HEDLEY, DONLEY COUNTY, TEXAS, JUNE 19, 1914

NO. 2

HEAVY RAINS MONDAY NIGHT

A fine rain fell over this part of the Panhandle Monday night. In nearly every direction from Hedley the rain was heavier than in town, and some people report it the heaviest rain in several years. West of Lelia Lake the rain washed out several rails on the Denver, delaying the south bound passenger several hours. The hay crops just cut suffered, but we believe most of the other crops benefitted from the rain.

MRS. G. A. C. ROY DEAD

Mrs. G. A. C. Roy of Windy Valley died at the Adair Hospital at Clarendon Monday afternoon after an illness of over a year. The remains were brought to Hedley Wednesday and Rev. J. A. Long preached the funeral sermon at the church, after which interment was made in Rowe Cemetery.

Mrs. Roy was a consistent Christian, having lived a member of the Missionary Baptist church over forty years. She leaves a husband and nine children all of whom were present at the funeral.

The Informer joins the many friends in extending sympathy to the bereaved family.

ATTENDED DEM. EXECUTIVE MEETING

E. E. McGee, Ed Dishman, A. L. Miller and J. C. Wells went to Clarendon Monday afternoon. The Donley County Executive Committee held a meeting. E. E. McGee resigned as committee man from Hedley voting precinct and Ed Dishman was appointed in his place. J. C. Wells was appointed secretary of the committee.

SOMETHING TO VEX GOING FROM HEDLEY, TEX OVER INTO NEW MEX.

With, New Mexico, June 7, 1914
Editor Hedley Informer:
I thought perhaps a few lines from this part of Union county N. M. would be of interest to some of your readers at least.

We left Hedley May 7, had a real nice time until we got to the Canadian river and lo! the bridge was gone, it was Monday noon and we camped on the river close to the camp of road workers which proved to be county convicts, most of them Mexicans. The commissioner of Potter county was out looking to see what would be the best and quickest way to put it back. They decided it would be two weeks or more to make even a temporary bridge, so we then thought of going back to Amarillo and shipping across but then a part of the rail road bridge was washed out too, we then decided the best plan would be to camp for a few days, and moved down the river a mile and on Thursday it began raining, we thought then we were there for the rest of the summer or go back to Hedley and of course we didn't want you Hedley people to laugh at us, and were about to despair when we saw two teams and three wagons coming from Amarillo, they proved to be freighters that had been crossing the river for twenty years, we helped them across and in return they helped us, dividing the loads making ten in all. Bob crossed the river 19 times on a horse the water coming mid way to the horse's back, and coming into the wagons too. We were sure glad when the hind wheels of the last wagon rolled out on solid ground, and I don't care for any more wagon trips.

If you think Mexico is a dry country, you are mistaken. I never saw so much water. The lakes are all full. I counted 12 in the space of four miles. The grass is as fine as I ever saw it any where.

We attended a Fifth Sunday meeting where a Baptist church had just been organized and such a dinner I never saw only in Donley county. It brought to my mind the good old times we used to have at Rowe when we enjoyed old time religion.

With best wishes for the Informer and its readers.
Mrs. S. L. Adamson.

Naylor Springs

The hospitable of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hall was thrown open to the young people of the neighborhood Wednesday evening. At 10 o'clock the good music ceased and we were invited into the dining room where delicious ice cream and cake was served. At a late hour all departed for their homes thinking of the many pleasant hours spent in the home where they are always welcome.

Grandma Grant and daughter, Mrs. T. L. Naylor enjoyed a brief visit from their son and brother, K. Grant of Amarillo the first of the week. Grandma accompanied him home.

Ava, the little daughter of A. O. Hefner and wife, has been right sick several days.

Quite a number from this community attended the unveiling at Rowe Sunday.

Our people enjoyed a splendid sermon Sunday. Rev. Smith doing the preaching.

Mrs. Shackelford of Hedley is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Kempson, this week.

A. H. Hefner has just returned from a business trip to the plains.

Mrs. J. W. Bland visited her sisters, Mesdames Crow and Pierce at Hedley the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. N. Naylor and daughters were callers in Hedley Sunday.

SAM SMITH HAS $100 FIRE LOSS

Sam Smith attempted to rid his hen house of mites by burning out some nests Monday afternoon. Some loose rubbish caught fire and a blaze resulted, burning up his chicken house buggy shed, blacksmith shop and tools, over $100 worth. The outbuildings were not far from his residence but the wind blew the flames from the residence, which was fortunate.

CLARENDON MAKING SOME BIG PLANS

Let us remind you again that you do not wish to miss the big race meet in Clarendon on July 1, 2, 3, 4, and the big celebration on the Fourth. Much printed matter, containing details of the event, is going out of the News office this week, and will be distributed over the Panhandle in the next few days. And the News wishes to vouch for the fact that everything will be strictly as advertised in this printed matter. The biggest dinner ever served in this part of the world will be served on July 4th. Arrangements are not going to be made—they are already made. And all the amusements, comforts and conveniences have been provided just as stated in the circulars and other printed matter. As to the race meet, nothing has ever yet been seen in Northwest Texas that will approach the one to be held here the first four days of July. One hundred harness horses and fifty running horses will participate in these races—some of them among the best horses in the nation. Come and spend four days with us. But, if it is absolutely impossible to be here all four days, don't fail to come the 4th. Plans have been made to care for you, and if you fail to come, we and you will just be "out" that much—Clarendon News.

WHIRLWIND FINISH IN SUBSCRIPTION CONTEST

The Informer's part in the Piano Contest closes Saturday June 20. We are indeed gratified with the way new and renewal subscriptions have been coming in since the contest started. Our list has been added to until now we are reaching almost every one in Hedley trade territory. Contestants should make a whirlwind windup Saturday. We may be in town and we may not, if not, Bain & McCarroll will attend to your subscriptions.

W. O. W. UNVEILING AT ROWE CEMETERY

Last Sunday about forty Woodmen came from Clarendon and Memphis to attend and unveil the monument of Sov. W. M. Dyer. The Memphis degree team put on the work Sunday afternoon in a very impressive manner. A large crowd was in attendance at the unveiling.

Memphis has a splendid degree team and make a fine showing in their new uniforms. Late Sunday afternoon the team did some drill work on the street for the entertainment of a number of onlookers.

The visitors were fed at the Hedley Hotel dinner and supper and were loud in their praise of Hedley hospitality.

On behalf of the visitors we extend our thanks and appreciation to the W. O. W. for their kind treatment and further thank

EDITORIALS ON BUSINESS

By Roy B. Simpson

No. 10—STICK TO YOUR HOME MERCHANT

The country retailer is a bigger man and a better merchant than you think he is. Many large manufacturers are now selling direct to the dealer. They have a one-price policy and in a very short time every manufacture will adopt this policy.

No retailer, unless he is large enough to take the entire output of the factories that manufacture his merchandise, can buy the staple articles of everyday use
at a lower price than your home dealer pays.

So at the very outset you have right at your door a dealer who has every price advantage that can be obtained, he is content with smaller profits, and his cost of doing business is less than that of the big dealer in larger cities 50 or 100 miles away.

Furthermore, the home merchant helps bury the poor, he supports the churches and schools, extends credit to the honest and needy, is a friend in time of trouble, a comrade to the children.

The large city dealer does none of these things because he has his own community to support and is not interested in you and your neighbors, all of whom are strangers to him.

The country merchant is a student of conditions in his locality. He buys the goods best suited to the needs of his trade.
In proportion to his volume of business he carries a larger and more complete stock than the city dealer carries, and, more than this, he has on file the complete catalogs of big manufactures and jobbers, and any time
you want an article he does not regularly carry in stock he can get it for you quickly.

If you will demand the well known merchandise which is advertised under the manufacturers own name and trade-mark you can get it at home. If your home dealer does not carry the lines
you demand, and your friends
will join you in asking for them,
the dealer will cheerfully change
his line to accommodate you.

It is, of course, your duty to buy everything where you can get the most for your money,
but if you will analyze the price
and methods of your local dealer and compare them with those of large merchants we believe you will then give your enthusiastic support to the country merchant

We urge you to get your friends and neighbors to join you keeping the home trade at home.

MAKING A SPLIT LOG DRAG

Anyone Can Make One to Cost From Almost Nothing to $2.50, Depending on Materials Used.

A subscriber in Latah county, Idaho.

asks us to give him a plan for making a split log drag for working the roads in his county, and also wants to know how to use one, says the Western Farmer.

The drag may be made of a log, say eight feet long and 12 in. dia. throughout, split in the middle, or of two pieces of sawed oak or other substantial wood 2 by 8 inches. After a log is split, giving two 4 in. sections, bore three two-inch holes in each slab, as shown in drawing; connect the slabs, making the same direction, with three screws or rounded 3 by 2s long enough to leave three feet or more between the slabs; then the connecting pieces have been driven into the holes. Two or three planks can be nailed to these pieces, affording a place for the driver to stand, and at the same time strengthening the drag. Use a chain or strong rope for attachment to the double-tree. Supposing the drag to be used, listen one end of the chain to or around the left hand outside connecting brace, letting the chain pass over the top of the slab. If attached to the face of the slab, near the left hand end, the chain would interfere with the movement of dirt toward that end of the an angle

dirt can be
The other end
fastened to the near where the piece comes through and no
the connecting piece, as in Illustration.

Shoe about three feet of the edge (right hand side) of the log with a piece of iron or steel of right length, about three inches wide and a half inch thick, with one edge sharp or beveled. Put it on squarely, letting the sharp edge project about half an inch below the edge of the log.
This shoe will enable the drag to to sharp the surface and cut down the hard ridges which are usually met on roads that have not been kept smooth.
A good drag will cost from almost nothing to $5.00, depending on the ma-

Split Log Drag

terial and construction, and last 50
to ten years. Anybody can make one.
Roads should be dragged 10 or 12 times a year. The time is after each soaking rain, so that the drag will form a smooth mud coat on the surface. When the frost is leaving the ground is an excellent time; the drag should be in use from then until winter. The work does not interfere with ordinary farming operations, as when it is the right time to drag the soil is too wet or the conditions unsuited for many kinds of field work. It is difficult to invent a good excuse for not dragging. Used at the right time and with proper frequency on practically all types of earth soils and those of the clayey or rolling sections, the drag will make roads smooth, hard and convex—the three fundamental characteristics of an ideal dirt road. The process will form a sort of shell or casing
over the surface which will shed water
like a roof, and by distributing travel
over the entire area, instead of confining it to the center, the shell will constantly increase in solidity. At the outset, dragging cannot be done so rapidly as when the road has been shaped up by several sweeps of the drag; after this preliminary work, the job can be done in half the time originally required. Any boy and team can operate the drag.

Listen and Build

One good road is worth a dozen arguments in favor of better roads,
and therefore the people who listen

Individual Method Qualifies

Conditions were so that you could enter a large office and each one in the office could give you special instructions and attention while you were learning, you would have ideal conditions for developing into an efficient worker—in fact the conditions would be an exact duplicate of those in this school. We have modeled our course that you would receive the same practical training along these lines.

It is the same training that you would receive in an office, and the same practical training system, which adds a little to your efficiency each day, until you are able to turn off a large amount of excellent work in a short time, and with perfect ease. You are not asked to memorize long statements telling "how to do the work" but you are instructed while doing the work so efficiently and the right way to do things become a fixed habit.

If you would like to know just what our business training has done for hundreds of others, what it consists of, the possibilities that it holds out for you; in fact, full information is regard to the advantages of a business training over that of any other technical training, write us, and without any responsibility on your part whatever, we will lay the facts before you.

NOW is the time to enter. We have electric fans in each department of the college for the comfort of our students—in fact, nothing is left off that would tend to make our college an ideal school. Best of private board at $2.50 to $3.00 per week—a very little more than one-half what it would cost you elsewhere.

"Marschallise" for the Kaiser. The long-expected visit of the Kaiser to the French president was nearly marred by an accident and a slight piece of tactlessness on the part of the president's valet. On the first evening it appears that the Kaiser's brushes had fallen through some misunderstanding, to arrive in time. Brushes which had been presented to the president himself by the Service League of France were sent to his majesty. To the horror of everyone within forty yards of the room, no sooner had the Kaiser lifted them out of the box than the epic verses of the "Marschallise" thundered forth from the backs of the brushes. The valet who had taken them in had forgotten to turn off the silencer! It was only after a long explanation in several languages that the Kaiser was induced to believe that the incident was not a specially designed and manufactured personal affront. He consented to remain in the president's guest, but even now the incident is felt to have been seriously weakened.

Excellent Tornado Record. The United States cruiser "Callifornia" recently established a new record for tornado striking during battle practice off the coast of California. The firing took place at a range of 2,000 yards when the cruiser was steaming at 10 knots. The first five shots were bull's eyes, the sixth was a miss, and the seventh torpedo struck in the tube and scored a hit to the rules was counted as a shot.

Four View. An Irish widow who lives in a small house on the West side in Chicago has a still smaller cottage in the rear of her house that she rents to an aged Irish woman who lives alone and rarely stirs out.

Not long ago the landlady was telling the tenant of some things she had seen in the paper and said: "An' them Turks and Bulgarians! They do be havin' a terrible time. 'Twas only yesterday that the Turks grabbed them by the hair an' pulled them down the street."

"Glory be, that's awful!" exclaimed the tenant. Then she sighed and added: "That's just it, though; you never see anything when you live in the rear."—Saturday Evening Post.

Exceeding Modesty. "Who was that modest looking young man, Cyrus?" "Modest looking? Say, what do you think he was?" "I don't know." "He was a moving-picture maker. All he wanted was to borrow our church for a mock marriage, and then have a bogus shooting affray on the front steps!"

Broad Sympathy
 By R. M. Kinburn
MILLAR
 First Church, Chicago

It has laid its powerful grip on modern life and thought and is changing our whole conception of religion. Many of the ideas that dominated man for ages are now regarded as nonsensical in this greater world of God. The spirit of brotherhood is prevailing everywhere and men are learning that life is to be found in service to humanity. Use is the channel by which the divine life flows to men or to churches.

Men are learning that in order to live, grow and be happy they must not hoard their treasures, natural or spiritual, but spend them in the service of their fellow men, giving freely of the life which in turn receive from the giver of all good.

This spirit of sympathy and true humanity is abroad in our cities as never before. Among the more enlightened this spirit is manifesting itself and is bearing the rich fruit of its sacrifices toward those less fortunate. In our cities' largest institutions, hospitals, and the general good, in the churches are seen testimonies of this human nature.

This kindly interest in the good men and women of today are planning bathing beaches, where thousands of bathers may dip in the hot summer months without fear of drowning; they are planning parks, and for more parks in which children may play and grow into manhood.

Too great emphasis cannot be placed on the duty of every citizen to go to the polls and vote for better men, cleaner streets, and a better government.

And always bear in mind that five things are necessary—light, cleanliness, fresh air, quiet and cheerfulness.

Tactful Woman Makes Many Good Friends

By MYRLE C. IRONS
 Des Moines, Iowa

The tactful woman has more friends than she can count.

There are so many selfish people in the world, so many women who prefer to say just what they feel like regardless of circumstances, so many who won't take the trouble to find out other people's likes and dislikes before they speak, that the tactful woman is hailed with open arms.

The tactful woman is not forever looking for insults and slights. She does not feel the imperative need of giving as good as she gets, and the result is mighty few people find it interesting to quarrel with her. More than that, she invariably returns evil with good.

When a friend comes to a tactful woman for sympathy she doesn't tell her her misfortunes are due to her own faults, although that may be undoubtedly true and greatest good point of all, she does not offer advice unasked.

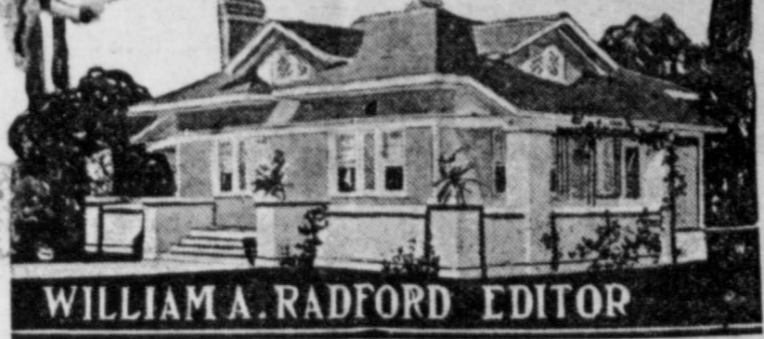

The tactful woman is always a peacemaker, and instead of forming quarrels tries to reconcile both parties, thus assuring the good will of both.

Another thing which makes this sort of woman popular is that she is never late for appointments, and never keeps anyone waiting.

She fits into any surroundings, and adapts herself to the mood of those she finds herself with.

No wonder her presence always brings happiness.

AMERICAN HOME

WILLIAM A. RADFORD EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 187 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

This is a new modification of the old cottage house idea that is being built in some sections of the middle West. The roof with a wide projection gives the house a different finish, a sort of plain, aristocratic neatness that everybody likes. The house may be built of wood, brick, cement or stone. It is often built of wood to the eaves and the gables plastered with cement mortar on metal lath. You can get five rooms in a cottage of this style and secure more comfort for the investment than you can get from a five-room, two-story house, and it looks well when nicely kept.

Generally speaking, cottages are now being built more than ever before, not that they are new, but because they may be cheaply built and because they are especially adapted to the suburbs and country places. The women seem to like a cottage house after they become accustomed to it, partly because it is easier to do the housework where the rooms are all on one floor, but at the same time, there is less excuse to neglect things. We have all had the experience of going through a house unexpectedly when the downstairs was neat and clean enough, but upstairs presented a very disorderly appearance. Profuse apologies usually accompanied such an excursion, but the fact is a woman puts off going upstairs to attend to the housework as long as possible. The rooms are out of sight, so that there is not the same incentive to keep it looking nicely.

Small cottage houses extend a strong invitation to American families to settle down and make a home.

ment has grown and developed while the children budded into youth and blossomed into young manhood and womanhood. The divinest earthly heritage is a good, comfortable home, whether it be large or small; if it be well managed, it is the only satisfactory way of living. What I particularly wish to see is more little homes like this, homes for the common people, the ones Abraham Lincoln said the Lord must love because he made so many of them.

But even a small house like this cannot be made comfortable and homelike unless it is started right. In the first place cellar drainage must be looked to when the excavation is being made for the foundation. This is something you cannot well put in the contract, because you never know when commencing to dig whether you will strike the springy spot or not. In the country no one builds his house

MANY VISIT CAIRO

Tourists Heed the Call of Egypt's Attractions.

Present Season Promises to Be One of the Best Egyptian City Has Had for Many Years—Visitors Catered To.

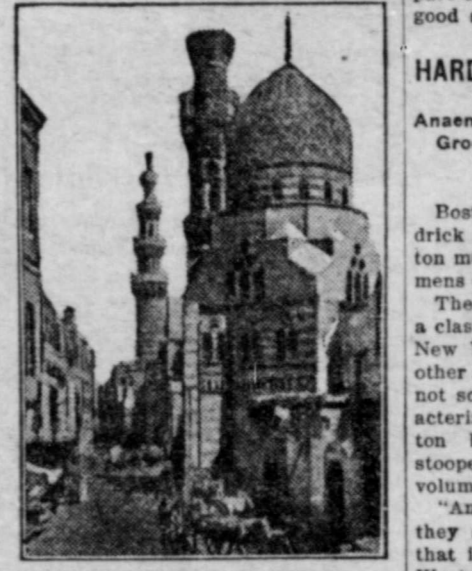

Cairo.—The present season promises to be one of the best Cairo has had for several years. The hotels are already full and the Nile steamers are already nearly all let. Of late years the terrible Khamsin winds have not set in until late in May, and conditions generally have improved very considerably during the past few years.

One can now land at Alexandria and motor up to Cairo, where a car is today of the greatest utility for dashing out to Heliopolis for concerts, aviation and other attractions; for running over to Helouan, the suburb favored by the late khedive; for making an excursion along the Pyramids road, constructed for the opening of the Suez canal by that master organizer, Ismail Pasha, to Mena house, at the foot of the Pyramid of Cheops; for visiting the Barrage, with its medieval superstructure and its picturesque gardens, and even for taking trips along the old Suez or the Alexandria road.

The tastes of visitors and residents are amply catered to all over Egypt, especially in Cairo, which, by reason of its being the hub of the official world, is also naturally the social center of the country. A good deal of private entertaining goes on, but with the exception of the garden parties given by Lord Kitchener at the agency—which, bordering on the river, enables a magnificent view of the country and the Pyramids to be obtained—and of the private dinner parties and "at homes" which the British agent and General and Mrs. Byng give at their residences, most of the dinners and receptions are held at the various hotels.

Polo forms a prominent part of the social program. On at least three afternoons every week matches are played by Ghezireh, and it has become quite the thing to retire to the pretty tea gardens to gossip and discuss the games.

WIND STAMPEDES FINE BUGS

Native Butterflies of the Death Valley Region Blown Over Mountains.

San Bernardino, Cal.—Since the recent heavy north wind there have been thousands of butterflies observed in the city, many of them of a different species than usually seen on this side of the range.

Particularly noticeable is a brown butterfly of a species peculiar to the Death Valley region and never seen this side of the mountains.

It is believed the heavy winds on the desert blew the insects over the mountains and their presence here can be accounted for in no other way.

Their appearance has been of great interest, especially to men who are used to traveling the desert, and who quickly recognized the butterflies.

'SCRATCHED' BY PICKLED HAM

Under Washington State Law Workmen Gets Paid for Lay-Off Ten Days.

Olympia, Wash.—Employees of the industrial insurance department declare the most novel claim presented since the law went into effect is that received from Alvador Gernonpre, employe of a Seattle packing plant, who reported being "scratched by a pickled ham. It was the "boon" of the ham that inflicted the damage," Gernonpre set forth, infection setting in later. He asked and got compensation for ten days' idleness.

Recently another packing plant employe reported that he had been "kicked in the mouth by a pig" and the department is inclined to believe that the vicious pickled ham must have come from that ferocious porter.

With Seven Hooks Gets Eight Fish.

Libby, Mont.—George Blackwell brought to town an oddity in fish catching. This was a seven-hook set line upon which he had caught eight fish. One hook had first been taken by a charr about a foot long and later a large ling had swallowed the charr and was caught on the same hook.

WOMEN
 Wife Was Band,

Cairo.—Sir Gaston Maspero, famous French director of the museum, lectured recently in London on "Women of the Continental on "Women of the Times."

He said that according to the paintings at Sakhara, one was led, assume that woman enjoyed equality with her husband. She was the mistress of the house and all, including her husband, who entered there, became her guests.

This state of things still existed among the semi-barbarous races of Brazil, declared Sir Gaston. These semi-civilized races treated women with marked respect because on her depended not only the perpetuation of the race, but the purity of the breed.

Man had many wives, but the first one was the nearest allied to him in blood. In the East kings and nobles often married three sisters, which was supposed to be the purest marriage.

A man in history was the son of a certain woman, not the son of a certain man. Rameses the Great was the son of the woman Taya.

Women, up to the time Herodotus visited Egypt, were perfectly free politically, economically and civilly. The essential part of marriage contracts to this day runs as follows:

"Thou takest me to be thy wife, and thou givest unto me a dowry. If it so happens that I tire of thee or that I cast my eyes on another than thee, then I will return unto thee a part of thy dowry and shall go where good seemeth unto me."

HARD KNOCK ON BOSTON MEN

Anemic, Discourteous and Ill-Groomed, Is the Verdict of a Back Bay Scientist.

Boston.—According to Dr. R. K. Endrick Smith, Back Bay scientist, Boston men are the poorest physical specimens of any type in the country.

The eminent scientist says that, as a class, they are far below the men of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other cities. He says the cartoonist is not so far from the truth in his characterization of the bespectacled Boston boy with the smileless face, stooped shoulders and the inevitable volume of Emerson under his arm.

"Another fault of Boston men is that they are discourteous," and he says that is remarked by Southerners and Westerners. They are also ill-groomed. There is always a sharp contrast in the clothes of men in this city and those in New York."

When he attempted to wade to the shore, they kept him in the water by prodding him with poles.

The faculty of the high school is investigating the affair and it is intimated there will be some suspensions of students.

stick or plastic qualities are destroyed, so that even in the wettest weather it will bear traffic. This permits the firing of the clay along the entire length of the road, thus avoiding the cost of hauling it, and at the same time gaining the advantage of burning the foundation of the road as well as the material to be placed upon it.

Good solid wood is laid at intervals along the side of the road, about one cord for eight linear feet of roadbed, twelve feet wide. The road bed is first evenly graded and then plowed as deeply as practical. Furrows about four feet apart are then dug across the road and extended beyond the part to be burned on either side. The first course of cord wood is laid longitudinally, so as to fire a series of fires in which the firing is started. From 15 to 20 of these fires are fired at once. The rest of the cord wood is then placed on this flooring and then the clay is placed over the whole structure as evenly as possible, in a layer of not less than six to eight inches. This is tamped and rounded off, so that the heat will be held within the fires as long as possible.

After burning, the road is graded and rolled until the road bed is smooth and hard.

ROAD BUILDING

USE BURNED CLAY ON ROADS

Sticky or Plastic Qualities Are Destroyed and Bears Traffic in Wettest Kind of Weather.

(By OLIVER BENSOCHE, Colorado Agricultural College.)

In some sections of the country the only material available from which roads can be constructed is clay. In such localities traffic is almost entirely impossible during the wet seasons, as the wheels of the heavy vehicles will sink to the hub.

In order to correct this condition, the United States office of public roads made the experiment of burning the clay. It was found that by burning the clay, even at a moderate heat, its
