Marines prepare for invasion of Haiti

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — U.S. Marines assigned to a potential Haiti invasion force began training Wednesday on a Puerto Rican island amid new talk in Washington of a U.S.-led intervention in Haiti.

In all, 1,800 Marines are practicing to evacuate the estimated 3,500 American civilians in Haiti, said Lt. Elizabeth Jones, spokeswoman for the Roosevelt Roads Naval Station in Puerto Rico.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher warned that Haiti's military leaders must step down voluntarily or be forced out by a U.S.-led invasion.

The Haitian senator said Haitians will join together to fight U.S. troops.

Many Republicans in Congress oppose military intervention, and many of the Americans in Haiti insist they do not want to be evacuated.

11-year-old gang member buried

CHICAGO (AP) — Robert Sandifer should have been starting sixth grade Wednesday, scampering across the schoolyard with other 11-year-olds, lugging a backpack or chafing in a new shirt.

Instead he was buried, a murder suspect who himself was shot to death when fellow gang members got to him before police could.

Nicknamed "Yummy" because he loved cookies, Robert was hunted by police for three days last week for allegedly firing a pistol into a cluster of people on Aug. 28. The shots killed a 14-year-old girl, Shavon Dean, 10 yards from the front door of her South Side home.

Robert's body was found in a dank railroad underpass. He was killed with two bullets to the head. Two brothers, ages 14 and 16, are charged with his killing, allegedly planned to curtail the police attention Robert drew.

Four hundred people crowded into the Youth Center Church of God in Christ, a converted movie theater, to say goodbye. Across town, on the playground of the school Robert attended, classmates reflected on his death.

Privacy phone rights voted for public

AUSTIN (AP) — State regulators Wednesday approved a rule that will require telephone companies to notify their customers about their privacy phone rights.

Under federal law, telephone customers may restrict the use of information that the phone company has about them.

Under the rule approved 3-0 by the Texas Public Utility Commission, the phone companies must tell their customers about this right.

Telephone companies have a long list of personal information about their customers, ranging from name and address to characteristics of services and long distance billing.

The new rule takes effect within the month, but it may be about a year before telephone customers begin receiving notices in their bills that they can forbid the company from using their personal information.

Search for new horse begins

Texas Tech officials said a search committee will be developed soon to find a new horse for the Masked Rider. Tom McGinnity, assistant coordinator of student activities, said the search for a new horse will begin soon.

"We've had a lot of phone calls from people who want to donate a horse," McGinnity said. "It (finding a replacement horse) could be a fairly quick process, but I can't say when a horse will be in place."

The Tech Masked Rider Advisory Committee decided to uphold the Masked Rider tradition Tuesday, following the death of Double T during the football game Saturday. Michael Sommermeyer, information specialist with Tech's News and Publications, said Tech officials are establishing a memorial fund for Double T.

He said the purpose of the fund is to provide a memorial service and purchase a new horse. The rest of the money will be funneled into the Masked Rider Endowment Fund. The endowment fund is used to support the Masked Rider tradition.

Sommermeyer said an investigation into the exact cause of the accident will not be conducted. He said the incident was a freak accident.

Sommermeyer said a horse search committee and a Tech traditions committee, both in development, are scheduled to report to the Masked Rider Advisory Committee Oct. 30.

A memorial service for Double T is planned at Jones Stadium prior to today's Tech vs. Nebraska game.

Monthly loan payments cut

BY JONATHAN HARRIS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Critics of income contingency are offering alternatives to the Clinton administration's attempt to cut down on student loan repayments.

The Clinton administration is proposing an income contingent repayment option for student loans.

The proposal provides an array of new repayment options offered to students repaying federal direct student loans.

The new options are designed to lower monthly repayment amounts and allow more time for borrowers to repay.

Laura McClintock, legislative director of the United States Student Association, said the program allows students to borrow money directly from the government, without having to go through a guarantee service or a private institution.

"This program is intended to fulfill the campaign promise of doing something about students' loan payments," she said. "The plan is designed to make college loans seem affordable."

"The administration's proposal will reduce monthly payments for every borrower regardless of income and would automatically stretch repayment from the current 10 years to a minimum of 12 years," she said.

Barnac Nassirian, policy analyst for the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, said for two-thirds of borrowers under the income contingency program, the payments are lowered so substantially that a borrower will not even cover the monthly interest that is due.

This results in a gradual increase, rather than decrease, in the amount of outstanding debt for each year.

"The plan is costly for the vast majority of middle-income borrowers," he said. "It also fails to provide significant relief for low-income borrowers who are unable to make payments under the old program."

Nassirian said while lowering payments for those who can make them, the plan would demand higher than affordable payments from low-income borrowers.

Many people would be left with no alternative but to default on their student loans, he said.

McClintock said the income contingency program gives students a false sense of security because they feel that the payments are so low.

She said what students do not realize is while the repayment is low, they barely pay back the principal amount of the loan and the interest.

She said students are paying the loan two or three times over.

"The borrower will be paying the loan for up to 25 years, and by the time the loan is paid, they will have a family, home mortgage and car payments to pay along with the loan," she said.

McClintock said the plan undermines the president's commitment to national and community service.

She said the administration seems to believe this plan will promote lower paying public service career options for college graduates with high student loan debts.

New consortium to outline housing programs for HUD

BY LINDA CARRIGER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Housing groups in Lubbock are planning to tackle a new grant application from the Housing and Urban Development Department, said Tony Reyes, Lubbock's housing rehabilitation coordinator.

New HUD regulations mandated that Lubbock organizations wanting HUD housing grants will have to apply as a group in 1995, Reyes said.

The Lubbock Housing Consortium formed Saturday to act as an umbrella organization for those groups, Reyes said.

HUD offers four grants to support housing projects.

The grants available to Lubbock are the Home Grant, the Emergency Shelter Grant, the Community Development Block Grant and the Housing Opportunity for People with AIDS Grant.

Reyes said Lubbock groups have the potential of drawing about $6 million in HUD grants.

"If they want a piece of the big pie of federal HUD money, this is the vehicle we will be able to utilize to divide these resources up," he said.

The consortium will elect officers at an undecided meeting to organize housing efforts, Reyes said.

Another mission of the consortium is to coordinate service for the homeless, said Michael Wee of the Lubbock Department of Community Development.

The housing consortium will outline all the housing programs offered in the city, he said.

Technology enables criminal identity through DNA

BY AMY OSMULSKI
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

New technology now gives authorities the power to identify criminals, not only by their hand's fingerprints, but by their deoxyribonucleic acid, or DNA, fingerprints.

Lou Densmore, Texas Tech associate professor of biological sciences, has served as a key witness and consultant for criminal cases which used DNA fingerprinting as evidence.

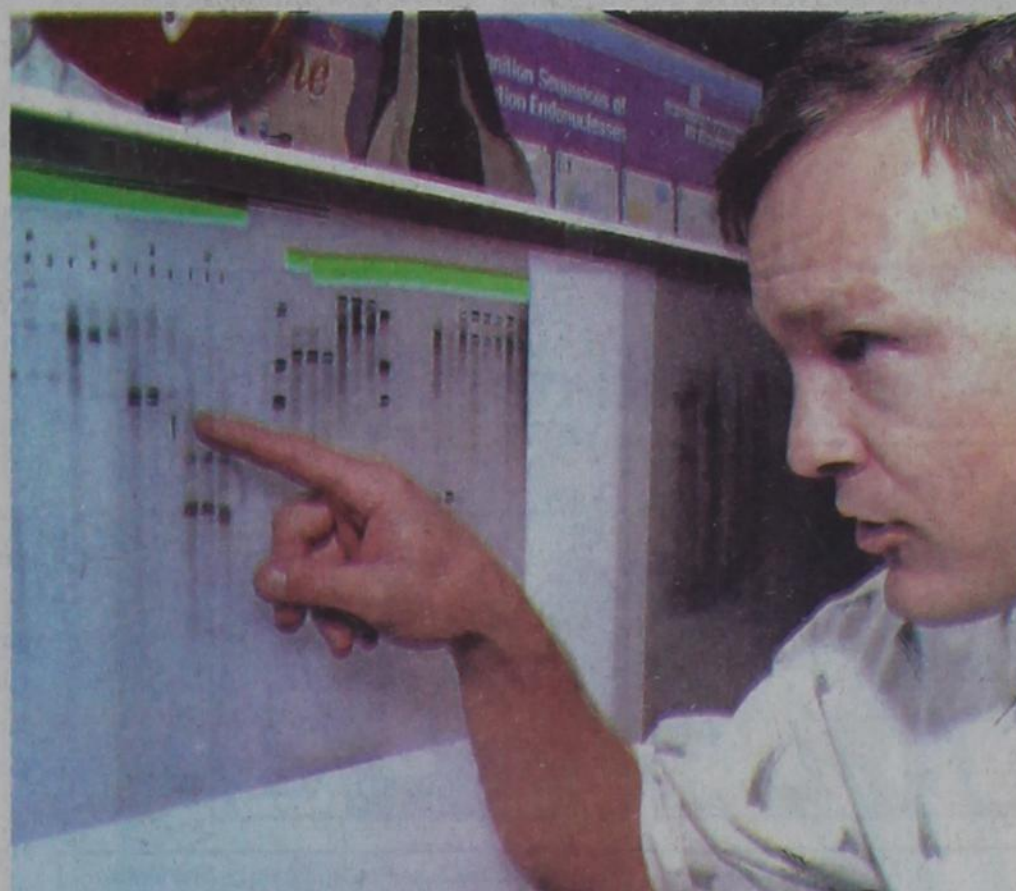

Densmore said DNA fingerprinting involves separating the DNA into single strands, adding a probe to bind to the DNA and using a restriction enzyme, which cuts the enzymes into small fragments.

He said each fragment has a specific code.

A series of fragments gives a series of codes that are distinct for each person, he said.

"After the enzyme has been digested, or treated with a restriction enzyme, it's run onto a gel," Densmore said.

"The gel is then covered with a nylon membrane which will bind to the DNA," he said.

WALTER GRANBERRY: THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Pioneer testing

Lou Densmore, an associate professor in the Texas Tech biology department, examines an autoradiogram which compares specific differences between animal's DNA. A similar procedure is used in human forensic DNA fingerprinting.

The nylon membrane is then removed and can be photographed by an X-ray to see how far the DNA fragments moved, he said.

Densmore said each DNA fragment will move into a different pattern.

The pattern then is compared to a random sample of the population.

"When compared to the population control, if the DNA of the criminal matches the DNA from the crime scene in more than one probe, the evidence is pretty irrefutable," Densmore said.

Travis Ware, district attorney of Lubbock County, said DNA fingerprinting is rare in Lubbock County, but it is a very beneficial and powerful tool.

Ware said the testing is best when a series of tests are conducted from more than one lab.

"The method is best served when more than one test is taken from more than one lab," Ware said. "When you have so many tests saying the same thing, it's almost impossible to refute."

Becky Cannon, executive director of Lubbock's Rape Crisis Center, said Lubbock County recently acquired the ability to perform DNA fingerprinting at the Department of Public Safety's laboratory.

"You have to collect certain evidence at the crime scene that gives you the option of DNA testing, like blood and semen," she said.

Cannon said the testing will greatly benefit the law enforcement community in capturing and identifying criminals.

"It's a great forensic tool for police that gives hard-core evidence that says 'Yes, this is the one who committed the crime,'" she said.

Densmore said DNA fingerprinting is extremely accurate, but there are some risks.

As the DNA ages, it degrades, and in order to digest the DNA properly, it must be of adequate size.

There also is a problem of probabilities when compared to samples of population, he said.

"When given a pattern, we have to calculate the likelihood that another person could have done (the crime)," Densmore said.

"Even if there is a good DNA probability, we have to take into consideration the probability that another person was in the area, they had a motive, and other things," he said.

Densmore testified in a rape case as a key witness on the biological validity of DNA fingerprinting.

He said authorities were able to tie a rapist to previous sexual assaults, because they found his DNA to match semen at other crime scenes.

Students, alumni deserve answers

KRISTIE DAVIS

It's quite rare for a student newspaper editor to write something nice about university officials or about decisions made by university officials (liberal media types are born with "Question authority!" tattooed in their brains), so rather than sink the Titanic, I'm just going to rock the boat a little.

Two decisions were made by members of the Masked Rider committee Tuesday afternoon that deserve recognition and applause: They chose to recommend to administrators that the Masked Rider tradition continue despite Saturday's unfortunate incident, and they chose to allow media personnel to attend the meeting in which that decision was made. (Well, at least that's the impression they tried to give. No one can tell me these people were not on the phone with each other all day deciding the outcome of a meeting that was not scheduled to take place until 5:15 p.m.)

I would like to extend my debt of gratitude to Tech General Counsel Pat Campbell for advising the committee members to open the meeting after receiving a request from The University Daily to do so. Despite his arguments that our request had absolutely no merit whatsoever, the meeting was open, and that's all that counts.

But more importantly, Tech students, fans and alumni should rest easy knowing that our unique Masked Rider tradition will not be buried at the New Deal farm along with Double T — that is, if administrators consent to the committee members' recommendation.

While we all mourn the untimely death of the horse, it was a one-in-forty-year accident that no one could have anticipated. Right?

Well, let's see. Did anyone ever ask himself or herself what would happen if the rider fell off and the horse got loose on a football field full of people? Did anyone consider that the new saddle may be too stiff for the horse and rider to use? Is there anyone, besides the Masked Rider, who is on the field and trained to work with a horse who, on numerous occasions, has proven to be rather skittish?

These and many other questions must be answered, and it is up to the student body of Texas Tech University to continue to demand answers about Double T's death.

The university responded correctly to the horrific situation by calling a meeting and making decisions about the future of the Masked Rider tradition before rumors began spreading. Now what is foremost on everyone's mind is memorializing our mascot.

But do not forget that the horse killed itself after running head-first into a wall. There has to be a reason for that happening, and someone must come forward and take responsibility.

Why did people on the field go running when the horse got loose? Where were the people who are appointed to stand guard around the horse's running track?

Who fastened the saddle? How many times did Amy Smart and Double T practice the run with the new saddle?

Most importantly, will there be an investigation into Saturday's incident? What will the investigation entail? Who will take part in it, and to whom will they report?

And, finally, why does the Masked Rider program fall under direction of the Student Organization Services Office and not under the direction of the department of animal science?

Time has come for spirit uprising

To the editor:

Now is the time for the students of Texas Tech to make a change. Tech has many traditions, but from where I sit in the student section, the traditions dwindle by the second quarter. Many of the students sitting around me don't know the Tech Fight Song or the Matador Song. Now is the time for change.

The Masked Rider Committee felt that the tradition of the Masked Rider was an important enough tradition to continue it even after Saturday's tragedy. We, as Tech students, should now make sure that all the important traditions of Tech continue. The first step should be that we all sit down this afternoon and memorize the Matador Song which will be dedicated to Double T before tonight's game against Nebraska. But tradition should not stop there. Know the fight song, stand when it is played and put your guns up like a proud Red Raider. We may get our butts whipped by Nebraska, but what a better time than to show a national ESPN audience that Tech has more traditions than flying tortillas.

Many people love to hate Texas A&M. I personally feel that my dislike toward A&M stems from the fact that I wish Tech would show as much tradition as they do.

Tech has a number of great traditions. This year's freshmen have the opportunity to learn them and use them, and to take freshmen next year under their wings and teach them these traditions and tell them how important it is to follow them.

There is a book called "Tech Traditions" that the Ex-Students Association is selling for $7.95. Student organizations should each purchase a copy of this book and teach their new members a little about the place they will call home the next four to six years. In a quote from the advertisement for this book, Saddle Tramps founder Arch Lamb states, "Like the soul of a man, you can't put your finger on it, can't draw a picture of it. School spirit just appears when you need it, then it disappears until it is needed again."

Tech needs school spirit and needs to know it and show it, not just at the football games or when the Lady Raiders win a national championship, but all the time. When you graduate from Tech and put the Texas Tech Ex-Students sticker on your car, don't you want to know in your heart that you got a little more than a diploma?

Let's start to show a little more respect for Tech. Wearing with pride, so what if our teams aren't always No. 1 in the NCAA? At least our school could be No. 1 in our hearts.

Eileen L. Beeks

Mascot getting too much attention

To the editor:

I was more amused than disturbed by the fact that the death of Double T got a bigger headline in The University Daily than did the death of Richard Nixon or the outbreak of the Gulf War. However, it is really necessary to fly the flags in Memorial Circle at half-staff? I would find it quite distasteful in the future to see the flags flying at half-staff for a deceased student or a faculty member, and to realize that these human beings were being shown the same measure of respect as a dead horse.

Derald Mabbitt

In light of Saturday's tragic mishap, do you believe university officials should discontinue the Masked Rider tradition?

ATO defends action after accident

To the editor:

I am writing this letter in response to the letter submitted by Christopher Snead in Wednesday's University Daily. I was sitting in class Wednesday reading the paper like I do every day, and I came upon what is one of the biggest shocks I've had in my life. I can't believe that you can sit there and accuse an entire chapter of a fraternity (here or anywhere else for that matter) of making sick jokes about a tragedy such as the death of Double T.

I am an active member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and, yes, I was at the game with the rest of my brothers. Mr. Snead, I don't know where you were sitting, but I was in the center of about 25 ATOs and several pledges, and I heard no such comments.

This is a complete and utter outrage. My organization is here to support Texas Tech in all aspects, especially during a tragic moment such as this. I fully agree with you in the fact that these comments you heard are sick and disgusting. I can assure you, though, that they were not made by any active member of my organization.

In closing, let me say that my heart goes out to Amy Smart for the ordeal she must be going through. Something like this affects the entire university and, instead of pointing fingers, we should come together and support each other.

Rider, not horse, to blame for fall

To the editor:

What is going to have to happen before something happens very serious? What I'm referring to is the accidents that have happened repeatedly at Jones Stadium with the Masked Rider! In 1982, it was a cheerleader. In '92, it was a referee. And now, a Masked Rider has fallen off, and the Texas Tech mascot is DEAD! Thank God it wasn't a person's death we're all grieving. Don't get me wrong, I'm a senior at Tech and full of tradition. In no way am I implying that the Masked Rider program should be canned! I love seeing the Masked Rider run after each touchdown. What I'm saying is the program doesn't need to be reevaluated, but the Masked Rider Selection Committee needs to be reevaluated!!

Let me give you a hint: Just because a person has been around animals all his or her life and because it's always been his or her childhood dream to be a Masked Rider DOESN'T MEAN THEY CAN RIDE A HORSE!

The incompetence of the last few Masked Riders has been sickening. (When I say incompetence, I'm referring to their horsemanship skills, riding ability and all-around horse knowledge — not public relations skills.) I have grown up on a ranch and ridden all my life, and I fully understand what type of skills are needed to fulfill the Masked Rider's duties at Jones Stadium.

I have seen many great Masked Riders who were great horsemen — Leigh Whitehead, Blaine Lemmons and Ralynn Key — just to name a few — along with many others through the years!

I'm not blaming any specific individual for each incident, but let's get real and serious about preventative measures and be a little more rigid about the selection of the Masked Rider! A childhood dream and an A in animal husbandry 2300 doesn't qualify a person to ride a stick of dynamite at full speed in front of 30,000 spectators.

R. Brice Key

A horse is a horse, of course

To the editor:

Here's the situation: Let's say the Nebraska game was the first game of the season, and we happen to score the go-ahead touchdown, and Double T starts his lap. Now, instead of Double T running aimlessly around, let's say Raider Red happens to be in the way, and he gets run over before the horse takes his head-first collision in the tunnel. Who do you mourn for?

For everyone complaining about the mascot, which one is more important (they're both mascots!)?

For those who were there like myself, you saw Amy Smart fall; thank goodness nothing happened to her. The point is, it's a horse, people!

Don't get me wrong, I loved seeing him run around after every score as much as any Tech fan, past or present.

I just wonder if any people were hurt, would there have been as much hoopla about the outcome of the horse, the jokes made about the incident or the fate of the tradition. Speaking of the tradition, I'm glad to see they're going to try to continue it.

It just wouldn't be the same without the black horse racing down the sidelines affirming the fact that

Yes, we, Texas Tech, put points on the board! Bask in our bragging and bathe in our tortillas!

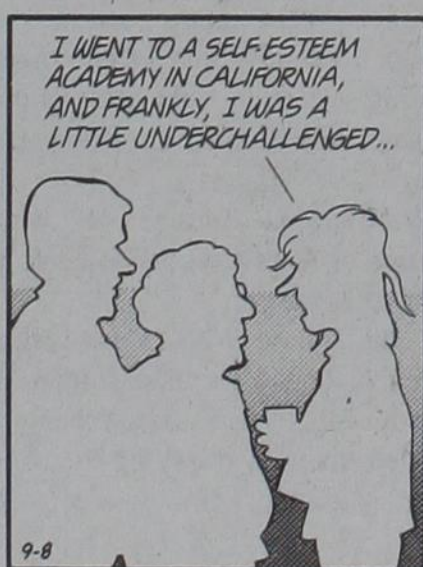

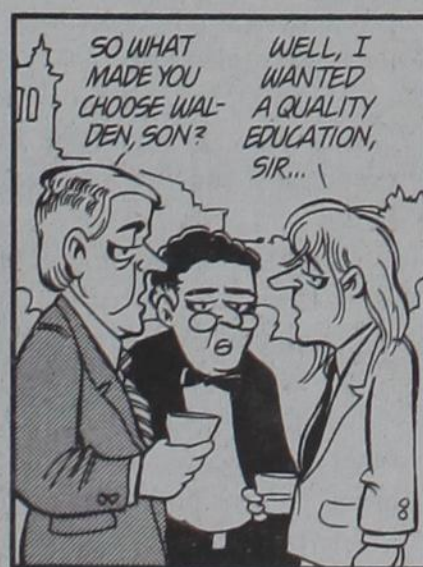

Between all this B.S., the important point to remember is: No people got hurt, and the tradition will continue after all.

As for the horse, I am sorry he died because with all animals, I know people that were close to him will truly miss him. But the matter is the same with all animals. You feed 'em, you watch 'em grow up and just when you're getting used to them, they either run away or die on you after all the work you put in! Sure, you whine and moan at first and try to blame your situation on everybody else, but eventually you get over it.

So, as a catalyst and a friend, I am willing to help everyone get through these tough times by conveying this message to you: Get Over It!

Breakfast may affect nutrition, weight gain

BY SUSAN OSBORNE
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Recent studies show neglecting to eat a good breakfast can do more than just leave you hungry.

Nancy Beck, a Texas Tech Health Sciences Center pediatric nutritionist, said studies show people who skip breakfast may have more problems with their weight.

"College students need to eat a healthy breakfast," she said. "You shouldn't wait until lunchtime."

Theories suggest skipping breakfast can alter the metabolic rate, she said. Beck said according to the theory, eating dinner in the evening and then missing breakfast leaves 16 hours that the body does not receive nutrients.

"The metabolic rate slows down, thinking it is not going to get food," Beck said.

She said skipping breakfast may leave a person feeling so hungry that they compensate by eating more.

Beck said eating a healthy breakfast doesn't have to mean eggs and bacon.

"You could eat chicken and broccoli if you wanted to," Beck said. "You need to get a good source of nutrients."

Beck suggested high-protein and low-fat foods, such as skim milk, egg substitutes, cereals, fruit and juice, to start the day.

Complex carbohydrates, such as starches like bread, vegetables and fruits, are a good source of fuel, she said.

Simple sugars, such as candy, do not provide as many nutrients, Beck said.

Beck said coffee is safe to drink in the morning, as long as it is consumed in moderation. She also said it should not be consumed on an empty stomach.

If a breakfast high in fat is eaten, the individual should watch his or her intake for the rest of the day, Beck said. She said the amount of breakfast necessary varies, depending on height, weight, level of activity and age.

"Intake will vary from one person to another and depends on how old you are," she said. "As you age, the body uses fewer calories."

Calorie intake also depends on gender, Beck said.

"Men have more muscle mass, which is more metabolic," Beck said. "This explains why men can burn calories faster."

According to material published by the TTUHSC, nutritionists recommend making no more than 30 percent of your daily caloric intake fat sources.

Carbohydrates are much more easily digested than fats and should comprise 60 percent of your daily calories. The remaining 10 percent should be protein.

Taking the leap ROTC plans local air assault demonstration

BY AMY OSMULSKI
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Rappelling out of a helicopter may be an everyday experience in the U.S. Army, but Texas Tech Army ROTC is giving Lubbockites the opportunity to watch the experience.

Tech's Army ROTC will be sponsoring a joint air assault demonstration with the Texas National Guard and local recruiting offices to promote interest, said Dave Egbert, Tech assistant professor of military science.

"Being a big Air Force town, there is really not that much Army stuff," he said. "Hopefully, this will promote some interest and get some people out there to watch."

A Black Hawk helicopter, which seats up to 22 people, will arrive at the field between the Navy recruiting office and the Ranching Heritage Center at one p.m. Thursday. The helicopter pilot then will be briefed about the demonstration, Egbert said.

Demonstrations will begin at 4 p.m.

Capt. Tom Harlow, Tech assistant professor of military science, and Master Sgt. Gary Moble of Fort Hood, will be lifted about 90 feet above the ground. They will be hooked up to a rope and to the aircraft, and will complete a standard air assault rappel to the ground, Egbert said. An officer must be air-assault qualified before rappelling from an aircraft, Harlow said. Officer preparation includes attending a 10 day training session and learning aircraft control techniques.

"It's always exciting when getting to rappel from an aircraft," Harlow said. "It's also good to be nervous, because when you get to sure of yourself, accidents happen."

A rappel master will be in the helicopter to ensure that the officers are properly hooked to the rope and the aircraft, Harlow said.

"It's one thing to rappel off of something sturdy, like a tower or the side of a mountain," Egbert said. "But something like a helicopter is completely different."

After the demonstration, the helicopter pilot will be available to answer questions and give observers the opportunity to view the aircraft and equipment.

"We hope this will serve as a recruiting tool for other students," Harlow said. "It will show what possibilities are offered and what they can be doing in a few years."

Horse

Memorial service held for Double T

"We're not only honoring the horse, but the tradition," Sommermeyer said. "That's how you build great universities."

Sommermeyer said the memorial service activities will begin with the playing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

Students will be asked to stand with their guns up during a moment of silence for Double T.

Four members of the football team and two members of the Saddle Tramps will carry a horseshoe-shaped wreath onto the field, following the moment of silence.

Masked Rider Amy Smart will then place her reins on the wreath.

The wreath will be removed to the corner of the stadium reserved for the Masked Rider.

"I think it would be very unfortunate for Texas Tech and the Lubbock community to lose this tradition," Saddle Tramps President Scott Collier said. "We support every tradition Tech has. If we didn't have the Masked Rider, what would Tech be?"

Tentative plans for a memorial include a monument to be placed at the Tech Ranch in New Deal.

Donations to the memorial fund should be sent to the Double T Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 42031, Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas 79409-2031.

Officials change state penal code

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — State officials moved Wednesday to squelch rumors sweeping the Texas prison system that changes in the state penal code reduced possible charges for assaulting prison guards.

"The message is we don't want any monkey business from people coming up here to serve their time," Sen. John Whitmire, D-Houston, said at a news conference held inside the Holliday Unit, a Huntsville area prison.

The new penal code, parts of which began taking effect Sept. 1, streamlined many provisions in criminal law, including elimination of specific felony charges of aggravated assault against corrections officers.

Rumors picked up by corrections officials in the units indicated inmates saw elimination of the specific items covering guard assaults as a green light to beat up guards.

"The word was out in the units and farms that as of Sept. 1 it was going to be open season on officers and guards," said Oran McMichael, assistant regional director for the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

It is a labor group that represents about 10 percent of the state's 42,000 corrections workers. "That was coming through the rumor mill. That was being said to officers and employees."

Playa lakes offer relief, cause floods

BY SANDY FULLER
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Although Lubbock has yet to receive a substantial rainfall this semester, when it does rain, Texas Tech students driving to school may wish their vehicles could float.

Many streets in Lubbock and on the Tech campus become flooded after a rainfall because of Lubbock's playa lake drainage system, said Melanie Barnes, a research associate in geosciences.

Tony Mollhagen, director of the environmental science laboratory in Tech's Water Resources Center, defined a playa lake as a shallow-watered body, usually temporary in nature and accumulating water briefly.

"They are more common here than anywhere else in the U.S.," Mollhagen said.

THEY REALLY ARE A CRITICAL WATER SOURCE IN THIS AREA.

Melanie Barnes
research associate

Playa lakes are found throughout the High Plains, encompassing West Texas, eastern New Mexico, the Oklahoma panhandle, the southeastern tip of Colorado and southwest Kansas.

Barnes said the playa lakes in Lubbock are naturally occurring, although some have been reshaped, and some have been dug deeper. There is one playa lake about every square mile in the city, she said.

He said many of the playa lakes in Lubbock hold water year-round.

"Because of all the paving, the playas get more runoff," he said. "The playas accumulate a greater volume of water."

Besides serving as a basin for stormwater runoff, the playa lakes also provide farmers with water for irrigation, Barnes said.

The lakes could also be an important source for replenishing groundwater, she said.

"They really are a critical water source in this area," Barnes said. "The question we have is 'Are the playa lakes recharging the groundwater?'"

In some dry playa lakes, desiccation cracks in the beds are believed to provide quicker routes and access to the groundwater, Barnes said.

She said there is a problem with percolation from the water in playa lakes that are continuously full, and a mound begins to form under the lake.

"In the zone that is full of water, it (the mound) gets closer and closer to the ground," Barnes said.

She said in the late 1930s, general studies showed the groundwater level was about 80 feet from the earth's surface.

Now it is about 20 to 50 feet from the surface, she said.

"The city has tried to minimize development next to the playa lakes," she said. "Many playa lakes are in parks."

Barnes said Lubbock does not have an underground storm drainage system because of the flatness of the plain the city is located on.

"There is very little slope in the city," Barnes said. "It would be costly and difficult to build a storm drainage system. I don't think some citizens understand that."

She estimated it would cost the city $60 million to fix drainage problems.

The Water Resources Center is working on a playa lakes project for the city.

Mollhagen said they are making contour maps of the bottoms of 11 lakes in Lubbock in hopes that the city will later be able to increase the storage capacity of the basins.

DOE accepting applications for fellowships

The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) Office of Health and Environmental Research is now accepting applications.

The Global Change Distinguished Postdoctoral Fellowships offer research opportunities related to the U.S. Change Research Program and addresses strategic priorities: observation and data management, process research and the science areas.

Seven awards will be awarded with first-year stipends of $35,000. The deadline is Dec. 15, 1994.

The Alexander Hollaender Distinguished Postdoctoral Fellowship program will relate in the areas of scientific disciplines. Up to 10 new fellowships will be awarded with first-year stipends of $37,500.

The deadline is Jan. 15, 1995. Topics include health and environmental effects.

The Human Genome Distinguished Postdoctoral Fellowships will offer up to five awards with first-year stipends of $37,500 in biology, chemistry, physics, engineering, math and information science. The deadline is set for Feb. 1, 1995.

Awards will be based on academic records, recommendations, compatibility of background and scientific interests of the research center and the mission of the DOE.

These programs are open to qualified U.S. citizens and permanent residents.

For an application packet, write to Science/Engineering Education Division, Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education, P.O. Box 117, Oak Ridge, Tenn. 37831-0117 or call (615) 576-9975.

Funds available through NRC

Those looking into the field of nuclear power regulation and who want to continue their education may turn to the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The NRC provides funds for students interested in pursuing master's degrees in health physics, nuclear engineering and specialty engineering disciplines in instrumentation and control systems, material science, materials engineering or metallurgy.

Fellows work a minimum of nine months prior to graduate school.

Applications will be taken through Jan. 23, 1995, and awards will be announced in April. For more information contact Etta Cox at (615) 576-9279 or Tom Richmond (615) 576-2194.

Coordination answer to serving Lubbock's homeless

Lubbock Homeless Consortium, said her group looks forward to joining the new team.

"We will play into the planning process the best we can," Stuart said. "We're optimistic that the more coordination we can get between the resources, the better our population will be served."

Reyes said, "We can come together to see who's going to provide what."

The consortium also will decide if housing services are being duplicated within the groups, he said.

"There is a perceived notion out in the community that there are a lot of organizations doing work in housing through a hodgepodge of programs that nobody has their finger on," he said. "Nobody knows what the right hand is doing for the left."

The consortium also will keep the Lubbock City Council briefed on housing efforts in the city.

"I don't believe the City Council is up to speed on everything available and how it might fit together (with housing efforts)," Reyes said.

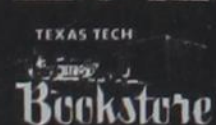

Wesley listed 24 groups associated with the consortium.

Blind man accused of abusing guide dog

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A blind man's guide dog was taken away by a judge after he was accused of beating and kicking the animal.

Thomas Caparco, 46, removed the collar and bridle from his Labrador retriever, Loggins.

He then walked out of court on his father's arm Tuesday.

Caparco has not been convicted of beating the dog, but he was accused of doing so while on trial for allegedly committing the same offense in June.

That trial was scheduled to resume Wednesday.

Judge Michael Higgins released Caparco without bail provided he give the dog to the Rhode Island Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

SPCA general agent Lionel Hetu said it was the first time he could recall a guide dog being taken from its owner on cruelty charges.

Caparco's father, Michael, said his son never mistreated the dog.

Sometimes the animal "goes off track" after things like potato chips and has to be given a jerk on his choke chain, he said.

Tech ready to take on top-ranked Huskers

BY BRYAN ADAMS
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The No. 1 team in the country is in town to take on Texas Tech's football team in a nationally televised game. The Red Raiders have had four days of preparation before hosting Nebraska at 7 p.m. today at Jones Stadium.

Nebraska and Tech have played each other twice before. Nebraska leads the series 2-0.

The first meeting was in 1976 when Nebraska upset a 10-1 Tech team at the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

The second contest was last year in Lincoln when Nebraska beat Tech 50-27.

Tech is coming off a 37-31 victory over New Mexico Saturday, where the Raiders had 467 yards of total offense. Tony Darden, a redshirt freshman from San Antonio, became the first freshman to ever open the season at quarterback for Tech when he directed the first- and third-quarter offenses against New Mexico. Another freshman, Zebbie Lethridge of Lubbock, played the second and fourth quarters.

"I thought they both played very well," Cornhusker head coach Tom Osborne said. "The thing about it is they got two good ones. If one gets hurt, they aren't going to panic because they got another one ready to go."

Sophomore Sone Cavazos, another quarterback who is battling for the starting job, did not play against New Mexico.

Head coach Spike Dykes hinted that Cavazos might play against the Huskers.

"We'll probably do it about the same as last week, except for Sone. He didn't get to play last week because of said. "I'm not saying we're going to score 50 points, but I hope we do."

Kickoff is scheduled for 7:01 p.m., and the game will be nationally televised by ESPN-TV.

This week's opponent will be the 26th nationally ranked team Dykes has faced since taking over the team in 1986.

"We need to be patient, careful with the football and give ourselves a chance," Dykes said. "Last year, we just hung in there and played pretty good for a long time. I think that will carry over into this game. You just have to play your game."

For the second consecutive week, the Red Raiders' defense will tangle with a huge offensive line. New Mexico averaged 309 pounds on the line. Nebraska averages 295 pounds and has two possible all-American tackles in Zach Wiegert and Rob Zatechka.

Nebraska's offensive line makes for a running game worthy of notice by the Tech defense. Tech's defense surrendered only 83 yards rushing against New Mexico. In contrast, Nebraska rushed for 382 yards against West Virginia.

There was much concern on defense about how some players would step up to perform. Sophomore outside linebacker Robert Johnson, formerly a Raider back (5 feet 11 inches and 186 pounds), led the team with 12 tackles and picked off a pass.

Johnson was blocked by and had to cover a 6-foot 7-inch, 253-pound tight end.

Linebacker Shawn Banks was the only other Tech player to collect double figures in tackles with 10.

"They say you make your most improvement from the first to second game," Dykes said. "I don't know how much better they can get. Our players know it will be extremely difficult beating Nebraska, but they also know that if we fire our best shot, we will be a lot better off Thursday night about 11 than we were at 7. We probably won't win, but it will be great."

Volleyball defeats UTEP in three games

BY JESSE MALDONADO
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

The Texas Tech volleyball team remained with tradition as the Red Raiders added a win to their record in home openers Wednesday, beating the University of Texas-El Paso Lady Miners.

It took the Red Raiders only three games to defeat the Lady Miners 15-5, 15-12 and 15-11.

Coach Mike Jones' team came into the home opener with some momentum after defeating George Washington. The Red Raiders did not lose a beat against the Lady Miners.

Highlighting the match was the Raiders' come-from-behind victory in the second game.

"It's about the third or fourth time we have done this — coming back from being down and winning the game," Jones said.

A tremendous effort from sophomore outside hitter Lacy Nye, Carter and junior outside hitter Diane Owens rallied the Red Raiders, bringing them back from a 10-3 deficit. Tech won the game 15-12.

"I think this (coming back) is a characteristic that they are showing now that they have so much courage to come back and win some of these games," Jones said.

In the final game of the match, Tech simply relied on some key players and pivotal plays. The Raiders once again struggled at the beginning with the Lady Miners, but Nye and Owens made sure the opponents never got ahead.

The Raiders came away not only with a game victory of 15-11, but with a match victory.

The match victory upped Tech's overall record to 3-2. The Lady Miners suffered their first loss of the season, leaving them with an overall record of 4-1.

"This is a team with a lot of heart, courage — and they play hard," Jones said.

"Somebody may beat us, but I don't think they'll back down and give up," he said.

the wind. He doesn't throw as tight a spiral as the other two."

Nebraska's last game was 12 days ago, Aug. 28, against West Virginia in the Kickoff Classic. The Huskers shut out the Mountaineers 31-0. West Virginia was ranked No. 24 in the Associated Press poll at the time of the game.

"We thought we should've scored 50 points in New Jersey," Osborne

Oilers may start Richardson Sunday

HOUSTON (AP) — Although Bucky Richardson practiced as the Houston Oilers top quarterback on Wednesday and newcomer Billy Joe Tolliver worked as his backup, Cody Carlson could still start on Sunday against Dallas.

Carlson suffered a second degree separation of his left, non-throwing shoulder in Sunday's 45-21 loss to Indianapolis.

On Wednesday, he threw without shoulder pads and watched the live practice.

"I'm preparing Bucky to be the guy," assistant head coach Kevin Gilbride said.

"If it comes Sunday and Cody says he can go, he'll go. But now, I'm prepared to go with Bucky."

Richardson threw three second-half touchdowns in a lost cause Sunday in his best regular-season performance since being drafted out of Texas A&M in the eighth round in 1992.

"I know Cody feels a lot better today and if he feels good, he'll play," Richardson said.

And if Carlson can't play? "I'll just be ready if the need me," Richardson said.

"I'm treating it like any work week, keeping the same routine. If Cody can't play or they don't want to risk it, I feel I'll play well and do a good job."

Carlson sounded more positive on Wednesday about his chances to play this weekend than he did on Monday.

"I'm answering the way I feel," Carlson said.

"It feels all right. By Sunday, I think I can go out there and play. It will depend on what's best for this football team."

"If I can't play 100 percent then, that's not smart (to play)."

Tolliver, a former Texas Tech quarterback who played at San Diego and Atlanta, signed a contract Wednesday in time to take part in the drills.

"It always feels great to get back home," Tolliver said. "I'll try not to do more than I'm coached to do. Then you're OK."

Tolliver started 19 games for the Chargers in 1989 and 1990 before he was traded to the Falcons prior to the 1991 season.

He's getting his shot with the Oilers because of his background in the run-and-shoot with the Falcons.

There he played for former Oilers coach Jerry Glanville.

Tolliver completed 79 of 158 passes for 1,010 yards for five touchdowns and nine interceptions with Atlanta.

"These are the same plays (as Atlanta's)," Tolliver said.

"The only difference is the terminology."

But Richardson really wants a chance to play.

When he was told that fans in Dallas were asking "Bucky Who?" Richardson said he wanted his chance to show them who.

"They have every right to say that," Richardson said.

"Maybe after the game they'll say different. I'll just go play my style. I won't be intimidated."

Ohio State football player suspended for accepting $200 in financial aid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State wide receiver Joey Galloway, who passed up the NFL to stay return to the Buckeyes for his senior year, was suspended Wednesday for two games for accepting money from a financial planner.

The NCAA said Galloway is ineligible to play the next two games, including No. 18 Ohio State's game Saturday at No. 25 Washington.

The university said Galloway received $200 from a financial adviser when he was considering whether to make himself available to the NFL draft in January.

"When I took the money, I considered myself 100 percent leaving college football," Galloway said at a news conference. "Then I went home and changed my mind about deciding to leave and I didn't repay the money."

He would not say who the adviser was. He said he repaid the money last week with an undisclosed amount of interest.

"Obviously I feel very bad for our football team and I feel bad for Joey," coach John Cooper said at the news conference. "What does this do to our football team? I've talked to the team about this already, we've got to circle our wagons and pick up the slack."

Athletic director Andy Geiger said in a written statement the payment was disclosed during "a normal investigative procedure by the NCAA."

"We declared Joey ineligible, then appealed to have his eligibility restored," Geiger said.

The NCAA restored his eligibility, but not until after the Sept. 17 game with Pittsburgh, Ohio State's home opener. Galloway can resume playing Sept. 24, a home game against Houston.

"Obviously, we are disappointed by this turn of events. Joey Galloway is a great player and the team will most certainly miss his play and leadership the next two games. We will just have to pull together and have some of our younger players step up."

Galloway matched an Ohio State record with 11 touchdown receptions last year.

In the Buckeyes' season-opening 34-10 victory over Fresno State on Aug. 29, Galloway caught two passes for 88 yards, including a 67-yard touchdown. He ran the ball twice for 19 yards and another score.

Galloway had considered turning pro after Ohio State's Holiday Bowl victory over Brigham Young in January. He surprised many by electing to stay in school. He said he wanted to go to the Rose Bowl and take a chance at winning the Heisman.

Cooper said in the same statement:

Soccer team looks to captains for leadership

BY JARED PARCELL
THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

Captains are essential parts to any team's success.

For the Texas Tech women's soccer team, the captains are seniors Amy Holtman, Lori Thompson and Carrie Donovan.

Holtman is an exercise and sports science major from Katy. Thompson, the only left-footer on the team, is majoring in recreation and leisure services from Dallas. The third captain, Donovan, is an English major from Houston.

They all say they agree that being selected team captain is an honor for any member of a team.

"It's a nice pay-off after three years of club play," Donovan said.

Prior to becoming a part of Division I play, the women's team at Tech was a club sport. Some current team members played on the club team.

"I had hoped (to play on a team.) I played with the club team and knew many of the players," Holtman said.

The captains on any team are expected to provide leadership for their teams. The Tech captains are no different.

"I feel I provide leadership to younger players and help set the tone of dedication," Thompson said.

Tuesday, the team opened its first season with a 5-0 win over Hardin-Simmons. The trio of captains was not only excited about the win, but also relieved.

"I am excited that I was a part of the first win. I didn't know what to expect," Holtman said. Holtman finished Tuesday night with one goal and one assist.

"We played a real good game. We passed the ball well and showed a lot as a team," Donovan said.

Success usually does not occur immediately for young teams. The captains say the outlook for this team is bright.

"If we work hard, we could finish over .500," Donovan said. "As the season progresses and the team comes together, success should not be far behind."

Donovan, who graduates in December, said the decision to play on the team was easy.

"Playing on the varsity team my senior year is a great send-off," she said.

If Tuesday night was any indication, this team could provide further excitement for the university in the next 15 games.

The next two tests for the young team are in Austin this weekend.

The team is scheduled to take on St. Edward's University on Friday at 6 p.m.

Airball SAM W. MAGEE/LA VENTANA
Kristi Patterson, a sophomore midfielder from Lewisville, fights for control of the ball in the season opener against Hardin-Simmons. The Raiders next take to the pitch Friday in Austin against St. Edwards.

Linksters ready to start

The Lady Raiders' golf team is set to tee-off this weekend.

The squad will travel to Las Cruces, N.M., to play in the Diet Coke-Roadrunner Invitational.

This is the first tournament of the season for coach Jeff Mitchell's Raider golf team.

The Lady Raiders are expected to play up to par against all 17 teams attending. The New Mexico State University par-74 course will be the site for the tournament. The first round of play is set to get under way Friday morning, with the final round wrapping up on Sunday.

Former Cougars admit to cheating

HOUSTON (AP) — Former and current University of Houston football players routinely paid another player to take their math exams, the Houston Chronicle reported Wednesday.

University officials say the newspaper is milking old news.

"The university is going to do the right thing. If you do the wrong thing and get caught, you're going to be talking to the newspapers, because you're not going to be on the team," coach Kim Helton told The Associated Press Wednesday.

But three former players say the cheating is more widespread than first reported to college officials last December.

That's when former defensive tackle Linton Weatherspoon was caught trying to take an algebra exam for offensive lineman Tim Winburn, who played during the 1993 season.

Winburn said Weatherspoon took an algebra midterm for him last fall and for two UH players who remain on the team. He estimated 10 players may have been involved in the scheme.

SMU men lose leading scorer

DALLAS (AP) — Leading Southern Methodist scorer Troy Matthews, injured during preseason conditioning drills, will miss six to eight weeks of action, doctors say.

The sophomore guard, who averaged 8.2 points per game last season, was scheduled to undergo surgery Thursday morning for a fracture on his left thumb, the Mustangs said.

The Mustangs said Wednesday that the 6-2, 185-pound Matthews will have a temporary pin placed in his hand at Mary Shields Hospital in Dallas.

Pokes sign Chapman to replace Coleman

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys signed rookie Lindsey Chapman for a second time on Wednesday as a backup to Emmitt Smith.

Chapman, a tailback out of the University of California, was cut from the New York Jets training camp this summer.

He was signed by the Cowboys and cut the next day.

Dallas cut former backup, Lincoln

Coleman, on Tuesday and thought they had signed rookie free-agent William Bell off the Washington practice squad, until the Redskins matched the Cowboys' two-year offer of $108,000 and $135,000.

Tech Notes

- Texas Tech linebacker Zach Thomas was selected the Associated Press Southwest Conference Defensive Player of the Week for his performance against New Mexico. Thomas had eight tackles and returned an interception for a touchdown against the Lobos.

THE UNIVERSITY DAILY

SEPTEMBER 8, 1994

TEXAS TECH VS

THE SERIES

THE SERIES: Despite regional proximity, this will be only the third meeting between the two schools that will be in the same Big 12 Conference starting in 1996. Nebraska won the first two encounters: 27-24 in the 1976 Bluebonnet Bowl and 50-27 last year in Lincoln.

AGAINST THE BIG 8: This will be Texas Tech's 40th meeting with teams currently in the Big 8 Conference, and only one other school holds a winning edge against the Red Raiders. That's Oklahoma, which has won the series only meetings the last two years. Here is how Tech has fared against other Big 8 schools: Oklahoma State (12-8-3), Kansas (4-0), Kansas State (3-0), Iowa State (2-0) and Colorado (2-1). The overall mark is 23-13-3.

SPIKE'S THOUGHTS

"Playing a team that's No. 1 in the nation is something special. I know one thing, our productivity is really going to have to improve. We are really going to have to work hard this week to prepare. We know it will be a tough game but in the long range deal this game will help us. Our players look forward to the challenge."

THE COACHES: Texas Tech football coach Spike Dykes, in his eighth full campaign with the Red Raiders, has a 42-38-1 record. Nebraska coach Tom Osborne, the nation's winningest active coach with an .813 percentage, has a 207-47-3 record in his 22nd season.

TEAM STAFF

THE DEFENSE: It was until the last year when Texas Tech made its first interception of the season. It took a long wait this year as the Red Raiders' defense claimed four takeaways in the first three games. The first interception occurred early in the third quarter by Zach Thomas and Cat Adams set the go-ahead points with a 10-0 lead.

Tight End

For the sixth consecutive year, the Automobile Division of American Honda is presenting the Honda Scholar Athlete Award to outstanding student athletes participating in NCAA Division I football. During the course of the collegiate football season, nine athletes from selected conference teams and major independent universities will be recognized as Honda Scholar Athletes. Awards are given to those students demonstrating exceptional performance in both their scholastic and athletic endeavors.

This week, the Honda Scholar Athlete Award will be presented to Scott Aylor, tight end for Texas Tech. Scott's selection will be announced during ESPN Sports coverage of Texas Tech vs. Nebraska game this Thursday, September 8.

American Honda will make a $3,000 donation to the Texas Tech general scholarship fund in Scott's honor.

Aylor, a 6'4", 230-pound senior, has been on the starting team for three years and is the leading receiver from last season. Scott is a GTE/SWC Academic Honor Team member. He has a 3.115 grade point average, with his major in electrical engineering. Scott has also earned a spot on the President's list with a 4.0 GPA this spring.

TEXAS TECH UNIVERSITY

LUBBOCK, TEXAS

VS NEBRASKA

STATUS

It was until the fifth game that Texas Tech really came up with a plan. There was no plan as the defenders swiped the aerial attack in the opener. The four ways in all. Two huge plays in the third quarter when the Cat Ams set up the tying points with interceptions.

THE SCOUT REPORT

TEXAS TECH

THE QUARTER BACK BATTLE: Tony Darden of San Antonio became the first freshman to ever open a season at quarterback for Texas Tech when he directed the first-quarter offense against New Mexico. But another freshman -- Zebbie Lethridge of Lubbock -- was more productive. He engineered a 70-yard TD drive and a 49-yard march that resulted in a field goal late in the first half. After Darden played the third stanza, Zebbie manufactured an eight-minute fourth-quarter drive that produced a field goal. Each quarterback produced three scoring drives, with Lethridge playing nine possessions and Darden eight. The third member of the quarterback battle -- Sone Cavazos -- did not play.

NEBRASKA

The 'Huskers, who missed the national championship by a hair last year, are loaded. They held nationally ranked West Virginia to only four total yards in the first half of their season opening 31-0 win. Quarterback Tommie Frazier is a strong Heisman candidate while the offensive line is huge with a trio of 300 plus players starting. Standout linebacker Ed Stewart heads a list of six returning starters on defense. The Huskers are riding a 14-game regular season winning streak -- currently longest in the country.

Fans hope fall sports equal summer success

JARED PARCELL

Sports fans had many things to cheer and jeer over the summer months:

• In the (NBA) Finals, the Houston Rockets took on the heavily favored New York Knicks.

Hakeem Olajuwon, MVP of the regular season, added the playoff MVP to his collection as he led the Rockets and the city of Houston to their first world title.

• Soccer fans had plenty to cheer about during World Cup.

The United States hosted the event for the first time and advanced to the second round of the event.

Brazil took on Italy in the finals at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. After battling for two hours, Brazil defeated Italy 0(3)-0(2) in a penalty shoot-out. Brazil could call themselves a soccer powerhouse, having won four world titles.

• For the first time in 54 years, the New York Rangers took home the Stanley Cup, downing the surprising Vancouver Canucks four games to three.

• Baseball was exciting ... up to the strike. Ken Griffey Jr. of the Seattle Mariners and Matt Williams of the San Francisco Giants threatened to shatter Roger Maris' home run record of 61 in a season.

At the strike date, Williams had equaled Maris' mark, 43 in 155 games.

Frank Thomas of the Chicago White Sox and Jeff Bagwell of the Houston Astros not only took a shot at Maris, but they were threatening to capture the Triple Crown in their respective leagues.

Triple Crowns are won by players leading their leagues in home runs, runs batted in and batting average.

• The All-Star game captured the hearts of many baseball fans.

Moises Alou drove in Tony Gwynn from first base with a double and the winning run, as the National League snapped the American League's six-game winning streak.

The game was sent into extra innings after Fred McGriff of the Atlanta Braves hit a two-run, game-tying home run in the bottom of the ninth off Baltimore's Lee Smith who entered the game with 29 saves.

• There has not been a major league game since Aug. 11 when the Oakland A's and Seattle Mariners played the "final" game of the season.

With the A's loss that night, the Texas Rangers held a one-game lead in the American League West, despite being nine games under the .500 mark. And they want to call themselves the American League West champs?

Unfortunately, owners and players cannot get along.

Players want money — owners do not want to give out more money. Even the shoe company, Nike, is begging the players to come back to the field. Will there be more in '94? At least there is minor league baseball.

• The Dallas Cowboys began a new era as Barry Switzer opened training camp as the team's new head coach.

Will the Cowboys run wishbone at any point this season?

The Cowboys downed the Steelers Sunday 29-6. Not one play was run from the wishbone.

Switzer is the first new Cowboys coach in five years and replaces Jimmy Johnson who led the team to consecutive Super Bowls.

• Buddy Ryan returned to the coaching ranks and will lead the Arizona Cardinals into, hopefully, a better future.

Do they have boxing rings on the sidelines in Phoenix?

The Cardinals, despite changing their first name, still looked like the same old Cards, falling to the Los Angeles Rams 14-12.

• The Houston Oilers opened training camp, minus one Warren Moon.

Because of the new NFL salary cap, the Oilers were forced to send Moon packing for Minnesota.

Cody Carlson, the long-time back-up, now takes the snaps.

Now the former Aggie, Bucky Richardson, is in control, after Carlson suffered a second-degree shoulder separation against the Colts on Sunday.

• While several baseball players were chasing records, the best chase came in O. J. Simpson's white Bronco.

With a television audience watching the NBA Finals, O.J. Simpson decided to run for the border down Los Angeles freeways. Al Cowlings, Simpson's friend, was driving the Bronco, while Simpson sat in the back with a gun to his head, according to police reports.

Simpson is being tried for the murders of Nicole Brown-Simpson, his ex-wife, and her friend Ronald Goldman. The only people who could sit on a jury for this case may not have televisions. Are there really 12 people who have not formed some type of opinion in this case?

• At least the NFL, with a salary cap and evenly balanced teams, may keep sports fans cheering until the Super Bowl in January 1995 in Miami.

Jared Parcell is a sports reporter for The University Daily.

UT player talks trash, collects pictures

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas offensive tackle Blake Brockmeyer's photo collection isn't your typical album filled with pictures of relatives at Christmas or snaps of the buddies on spring break.

Brockmeyer collects photographs of really big, scowling guys who weekly try to tear his head off.

It's all part of the psyche of one of the country's best college linemen.

"I usually try to get a picture of the guy I'm playing against and usually pretty much just try to hate him before the game," said Brockmeyer, a 6-5, 300-pound junior, whose bulging biceps test the tensile strength of every shirt he wears.

Pictures of former Texas A&M star Sam Adams, now with the Seattle Seahawks, and former Baylor bruiser

Albert Fontenot, now with the Chicago Bears, are a couple of the defensive linemen whose images have graced Brockmeyer's playbook.

"You really don't know the guy you're up against, but you just look at the picture and think that he is going to try to stop you from doing what you want to do," Brockmeyer said as the No. 20 Longhorns prepared to meet Louisville on Saturday.

During Brockmeyer's freshman year, Adams and Fontenot did stop him.

In fact, it's his matchup against Fontenot in a critical game won by Baylor in 1992 that the Texas left tackle uses as constant motivation.

"I played really bad," Brockmeyer said. "I caught a lot of flak from a lot of people. Fontenot was

I'LL TALK TRASH. I TALKED A LOT LAST YEAR. I FEEL LIKE MY PLAY DOES MOST OF MY TALKING NOW.

Blake Brockmeyer UT offensive tackle

a great player and I was a freshman.

"Every time I went against him, he drove me back in the quarterback's face," Brockmeyer said. "I had a couple penalties that were called against me that hurt some drives, and I just never got in a groove.

"I think of those plays and think I never want to be an average player," he said. "I want to be remembered as the best."

Coaches and teammates say Brockmeyer has been on permanent overdrive ever since.

He was a consensus All-Southwest Conference performer in 1993.

"Not only is Blake among the best players I've ever coached, but he possesses a superior work ethic as well," says Texas offensive line coach Pat

Watson, who helped coach Georgia Tech to a national championship in 1990.

Longhorns running back Priest Anthony Holmes says Brockmeyer is seemingly always in the weight room.

"He never cheats on his weight repetitions," Holmes said. "In fact, he does more than anybody else."

"It inspires you. It makes you want to do all of your reps too."

Holmes also doesn't mind running behind Brockmeyer, who bench presses 440 pounds.

"There's always a nice surge behind Blake," Holmes said.

Brockmeyer said his confidence started to increase during his matchup with Adams last year.

Brockmeyer boasts that Adams, a top 10 pick in the NFL draft, made only one tackle while the two were facing each other in the Aggies' 18-9 victory.

"This year, I feel like I am as good as anybody I am going against," Brockmeyer said.

And he isn't afraid to tell his opponents that on the field.

"I'll talk trash. I talked a lot last year," Brockmeyer said. "But I feel like my play does most of my talking now."

When Texas nose tackle Stonie Clark, a 300-pounder himself, found out about Brockmeyer's penchant for pictures of opponents, he chuckled and said, "That sounds like Blake. He's intense. He likes it to be a rough and dirty game. He's the type of player who can handle it, if anybody can."

Baseball players, owners discuss new proposal

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball players prepared to offer a new proposal to owners and bargaining teams reassembled Wednesday.

They gathered just 48 hours shy of the deadline for canceling the rest of the season.

Heading for New York City was a six-person delegation representing owners.

Twelve players from the union's negotiating committee also attended the meeting.

Both sides said a meeting was possible on Thursday.

"If we make a proposal, it will be because we believe we've come up with something new based on information we were given last weekend," union head Donald Fehr said.

Fehr said the union had received additional details on the revenue-sharing plan owners agreed to in January, but wouldn't say definitely that players will present a new proposal.

"There is speculation we may get a proposal," management negotiator Richard Ravitch said. "I hope we do."

Management officials said they were told to expect a new proposal.

Several officials on both sides said they expected the union's plan to be a variation of the "taxation" concept.

Under this plan, the salary cap owners have been demanding would be replaced by a system in which richer clubs would share a higher percentage of their locally generated revenue if they exceed certain levels of payrolls or revenue.

Traveling to New York on the behalf of owners, according to management sources, were Colorado Rockies owner Jerry McMorris, Chicago White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf, Boston Red Sox chief executive officer John Harrington and Atlanta Braves president Stan Kasten.

Also attending were former St. Louis Cardinals CEO Stuart Meyer and Milwaukee Brewers vice president-general counsel Wendy Selig, the daughter of executive council chairman Bud Selig.

Federal mediators played no role in the possible renewal of talks.

Brian Flores, the national representative of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said they didn't plan to attend any meetings this week.

"If we played any role whatsoever, it was bringing people to a certain place at a certain time so they could look at each other and perhaps make an appointment to see each other later," Flores said.

The strike, baseball's eighth work stoppage since 1972, went through its 27th day Wednesday.

Fourteen more games were canceled, raising the total to 352, which is more than 15 percent of the season.

Judging by his grades,
he hits the books as soon as the game is over.

All right, so he showers first.

Scott Aylor - Tight End
Senior, Texas Tech
GPA: 3.1

He's a superb athlete, but his greatest physical attribute is his brain. So we at Honda are proud to honor him with our Scholar Athlete Award, for both academic and athletic excellence. $3,000 will be donated to the general scholarship fund of his school. And all season long, ESPN will announce other Scholar Athlete winners during its coverage of NCAA Division I College Football. So congratulations to a guy who studies as hard as he plays, and still manages to come out smelling like a winner.
