Reception Honors Congressman Burleson

A reception was held Monday to honor Omar Burleson at Tahoka's First National Bank. The purpose of his visit was to get acquainted with some of the people in his potential district. Many things were discussed at the reception, ranging from economics to the shortage of baling wire. The main topic of discussion was however states redistricting. George Burleson has had this district ever since it was established. The Supreme Court ruled that legislation of redistricting was not accurate enough so some changes will have to take place. It is confirmed that any changes will take place but should any changes be made, Lynn County which is now a part of the 17th Congressional district, will become a part of a larger district, containing 33 counties, 30,000 square miles of land, and 468,000 people. It will include area about Weatherford, and Stephenville.

Congressman Burleson has been in Congress for 27 years and is now serving on the ways and means committee. He was born in Jones County (Anson) and still calls it his home. The 66 year old congressman served in the navy and is a veteran of WW II. He served in the F. B. I. and was a county attorney and a county judge.

Separation Of Powers

Those who appraise Watergate in unemotional terms will clearly see the danger involved in a President allowing congressional committees to call him before them for cross-examination, subpoena his personal records, etc.

Completely aside from Watergate, and regardless of whether the President is guilty of more than is known, or of withholding records which would shed light on the controversy, the image, symbol and reality of the separation of powers in the American constitutional system is of paramount importance to its effective, and continued, functioning.

It's more than obvious that if Congressmen can call the President to account before them on Capitol Hill, and subpoena his personal papers and records, the essential balance between the three branches of government is destroyed. In fact, it's hard to understand how anyone who considers the question objectively can miss this inevitable conclusion.

One can imagine the howl which would have been raised by the liberal press at any time in the past fifty years if conservative lawmakers on Capitol Hill, often committee chairmen, had attempted to haul liberal Presidents before their committees, seize their personal papers, cross examine and embarrass them politically, because of many actions conservatives considered unconstitutional.

The roar of condemnation from the liberal press (now so ready to destroy the balance of powers) against Dixie or other Hill "reactionaries" utilizing a power derived from the "evil" seniority system would at least have equalled today's deluge.

Power Of The Press

One can only marvel at the power of the press and television in America, as wielded in the Watergate debacle. The case of Senator Sam Ervin is an example.

As with most Dixie lawmakers, the key newspaper powers—primarily the New York Times and the Washington Post—gave him little attention for years. That's the usual treatment of conservatives by the almost-invariably liberal or leftwing working press reports of Washington.

When, however, a conservative might be influenced by hero-treatment, he is, in effect, used. His picture appears on the front page every other day, he's quickly made a national television celebrity and he becomes the fair-haired crusade leader of the moment, constantly encouraged by daily acclim, fame and praise.

It has happened to many until-then relatively ignored Senators. Suddenly, theirs are household names, they are recognized everywhere they go. They are, they have become, part of U.S. history. Obviously such treatment, especially after having long been relatively ignored, is heady stuff.

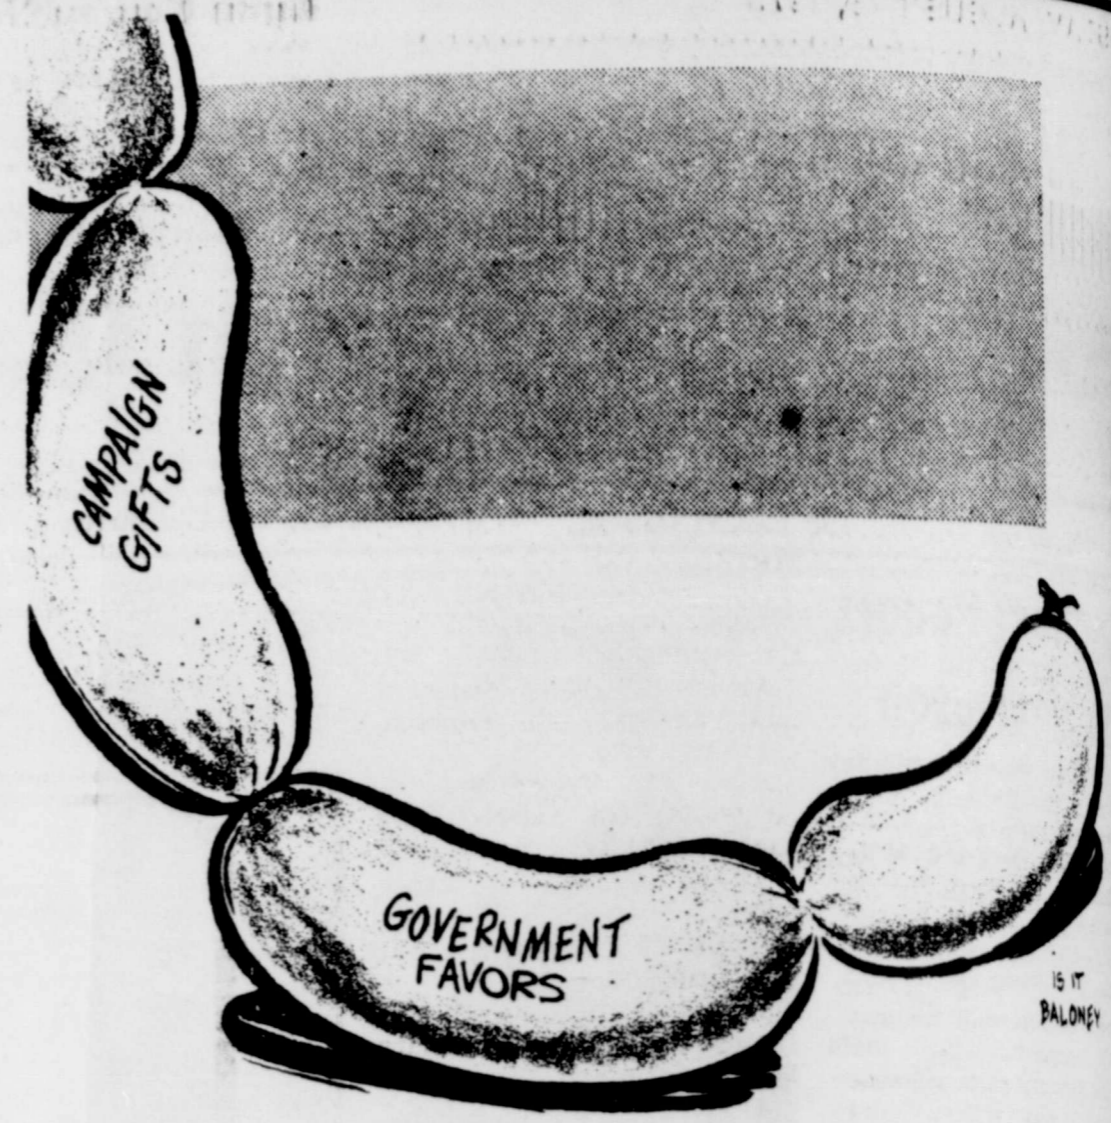

Winsted, Conn., Evening Citizen:

"When a woman gets a job traditionally held by a man, or enters a field heretofore dominated by men, that's news. Lately there's been much news of this nature; it's getting to be about as old hat as dog bites man.

Comes now a man bites dog item—and we hasten to say that this figure of speech is not intended in the slightest degree as an insult to the ladies, for whom we have the most extreme regard. But consider if the characterization is not apt: For the first time in its 112 years, during most of which time it enrolled only women, Vassar College has a male student government president. Ah, well, a little men's liberation is not a bad thing, either."

O'Donnell Eagles, who meet the Tahoka Bulldogs at Kelley Field in Tahoka tonight, last Friday night nosed - out the Slaton Tigers at Slaton 14 - 13.

Coach Ed Robertson's District 4-A Eagles outplayed the District 6-AA Tigers most of the way.

The Tigers scored first in the second quarter when right half Duane Sooter took a handoff from quarterback R. A. Thompson and went 36 yards to score. The conversion was no good. The Eagles came right back moving down the field on short passes to the Slaton 32. Here, Bennie Clark O'Donnell's superb quarterback threw a long pass to right end Roger Doss for the score. Clark educated toe placed the ball between the uprights, and O'Donnell led 7 to 6.

However, Slaton came right back to score again on six plays with halfback Joe Sparkman and Slaton led 13 to 7.

In the third period, Eagle end Roger Doss intercepted a Slaton pass at midfield and went 50 yards for the final score. Clark again kicked the extra point.

COTTON TALKS

FROM PLAINS COTTON GROWERS, INC.

The most serious immediate threat to U. S. cotton is that of restrictions on cotton exports, says Donald Johnson, Executive Vice President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., and PCG is moving to avoid that danger if at all possible.

It has been announced that no export embargo or modified controls are to be imposed now, Johnson notes, but adds "The pressure for restrictions is still on and the threat remains very much in evidence."

"With continuing and increasing pressure from consumers and from some in the cotton industry itself, the situation could change rapidly unless these elements are effectively countered," Johnson asserts.

"To this end PCG is compiling cotton supply and consumption projections to show the absence of need for export controls," he continued, "and we will do our best to see that these figures are given consideration."

The PCG figures will distinguish between projections for stripper-type cottons and cottons of other growths, Johnson said, because any tightness of supply which may occur is likely to be in the longer staple, higher grade types.

"Thus if some form of export controls should be inevitable we would at least hope to minimize the effects on High Plains cotton."

The new farm bill on President Nixon's desk "is not what we wanted," says Ray Joe Riley of Hart, President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., Lubbock, "and we, like others, are apprehensive about both short and long range effects on the cotton industry."

PCG has long been on record as favoring a simple extension of the Agriculture Act of 1970 and began its legislative efforts over a year ago from that base position, Riley stated. "But it became obvious early in this year's deliberations in Washington that a simple extension was beyond the realm of political practicality, which left us with two choices: one, to work for the best program possible or, two, wind up with no program at all."

Some in the industry felt that if no program were passed this year the cotton industry would revert to the 1958 Act and be allowed to operate with a loan of around 41 or 42 cents per pound and a minimum national allotment of 16 million acres. But Administration officials and farm program foes made it plain they would go to Congress with a proposal to remove the statutory minimums on both loan and acreage.

"There is little doubt in the minds of our Congressional friends that this could have been done," Riley stated, "and with no minimum loan level, no minimum acreage allotment and no direct payment, we would have had, in effect, no program."

The bill now awaiting Nixon's signature calls for an 11 million acre minimum national allotment, as opposed to this year's 10 million acres; a loan level of about 27 cents per pound, compared to this year's 20.65 cents, and payments based on a 38 cent "target price" instead of the fixed 15 cents per pound payment made each year since 1970.

The payment will be equal to the difference between 38 cents and the average price paid to farmers for cotton during the calendar year in which the crop year begins. The loan level is prescribed at 90 percent of the three year average world price for American cotton, except that if this average is higher than the current year's world price, the loan may be set at 90 percent of the current average.

"By taking a positive approach and working for the best possible program," Riley said, "PCG was instrumental in getting a guarantee of this higher loan and in getting payments based on average prices for the entire crop instead of on Strict Low Middling inch - and - a - sixteenth prices, which would have been highly discriminatory against High Plains growers."

The payment limitation under the four-year bill is $20,000 per person, which Riley describes as "an unavoidable fault of this legislation or any other program that could have been passed."

"However we were able to retain the right to sell and lease allotments, which will help in regard," he said, "and to get the rules governing payments to corporations modified to further reduce ill effects."

Farmers are laying - by this cotton crop. This is a good time to consider sowing small grains for a cover crop. The land will need some cover this winter and spring when the blowing season starts. If people will broadcast wheat in their cotton before they cultivate, with a light rain shower they will have a cover crop.

Cattle Producers Meet August 28

Cattle producers in Lynn County are urged to attend a meeting in Plainveiw on August 28 regarding upcoming new regulations on brucellosis testing.

The testing will be in Agriculture Center and will begin at 7:30 p.m., announces County Extension Agent W.B. Griffin.

A veterinarian with the Texas Animal Health Commission will be on hand to inform producers of pending changes in the present brucellosis regulations. Comments and feedback are being invited from producers and a statewide hearing on the new regulations will be held in Austin on September 18.

The new brucellosis testing program is expected to begin October 1 and is designed to eliminate the cattle disease from Texas, thus allowing the state to be declared Certified Brucellosis Free.

For all cattle producers to benefit from the new testing program, it is important that they become familiar with the new regulations. Thus the upcoming meeting on August 28 will provide opportunity for producers to learn about the new plans for brucellosis testing.

Copies of the new regulations will be available to read in the County Extension office after August 17, 1973.

This cover crop will add it were a thousand small breaks to keep the surface the soil protected from erosion. It will also add organic matter and plant nutrients back in the soil. The top soil is our most precious resource. We should do all we can to protect it from erosion. The time of the year that we generally get the most wind erosion damage is February, March, and April. If we have a cover crop the land is tied down.

There are several ways to seed for a cover crop. Some people use an airplane to fly the seed on, then plow. Others use an electric broadcast seed attached on the front of the tractor and plant seed as they cultivate. Some people use a regular planter box and plant in the blanks. No matter how you plant it, it pays to keep your land covered.

This is also a good time to get the trigger areas planted. These are the areas where blowing begins, such as turnrows, border ditches and etc. Sometimes a trigger area such as a turnrow will start a whole field blowing. If it had a cover crop it might not blow.

This year we have more acres planted in cotton than in years past. Therefore it is probable that we will have more land that will be susceptible to wind erosion this year. The overexposed cotton land with wheat is one way that a farmer can protect his land from blowing.

Federal Land Bank's Loan Rates Increase

Jay Dee House, Manager of the Federal Land Bank Association of Tahoka, announced today that the billing rate of Federal Land Bank farm and ranch variable interest rate loans is being increased from 7 percent to 7 and three fourth percent effective August 1, 1973. The rate on rural residence loans is being increased from 7 1/2 percent to 8 1/4 percent. The variable interest rate loan plan which was introduced by the Houston Bank in July, 1969, lets the rate "float" over the variations in the money market.

"Continued high interest rates in the money market have made it necessary for the Bank to take this action. Interest rates have risen rapidly since early 1972 and the Bank has delayed action until this time in order to determine whether or not these rate increases were temporary," Jay Dee House stated. The Bank recently marketed an issue of bonds which sold at an average effective rate of 7.6 percent. "It now appears that present interest levels will probably not change materially until the end of the year," Jay House stated.

The Federal Land Bank of Houston makes long-term real estate loans on farm and ranch land and rural residence loans throughout Texas and now has more than 775 million dollars in volume of loans outstanding. The local association makes and services loans in Lynn and Garza Counties. Officers and directors of the association are Fred Ginty, President, Avery Moore, Vice President, L. A. Forsythe, J. D. McCampbell and Joe Unfred.

have control over one of these important factors, the application of irrigation water.

Verticillium wilt is also often stimulated by excessive water late in the season.

Producers should avoid lowering the soil temperature, which tends to increase wilt incidence.

We have the potential for a great cotton crop this year. Producers should make every effort through wise irrigation management to promote fiber maturity, which has great influence in the profitability of cotton.

BILL GRIFFIN SAYS

During the next 2 weeks, South Texas cotton producers must make important decisions regarding irrigation. Many face the decision of whether to apply summer irrigation; or in the case of June cotton, is it possible to irrigate this month? Many producers irrigated this crop early to initiate seed-growth, to maintain stands and to help offset insect damage after recent rains find that they have made excessive vegetative growth at the expense of fruiting. Even with moderate field moisture, this cotton should not be further irrigated. Even if plants are fruiting well, if they have not made excessive vegetative growth, it is doubtful whether another irrigation would be profitable, especially in fields with full profiles of moisture.

Many soils contain 3 to 4 inches of moisture following recent widespread rains. This is enough water to carry mid-May planted cotton now using approximately 1 1/2 inches of water each week to irrigation cutoff time. Cutoff guides are August 15 north of Lubbock and August 20 south of Lubbock. The probability of receiving additional rainfall is also greater during August and early September.

June needs to be stimulated into early fruiting in order to mature a crop. Summer irrigation is seldom profitable if a full profile of moisture has been received after planting. Yield potential for late June cotton is less, therefore, the seasonal moisture requirement is lower.

The question is often asked, how do you stimulate a cotton plant into fruiting? Remember that the cotton plant grows and develops under a vegetative-fruiting balance. Factors such as excessive water, nitrogen and cool, cloudy weather tend to shift this balance toward vegetative growth. The result is delayed fruiting and maturity. Producers

Rotary Governor Formby Says Look At Bright Side

District Rotary Governor Marshall Formby of Plainview, in his annual visit to the Tahoka Rotary Club, told the members at Noon Thursday that it is time Americans quit looking at the gloomy side of everything and took a look at the brighter side.

"About all that we hear today is how bad things are going and how tough it is in this country," Formby said, "I think it is time we took a look at how well things are going, and give thanks for what we enjoy in this nation."

He pointed out that America today is the most affluent nation since the dawn of civilization and that we are surrounded by luxuries available to the poorest person that were once beyond the dreams of even the very richest people.

Formby, who serves on the College and University Coordinating Board for Texas, pointed out that some young people today have a flaw in their education which causes them to be ashamed of their country, their parents, and the economic system that has put America in the lap of luxury.

"I want the kids of today to know where the money comes from and to learn that it is not sinful to make a profit on a business transaction," he declared.

Formby complimented the local club for their Rotary activities and urged the continued support and enthusiasm of its members towards the projects of the Club for the coming year.

Accompanied by his wife, Sharon, they were entertained Wednesday night with a pig roast in the Lyntegar community room. Twenty-two officers, committee members, and several wives of local Rotarians were present.

The Birds are coming BACK

Carolyn Haley Says...

Families without air - conditioning can find some relief from Texas heat by following several guidelines.

To keep heat out, close the windows in the daytime -- then open the windows between sundown and dawn, so warm air can move out.

If windows open from either the top or bottom, open one from the top and another from the bottom to move out any hot air trapped near the ceiling.

Dense window coverings help a house stay cool by keeping out the sun. Use heavy window shades, draperies or a combination of the two. Tape aluminum foil, cardboard or newspapers against the inside of windows in direct sun.

Make sure springs and fasteners on outside doors work properly. Try to get family cooperation in closing doors. Don't give hot air a chance to come in.

Strategically placed fans can bring cooler air inside, send warm air out, and keep families comfortable. Use a fan wherever the most activity occurs. Moving air dries the skin so it feels comfortable. Run the fan at a constant speed throughout the day -- this is more cooling than turning it on for a blast of air now and then.

Try placing the fan to direct the air toward a wall. Air will bounce off the wall, spreading over more of the room.

In the evenings, a properly placed fan will pull cooler air through open windows. Exhaust fans can help move heat and moisture out -- from cooking, bathing and laundry area.

Furnace fans should run continuously, with windows closed in the daytime and opened at night.

During hottest months, save homemaking tasks which create moisture for the coolest part of the day. These include washing or cooking. If possible, close off the working area to keep moist air from traveling to other rooms. Avoid using the range by cooking outside, preparing a cold meal or using a portable appliance instead.

Wrong kinds of carpeting on walls may give the home decorator more variety than expected -- especially if it's highly flammable. Open weave carpet construction can be very flammable with some fibers.

Carpet fibers in a horizontal position on the floor aren't very flammable, but placed in a vertical position -- such as on walls -- they become very hazardous.

Much of the danger from such carpets catching fire is that fibers melt, and the melted liquid can seriously burn anyone near.

To eliminate hazards of carpeting walls, home decorators should use special carpeting made for walls.

This carpeting has flame - resistant adhesives, is lighter in weight, and some is made of mod-acrylics that are naturally flame-resistant and safe.

With special wall carpeting, the noise - deadening quality and decorating appeal is achieved without sacrificing safety.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK:
 Green Pepper and Cheese Salad
 1 large green pepper
 1 8 oz. pkg. cream cheese
 2 tablespoons finely ground pecans
 1 head lettuce

Remove stem and seeds of pepper. Wash and drain well. Soften cheese at room temperature. Blend cheese and pecans. Fill pepper with cheese and pack tightly. Chill over night. Slice crosswise in 1/4 inch slices and serve on lettuce.
