How To Control Cantaloupe Bugs

COLLEGE STATION, August 5 — Are you finding insect damage on your cantaloupe especially where they touch the ground? Chances are that the common sow bug or pill bug is causing this damage, says James A. Deer, assistant extension entomologist of Texas A. & M. College. Of course, he continues, other chewing bugs could be causing the trouble, and it would be well to try to identify the culprit before you start control measures.

The sow bug does its work in the late afternoon and at night, but if he is around, you'll find him under anything he can hide under during the daytime, says Deer.

Poison bait should give satisfactory control and here's the mixture that Deer recommends. Wheat bran or shorts, 25 pounds; sodium fluosilicate, sodium fluoride or paris green, 1 pound; cheap molasses, 2 quarts; water, 2 gallons. You can cut the amount of bait to be mixed down to your needs by taking the same percentage of each of the ingredients.

Mix the bait thoroughly and don't get it too wet, says Deer. Put it out late in the afternoon and sprinkle it around the cantaloupes. This same bait will get other chewing insects if they eat it, but if the damage still shows up after you have given it a good trial Deer suggests that you see your local county agricultural agent for identification of the

REPORT GIVEN ON TEXAS FARM BUREAU INSTITUTE

By Mrs. R. L. Young
The Texas Farm Bureau Institute held its first annual session at College Station, Texas, on July 24-29 with Texas A & M College as host. This meeting was sponsored by the Texas Farm Bureau Federation.

The purpose of the meeting was to help the people of Texas become more familiar with Farm Bureau work.

After registration at the YMCA building on Sunday the meeting opened Monday morning with the speaker J. H. West giving the history of Texas Farm Bureau Federation, followed by R. G. Arnold, who spoke on the growth and development of the Farm Bureau of the South.

Then following Arnold's talk, classroom instruction was begun. The institute offered four basic subjects in the curriculum; Philosophy and policies of the Farm Bureau, salesmanship, public speaking and membership acquisition and maintenance.

The faculty was composed of persons who have made an outstanding success in particular lines of Farm Bureau work or people whose training qualified them to make definite contribution to the Institute.

The Farm Bureau philosophy dealt with philosophy of building an organization to render the maximum service to agriculture by developing leadership, voluntary effort and a sound program that will contribute to the best solution of the economic, social and educational problems confronting agriculture and also be for the best interest of the nation as a whole.

Public speaking covered speaking and planning a speech, for effective presentation and gaining and hold attention of audience. Salesmanship included an analysis of selling problems in Farm Bureau, together with practical application of fundamental principles of salesmanship that prove sound and effective.

The highlight of the Institute was the panel discussion on Friday, the subject of discussion being "Farm Bureau and Government Agricultural Agency Relationship."

Speakers taking part in the discussion were D. W. Williamson, Vice chancellor, A & M College System; C. N. Shepardson, dean bug or bugs that are causing the damage.

of the School of Agriculture and J. D. Prewitt, vice director Texas Extension Service. Others taking part were J. Walter Hammond, president of Texas Farm Bureau Federation; Allan Kline, President of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Roger Fleming, director of the Washington, D. C. office, B. F. Vance, State PMA director, and others.

The Texas Farm Bureau Federation has 175 organized County units with a total membership of approximately 38,000 while the American Farm Bureau of which TFBF is a member is made up of 43 state federations and one in Puerto Rico with a membership of 1,250,00.

Two members from Eastland County attended, namely Mr. and Mrs. John Love of the Alameda communist who reported a very profitable time spent in these sessions. Mrs. Love made a three minute speech before her class of public speaking. She was highly commended for her work in this.

It is the hope and aim of the present membership of Eastland County Farm Bureau that more people will become acquainted with the Farm Bureau and avail themselves of some of the opportunities offered by it, officials stated today.

Some of the most susceptible plants to 2,4-D are: cotton tomatoes, okra, vine crops such as cucumbers, sweet potatoes; legumes such as blackeye peas, peanuts, fruit trees, grapes, pecan trees and many ornamentals.

Nebraska's cow population has declined 24.7 per cent in the last three years.

ism and attempt to engage in aggression against China's neighbors, we and the other members of the United Nations would be confronted by a situation violative of the principles of the United Nations charter and threatening international peace and security."

Acheson said U. S. policy "will continue to be based upon our own respect for the charter, our friendship for China, and our traditional support for the open door and for China's independence and administration and territorial integrity."

This country's admission that China is all but lost to the Communists was contained in two separate statements by Acheson. In the foreword, which comprised a letter or transmittal to President Truman, he said "the heart of China is in Communist hands." And, in a March 15 letter to Chairman Tom Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Acheson said "the national government does not have the military capability of maintaining a foothold in south China against a determined Communist advance."

Mrs. Ardis Taylor of Tyler, and in Fort Worth, where she visited with her sister. Mrs. Looney makes her home here with her daughter, Mrs. Hubert Jones and family.

Commander John H. Morris of the U. S. Navy is the guest here in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Morris, 911 South Bassett Street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Kilgore of Brownwood were visitors here in the home of their son Johnnie and Mrs. Kilgore Thursday night. With them were Gayle and Glenna Kilgore, who had spent the week in Brownwood with their grandparents and returning to their home here.

Mrs. J. C. Looney has returned home after a two months visit in the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. W. Ashley suffered a heart attack at her home at 605 South Lamar Street, Thursday afternoon and was carried to Ranger General Hospital. Gene Ashley of Monahans arrived early Friday morning to be with his parents.

Mrs. Dorothy Sparr, who is ill here at her home, 302 North Virginia Street, was reported to be somewhat better this morning. Mrs. Sparr underwent surgery following a fall at her home here two weeks ago.

Acheson's gloves-off statements highlighted the unprecedented document, which indicted Chiang's Nationalist regime for fumbling and corruption in the latter stages of World War II and the postwar period.

The white paper apparently included all documents of major importance bearing on American relations with China. It showed, for example, that:

1. Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, after a special mission to China in 1947, recommended conditionally that the United States initiate a five-year program of aid to China, to prevent Manchuria "from becoming a soviet satellite." This was rejected by Mr. Truman and then Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

2. Many appeals to Chiang by President Roosevelt did not sway the Generalissimo's dislike for Lt. Gen. Joseph (Vinegar Joe) Stilwell. Stilwell didn't like Chiang, either.

3. The Nationalist regime was gambling on a Republican victory in the 1948 elections in this country. Ambassador J. Leighton Stuart reported to Marshall (secretary of state) on Aug. 23, 1948 - "there is surprisingly frank admission in official (Nationalist circles) that the government's eyes are glued to a sympathetic Republican Congress in January..."

4. After the election, President Truman politely brushed aside Chiang's appeal for help.

5. Marshall quit his mediation efforts when he felt he was being used "as an umpire on the battlefield."

6. Official dispatches from American officials in China hinted that Chiang took almost $300,000,000 (M) of Chinese gold reserves with him when he went to "retirement" on Formosa. The document estimated, too, that Chinese nationals have private accounts in the United States of $500,000,000 and a total of $1,000,000,000 (B) hoarded or invested outside China.

Acheson himself directed a stinging stream of criticism at Chiang, his Kuomintang party, and the Nationalist government as well as the Chinese Communists.

He said Chiang and his party "saw an opportunity" to let up on the war effort against Japan as soon as the United States entered the war. He said they wanted to improve their position against the Communists who also were preying on war strife. He said many observers in 1943 and 1944 believed that the government and Kuomintang had lost their crusading spirit.

"In the opinion of many observers," Acheson said, "they had sunk into corruption, into a scramble for place and power, and into reliance on the United States to win the war for them and to preserve their own domestic supremacy."

When this was brought to Chiang's attention, he said, the Generalissimo gave assurances that changes would be made.

"He made, however, little or no effective effort to correct it and tended to shut himself off from Chinese officials who gave him unpalatable advice," Acheson said.

Whimpy Heeds the Bell

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—The ringing of a bell means, it's ice cream time to Whimpy, a pup. It started when Mrs. W. E. Hammock's young nephew brought a popsicle from a street vendor with a bell and shared it with the pup. Now even when the telephone rings Whimpy whines for that cold stuff.

A 20-pound electric ray stores enough voltage to knock a man flat on his face. The electric ray, one of the few salt water fish capable of discharging electrical energy, stores 250 volts in its wing tips, which are used for stunning its opponents and prey.
