Golden 50's Plan Bigger Better Celebration

The "Golden 50s reunion of ex-students from Muleshoe High School is scheduled for July 6, here in Muleshoe. This reunion is expected to be at least 20 percent better than the first extravaganza held five years ago.

The reason is that the organizing committee has "Adopted" two classes that followed the 1950s-1960-61; hence the title, "Golden Fifties Plus Two!"

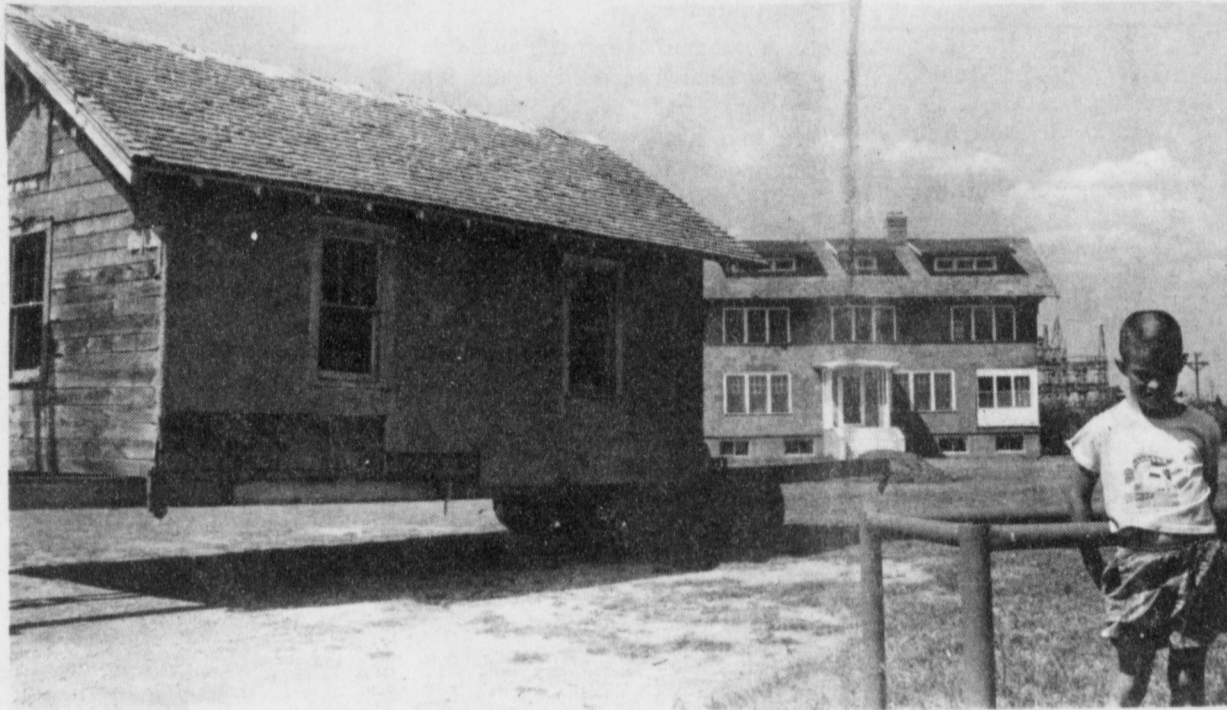

Exes from the 1960 class first asked to be included, and since the 1961 class will be celebrating their 30th anniversary this year, they didn't want to be left out.

Highlighting the reunion will be the gathering at 4 p.m. Saturday at the Bailey County Coliseum on West Highway 70-84. That's when registration and visiting begins.

However, the exes are urged to participate in the patriotic parade the morning of July 4th in downtown Muleshoe. Each class is encouraged to have a vehicle for their class year with as many members as possible riding in the parade.

An Old Settlers Reunion is scheduled for 2 p.m. on July 4th.

SERVANTS QUARTERS--Jay Crowfoot and Associates donated the servant's quarters of the John N. Janes Ranch headquarters to the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation Complex. The major part of the quarters were moved June 13 to the complex site. It is possible the John N. Janes ranch house, known as the Rocking Chair Ranch was built in 1906 for the beautiful young wife of John N. Janes. She was from Vanita, Oklahoma and her name was Ruby Robbins. Janes had servants for his wife and they lived above the garage. Cars passed under the porta-a-cher of the house. Guests and members of the family disembarked at that point, going up the stairs to the porch and entering the parlor while the car was parked in the garage.

Erratic Weather Takes Toll On Young Cotton Plants

If it isn't one thing, it's another. That might well be the motto of Texas High Plains Cotton farmers, who have seen recent rains, high winds and hail inflict serious damage on young cotton plants.

Heavy thundershowers the first week of June, accompanied by winds as high as 70 miles an hour, blowing sand and hail have producers assessing their fields to see if they must replant. In Gains County, the state's top producer of cotton, hail severely damaged 15,000 to 20,000 acres.

"We started with a relatively dry season that precluded planting of most of the dryland acreage," said Dr. James Supak, Texas Agricultural Extension Service cotton agronomist.

The counties around Lubbock which he serves, dubbed "the world's biggest cotton patch," this year planted some 3.7 million acres of cotton, about half of it irrigated. The area annually produces half the state's crop and about 20 to 25 percent of the nation's cotton.

The dryland crop should be planted by May 20 for best results, Supak said. But at the end of May almost a million acres was still unplanted or being planted without adequate soil moisture, in hope of showers to germinate the seed.

"Most of our irrigated acreage got planted in a timely fashion and got off to a pretty good start," Supak said. Then came several days of cool weather that slowed development and in some cases caused problems with seedling disease.

Three Way 4-H Youth Place

At Round-Up

Larry Robertson and Marc Tucker, Bailey County 4-H members from Three Way, placed second in the Landscape or Production Horticulture contest held during Texas 4-H Roundup, June 4 and 5, on the Texas A&M University campus.

Five other Bailey County 4-H'ers participated in various contests held during state round-up. The participants and their respective contests were: Marianne Toombs, Companion Animals demonstration; Courtney Tanksley, Housing and Home Environment education activity; Jason Harmon, Poultry demonstration; and Cynthia Bennett and Melissa Bennett, Sheep and/or Goats demonstration.

These young people were among approximately 2000 4-H'ers from across the state who participated in Texas 4-H Roundup.

Each of these 4-H'ers earned the right to participate at Texas Roundup by placing first or second in their respective categories at District 4-H Roundup that was held in May at Texas Tech University.

Another big celebration is scheduled for July 6 in Sudan. Plans are being finalized for the upcoming Pioneer Celebration. Several new contests and events have been added this year along with the annual favorites.

"A Welcome Home Salute" will be the theme of this year's celebration. The theme will stress a salute to the servicemen, accomplishments of the students and a special welcome to former residents returning for the day.

Main Street Beautification" will be among the new contests and will include painting of windows of downtown buildings. Any organization, group or individual may paint an assigned window. Each group will furnish their own paint and

1991-92 School Year Expanded Five Days

Recently passed legislation requires that the school year for students be expanded from 175 to 180 days of instruction. The five additional class days were taken from days that were previously used for staff development and preparation. Although school calendars are normally adopted in February or March, this year districts had to re-adopt calendars for 1991-92 to meet the mandates of this new legislation.

An additional part of the legislation provides that at least 20 hours of staff development must be provided for employees during their school day. Local districts decided how this staff development is done.

At its meeting on June 10 the Board of Trustees of the Muleshoe Independent School District adopted the calendar recommended by Superintendent Bill Moore that meets these new requirements. On six days during the year, school will be dismissed early and employees will participate in staff development activities. Perhaps the biggest change in the calendar from the previously adopted one, other than the earlier starting date, is that the first semester will end before the Christmas holidays. All holidays are the same as those approved in the previously adopted calendar. Also, still included are two "bad-weather" days that become holidays at Easter if no school days are missed because of weather during the winter.

The revised calendar is being distributed throughout the community. Any questions about the calendar should be directed to the superintendent's office at 272-3389 or call the principal of your child's school.

must use a good quality exterior paint for lasting effect.

Those wishing to paint may request window assignments by calling 227-2238 or writing to Main Street Beauty Contest, P.O. Box 223, Sudan. All designs must be completed by June 28 for judging purposes. You are asked to please sign and date your design.

So, 'artists' get your paint brushes out, call for your window assignment, first call, first choice, and get-to work on beautifying Main Street.

The fire plug painting contest will be held again this year as most of the residents felt the plugs need a new coat of paint. The theme will give you many choices of characters to portray. The contest is open to all ages but children under 10 must have an older supervisor such as a brother or sister, grandmother etc. Grandmothers can get involved by helping their grandchildren show their artistic abilities. Call PeeWee Lance at 227-2345 for assignment of fire plugs and instructions on paint to be used. Cash prizes of $15, $10 and $5 will be awarded in this fun event.

Another new event will be a Baking Contest sponsored by the Womens Club. There will be four age categories for cakes, breads and cookies. A special category 'for men only' is also planned. Ribbons will be awarded and all goods will be auctioned with proceeds going to the Community Christmas Decoration fund.

Local Students

Attend Annual

Electric Workshop

Steven Wauson and Andy Wilson, Muleshoe High School Students, were among 74 Future Farmers of America (FFA) members who participated in the recent, 29th annual FFA Electric Workshop sponsored by Southwestern Public Service Company in Amarillo.

The three day workshop, held June 3-5, featured demonstrations, videos and lectures, in part, on wiring farm buildings, assembly of electric controls and electric safety. Students from the Texas Panhandle and South Plains, and eastern New Mexico attended. SPS employees and area agricultural-science teachers served as instructors.

SPS is a regional electric utility that primarily provides electric service to a population of about one million people in a 52,000 square mile area of the South Plains and Panhandle of Oklahoma and southwestern Kansas. Corporate headquarters is in Amarillo.

Report From
U.S. Representative
Larry Combast

U.S. Representative Larry Combast (R-Texas) brings the concerns of agricultural producers, lenders and agribusiness owners before members of the House Agriculture's Credit Subcommittee during a field hearing in Lubbock on Monday, June 17 at Texas Tech University. The congressional hearing will be held at the Texas Tech Livestock Arena/Meat Laboratory building at Indiana Avenue located just off the Tech Freeway. The hearing to address agricultural credit concerns will cap a working visit by Combast that begins with a news conference on Friday, in the congressman's Lubbock office.

"Monday's field hearing on agricultural credit provides an excellent opportunity for members of Congress to hear firsthand from the farmers, lenders and other West Texans interested in agricultural credit," said Combast. "The credit subcommittee is interested in how agricultural lending programs of the federal government have responded to the increased demand for operating capital. Subcommittees Chairman Glenn English has highlighted these concerns by scheduling his first field hearing on this topic in West Texas."

Combast noted the 19th Congressional District of Texas is the largest cotton-producing district in the nation as well as having one fourth of the volume of Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) loans in Texas. As the site for the field hearing, the 19th District includes some Panhandle counties experiencing a credit crunch now affecting farmers and ranchers.

All witnesses wishing to testify during the hearing should contact the congressman's district representative, Jimmy Clark in Lubbock by calling (806) 763-1611 or David Hartman in Combast's Washington, D.C. office at (202) 225-4005 prior to the field hearing. Witnesses must provide 10 copies of their prepared written testimony to the credit subcommittee. In the interest of time, all oral comments will be limited to five minute summaries, however participants may submit detailed testimony for the official record. Additionally, the subcommittee encourages interested persons who are unable to attend the field hearing to submit written testimony.

After Friday's news conference, Congressman Combast will tour the new Department of Veteran's Affairs Outpatient clinic, address the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce Governmental Affairs and Agriculture Committees and tour a local small business, Hunter Millworks.

Saturday, June 15, the congressmen joined South Plains residents in celebration of the 50th Anniversary Open House at Reese Air Force Base after he dedicated a plaque at Lubbock International Airport commemorating World War II glider pilots who trained in Lubbock.

Organ Transplants Now Almost Routine Procedure

Organ transplantation has become an almost routine medical procedure. Hearts and kidneys are transplanted every day, as are corneas for the eyes.

Neurobiologist Raymond D. Lund, Ph.D., of the University of Pittsburgh, is experimenting with the restoration of vision through the transplantation of retinal tissue.

find new ways of recreating those damaged bit of the brain, the damaged circuits, and try to get that retina to connect back again with the brain," says Dr. Lund.

According to Research to Prevent Blindness (RPB), several research laboratories are exploring approaches to correcting damage to the retina and optic nerve. In one animal study, a bit of retinal tissue from an embryo is inserted into the damaged retina. The goal is to determine whether the new tissue will integrate normally into the neural circuits of the host eye.

A second approach uses a bridge between the eye and the brain. That "bridge," a piece of the sciatic nerve from the leg, seems to provide a pathway that encourages the growth of nerve fibers toward the brain in animal experiments.

A third strategy, pursued by Dr. Lund, involves transplanting retinal tissue from an immature animal directly to the surface of the brain. "We find that the eye will make the appropriate connections and can actually function in a sensible manner," he says.

Shining light on the implanted retina was the first test of the nerve connections. When the pupil of the host's normal eyes contracted, it suggested that the transplant was connected to the appropriate part of the brain. It was also found that the animal, a laboratory rat, reacted by attempting to avoid the light received through the implanted retina. A third behavioral test showed that animals could use information delivered through the transplant to learn to respond in an appropriate way to a particular experimental situation.

The first brain tissue transplants among humans have demonstrated that immature dopamine manufacturing cells can be transplanted into the brain in an effort to treat Parkinson's disease.

The retina tissue transplant is much more complicated. Yet,

Dr. Lund is optimistic: "I hope that one can follow this line of study, and eventually find some way of doing something about recreating damaged circuits in the diseased retina, or in the damaged visual system at large."

Rasco Wins Gold Medal

Gayla Rasco, daughter of Georgeann Rasco of Sudan, received a gold medal recently for making a first division at the Texas State Solo and Ensemble Contest. The contest was held on the campus of the University of Texas at Austin, with over 13,000 high school students from across the state competing.

Summer Reading Camp

By Anne Camp

Twenty five happy campers attended the first week Film and Fun day at the library Friday. They saw a film called "Library world". It introduced the boys and girls to the many wonders of the library. The Pledge of allegiance was given and Anne Camp read the story "The Viper." "Goliath II" AND "Out on a Limb", Disney short movies were shown. The program ended with a treat and the reminder that "Camp Wana-read is Our Name, Reading is Our Game. Watch for a tent raising this week.

The library is getting a "face lift" to spruce up the front. More about it later. We apologize for any inconvenience it has caused in parking in front, and to our neighbors for the equipment and vehicles around while work is in progress. We think the end will justify the means though, and everyone will take renewed pride in the results. This is your library, we hope you will be proud of it.

The Library has a good collection of videos, films, books on tape, and records for your enjoyment. The videos are circulated for overnite use, the others are circulated just as books are. We do ask that the patrons take care of them, rewind the videos and please don't leave them for any length of time in a hot car, as they may be damaged or ruined. Also, be sure to return them on time.

There's still time to join the Summer Reading Club, and be a happy library camper.

Sudan Band Tape Wins Honors

Sudan band directors Bruce and Kay Kenner were informed during their trips to state solo and ensemble contest that the Sudan Bold Gold Band's honor band tape entry was one of two tapes chosen to advance to area. The region taping session was held in Lubbock last Saturday. Sudan and Plains were the two Class A bands chosen to go on.

The Area contest will be held in Monahans on Saturday, June 22, where 5 tapes from this half of the state will be selected to go to the state contest. The Kenners plan to attend the area contest to listen to all 10 Class A entries.

The state contest to choose the Class A Honor Band will be held in San Antonio on July 27 during the Texas Bandmasters Association Convention. The honor hand will be selected from the 5 tapes from this half of the state and 5 tapes from the eastern half of the state.

The Texas Honor Band System is sponsored by the Texas Music Educators Association to identify and showcase the best concert bands in the state. This and the state marching contest the Sudan band won last November are the only two state championships available to public school band programs. The Honor Band winner will be invited to attend the T.M.E.A. convention in San Antonio in February of 1992 and perform a concert for the music educators of Texas.

"This contest is especially important for the students and directors of the Bold Gold because no one in any school classification has ever won both the state marching contest and honor band in the same year," said Kenner. Also, the state marching contest is going to the same "every other year" format the honor band system presently uses.

These students had to meet strict criteria before induction into NHS, which included grade point average restrictions, character and over-all citizenship, and recommendation by teachers and administrators.

National Honor Society officers and members conducted the induction ceremony. Stacey Barber led the prayer; Casey Bradshaw, president, inducted the new members. Elsa Mendoza, secretary-treasurer, Raymond Zamora, vice-president, Juanita Ramos, projects chairperson, and Jana Vise, activities chairperson, gave short presentations on scholarship, service, leadership, and character.

Parents of new inductees presented pins to their sons and daughters. Guest speaker was Superintendent Phil Warren, and Principal Randel Beaver gave congratulatory remarks. National Honor Society sponsor, Mrs. Thelma Coffey, presented certificates. Elementary principal and high school counselor, Mrs. Anne Farris, was also in attendance to congratulate new inductees.

Other members of NHS include: Susan Alcala, Frank Gonzales, Holley Morris, and Justin Morris.

Vise Is Science Winner

The United States Achievement Academy announced today that Jana Vise has been named a United States National Award winner in Science. This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students.

Jana Vise, who attends Lazbuddie High School was nominated for this National Award by Mrs. Debbie Weir, a science teacher at the school. Jana will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly United States Achievement Academy award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement Academy.

The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Jana is the daughter of Dale and Nellie Vise. The grandparents are Billie and Merreman Vise of Muleshoe, Texas and Mrs. Betty O. Faw of Big Timber, Montana.

Cotton Plants

Going into June, without a general rain across the area, "the crop was beginning to make good progress," the cotton specialist said.

Then came the rains, "generally gentle enough and sufficient to allow germination of dryland cotton," Supak said. But for already emerged young plants, the accompanying winds, sand and hail took their toll. The moisture and cooler, cloudy conditions stimulated a resurgence of seedling disease.

"Right now we have a lot of fields that just a few days ago looked pretty good and now are showing the effects of wind-burn, some seedling disease damage and a lot of plants are dying," The Extension Service agronomist said.

The heaviest wind and sand damage is on the younger cotton, he said. "These young seedlings are just more vulnerable to that kind of damage." Those also are the plants showing seedling disease problems, he said.

Older cotton, up for about six weeks, is getting into "that woody stage which is basically resistant to seedling disease damage," Supak said. "But it's still susceptible to the kind of wind and hail damage we had last week."

Sunshine and warm weather are needed to dry the fields and allow farmers to do some tillage to aerate the plants and stabilize the fields to prevent further wind and sand damage, the specialist said.

Farmers have to carefully assess their fields, Supak said. "They're going to have to make that tough decision whether there's enough stand left out there to keep, or whether the crop should be replanted."

"Throw the yardstick out ahead of you. Where it lands, look at the plants and make a stand count right there," Supak says.

"Count only the plants that are going to be obvious survivors. Then make a note of how many are remaining per foot of row." If there are at least 1.5 or 2 per foot, and there aren't too many long skips, "there's enough stand to leave at this stage of the game," he said.

If the damage was from wind or sand, "look in the terminals and see if there's growth beginning to develop," he said. "If the plant looks limp, don't count it."

"With hail damage, we also need to take a look at the amount of stem bruising," Supak said. A cotton plant, especially an older plant that's in the woody stage, generally will survive a pretty severe hailstorm if the plant has any viable buds remaining and there isn't heavy stem bruising below the lowest bud.

"Examine the stem carefully," Supak urged. See if it's been hit by a hailstone, if the bark's been shattered, and if the part below the hit is still in good shape and any buds are left there.

"By now, some of those buds ought to be activating. We ought to see green tissue developing in the axil between where the leaf is, or was, and the stem.

"That kind of plant has a good chance of surviving."

The youngest crops were the most sensitive and therefore the hardest hit by storm damage. "They'll require the most critical examination," Supak said.

If replanting is necessary, growers from Lubbock north need to look at very early maturing varieties. South of Lubbock, growers still have time to replant with early maturing types.

DPS Issues

Warning To

Texas Motorists

The Summer season is rapidly approaching and now that school is out, most Texans will be planning for vacations. The Texas Department of Public Safety wants to remind us that thousands of tourists will be coming to Texas for their vacations, according to Major V.J. Cawthorn, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

He stated, "With all of the additional traffic that will be on the streets and highways and the warmer weather this means additional traffic in and around the recreational areas, this will mean more alcohol consumption and of course more accidents."

Major Cawthorn said, "With the use of a little courtesy and obeying those little traffic laws, large accidents can be avoided."

A person needs to have the family vehicle checked to make sure it is in good condition before they start out on vacation. Remember, to take at least a 15 minute break after every two hours of driving, avoid drinking alcoholic beverages and don't forget to buckle up the safety belt.

Major Cawthorn emphasized the need to reduce our speed in the residential neighborhoods because of children, who are now out of school for the summer. Don't forget to use our safety helmet when riding a motorcycle, whether it's on public streets or private property.

Plan your trip so that you have plenty of time to reach your destination and return with time to spare. Don't try and cram a months worth of vacation into a week, after all we do want you around to enjoy next year with us.

Plan and Prepare For A Safe Picnic

Spring and summer are seasons for picnics and cook-outs, but also a peak time for food-borne illness.

"Food-borne illness is a big problem during hot, hazy days because bacteria thrive in temperatures above 60 degrees," said Dr. Peggy Van Laanen, nutritionist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. More than 25 million cases of food poisoning are reported each year.

Such illnesses can be prevented, Van Laanen said, by taking proper precautions when food is prepared, stored or transported.

She offered these tips for preparing and packing food safely for outings:

Keep everything that touches food clean. Stop and wash utensils, bowls and counter tops--everything that touches food--between working on each dish. To avoid cross-contamination, never handle raw foods and cooked foods. Cream pies and custards also may be difficult to transport safely.

Good choices for outings are meat, fish and poultry in cans that can be opened and eaten immediately, she said.

Another good standby is peanut butter. Nuts, dried fruits and cereal mixtures, hard cheeses and crackers also are good choices.

Fresh fruits and vegetables go well at any picnic, Van Laanen said. But be sure to wash them thoroughly before packing to remove any contaminants.

"For outings, carry only what you plan on eating," she said. "Leftovers can be tricky. Eat as soon as possible upon arrival and never leave food out for more than two hours."

When eating outdoors, using disposables is a good idea.

Use a fork, not your hands to mix meat, macaroni, egg, tuna or green salad. Your hands continually pick up germs that get into fingernails and skin creases. Only vigorous washing with hot, soapy water prepares hands to safely deal with food.

Cook meat, poultry and seafood thoroughly to kill bacteria.

Refrigerate foods prepared the night before. Store perishables--meat, poultry or fish sandwiches, hard-boiled eggs--in the refrigerator until time to leave on your picnic.

Giving the ice chest a good washing. Use baking soda to eliminate odors.

Use an ice chest to keep foods cold while traveling to the picnic area. Don't pack the chest too full; use enough ice to maintain a temperature of 40 degrees or below. Use shallow containers so food will stay chilled throughout. Keep the cooler in the shade, never in a hot car.

If bags are used to pack food, use only new, clean ones. Bags that have been used to carry groceries can pass insects or bacteria to foods. Wet or stained bags carry germs.

"When planning the menu, remember some foods are safer to take along than others," Van Laanen said. "Certain 'red flag' foods that need special care are moist, protein-containing foods such as dairy products, meats, eggs, poultry and seafood. Fried chicken and hard-boiled or deviled eggs are two foods that pick up bacteria quite easily."

El Paso Area Pecan Orchards Threatened

Urban residents and commercial pecan growers are joining forces with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to combat an insect that is potentially a $6 million pest for the counties of El Paso and adjoining Dona Ana in New Mexico.

The villain is the hickory shuckworm. It was first identified last year in a residential neighborhood in southeast El Paso, said Phil Glogoza, entomologist with the Extension Service in El Paso County. It is a threat to more than 10,000 pecan trees in the city and more than a million trees in area commercial orchards.

The area's commercial pecan crop is valued at $21 million to $24 million annually. There are some 5,700 acres of pecans in El Paso County and 14,000 acres in adjacent Dona Ana County.

The hickory shuckworm is common in most pecan-producing regions of Texas except in the High Plains and the El Paso area. It is controlled elsewhere by spraying. Prior to this new find, the nearest shuckworm infestations were around Van Horn and Pecos, 200 miles east.

"Right now, (the shuckworm) is concentrated in a very small urban area," said Art Ivey, president of the El Paso Pest Management Association, an organization of cotton and pecan growers. "We think there is a chance we might limit its spread before it gets into more neighborhoods and commercial orchards."

With this goal, Ivey's group, the Extension Service, the Western Pecan Growers Association and the New Mexico Department of Agriculture are initiating a campaign May 13 to trap the insects and disrupt their reproduction.

"Right now, we don't have a major pest in the commercial pecans in this area," Glogoza said. If the shuckworm spreads to the orchards, it can be controlled by spraying with pesticides approved for such use.

Commercial producers now spend $30 or less an acre to control insects, the entomologist said. But a shuckworm infestation, together with an anticipated gradual spread of another pest--the pecan nut casebearer--could push grower control costs to $60 to $100 an acre annually, he said.

Even with such controls, growers could expect a 10 percent to 15 percent yield reduction from the pests, the entomologist said. "That could mean a negative swing in the producer's income of about $270 an acre," Glogoza said.

The Extension Service placed 75 traps in the infested area in 1990, gathering data for the 1991 control effort. Next week, traps baited with a pheromone--a secretion that attracts adult male shuckworm moths--will be placed in trees and monitored.

In July and August, when caterpillars attack the nuts, some spot spraying of trees may be used.

"The caterpillars bore through the shucks and damage the nuts, making them undesirable or unmarketable," Glogoza said. The insects also can cause trees to shed nuts.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BRIEF EXPLANATORY STATEMENTS OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS SPECIAL ELECTION AUGUST 10, 1991

PROPOSITION NO. 1 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 42 proposes a constitutional amendment that would authorize the newly created county education districts to hold elections to exempt from ad valorem taxation a percentage of the market value of the residence homestead of a married or unmarried adult. The percentage exempted could not exceed 20% of such market value, and the amount exempted could not be less than $5,000. The amendment would also authorize county education districts to hold elections to exempt from ad valorem taxation not less than $3,000 of the market value of the residence homestead of a disabled person or a person sixty-five years of age or older. Finally, the amendment would authorize elections in county education districts for the taxation of certain tangible personal property exempted from ad valorem taxation by the legislature.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment to allow the voters of a county education district to adopt certain exemptions from the district's ad valorem taxation for residence homesteads and to provide for the taxation of certain tangible personal property."

PROPOSITION NO. 2 ON THE BALLOT

Senate Joint Resolution 5 proposes a constitutional amendment that would allow the legislature to pass general laws authorizing Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board or its successor to issue and sell up to $300 million of general obligation bonds to finance educational loans to students. The maximum net effective interest rate to be borne by the bonds would be set by law. The amendment would also authorize the legislature to provide for the investment of bond proceeds and to establish an interest and sinking fund to pay the bonds and provide for the investment of such fund. Bonds authorized under this amendment would be paid from the first money coming into the treasury in each fiscal year that is not otherwise appropriated by the constitution, less any amount in an interest and sinking fund established at the end of the preceding year that is pledged to the payment of the bonds or interest.

The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot as follows:

"The constitutional amendment providing for the issuance of general obligation bonds to provide educational loans to students."

Kiwanis News

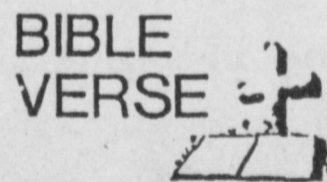

By R.A. Bradley

Fifteen Kiwanians, two honorary Kiwanians, Lacy Morris and Chad Johnson, seven guests, Dawn Merriott, Nelda Merriott, Darla Rhodes, Joe Rhonda Northcutt, Donita Cooper, June Dohn and Terry Green, met Friday morning at the Dairy Queen after putting out the flags for Flag Day. It is good to see all of the flags flying.

President Glen Morris called the meeting to order. Keith Turner led the pledge to the flag and R.A. Bradley gave the invocation. It seems our friendship coin is still out looking for a friend. Herb, the best place to find a friend is in the Kiwanis Club.

Sweetheart Marsha Wilson was a little late but she had a good excuse. She had to call her "Grandpa" after 11:00, Marsha I didn't know his name was "Grandpa". But if he doesn't mind being called "Grandpa". Marsha was also up at 2:00 chasing a bug around the house for two hours. She finally got the cats in on the chase. Marsha, you have the oddest names for all of your boy friends, "Grandpa", "Bugs". I don't know about you.

Nelda said she needed three minutes of our time. Nelda doesn't know where to put her O's. Her three minutes is more like 30 minutes. Nelda, Darla Rhodes, Donita Cooper and June Dohn put on a skit about the Muleplex Production that will be in the High School Auditorium July 2nd and 5th at 7:30 p.m. "Every Family Has One" directed by Kerry Moore. Girls, it was a very good program. Thank you Nelda it was only about 10 minutes. You are getting better. See everyone at the Muleplex Production.

We know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose.

Aging and Skin Cancer

The natural aging process can disguise the symptoms of skin cancer in the elderly. A dermatologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston says what appears as a liver spot may actually be the start of skin cancer.

"As people age, they are increasingly at risk for skin cancer," said Dr. Leonard H. Goldberg, an associate professor of dermatology at Baylor "Some people ignore a mole or a sore that has grown in size over months and even years and assume it is not serious and will go away on its own."

Skin cancer first appears as a small reddish or brown ulcer, pimple or mole commonly found on the face, neck, hands or soles. In advanced stages, the cancer can spread through the bloodstream to the kidney, liver, bones and lymph glands, causing severe illness and even death.

Of the three forms of skin cancer--basal cell carcinoma, squamous cell carcinoma and malignant melanoma--the latter ranks as the most life-threatening. All three are associated with long-term sun exposure.

Malignant melanoma may appear spontaneously or form in existing moles containing melanocytes, pigment-producing cells that give color to the skin.

An estimated 25,000 cases of malignant melanoma are diagnosed each year resulting in 8,000 deaths.

Elderly people with pale skin, freckles and blonde or red hair who have been exposed to intense sunlight for many years are particularly vulnerable to skin cancer.

"People with a history of outdoor recreational activity run the greatest risk of developing skin cancer," Goldberg said.

"While participating in water sports like fishing or boating, they have exposed their skin to the sun's harsh rays. Adding the reflection from the water results in a double dose of sunlight."

Nearly all skin cancers diagnosed early can be successfully treated, Goldberg said. The five-year melanoma survival rate is 100 percent, which is attributed to early detection. For advanced Melanoma, the rate falls to 50 percent. Changes or new growths should be examined by a physician who may surgically remove the cancer and perform a biopsy.

Goldberg says the elderly can do their part in decreasing their risk of developing skin cancer.

"Wear long-sleeved shirts, hats and sunscreen lotion while outdoors," he said. "Avoid the sun between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. when the sun's rays are most damaging."

He recommends undressing in front of a mirror monthly and looking for a change in the size, shape or color of moles, blemishes or birthmarks, or a waxy-looking lump or a sore that has not healed or crusts or bleeds.

In some cases, the elderly are unable to look at their entire body because of impaired vision. Goldberg suggests that a family member perform a careful examination.

He advises the elderly to use common sense when exposing the skin to sunlight.

"Even though older people do not feel the need to get out in the sun as much as young people, there are many senior adults who still enjoy the great outdoors," Goldberg said. "Take the necessary precautions and see a physician if you are suspicious about a new or pre-existing mole or sore."

For more information on how to detect skin cancer, call the Cancer Information Service toll-free at 1-800-4-CANCER.

Horsley, and his family were here. Well, Gale had such a good time in Muleshoe and enjoyed the people so much-and the warm feeling of "community" that she is coming back this year! Yes, Gale is spending her vacation in Muleshoe this year! even though the famous star of Guns of Paradise will not be here. "Everyone is so friendly", Gale remarked, "and I feel like I have friends in Muleshoe now." Gale will probably be carrying a clipboard around and encouraging everyone to go ahead and sign a petition to CBS to put Guns of Paradise back in their fall line-up. As I said, Gale is a loyal fan. So when you see Gale around Muleshoe during the 4th of July week, give her a big West Texas welcome. She's looking forward to attending the Family Fun Night put on by

Likeness

The artist is capturing the physical likeness of this lovely girl on her paper. The likeness is amazing. But her inward beauty, her wonderful Christian heart and soul, can only be captured fully on God's canvas. The Bible says that "Man looketh on the outward appearance but God looketh on the heart."

How would God's painting picture you and me?

One good way to improve your heart condition is to attend church and hear God's word proclaimed from the pulpit. Learn God's plan for your life by listening to His word. We invite you to attend the church of your choice this week.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Mexican Cotton Production Increase Not Likely

Cotton probably won't become a material crop across the border under a U.S.-Mexico Free Trade Agreement because other crops will be more profitable.

"While the profitability of cotton production may rise, the profitability of other crops such as fruits and vegetables may rise more," according to a study by Texas A&M University's Agricultural Market Research Center.

The assessment of the U.S. and Texas cotton industry under a trade agreement was compiled by Dr. Merritt J. Taylor, Texas Agricultural Extension Service economist in Weslaco. The article is one of 11 reports on the impact of trade negotiations on the nation's major commodity and non-commodity topics.

U.S. trade talks with Mexico could begin by June if Congress grants "fast-track" negotiating authority, set to expire at the end of May, according to Dr. Gary Williams, coordinator of the Texas Agricultural Market Research Center which initiated the comprehensive study.

Because negotiations have not begun, no clear terms have been set forth. The center's study pinpoints matters that should be considered to best serve both nations.

U.S. cotton shippers are largely opposed to liberalized trade between the two nations, fearing that the U.S. textile industry would be damaged by such an agreement.

Taylor said that if cotton production does increase on Mexico's side of the Rio Grande Valley, water use, insect problems and lower labor costs will be the primary concerns of U.S. producers.

"Additional water demands by Mexico could create unbearable water problems for area cities and agriculture," Taylor wrote.

The two countries now have a treaty that determines the amount of water that may be used from the Rio Grand. If the free trade agreement does not alter the allotments, Mexican costs for a relatively fixed supply of water would be higher.

Taylor also said poor drainage from Mexico's irrigated cotton fields could hurt the Rio Grande's water quality.

Insect problems are a concern because Mexico does not use control measures practiced in the United States such as uniform plow-up dates that destroy insect habitat during non-growing winter months.

Although labor constitutes only 5 percent of the total cotton production cost, Taylor pointed out, lower labor cost in Mexico could produce a "slight absolute cost advantage over U. S. producers".

But the economist doesn't expect Mexican farmers to step up cotton production. Production there has continually decreased since 1964 to less than 500,000 acres currently.

"Reduced profitability, competition from commodities covered by price supports or special subsidies, and weather-related problems combined to induce Mexican farmers to switch out of cotton," Taylor said.

Mexican farmers harvested an average of less than 500,000 acres of cotton a year from 1985-89, down from more than 2 million acres a year in 1960-64. Once the second largest cotton producer in Latin America, Mexico now is fourth behind Argentina, Paraguay and Brazil.
