Pop Gains Party Greatly Enjoyed, Barbecue Served

It may not be "turkey day", but it is "turkey time," and Pop Gaines knows just how to go about arranging for a turkey barbecue.

The barbecue was staged at City Park Friday evening, and before the announced hour, 6:30 p.m., reached that time on the clock dial, people began thronging in. A few outsiders were present, but for the most part the group was composed of Mr. Gaines' employees and their families. While an actual count was not made, it was estimated that almost 100 people were in attendance. Mrs. Gaines, who is in a Dallas hospital, was unable to be present.

There was food for all and plenty of it. In fact many accepted Pop's invitation to bring a second helping for the barbecued turkey was simply wonderful, especially when the "trimmings" came with each plate.

This is an annual affair, and employees of Eastland Auto Parts, of which Milton J. Gaines is owner look toward it.

J. Morris Bailey, pastor.

Hail New Bible As Big Event In Christian Annals

By CLARKE COX

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (UP)—Some of the nation's leading ministers hailed the publication of a new revised edition of the Holy Bible Saturday as one of the most important events in the history of Christianity.

The new revised standard version of the Bible goes on sale throughout the country Tuesday, and the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., sponsors of the text, said most of the record breaking first edition of one million copies already had been ordered.

The Bible, printed in large, readable type, has little of the archaic language of the older King James Bible. The words "thee" and "thou" are used only in prayers. The Psalms are printed in poetry form. Paragraphs are used liberally and all conversations are in quotation marks.

Take 32 Scholars 15 Years The revised New Testament, containing a shorter version of the Lord's prayer than the King

James Testament, was completed and published four years ago. With the recent completion of the revised Old Testament, the 15-year-old job by 32 scholars has been completed.

The scholars changed the Bible right from the first verse. The old, King James version says:

"In the beginning God created the Heavens and the Earth. And the Earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the spirit of God moved up on the face of the waters."

The new version says: "In the beginning God created the Heavens and the Earth. The Earth was without form and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep; and the spirit of God was moving over the face of the waters."

Adam Mentioned Later In the old version, Adam is first mentioned in Verse 19, Chapter 2 of Genesis. In the new version, he is not mentioned until Verse 20, Chapter 3 a few words after Eve is named. Before that he is referred to as "the man."

Most of the changes in the text were made to eliminate archaic language and make the Bible more easily understood, particularly by children.

Protestant churchmen said this would be one of the advantages of the new Scriptures, but most of them said they still would use the Old Bible in the pulpit.

Praised by Clergy "It will certainly make reading the Bible much easier," said the Rev. William B. Sperry, rector of Christ Episcopal Church in Detroit.

"However, I have so much affection for the poetic beauty of the language in the King James version that I hope it is never completely replaced by the new version."

"I had always believed modern English is an improvement," said Dr. J. D. Grey, pastor of the New Orleans First Baptist Church and president of the Southern Baptist Convention. "We don't have novels written in Elizabethan English today."

He said he thought the Bible would be read more because people will be able to understand it better.

The Rev. Harry Searles, of the City Temple Presbyterian Church in Dallas, said the revised New Testament already had helped him understand the Bible better. Eventually, he said it would be used as widely as the King James version is now.

Opening with a surge of terrific power at the opening kickoff, the Ranger High Bulldogs, exploding off a well-timed T, unleashed a slashing ground attack at Bulldog Stadium in Ranger Friday night to hammer out a highly decisive 47-0 triumph over the Eastland High Mavericks.

A crowd of approximately 2,500 fans—including an estimated entourage of 750 Red & Black supporters from Eastland—were in the stadium to witness the non-conference tilt, an annual highlight for both schoolboy grid aggregations and their rabid fan-followers each football fall.

Pre-game dope had given the Rangers, winless in two starts, a sharp edge over their also-victorious Eastland rivals in the 30th annual meeting of the two machines. But observers and sportswriters—prior to the opening boot whistle—had never dreamed the contest would turn out to be a thorough, one-sided rout.

The Bulldog offensive attack piled up 453 yards during the run-away triumph. They pounded out 367 yards ground-wise and added 86 more yards on 2 completed aeriels. The Eastlanders, out-weighted, out-powered and out-classed all the way, gained only 58 yards via scrimmage, but lost 16, for a net rushing total of only slightly more than 10 strides per quarter. They connected on a pair of passes, but both accounted for only eight more yards, making their offensive total only 50 yards even.

Many penalties marked the battle with feeling high between the players of both clubs. The Rangers led, receiving 14 penalties for 110 yards. The Red & Black crew drew 6 for 40 yards.

Jessop, Hanson Shine James Jessop, 152-pound Eastland ace, and J. D. Hanson, a rugged 157-pounder stood out in the Red & Black's offensive attack. But their ground and air efforts were thwarted by the unrelenting power of the charging Rangers who poured through the Eastland forward to stop many a play off Coach Ed Hooker's classically looking spread formation. Defensively, it was Don Chrisman, light but double-tough defensive back, Doug Williamson, and Joe Muirhead 170-pound tackle, who sparkled during the night's play.

Count in Every Quarter The Maroon & White protégés of Coach O. C. (Stubby) Warden, showing marked improvement in every department, scored in all periods. J. L. Barnes and Charles Masseege tallied in the opening quarter, Jim Cantrell and Tommy Hinds (he received a TD pass from Gerald Bagwell), added two more in the second, Masseege and Barnes scored in the third period, and Bagwell added the final TD early in the fourth stanza. Pilly Browning's talented toe booted points—five out of seven tries.

Eastland Threatens Eastland's lone threat came midway in the third period when the Maverick's Jessop pulled in Eddie Jane's kickoff boot on his own 18-yard stripe, moved to the 30 where he was apparently trapped by a bevy of Rangers, but veered sharply to the right, spinning and swiveling in perfect form over to the sidelines to get into the clear. A brilliant shoe-string tackle by the Bulldogs' Masseege down on the 6-yard stripe stopped the classy Eastland back in the nick of time. Three plays later the Mavericks fumbled on the 13 to fizzle the drive.

North Koreans Ready To Quit, Ex-Red Declares

SEOUL, Korea, Sept. 27 (UP)—A young Red intelligence officer, who deserted to the United Nations, said Saturday North Korean army morale is low and North Korean civilians want an armistice "under any conditions."

First Lt. Lee Dong Yup escaped to the Allied lines Sept. 5 by slipping past the Communist guards he commanded. The 29-year-old officer was educated in Tokyo and trained in a Communist intelligence corps school in Manchuria.

"The morale of the North Korean army seems very low," he said. "The Red Korean army thinks most of Korea has been destroyed by the war and they want more reinforcements from Red China, he said.

Lower class civilians want the truce talks to succeed under any conditions," he said. "The upper class civilians say that free voluntary repatriation is right."

The truce talks Saturday are in another week of recess, but top level negotiators from both sides meet again Sunday. However, there is no prospect of anything except another seven-day pause.

The Red deserter, Lee, told a press conference here.

1.—He had "heard" of three Caucasians piloting Red jet planes and he saw other Caucasians installing anti-aircraft guns at Sinuiju airfield after the war started. He said he was not sure the Caucasians were Russians. He said they could have been from "some other Communist country."

2.—Confirmed that the Reds are sending spies across the battleline regularly.

3.—That the North Koreans believed the Red propaganda about the UN using germ warfare.

He was within a short distance of the Desdemona school at the time of the accident, and states that he saw a parked pick-up near an intersection. The driver of the pick-up was talking with another man, and Mr. Elliott felt safe to go ahead, as he was driving very slowly. But just as he was crossing the intersection the pick-up crashed into him.

The driver rendered first aid, and exonerated Mr. Elliott.

He was brought to Eastland hospital, and was resting fairly well last night. Extent of his injuries have not been determined, though his car is more or less a wreck.

Report Of Adlai Coming

By MERRIMAN SMITH

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 27 (UP)—Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson burned midnight oil early Saturday preparing a statement on his political fund to help deserving state employees and an aide said the statement would be issued Sunday.

Stevenson had promised to make an accounting of the fund and list those who contributed and those who benefitted sometime Saturday, as he moved his campaign into Kentucky.

It was understood that copies of the statement and of the list, if the list were ready, would be issued Saturday but that newsmen would be asked to hold the copy for the Sunday editions.

GOP Demands Facts Stevenson, who told a cheering crowd here Friday night that he was "guilty" of helping good men in government jobs, has been asked by Republicans to bare his financial life to the nation as Sen. Richard M. Nixon, the GOP vice presidential candidate did.

Stevenson has said the fund was used to "reduce the financial sacrifices" of top men he recruited from private business to help him administer the state. Friday he revealed that about "eight or nine" appointees benefitted from the monies.

The candidate turned one of the upstairs guest rooms in Indiana Gov. Henry F. Schriener's official mansion into an office and worked far past midnight, although he had campaigned in Evansville, Ind., and made a major speech here Friday night.

Friday night Stevenson ripped into the Republican presidential candidate, Dwight D. Eisenhower, on the former general's views on defense materials and how to pay for them.

But he broached the fund subject at the start of his speech, which was greeted with volleys of applause by the some 14,000 persons who crowded into the fairgrounds coliseum.

"If it is a crime to help good people in government, then I am guilty," Stevenson said.

It was a departure from his text and the newsmen and observers in the audience caught its significance as an amplification of how Stevenson feels about attracting good men to public office.

The gathering is planned in honor of the new publication of the Revised Standard Version of the Holy Bible. Rev. Otto Marshall of First Christian Church is chairman, though all Church groups in Eastland are expected to take part.

WCTU Secretary Flays Parents For Teen-Age Drink

Take a jigger of good upbringing, two fingers of Christian endeavor, vintage '52 dash of lively interest in current moral problems and you have the perfect cocktail served up by a youth worker for the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

This is the recipe of Ethel Louise Riddle, an attractive brunette with shining eyes and shining spirit in the war against whiskey. Miss Riddle had quit her Clarksville, W. Va., school teaching job at the age of 26 to work as general secretary of the WCTU's Youth Temperance Council at St. Louis, Mo.

"I liked school teaching," Miss Riddle said Thursday, "but I'm doing sort of the same thing now—teaching young people to say 'no, thanks, I'll take fruit juice instead.'"

It Comes Naturally
Does it take much soul-searching for a young girl to decide on a career as a professional temperance worker?

"There's no deep psychological motive behind me," she said. "I've always been interested in church work and my parents have taught me temperance, so I come by the work naturally and have found it enjoyable and interesting."

Miss Riddle, whose mother is a life member of the WCTU, blames the teen-age drinking problem on drinking parents. "Christian parents who open Bibles instead of bottles on their dining room tables," she said, "remain the strongest influences against drinking and other delinquency among children."

The WCTU has taken a swipe at the "other delinquency" by including an abstinence pledge for youths against use of tobacco and narcotics, besides alcoholic beverages. The WCTU pledge taken by adults overlooks tobacco.

Good Time With Purpose

POTPOURRI AND WORSE

(By Major Hoople McCorkle) Telegram Philosopher

At the ripe old age of 61 we have been made a boy scout. At least we are sure, if a statement from Dr. Jim is true, and to date we haven't caught him in any "big ones."

We have always thought pretty well of this organization, though we have never been a member before. In fact we were too old to join when the first scout troop was organized. Our whiskers were so long we were always afraid of getting them tangled up with our pack. Most scouts can tie most any kind of knot you might mention, while we never learned but two. We could tie a knot that would hold a doggie calf in the corner while we extracted milk from his mother. And then we learned to tie a hangman's knot. However, before we got too proficient at tying this knot we gave it up, for fear they might use it on us.

As a character building organization the Boy Scouts is tops. They have plenty fun—but clean fun. All scouts and many scoutmasters wear knee pants, and we may be forced to get a special dispensation to wear our regulars, but this will have to be done. We just can't afford to appear in public in knee breeches. Why, we look bad enough as it is, but wear those abbreviated trousers would make us look like a big Irish potato with a couple of match stems sticking out for legs.

We'll wear a kimono or tent, but not knee pants. We look too much like the Republican national emblem as it is. Kind of elephantish, on a reduced scale.

And this is really what is wrong with us, more than any other thing. We are just a shade large for our own good, and are blessed with an appetite that is second to none.

About a week ago we decided to "reduce," if you know what this means. We had completely sold ourselves on the idea, after

Miss Riddle is here to preside over meetings of about 50 state officers of the youth temperance council in conjunction with the WCTU's 78th annual convention beginning Friday.

She thinks everybody concerned will have a good time.

"That's our motto," she said, "a good time with a purpose."

Miss Riddle's parents operate a small hotel at Hundred, W. Va. It has no cocktail lounge.

some coaxing on the part of the wife. She had it all planned—even to the menu. We could have all the grapefruit juice we wanted, if we didn't want too much.

We could have a limited amount of water, but it had to be boiled and strained, so that the most minute particle of food, either of the animal or vegetable variety, would not be left. In fact an easy way to say this is that we were to have de-hydrated water.

Bread, none. Bacon, none. In fact, food none. The nearest thing we got to food was the aroma of pop corn, which she popped, the kids ate, and we smelled. Not very fattening, to say the least. However, we did very well for about an hour or until other members of the family were called into the dining room for dinner.

We insisted that our stomach was empty and that our backbone was trying to cut our throat. We must have something to put in our stomach, we declared. A moment later she brought a nice, cool, foaming glass of Sal Hepatica, which she didn't eat, though she insisted that our very life depended upon it.

In a kind of hunger-weakness we fainted and fell in to a kitchen chair, while she returned to the dining room. Now we know how Elijah felt when the Lord provided him with "manna from heaven." Two feet from where we were sitting was a nice, brown drum stick, that she was saving for her afternoon lunch, and a skillet filled with cream gravy. Needless to say we licked the plate clean and sneaked out. Later we heard the wife say "old Prince must have been in here." Prince is the family dog, but at that he is better fed than we are.

We hope she never learns the truth, for if she does she will likely reduce our Sal Hepatica and water allowance.

But with all that, life is not too bad, and our friends are sticking by us like nobody's business. We hear people talking about "contributing to child's delinquency," well our friends are "contributing to our obesity," but they don't know it and we hope they never do.

One week ago we weighed in at 198 pounds. Really this is just a little heavy, and we decided to do something about it. We announced a "reducing diet" and were happy to find that we really meant it. Actually we were a man and not a mouse. We would start next day, so in order to play the game fair, when we drank our coffee next morning we used only one spoon of sugar instead of the usual two. Also we reduced the cream content in our coffee by at least three drops. We ate only one piece of toast, but absorbed a sweet roll which helped us make the first morning.

At 8:30 we stepped out for a cup of coffee and a cinnamon roll, and while consuming this we got an "invite" to a banquet. We remembered the "diet," but needless to say we accepted the invitation and attended the banquet, for what else could we do?

During the week we have attended four additional banquets and have accepted three others for next week. That's how they are contributing to our obesity. We weighed out at 199 pounds—a small gain, but at least we are improving. Had it not been for the diet we would have made it 200 for sure.

Next to playing football, diet-

Lou DiMaggio Makes Smash Hit In Big Time Entertainment Field

By Aline Mosby HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 27 (UP)—Marilyn Monroe's possible cousin-in-law turned Saturday to be a new nightclub star who may give her a run in the fame and fortune department.

Lou DiMaggio didn't go in for baseball and court shapely blondes like his cousin Joe. Instead, the handsome 21-year-old took up the accordion and currently is elbowing in Dick Contino's territory on the nightclub circuit. He's snowed under with love letters from bobby-soxers all over the country, and he boasts more fan clubs than many movie stars. These groups regularly issue magazines that sigh and gurgle over the dark hair and baby face of the son of a Pittsburgh, Calif., fisherman.

DiMaggio began collecting fans when he toured the country as a contest winner with bandleader Horace Heidt—the same prize spot that took Contino to the top.

After playing in nearly every state, Lou launched his own night club act at Las Vegas, Nev. Now he's playing to beaming matrons and stenographers over lunch in the Biltmore hotel.

"I hope to get into movies," said Lou after his show, during which he played the piano.

But in all seriousness, we are really going to start the diet again, just as soon as we have attended all the banquets. This, of course, does not include "goat barbecues" or "church suppers." We will have to attend them, whether or no.

One of these days we will grow so slim and graceful they will be feeding us buttermilk with an eye dropper. Selah.

Noseprinting Of Cows Is Perfected

BOSTON (UP)—You may not be able to fingerprint a cow, but they can be identified positively by taking a print of their noses, the New England Dairyman reports.

The monthly magazine for New England dairy farmers said it long has been known that every cow had a distinctive noseprint, but until recently there has been trouble in classifying the prints for quick identification.

Dakota Agricultural Experiment Station, with the assistance of the FBI, now have developed a classification system for each sex of each breed, the Dairyman said. The magazine said the method of noseprinting is simple:

"Ink from an ordinary pad is applied to the dry nose, and a 4 x 7-inch No. 2 blue bird blotting paper is rolled against the nose to obtain a clear print."

WESLACO, Tex. (UP)—It's cheaper to spray weeds in carrots to death than to dig them out.

W. H. Friend, associate county agent of Hidalgo county, said today that hand-weeding formerly cost up to 60 per cent of the total production cost in carrots planted in August and September.

One properly timed and properly applied naphtha spray, at a cost of less than $10 an acre will do the job of weed elimination that would cost $50 an acre if done by hand labor, he said.

"Carrots and their near relatives are so constituted that they can tolerate an 'oil bath' that kills most small weeds and grasses," he said. "It is this selective action of oil on this group of plants that makes it feasible to weed carrots with a single application of naphtha spray."

RJC Backs Pile Up 708 Yards To Lead Circuit

Coach Boone Yarborough's 1952 Ranger Junior College machine is an offensive powerhouse. In two contests—their impressive triumphs over the Deatur Baptists and the Midwestern U. "B" squad—the T-powered Purple and Whittier's blitzing ground attack has accounted for most of the terrific total of 708 yards gained offensively.

Coach Yarborough's backs have rolled up 610 yards via the terra firma route. And their passing, though weak, hasn't paid off poorly. Ranger aeriels have garnered 98 yards—an average of 49 yards per game.

The Rangers, who journey down to Bryan Saturday night for their third encounter of the yet new '52 campaign against the Allen Academy crew, lead the Pioneer Conference offensively thus far on the basis of nine games played by members of the collegiate loop.

Individual honors are evenly distributed among the five teams comprising the circuit. In addition to their offensive leadership, Fred Sanders, fleet Ranger back, leads in kick-off returns—two for 48 yards.

Other Pioneer Conference statistics to date reveal—Arlington State leads in passing with a net gain of 167 yards in two games. San Angelo is close behind with 143 yards gained passing.

League's leading running, thus far, is Jack Bridges, speedy San Angelo halfback who has carried 28 times for 209 yards, an average of 7.5.

No Alibi Left For Speeders

NEW YORK—Soon no speeding motorist, however glib, will be able to talk himself out of a ticket. He'll be confronted with a photograph of his speeding car, according to Electronics, McGraw-Hill publication.

Many motorists already are familiar with some states. Now the radar has been coupled with a camera that photographs the license plates of speeding cars while time and date are recorded, the magazine says.

The device, now in the testing stage, is triggered by radar whenever an approaching car exceeds a set speed limit. The company planning to make it hopes to rent equipment to municipalities at a cost between $30 and $50 a day, servicing the unit daily and delivering a roll of developed film to the police within 24 hours.

Leading receiver is Jule Bebeher, San Angelo end, who has caught 6 for 105 yards, an average of 17.5. San Angelo also has the best punter in Gene Henderson who has booted 11 times for 391 yards, an average of 35.5.

Johnny Cozart, Arlington State halfback, leads in punt returns, 3 for 169 yards, an average of 56.3. Leading scorer Leon Sefton, classy Schreiner halfback, has 3 touchdowns and 5 conversions for a total of 23 points.

Tarleton State players are not included this week as the Pioneers have played only one game thus far.

'Reality' Sunday Lesson Title

"And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to his purpose" (Romans 8:28). This comforting verse will be included in the selections to be read from the Bible next Sunday in Christian Science churches when the topic for the Lesson-Sermon is "Reality."

The Golden Text is from I Chronicles: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all" (29:11).

From the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, the following will be read: "God is natural good, and is represented only by the idea of goodness; while evil should be regarded as unnatural, because it is opposed to the nature of Spirit, God" (page 119).

Jewelry Versatility Delicate Pieces Have Many Uses

Jewelry is turned into conversation pieces in these gossamer designs for Fall by Sustain. Shimmering, silvery tendrils (left) sparkling with tiny rhinestones form a spider pattern in this tiara, worn with matching earrings. The flexible wire can be twisted to form a crown, necklace or decoration for a belt. Miniature shells (right) are centered with minute mock pearls to form earrings and choker necklace. Shells and pearls are handset in flexible wire. The necklace can also be threaded through a chignon or worn as a single strap on a strapless evening gown.—By Gaile Dugas, NEA Woman's Editor.
