CLUBBING OFFER

In this day of progress the man who would succeed must be informed about the world's doings. The local paper gives him local information which is needful, but it cannot cover the whole field. Hence the man who keep step with the march of the times will take a general newspaper also.

The Fort Worth Semi-Weekly Record has taken front rank among the great publications of the South and West. It is specially prepared for the reader who has not the time or the opportunity to read a daily paper.

First of all, it is a newspaper. The Record believes that the people of the country and village are as much interested in current events as the people of the city.

In the next place, it carries features suitable for all members of the family—women and children as well as men.

Last, but by no means least, the Record's editorial policy comprehends the economic welfare of the farmer and stock raiser. The Record is an acknowledged leader in the discussion of public questions in their relation to agricultural production.

It Certainly Was Embarrassing

to David Kerr, boss of Belmont, when his charming, motherless daughter Gloria unexpectedly returned from school and a European trip, which, combined, had kept her away from home for many years and deprived her of all knowledge of the occupation of her father, whom she supposed to be a real estate operator, high in society. But that was but the beginning of embarrassments. Kerr was a typical boss of the most brutal type, far removed from "society," determined to use his power to make a place for Gloria. Gloria's bitterawakening to the truth, her falling in love with a young editor who opposes her father, and many other incidents make up a drama of absorbing interest and power. You will enjoy every instalment of our next serial in which the above is told.

REV. W. M. DYER DIED MONDAY FUNERAL TUESDAY

Rev. W. M. Dyer died at the family home in east Hedley Monday noon, after protracted illness of several months with cancer of the stomach. The funeral services were held at the Methodist church by Presiding Elder Story of Clarendon, and the pastor Rev. G. H. Bryant, after which the Hedley W. O. W. Camp, of which deceased was a member, took charge and led the procession to the cemetery where he was buried with Woodman honors.

The church was crowded to its capacity and all the school children marched in and occupied standing positions in the outside aisles. After the services there the procession following to the cemetery was nearly a mile long. All business houses closed during the service, and the funeral was one of the largest ever attended in Hedley.

Rev. Dyer, while his health permitted, was an active and effective minister in the M. E. Church, but for the last few months of his life he was confined to his bed, where he suffered much but never complained.

He leaves a wife and three daughters, and many other relatives to mourn his loss. The Informer extends sympathy to them in their bereavement.

We want to thank the dear doctor, the nurse and every one who were so good and kind in helping us to administer unto our dear husband and father. During his last days on earth, and may the spirit of the living God, the God that was his stay not only in life but in death, bless you all and when God says that time is no more with you may you pass sweetly over the river and rest under the shade of the trees, there to sing Gods praise for ever. And to the W. O. W. Camp at Hedley we will never forget you. May God bless you in your great work in helping suffering humanity, and when your work is over may you all go sweeping through the Golden Gate to that City above, the home of the pure and blessed.

Mrs. Mittie Dyer, Children and Other Relatives.

Value of Music as Civilizing Influence

By JOHN RITCHIE, JR.

Music is a series of rhythmical noises, and this is as far as any universal agreement of man will go towards its definition. One cannot even assert that they are anything but noises or their succession that can make or mar morality.

But with the same faculty of imagination that to the child makes her dollies seem to be real persons, man has clothed the noises with meanings. These meanings, save a few which, like the rolling bass for thunder, are frankly imitations, are purely artificial and conventional. They are learned as one learns his lessons in school till the individual attaches meanings to many kinds of combinations and is able, even, to assume meanings for new combinations. What meaning may be put upon a figure or a phrase varies according to the imagination of the individual.

He may take simple pleasure in hearing groups of sounds that are related one to another mathematically, called harmonies; or in successions of tones, called melodies, or may go into raptures over subtle meanings to an almost infinite pleasure in eccentricity of rhythm as in ragtime, some in analysis of harmonies and some even in the colors with which they mentally paint the different scales. All but the mathematical interpretation are figments of the imaginations, and they have no existence when it comes to a scientific test of relationship.

In this investment of music with meanings, however, lies its attractiveness to civilized man, who takes infinite pleasure in trying to guess what sentiment a given sequence of noises has excited in the mind of another, or from what succession of thoughts or vagaries in the mind of the composer the melodies and harmonies arose.

The interpretations vary with the individual, who for a simple matter may recognize the swell of the sea in the moaning of the basses, the sighing of the zephyr in the woodwinds, the rattle of the rain in an onomatopoeic Straussian adjunct to the regular orchestra or the coming of the angels in the trilling high violins. I have known an enthusiast who could see the savages lighting a fire on the beach in a combination of sounds, while to most civilized individuals they suggest human sentiments—love, hate, fear or quietness. But all this is conventional association. There is no natural relationship.

So music, even in the broader acceptance, has nothing in it ennobling or debasing. Playing the piano has no more moral character or influence than touching the keys of a typewriter.

If the artistic temperament is the concentrated field of its studies finds its relations to the world somewhat changed, and if in its devotion to its passion it loses sight of one or another of the conventions of social life, it is nothing that is definitely from music. The results are the reaction on the individual of the type of mind.

John Ritchie, Jr.

Instinct and Trailing by Many Animals

By H. G. Collins, Birmingham, Ala.

The account of the wounding of a man charged with the theft of a mule, and the trailing of the alleged thief by a mule, brings up the matter of instinct and trailing by many animals. It seems that the owner of the mule stolen was awakened by the "Haw-he-haw" of the mate left behind, and arming himself, he went to the stable, missed one of his animals, and with quick perception released the distressed mate, which proceeded to trail the stolen one. At a distance of about three miles the owner, guided by the mule, came upon a man hitching the stolen mule to a buggy, and fired upon him.

He secured his property, of course; and there is a badly wounded man in the county jail. I have often seen a mule trailing another. They go along with their heads down close to the ground, and they never miss the trail, no matter how many other animals may have traveled along it.

And the devotion of mules, not only to each other, but often to horses, is perfectly wonderful sometimes. I remember that some years ago I had a small gray mare, a pony in fact, and that at the mountain camp where we spent one summer there was a "big old mule" called "Jack" that fell violently in love with the little mare.

Now, all the lashing you could put on "old Jack" would hardly more than force him to a slow trot in the shafts of the light forage wagon it was his duty to draw; but you just let somebody get on the little gray mare and start off in a brisk trot, and it was a job to hold that mule.

One day it became necessary to send the little mare away on an errand. Old Jack "raised so much sand" no ordinary force could keep him in, and if tied to a tree he would literally try to climb it; a log chain was placed around his fore legs to keep him from rearing up and trying to break away; and he bruised his forelegs badly in his fury. In course of time they were sold to different persons, and in parts very remote from each other, but I feel sure if Jack had slipped his halter within thirty days after being parted from his chum he would have trailed that little mare the 150 miles that separated them.

Servants and Maids Have Many Troubles

By E. R. KIRK, Baltimore, Md.

Why is it that woman is woman's worst enemy? I, too, tried "living out" in my younger days, and used the back way regardless of the condition of the alleys, also I ate what was left and entertained my bean in the kitchen. Of course all servants are not treated quite as badly as this, and as a usual thing it is only the heartless woman who will treat her help in this way.

For my part I would discontinue the use of the word "servant" and use "maid" instead. A good many girls would rather work in households where the above conditions exist than in homes where they are treated with some degree of respect, for the reason that in the former no tab is kept upon their going and coming, and their company may remain quite late. In homes of the latter kind the woman of the house is likely to say something if unduly late hours are kept.

There is no getting around the fact that if men kept the homes and hired the help things would be different on both sides. But women are women and cannot resist the temptation to be cattish. One man says that "women are natural pirates," and such as I hate to admit it, being a woman myself, I am afraid it is true.

Yet we shout for equal rights. How can we expect to get them when we are at loggerheads with each other all the time?

Summering here, a few doors from me, are four boys, who keep house, doing all the work and having the time of their lives. On the other side are two sisters who have a cottage, and to my positive knowledge one of them has packed her trunk three times in as many weeks, owing to disputes that men would never have noticed. Let's take an inventory of ourselves, sisters, and see if we each one individually hasn't some cattish habit she can overcome.

Most Graceful Mounting of Plumes

GOOD ostrich feathers require the investment of more money than almost any other millinery trimming, but they last much longer. They are always in fashion and they stand cleaning and dyeing so that the life of a good feather extends over several years. A handsome pair of plumes is shown here. They are the only trimming required on a shape, and it is a mistake to use any other with them, unless it is a little band and bow of ribbon about the crown. This will serve to conceal the mounting of the feathers.

As will be seen in the picture, the plumes are mounted at the back of the hat, with one falling toward the front and the other standing almost upright. They are placed back to back.

By buying a readymade velvet shape the owner of a plume, or of two or three, may mount them herself by going about it in the right way. It is usual to first sew the wire stem of each plume to a little square or disk of buckram. This should be about the size of a half dollar. The stems must be sewed securely to the buckram with a strong linen thread. When the needle is thrust through the buckram first, leave several inches of the thread free. After many stitches are made (holding the plume securely to the buckram), this free end is used to tie with the remainder of the thread.

The piece of buckram fastened in this way to the stems of the plumes make it possible to mount them gracefully. When sewing the buckram to the shape an end of thread is left free for tying. This is necessary because plumes sway in the wind and will pull stitches that are not tied, loose, and one is liable to lose a plume. Whenever a plume is fastened to the hat it should be tied rather than sewed, but several stitches are needed as well as the tied thread, to hold the plume securely.

Do not make the mistake of drawing the plume tightly against the hat. Let it fall naturally. Then, to keep it in position, tie the thread about the rib and then attach it (the thread), to the hat, leaving the thread sufficiently long to give the plume a little play. The whole object is to fasten the plume in place, but in such a way as to make the fastening unnoticeable.

It is a feature of this reason's millinery that a pair of plumes back to back, or one curling within the other, is mounted at the same point on the hat.

One or two plumes are seen more often than a great number. For the season demands that the lines of shape must be preserved, not lost, by too abundant trimming.

White plumes clean and dye satisfactorily. In buying black plumes, a good quality may be depended on for many seasons' wear. But one must select glossy and deep black ones, for the color of these will not grow less rich with wear. Very good plumes are not much affected by moisture. If they become damp hold them over the stove or a radiator, and shake them until thoroughly dry.

BASKETS FOR THE HOME-MADE CANDIES EASY TO FASHION

NOW that it has become difficult to buy really good candy without paying an extravagant price, those who know how to make the delicious home-made candies can be certain of making the most palatable of gifts for friends who haven't time or ability to make them. It is too early to make up candies for the holidays, but one may prepare in advance pretty boxes or baskets in which to place them when they are made.

Secure at the ten cent store or wherever you can find them the bright little splint baskets, such as are pictured here. Cut and pull out the strand of colored shavings that have been placed in them for ornament. Run in, instead of the shavings a ribbon of the same width. A thin, inexpensive satin ribbon is just the right kind for this purpose. Tie the ribbon in a small bow at the front of the basket. Light green and light blue, or colors corresponding with those in the basket, are prettiest. Red and green are fine, if the basket is in the natural wood or bamboo color.

These little baskets may be gilded with gold paint and made very attractive. After the candy has been eaten the basket will remain a pleasant reminder to the recipient of the donor's delicious Christmas gift.

Paraffine or tissue paper should be placed in them to protect them from the candy.

They will serve so many purposes later—thread boxes, handkerchief, ribbons, laces, loaves—all these need boxes. But the prettiest use for them is as a receptacle for small flowers used in table decorations. By fitting them with a scallow tin cup or part of a can, and throwing back the lid, they make a charming decoration for the table, filled with foliage and flowers.

Dress Shields.
Instead of sewing or pinning shields in a waist, sew a narrow piece of tape or baby ribbon at each end of the shield, and sew similar pieces at the proper distance apart in the armholes of all your waists. The shields are quickly tied in place, they are easily changed in wash waists, and there are no pins to rust or prick.

Monograms.
French knots make a very handsome monogram, especially in old English. No padding is required, and the paper-mache letters cannot be used. Stamp the monogram upon the article and then simply fill it in closely and solidly with small French knots. The result will be highly satisfactory.

Plaited Maline.
Maline is more used than ever, and there is scarcely a gown without the plaited frills or ruffles of this soft material.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Beautify Your Hair! Make It Soft, Fluffy and Luxuriant—Try the Moist Cloth.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable luster, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any store and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all Adv.

FIVE CHILDREN TO WORK FOR

Quite an Undertaking For a Lady, but Mrs. Wright Doesn't Mind Now.

Asheville, N. C.—Mrs. Minnie Wright, of R. F. D. No. 1, this city, says: "I don't think there is any medicine made that would have done me the good Cardui, the woman's tonic, did. I have five children to work for, and I praise Cardui for giving me the good health to do it.

I was in a delicate condition, on account of a relapse of measles which left me in a bad shape, and I also had severe headaches and backache. Was in too bad a fix for anyone to live, it seemed to me.

I was told that my only chance was an operation, but I decided to try Cardui instead. I only took two bottles, and now I am well and strong again.

I don't believe there is any medicine on earth that will help suffering women as Cardui will. I have already gotten several ladies to try it, and I am going to continue to recommend your medicine."

For more than 50 years, Cardui has been successfully used in the treatment of womanly ills. It has been found to relieve women's pains, and strengthen women's weakness.

If you are a woman, and suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to your sex, we urge you to give Cardui a trial. It has helped more than a million women in the past half century, and will do the same for you if given a fair trial.

AT DALLAS FAIR VITALITAS SHOW

Display of Texas' Most Wonderful Product—Effects Upon Human Race.

At the Dallas State Fair a display of that marvelous product, known as Vitalitas is to be made. Booth No. 128 in the main Exposition building, has been reserved for this display. A capable Demonstrator who will answer all questions will be in charge. Crude mineral Vitalitas as taken out of the earth will be shown and there will be a miniature plant in constant operation, disclosing the exact process by which the heavy, golden fluid is extracted.

Throughout all Texas, thousands of people are regaining lost health and strength by use of Vitalitas. It is effective even where everything else fails. Such disorders as indigestion, rheumatism, biliousness, catarrh, nervous debility, eczema, and all kidney and liver ills are swept away by it. All Fair visitors are cordially invited to see this exhibit. Detailed information in advance of the fair can be obtained by writing the Vital Remedies Company, Beauty building, Houston, Texas.—Adv.

MOLLY McDONALD

A TALE OF THE FRONTIER

By RANDALL PARRISH
 Author of "Keith of the Border," "My Lady of the South," etc., etc.
 Illustrations by V. L. BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

Major McDonald, commanding an army post near Fort Dodge, seeks a man to head for the post. An Indian outbreak meets the stage in which Molly is traveling. They are attacked by Indians, and Hamlin tells Molly to escape in the darkness. Hamlin tells Mrs. Dupont, who is discharged from the Confederate service in disgrace, that the close of the war enlisted in the regular army. He suspects one Captain LeFevre of being responsible for his disgrace. Troops appear and under escort of Lieut. Gaskin Molly starts to join her father. Hamlin leaves to rejoin his regiment. He returns to Fort Dodge after a summer of fighting Indians, and finds Molly there. Lieutenant Gaskin accuses Hamlin of shooting him. He sees Molly in company with Mrs. Dupont, whom he recognizes as a former sweetheart. Later he overhears Dupont and a soldier hatching up a money-making plot. Molly tells Hamlin her father seems to be in the power of Mrs. Dupont, who claims to be a daughter of McDonald's sister. Molly disappears and Hamlin sets out to trace her. McDonald is ordered to Fort Ripley. Hamlin finds McDonald's murdered body. He takes Wesson, a guide, and two troopers and goes in pursuit of the murderers, who had robbed McDonald of $10,000 paymaster's money. He suspects Dupont. Conners, soldier accomplice of Dupont, is found murdered. Hamlin's party is caught in a fierce blizzard while heading for the Cimmaron. One man dies from cold and another almost succumbs. Wesson is shot as they come in sight of Cimmaron. Hamlin discovers a log cabin hidden under a bluff, occupied by Hughes, a cow thief, who is leaving for LeFevre, who cheated him in a cattle deal. His description identifies LeFevre and Dupont as one and the same. Hughes shot Wesson mistaking him for one of LeFevre's party. Hamlin and Hamlin take the trail of LeFevre, who is carrying Molly to the Indians' camp. Two days out they sight the fugitive. A fight ensues in which Hughes is shot by an Indian. Dying, he makes a desperate attempt to shoot LeFevre, but hits Hamlin, while the latter is disarming LeFevre. LeFevre escapes, believing Hamlin and Molly dead. Molly tells Hamlin that her father was implicated in the plot to steal the paymaster's money. Hamlin confesses his love for Molly and finds that it is reciprocated. Molly declares her father was forced into the robbery plot. The meet an advance troop of Custer's command starting on a winter campaign against the Indians. Hamlin remains as guide. The winter camp of Black Kettle is discovered. Custer plans an attack.

The bugle rang again, and they turned, facing back, and charged once more, no longer in close formation, but every trooper fighting as he could. Complete as the surprise had been, the men of the Seventh realized now the odds against them, the desperate nature of the fight. Out from the sheltering tepees poured a flood of warriors; rifles in hand they fought savagely. The screams of women and children, the howling and baying of Indian dogs, the crack of rifles, the wild war cries, all mingled into an indescribable din. Black Kettle was almost the first to fall, but other chiefs rallied their warriors, and fought like fends, yielding ground only by inches, until they found shelter amid the trees and under the river bank.

In the cessation of hand to hand fighting the detachments came together, reforming their ranks, and reloading their arms. Squads of troopers fired the tepees, and gathering their prisoners under guard, hastened back to the ranks again at the call of the bugle. By now Custer comprehended his desperate position and the full strength of his Indian foes. Fresh herds were before him, already threatening attack. Hamlin, bleeding from two fresh wounds, rode in from the left flank, where he had been borne by the impetus of the last charge, with full knowledge of the truth. Their attack had been centered on Black Kettle's village, but below, a mile or two apart, were other villages, representing all the hostile tribes of the southern plains. Already these were hurrying up to join those rallying warriors under the shelter of the river bank. Even from where Custer stood at the outskirts of the devastated village he could distinguish the war bonnets of Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Kiowas and Comanches mingled together in display of savagery.

His decision was instant, that of the impetuous cavalry leader, knowing well the inherent strength and weakness of his branch of the service. He could not hope to hold his position before such a mass of the enemy, with the little force at his disposal. His only chance of escape, to come off victor, was to strike them so swiftly and with such force as to paralyze pursuit. Already the reinforcing warriors were sweeping forward to attack, two thousand strong, led fiercely by Little Raven, an Arapahoe; Santana, a Kiowa, and Little Rock, a Cheyenne. Dismounting his men he prepared for a desperate resistance, although the troopers' ammunition was running low. Suddenly, crashing through the and attack, with flankers out, and skirmishers in advance, the cavalrymen rode straight down the valley toward the retreating hostiles. It was a bold and desperate move, the commander's object being to impress upon the Indian chiefs the thought of his utter fearlessness, and to create the impression that the Seventh would never dare such a thing if they did not have a larger force behind. With flags unfurled, and the band playing, the troopers swept on. The very mad audacity of the movement struck terror into the hearts of the warriors, and they broke and fled. As darkness fell the survivors of the Seventh rode alone, amid the silent desolation of the plains.

Halting a moment for rest under the shelter of the river bank, Custer

SHOWS GEOGRAPHY OF WORLD

Record of the Rocks Pointed to by Scientists to Prove Positions They Have Taken.

At a recent meeting of the Birmingham and Midland Institute Scientific Society, A. W. Knapp gave a lecture on "The Earth's Record in the Rocks." The lecturer took each geological age in turn, and gave some idea of the life that existed at those times as shown in fossilized remains. He also showed how the geography of the world from age to age could be defined from the composition of the rocks. The limestone, he said, proved that the greater part of England was at one time under the sea, and by collecting evidence of this kind one was able to draw a map representing all the various periods of the world's development. The lecturer went on to show how the land rose and luxuriant vegetation grew, to be covered in turn by other deposits, leading to the formation of the coalfields. The earliest remains of man were toward the end of the ice age. Would he asked, the people of today leave any remains? There would be the churchyards and the great cities like London, while the deposits in the Black country, which looked so much like volcanic dust, might mislead the scientists of some future age.

What Did He Mean?

"Now look here, Maria," said Mr. Wombat, "if you don't stop playing bridge all the time I'll take a head."

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

At Camp Supply.

There are yet living in that great Southwest those who will retell the story of Hamlin's ride from the banks of the Washita to Camp Supply. It remains one of the epics of the plains, one of the proud traditions of the army. To the man himself those hours of danger, struggle and weariness, were more a dream than a reality. He passed through them almost unconsciously, a soldier performing his duty in utter forgetfulness of self, nerved by the discipline of years of service, by the importance of his mission, and by memory of Molly McDonald. Love and duty held him reeling in the saddle, brought him safely to the journey's end.

Let the details pass unwritten. Beneath the darkening skies of early evening, the Sergeant and the Osage guide rode forth into the peril and mystery of the shrouded desert. Beyond the utmost picket, moving as silently as two specters, they found at last a coulee leading upward from the valley to the plains above. To their left the Indian fires swept in half circle, and between were the dark outlines of savage foes. From rock to rock echoed guttural voices, but foot by foot, unnoted by the keen eyes, the two crept steadily on through the midnight of that sheltering ravine, dismounted, hands clasping the nostrils of their ponies, feeling through the darkness for each step, halting breathless at every crackle of a twig, every crunch of snow under foot. Again and again they paused, silent, motionless, as some apparition of savagery outlined itself between them and the sky, yet slowly, steadily, every instinct of the plains exercised, they passed unseen.

In the earliest gray of dawn the two wearied men crept out upon the upper plateau, dragging their horses. Behind, the mists of the night still hung heavy and dark over the valley, yet with a new sense of freedom they swung into their saddles, faced sternly the chill wind of the north and rode forward across the desolate snow fields. It was no boys' play! The tough, half-broken Indian ponies kept steady stride, leaping the drifts, skimming rapidly along the bare hillsides. From dawn to dark scarcely a word was uttered. By turns they slept in the saddle, the one awake gripping the other's rein. Once, in a strip of cottonwood beside a frozen creek, they paused to light a fire and make a hasty meal. Then they were off again, facing the frosty air, riding straight into the north. Before them stretched the barren snow-clad steppes, forlorn and shelterless, with scarcely a mark of guidance anywhere, a dismal wilderness, intersected by gloomy ravines and frozen creeks. Here and there a river, the water icy cold and covered with floating ice, barred their passage; down in the valleys the drifted snow turned them aside. Again and again the struggling ponies floundered to their ears, or slid headlong down some steep declivity. Twice Hamlin was thrown, and once the Osage was crushed between floating cakes and submerged in the icy stream. Across the open barrens swept the wind into their faces, a ceaseless buffeting, chilling to the marrow; their eyes burned in the snow-flare. Yet they rode on and on, voiceless, suffering in the grim silence of despair, fit denizens of that scene of utter desolation.

ALEUTS, A STRANGE ALASKAN TRIBE

RICH ALEUTS HOME

ALASKA is a land that hitherto has been little understood. Icebergs, snow-capped mountains and frozen streams, and a sense of shivers, constitute the current opinion of this valuable northern possession. Some of the most beautiful scenery in the world has been lost sight of; wooded islands, timbered valleys, and luxuriant vegetation is a pleasant surprise to the tourist. The sun scarcely sets on Alaska in summer, and vegetation, like most industries, works overtime with amazing results. Nature not only smiles in summer but laughs aloud, writes J. H. Romig in The Christian Herald.

As it would not be fair to describe all the whites in Alaska as English, neither would it be fair to call all the natives Indians, though they may be cousins, or be in customs and language kindred. The fact is, they are all alike unable to hold the land, to develop its resources and to compete with the white race. They are, for the most part, now but poor, diseased, under-fed and under-clad spectators of what is happening in this northland. Filled with awe and wonder at the doings of the white race, they can but look on with sorrow, as their fish streams are taken, their game destroyed, and their future made a blank to them.

Education of No Value.

Besides the good work of the churches, the government is doing what it can to educate the native; but that is not much of an exchange for his resources. He cannot eat or keep warm on education. The whites do not need educated natives. It is all wonderful, but not of value to him. One native said: "I will teach my children to catch fish, fox, bear and birds, and when old they will keep me; but the one taken to school left me. He cannot work. He cannot hunt. The white man says: 'He no savvy white man work and he no savvy native kind any more.' There is more than one crude native that does not send his child to school because he sees no gain by doing so and he does see the separation of the child from him.

Fewer and fewer are the chances for the tribes or villages and smaller and smaller the opportunity to develop the resources of the land, because no provision is being made to keep any for the thirty thousand natives now living. The government is long in considering Alaska's needs, and too long in reserving a few areas where a people can perform some work that will bring them a living; where they can be an asset and not a burden.

As an illustration take the Aleut tribe. The Aleuts occupy the island peninsula of Alaska, and number about one thousand. Three hundred of them are well cared for at the seal islands; but the balance have noth left but fish, a few fox, and the basket industry. These people occupy the most western portion of the country, being in 173 degrees east longitude, and from thence eastward to Unimak Pass, a distance of about eight hundred miles—making less than one person to a mile. The time was when they were employed to kill seal; also their tribe supplied the men that manned the sea otter boats and killed that most valuable of furs. These furs are practically a thing of the past, and the government has prohibited both the whites and the natives from killing any of them. This is not adding greatly to their troubles, for these fur animals of the sea are now so scarce as to be of little benefit to the Aleuts any more. The basket industry is now their chief support. Their baskets, though the finest in any market, bring them less than one-fourth the retail price, and provisions sell to them at about three times the cost. A woman will work two weeks to make a basket, and then get two dollars for it, pay seventy-five cents for a pound of tea, twenty cents for a pound of sugar, and seven cents a pound for flour, and what for clothing? The father can get a few fish to dry, gather a few drift sticks as thrown up by the sea, as no timber is found on the islands. In winter he catches a very few blue fox, perhaps four or five at six dollars each. Curio peddlers pay fabulous prices for an Aleut basket, which is, in truth, one of the best that can be had; the most artistic, the finest weave, and the most beautiful in design. One of the prettiest baskets I ever secured came from the house of a widow at the figure of $2.50; a full two weeks' work!

The word "Aluet" in the Eskimo language means "other utes," or people, and such they are, for their appearance and modes of life differ to such an extent as to warrant their being called "other people." There were two found among them whose birthplace was believed to be Kamchatka, in Asia, and it is almost certain that these people came from northern Asia. Their appearance is more of the Mongolian, and in artistic work they have much the same skill and craftsmanship as the Japanese. The Aleut is superior to the native race. He is cleaner of habit than the Eskimo and more willing to work. The tribe's ancient dwellings, now long grown over with grass, representing the age of stone implements, when excavated were found to be large rocky houses made of sod, built above the ground, and usually of more than one room. Whalebone was often used for parts of the framework. The cemetery of the community was not in a common burial ground, but in a room of the house especially constructed for that purpose. The corpses were buried in a sitting posture. Certain caves were used also as a place to bury the dead, but owing to the occurrence of skulls with fractures in them it is presumably the warriors, who died away from home, who were so buried. A few had the distinction of being stuffed with moss and made into mummies and placed in caves. These customs have long since changed, owing to the efforts of the Russian priests; and now few there are that can offer an explanation for the strange burial rooms, the cave burials and the moss-stuffed mummies.

GAVE GIRL SEVERE SHOCK

Visitor From Los Angeles to Panama Awoke to Find Tarantula Nestling on Her Arm.

To awaken and find a poisonous tarantula on her arm was the experience of Miss Irene Sturgis of Los Angeles, while visiting the canal zone on a sightseeing tour. Miss Sturgis has returned from Panama, and while she has recovered from the shock of her experience, she admits that she gets the creeps every time she thinks about it.

Miss Sturgis awoke one morning in a hotel at Colon with a feeling of numbness in her arm. Glancing toward it she was horrified to see a large tarantula taking its ease there. The young lady had heard that tarantulas became very angry if disturbed, and it is then that they fix their poisonous darts in the flesh. Instead of becoming hysterical and shrieking, as she said she might have done had it been a mouse, Miss Sturgis by a quick movement of her arm tossed the insect upon the floor. Then she summoned a native maid and promptly swooned.

"The tarantula scurried under the wardrobe," said Miss Sturgis, "and I tried to get the natives to ferret it out and kill it, but they would not. They have a superstition, although they realize that the insect is poisonous, that it is bad luck to kill one.

"The maid took the experience quite as a matter of fact. 'It won't bother you any more,' she said. 'They never come back a second time. There's one lives down in No. 12 all the time. But I did not wait to try out the experiment. Ugh! It was horrible.'

Generous Man.

"I see by the newspapers," remarked Reeder, "that the farmers in Canada are sending out appeals for wives."

"Is that so?" ejaculated Hennyneck, in an eager whisper. "They can have mine."

Fewer Clothes Needed.

Patience—Is she going to the masquerade ball?

Patrice—Yes; she's going to represent Night.

"Why don't she go as Eve? It would be cheaper."

MOTHER! LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE

If cross, feverish, constipated, give "California Syrup of Figs."

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask at the store for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Adr.

Oil From Trees.

The Chinese wood-oil tree is the subject of a circular by David Fairchild, recently published by the U. S. bureau of plant industry, the purpose of the publication being to advocate an extensive cultivation of the tree in this country, where it has been grown in a small way since 1906.

The importance of this recommendation is shown by the fact that five million gallons of wood oil (also known as tung oil), made from the seeds of this plant, was imported from China last year, and the product is said to have had a revolutionary effect on the varnish industry of the United States.

OUCH! BACKACHE, RUB LAME BACK

Rub pain away with a small trial bottle of old "St. Jacobs Oil"

When your back is sore and lame or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" at any store, pour a little in your hand and rub it right on your back, and by the time you count fifty, the soreness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil takes the ache and pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica and lame back misery so promptly and surely. It never disappoints!

Vindicated.

"I always knew John would grow up to be a great help to us," said the fond mother.

"I haven't seen him do any regular work yet," replied Farmer Cortness.

"Well, if you'll take notice, he's the only person around the place who knows how to reach the summit boarders to do the tango and the turkey trot."

SAGE TEA AND SULPHUR DARKENS YOUR GRAY HAIR

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. —Ad.

BIG YIELDS IN INDUSTRIAL CON-GRESS CONTEST

One of the principal features of the convention of the Texas Industrial Congress, to be held next month, will be the annual address of the President, Colonel Henry Exall, reviewing the work of the Congress for the past year.

Colonel Exall's report will show a tremendous increase in the interest taken in the movement for better farming and larger farm profits. This is indicated in part by the growth in number of contestants 4,030 in 1912 to 10,869 in 1913, but it is better evidenced by the fact that the work of the Congress has resulted in every way. A gratifying result of this increased interest among workers on the farms is that there are very many more reports this year than in 1912 of yields of more than 100 bushels of corn, 2 bales of cotton, and 4 tons of kaffir and milo heads to the acre.

While the highest individual yields of 1912 in the various products may possibly not be exceeded, the general average will be increased. Samples of prize-winning crops will be attractively displayed at the convention.

Increased interest in the movement for better farming and larger farm profits is also shown by the fact that 150,000 crop bulletins were needed this year to meet the requirements of contestants, of farmers not entered in the contest, and of business men in cities and towns who are personally concerned in farming.

Supplying these bulletins and replying to thousands of letters from farmers has been one of the chief phases of the work of the Congress for 1913.

The review of the year's work as it will be told at the annual convention on December 13, is of personal concern to every business man and every farmer in the State, and the attendance of visitors, aside from contestants and delegates, should be large accordingly. The program has been limited to one day for the convenience of every body, and a special low round-trip rate has been made by the rail roads, all in order that as many business men and farmers as possible may get closer together in this movement for "Smaller farms, better farming."

Bad as Entertainment Was, Attend ant Had Escaped From a Worse Affliction.

It was at the vaudeville. The girl with the excruciating voice had just finished her song.

"Just think!" groaned Brown, to the stranger beside him. "we paid real money to hear that!"

"I didn't," was the placid response "Came in on a comp."

"But you had to spend carfare to get here, did you not?" asked Brown.

"Nope," replied the uncomplaining one. "I live in walking distance."

"But," persisted Brown desperately "at least you hoped to be entertained, not punished."

"No, I didn't care," grinned the stranger. I came to get away from home. My wife is cleaning house."—Judge.

How to Wear Flowers.

Roses are best for evening wear. Even if they are buds do not wear three or four of them; that would spoil the artistic effect. Select one full-blown rose and tuck it into the coil of your hair, letting it nestle close to the ear.

The smart way is to wear flowers on the tailored suit is to attach them to the left lapel of the coat. Violets look best worn near the waist line, just a little to the left side and tied with soft, narrow, old-time violet satin ribbon.

To wear old-time garden flowers with artistic effect they should be made into small bouquets and fastened to the chiffon scarf or the dainty fichu, or a bunch of loose flowers may be worn at the corsage.

CIVIC PRIDE

We've made gains at Pumpkin Center, as the census figures show: We have twice the population that we had ten years ago; We have outstripped Cherry Valley and left Podunk in the rear; We are catchin' up with Binghamton and are crowdin' Kearsarge; By annexin' all our suburbs we have made a mighty stride; So you'll see it ain't no wonder we are full of civic pride.

Yes, our grafters keep on graftin' in the same old busy way; There's another scandal started nearly every other day; Can't, somehow, persuade the voters that it wouldn't be a crime To quit votin' the same tickets that their dads did in their time; Got a council full of rascals; gettin' robbed on every side; But we've gained in population and are full of civic pride.

There is rubbish in our alleys and the air is full of smoke; We've a waterworks department, but it's got to be a joke; There is graftin' in the courthouse, likewise in the city hall; The streets are full of mudholes and get no repairs at all; We're in debt and gettin' deeper so the crooks can be supplied; But we've outstripped Cherry Valley and are full of civic pride.

We should have another schoolhouse—issued bonds a year ago; It appears the grafters somehow gobbled up the money, though; We've a law forbididin' gambin', but the gamblers never mind; And the town looks like the dickens, but we've left Podunk behind; We are catchin' up with Binghamton; we've spread out on every side; So you'll see it ain't no wonder we are full of civic pride.

Rewards of Culture.

"I used to think it was nothin' but time and money wanted to send a girl to college."

"I am glad to hear that you have changed your opinion."

"Yes. Since our daughter come back she can tell what nearly everything you see on one of these hotel menus stands for in plain English."

He Couldn't Help It.

"And here," said the preacher gasping sadly down at the coffin, "she lies today in a holy calm."

"For the first time in her life," the stricken widower couldn't help thinking, although he made haste to let his sorrow have sway again, while tears that were genuinely bitter coarsened down his cheeks.

Appreciative Girl.

Clara—He boasts that he kissed you the first time he ever called on you.

Jessie—Thank you.

Clara—What do you mean? Why do you thank me?

Jessie—For saying he boasts, when you might have said that he reluctantly admits.

SOME INSIST ON BEING STUNG.

"I wonder if you'd marry me if I had money?" he sighed.

"Ah, George," she answered, "why do you wish me to be cruel to you? I have tried so hard to let you down easy."

When a Man's in Love.

When a man's in love he fondly dreams The days all made for signs and dreams; There's sweetness in each breath of air, And every prospect stretches fair; In every stone a jewel gleams, The sun sheds only golden beams, Glad songs are sung by all the streams, And liveliness is everywhere, When a man's in love.

Forgetting wicked, worldly schemes, For him there's music in the screams, The night cat utters! People stare And say he's daff; he doesn't care, How great a fool they think he seems, When a man's in love.

Ma's Error.

MRS. MANGES ESCAPES OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

"CASCARETS" FOR A BILIOUS LIVER

For sick headache, bad breath, Sour Stomach and constipation.

Get a 10-cent box now. No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable and uncomfortable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get the desired results with Cascarets.

Don't let your stomach, liver and bowels make you miserable. Take Cascarets to-night; put an end to the headache, biliousness, dizziness, nervousness, sick, sour, gassy stomach, backache and all other distress; cleanse your inside organs of all the bile, gases and constipated matter which is producing the misery.

A 10-cent box means health, happiness and a clear head for months. No more days of gloom and distress if you will take a Cascaret now and then. All stores sell Cascarets. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a cleansing, too. Adv.

SKIN TROUBLE ITCHED BADLY

Glenns P. O., Va.—"My baby's trouble began with an itching and then a little bump would come and she could not rest day or night. The trouble affected her whole body. The bumps festered and came to a head and the corruption looked like thick matter, kind of a yellow color. The sores itched so badly until it seemed to me she would scratch herself to pieces and then a sore would form and her clothes would stick to her body and pull off the little scab. In some places she would scratch and irritate the sores until they seemed to be large. She was affected about a year.

I wrote for a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed her body in warm water and Cuticura Soap and then I applied the Cuticura Ointment, and they afforded relief after twice using. I bought some more Cuticura Soap and Ointment and inside of two weeks she was cured." (Signed) Mrs. J. R. Greggs, Nov. 21, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postpaid "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."—Adv.

WHAT CAUSED THE AGONY

Voluminous Telegram From Wife Worse to Merchant Than a Break in the Market.

The merchant uttered a sharp exclamation and sank back into his chair. A telegram fell from his shaking hand. His eyes were wide, his face white, beads of perspiration stood on his brow.

The men in the outer office whispered among themselves.

"Touch of heart disease?" asked one.

"No; the old man can't take up a note," said another.

"I've heard rumors of that kind. We fellows will have to be looking for another place."

"Get to work; he's coming to again."

The merchant wiped his brow, fetched a despairing sigh, picked up the paper from the floor, frowned and stamped his foot, as if to summon all his resolution, placed the telegram on his desk and forced himself to read the bitter message. This was it:

"Dearest James: Please send the waist for my gros grain suit at once. You will remember the one, as it has revers on the frontage and chained stitched biases on the back. It is in the lower trunk in the closet beside the hall room, under your winter overcoat. If not there, it must be in the sealed box on the third shelf in the front room closet. If you don't find it there, it must be somewhere else. The trunk keys are in the second bureau drawer unless they were put in the chiffonier, and I think the closet keys are in a vase on one of the mantels. Pack the waist so as not to wrinkle it, and, oh! James, please do not swear!"

"Your loving wife."

How to Work While You Play.

A French collaborator of Thomas Edison has just invented a sewing machine which is also a piano. Its mechanism is so arranged that every time the operator strikes a note on the keyboard, she completes one stitch. A single waltz will hem three handkerchiefs—Beethoven symphony will sew an entire trousseau. Thus, the dressmaker can work and play at one and the same time, and the more they play, the more they work. To bring the invention into the vogue it so fully merits, schools will be established in many parts of France for the training of young women for the degree of M. P. M.—"master piano machinists." Music with its charms will thus be given an undoubted utilitarian value, and all the roundabout societies "for the furtherance of musical appreciation" will be left in the shade by a simple mechanical contrivance.

How Famous Hymn Was Written.

As Tennyson's nurse was sitting one day at his bedside, sharing to a degree the general anxiety about the patient, she said to him suddenly:

"You have written a great many poems, sir, but I have never heard anybody say that there is a hymn among them all. I wish, sir, you would write a hymn while you are lying on your sick bed. It might help and comfort many a poor sufferer."

The next morning, when the nurse had taken her quiet place at the bedside, the poet handed her a scrap of paper, saying: "Here is the hymn you wished me to write."

She took it from his hands with expressions of grateful thanks. It proved to be "Crossing the Bar," the poem that was sung in Westminster abbey at Tennyson's funeral, and which has touched so many hearts.

His Threat.

"Man overboard!" shouted an excited passenger on an Atlantic liner, as he hastily left his place at the dinner table and scrambled up the companion way.

An affrighted crowd of ladies and gentlemen followed him. He was wildly expostulating with the captain on deck when they surrounded him with eager inquiries.

"Where is he? Who is he?" they demanded, and the originator of the scare laid his hand on his breast and said, with melodramatic air:

"Here he is! I am the man overboard. I have been compelled to sit four days at the same table with three men who can't talk about anything but golf. I want my place changed, or I'll get out and walk."

GOOD BREEDING IMPORTANT

Live Stock Industry of Texas Built Up by Improved Blood.

The Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth, November 22-28, is one of the most potential agencies that is working for the upbuilding of the Texas livestock industry. It points out the pathway of progress to feeders and breeders and presents living lessons of profits and actual demonstrations of the advantages of higher types in classes and breeds. The scarcity of the world's meat supply has brought the livestock industry into the limelight and the necessity for increasing the herds and improving the grades is one of the most important economic problems of the day.

The Texas steer of a quarter of a century ago, compared with the present thoroughbreds, presents the most convincing argument in favor of good breeding the world possesses. From wild, dangerous and worthless beasts of the plains, they have become cultured, docile and profitable. These dumb brutes have so completely mastered the science of breeding that they have remodeled their shape, reformed their habits and rebuilt their character. Each generation has contributed toward the uplift of the breed, until today the cattle have more purple blood in their veins than any other family of the animal kingdom.

They can teach the human race many lessons in the science of improved lineage. By carefully conforming to the laws of nature, they have bred out deformities of flesh and blood. Their blood, which once made weak and scrubby stock, now produces rich and powerful thoroughbreds. Each breed is known by the color it keeps, by its distinct type and purpose in life.

This work has been accomplished largely through the instrumentality of the National Feeders' and Breeders' Show, which holds its Eighteenth annual meeting at Fort Worth on November 22-28, and new models and higher standards will be taught at the coming convention. During this time each annual meeting has gauged and registered the advancement of the livestock industry of Texas and it is here the leaders of all classes and breeds assemble to report progress to the management. Each year has been one of glorious triumph but, none will eclipse the present aggregation of thoroughbreds.

When the farmer comes to town, His tires loose or his wagon broke down, Parker, the Blacksmith, will set them tight. His work guaranteed, he will do it right. He will shoe your horses, heel and toe, And you won't have to wait long before you go. Has a full supply of everything in iron and wood; Solicits your patronage, will treat you good. (adv)

The Daughter of David Kerr
By HARRY KING TOOTLE

THE boss of a provincial town keeps his daughter away at school in ignorance of his doubtful civic status. She comes home unexpectedly when a packing company wants a dishonest franchise, and when an independent newspaper editor threatens the boss's supremacy. How the boss is beaten, and the independent editor wins the daughter form as graphic a story of modern politics and society as has been written.
