HOME TOWN

Talk

By R. C. THOMAS

The entire community extends congratulations to the young people who exhibited livestock at the Fort Worth Stock Show, and for the success they had in the showings. They were well received in Fort Worth, and reports coming back indicate they were a credit to this community.

Sometimes these groups of young people—the livestock exhibitors, band members, team members, etc. do more "chamber-of-commerce" good than all the planned and promoted projects and programs thought up by their elders.

Speaking of the livestock exhibitors, few of the rest of us really realize just what these boys and girls put into their projects; the hard work, the long and sometimes unusual hours they spend with their stock; the expense; the dreams—and their disappointments. Getting livestock ready for a show is not an 8 to 5 proposition and is not done overnight. It takes months of determined work and training, and it requires a lot of desire. They all know they can spend all these months, and put in a lot of work on their animals, only to receive merely a glance from the judges when they hit the show ring. But it's all in the game, and when they begin work on their projects they accept all the possibilities.

Why do they do it? Because of the challenges involved, for one thing. Young people welcome challenge of some sort or another, at all times—they thrive on it—it's a part of their lives. The projects are interesting, for another. The work they do and the things they learn in preparing an animal for the show ring are a cut apart from the routine of other school subjects, and even though they're always busy with other subjects, they find they have the time to devote to something which will enrich their lives, even in face of the probability that many of them will never again be directly connected with the livestock industry again, as they leave school and go on to other things. The self-control and discipline they learn is another reason, for young people are as a rule inherently in search of stabilization, whether the rest of us realize it or not. Regardless of the outcry of the many bemoaners that our young people are "going to the dogs," there's nothing really to worry about... so long as we help to provide the atmosphere and the opportunity for the opposite.

We read this some place: A long list of favorite phrases will have to be changed if the U. S. goes metric. Among them:

A miss is as good as 1.61 kilometers.

There isn't .06 gram of truth in it.

He felt 2.05 meters tall.

He was wearing a 37.86 liter hat.

First down and 9.14 meters to go.

Don't hide your light under 35.324 liters.

Hospital Fund Reaches $67,244 and Climbing

The special fund to purchase equipment for the new North Runnels Hospital, now under construction, has reached $67,244.50, Ted Meyer, chairman of the Hospital Equipment and Committee, announced this week, as he expressed hope that the fund would reach $80,000 by the time the hospital is completed in mid-summer.

At the present time, Meyer said, $61,096 has been received in cash, with $56,000 invested in Certificates of Deposit. Other pledges which have been made since the fund drive started are being met regularly, it was stated.

It is expected that the new hospital will be completed sometime in mid-summer, or shortly thereafter, and Meyer said the Fund Committee is aiming toward a total of between $75,000 and $80,000 by that time.

The committee has been accepting pledges and cash in memorials, with the latest report showing that $58.00 in memorials have been received since the last report.

Three Prison Inmates Will Speak At Schools, Lions Club Tuesday

Three prison inmates, convicted for violations of the dangerous drug and narcotics statutes of the Texas Penal Code, will speak to students of Winters High School, Junior High School, and at the noon meeting of the Winters Lions Club next Tuesday.

The program, called "Operation Kick-It," is sponsored by the Texas Department of Correction, in an effort to actively combat the growing drug abuse problem. The program, which sends convicted prison inmates on tours to relate their experiences, attempts to strike at the heart of the drug problem by demonstrating what can happen to the drug abuser, the Department of Correction said.

The program is a part of the continuing drug education program in the Winters Public Schools, said Mrs. Lee Harrison, school counselor, who made arrangements. She said that through this program, the inmates are enabled to speak directly to the public and present their simple message—"Illegal drugs are dangerous. Drug abuse is against the law and you can go to prison for it. We did."

The three prisoner-panels will speak at the high school at 10 a. m. Tuesday, at the Lions Club meeting at noon in the Winters Community Center, and to the junior high school students at 2 p. m.

The three volunteer prisoners are young, first offenders, age 17-21, and are accompanied on the tour by guards of the Texas Department of Correction.

Each inmate tells briefly about his home, life, how he began using drugs, and the events leading to his arrest.

"Operation Kick-It," which is funded by a grant from the Governor's Council on Criminal Justice, is similar in format to the highly successful "Operation Teenager," which was established by TDC in 1952. The appeal of "Operation Kick-It" is straightforward and sincere. As one inmate panelist summarizes it, "Down at the pen, it's the simple things that count. Don't ignore the simple life, because that is where it's at."

There will be no admission charge to students. Funds provided by the Winters Post of Veterans of Foreign Wars will help pay expenses of the program, Mrs. Harrison said.

$80 Million Is Collected By Cancer Society

Mrs. Earl Roach of Winters, chairman of North Runnels Cancer Society, has announced that the American Cancer Society nationally produced $80 million this past fiscal year with Texas providing more than $3 million of the amount.

"This money is one way of showing the emphasis now being placed on cancer control," Mrs. Roach said. "New programs are continuously emerging to help save over half the lives we are now losing from cancer."

According to the 1972 annual report of the American Cancer Society, Texas has four main program areas: Professional Education, Public Education, Service-Rehabilitation and Research.

Professional Education provides up-to-date information on cancer diagnosis and treatment to the medical and allied health professions.

Public Education helps save lives by increasing public awareness and knowledge about cancer prompting early diagnosis and treatment of the disease.

The Service-Rehabilitation program seeks to save lives, to ease the pain and lighten the many burdens the disease places on its victims and their families. This year, the average cost per patient service was $180. For example, "The Reach to Recovery" program for mastectomy patients served 595 patients. This is a new program which is now being organized in the Winters area, Mrs. Roach said.

Mrs. Roach concluded, "Fighting cancer is a responsibility and a challenge. Every man, woman and child in our community has a stake in the outcome and each has a responsibility to participate in it. The American Cancer Society provides the opportunity."

The Roman Empire was mighty for almost a thousand years, and ruled the known world for more than half those centuries, yet her independence, worldwide dominance and unprecedented liberties did not disappear in a day, a month, or a year, but slowly, gradually, furtively, little by little. The librarian, Mrs. Douglas Cole, reported to the board on the status of the library and on new book orders.

Monroe Dodd Completes 27 Years With City

Monroe Dodd, who has worked for the Winters City Water Department for 27 years, one month and 15 days, retired Wednesday, January 31, and at a retirement party in the City Hall was presented a plaque and an envelope containing what was said to be his "wages" for the first day he worked for the City—Dec. 1, 1945.

Mayor Wade White made the presentation of the plaque from the City of Winters, recognizing Dodd's service through the years.

Wilbur Waggoner, water superintendent, handed Dodd an envelope sent by T. A. Smith, a former mayor, which contained, he said, "wages" owed Dodd for the first day he worked. Smith was mayor at the time Dodd went to work for the water department, and Dodd had jokingly claimed that he had never been paid for that Saturday's work.

Employees of the Water Department and other departments of the City were present for the retirement party Wednesday, as well as several other people who had been associated with Dodd in the water department and in the volunteer fire department. Several members of the City Council, and former council members, also were present.

Dodd, a native of Ovalo, was reared in Winters, and is a veteran of World War II. He recently retired from the Volunteer Fire Department after more than 21 years. He has two daughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Dodd live at 208 North Melwood.

Housing Project Still Looking For Tenants

There still are several vacancies in the Winters Housing Authority low-rental housing project—16 units to be exact—according to Oliver Wood, executive secretary for the Authority.

There are two units in the section of the project designated for low-income families which could accommodate large families, he said. Vacant are two 4-bedroom units and two 3-bedroom units. This part of the project is ideally located near the school in the northeast section of town.

In the section designated to be rented to the elderly, there are twelve units available, Wood said. These would accommodate couples or single persons. Those persons who believe they may qualify for any of these rental units are advised to contact the Housing Authority at the office on the corner of North Grant and East Parsonage streets.

Youth Council Meeting Held Monday Night

At a meeting of the Winters Youth Council Monday night in the Humble Building, Miss Reba Washington, youth coordinator for Central Texas Opportunities, Inc., explained the program to the 34 young people present. Mrs. Mary Kurtz, director of the Community Action Agency, was also present.

The Youth Council, Miss Washington explained, is a program sponsored by the Office of Economic Opportunity, through the CAA in Winters, to get young people of all races, age 14 to 25, involved in their community.

Plans were made to begin organizing the Council. The next meeting will be held Monday, February 5, at 7 p. m. in the Humble Building, at which time officers will be elected, by-laws of the organization explained, and plans for future projects made. All young people are invited to attend.

The Joint Effort Band provided entertainment following the meeting.

To be eligible for first grade, children must be six years of age on Sept. 1, 1973.

A pre-school round-up will be conducted some time in April for all children who will start to school for the first time in August.

PROSPECTS FOR MOBILE-HOMES INDUSTRY

Wellesley Hills, Mass.—Shipments of mobile homes in 1972 were estimated at close to 575,000 units, representing a hefty 16 percent increase over the 496,570 such dwellings shipped the preceding year. However, a slowdown in recent months from the 27 percent rate gain in the

REASONS FOR SOFTENING

Among the factors signaling a lesser rate of advance in shipments was the climb in shelter output last year — 2.4 million single-family and multiple units, plus 575,000 mobile homes—surpassing the average yearly demand for the 1970s set at 2.6 million units by housing experts of the previous administration. Apparent overbuilding of apartments in some areas may also reduce sales of mobile homes, since apartments are rivals of mobile units and owners may offer incentives in order to attract tenants and fill their empty units. Also on the negative side for makers of mobile homes is the possibility that tighter money and higher interest rates will hurt sales in coming months. Another deterrent could be quickening competition from used mobile homes. Stricter controls over safety aspects of these dwellings may very well emerge over the period ahead, and these could serve as a damper on sales.

CREWS

Children begin school these days with a big advantage: They already know two letters of the alphabet—TV.

Correction: The note of sympathy in this space last week should have read to "Mrs. Charlie Tounglet's family" instead of Mrs. Ernest Tounglet.

BUT ON THE BRIGHT SIDE. On the other hand, those within the industry who see further good growth ahead for the shipment of mobile homes have some persuasive arguments on their side. Of major significance is the expected rise in the number of young married people as well as older retirees who comprise 75 to 80 percent of the market for such dwellings. Also on the favorable side is the potential for greater use of double-wide or sectional houses. These are usually composed of two mobile homes, produced and shipped separately but joined together at the site. Placed on a permanent foundation, the double-wide resembles a small conventionally constructed house but its price is substantially lower and furnishings are included with it.

And there are other encouraging factors, including more liberal and considerably broadened financing practices as applied to this field. Mobile home park development on the part of producers are large real estate operators is also receiving heightened emphasis, while more of the mobile units are being used for vacation "cottages" or second homes. It should be noted too that the increasing popularity of these dwellings is prompting more local communities to streamline their zoning laws in order to permit mobile homes.

GAINS—BUT LESS SPECTACULAR Weighing the favorable aspects against the less favorable, the Research Department of Babson's Reports is of the opinion that the most dramatic phase of expansion for the mobile home industry has probably passed. For the foreseeable future, chances favor growth of production in this housing line at a rate in the neighborhood of 8 to 10 percent annually instead of the runaway improvement of 20 to 30 percent experienced in recent years. Under these circumstances, it seems unlikely that the price/earnings ratio of mobile-home equities will soon return to the former high levels seen before recent selling knocked them down.

While stocks of most mobile-home companies are not exactly on the bargain counter, the Babson Staff considers that investors would be warranted in retaining commitments in those firms that have demonstrated an ability to withstand previous market shakeouts. Currently being followed are two leading companies in the mobile-home category: Skyline Corporation and Champion Builders. While purchase is not advised at this time, the common stocks of these firms are worth watching and might be considered for purchase at lower prices.

A Call from the Coach
By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK (CEP)
President Nixon has been so solicitous about the health and welfare of the Washington Redskins that it was only natural for coach George Allen to call to congratulate him on his re-election.

"Hello, Coach," Mr. Nixon said as he picked up the phone. "You need a play suggestion for the Falcon game, I suppose. Well, I've been working on a special tackle-around Statue of Liberty double reverse that I guarantee you will pick up at least 30 yards. First you send the center in motion . . ."

"No, no, Mr. President," Allen interrupted. "Of course, I'll be glad to hear your play but I really called about your big win in the election."

"Why, thank you, Coach," the President replied. "Let me say it was actually a lot closer than the final totals indicated. The Democrats have a pretty tough team."

"That's a fine sportsmanlike gesture, sir," Allen said. "No sense rubbing it in, you know, Coach. Especially when you may have to face those dummies again, right?"

"Tell me, Mr. President, where was the turning point?"

"Well, I'd have to say the Democratic convention, Coach. After that we were in real good field position, smack in the center, and then it was just a question of vote control and sticking to the campaign plan."

"What was really impressive," Allen added, "was that you lost so many key personnel—John Mitchell, Bill Buckley, the Watergate boys . . ."

"Of course, Coach, they were only on the taxi squad, you know. And we had the depth we needed, especially after we got all those free agents from the Democrats."

"Well, Mr. President, I just want to congratulate you again and offer you my services," Allen said. "If you need any Redskin tickets, advice on tariff policy, a new attorney general, anything."

"Now that you mention it, Coach, there is something you could do for me," Mr. Nixon said. "The other day at the National Security Council meeting I was showing my autograph collection and Spiro was making fun of me because he had a Larry Brown and I didn't. I wonder if . . ."

"Sure, Mr. President," Allen said. "And if you would, we'd like a favor in return. You remember how much the team liked it when you autographed that ball for them? Well, they used it so much they wore it out."

"They just keep saying it isn't the same now that they don't have their old 'Richard Nixon' to kick around any more."

Happy Homemaking

Keep a thimble in a coffee can in addition to the measuring spoon. It is used as a cap on the center tube of the percolator to prevent grounds from sliding down into the pot.

Do not frost the tops of cupcakes to be packed in lunch boxes. Split the cakes, spread with frosting and put together sandwich fashion.

There will be no more scrambled eggs on the kitchen floor if the finger tips are moistened before removing eggs from the carton.

Use a clip board (the kind found in office supply stores) to use as a holder for table place mats. Clip on the mats and then hang the board in a closet or cupboard.

AUSTIN—This city lost a part of its "personality" last week. Most Austin citizens acted sophisticated about the fact that President Lyndon Baines Johnson was seen frequently at public events . . . but his personality gave the entire area a certain glamor that will be lost with his passing.

He made frequent appearances recently — the Cotton Bowl, Civil Rights forum, Governor Briscoe's inauguration, and an economic seminar at San Marcos.

Yes, Autsin and Texas will miss LBJ.

He did not try to dominate the show when he appeared publicly, did not make "news" by voicing opinions on everything, but his influence was felt in many important ways.

During last year's political campaigns in Texas, he was on the phone raising money, offering advice—supporting those who had been loyal to him during his political career.

The Texas Democratic party will miss LBJ.

Although it will not be listed in his biography, Lyndon Baines Johnson was a journalist.

He wrote a book. He helped write and produce several television news specials. Most of all he "made" news during his entire lifetime.

His daughter, Mrs. Luci Nugent, likes to point out that her father was "surrounded by journalists."

"My father had to live with journalists all of his life," she said recently. "My mother was a journalism graduate of the University of Texas. My sister wrote for major magazines, and I've enjoyed doing some writing."

Men who influenced him on may decisions were journalists . . . Bill Moyers, George Christian, Tom Johnson and many more. He confided in many Texas newspaper editors, Art Koewert, Bob Jackson, Bill Hobby and others.

Texas Journalists will miss LBJ.

He refused to let his illness slow him down. His last public appearance was a tree planting ceremony near his home with Lady Bird. He had spent an active Christmas holiday with his wife, daughters, their husbands and children.

He attended the funeral of the 14 young people who had been killed in the bus-truck accident and the funeral of President Harry S. Truman less than a month ago.

His family will miss LBJ. President Johnson's political career will continue to be an inspiration to young people interested in government and politics.

He came from a family of public servants, but hundreds of college students in this state look at his career and contemplate the "path to the presidency."

He was first a young school teacher, then youth administrator, aide to a Congressman, Congressman, Senator, Vice-President then President of the most powerful nation in the world.

Yes, Lyndon Baines Johnson made history interesting for Texas.

Texas will miss LBJ.

ABORTION LAW STRUCK DOWN

The U. S. Supreme Court voted 7-2 to strike down the state's abortion statute. Holding that medical abortion in the first six months of pregnancy should be a private matter between a woman and her physician, the high court ended a controversy begun in 1970 when "Jane Roe" a pregnant, unmarried woman from Dallas took the argument to the federal courts.

Ironically Miss Roe, as she was named to protect her identity, won her case, but had the baby.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe asked Texas Atty. Gen. John Hill for an evaluation of the ruling and for alternatives open to Texas in light of the high court decision.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, however, said that "the best solution is one in which the state is neutral on the subject. I believe the medical profession of Texas will respond to the decision and will treat abortion as a medical matter in a responsible way."

ENGINEERS OFFER LEGISLATORS PROFESSIONAL ADVICE

Legislators last week were offered the expertise of a group of engineers on "broadly defined areas of environmental protection" and other areas of public concern.

The Texas Society of Professional Engineers told Texas House and Senate members that 700 members of that association were available for "factual presentations" before committee hearings on air pollution, water pollution, liquid and solid waste, insecticides and pesticides, health, safety and many other categories.

TOO MANY SCHOOLS?

Texas may be expanding educational facilities to the extent that the quality of education may be diluted, while the taxpayer keeps digging deeper in his pocketbook to pay the bills.

Opinion was expressed here by Wales Madden, an Amarillo attorney, who is a member of the Coordination Board, Texas College and University System. Madden told CB members "educators know that increased funding is dependent upon growing enrollments. With institutions planning independently and on ad hoc basis for enrolling the same students, and with there being fewer students to spread among the colleges, we may endanger the critical mass of students, faculty, facilities, equipment and libraries established at such high cost and hard effort in our existing institutions."

Madden placed part of the blame on local pressure on state legislators, who feel duty bound to try to create by statute a junior or senior college or technical training facility in their communities. Madden urged CB members to moderate the present expansion trend "until we determine fully what the needs are and where we are going."

The Texas Senate approved appointment of Mark W. White, a Houston lawyer, as Governor Briscoe's nominee to serve as Secretary of State. White's term of office runs concurrently with that of the Governor.

Briscoe also named Judge Max Rogers of Huntsville to be presiding judge of the 2nd Administrative Judicial District of Texas and Curtiss Brown of Houston to be Associate Justice of the 14th Court of Civil Appeals. Brown will fill the unexpired term of Judge John M. Barron of Houston, who resigned.

The new governor also appointed Mack Wallace of Athens as his administrative assistant to handle legal matters in the chief executive's office. Wallace had been serving as district attorney for Anderson, Henderson and Houston counties.

UTILITY REGULATION HELP OFFERED CITIES The Texas Municipal League has set up a special advisory council to assist cities across the state with increasingly complex responsibilities of utility regulation.

TML President Jamie Clements announced establishment of the Texas Utility Advisory Council to help prepare municipalities for responses to utility rate increases and related utility matters which affect local consumers.

Clements, Mayor of Temple, appointed Dan Watkins, Mayor of Irving, to serve as council chairman. The council will function under auspices of the Texas Municipal League and rely on the support of the TML's 734 member cities. Public utility rate experts from major Texas cities will lend technical support.

Rough Fish Removal Study

Austin — Commercial rough fish netting on Texas lakes is a profitable venture, but what effect does it have on sport fish populations?

Sport fishermen often pin their poor catches on commercial fishing.

Commercial fishermen claim their large mesh gill nets catch few sport fish.

A majority of commercial fishing in Texas is on a contract basis with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. The money from such contracts is used for law enforcement, fish hatchery operation and fisheries research and management activities.

To study the effects of commercial netting on the sport fishery, Parks and Wildlife Department personnel will accompany commercial fishermen on lakes Sam Rayburn, Cedar Creek, Whitney, Livingston and Somerville.

Biologists will check net catches and record the number and size of each species of fish caught.

They will then tabulate the data to show the composition of the commercial catch and the total number of game fish caught, injured and killed.

Surveys in other states have produced widely varying results.

Sport fish made up 44 percent of the total catch of commercial fishermen during a 1966 study on two Mississippi lakes. Most of the game fish caught were catfish and crappie.

In an earlier survey, flathead, channel and blue catfish made up only 11 percent of the total catch on Lake Texoma.

At present, the catch of rough fish is not an important management tool.

But, on reservoirs as Sam Rayburn with an estimated harvest of one million pounds of rough fish in 1972, commercial netting could play an important role in the sport fishing quality of the lake.

The study, as approved by the Parks and Wildlife Commission, will enable the department to establish guidelines for future rough fish removal contracts and to determine the effectiveness of rough fish removal as a technique for improving sport fishing in large reservoirs.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Obstructing an Officer

Without any doubt, punching a policeman in the nose would amount to the crime of "obstructing an officer." But what about the assorted lesser confrontations that arise daily between citizen and constable? Where does the law draw the line?

Generally speaking, you may be guilty of this offense even if you do not resort to any force at all.

Take the case of a youthful demonstrator who "went limp" when the police ordered him to climb into a patrol wagon. Charged later with obstructing an officer, he argued that he could not be punished for simply doing nothing.

Nevertheless, the court found him guilty as charged. The court said his refusal to obey a lawful order not only delayed and obstructed his own arrest but also delayed and obstructed the arrest of others.

Affirmative action, of course, is even riskier. Thus:

A motorist lost his temper when he found a meter maid beside his parked car, writing up a ticket that he felt was unjustified.

First, he refused to accept the ticket. Then, when the meter maid tried to put it on his windshield, he blocked her path and deflected her arm.

A court concluded afterward that these actions, added together, did constitute the offense of obstructing an officer.

This does not mean, however, that a policeman has to be treated with kid gloves. Reasonable remonstrance is within a citizen's rights.

In another case, while a man was being placed under arrest in a tavern, his wife informed the police — with vigor that they had no right to take him away. Still, she did not interfere physically with the arrest. Nor did she use threatening language.

Haled into court for obstructing an officer, the woman was found not guilty of any offense. The court said:

"Policemen are no more exempt from criticism than cabinet ministers."

Area Farmers In 1972 Crop Yield Survey

Several farmers from the Winters area and surrounding towns are listed in the 1972 Crop Yield Survey for Central and South Texas published by Pioneer Hi-Bred Company of Plainview, Texas. To qualify for listing in the Survey, each farmer was asked to submit a report of the Pioneer brand seed he planted, the conditions of weather and fertilizer under which they were grown, and the yield per acre.

Compiled from information in these reports, the Yield Survey lists farmer's hometown, variety planted, yield and farmer's name. A county-by-county listing of average yields for corn and sorghum without brand reference is also included.

Winters area farmers listed are W. E. Mayhew, Dennis Poe, R. Q. Marks, M. R. Williams, Earl Dorsett, Morris Robinson, L. L. Chapman, J. D. Vinson and B. J. Colburn. Also included are W. L. (Bede) England, M. L. Dobbins, Gene Virden, Wilma C. Davis, Milton Patterson, Richard Schwartz, Raymond Schwartz, John Hancock, J. C. Belew, and Don Vinson.

Tuscola farmers included in the list are Pat Stockton and Loy Stockton, Herman Vinson, Charles Cary, C. C. Allmand, Kenneth Norman, J. L. Cary, Randy Allmand, Tommy Graham and Don Vickey, Monroe Graham, Edward Graham, John Stockton, Tom Vaughn, Ned Newman and Jack Hancock are also included.

... about your SOCIAL SECURITY

Continuing work after age 65 can now mean higher monthly social security retirement checks, according to J. M. Talbot, social security manager. Recent changes in the social security law provide an increase of 1-12th of one percent for any month between ages 65-72 in which a person does not get a retirement check because of his work and is otherwise eligible for payment.

This increase amounts to one percent a year; so, if a worker continues to be employed until he is 72 years old, he will have received a 7 percent increase.

Mr. Talbot pointed out that this increase is in addition to any raise due because of the amount of the yearly earnings. In order to receive the annual increases, a worker must be entitled to retirement benefits for the first time at age 65 or later, be fully insured under social security, and working for wages or self-employment. His income must prevent him from receiving a social security check for the month. The increase will be determined after the end of each year beginning with 1973.

For more information, contact the Social Security Office at 3090 West Harris Avenue (P. O. Box 3508) in San Angelo, Texas, or see the representative when he is in your area. Persons who are unable to meet with him are encouraged to call the office in San Angelo. Residents of Winters may call toll free by dialing "Operator" and asking for "Enterprise 2058."

Bombs Will Be Bombs

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK (CEF) — One of the most important men in the federal government these days is Seymour Multiphasic, the Pentagon's man in charge of administering intelligence tests to bombs.

It is Multiphasic's job to separate the "smart" bombs from the dumb bombs from the just plain average bombs and that is not easy.

"You have your slow learners and your accelerated group," he says, "but you have to make sure you don't get them mixed up. You saw what happened when that bomb that couldn't read French got into the smart group by mistake."

In addition to the language testing (bombs are currently checked out on languages spoken by all present and potential enemies of the United States, with the tests covering all known languages except Latin, Sanskrit and Brooklynes), bombs also must pass rigorous exams in distinguishing between civilian and military targets.

"When we find a bomb that can't tell the difference between, say, an artillery battery and an ice cream stand, we send it back for remedial work," Multiphasic says. "But if we find one that just can't catch on, we assign it to one of our 'dropout' bombing missions, where we just dump a bunch of bombs on a rice paddy somewhere in case there are some enemy troops in the area."

Probably the most stringent test, though, is the one on discipline.

"When the bombardier yells, 'Bombs away,'" Multiphasic says, "you can't have a bomb answering, 'No, thanks, I'd just as soon stay,' or 'Protective reaction? What protective reaction?' So we make sure our bombs know their place to avoid what we like to call explosive situations, if you know what I mean."

Though Multiphasic admits that his testing system is not perfect, he contends that some critics have been too harsh.

"After all, I know as well as anyone that bombs will be bombs," he says. "But why do they always have to talk about the bombs that go wrong? We have plenty of nice, smart bombs that just do their job and never fall on a dike or a consulate or anything. How come nobody ever writes about them?"

"I just wish everybody could get a chance to hear the traditional graduation day talk at Bomb U., where we point out how bombs are really peaceful because they blast the enemy to smithereens and help our side win, thereby ending the war and bringing peace.

"As we like to say, there's no such thing as a bad bomb."

Peanuts and Peanut Products

If you will pardon the expression, the origin of peanuts has almost driven some food historians to the "nut" house. For a while, most food historians thought peanuts were native to Africa. They accepted as fact that slaves brought peanuts to American in the early 1700's. But this was before a mound of the nuts was discovered in an ancient Inca tomb in Peru.

With this enlightening discovery, food historians began altering their stories. It is now accepted that peanuts are native to the Americas and probably were taken to Africa and Asia by 16 century Spanish and Portuguese explorers. From Africa, peanuts recrossed the oceans to North America aboard slave ships as earlier suspected.

So, about the only place food historians haven't quoted as the peanut's place of origin is the Moon. Wouldn't it be something if...

Even if there is some question about the origin of peanuts, there is no question about the fresh and versatile flavor of peanuts and peanut products. Peanut butter sandwiches are a great American favorite, as are fresh roasted peanuts for out-of-hand eating pleasure. Peanut butter soup, peanut souffles, and various baked goodies featuring peanuts are becoming more popular each year as Americans discover the adaptability of peanuts and peanut products.

Now is your chance to make your own peanut discoveries because there are lots of peanuts and peanut products available. The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture estimates that peanut production in the 1972-73 crop year will top last year's by about 9.5 percent. USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service has included peanuts and peanut products on their Plentiful Foods list for February.

1 cup sifted flour
3-4 tsp. baking powder
1-4 tsp. baking soda
1-2 tsp. salt

Gradually add sugar, beating until thick. Add butter, peanut butter and vanilla; mix well. Fold in sifted dry ingredients and coconut, if desired. Pour into prepared pan. Bake 25 to 30 minutes. Striped Bass Growing Fast

Robert Lee — Those striped bass stocked in Spence Reservoir are getting big enough to cause some excitement.

In a recent netting survey, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department biologists caught a 12-pounder. Only one larger striped bass has been caught from Texas waters, a 12 pound, 12-ounce fish stocked in the Sabine River by Louisiana biologists.

Trotliners have reported several striped bass catches of more than 10 pounds from Spence Reservoir.

Bill Follis, department project leader, said he believes the saltwater fish may be growing faster in Texas waters than in reservoirs in other states where they have been stocked. Although biologists still term the striped bass "experimental" they say the species is firmly established as a sport fish, and the 12-pound record shouldn't last long.

License Plates Now Available At Tax Office

Motorists may now pick up license plates at the county tax office, or at the sub-office in Winters, or may receive them by mail for a $1.00 extra. Plates became available February 1.

The motorist may register his vehicle in person at his county tax office or substation by bringing in the entire handy three-part form he received in the mail from the Texas Highway Department. It takes only a few minutes to process the form, collect the fee and send the motorist on his way with new plates.

Drivers also can get new plates by mail if they send in the complete three-part form, the registration fee plus one dollar for each vehicle to their county tax office prior to March 1.

After March 1 it will be necessary to go to the county tax office or substation in person as 30 days are required for mail delivery. In any case, owners will save themselves time and trouble by using the computerized forms.

With the form, a certificate of title and last year's registration receipt are not needed.

Whether the driver uses the mail or applies in person—the important thing for him to remember is to be very careful NOT to separate the three-part application form. The entire form must be mailed or taken to the county tax office or substation. A stick-down strip showing the new license number is attached to all sections of the form. The tax office separates the form, returning part of it as a receipt for the owner.

Applications for license plates should be sent only to the local county tax office. Motorists should NOT send their payments to the Texas Highway Department because this will delay their registration.

COUNTY AGENT PARKER'S COLUMN

Winter Hints For Transporting Livestock

Transporting livestock calls for numerous safety precautions at all times, but even more so in the winter when low temperatures and adverse weather conditions present additional hazards.

County Extension Agent C. T. Parker, Jr., lists some pointers to consider in transporting livestock safely to reduce losses and injuries:

1. First of all, allow animals time to recover from the stress of sorting and driving before loading them. Nervous, excited animals are hard to load.

2. Be sure to give the vehicle a thorough check. Ventilation is especially important and should be adjusted to the weather. In cold weather, drafts should be eliminated.

3. A non-skid floor in the vehicle cuts down livestock bruises and other injuries. It also eliminates the need for bedding although shavings, straw, sawdust or similar materials may be added to absorb moisture.

4. Partitions are important in longer vehicles or with mixed species and sizes of animals. They help prevent piling of the animals in case of a sudden stop and also discourage hogs and lamb's from instinctive piling up to keep warm.

5. The loading chute should be solid and sturdy. This is important in reducing the loading stress of animals. Poor loading conditions increase the chance of "downers" and subsequent bruising, crippling or even death.

6. Use the right kind of persuaders and use them properly. Improper persuasion creates excitement (emotional stress) and results in excessive shrinkage, loss of market bloom and increased physical damage.

7. Avoid overloading the vehicle.

8. If the animals are to be hauled a considerable distance, stop at regular intervals and check the load.

By paying particular attention to the safety of your livestock during the loading and hauling process, they will reach their destination in better physical condition and hopefully you will be able to reap additional profits, points out the agent.

"The Hospital"

An impressive combine of talent is responsible for a powerful new film, "The Hospital." Starring Academy Award-winner George C. Scott, "The Hospital," was written by one of America's most original dramatists, Paddy Chayefsky, whose script for the film won him the Academy Award for "The Best Story and Screenplay." The film was directed by Arthur Hiller, who is riding the crest of a brilliant career, fresh from his triumph with "Love Story." The picture was produced by Howard Gottfried of stage and TV fame. It will show here Friday, Saturday and Sunday at the State Theatre.

Co-starred with Scott is Diana Rigg, the elegant British actress who recently scored on Broadway in "Abelard and Heloise" and made a memorable screen appearance in the James Bond thriller, "On Her Majesty's Secret Service."

Released by United Artists, which gave Chayefsky his first screen exposure via the Academy Award-winning film, "Marty," "The Hospital" is a detailed and compassionate study of a physician beset by problems in his life at home and at work.

"American Wilderness" — "American Wilderness" — emerges as a genuine family picture with a balance of thrills and scenic beauty. It is the kind of entertainment that excites not only veteran sportsmen who can relive their own adventures in Oregon, Alaska and Mexico but women and children who

Leta Jan O'Dell, Danny Gilliam Wed Saturday

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hodges of Winters, and PFC. Danny Gilliam of Coleman, were married Saturday at 2:30 p. m. in the Fellowship Building of the Main Street Church of Christ in Winters.

Mr. Don Kleppe of Abilene Christian College officiated. Mr. Gilliam is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Sprinkle of Coleman.

The bride attended Winters High School, and the bridegroom is in the U. S. Army, presently stationed in Germany.

Immediately after pruning, treat the wound in order to keep insects, rot and disease organisms out of the wound. Parker recommends painting the wound with an oil or asphalt base paint or a tree wood paint. Any of these should provide adequate protection.

A good rule-of-the-thumb for the gardener to remember and follow is to limit pruning of live branches to those with a diameter of two inches or less. Pruning also should be done before the heart wood has begun to form in the limbs.

For correct pruning, make the cut flush with the trunk or the larger limb. The best tool for doing this is a saw. Parker points out that axes, hatchets or other swinging tools should not be used. The reasoning behind this is that it is not possible to prune with them without leaving a stub. These stubs or and obstructing traffic and to improve the tree's shape. Two other reasons are to remove dying or diseased limbs and to raise the shade level enough to grow additional grass or flowers underneath the tree.

Seldom is pruning encouraged to increase the vigor of established trees. Such topping or excessive branch removal may actually reduce the vigor. Topping can have a permanent, adverse effect on the shape of many trees.

Branches are the support for the leaves needed to manufacture food for tree growth. However, pruning does not always have to be done during the dormant season. Bleeding may follow pruning, but usually this does not harm a tree. The county agent advises waiting until the dormant season to do major pruning of deciduous trees.

projections prevent fast healing. Also, unless careful and somewhat skilled in their use, a mislick with these tools could result in an injury to both the tree and the person doing the pruning.

One way to cut down or eliminate pruning is to select plants having natural form and ultimate size appropriate for their landscape location. "If this is done, little pruning will be necessary," he adds.

Considerable shaping and removal of dead wood are required of the so-called "fast growing" trees. Thus, a wiser choice usually would be a somewhat slower growing but more permanent and sturdy tree. Also, many of these slow growers can be induced to grow much faster if properly watered, fertilized, staked and mulched.

A Poet Is a Poet Is a . . .

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK (CEF)

At the root of all 273 crises currently facing this country is one basic problem: All the poetry has gone out of life in America.

An index of the gravity of the situation is that our most successful poet is Rod McKuen, who is to art what a Piper Cub is to carpet bombing.

Particularly concerned about the poetry gap is Elijah Stanislaus O'Roarke, president of the United Brotherhood of Poets, who took time out from his current project, a nine-volume epic poem on Disneyland, to grant a recent interview.

As we entered his garret, he was crumpling a sheet of paper and adding it to an already overflowing wastebasket.

"B-52, B-52," he was mumbling. "There's nothing that rhymes with B-52. How can you write a poem today without writing about B-52s? What is this country coming to?"

O'Roarke complains that no matter what subject he writes about today, his poems end up sounding like a script for "Bonanza."

"You just can't write a poem about beauty, gentleness, grace or love around here these days," he said. "I started out writing a poem about the innocence of a newborn baby the other day and it ended up so full of hostility I had to call it 'Who Invited Him?'"

"Last week I started on a poem entitled 'On the Delicacy of Flower Petals' but I got so worked up that the last line turned out to say, 'So who needs the dirty rotten pinko weakster things, anyway?'"

O'Roarke admits that he feels guilty because he has to write pornographic poetry and enter jingle-writing contests to support himself.

"Poets never have their own TV show or get on the cover of 'Time' magazine or even get a congratulatory phone call from President Nixon," he says. "Even my newspaper delivery boy insists that I call him 'sir.'"

O'Roarke insists, nevertheless, that he won't hang up his metaphors.

"I don't have any choice," he says. "A poet is a poet is a poet and, as Emerson said, 'beauty is its own excuse for being.'"

"But if you hear of any good jobs selling vacuum cleaners, let me know."

Capitol Report

BY REP. LYNN NABERS

"The Legislature shall meet every two years at such time as may be provided by law and at other times when convened by the Governor," so states Article 3, Section 5, of the Texas Constitution. Thus in the midst of talk of reform rules and ethics bills the Texas Legislature convened at high noon on the 9th day of January, 1973.

The first order of business, as also provided by the Constitution, was to elect a Speaker of the House of Representatives. Price Daniel, Jr. was elected to serve in this office by his peers and was sworn in by his father, Price Daniel, Sr., Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas.

The House immediately plunged into the business at hand. Reform rules proposed by the new Speaker and adopted by the House were put into effect.

Committee assignments were made and committees began work on legislation already introduced.

The atmosphere seems to carry a determination on the part of all Legislators, both the seasoned veterans and the freshmen members, to get on with the work we were sent here to do. Perhaps the memory of recent scandals that have rocked public confidence in State Officials has strengthened this determination.

From all early indications, legislation will be controversial, interesting and varied during the 63rd Session of the Legislature. There should be something to please or displease everyone. You can expect to see legislation dealing with automobile insurance, ethics, the Family Code, pollution, marijuana and other narcotics offenses, the death penalty, abortion and education to mention just a few.

Added to all this is the fact that once again we must come up with a workable Appropriations Bill, a task which in the past has been the nucleus of controversy as well as the cause of special sessions.

As in the past, I will be writing this column on a regular basis in an effort to keep you informed of any legislation or
