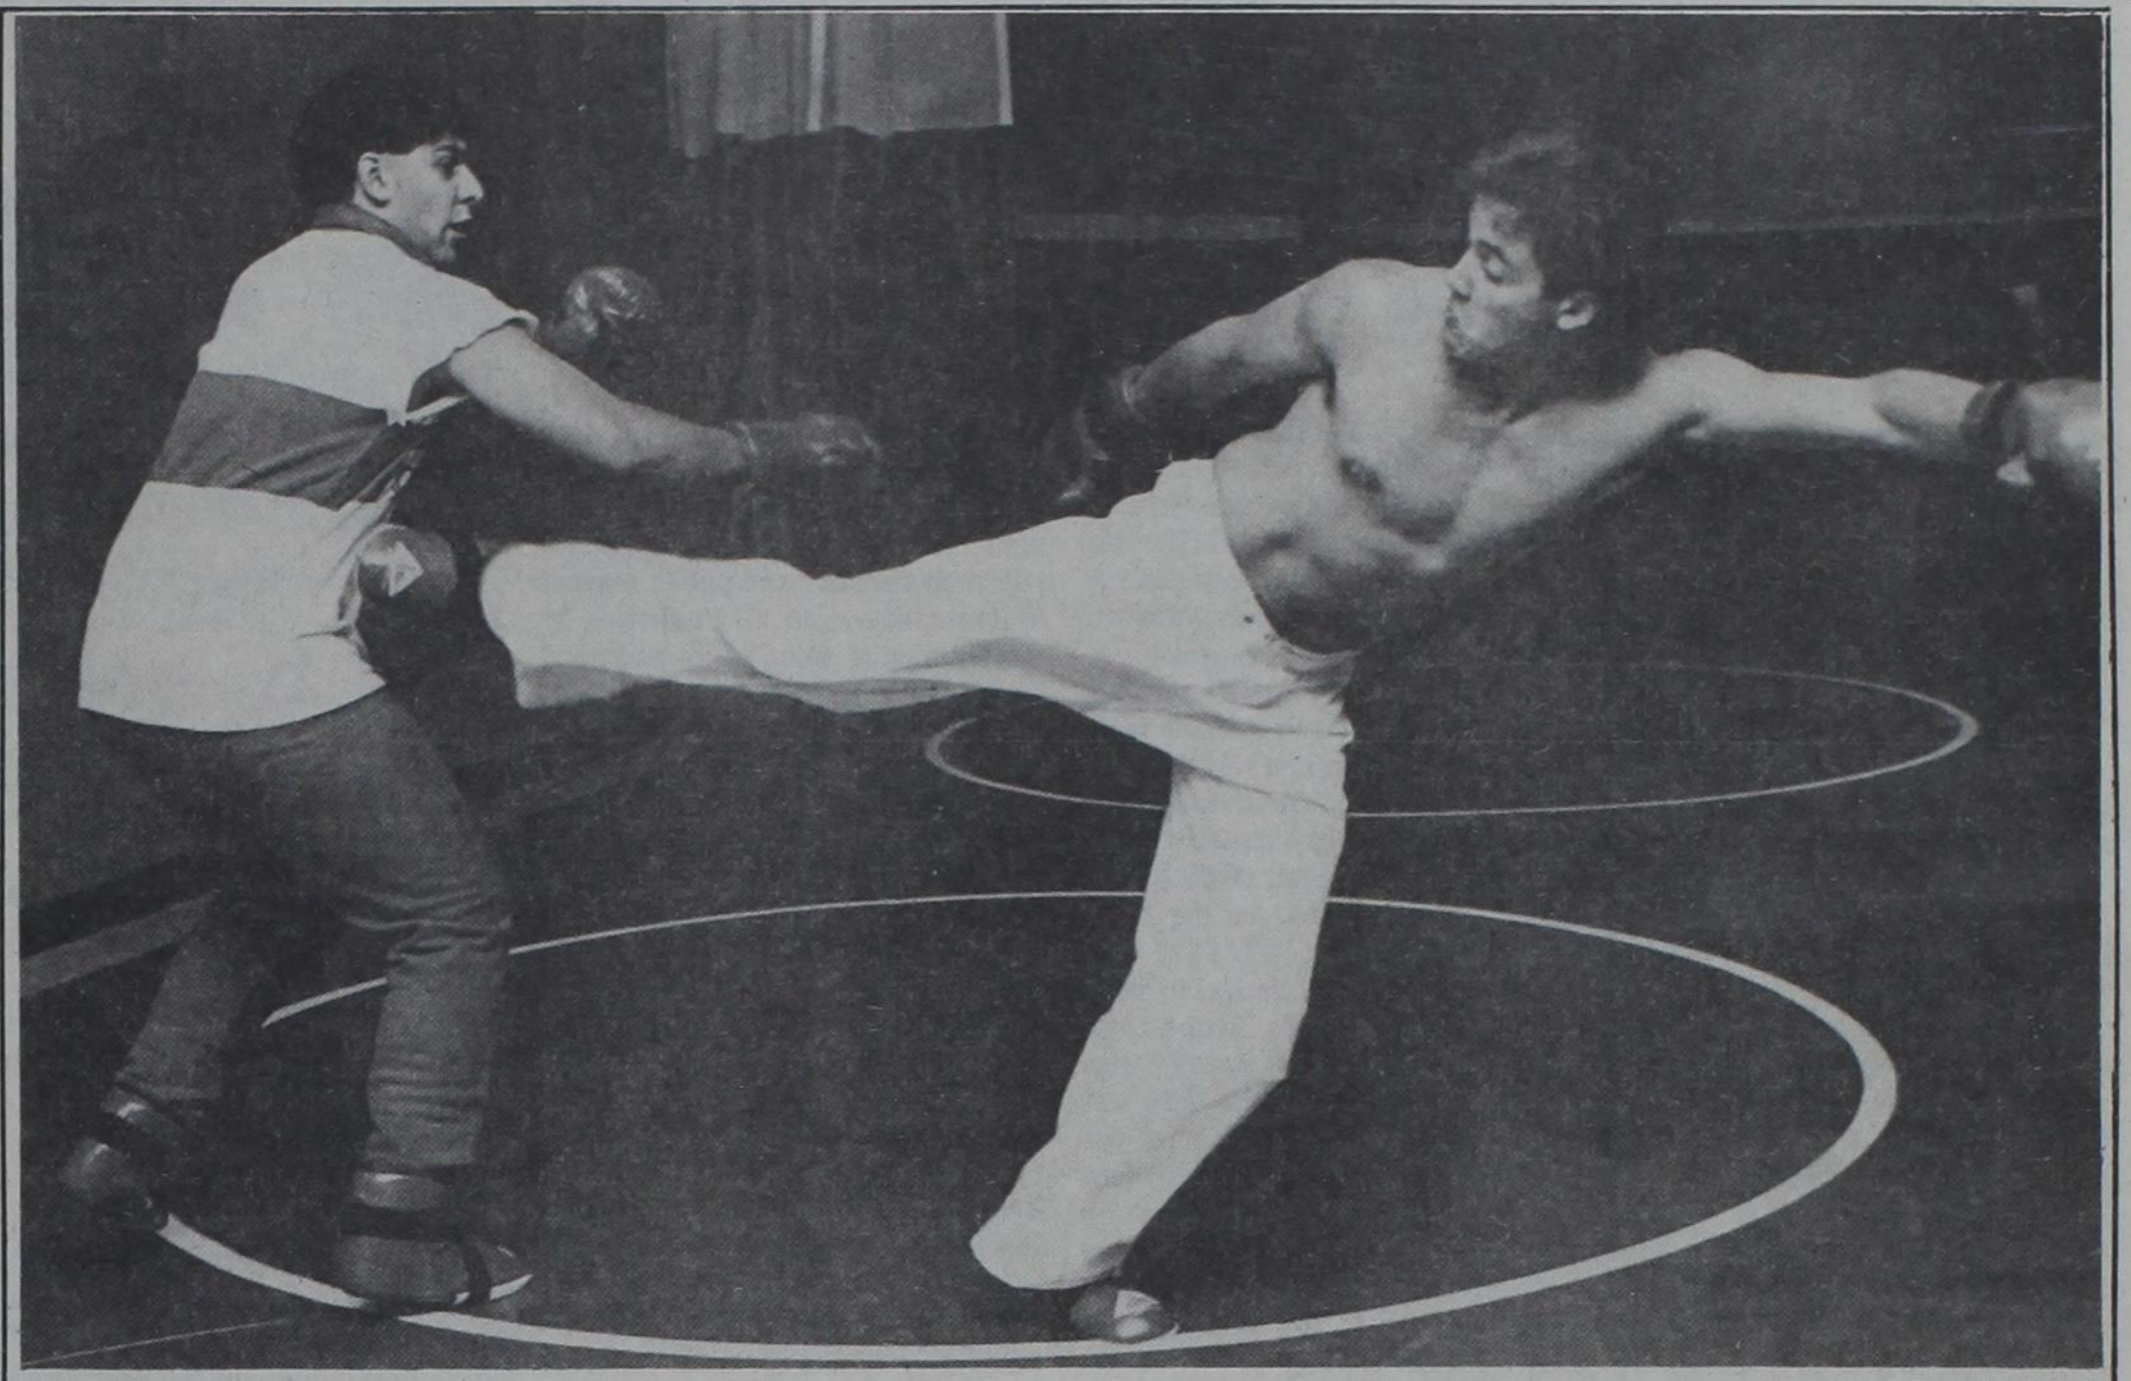

The People's Tribunal is a judicial body created in 1983 to prosecute people accused of counter-revolutionary activity. Each panel consists of a lawyer and two lay people, all generally active in Sandinista organizations.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said the tribunals were set up for the purpose of circumventing due process in order to persecute political opponents.

Redman also said the only visit to Hasenfus by a U.S. consular officer took place on Oct. 10.

"We don't consider that visit to have been a proper one," Redman said.

Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell volunteered last week to defend Hasenfus, but Nicaraguan law requires that the chief defense lawyer be a Nicaraguan. Bell said in Atlanta that he would leave for Managua on Thursday.

Polls indicate support of Reagan and SDI

By The Associated Press

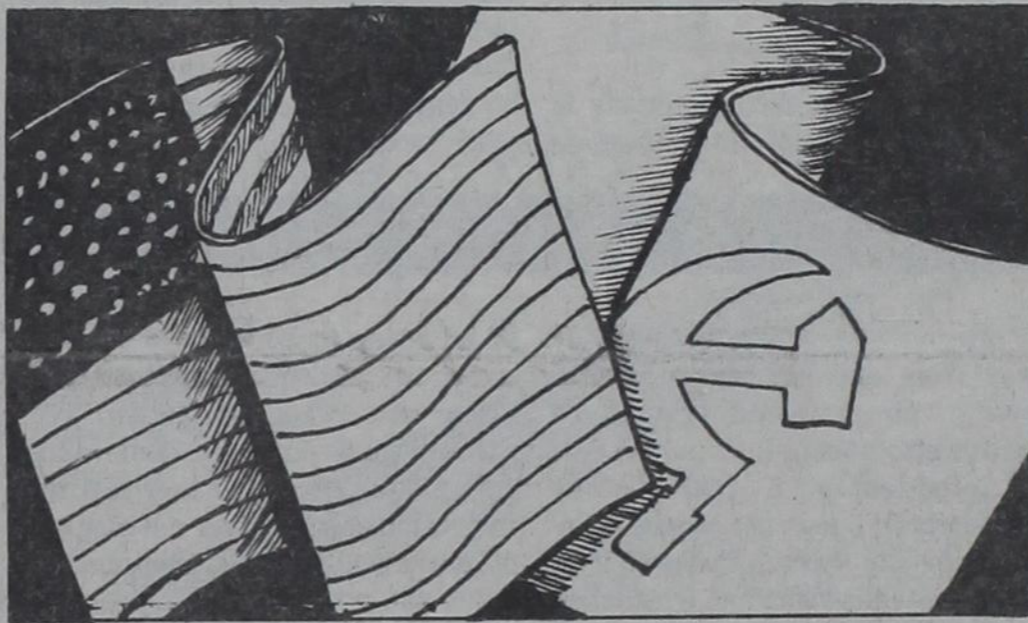

NEW YORK — Two public opinion polls indicate two out of three Americans support the position taken by President Reagan in talks with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev at Reykjavik, Iceland.

A poll by Time magazine asked: "The Soviet Union offered to make substantial reductions in nuclear weapons if the United States agreed to limit development of 'Star Wars' to laboratory research for the next 10 years. Should Reagan have accepted?"

Sixty-nine percent of those asked said no; 20 percent said yes.

A poll by Cable News Network-U.S. News & World Report asked: "Do you think Reagan was right or wrong in refusing to give in on Star Wars in return for the proposed agreement?"

Sixty-six percent said Reagan was right, 21 percent said he was wrong and 13 percent didn't know.

Most Americans also agreed that the Strategic Defense Initiative, as the Star Wars program formally is known, should be developed. Sixty-four percent of the respondents in the Time poll favored SDI, up from 59 percent in November 1985. In the CNN-U.S. News poll, 58 percent favored development of a "space-based defense system," while 25 percent were opposed and 16 percent had no opinion.

Gorbachev was blamed by 45 percent of the respondents to the Time poll for the failure to reach an agreement; 14 percent blamed Reagan; and 25 percent said the leaders were equally responsible.

A 62 percent majority believes an arms reduction agreement still is possible, according to the Time poll, while 33 percent said there is little chance.

According to the CNN-U.S. News poll, 53 percent believe the meeting was a success, while 22 percent believe it was a failure. Fifteen percent said the meeting was "in between" success and failure, and 10 percent did not have an opinion.

The CNN-U.S. News poll also asked whether the Iceland meeting would influence their vote in the upcoming general election, and 81 percent said it would not.

The Time poll was conducted Wednesday by Yankelevich Clancy Shulman and involved 806 Americans.

The CNN-U.S. News poll was conducted Wednesday and Thursday by the Roper Organization and involved 1,000 adults.

Documents link Contra supply network to airline

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Documents found on an American-manned cargo plane shot down over Nicaragua two weeks ago suggest an extensive supply network for the Contra rebels that involved a variety of planes, a pilot who also flew into U.S. military bases and possibly even combat support operations.

The documents, which were made available by the Nicaraguan government, tie the supply network closely to Southern Air Transport of Miami, a onetime CIA-owned company, which has said a pilot killed on the flight, Wallace Blaine Sawyer Jr., had worked for Southern Air but quit in 1985.

Sawyer's flight crew logs, however, show him last February flying two planes leased to Southern Air, with one flight ending at McClellan Air Force Base in California and another going to El Salvador's Ilopango military airport, which has been identified as the center of the Contra supply network.

Southern Air spokesman William Kress refused to comment on why Sawyer would be flying Southern Air planes if he no longer worked for the company.

After Congress cut off covert CIA aid to the Contras in 1984, a private aid network of Americans, many with longstanding ties to the U.S. government, emerged to raise funds and provide other assistance to the rebels fighting to overthrow Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

One intelligence source said the size of the Contra supply operation was larger than anything the CIA had described to congressional oversight committees.

Plane crash kills president of Mozambique

By The Associated Press

KOMATIPOORT, South Africa — President Samora Machel of Mozambique, who led his Marxist nation through 11 crisis-ridden years of independence, was killed Sunday when his plane crashed into a rain-wet South African hillside.

Marcelino dos Santos, No. 2 man in Mozambique's ruling Frelimo party, said in a nationwide radio address that Machel, 53, and other senior officials died in the crash of the presidential plane Sunday night just across the border in South Africa "in circumstances not yet clarified."

South Africa said all but 10 of the 39 people aboard were killed.

The first official confirmation by Machel's government came more than 12 hours after dos Santos said in his first announcement on the radio that the president's jet had not returned on schedule from Zambia. The radio played solemn music throughout the day.

He said Monday night that a 60-day period of national mourning had been declared.

The Soviet-built plane crashed 200 yards inside South Africa's frontier with Mozambique about 30 miles south of this border town, said the South African foreign minister, R.F. Botha.

South Africa's Bureau for Information said the Soviet pilot and nine other people survived the crash. Among the senior officials killed was Transport Minister Luis Alcantara Santos, it said.

Machel's body was brought to Komatiport by truck and was flown to Maputo, the bureau said at a temporary office it established here.

Earlier reports put the death toll at 27, but two more bodies were found in the wreckage of the twin-engine Tupolev 134A jet, it said.

In Lisbon, the Portuguese news agency ANOP quoted official sources and aviation experts it did not identify as saying the crash was caused by human error. It did not elaborate.

without a leader at a time of worsening white-ruled South Africa.

Prime Minister Mario Machungo and dos Santos until a successor is chosen after the funeral, expected sometime next week.

Both are considered candidates along with Joaquim Chissano, who was prime minister in a transitional government before independence from Portugal in 1975 and has been foreign minister since.

It was in Komatiport that Machel and President P.W. Botha signed the 1984 Treaty of Nkomati, which is the name of the river here and means, in Swazi, a cow with a calf and lots of milk.

Combest says legislative session grueling, exhausting

By JAY MILLER
News Staff Writer

Saturday's adjournment of the 99th Congress brought an end to a congressional session in which many historic pieces of legislation were passed, said Rep. Larry Combest, R-Texas, after arriving back in Lubbock Monday.

Freshman representative Combest, admittedly tired, said the sessions leading up to Saturday's adjournment were grueling and tedious. As a result of unresolved business, it appeared the legislators never would go home as adjournment arrived two weeks and a day behind schedule.

The primary concern of the lawmakers in the final days, Combest said, was passage of what many representatives called the "granddaddy" of all appropriations bills, a record-setting $576 billion catch-all spending bill needed to finance federal operations and programs for the 1987 fiscal year.

Many government agencies and offices were closed at noon Friday as a result of Congress' inability to pass a single appropriations bill before the fiscal year began on Oct. 1. The passage of the 13 regular appropriations bills was delayed by congressional squabbling over the constraints of the newly enacted Gramm-Rudman budget law.

Combest said that as a result of Friday's partial governmental shutdown, the mood on Capitol Hill was one of near-panic.

"I've got some serious concerns with the way this Congress allowed much of this legislation, particularly the huge appropriations bill, to be put off until the very end of the session," Combest said. "The way that bill was handled was an abuse of the system."

Combest said he voted against passage of the bill during the House vote taken Friday.

In voting against the measure, Combest said his primary concern with the mammoth bill was that it prohibited Congress from prioritizing spending projects and allowed many aspects of the bill to escape close scrutiny by lawmakers.

"What happened in the closing days of the session never should have happened," Combest said.

Despite his disapproval with the appropriations package, Combest said he felt many of the bills passed by the 99th Congress will be remembered by future generations as historic pieces of legislation.

Among the bills Combest approved were:

- The Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law, passed last December, that aims to force a balanced budget by 1991 through a series of annually mandated, declining deficit targets.
- A rewrite of the government's farm programs. Combest said every commodity group with whom he had discussed the farm relief package had been in agreement with measure.

• Congressional approval of $100 million in aid for the Nicaraguan Contra rebels requested by President Reagan. Combest said he felt the aid package was extremely important.

Other wide-sweeping measures passed by Congress during the past session included a thorough revision of the federal tax code, a rewrite of the nation's immigration laws and economic sanctions against the white, minority government of South Africa over Reagan's veto.

Combest said one of the most touching moments of his tenure as a representative came during the waning moments of the congressional session Saturday night when House Speaker Tip O'Neill, D-Mass., stepped down from his chair after a

Larry Combest

10-year term as leader of the 435-member House of Representatives.

Sorority shows worth of system

Laura Tetreault
University Daily Editor

Finding fault with organizations and institutions is easy to do in the newspaper business, especially on a college campus. When a group shows responsibility and initiative, praises are less likely to come than criticisms when a group makes a mistake.

In particular, all social fraternities and sororities have been under fire recently because of the September hazing death of a Phi Kappa Psi pledge at the University of Texas at Austin. Irresponsibility and a lack of true brotherhood/sisterhood have been the main criticisms of the social organizations. One Texas Tech sorority, however, is taking responsibility for the action of its pledges, instilling some trust back into the Greek system.

The Tech chapter of Alpha Delta Pi invoked disciplinary sanctions last week against several of its pledges, who defaced public property with shoe polish. Between 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13, the AD Pi pledges were decorating Sigma Chi fraternity house in celebration of that fraternity's Derby Days last week.

Half the pledges were encouraged by a Sigma Chi member to move the decorating activities to the Tech campus. As a result, the pledges defaced four bus stops on campus and the windows of Wiggins dining complex by writing the Greek letters of their sorority and of the SX fraternity.

By 9:30 a.m. the same morning, members of the AD Pi sorority were cleaning the shoe polish off the marked public property. That action was brought about, not by a directive from the Dean of Students Office, but rather by the decree of the older sorority members.

Besides forcing the pledges to clean thoroughly the bus stops and cafeteria windows, the sorority also forced the pledges to write letters of apology to the Tech director of the physical plant and support services and the director of grounds maintenance. The pledges also had to write a letter to the editor to express their apologies to the Tech student body for their actions.

All the disciplinary sanctions against the pledges were carried out by the sorority by Tuesday night, before members of AD Pi met with the Tech assistant dean of students a week later. The sorority should be commended for taking care of the irresponsibility of its young members without instructions to do so from the Tech administration.

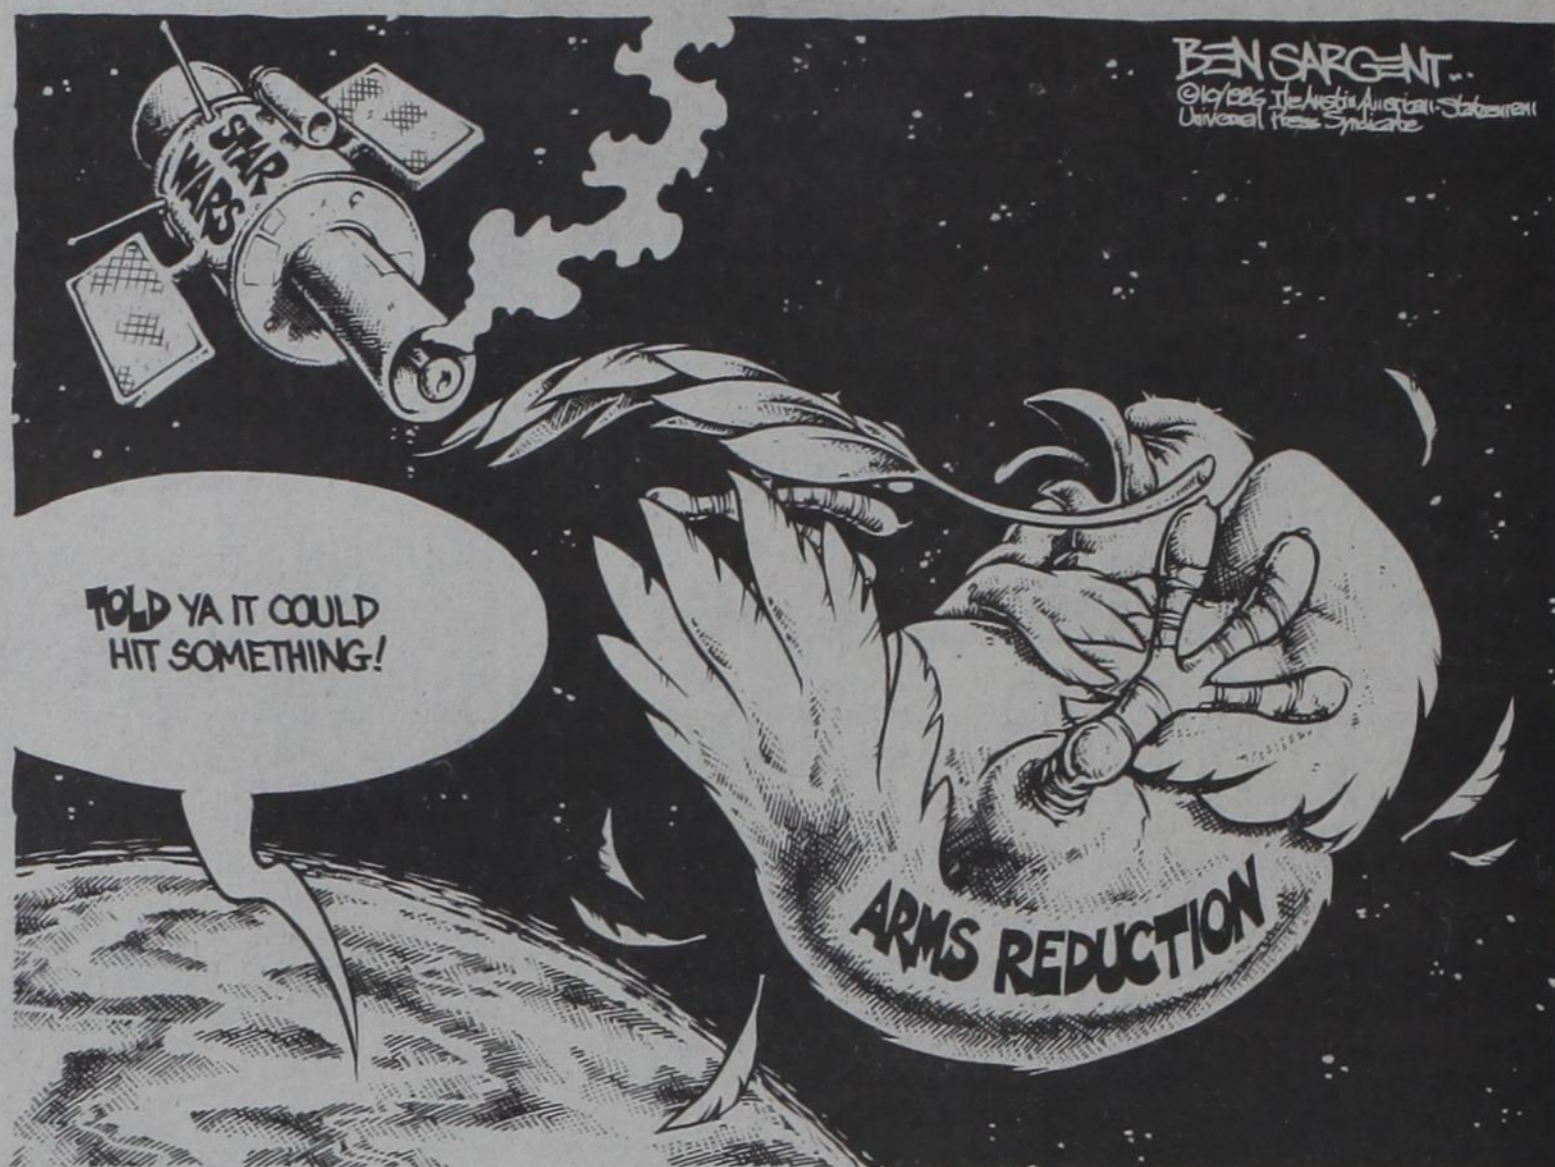

The quick disciplinary actions of the older members of AD Pi illustrate that the Greek system can and does work. Obviously, sororities do many good deeds by raising funds for philanthropies. Sororities also can instill responsibility and public respect to its members, as AD Pi showed by taking care of some of its wayward members.

Unfortunately, not all Tech sororities adhere to such a worthy approach to the Greek system. Last week members of two other sororities were involved in putting shoe polish on non-Greek cars in the parking lots servicing the Chitwood, Weymouth and Coleman dorms. The vandals also used shoe polish to decorate the Wiggins dining complex with Greek letters.

Although the sorority members defaced public property, they have not apologized publicly for their actions. The incidents are being investigated by the Dean of Students Office.

Members of AD Pi who defaced public property are just as guilty of wrong as are the unknown sorority sisters who committed similar actions. However, the AD Pi pledges have redeemed themselves and saved some face for the Greek system. Unfortunately, their actions of showing that the Greek system can work may be negated by the irresponsibility of other sororities in the system.

Bill won't stop alien immigration

Michelle Bleiberg
News Staff Writer

The United States Congress passed a bill Friday which grants amnesty to those illegal aliens who have tried to establish residency in the United States before 1978. The bill also offers stiffer punishment for those who employ illegal aliens.

When I heard about this bill, which is a modification of the Simpson-Mizell bill, my first reaction was: Big deal — it's not going to help.

After being born in a border city and raised there for 19 years, I have become very bitter toward the United States government for letting the problem of illegal aliens get out of hand.

I have driven down Interstate 10 in El Paso at 7 a.m. and watched the illegal aliens cross the Rio Grande safely only to see the United States Border Patrol drive by 15 minutes later. I have had many friends turned down for employment because they can't speak Spanish. Downtown El Paso is a host for illegal aliens. When I'm downtown I sometimes wonder if I'm in the United States or Mexico.

I also have watched the U.S. government waste thousands of dollars on the "tortilla curtain," which is a chain-link fence dividing the United States and Mexico. The curtain is designed to keep the illegal aliens from crossing the border. A strong desire to cross the border and a pair of pliers is all it takes to break through.

When I heard of this bill it also brought to mind a good friend of mine who ran into trouble with the U.S. government when she applied for a Social Security card. It seems that when her parents adopted her in Mexico 20 years ago, the adoption papers got mixed up. However, officials said everything was legal and there would be no problems with immigration.

When she went to apply for her card 19 years later, Social Security officials found a flaw. Officially my friend was not an American citizen, but rather an illegal alien. She was going to have to be deported. She and her parents were victims of circumstance. After pressure from U.S. Rep. Ron Coleman, my friend finally was granted amnesty.

The point is that the government has granted amnesty to people who are taking them for a free ride. It makes me sick to think the government is doing more to help illegal aliens than the people who were born and raised as Americans. Government officials need to take a long look at what they have done and ask themselves whether it's right to give these illegal aliens a chance before they give their own a chance.

About 'Happydale'...

To the editor:

I would like to congratulate Scott Faris on his long-awaited achievement of humor in Wednesday's Happydale strip. The bit about the picture on the back of the student directory was genuinely funny.

Unfortunately, every strip I have seen other than Wednesday's has been devoid of humor and anything resembling relevance to anybody.

My apologies to Mr. Faris, but I suppose this is better than talking behind his back.

Fraternities should be forced to shy away from any physical means of hazing. They should provide a positive atmosphere for a person during pledgship. I feel a true "brotherhood" does not consist of inducing bodily harm; instead, it is founded on fellowship and friendship. I feel that state and/or government officials should help in setting limits for fraternities concerning hazing methods. They should enforce hazing limitations, so that they don't consist of physical harm, but of constructive practice in introducing a pledge to a lifetime brotherhood.

Fraternity hazing

To the editor:

An issue that has been brought to my attention while attending Texas Tech University is the problem of fraternity hazing. Although hazing has been around for several decades, with the intention of being a physical motivator, it has had many negative consequences.

I feel that many fraternities condone hazing because they feel it is a constructive part of fraternity pledgship. However, it has become a destructive means to an end. Everyone has their limits, and when forced to extend those limits, the outcome can be fatal. Therefore, I feel that boundaries should be set when it concerns a person's health and well-being.

Defending the summit

To the editor:

I have stood by silently giggling at the "profound" editorializing of The UD for several months now. I cannot, however, let Ms. Pandolfo's article regarding the Iceland summit pass without making comment.

First, let me say that I am not one of the "do-gooder liberals" that this school seems to fear so much. I consider myself a moderate Republican who, until recently, supported Ronald Reagan. But, I do not take issue with this, for I think it is for each person to decide from the facts whether or not he or she supports the President's perception of communist theory and for what the Soviet government stands.

The communist doctrine is not based on expansionism. World conquest is not the goal of the Soviet Union. These are goals of fascism. The reason why Soviets tend to move into other countries is that they feel that they can bring the other a better way by introducing them to communism, much the way we try to introduce democracy to developing nations. The methods are simply different.

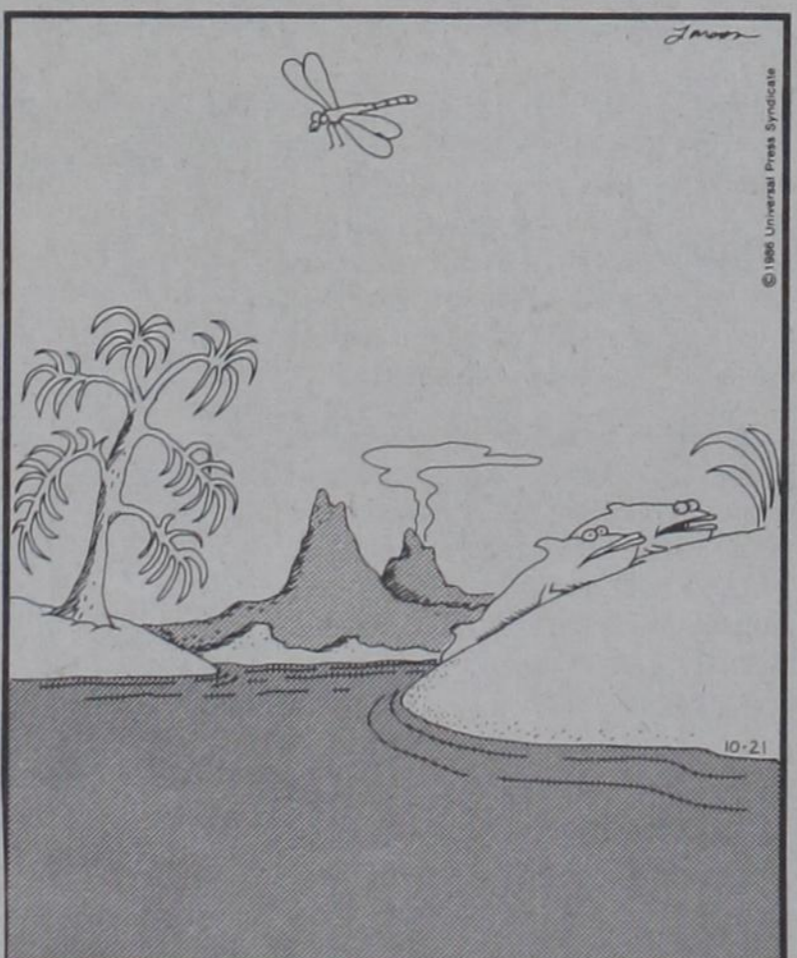

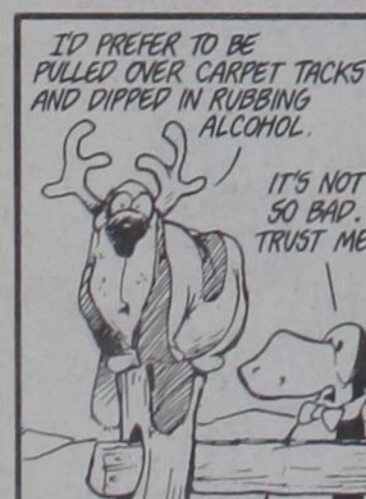

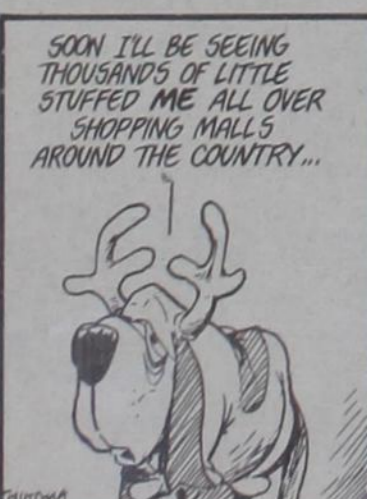

I will agree that the Soviet Union is under a totalitarian regime. Totalitarianism is, however, only a step in the development of pure communism. True, no country has ever achieved pure communism, and none probably ever will.

Finally, I must protest your remarks to the effect that the Soviet government is a bunch of warmongering robots. Do you really believe the Soviet Union would be any more likely than the United States to launch a nuclear attack? Come, come, Ms. Pandolfo. They are human beings, also. They do have feelings, too. The loss of millions of their own citizens would be just as tragic to them as to us.

In conclusion, I would just like to ask Ms. Pandolfo to please check her facts the next time she editorializes. To me, it would be most embarrassing to write an article that thousands of students would read and subsequently find out that, factually speaking, I was out in "left" field somewhere. Excuse the pun.

Bloom County by Berke Breathed The Far Side

"Again? What is it with you that as soon as you put one fin on the land you have to go?"

by Gary Larson

To the editor:

I don't know what the problem is with the staff this year, but it seems to me not one person writing for your paper this year is capable of writing an intelligent and worthy column on international affairs. Cindy Pandolfo's column on the Iceland summit continues the tradition.

While the failure of the Iceland summit may temporarily affect U.S.-U.S.S.R. relations, it is hard to believe it will "Fuel the cold war ... to unprecedented heights." Actually, it will probably be the worse since the U.S. now realizes the Soviets are willing to discuss huge cutbacks in nuclear weapons and the Soviets are now aware that SDI will not be given up as easily as thought. This understanding will undoubtedly force the two powers to begin more serious negotiations.

In fact it's now hard to call the summit a failure. The summit was never intended to produce a treaty of any sort. It's main purpose was to get the two leaders talking again after the Daniloff affair. A failure would have meant the two not exchanging farewells and the talks ending earlier than scheduled. While they did not smile, the leaders did exchange farewells and the meeting lasted longer than scheduled. And despite Don Regan's comments about the summit, I'm sure there will be another summit toward the summer.

As for your evaluation of Soviets being afraid of the SDI, I wonder where you get your sources. You say that the reason for the paranoia of SDI is the Soviets "want to conquer the world." As your editor says, "Get a grip..." This Red Menace mentality went out with the '50s. There's a big difference in wanting to conquer the world and wanting to influence events in the world. The latter is what they want — as all world powers do.

It's hard to believe the Soviets have operational plans for the conquest of the world. They lack the resources, the manpower, the strategic capability, the power and the stupidity to do it or even try or even give it serious thought. The last person to give world conquest serious thought was Hitler, and he had to have the help of Italy and Japan plus a number of minor allies. Wait, maybe the Soviets have a secret alliance with the Red Chinese for world conquest?

Instead of world conquest, which implies conventional full-scale operations, I would be more concerned about the numerous "brush-fire" wars that break out constantly every year. For the most part these wars resulted in the country turning into a dictatorship or non-aligned country. Very few, outside the Eastern Bloc which the Soviets occupied, have become Soviet allies. In fact, a number of the socialist and communist governments that have emerged have taken a neutral stance, such as Yugoslavia and India. These low-intensity conflicts are the threat to world peace.

As for the Soviet people protesting a nuclear war, you remark they lack the weapons to do so. From what you imply, if the U.S. is headed for a nuclear war or other crisis we should all take up weapons and storm the White House. Weapons are not the only means to resist. Some of the most effective resistance is simply civil disobedience. If the Soviets have a thousand people who refuse to work in a tank factory, it's hard to imagine the government ordering their execution. In the '30s and '40s, yes. Not now.

Your remarks concerning us being "Deceived by believing that the loss of millions of lives or destruction of the planet would deter the Soviets" border on stupidity. If the leaders in the Kremlin want to conquer the world, why would they start a nuclear war? They and no one else they knew would survive to claim victory. The purpose of conquering the world would be to reap all the spoils of war. The spoils of war in nuclear war are charred landscapes, destroyed civilizations, ecological disaster and so on. With the billion-plus dead, who would the leaders dominate?

As for the anti-missile system around Moscow, the system was allowed for by the treaties on anti-missile defenses. The treaties allowed for each country to keep an anti-missile system around their capitals. The U.S. elected not to do so because of costs, and the uselessness of a system that would probably not work in combat and the fact that there are too many warheads targeted for Washington, D.C., anyway. Besides, SALT II was never ratified.

The space stations Soviets have in orbit and the suggestion they be removed is ludicrous. First, they are small stations not capable of doing any major experiments other than how humans can live in space for prolonged periods of time. Second, a suggestion like that would result in an immediate counter-proposal that the U.S. abandon the shuttle program and all concepts of a U.S. space station expected in the 1990s. And NASA benefits from the Soviet space experiments as much as they would if we had our own station up.

The Soviets are a threat to the U.S. in the same way we are to them. Instead of trying to stir up the hype you are, you should concentrate on what each side can gain from the other if they work out a system to avoid full-scale warfare coming out of low-intensity conflicts. We need to continue the disarmament talks. It's a dangerous game the Soviets and us are playing.

NATO confronts U.S. about deployment

By The Associated Press

GLENEAGLES, Scotland — NATO defense ministers gathered Monday at this golf resort to confront the Americans about a near-deal at the Reykjavik summit that raised concern about a Europe at the mercy of superior Soviet conventional forces.

President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev almost reached an agreement to remove medium-range missiles from Europe, a prospect that caused complaints from some NATO generals and more discreet grumbles from politicians worried about Western European security.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar

Weinberger arrived by helicopter at this Scottish golfing resort on the eve of the two-day meeting that will debate the strategic future of NATO following the summit at which both sides offered huge nuclear arms cuts.

The basic fear is that withdrawal of U.S. cruise and Pershing 2 missiles, whose deployment provoked protests by the anti-nuclear movements, would leave Western Europe in an inferior position to the Communist Warsaw Pact's larger conventional forces.

At a two-day meeting of defense ministers of the 16-nation NATO alliance starting today, the Europeans were to raise the issue with Weinberger.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West

Germany, perhaps the most worried of the Europeans, was in the United States and expected to spell out his concerns to President Reagan.

"The abolition of all nuclear weapons is a fantastic goal," Kohl's top security adviser, Horst Teltschik, said in an article published Monday in the mass-circulation newspaper Bild.

"But it could make war in Europe more likely again as the considerable superiority of the Soviet Union in the conventional field persists. Disarmament must not be allowed to burden the partners in the Western alliance, but rather it must strengthen their security," Teltschik wrote.

In NATO headquarters in Brussels, the alliance's deputy supreme commander, Gen. Hans-Joachim Mack, complained last week that Washington did not seem to have considered the "strategic implications" of the deal. Supreme Commander Gen. Bernard Rogers said he had not been consulted properly — a complaint dismissed by NATO Secretary-General Lord Carrington.

There also is concern that if the cruises and Pershings went, Western Europe would face attack from short-range nuclear weapons in which, according to Western estimates, the Warsaw Pact currently has a 9-1 superiority.

On conventional forces, the Warsaw pact has a 2-1-1 superiority over NATO in tanks, according to Western estimates.

Shamir replaces Peres as prime minister

JERUSALEM (AP) — Yitzhak Shamir, leader of Israel's right-wing Likud bloc, was sworn in Monday to replace Shimon Peres as prime minister and vowed to increase Jewish settlement of occupied Arab territories.

Shamir and his 24-member Cabinet took their oaths after the Knesset, or Parliament, debated for four hours and then gave Shamir an overwhelming 82-17 vote of confidence. There were three abstentions in the 120-member Parliament.

Under an unprecedented 1984 coalition agreement between Peres' left-leaning Labor Party and Shamir's Likud, Peres takes Shamir's previous job as foreign minister.

The 71-year-old Shamir said a "supreme priority" of his government would be to funnel funds into increased Jewish settlement of occupied Arab territories.

General Motors divests in South Africa

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. announced Monday that it is pulling out of South Africa, a move Chairman Roger B. Smith attributed both to financial losses and that nation's failure to abolish apartheid.

General Motors is the second-largest U.S. employer in South Africa, behind Mobil, according to the Investor Responsibility Research Center in Washington, D.C. In 1985, 39 U.S. companies pulled out of South Africa, followed by 22 so far in 1986.

General Motors South African Ltd., a wholly owned subsidiary, has annual sales in the $300 million range and a 2,800-member workforce that is predominantly non-white.

Protesters seize UT president's office

AUSTIN (AP) — A group of 16 young people took over the University of Texas president's office briefly Monday and demanded that UT regents get rid of any investments in South Africa.

UT President William Cunningham was not in the office at the time. The Daily Texan, the daily student newspaper, said one UT policeman received a cut leg when he kicked in a glass door.

The 16 people were arrested by UT police, and misdemeanor charges of disruptive activity will be filed, said university spokeswoman Joyce Pole. "It was all very non-violent."

She said the arrests included 12 students, two former students and two non-students.

Officials anticipate marketing of fake documents

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — Officials say they expect a huge market in bogus documents to emerge to help people living illegally in the United States take advantage of an immigration law passed Friday by Congress.

Fake documents already are being tailored to the requirements in the legislation, immigration officials told The New York Times. The documents include fake rent receipts, utility bills, income tax forms, driver's licenses and birth certificates.

The immigration bill would offer amnesty to millions of immigrants who arrived illegally if they can prove they lived in the United States since 1982, except for "brief, casual and innocent absences."

The White House says President Reagan is expected to sign the legislation.

In the past, fake documents could make someone appear to be a legal resident. But the new measure probably will create more demand because aliens could use the documents to become legal residents and eventually, citizens.

"Probably what we'll be seeing now is a switch from just fraudulent immigration documents to documents indicating that you have been here since whatever date," said Vincent Henderson, an immigration investigator in Houston.

The bill imposes criminal penalties on employers who knowingly hire workers who do not have proper documents.

"We are going to have a new group of individuals creating documents," said Michael McMahon, deputy assistant regional commissioner for investigations at the Immigration and Naturalization Service office in Dallas. "There will be a lot more vendors, a lot more printing of documents."

Bogus documents have always been available on the open market. On Friday, hours before the Senate gave final approval to the bill, a New York Times reporter bought what appeared to be a Social Security card at the key-making counter in the Fiesta supermarket on Bellaire Boulevard in southwest Houston. The reporter used the name of the president of Argentina, Raul Alfonsin, and a contrived nine-digit number. He was given a laminated card on the spot for $6.90.

More sophisticated documents are available for a higher price.

In San Antonio, Richard Casillas of the immigration service said the city will need a "supermarket-sized facility" to process people seeking amnesty under the new law.

The immigration service will also open processing centers in Corpus Christi, Laredo and Austin, Casillas said.

'Old age' no barrier for doctoral student

By HOLLY HATCH
News Staff Writer

Laughter rings out in her voice as she talks about the numerous articles written about her, the honors she has received and her memorable television debut.

But more than any recognition bestowed upon Dorothea Rolls, her upbeat attitude about life itself stands out. Rolls will be 74 Monday and is busily working toward her doctoral degree in English at Texas Tech.

She began her college career at age 65, and after completing her undergraduate degree at Heidelberg College in Ohio, she received her long-awaited master's degree in education from Tech this May.

Rolls said she was unable to attend college as a young woman because she had to help support her family during the Depression. Later, she put her education on the back burner while she was raising her own family.

"Women have come such a long way during my lifetime," she said. "We lived vicariously through our husbands for years.

"I always knew I wanted an education more than anything, but it wasn't an appropriate thing to speak up about."

Rolls said she began thinking seriously about college after she retired from her job as district manager of a major cosmetics firm.

"I traveled like a lot of retired people do, but I found myself pacing the floor," she said.

After she received her undergraduate degree, Rolls was featured in several newspaper articles and was the subject of a "P.M. Magazine" television feature in Cleveland.

"When the producer of 'P.M. Magazine' called me to do the show I thought it was a friend teasing me," she said.

Her college work is for her own personal enhancement, she said. Her studies have broadened her outlook on life as well as exposed her to different types of people.

Rolls works in the Continuing Education office helping to edit and develop correspondence courses. She plans to continue her work while she studies.

"I'd like to write something that would raise the level of awareness about older people," Rolls said. "So many people have preconceived ideas about what older people can and can't do."

Rolls is starting an awareness group for older people at her church that will deal with attitudes surrounding aging.

"I hate the words 'senior citizen'

Dorothea Rolls

Rodney Markham/The University Daily

and 'golden years.' There's nothing wrong with the word 'old.' It simply means you've lived a certain number of years," she said. "That doesn't mean anything bad."

Rolls said she rarely looks back on her life and instead focuses on the future. "I don't know whether I'll finish my Ph.D. or not, but I always envision myself walking across that stage to receive my diploma," she said.

Rolls has three children, including Paul Dixon, a professor of educational psychology at Tech, and six grandchildren.

UPD solicits Tech's views on campus safety, crime

By MICHELLE BLEIBERG
News Staff Writer

The University Police Department, the Dean of Students Office and the Personal Safety Awareness Committee want to know what the Texas Tech community thinks about the safety of students and faculty members on campus.

Questionnaires are being provided to students, faculty and staff members, in conjunction with Crime Prevention week, to find out what can be done to improve safety conditions on campus.

Questions on the form include: Which areas on campus are in need of better lighting? Where would you like to see emergency blue phones located? What dorms are in need of an escort service? When should shuttle buses be available from the commuter parking lots to the dorms?

Space is available for respondents to leave their name and address so UPD can send information concerning their self-defense. Space also is available for additional comments or suggestions.

UPD Crime Prevention Officer Brenda Arkell said the police department and the Dean of Students Office often receive information or complaints concerning safety on campus.

"We make an effort to increase security on campus by listening to suggestions and comments," Arkell said.

She also said that instead of complaining, the campus population should present ideas to people responsible for taking action.

"These questionnaires provide an excellent opportunity for students and faculty members to be heard and have their ideas acted upon," Arkell said. "I can't guarantee that every suggestion will be acted on, but all suggestions will be read."

Students and faculty can pick up questionnaires during Crime Prevention Week at the UPD booths set up in the University Center between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

CAMPUS BRIEFS

Tech law professor wins national award

The U.S. Supreme Court's new Tom C. Clark Fellow of the year is Texas Tech law professor Thomas E. Baker. The award is presented to a Judicial Fellow who shows outstanding dedication to the improvement of the administration of justice.

Baker served as a Judicial Fellow in the office of the administrative assistant to former Chief Justice Warren Burger. He also is the author of more than two dozen articles on constitutional law, federal jurisdiction and criminal law and procedure.

Civil Libertarians to discuss drug testing

Rodric Schoen, president of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, will speak to the Campus Libertarians during their meeting at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the University Center Blue Room. Schoen, assistant dean of the Texas Tech School of Law and professor of constitutional law, will focus on the civil libertarian implications of drug testing. Everyone is invited to attend, and refreshments will be served.

Planetarium features star explorations

The Moody Planetarium at the Texas Tech Museum will feature "Starbound," an audiovisual exploration of the stars to run through Nov. 21. The documentary traces the first observations of the stars from the time they were viewed by Galileo with his telescope in 1610 to the present. Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for Tech students and children.

Tech Ag Sciences receives endowment

Texas Tech's College of Agricultural Sciences has received a $10,000 endowment, given by Bill Baker of Bella Vista, Ark., which will support a $300 scholarship for students in the department of agricultural economics. The endowment also will provide three $100 scholarships for students in the department of agricultural education and mechanization.

Ranching Center sponsors quilt exhibit

The Ranching Heritage Center is sponsoring a quilt exhibit through March 8, 1987, highlighting the legacy of pioneer women who made the quilts. The quilts on display, ranging from small crib quilts to large creations, are from the Texas Tech Museum and private collections.

Wonder Day not so wonderful

Michael Stephens
Lifestyles
Staff Writer

Now they've gone and done it. There's Mother's Day and Grandparents Day. Some people have gone so far as to create a Mother-in-Law's day. But nothing prepared me for what I've just recently discovered.

Stevie Wonder Day. I'll bet that you, illustrious reader, think I made that up. No, I think it would be impossible to come up with anything this goofy in real life. According to the Washington State University Daily Evergreen (sounds like some kind of air freshener, not a newspaper), Pullman, Wash., has proclaimed Wednesday as Stevie Wonder Day.

Before I go any further, I want to make it perfectly clear that any remarks made in this column are not intended to demean the talents of anyone mentioned hereafter. This is not a column on the ability of these performers, but on the weirdness of others pursuing the American ideal of celebrity worship.

With the legalities behind, let us move on to Pullman, Wash., the heart of Americana. The originator of the project, Richard Penton, explained that he admired Wonder in his effort against such worldwide problems as substance abuse, apartheid and world hunger. Folks, I really admire a lot of people for working on USA for Africa and Band Aid, but I'm dang sure not going to name a day in my town after Cyndi Lauper.

I'm certain that this column is taking on the air of kicking a sleeping dog. Here is a man who has brought happiness to millions of people burdened with a severe disability. Then, instead of resting on his laurels, he goes out of his way to speak up for causes he believes in.

So what's the problem? I obviously do not find anything wrong with naming a day after the noble Mr. Wonder.

Instead, I see this hullabaloo as an indicator of a much greater problem in the country, one I alluded to earlier in the column: celebrities and the questions they pose.

Why should the city of Pullman have to think of such an idea? Why do work) take up enough time, but many insist on using their public positions to hawk homes for the poor, gain an end to aggression and garner finances for disease research.

With so many people, projects and causes needing our help, how often do “ There's Mother's Day and Grandparents Day. Some people have gone so far as to create a Mother-in-Law's day. But nothing prepared me for what I've just recently discovered.

we name days after people? Why do we bother giving out humanitarian awards at the Academy Awards? I think it's a little bit of guilt.

Here we have performers like Paul Newman, Bob Geldof and Harry Belafonte going out of their way to help charities. Their jobs (which most certainly require a great deal of hard we respond with ourselves instead of with a shrug of our shoulders?

I guess I have rationalized Stevie Wonder Day enough, but why did the Texas Legislature take time out of the recent special session to name a day in September ZZ Top Day. Wait, I know! ZZ Top taught Texans how to party.

Bill, Red Raiders: Born to bowl

Hobbled 'Horns suffer in wake of Hog setback

Kent Best
Sports Editor

My friend Bill the bowler was never one to mince his words.

A few examples: When the Oilers beat the Cowboys in preseason, Bill was the first one to say the powder-blue upstarts were lucky — that it would be a miracle if the Oilers finished above .500.

Not bad, considering the Oilers lost their sixth straight game Sunday.

Here's another one. When they killed Bobby Ewing off on Dallas, Bill was the first person to say the show was just a bad dream all along, anyway.

And when the Texas Tech football team beat Arkansas last week, Bill was the first one to give me a call.

"Hey, ol' buddy. How 'bout them Raiders?" Bill said.

"Yeah, how 'bout 'em, Bill. That was somethin', wasn't it?"

"Thought you said we were terrible. Thought you said we couldn't beat Muleshoe. Ha ha ha, ho ho ho."

"Aw' come on now, Billy Bob, you know I didn't say that. You're just tryin' to get me in more hot water. I just said we played lousy against Baylor. Against Baylor, Bill."

"Well, all I know is you look pretty dumb now."

"Yeah, see ya', Bill. Go hit one of your kids."

Bill can be a real bonehead, but as much as it pained me to admit it, he had a point. I did feel sort of dumb when the Raiders shrugged off a pair of 45-point losses like so much filth and shocked the football world with a victory over the eighth-ranked Hogs.

I felt even more out-of-sync after the Rice win Saturday in Houston. Especially when I bumped into this red-white-and-blue-clad guy outside the Tech locker room.

Being naturally inquisitive and ordinarily suspicious of people dressed thusly, I planted myself about 10 feet away and began to look the guy over. He was a distinguished-looking fellow with a big patch on his jacket that I couldn't quite make out.

I sidled a little closer and cocked my head to read what was written on it.

"Excuse me," the distinguished one said.

Feeling like a kid who had just been caught with a box of matches, I cleared my throat and stuck out my hand.

"Uh, Kent Best, University Daily. Glad to meet you."

"Tracy Jackson, Independence Bowl," he said as my jaw dropped a notch.

"Oh, really. (long pause) Guess you're here to have a look at Tech." Trying to act nonchalant at such times has never been my strong suit.

Jackson informed me that he was indeed on hand to check out the up-and-coming Raiders. Seems he was in attendance the week before when Tech popped the Razorbacks in the snout. Seems that he and his Independent-thinking cronies decided Tech was definite bowl material.

But just as I was gearing up to give him a rundown of the Raiders' strong points, I noticed Jackson surveying the tiny crowd filing out of Rice Stadium.

Crowd. He's obviously worried about the crowd. As I frantically tried to think of the right thing to say about Tech's fans, Mr. Independence spoke again.

"Nice group from Tech."

"Uh, oh yeah, they're great. A real never-say-die bunch."

Jackson asked what my name was again and said something about maybe seeing me later.

In a bowling alley somewhere in Lubbock, I could almost hear Bill laugh.

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — A lot of Texas tailbacks and linebackers will be in the training room this week rather than on the football field.

"We're hurting right now, and that's putting it mildly," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "I've never had to deal with anything like this."

Texas lost linebackers Lee Brockman with a dislocated shoulder and Brad Lucky with a dislocated elbow in a 21-14 loss to Arkansas on Saturday. Both will be out indefinitely and could miss the remainder of the season, Akers said.

Another linebacker, Tex Mercer, missed the game with viral pneumonia and was doubtful for Saturday's Southwest Conference game with Southern Methodist.

Starting linebackers Bobby Duncum and Britt Hager were lost earlier this season.

Texas' remaining linebackers are senior Mike January, and freshmen Duane Duncum, Bobby Rhodes, Kirk Jackson and David MacAdoo.

Tailbacks Eric Metcalf, Edwin Simmons and Charles Hunter are all doubtful this week.

Metcalf has a deep thigh bruise, Simmons has a sprained ankle, and Hunter has a pulled groin.

"Metcalf is still on crutches," Akers said.

Fullbacks Anthony Byerly and Darryl Taylor and wide receiver Kevin Nelson will work at tailback this week.

Akers said there will also be some crash training at tailback.

Tribble trial date set in Bias case

By The Associated Press

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. — A Prince George's County circuit judge Monday dismissed charges against two men and scheduled trial for a third in connection with the cocaine-induced death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias.

Judge James Rea, at the request of state attorney Arthur Marshall, dismissed possession of cocaine and obstruction of justice charges against David Gregg and Terry Long, who were with Bias when he died of cocaine intoxication June 19.

But the judge refused to dismiss the case against Brian Lee Tribble, who also was with Bias the morning he collapsed in a college dormitory room. The judge set Nov. 17 as the trial date for Tribble.

Tribble is accused of supplying Bias with the cocaine that killed him and is charged with possession of cocaine, possession with intent to distribute cocaine, distribution of cocaine and possession of PCP.

At a pretrial hearing, the prosecutor said Long and Gregg, former teammates of Bias, had "promised to continue to cooperate with the state and assist us in our investigation."

After the charges against Long and Gregg were dropped, Tribble's attorney, Thomas Morrow, asked for dismissal of charges against his client because of "unfair, prejudicial publicity" generated by Marshall, who Morrow claimed almost daily talked to reporters about the grand jury proceedings.

Rea denied the motion, saying, "Even if there was some judicial prosecutorial abuse, it is not enough to reach a level that an indictment should be dropped."

Long and Gregg are expected to testify in Tribble's trial, but both Marshall and their lawyer, Alan Goldstein, denied that charges were dropped against them as part of a plea bargain.

After the hearing, Goldstein said there had been "no agreement," even though he and his clients had a long discussion with Marshall last Thursday.

Lacrosse team wins twice in Colorado

The Texas Tech lacrosse team opened its 1986-87 campaign Saturday at the Air Force Academy Lacrosse Invitational in Colorado Springs, Colo., winning the first and third games of the day to gain a 2-1 season record.

The Air Force "White" squad won the 15-team, one-day tournament that featured mostly NCAA Division III and club teams, including squads from Brigham Young, Wyoming, New Mexico, Colorado and Colorado State. Air Force "Blue" was the runner-up.

Tech began the season with a 7-6 victory over the University of Denver, a Division III team. The Denver Stickers, a city club team, gave Tech its first loss since the spring of '85 with a 7-6 double-overtime effort. The Raiders rebounded by defeating a club team from Vail, Colo., 13-5.

Team spokesman Phil Perez said the Raiders were unable to play as many college teams as they had hoped.

Tech plays again Saturday in a "Lacrosse Weekend" at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. Games will be played all day, with Tech playing Sam Houston in the featured match.

Cowboys lacked luster in win over Eagles

By The Associated Press

IRVING — Although the Dallas Cowboys had 10 quarterback sacks in a 17-14 NFL victory over the Philadelphia Eagles Sunday, they second-guessed the way they won.

"It wasn't a very pretty game for us," said Dallas Cowboys' Coach Tom Landry.

The Cowboys marched to a touchdown the first time they had the ball, then struggled the rest of the way.

"I always hate to see us move down the field precisely as we did for the first touchdown because it usually means you don't do anything the rest of the day," Landry said.

The Cowboys gave up 217 yards rushing to the Eagles but managed to hang on to improve their record to 5-2.

Eagles' quarterback Randall Cunningham wore out the Dallas defensive line with his scrambles.

"Randall can be a problem," Landry said. "He's quick and agile. Give him a lot of credit for keeping them in the game."

The brightest star for the Cowboys was placekicker Rafael Septien who kicked the 38-yard game-winner with two seconds left.

Septien's job was in jeopardy in summer camp after the Cowboys drafted Max Zendejas in the fourth round. But Septien outkicked Zendejas during the preseason to secure his job.

"I'm glad, in a way, things happened this way and this was a reminder to them that I'm still here," Septien said. "And, that I can still do the job." Septien had physical problems last season.

He has a birth defect along his spinal cord which occasionally causes a bone to slip out of place and pinch a nerve in his lower back, causing his right leg to go numb.

It happened last season at halftime of the Cowboys' 20-0 playoff loss to the Los Angeles Rams and Septien couldn't kick at all.

Septien has hit seven of eight field goal attempts this year and hasn't missed on his last 18 attempts from inside 40 yards.

Glanville vows changes coming after Bengal loss

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston Oiler Coach Jerry Glanville said Monday that it's time to start taking names of players who repeatedly make mistakes and replace them following Sunday's 31-28 loss to the Cincinnati Bengals.

"If we have a grade sheet on you at the end of each game and the same guy makes mistakes week after week, it's fair to assume we owe it to the other players to find someone else," Glanville said.

"Sooner or later, the responsibility has to fall on people to get their jobs done and carry out their assignments and that includes me."

The Oilers appeared ready to break their five-game losing string when linebacker Robert Lyles scooped up a Cincinnati fumble and ran 93 yards for a touchdown with 1:06 left in the game.

But the Bengals drove back downfield for the winning touchdown on a 21-yard run by James Brooks on a perfectly executed trap play.

"We had two people in position to make the tackle and they missed him," Glanville said. "To his credit, Brooks seems to play better with age.

He is their team right now."

The Oilers, 1-6 with six straight losses, now must prepare for Sunday's game in the Astrodome against the Los Angeles Raiders, who are on a four-game winning streak after Sunday's 30-28 victory over Miami.

"On the plus side, no one surrendered in a situation where you started to wonder what was going on," Glanville said.

Mets look to regroup as Series heads to Fenway

By The Associated Press

BOSTON — It's back to Plan B for the New York Mets. That's B — as in bats.

The Mets figured their pitching would carry them to a World Series championship over the Boston Red Sox, but it isn't working out that way.

After edging New York 1-0 in the first game, the Red Sox pounded out 18 hits for a 9-3 triumph in Game 2 at Shea Stadium Sunday night, and the Mets suddenly find themselves in a deep hole.

The next three games, if the Series goes that far, will be played in quaint, old Fenway Park where 18-hit games are not rare, with Game 3 scheduled for tonight.

"We've faced some pretty good pitching," Mets' pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre said Monday. "I think maybe we under-evaluated the Boston pitching staff. They have a fine club.

"I think maybe Bruce Hurst (the winner in Game 1) surprised us most; his command more than anything.

"He didn't make any mistakes. He was up and down. He changes speeds very well."

The Mets, the best-hitting club in the National League for average and runs during the regular season, went virtually silent during the NL playoffs (.189) and have remained dormant through two World Series games.

"I think our bats have to be the key now," Stottlemyre said. "Especially now that we're in their ballpark. If we get some runs, we'll be OK.

"I think it's not so much a matter of Bob Ojeda and Ron Darling (the Mets' pitchers in the third and fourth games) holding them down. We're on the road now, where we don't have last crack at them. I think that's important that we get on the board early.

"Hitting is contagious. It's not unusual when one guy gets hot that everybody gets hot, too."

Stottlemyre, Darling and Ojeda were the only Mets who showed up at the park Monday as Mets' Manager Davey Johnson gave his beleaguered club a day off.

"I think after the second game, we were in a little shock," Stottlemyre said. "The first night was anybody's game. A 1-0 game always is just one pitch away.
