Summer and Water Sports Are Fun-
But Fun Can Be Turned Into Tragedy

The advent of warm weather means that families will once again be heading for lakes and rivers to engage in water sports. These can be fun times, yet they can quickly turn into a tragedy, points out County Extension Agent C. T. Parker.

Water sports provide excellent recreation, but safety must be foremost in the minds of everyone engaged in such activities, contends the agent.

Accidental drowning claims thousands of lives over the United States each year. Last year 601 Texans lost their lives in water-related accidents, most of the deaths occurring during the spring and summer months.

The following is a list of some safety tips on swimming to make those outdoor outings to your favorite lake both fun-filled and safe:

1. First of all, all non-swimmers should enroll in a swimming course. Check with your local Red Cross, YMCA or YWCA or other community groups that may be conducting such courses.
2. Never swim alone and know the area in which you are swimming. Even a strong swimmer can be undone by strange currents, tides or sudden dropoffs.
3. Supervise small children constantly.
4. Don't swim if chilled, overheated or overtired, or if a thunderstorm threatens.
5. If a person near you is in danger of drowning, don't jump in after him unless you are trained in lifesaving. Instead, extend a pole, life buoy or anything that will float.

... about your
SOCIAL SECURITY

Benny Roark of Fordyce, Arkansas, was sentenced Tuesday to three months in prison, a two-year suspended sentence, and fined $2100. Judge G. Thomas Eisele handed down the sentence following Roark's conviction on seven counts of defrauding the Medicare program.

Roark, operator of a medical equipment supply company, was found guilty of submitting bills and receiving payments for equipment which was never furnished to Medicare beneficiaries.

An alert Medicare beneficiary was credited with bringing this case to the attention of authorities. Every Medicare recipient receives a letter describing payments made on his behalf by the Medicare program. In this case, the beneficiary notified authorities that the payment was incorrect, and a subsequent investigation uncovered the fraudulent activities.

INVESTMENT ADVICE FOR THE SOON-TO-BE RETIRED

Wellesley Hills, Mass. — The following remarks are addressed to the individual who is on the threshold of retirement but not adequately prepared for it. Upon retirement one is naturally confronted with many changes which are destined to alter seriously a heretofore normal daily routine. These alterations can represent burdensome challenges to those who have neglected to plan carefully for the day when withdrawal from active business or professional life becomes a reality.

The major financial requirement for comfortable retirement is, of course, a dependable income, substantial enough to maintain a living standard consistent with that to which one is accustomed. As regards the source, retirement income can be divided into two types: (1) Non-portfolio revenues and (2) funds derived from interest and/or dividends, i. e., portfolio income.

NON-PORTFOLIO INCOME

Such things as pensions, social security, annuity allotments and rental income would fall under the first (non-portfolio) classification. Essentially it is that income which will be in some fixed, predetermined form, to be received in periodic installments. Accurately figuring the extent of this type of income will considerably ease the complexities of drawing up a workable retirement budget. Several other possibilities could perhaps be exploited in an effort to buttress your income structure. For example, apartment living might conceivably enable you to rent your home at an attractive rate, of the purchase of a duplex home could serve the same purpose. If you are the owner of industrial-commercial property, machinery, or equipment, investigate the possibility of renting or leasing such holdings, thereby putting idle assets to work advantageously.

PORTFOLIO INCOME

As for the investment portfolio, preservation of capital must be a primary objective, followed closely by as good a yield as can safely be obtained. We view the safety factor as especially important because the retired individual in most cases has no way to recover security losses should they occur by investing additional funds due to the absence of salary or wages. The retiree should certainly avoid risky, speculative situations. Thus, adoption of the safety-income objective at the outset of retirement is essential.

With these ideas in mind, we recommend that approximately half of one's portfolio be invested so as to provide an assured income. Savings deposits and high-quality corporate bonds and preferreds would be appropriate income producers. Examples include May Department Stores Credit 8 7-8s 1976, Texaco S F Deb. 5 3-4s 1997, General Foods SF Deb. 8 7-8s 1990, and Pacific Gas & Elec. 6%, Cum. 1st Pfd. One could also include some convertible preferreds such as Woolworth $2.20 Cv. Pfd. or Foremost McKesson $1.80 Cv. Pfd. These convertibles offer both attractive yields and capital gain opportunities.

QUALITY COMMON STOCKS

Despite the higher yield on most bonds and preferreds as compared with common stocks, strong equities should continue to provide a defense against the continuing inflationary trend. Accordingly, a reasonable amount in common stocks seems justified. But the common stocks selected for purchase should be beyond reproach in terms of quality. We have in mind such issues as Chemical New York, American Electric Power, General Motors, CPC International, and Southern Pacific.

Common stock yields have improved considerably this year, largely because of price declines. Even so, if stock losses continue, thereby further hiking yields, then consideration could be given to switching some funds from fixed-income assets to additional common stocks.

Essentially, we recommend a strategy of "revolving flexibility," which constantly seeks good income returns.

Wallpapers Add
Much To Rooms

COLLEGE STATION — Wallpapers furnish patterns and textures to rooms—yet require little maintenance.

"Many present-day papers are washable — even scrubbable," Patricia A. Bradshaw, housing and home furnishings specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, pointed out.

Factory-applied plastic coatings make washing possible and minimize maintenance. However, even non-washable paper can be treated after it's hung.

Wallpapers are available as two basic types—hand-made and machine-made.

"Hand-made types are usually colored manually, using a separate silk screen for each color. Since they require considerable time and labor, they're the most expensive.

"Colors of machine-made prints are applied simultaneously on printing presses having up to 12 rollers. Consequently, several yards can be done by machine in the time required to do one yard by hand.

"However, prices of roller prints vary greatly—depending on quality and weight of paper used, complexity of design, and number of yards produced," Miss Bradshaw explained.

Vinyl wallpapers are another category. Considerably heavier, they consist of a vinyl surface backed with either paper or fabric. Designs are printed on the vinyl surfaces.

"Since most vinyls can be scrubbed, they're ideal for kitchens, utility rooms and bathrooms.

"As an added bonus, vinyl fabrics pull off the wall in strips—making replacement easy."

To determine how much paper to buy, multiply distance around the room by the wall height. Then divide this figure by 30 (number of square feet in a single roll of paper) to get number of rolls needed. Deduct one roll for every two doors or windows of average size.

For "instance," buy an extra roll of paper—for repairing any damage or lining or lining a closet.

As an extra precaution, take the room measurements along when going shopping.

"In addition to patterns, textures and solid colors, scenic murals and border prints also are available.

"However, shopping for murals or scenics requires a few extra precautions," the specialist noted.

"Consider the number of strips needed for a specific area, placement of the entire design horizontally, appropriate distance from design to floor, and possible existence of a chair rail.

'Fishy' Family Meals Provide Protein, Calories

COLLEGE STATION — Fishing is a popular sport—and fish and shellfish are favorite meal-time treats.

Frances Reasonover, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University, stressed the protein value of fish.

"Classed as meat group foods, they contain high quality protein essential for growth and body tissue repair. They also supply fats, minerals and vitamins necessary for good health."

Besides the fresh form, fish are available canned, frozen and dried—offering consumers variety.

"Canned tuna and mackerel are generally inexpensive and yet versatile."

"Frozen shrimp and fish sticks on the other hand, are quick and easy to prepare."

"For attractive and appetizing family menus utilize a variety of fish and shellfish, use new recipes and vary serving techniques," Miss Reasonover suggested.

The specialist discussed four areas critical for best cooking and eating results.

—Avoid overcooking.

—There's no such thing as tough fish. Hence, long, slow cooking isn't necessary.

—Just cook fish until it flakes easily when tested with a fork. Flaking indicates the protein has coagulated and connective tissues have broken down.

—Cooked beyond this point, fish becomes increasingly dry and chewy," Miss Reasonover explained.

—Handle fish as little as possible during and after cooking.

"Fish flesh is tender and delicate. Excessive handling—such as turning it repeatedly during cooking or moving the cooked fish several times before serving—tends to make it less attractive."

—Cook fat and lean fish basically the same.

"However, lean fish require added fat during cooking to keep them moist and flavorful."

—Utilize improved cooking techniques.

"Oven cooking, preparing and serving fish in the same utensil, and other new procedures help simplify and guarantee successful fish cookery," the specialist concluded.

59 Rural Traffic Accidents In April In 4-County Area

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated 59 rural traffic accidents in the four county area consisting of Brown, Coleman, Concho and Runnels counties, a report indicates.

The patrol listed 35 injuries and three deaths in these 59 accidents.

In Runnels County, the Highway Patrol investigated nine accidents in April, in which seven persons were injured, but none killed.

During the four-month period through April 30, the patrol investigated 182 accidents in the four-county area. In these accidents, 92 persons were injured and six killed. During the same period in 1972, 166 accidents were reported in which 77 people were injured and two were killed.

Home Town Talk

with that device, so we're going to run out of gas. The good technology is stymied at present, but is bound to come up with something to offset the bad effects of too much and too many.

With all these places to go and things to do, and the vehicles to take them there, this affluent population is straining at the bit at the start of summer, raring to go. . . but if the present gasoline situation continues on its present course, some are going to be disappointed. Some are not going to get to start, while others are going to get half way there before they are halted. This could develop into a serious situation. With all the wherewithal to do something, and not able to do what they want, the population is going to do something else, like . . . or . . . And everybody knows this wouldn't be for the best—it could mean the downfall of civilization as we know it!

Technology's left hand doesn't throw all the monkey wrenches, however. Plain, simple man—or 'crats of some sort—must take the blame for heaping a bit of unhappiness on an affluent population seeking a happiness bing. Take parks and lakes, one of the outlets for the fun-seekers. The 'crats got a bunch of them built, and then made it easy for everybody to enjoy them, and sent out their invitations. Then when many became addicted, the population was where the 'crats wanted 'em: They skyrocketed the prices and ordered restrictions, just enough to offset a bit of the fun. For instance, campers could go to Hord's Creek Lake last year, pay a dollar to stay all night, and take their time about untracking the next day. This year, though, the price has been increased 150 percent, and the camper must be on his way shortly after lunch time, or pay up again. This supposedly is the custom all over, now.

So we are heading into a long, hot, expensive, ungasolined summer. Anything can happen. . . prevented from doing what it wants to do, an affluent population is going to be like an idle kid—it's going to get into trouble sooner or later.
