TIMELY TOPICS.

DR. JOSEPH H. WARREN of Boston, has given Bowdoin College a painting of Hagar and Ishmael in the wilderness, said to be the work of Titian.

RICHARD M. STAIGG, the artist, who died a few days ago, was one of Boston's most successful portrait painters, and, as is rarely the case, had made a fortune by his brush.

The Aghadee land league, county Kerry, has resolved: "That we tolerate the harrier hunt, should the master, and all his suite, join our ranks, and agree to call it the land league hunt."

A PARTY of lynchers, after hanging a robber at Socorro, New Mexico, discovered that two of their number were mounted on stolen horses. An immediate trial resulted in conviction, and two more bodies were quickly suspended.

CLEVELAND has made money out of the burial of Garfield. The visitors at the time of the funeral spent money freely in the hotels, restaurants and stores; the theaters were crowded even on the very night of the ceremonies, and special trains are still run every day to carry those who wish to see the tomb.

The reports of the semi-annual conference of the Mormon church at Salt Lake do not indicate any abatement of zeal on the part of the men with many wives. Fifteen thousand delegates were gathered from Utah, Arizona, Idaho, Wyoming, and Nevada, and their religious enthusiasm was remarkable.

ROBERT L. STUART, Robert Lenox Kennedy, and his sister, Miss Kennedy, have each given Mrs. Garfield $15,000, or $45,000 altogether. The money was deposited by the donors a few days ago, in the Bank of Commerce to Mrs. Garfield's credit, and notice sent her that she could draw it at her pleasure.

The clergy men of Roxbury, Mass., are devising new methods of temperance work, and one of them is to employ an agent to visit the police court every day, interest himself in the cases of men arraigned for the first time for intoxication, and adopt whatever course may seem most judicious for their reform.

A WOMAN living in a Boston apartment house let herself down in the elevator after the usual time for operating it. She found herself at the bottom of the well, with the door locked and no steam up to lift the car again. The janitor, to punish her for what she had done, left her a prisoner all night. Then she made him a prisoner in a police station.

A MAN was paralyzed by a stroke of lightning at Highwater, Minn. Some of his friends reasoned that if earth would receive electricity from the buried end of a lightning rod it would in the same manner draw out the charge with which they supposed him to be filled. Therefore they dug a hole and covered him up to the chin. He died in that position.

The body of Pietro Cossa, the eminent Italian dramatist, was removed from Leghorn to Rome for interment; and placed in a chapel, where an official let fall a petroleum lamp, which set fire to the draperies, and had reached the coffin before being extinguished. The funeral was attended by state ministers deputies, and a vast concourse of persons associated with literature and the arts. It was one of the largest ever seen in Rome.

STRONG efforts are being made, but without much success, to turn the stream of emigration aside from the United States. Canada, on the north, is paying a part of the steamship fares of persons who promise to settle on her lands, and Mexico, on the south, falling by other means, has just made a contract for the colonization of 200 Italian families, who will be provided with land, implements, and stock free.

The Widow Merritt, of Goshen, Mo., read in the Cincinnati Enquirer, a suggestion that President Arthur might wisely seek in the west a lady qualified to be mistress of the white house. She wrote at once to the editor: "When I saw your advice I immediately said to myself, I will ask you if you would write to President Arthur, and, if he has not already taken some one, I would ask him to try me for three or six months, and this for no salary or reward I only want to get in and take the responsibility for a time, and then, should he not find me all that I promise, I will give it up." Mrs. Merritt was for years housekeeper of her late husband's hotel in Louisville, and she thinks that the experience there gained would enable her to "take entire charge of the white house from top to bottom." She takes pains to state, lest there should be some misapprehension, that she wishes the president to take her as a housekeeper, and not as a wife.

THE LITTLE TALKS.

Stories for Boys and Girls—Three Little Travelers—About Bees—Joe.

Dear little baby, with eyes so blue,
Fretters something funny and new,
I was plain that she wanted to go to bed,
But the rain was falling fast outside.

Then up came Charlie, with eyes so gray:
"Baby, you should have a ride to-day;
We can't let dear little baby cry.
Well give her a ride—'till we'll try."

Then up came Elsie, with eyes so brown,
Racing a table turned upside down:
And in a great hurry, with blue eyes bright,
Laughing and shouting in great delight.

She had a grand ride all over the floor—
With a horse behind and a horse before;
Dear little Blue-Eyes, Brown-Eyes, Gray,
Unashingly and lovingly the living day!

When Blue-Eyes took this funny ride,
She came to a halt at her mother's side,
Clambered eagerly on mamma's lap,
And closed her eyes for her morning nap.

"Now, Brown-Eyes," said Gray-Eyes, "I'll have a ride in a grand old carriage with you by my side;
I'll take you to Boston, or Salem, or Lynn,
And when you are tired, come home again.

So they harnessed old hobby to papa's chair,
(Oh, never was seen such a merry party)
Got into their carriage and took a ride,
Then came to a halt at mamma's side.

And she and she kissed them, was pleased to find
Her children so happy and gentle and kind;
Dear little Blue-Eyes, Brown-Eyes, Gray,
Unashingly and lovingly the living day!

"Female Complaints."
DR. R. W. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I write to tell you what your "Favorite Prescription" has done for me. I had been a great sufferer from female complaints, especially "dragging down," for over six years, during much of the time unable to work. I paid out hundreds of dollars without any benefit till I took three bottles of the "Favorite Prescription," and I never had anything do me so much good in my life. I advise every sick lady to take it.

A Brilliant Plot.
Here is a plot for a novel which is supposed to possess the merit of truth: A man, a boy and a dog are overtaken somewhere in the boundless west by Indians, who kill the man, bind the boy to the corpse with rawhide thongs and disappear, having neglected to exterminate the dog. Much inconvenienced by hunger, the dog licks and gnaws the rawhide, which eventually becomes soft and slippery. Observing this circumstance, the boy pulls his hands out of the bonds, unties the knots and walks off with the dog to a distant ranch.

Sago Pudding.—
Three table-spoons sugar, two eggs, four table-spoons sago, a pinch of salt; soak the sago in the milk two hours before adding the other ingredients, beat the eggs well, mix and flavor with vanilla or rose. Stir often enough to have it thoroughly mixed; it should be soft and jelly-like. Serve with cream and sugar.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

Notes on Live Stock—Breeding Stock Too Young—Broom Corn.

Little extra feeding will be necessary now to bring the horses and cattle to the beginning of winter in good order. The season is too far advanced for turning horses out at night. If horses are caught out in a heavy cold rain, they should be rubbed dry and blanketed as soon as they reach home. The product of the dairy should be increased in every possible way; this requires the best feed and plenty of pure water, and frequent currying of the animals to keep them neat and clean. Young stock should not suffer from the cold and wet. A rough shed in the pasture is a useful protection until it is time to take the young animals to the barn or stable. A cheap temporary shelter is shown in fig. 2. Two crooked posts, eight feet long, are set firmly in the ground, and connected at the top by a cross pole—this bears the end of the poles which makes the top and rear of the shelter. The ends are boarded up. Long wool sheep are easily chilled by cold rain, and should be kept from getting wet through at this season. Sheep should be kept shut up at night in close sheds—they require abundant ventilation. For March lambs the ewes should be copped this month—a pure Southdown ram is the best for this purpose. A plump fat lamb is the one that sells quickly and at a good profit. Brood sows should be in good condition for copping, which comes next month for March pigs. It does not pay to keep pigs over a year for fattening. Pig pork is the kind that pays. If eggs are expected during the winter they must be provided for by disposing of old hens and selecting the best young pullets and feeding them well. They should have clean quarters and plenty of pure water, lime in the form of shells or bones, gravel, etc. Do not crowd the fowls, and if well fed and kept warm, an abundance of eggs may be expected from them.

Canning Fruit
is such a simple process that it seems strange that it should ever prove so troublesome and risky. Failures are generally due to defective jars or rubbers. These latter, after a season or two lose their elasticity and become so loose as to be of no avail in excluding the air. The first step in canning should be to see that the jars are sweet and clean, the rubbers whole and close fitting, and the top in good working order. Place the jar in a dish with a folded towel saturated with cold water under them. Put a silver spoon in each jar. Use a can-filler (which is a tin with sloping sides and no bottom, fitting into the top of the jar), and a ladle or a small pitcher, if you have no can-filler. When the fruit is ready fill the jar full, move the spoon around to let out the air, and remove it, then fill the jar to overflowing with juice, and screw on the top as speedily as possible. When all are full wash the jars and wipe them dry, give the tops an additional turn as the glass cools and contracts and loosens them, then turn them upside down to stand over night. Label the jars, put them in a cool dark closet, and if the work is properly done you will never hear a single fizzler. After the fruit is used the rubber will be kept in better condition if it is put, clean and dry, inside of the jar, which should also be thoroughly cleansed and put away with the top screwed on.

A good rule for canning most fruits is a pound of sugar and a cup of water for every three pounds of fruit. Make the syrup and cook the fruit in it until tender and well heated through. Use a porcelain or granite kettle, and a silver or wooden spoon.

Broom Corn.
Broom corn is likely at no distant day to revolutionize the breadstuff supply of the world. A process has been discovered by which the most delicious flour can be secured to the extent of one-half its weight, and leave the other half a valuable food for making beef and milk. It belongs to the same genus as sorghum which is an article of food growing rapidly in public esteem, and from the seed of which a most nutritious flour can be obtained.

Guard Against Disease.
If you find yourself getting bilious, head heavy, mouth foul, eyes yellow, kidneys disordered, symptoms of piles tormenting you, take at once a few doses of Kidney-Wash. Use it as an advance guard—either in dry or liquid form—it is efficient.—Saturday Night.

There Was Good Reason For It.
San Francisco Bulletin.

There was a novel sight in Virginia City on Saturday. It was of a big Indian carrying a papoose in his arms. The spectators were beginning to express their surprise, when his squaw came wearily around the corner, bending under the weight of two sacks of flour.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

How Colds Are Caught—Important Domestic Recipes.

Let us suppose a person to be sitting in a room the temperature of which is, say, 70° Fahrenheit, and that a current of cold air is rushing in at an open door or window and playing upon the back of his head, or perhaps on his legs or feet, and the probability is that he will "catch cold," and in nine cases out of ten this cold will be a catarrh in the head, and what may appear more remarkable still, only one nostril will at first be affected. Now, if the catarrh was due to the inhalation of cold air, both nostrils would suffer; but it is not so, for each side of the body is supplied by its distinct set of nerves, so only that side is affected through which the reflex disturbance has been transmitted. The modus operandi is the following: The draught of cold air acting, will suppose, on the back of the head, conveys through the sympathetic nerve, which ramifies on the scalp, a shock to the nervous center from which these nerve fibres proceed; but we must understand that this nerve center sends its filaments to other portions of the body, and so the shock which this center receives by one set of nerves is reflected by another set to some surface quite remote from that primarily acted upon, and in this way a temporary paralysis of the nerves supplying the blood vessels of the mucous membrane of the nose is brought about. In consequence these vessels become dilated and engorged, and the shock which has brought about this congestion continuing, disturbs the equilibrium of the blood supply, and so an inflammatory condition is set up. When this exists the blood vessels are enormously dilated; consequently an excess of blood passes through the part, the little cells being thus excited and working much more rapidly than when in health. In this way the enormous discharge of mucus which accompanies a cold in the head is accounted for.

Another effect of this irritation of the mucous membrane is sneezing, which is an effort of nature to restore the equilibrium of the nervous center by another kind of reflex action. Sneezing in catarrh is a method nature adopts to stimulate the prostrate nervous center, and thus enable it to reassert its proper control over the blood supply to the part; indeed it will be found that the effects of being exposed to a draught of cold air are often completely destroyed by a succession of sneezes. Of course nature does not always immediately succeed in these efforts, but when she does not the shock from which the nervous center suffers gradually passes away, and the blood vessels again come under the control of the little nerves which regulate their caliber, and so the catarrh disappears in a few hours, or at most in a few days. It sometimes happens that the shock from the cold air acting upon the nervous center, is so severe that a peculiar catarrh of the mucous membrane is the result. In this case the inflammation is intense enough to check the secretion altogether, and in consequence the mucous membrane is dry as well as inflamed, and the suffering very much intensified.

So far, we have only glanced at a cold in the head, which passes away in a few hours; but this is not always the happy termination. There is a peculiar tendency which inflammation possesses of not leaving off where it commenced, but of invading the tissues in its immediate neighborhood, and more especially when the tissue is continuous with that primarily attacked, as is the case with the mucous membrane of the air passages. A cold may commence in the head and rapidly spread by its technical name inflammation of the tissue into the chest; and so what at the first promised to be only a cold in the head may terminate in an attack of bronchitis, or even inflammation of the lungs.

Painting in Oil on White Holly Wood.
Should any one desire to make a few household ornaments which are neat, delicate and not costly (even provided you have just a slight fondness for paintings), purchase a few feet of white holly wood—eight of an inch in thickness; also five tubes of oil paints as follows: Vanilkye brown, flake white, chrome yellow, crimson lake, permanent blue; also one fine oil paint brush. Saw out of the holly wood a frame about an inch and a half wide all around, sawing out an opening large enough for a photograph, and round all the corners. Sand-paper the wood thoroughly after the frame is finished. Now commence to trace a fine around the frame, then trace leaves and flowers using a sharp pointed pencil for tracing. Perhaps you have a pattern of a vine in one of your magazines, if so you can trace it off on white tissue paper and transfer to the wood by using tracing paper. Mix a little chrome yellow and Prussian blue together and, after adding a very little turpentine, proceed to paint all the leaves. Mix a little brown with green, making an olive green, and with it shade the leaves after cleansing the brush thoroughly with turpentine; trace the leaves with light tints of brown, also the branches of the vine. After the leaves are finished mix a little permanent blue and flake white and paint the flowers and buds. Use a little flake white to shade the flowers after they are painted blue. Vine the whole vine with Van Dyke brown. Should you prefer, you can use crimson lake instead of blue for flowers; always be sure and wash the brush well in turpentine before using for another color.

A number of fancy articles can be made from white holly wood and painted. Small clusters of flowers and landscapes can be painted on panels of holly wood. One of the designs which always please is a trunk of a tree and branches; on one of the branches is a mother owl with her wings spread over four baby owls, two on each side; in her mouth is a field mouse, and underneath is painted, "Snapper is ready." This painted with Van Dyke brown and flake white, is very artistic.

TO THE GREENBACK VOTERS OF CHASE COUNTY.

GEDAR POINT, KANSAS, } October 18, 1881.

GENTLEMEN: At the Greenback County Convention, held in Cottonwood Falls on the 8th inst., the question of fusion with the Democrats was thoroughly discussed...

In view of the fact that all members of the Greenback committee were not notified of the meeting to be held on the 15th inst. and knew nothing of it until it was passed...

And I do most respectfully request that all the Greenback voters in Chase county, who are opposed to fusion, with Democrats or Republicans...

TO THE GREENBACK VOTERS OF CHASE COUNTY.

Whereas, a member of the Greenback central committee has published an article in the Chase County Leader, calling my integrity and loyalty to the party into question...

1st. Since our defeat last fall, I have been addressed by a large number of our party on the subject of fusion with the Democratic party.

2d. I am sure nine-tenths of them have urged me to do all in my power to effect such a union.

3d. Just before and up to the very hour of the meeting in convention; large numbers of our party spoke to me, and seemed most desirous of effecting a union.

4th. The vote to appoint a committee of conference was carried without much opposition, thereby showing that a large majority of those there assembled favored fusion.

5th. The vote which rejected the report of the committee was not a vote against fusion, but a vote against fusion on the terms agreed upon by the joint committee...

6th. That convention, before it adjourned, saw that it had made a mistake, in refusing to fuse; and in view of that fact, passed a resolution, empowering the Central Committee to fill any vacancies and make any change which might occur on the ticket.

7th. After the convention, I was approached by a large number of the party, many of whom had voted against adopting the report of the joint committee...

8th. At that meeting Mr. C. G. Allen withdrew his name from the ticket, and Mr. H. E. Snider sent word that he "would not make the race unless the Democratic party endorsed him."

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The Republicans of Chase county met in delegate convention in the Court-house, at 11 o'clock, last Saturday morning, for the purpose of nominating a county ticket, and, in the absence of the Chairman of the Central Committee, were called to order by Henry Brandley, Secretary of the committee, who, on motion, was elected Temporary Chairman; and W. W. Sanders was elected Temporary Secretary.

The following committees were then appointed:

On Credentials—S. M. Wood, J. G. Winne, H. Weaver, F. L. Gillman and E. T. Baker.

On Permanent Organization—A. M. Breese, R. W. Winchell, G. W. Estes, E. W. Pinkston and Silas Finelrock.

On Resolutions—F. P. Cochran, Aaron Jones, R. H. Chandler, E. Stotts and P. D. Montgomery.

The convention then took a recess until 2 o'clock, p. m., when they were again called to order and a resolution regulating the order of business, offered by F. P. Cochran, was adopted.

The Committee on Credentials then reported the names of seventy-eight delegates to the conventions. Report adopted.

The Committee on Resolutions then made the following report, which was adopted:

Your committee beg leave to present to the convention the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, In the death of Jas. A. Garfield the Republican party has lost a trusted leader, and fifty millions of people a pure and noble President, therefore,

Resolved, That we express our profound grief at his untimely death, and our unpeakable loathing for the vile assassin who committed the horrible crime; and we hereby tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family of the second martyr of the republic.

WHEREAS, When the Republican party wrested Chase county from the opposition—men who were elected on a "fusion" ticket, fixed up by party managers—it found that our people had been robbed of over $6,000, taxes so high that it was next to impossibility to pay them, county orders hawked about the street, selling for 60 cents on the dollar, financial affairs in such a mixed condition that an "expert" could not manage them, and

WHEREAS, By a systematic, economical and business-like administration the Republican party has kept down county expenses, reduced taxes correspondingly, and made good the deficiencies created by "fusion" extravagance, until Chase county is known throughout the State as one of the lowest taxed and best managed counties in the commonwealth, therefore

Resolved, That in placing a ticket before the voters of Chase county we pledge the nominees thereon to industry, economy and integrity in the performance of the duties of the several offices for which we present them, and that the same economy in county affairs shall be continued in the future as in the past.

Resolved, That we, as Republicans of Chase county, have no compromise to make and no fusion to indulge, and invite all true citizens to our ranks who abhor a coalition of political parties bent upon the mere elevation to office and the defeat of the Republican party under the name of "fusion."

The Committee on Permanent Organization reported A. M. Breese for Permanent Chairman of the convention, and W. W. Sanders for Permanent Secretary. Report adopted.

On motion of F. P. Cochran, J. S. Shipman was nominated by acclamation for County Treasurer.

Three ballots were then taken, as follows, for a candidate for Sheriff, the first ballot being informal:

1st.	2d.	3d.
W. S. Smith,	18	20
Frank H. Barrington,	28	35
Wm. C. Th. mas,	5	7
Aaron B. Watson,	11	7
William Norton,	8	6
S. F. Barnes,	8	2
Total vote,	78	77

Mr. Barrington, having received a majority of the votes cast on the last ballot, was declared the nominee for Sheriff.

On motion of P. D. Montgomery, S. A. Breese was nominated by acclamation for County Clerk.

On motion of F. P. Cochran, A. P. Gandy was nominated by acclamation for Register of Deeds.

On motion of J. G. Winne, W. W. Sanders was nominated by acclamation for County Surveyor.

On motion of F. P. Cochran, Dr. R. Walsh was nominated by acclamation for Coroner.

Aaron Jones was nominated for County Commissioner for the First District.

The following named gentlemen were then elected the County Central Committee for the ensuing year: Bazaar township, H. Brandley, E. T. Baker, R. H. Chandler; Cottonwood township, E. W. Pinkston, John R. Horner, A. W. Jones; Diamond Creek township, S. M. Wood, J. G. Johnson, M. Fritz; Falls township, F. P. Cochran, J. C. Davis, J. H. Mardock; Toledo township, R. W. Winchell, W. J. Moore, T. G. Allen.

IS IT SO?

The Republican party has kept down county expenses and reduced taxes correspondingly.—From the Republican Platform.

Now, let us see how true the foregoing is. The following is an exhibit of the tax levies, county orders and valuation of taxable property in the county from the date of its organization to the present time:

County Levy, 7 mills.	Orders Cancelled.	Assessment.
1859, 7 mills.	$ 473 00	$ 71,536 00
1860, 7 " "	272 00	176,076 00
1861, 7 " "	618 00	153,182 00
1862, 7 " "	1,266 00	153,182 00
1863, 7 " "	1,784 00	215,621 00
1864, 7 " "	2,269 00	245,486 00
1865, 5 " "	1,091 00
1866, 5 " "	2,218 86
1867, 10 " "	2,673 84
1868, 6 " "	2,057 19	562,940 00
1870, 6 " "	2,312 00	968,525 00
Orders issued.
1871, 10 "	4,183 42	749,457 00
1872, 9 1/2 "	6,086 00	1,928,076 00
1873, 20 "	11,937 00	1,900,868 00
1874, 19 "	16,739 39	1,965,271 00
1875, 3 1/2 "	7,567 58	1,451,418 89
1876, 3 1/2 "	8,445 58	1,413,508 98
1877, 5 "	8,698 75	1,698,967 41
1878, 5 "	7,313 23	1,642,863 56
1879, 5 "	11,422 43	1,670,259 78
1880, 6 "	9,151 07	1,735,445 94
1881, 6 "	12,809 88	1,796,733 40

From this exhibit it will be seen that the expenses of the county gradually increased until 1871, when they took a tremendous jump, and doubled what they were the previous year; and since 1871 they have been higher every year than they were even in that year, while now they are three times as great as they were in 1871.

As for the reduction of taxes, the increase in the value of the taxable property had more to do with reducing the tax levy than did the "systematic, economical and business-like administration of the Republican party." Then, the COURANT, also, had something to do with this reduction of the taxes, by forcing the county advertising to be done at less than legal rates during the years 1875, '76, '77, '79, '80 and '81, thus saving to the county, in this item, in these six years, the next little sum of $2,121.41. Then, there is the Warron estate that has paid considerable money into the county treasury in the last few years; and this also had something to do with the reduction of taxes.

This blowing on the part of the Republicans about their reducing taxes is more ridiculous than it would be for the Leader man's horse to say to the buggy behind it: "See how much faster I go than you do."

C. H. Wood, Esq., of the C. & T. Ry. Port Huron, Mich., favors our correspondent with the following: After suffering for nearly a year with rheumatism, receiving treatment from most of the best physicians of Michigan and the west, I happened to try a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil. Upon the first application I used fully half a bottle, and its effect was almost instantaneous. I immediately dropped all other treatment, and confined myself to its use alone. After the use of three bottles, instead of being driven to my business, or moving about on crutches, I walked from one to three miles daily about business, and have been free from this horrible disease for over a year, not having the slightest twinge of it. Hence, I think that all medicines known to me are useless when compared with the Old German Remedy. Use this statement when and where its suits.

I hereby certify that my boy, 10 years of age, was taken sick with typhoid fever, followed by congestive inflammation. Dr. Dyer, an eminent physician of this place, stated that he thought the boy would run down with quick consumption. A Mr. Patterson told me that Cox's Colic Balm was curing similar cases, and advised me to purchase it. When I entered it home my wife laughed at me; but I knew that Mr. Patterson meant just what he said, and I determined to try it. My heart you are burning, my head you are turning, And driving my senses completely away.
I'll never believe that you'd ever deceive, No, no, not if the parish clerk swore by the book;
For mayn't I see that you're still true to me, By the love-light that beams in your sly sly look?
I candidly think if you even but wink, You can send my mind spinning around like a top;
And shure when you sigh, if you look in my eye, You will find a whole ocean just ready to drop.
Now 'tis I'm wishing that you'd go a-fishing, And let me get caught on your dear little hook;
And I'll be fish on a little white dish, And the devil may ate me if you'll be the cook.

JUST TOO FAR.
"But I tell you, Lou, I can't afford it!"
"Oh, you stingy thing! You are willing to have your wife go like a dowd, just for a few paltry dollars!" And pretty Lou Falconer pouted her rosy lip, and turned pettishly away from her husband.
"We are a young firm you know, Lou and—"
"Oh, say nothing more about it, if you please, I shall never ask you for anything again." And with a little toss of head she left the room.
Falconer sighed, and his brow contracted with pain as he looked after her. "Poor child! It is so hard to refuse her anything."

He was a pale young man, with a thoughtful cast of countenance and earnest gray eyes; habitually reserved and prudent, he was accounted a sharp business man, and at the time of his marriage two years previous, the old man predicted that he would eventually become one of the largest capitalists in B—-. His wife, a willful, pretty creature, seemed to be all one weak point. Now was she slow to avail herself of this advantage, her influence over him was unbounded, and even in cases where it was against his better judgment he invariably yielded to her wishes. The present object of these last named was a garnet silk dress, which she had that morning seen at C—-'s fashionable store; and poor Falconer's ears were still ringing with the minute description of its incomparable loveliness.

"It seems so cruel to deny her what she has set her heart on," he said laying down his pen, and rising, took one or two turns across the room. The result of his reflection was, that he put on his hat, went straight to C's, ordered the silk, and had it charged to his account.
Who would hesitate to credit Falconer Frost? There was not a safer co-partnership anywhere. The salesman blandly inquired, "Anything else, sir?"
"Write the address and promised that the parcel should be sent home in an hour's time." Then the purchaser walked slowly down to his business, not altogether satisfied with what he had done.
"Oh, Edward, you darling!" were the words that greeted him when he went home that evening, and throwing her arms around his neck, his wife literally overwhelmed him with kisses. "Oh, you dear love! how clever it was of you to feign the old Shylock, and then give me such a delightful surprise!"
"If it really was a delightful surprise, Mignon, putting both hands upon her shoulders, and gazing fondly into the fair, joyous face, "I am amply rewarded for my trouble."

"Wait 'till you see me in my new dress, and then you'll be rewarded in earnest."
"Well, suppose you let me have some tea now."
"Certainly, as much as you want."
Throughout the meal Lou was gay and garrulous, and afterward went to the piano and sang to her husband till bedtime.
"I can't make up this handsome dress myself," soliloquised Mrs. Falconer, as she examined her treasure next day. "I am sure that Edward would rather pay the dressmaker's bill than have me spoil it." So she forthwith took it to a fashionable modiste and was fitted.

When she reached home she found a letter from her mother in New York, saying that she would be with them by the following Tuesday, and immediately set about preparing a room for her reception.
"Dear me," she said, "I must have some new muslin curtains; I should be ashamed for mamma to see these, all darned as they are. Edward must be an angel again, and give me some."
"Sweetest, dearest, and best of men!" she said to him at dinner, "I am in a worse fix than was the Prince Gracioso; won't you be Perinet, and come to my assistance?"
"What is it you want now?" asked Falconer, beginning to get nervous.
"Oh, love, my muslin curtains are so ragged as to disgrace the house, and mamma is coming to visit me next week; she is always so particular about appearance, and I want to get some fresh ones to put up in her room."
"Is it absolutely necessary to have muslin curtains, Lou? Wouldn't dimity do just as well? I'm sure you must have a spare set."

"Oh, but mamma is accustomed to muslin curtains, and I know she won't feel at home with any other kind. There now, be a good darling and let me get them."
"I hate to refuse you, Lou, but—"
"Oh, you've turned into a monster again, you Charon! you mayn't even welcome my own mother, and make her comfortable in our home."
"You can welcome your mother and make her very comfortable, without the aid of muslin curtains," said Falconer, decidedly.
"Savage!" cried Lou, beginning to pout.
"This is unreasonable and childish," exclaimed Mrs. Falconer, impatiently pushing back her chair. He had some perplexing business on his mind and was in no mood for trifling. But Lou burst into tears.
"Hang it all!" cried Edward, and taking his hat he left the house. He had not gone ten steps, however, before his resolution failed him, he hastily drew a check and returned home with the money. He found his wife in her own room, with her little Eddie on her lap, the traces of tears were fresh on her face, and she was singing to the baby in a low tone.

"Forgive me, my precious, for having been so crabbed just now," pleaded Falconer in a penitent tone, as he bent over and kissed her, at the same time placing the money in her hand. "Will that be sufficient for what you want?"
"More than sufficient!" she exclaimed delightedly, separating the roll of bank notes. "I'll take what's left over, and get you a perfect duck of a dressing-gown and materials to work the loveliest pair of slippers you ever saw."
Falconer began to protest that he stood in need of neither dressing gown nor slippers, but a reproachful glance from Lou's blue eyes arrested his words. "Not when I am going to make them with my own little fingers?" she said, and Edward was subdued instantly.

The following week Lou's mother, Mrs. Townsend, arrived, and was affectionately welcomed by her daughter and son-in-law. She was a thoroughly sensible, reasonable woman, with a deal of penetration, that seemed to divine things at a glance, and was an acquisition to any household.
"Don't you think, Lou," she said to her daughter one day, when the latter had, in her usual coaxing, half-pouting style, been urging Edward to some fresh extravagance, "that you may push your opportunities just too far? Mr. Falconer looks very much perplexed and worried today, I think."
"Oh, Edward is the dearest and most amiable of men."
"Yes, Lou, but for the very reason that your husband is amiable and indulgent to a fault, you should be merciful and not press him too far. Now I consider that baby's cloak which you exacted him into getting for Eddie quite an unnecessary piece of extravagance. Now, take my advice, and be a little more reasonable in your demands."

Mrs. Falconer knew better than to put at her mother, so she resolved not to ask her husband for anything in her presence again; but no sooner was Mrs. Townsend gone than the old practice was renewed. Too much occupied with her own selfish little aims, she did not notice that her husband's manner was often strangely flurried; there was a recklessness in his very tenderness; he refused her nothing that she asked for, and the little lady availed herself to the very utmost of his propitious disposition.
"Oh, Edward," she said to him one day, as they sat together over their dinner, "the charity ball comes on next Wednesday, and I have been made one of the lady patronesses. I must have a pretty dress for the occasion."
"Order what you will," he said laconically, as he arose and left the table.

The evening of the ball Lou was disappointed that her husband did not come home in time to see her dressed, but she could not keep her party waiting, and was obliged to go away without seeing him.
Half an hour later Falconer came home. He inquired of a housemaid, who had been aroused from a nap by the violent jerking of the parlor bell, if her mistress was gone out, and sleep as the girl was, she started (as she afterwards averred) "by the look of her face," as he dismissed her.
He went to his room where little Eddie lay asleep, but turned abruptly from the peaceful picture. The heavy ice of despair lay on his heart. Falconer & Frost had failed, and he was a defaulter to the amount of more thousands than he could ever hope to repay; his good fortune was gone; nothing but beggary and sin lay before him, and the dissonance would be reflected on his wife and child. He passed to his dressing room, turned the key on the inside, and ten minutes later the neighbors were forced by the report of a pistol. They forced the door and found that the name of "bankrupt" and "swindler," which had been applied to him as soon as the failure was made public, he had added that of suicide.

They were fearful feelings that reached his wife in the midst of the festivities and hurried her home; and vainly might she, in the frantic accents, call on that lifeless form "only to speak to her once more" and she would be content to "live on dry crusts in a hovel the rest of her days."
Then she called herself "his murderer," and wringing her hands incessantly cried: "Just too far, too far."

ON LEAVING.
Like the waves on a seagull land,
Which flow in and out with the varying tides,
While the loud-mouthed voice of the ocean
derides
The pledges they wrote in the sand—
We drift in and out of each other's lives,
We meet and we part, we come and we go,
And down to the sea the rivers flow,
While the waves of the world forever roll on,
And the voice of the ocean of time but spears
At the pledges we make, and our hopes and dreams,
From the moment the tide of life's begun
Till the worker sleeps and the task is done.

A FAIRY AFLOAT.
The following description of the fairy vessel represented on this page is from the Cincinnati Commercial. The hull is of the finest selected white oak, braced, bolted and riveted in the most skillful and workmanlike manner, and is 64 feet in length, 14 feet breadth of beam, 2½ feet depth of hold, and draws twenty inches of water. She carries a tubular boiler, and two beautiful little engines, made expressly for her, by the Ohio Machine Co., Middleport, O. The dining-room is situated between the boiler and engine rooms, and is artistically grained, with frescoed ceiling. It is furnished in the Queen Anne style, and the silver, china and table linen are of the finest character. The pilot-house, cabin, main saloon and Captain's office are on the saloon deck and are luxurious in their furnishing and decorations. The saloon proper is frescoed and gilded in English style, and the flooring is covered with Turkish carpet. The furniture, in raw silk and walnut, of the Queen Anne pattern, like that of the dining-hall, and rich curtains of damask complete the impression of a veritable floating palace. The four state-rooms, containing two berths each, are also carpeted with Brussels and handsomely furnished. The boat belongs to and was built under the directions of Messrs. A. Vogeler & Co., Baltimore, Md., for their own exclusive use upon the Ohio, Mississippi and other Western rivers, and is run by a picked crew of officers and men in their employ. The object of this little steamer is to carry neither freight nor passengers. She was built for the firm above named, to be used exclusively by them for distributing their printed matter in the river towns for St. James City, the Great German Brewery for rheumatism and other painful ailments.
