Reagan picks No. 2 CIA man to succeed Casey

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Robert Gates, a CIA official who reportedly urged disclosure of secret arms sales to Iran before they were revealed, was picked by President Reagan Monday to replace the ailing William Casey as director of the spy agency.

The 73-year-old Casey, recuperating from surgery seven weeks ago for a brain tumor, was invited to become a counselor to the president when and if he can return to work.

Gates, 43, has been the No. 2 official at the CIA since April 1986 and has been running the agency in Casey's absence.

As director of central intelligence, Gates will be the chief executive officer of the CIA. He also will coordinate all intelligence agencies and assign their tasks through a separate "intelligence community staff."

The Senate Intelligence Committee scheduled a confirmation hearing for Gates for Feb. 17, and said the session would be open to the public.

A 20-year veteran of service in the CIA and the White House National Security Council as a Soviet affairs expert, Gates is widely respected on Capitol Hill and likely will not have difficulty winning Senate confirmation.

However, he is certain to be grilled about the CIA's role in the secret sale of arms to Iran and the diversion of profits to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels. A report by the Senate Intelligence Committee said Casey, in testimony about the affair late last year, "was general in nature" and left many questions unanswered.

"I particularly look forward to working with Robert Gates, who is a professional in this field and for whom I have high regard," said Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Casey submitted his resignation to Reagan in a two-sentence letter dated last Thursday. "It has been a great honor serving you," it said. In a return letter Monday, the president credited Casey with helping restore pride and morale to the nation's intelligence services. "America has been blessed to have the service and the spirit of Bill Casey," he wrote.

A longtime friend of the president, Casey became director of the CIA in 1981 after managing Reagan's White House campaign.

He suffered a seizure last Dec. 15 — a day before he was to appear before the Senate Intelligence Committee — and underwent surgery three days later for removal of a cancerous tumor.

According to an associate, Casey's last words before being wheeled into surgery were, "I hope Dave Durenberger doesn't think I'm copping out on him." Durenberger, a Minnesota Republican, was the chairman of the Intelligence Committee at the time.

The committee's report, released last week, said a CIA analyst went to Gates last Oct. 1 and said he was concerned that money from the secret arms sale to Iran were being diverted to Central America.

"Gates was surprised and disturbed and told the analyst to see Casey," the report said. It quoted the analyst as saying he and Gates did not discuss whether or not a diversion would be illegal.

Gates on Oct. 15 directed the CIA's general counsel to review all aspects of the Iran deal to make sure nothing was being done that was illegal. The counsel later reported there was nothing amiss from the CIA standpoint.

According to Gates' testimony in the report, he and Casey urged then-national security adviser John Poindexter to have Reagan make the Iran initiative public, rather than have it leak out "in dribs and drabs." At that time, they warned there might have been some diversion of funds, the report said.

Casey testified to the Senate Intelligence Committee on Nov. 21 but did not mention the possibility of funds being diverted.

Tech regent candidates voice uncertainty

By TREY BARKER
News Staff Writer

Several people named as prospective candidates to fill three vacant seats on the Texas Tech Board of Regents voiced uncertainty Monday about their chances of securing a gubernatorial appointment.

Of the nine members on the Board of Regents at Tech, three have completed their six-year terms. Regents Rex Fuller and John Birdwell of Lubbock and Jean Kahle of Fort Worth ended their terms Saturday.

Gov. Bill Clements' appointments secretary James Huffhines said the list of possible candidates for the positions is long and includes several qualified candidates.

"We have a lot of serious candidates that warrant a close looking-at," he said.

A spokesman for Clements' appointments division said Monday that implementation of an office automation system will delay the release of a complete list of candidates until sometime next week.

A list of possible candidates for the Tech board was published in Sunday's Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, and several of the candidates were contacted by The University Daily Monday.

Former congressman and state legislator Kent Hance of Lubbock said Clements has asked to meet with him in Austin later this month to discuss an appointment to either the Tech Board of Regents or the Texas College and University System Coordinating Board.

Hance said he would prefer an appointment to the Coordinating Board. He said he feels he could accomplish more for Tech in that capacity.

Lubbock resident Callie Chalk, one of the reported candidates, said she has not campaigned for the position.

"I have not talked to Mr. Huffhines or Gov. Clements, so I do not know where I stand," she said.

Bert Nelson, a Dallas investor and former Lubbock resident, said he has expressed interest to Clements about an appointment to the Tech governing board.

Nelson, a neighbor of Clements in Dallas, worked on the governor's campaigns in 1978 and 1982 but said his lack of politically oriented work in recent years probably will prevent him from obtaining the Tech appointment.

Lubbock resident Marjorie Kastman said she did not know her name was on a list of prospective appointments to the board. Kastman, who serves as chairman of the Board of City Development in Lubbock, said she would not have time for the job if appointed.

Candidate Robert Brown, a Throckmorton rancher, said his local legislator asked him to submit his resume for the position.

"Yes, I knew my name was on the list," Brown said. "I would enjoy working for Texas Tech. I have had two children graduate from Tech, one is about to and another is on the way."

Brown worked for Clements' campaign in 1982 and 1986.

Huffhines said while the list includes many candidates with with excellent qualifications, it is possible that any one of the regents whose term has expired could be re-appointed.

Huffhines said that while political loyalty is important, that is only one of the considerations for gubernatorial appointments.

"Obviously, Gov. Clements will appoint people who are receptive to his goals, and if this means someone who has worked on his campaign, then that is fine," Huffhines said. "But it's not the final point."

In a phone interview Monday, Huffhines declined comment on who the front-runners are in the regents race.

"We have a policy of not saying anything until the appointments are made public," he said.

Huffhines said appointments usually take 30 to 60 days but that he expects the three Tech appointments to be made public soon.

Kidnappers threaten to kill U.S. hostages

By The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Pro-Iranian kidnappers said Monday they will kill Americans Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland, who have been hostages since 1985, if the United States makes a military attack on Lebanon.

Lebanon's justice minister said the kidnappers had "arrested" Terry Waite. The Church of England envoy left his Beirut hotel Jan. 20 to negotiate for the freedom of the two Americans and other foreign captives in Lebanon.

Another group made the same threat last week against three American teachers and an Indian faculty member taken from Beirut University College on June 24. The abductors have said since that they will kill the four men unless Israel releases 400 prisoners by midnight Saturday.

The official press of Syria, which supports pro-Iranian groups, has accused the United States of planning a military attack on Lebanon after 11 foreigners were kidnapped in 12 days. U.S. naval forces in the Mediterranean have been strengthened.

A typewritten statement in Arabic delivered to the office of a Western news agency Monday made the death threat against Anderson and Sutherland in the name of the Shiite Moslem group Islamic Jihad. Accompanying it was a photograph of Anderson, 39, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press.

"Any military attempt against the Moslems in the region, particularly in Lebanon, will result in the death of the captives and America's interests in the region," the statement said. "Our answer will be cruel. We shall have no mercy."

The black-and-white photograph showed Anderson with a moustache, wearing a dark striped shirt. He was looking at the camera and was not wearing his glasses.

It showed a cut on his face, apparently from shaving, that has appeared in three other pictures of him released in the past three months.

Islamic Jihad generally accompanies its statements with a photo of a captive as evidence of authenticity.

Anderson was seized March 16, 1985, in Moslem west Beirut. Sutherland, the 55-year-old acting dean of agriculture of American University of Beirut, was kidnapped June 9 of that year.

Islamic Jihad, which means Islamic Holy War, also claims to hold at least three Frenchmen, but Monday's statement did not mention them or France.

It said the United States, "the great Satan," was planning satanic actions against Lebanon.

Islamic Jihad renewed its demand for release of 17 comrades imprisoned in Kuwait for the 1983 bombings of the U.S. and French embassies there. The Persian Gulf emirate's government has refused to free them.

The group has freed three Americans in 16 months: the Rev. Benjamin Weir, a Presbyterian minister; the Rev. Martin Lawrence Jenco, a Roman Catholic priest; and David Jacobsen, director of the American University Hospital.

Its statement did not mention Waite, the personal envoy of Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie.

Justice Minister Nabih Berri, who also leads the Moslem Shiite militia Amal, told journalists in Damascus, Syria, that Waite had been "arrested, but not kidnapped."

LPD arrests three at club, reports attempted suicide

By PATRICIA REYES
News Staff Writer

The Lubbock Police Department released reports Monday involving the arrests during the weekend of three Texas Tech students at La Lizard Lounge and an unrelated suicide attempt Sunday by a Tech student.

According to LPD reports, a 23-year-old sophomore architectural design major, a 23-year-old senior political science major and a 19-year-old freshman arts and sciences undecided major were arrested at 1 a.m. Sunday. Police said the students were arrested for serving alcohol without a license at La Lizard Lounge, located last weekend at the corner of Broadway and Avenue H. The cult dance concept club operates in different locations throughout the city.

LPD reports indicate officers received information that alcoholic beverages were being sold at La Lizard Lounge. According to police reports, the business does not have a liquor license for the possession or sale of alcoholic beverages.

Arresting officer Bill Bates said people were entering the business empty-handed and leaving carrying cans of beer.

"An undercover officer was allowed into the premises without any special invitation," Bates said.

Upon entering the club, the officer reportedly bought a beer, Bates said. After receiving a signal, several officers and Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission agents entered the establishment, police reports said.

LPD reports indicated one of the students arrested became loud and attempted to incite a riot.

Police reports indicated all the beverages seized were turned over to a TABC agent after the arrests were made.

LPD reports indicated about 135 patrons were asked to leave the building and that the establishment was closed as a result of the arrests.

In another incident, LPD reported an attempted overdose by a Tech senior about 3:15 a.m. Sunday.

Officers responding to a radio call concerning a possible suicide in progress found the 22-year-old woman in her room, conscious and crying, police said. The young woman refused to talk with the officers, reports indicated.

After an ambulance arrived at the scene, the young woman reportedly told medical attendants she had taken about 30 extra-strength Excedrin and 5 Desyrel tablets.

The woman was transported to Lubbock General Hospital, where she was treated and released, police said.

The young woman is the third Tech student known to have attempted suicide in the past two weeks.

For DWI offenders

House to look at breath test bill

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — A state lawmaker Monday introduced a bill that would allow judges to require convicted drunk drivers to take a breath test each time they try to start their autos.

Rep. Betty Denton, D-Waco, said she believes such a device — now being used in four states — could reduce the number of repeat offenders.

"I think the carnage on our highways has cost us untold millions of dollars in property damage ... and a dollar amount really can't be put on the loss of human lives and the loss to family members," Denton said.

Denton said her bill would give judges the option of requiring that the breath-analyzing device be installed in the cars of convicted drunk drivers as a condition of probation.

The device is connected to the auto's ignition. Before the car is started, the driver must breathe into the device to prove sobriety. The probationer also must enter a complicated code into the machine before it can be started, which officials said helps prevent a third party from starting the car for a drunk.

"The use of this ignition interlock system ... can be used by judges as a sentencing alternative," Denton said.

"I think it is a very innovative measure. It's aimed at getting the drunk driver off the road. It's a protection for the public against the drunk driver and a protection for the drunk driver himself," she said.

She noted that studies repeatedly have shown drinking to be a significant factor in traffic accidents. More than 100,000 Texans were convicted of drunk driving in each of the past two years, she said.

However, overcrowded state prisons and jammed county jails make it impractical to imprison every drunk driver, she said.

"It's easy to say lock them up. But ... our prisons are at capacity and our county jails are feeling the same pressures. We have to look at realistic alternatives," Ms. Denton said.

Nancy Nogg, an official of Guardian Interlock Systems Inc., a Colorado-based manufacturer of the devices, said Maryland, Michigan, Ohio and Colorado currently use the system.

Denton said the bill would allow a convicted drunk driver to only get behind the wheel of a car equipped with the breath analyzer device.

Failing to drive the equipped vehicle or tampering with the device would be a misdemeanor, she said.

Parliament to study Israeli role in U.S.-Iran deal

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — A parliamentary committee announced Monday it will conduct hearings on whether Israel promoted American arms sales to Iran and had a role in diverting profits to rebels in Nicaragua.

Testimony in a 64-page U.S. Senate report indicated Israel initiated the U.S. arms sales to Iran and played a role in funneling profits to the Contras fighting the Nicaraguan government.

The Israeli government on Sunday denied such findings.

Abba Eban, chairman of the Knesset's Defense and Foreign Affairs Committee, said he wrote a letter to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir asking that the government provide a written explanation of its role in the arms scandal.

"Israel's official statements have only been reactions and do not give a positive, contiguous account of Israel's actions and the principles that guided it," Eban said in a statement distributed to reporters.

Eban said he asked for a "detailed document that will explain the government's actions and rationale on the subject of (selling) weapons to Iran."

Committee member Simcha Dinitz told The Associated Press that a six-member subcommittee on intelligence services would begin closed-door sessions today by questioning two Israeli officials named in the Senate report.

He identified them as Amiram Nir, the prime minister's adviser on anti-terrorism, and David Kimche, former director-general of the Foreign Ministry. They acted as liaison to Washington in the arms deals.

The Senate Intelligence Committee report published Friday listed Nir and Kimche as initiators of some of the sales. The report said Nir and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin suggested diverting funds from the sales to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Nir has made no public comment since the arms scandal broke in November. Kimche denied he proposed arms dealings with Iran, and Rabin rejected allegations that he had authorized shipments of arms to Contra rebels.

"Not only did I not propose, neither I nor any authorized Israeli, proposed that Israel help the Contras directly in any way," Rabin said on Israel Army Radio on Sunday.

Aquino constitution voted in by Filipinos

By The Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino won a decisive victory Monday as Filipinos overwhelmingly endorsed her proposed constitution and another 5½ years of her leadership, unofficial returns showed.

Filipinos backed the draft charter by a 4-to-1 margin nationwide, according to the unofficial count by the private National Movement for Free Elections. Only in the northern Luzon Island stronghold of former President Ferdinand Marcos did a majority of voters appear to have rejected the proposal.

Final, official returns from the Commission on Elections were not expected before next week.

The private vote-count showed an approval margin of more than 80 percent — 5,374,617 to 1,294,656 — with 27 percent of the 86,703 precincts reporting nationwide.

Partial, unofficial returns from seven northern Luzon provinces showed about 54 percent in the region were opposed to Aquino's proposal. Opposition also was strong in Manila area precincts at military installations.

Mutinous soldiers linked to Marcos attempted a revolt last week but were put down by government troops. Some military officials, including one of the coup leaders, have criticized the government's peace overtures to end the 18-year-old Communist insurgency.

Voters were asked to state "yes" or "no" on whether they supported ratification of the 20,000-word draft, which sharply reduces the power of the president, restores a bicameral legislature, bans the military from political activity except voting and expands human rights guarantees.

The charter, completed in October by a 48-member commission appointed by Aquino, also guarantees her a six-year term.

The plebiscite marked the first time Aquino turned to the electorate for an endorsement of her 11-month-old leadership, and her supporters described the balloting as a "vote of confidence."

Former Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, who campaigned against ratification, claimed Aquino used the plebiscite to run for reelection uncontested.

Leftists, including labor groups and the Communist Party, denounced the charter as "pro-imperialist" and said it did not go far enough in changing Philippine society.

NEWS BRIEFS

Oil company offers cash to investors

DALLAS (AP) — On the defensive from a takeover bid led by oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr., Diamond Shamrock made a $340 million cash counteroffer to its shareholders Monday and announced plans to spin off its refining unit into a separate public company.

In addition, William Bricker, chairman and chief executive officer since 1976, said he would retire once the spinoff is complete in about 90 days.

But Bricker said his retirement and the company's restructuring plan were unrelated to Pickens' two attempts to gain control of the Dallas-based oil company.

Methodist leaders seek control of SMU

DALLAS (AP) — United Methodist Church leaders want to take a more active role in governing Southern Methodist University following allegations of continued wrongdoing in the school's athletic program.

Denomination leaders in recent weeks have shifted from a traditional hands-off policy, said church representatives, faculty members and administrators.

"If things are going well, there's a tendency to say, 'Fine, let's not pay too much attention,'" said McFerrin Stowe, SMU bishop in residence.

Lawyer urges that father get 'Baby M'

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The court-appointed attorney for "Baby M" urged a judge Monday to grant custody of the infant girl to her biological father and deny visitation rights to the surrogate mother who gave birth to her.

The surprise recommendation came during the emotion-packed opening of the second phase of the trial that will test for the first time the legality of surrogate parenting.

The custody phase of the trial began with William Stern testifying that the baby he fathered is "the most important person in my life" and the lawyer for the surrogate mother contending that she can provide the most loving home.

Senate committee OKs Texas border proposal

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — A Senate committee approved a proposal Monday to create a commission to stop the "money drain" from the state treasury to the Texas-Mexico border region.

The proposed Border Development Commission would coordinate economic efforts along the 1,250-mile border, which a witness said has perhaps the highest unemployment rates in the United States.

State Sen. Hector Uribe's bill was sent to the full Senate on an 8-2 vote of the Economic Development Committee after a 15-minute hearing.

Before approval of the measure, Uribe removed a proposed six-year appropriation but said, "We are hoping the (Senate) Finance Committee will be able to help us."

Supporters estimate the proposed agency would need $800,000 in state funds over the next two years.

Another amendment would give the governor the authority to appoint all nine members rather than dividing that authority among the governor, lieutenant governor and House speaker. Six of the commission members would be border residents.

Uribe, D-Brownsville, said a task force that studied the border economy "realized that the border is a money drain on the rest of the state, that for every dollar we collect on the border the state pays two in tax revenues."

Former Harlingen Mayor Randy Whittington testified that 1983-84 statistics showed that more than $1 billion was being spent on the border region per year than was being collected in that region.

"What that means to each of you gentlemen and the districts you represent is that the people you represent have been subsidizing the border year-in and year-out to the tune of $1 billion or better, and I assume that gap is getting larger and not smaller," Whittington told the committee.

He said unemployment rates in some border counties are as high as 50 percent, and the border also has the lowest per capita income in Texas, as well as one of the fastest growing and most illiterate populations.

"We can no longer afford to let the border be the drain on the state of Texas and the budget that it has been for the last 20 or 30 years. Your constituents should not have to foot the bill for the lack of development and lack of attention to the border," Whittington said.

He also acknowledged there would probably be moves to eliminate agencies rather than to create them.

Tech archive serves as regional information resource

By CINDY PANDOLFO
News Staff Writer

Students who must collect data for term papers perhaps could take advantage of the specialized collection of research material available at the Texas Tech Southwest Collection.

The Southwest Collection, located on the second floor of the math building, is a nationally recognized historical center devoted to perpetuating and preserving West Texas heritage, said David Murrah, director of the collection.

Murrah said the collection's importance as a regional archival repository is a fact not widely appreciated because most people do not understand the mission of the center, which is to collect anything and everything associated with the American Southwest.

The material housed in the collection provides endless research possibilities, whether the subject involves the evolution of literature, the history of political science or social and cultural trends preserved in the diaries of southwestern settlers and pioneers.

The Southwest Collection was formally established in September 1955, but development of the concept for the regional archive began as early as 1925, when Texas Technological College was established. William Curry Holden, former Tech dean of arts and sciences, envisioned Tech as a living monument to the existence of the West Texas self-consciousness and the Southwest Collection as the logical agency for preserving the heritage of West Texas.

The center emerged with national prominence through the effort of supporters who undertook the task of convincing officials of the importance of establishing a center devoted to collecting and preserving the history and culture of the American Southwest. Murrah said that even today, that mission still is not understood.

"We are one of the largest regional research centers of our kind in the United States," Murrah explained. "That is a fact that is not appreciated, because our special mission is not tangible to the public."
The center receives more than 6,000 inquiries annually. Murrah said visitors to the Southwest Collection have come from 21 states and two foreign countries.

"Any serious researcher would be short-sighted if they failed to come to the Southwest Collection," Murrah said.

In one of the more noteworthy contributions to research, the Southwest Collection was a site where author James Michener did much of his research for his number one best-selling novel "Texas."

The Southwest Collection consists of papers and records of individuals, families, companies and organizations which provide the history of the development of the American Southwest. The collection contains more than 16 million items, most of which were donated to the university.

"In the days of old, we had to hustle for material," Murrah said.

Leadership academy expands conference agenda

By JILL JOHNSON
News Staff Writer

The Texas Tech Leadership Academy (TLA), a two-day leadership workshop for students, is scheduled for Friday and Saturday in the University Center.

The TLA, previously known as the All University Leadership Conference, is expected to draw about 300 participants due to additions to the workshop, said Eric Morse, chairman of the event.

For the first time, other colleges in the surrounding area have been invited to attend the workshop. In addition, students will receive diplomas upon completion of the program, Morse said.

Students must register before attending any lectures or workshops and are encouraged to go to as many as possible, Morse said. Several courses are scheduled for the same time blocks, enabling students to choose the workshop that will prove most beneficial to them or the organization they are representing.

Among the special guests slated to lecture are Rick Miller of Designs for Development, who will focus on achievement, productivity and leadership, and T.J. Schmitz, executive vice president and chief executive officer of Tau Kappa Epsilon International fraternity, who will lecture on hazing and positive motivation.

Mary Barbee, assistant dean of students at the University of New Mexico, will speak on parliamentary law and career concerns for women, and Kent Sampson, assistant director of residential life at Oklahoma State University, will lecture on leadership development and personnel evaluations.

"This year we have some of the best speakers in conference history," Morse said.

Various community speakers will conduct workshops throughout the academy, including Andy Hurst of the Wesley Foundation, Abner Euresti and Karin McKay of KCBT-TV, Channel 11, Brenda Arkell of the University Police Department and numerous Tech professors speaking on varying topics.

Key SWC clash pits Tech, Rice

By CHRIS HOOTEN
Sports Staff Writer

Much like the Southwest Conference men's basketball race, the women's conference struggle seems to be for second place instead of first.

The Lady Longhorns of Texas (8-0 in SWC and 18-1 overall) are far ahead of the pack that is battling for second, which includes Texas Tech in fifth with a 5-4 league record.

The Raiders, 12-8 overall, can take another step toward catching Houston and Arkansas (tied for second at 6-3) with a win at 7 p.m. today when they visit the Rice Owls, who are in fourth place with a conference record of 5-3, 12-6 overall.

Tech is coming off a big 79-70 double overtime win over Houston Saturday at Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Guard Lisa Logsdon led the way for the Raiders scoring 17 points, while grabbing nine rebounds and adding seven assists.

"I was frustrated we went into overtime with them because I thought we should have won in regulation," Tech Coach Marsha Sharp said. "We made a couple of mistakes at the end (of regulation) that put us in a difficult situation, but I thought we were still OK."

With 12 seconds remaining in regulation, Tech held a 63-61 lead following a 10-foot jumper by forward Darla Isaacks. But Logsdon fouled Houston forward DeJuena Carter with 12 ticks on the clock, and Carter coolly buried both ends of the one-and-one to make the score 63-63.

In the first overtime, Carter scored all six of the Cougars' points, including a layup with 55 seconds remaining to bring the Coogs back from four-point deficits twice.

The Raiders limited Carter and the Coogs to one point in the second overtime while scoring two buckets and connecting on six free throws to make the final score 79-70.

Tech received balanced scoring from everyone who played. In addition to Logsdon's 17, Isaacks scored 16 adding six rebounds and six assists.

"That's the best Isaacks has played since she's been here," Sharp said. "She rebounded well and defended the positions she needed to. Offensively, she was great."

Julia Koncak scored 10 points and grabbed nine rebounds. Reserve forward Reena Lynch added 11 points, while guard Vicky McKenzie and reserve post Stacey Siebert canned eight each.

While Tech was enjoying an important victory over Houston, Rice was taking a 96-63 pounding from the Lady Horns.

The Owls are led by 6-1 senior forward Holly Jones, who is averaging 17.8 points per game and 8.4 rebounds an outing. In the Raiders' first meeting with the Owls — a 65-55 Rice win Jan. 7 in the Coliseum — Jones scored nine points and added four boards.

Former Lubbock Monterey star Angie Phea, a 5-7 senior guard, was the Owls' leading scorer, pouring in 12 points while adding five rebounds and four assists. Phea is averaging 8.8 points per game for the year.

At the other guard spot for the Owls is 5-7 senior Dede Brantley. Brantley scored nine and dished a game-high nine assists against the Raiders in the first meeting.

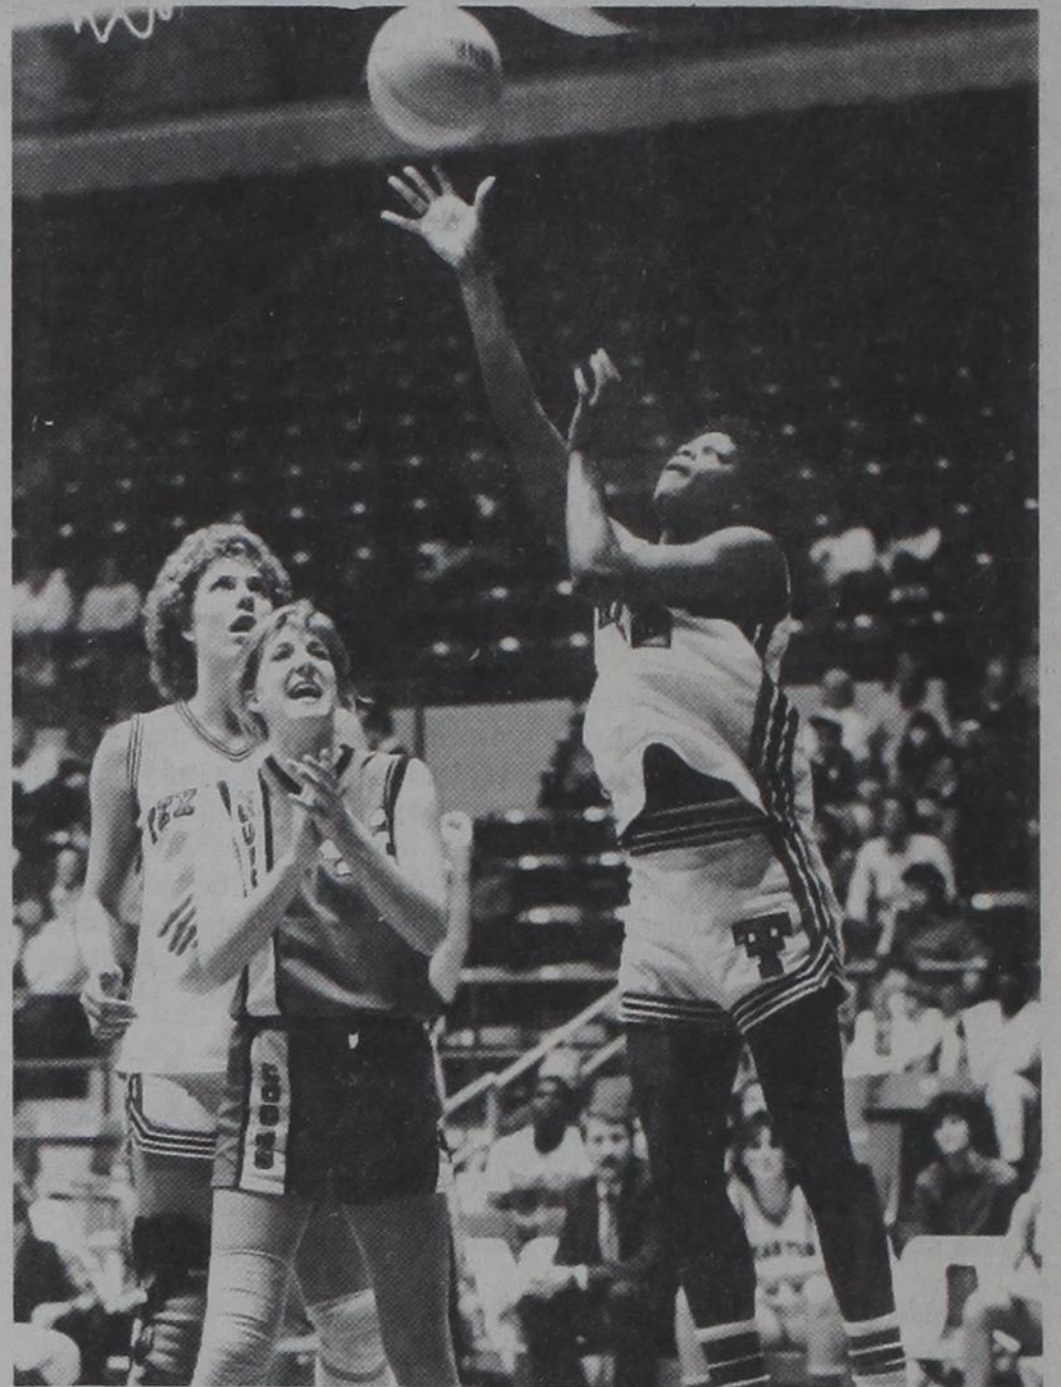

Joining Jones at the other forward position is 5-6 junior Karen Sowada, who owns 6.1 and 4.3 norms.

Six-3 junior Edith Adams holds down the post position for Rice, scoring 8.5 per game while pulling 4.5 rebounds.

Probable starters for the Raiders will be Logsdon (15.5 points per game, 3.1 rebounds) and McKenzie at the guard spots.

The forward positions will be filled by Isaacks (5.5 points and 3.4 rebounds) and Debby Jones (5.2 and 5.4).

Koncak (13.5 points per game, 7.3 rebounds per game) continues to play the post, while receiving backup help from Stacey Siebert, who is averaging 6.6 points and 3.4 rebounds and Reena Lynch, who is contributing norms of 13.2 and 7.1.

For Tech, Tanco means t'anks for overtime win

Kent Best
Sports Editor

anybody about his team's sixth conference win, simply saw it as Tanco doing what he does best: making the tough call.

And what else can be said about an official who had the presence of mind to mentally double-pump in front of 8,000 rebellious basketball fans at the Coliseum before making the correct decision?

That's right, Pat. The correct decision. And if you've had a chance to review film of the game, by now you too must know that the man you called gutless not only made the correct call but had the good sense to contemplate his decision before making a wrong one.

It could have gone the other way, of course. Tanco could have been on Foster's thank-you list this week and Myers might have been bemoaning the sorry state of affairs among SWC officials if the call had gone the other way.

Tanco knows that, as do all the other men and women who pull on the striped shirts and lace up the black shoes that are the uniform of martyrs. Always the heavy, all sports officials, but particularly those who work among the hardwood trees, accept the inevitable scorn.

They travel from city to city, squeezing in games between the eight-hour shifts of regular jobs, and become the people all the sports world loves to hate. All for the love of the game.

When Tanco brought down the house Saturday night with a simple two-finger gesture, he was at the edge of basketball's purgatory — a dimension seemingly tailor-made for those of the striped-persuasion.

So he simply made the correct decision.

Despite his glowing comments, Gerald Myers may not be ready to invite Mike Tanco to dinner. He may even find it necessary to quietly haggle with Tanco over a call in the near future.

But Myers, as well as Foster, will likely always remember that gut-wrenching call in Lubbock. And the man who made it.

An open letter to Southwest Conference basketball official Mike Tanco:

Dear Mike,

Thanks for eating your carrots when you were a kid. Thanks for the memories, and Mike, thanks for that night in Lubbock.

Your pal, Gerald.

Texas Tech basketball coach Gerald Myers is not known for indiscriminately doling out praise to basketball officials. In fact, Myers has found himself crosswise with a zebra more often than not.

But after Tech's 56-55 OT win over Houston Saturday night, the normally sardonic Myers was practically bubbly in his praise of Mike (give 'em a T) Tanco.

Myers bubbly? Well, sort of bubbly.

"I think Mike's one of the better officials," Myers said Monday afternoon. "He makes the tough calls. He's one guy that will do it. He's a good official."

And Tanco undoubtedly got better in Myers' estimation after declaring good Sean Gay's game-winning layin at the buzzer. A man better known for icy stares and quick technicals than post-game pats on the back, Tanco was lucky to get off the Coliseum floor Saturday night without somebody giving him the key to the city.

Or a black eye. It all depended on who was dishin' out the compliments.

"It was a no-gut call," first-year Houston coach Pat Foster said immediately after confronting Tanco at midcourt. "He started to wave it off. I don't know why he didn't. You'll have to ask him."

Myers, who had no desire to ask

Raiders hit road for Rice, Hogs

By DON WILLIAMS
Associate Sports Editor

The Texas Tech Red Raiders and Rice Owls are two teams going in opposite directions.

The Raiders opened the second half of Southwest Conference basketball play Saturday with a critical overtime victory over Houston. The 56-55 win over the Cougars propelled Tech into a second-place tie in the SWC along with Baylor, which had been upset earlier Saturday by SMU.

Rice, in at least some turmoil after the resignation of head coach Tommy Suits Friday, dropped an equally crucial game — for the Owls — a 70-69 loss to Texas. Crucial because if the Owls are to pull themselves up by their bootstraps and salvage a bid in the SWC postseason tournament, the seventh-place Longhorns would appear to be a team they needed badly to beat.

The tournament has spots for only eight of the nine SWC teams.

Rice now stands at 1-8 in conference play, a full game back of eighth-place SMU.

Tech sits at a comfortable 6-3, well behind unbeaten TCU, but that record could — and should — look much nicer if the Raiders take care of their business on an upcoming two-game road trip that opens with a clash with the Owls on Wednesday night in Houston.

The Raiders conclude the road swing Saturday against Arkansas, a team Tech smoked, 95-73, during the first round of SWC play in Lubbock.

All of which makes Tech Coach Gerald Myers not the least bit complacent.

"Out here, Rice did not play that well, and we played one of our better games," Myers said Monday of Tech's earlier 65-47 win. "But when you go back and play that second game, the point differential doesn't make any difference from the first time around. That Houston game's a good example of that."

Myers was referring to the Raiders' 68-45 loss to the Cougars in the conference opener, a setback Tech avenged Saturday when Sean Gay canned a layup at the buzzer for the game-winning, albeit controversial, points.

In the first Tech-Rice meeting, the Raiders ran out to a 25-5 lead in the opening minutes and never were threatened, but Myers said he does not anticipate a similar runaway when the two teams square off Wednesday. Last season, the Raiders needed a game-winning shot in the final seconds by Tony Benford to turn back the Owls in Houston.

Myers said he was impressed with the intensity of both Rice and Texas despite their low SWC standing.

"Rice played a great game against Texas," he said. "They came out and played with a lot of enthusiasm, a very aggressive defense, and they really worked hard in that game."

Rice also has sophomore starting guard Mike Cooper back in action. Cooper, who averages 7.3 points per game and scored nine against the Longhorns, missed the first-round meeting with Tech after suffering a sprained ankle the day before.

"That helped us defend them a lot more, because he's an excellent ballhandler," Myers said.

Tech also will be "getting back" a key player for Wednesday, although not from injury.

Myers indicated that starting forward Dwayne Chism would return to the lineup after Chism did a Myers-imposed disappearing act against Houston. The 6-7 senior was yanked seven minutes into the game and saw the rest of his minutes absorbed by sophomores Wes Lowe and Bryan Barriere.

Myers was not satisfied with Chism's defensive work on the Cougars' Greg Anderson, who scored 10 points in the first eight minutes en route to a 23-point evening.

"He (Chism) will be back. He'll be back if he works hard enough," Myers said. "I just thought that he was not doing a good job, and those other guys (Wes Lowe and Bryan Barriere), when they got in there, did a better job."

The Raiders' coach had his view obstructed on Gay's game-winning shot Saturday and said he did not even know which Raider had scored the bucket.

"I didn't know who made the shot till I got in the dressing room," he said. "I couldn't see it. I just knew Wendell (Owens) went in there and passed it off. I thought it was Greg Crowe."

North Carolina loss opens No. 1 door for UNLV

By The Associated Press

Nevada-Las Vegas, which had been No. 1 for six weeks earlier in the season, returned to the top of The Associated Press' college basketball poll Monday after a two-week hiatus.

The Runnin' Rebels, 21-1, received 48 first-place votes and 1,243 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters, easily out-distancing Indiana, which jumped from fourth to second with 10 first-place votes and 1,181 points.

North Carolina, which had returned to the No. 1 spot for one week, was knocked from the perch after suffering a 60-58 defeat at Notre Dame. The Tar Heels, 18-2, received four first-place votes and 1,148 points.

Iowa, the only team other than Nevada-Las Vegas and North Carolina to be ranked No. 1 this season, fell from second to fourth with 999 points and one first-place vote.

Tha Hawkeyes, 19-2, lost at Michigan State Saturday, 100-92.

DePaul, the only Division I team besides Nevada-Las Vegas to have just one loss, jumped from eighth to fifth with 935 points, six more than Temple, which moved one spot from last week.

Purdue, Oklahoma, Alabama and Georgetown completed the Top 10.

Syracuse, 17-3, leads the Second Ten with 556 points followed by Clemson, Pittsburgh, Illinois, Texas Christian, Duke, Providence, Kansas, St. John's and Auburn.

Last week's Second Ten was Georgetown, Illinois, Duke, Clemson, St. John's, Texas Christian, Pittsburgh, Auburn, Florida and Kansas.

Providence enters the Top Twenty for the first time this season after posting two Big East Conference victories over ranked teams. The Friars, 16-3, beat Georgetown 82-79 and followed with a 93-81 overtime victory over St. John's.
