HEDLEY POULTRYMEN TO ORGANIZE SOON

There will be a meeting of the Poultry Breeders of this community held in Hedley on Saturday, November 26th, for the purpose of organizing a Poultry Breeders Association.

The object of this Association is to encourage the raising of more and better poultry, and to formulate plans for holding a Poultry Show in Hedley some time in the Fall of the year 1922.

We will be very glad indeed to have every poultry dealer in Donley county come and be with us on that day and help us make the start to put our county on the poultry map in great big red letters.

Our climatic conditions are ideal for the successful raising of poultry; our abundant yields of the best poultry feeds on earth; and with the addition of good common horse sense form a combination that can not be equalled in Texas.

The meeting will be called to order at 2 o'clock Nov. 26th, in L. A. Stroud's office, over Forbis & Stone's store in Hedley. All poultry dealers are cordially invited to come and meet with us on that day.

Yours for more and better poultry,

R. E. Mann,
T. O. Hill,
J. S. Grooms,
L. A. Stroud.

FOR SALE—Meat hogs, either dressed or on foot.
Mack Shaw.

A. A. Stewart, a good Memphis friend of the Informer, was a business visitor in Hedley last Saturday.

FOR SALE—20 acres of land, 2 1/2 miles east of Hedley, on highway. Price right, terms reasonable; no incumbrance.
A. M. Ellis.

QUEEN ESTHERS

The Intermediate department of the First Baptist Sunday School is progressing fine—especially the girls.

We are glad of our new superintendent, Mr. C. O. Cooper. We are also glad and proud of our teacher, Mr. J. G. McDougal.

We invite all the girls from 14 to 18 to come and join us. We want to invite anyone to join our department, in any of the three classes.

Reporter.

Mrs. B. M. Davis and daughter, Miss Jessie, visited friends in Memphis Saturday.

LOCAL DELCO MAN ATTENDS CONVENTION

R. E. Mann, the Delco Light dealer with headquarters in this city, has just returned from a convention of the district dealers in this state, held at the new Texas Hotel in Fort Worth on the 25th and 26th of October.

One of the purposes of this convention was to discuss the electric refrigerator which the Delco Light Company is placing on the market through this section at this time. Mr. Mann states that while it is a new product so far as this particular territory is concerned, there are now over 6,000 in successful operation throughout the country and some of these have been in use over five years.

It is said that this refrigerator will make its own ice, will maintain a temperature about 20 degrees colder than the average icebox, so that it gives the same results in a home that a large cold storage plant does in the cities. Its operating cost, Mr. Mann states, is very low, and it will actually pay for itself in five to seven years time, not considering its advantages from the standpoint of convenience, sanitation and health.

Mr. Mann also states that his company is now in a position to furnish electric light and power plants ranging in price from $295 to $1,805, so that he feels they are in position to furnish electricity for practically any size home or place of business.

The other new products which his company will put on the market about the first of the year, includes a specially built electric washing machine and an electric deep well pump. Mr. Mann is of the opinion that with the line of products his company can now offer, there is no reason why people in the rural districts can not have all the convenience that people living in the city have had for so long.

Mr. Mann comes back with the report that the Delco Light Company's business is showing a considerable increase during the past 60 days, and they feel that from now on conditions will show a steady and permanent improvement.

LOST—Female Aerdale pup, bob tail, four months old. Reward. Finder call 71 LS.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. Walker

OUR WASTEFUL HABITS

It is frequently remarked by close-observing Englishmen who visit America, that our people are shamefully wasteful, and fling away money without any apparent thought of the proverbial rainy day.

Whether these alien commenters have penetrated deeply into the subject is not exactly known, but judging from their oft-repeated averments, assuming at times a form of caustic criticism, there is doubtless more truth in the matter than we suspect.

It is not without a pang of regret—a ruffling of our pride, perhaps—that we Americans, who are disposed to analyze conditions with unbiased minds, reluctantly admit that our English cousins are right.

We recognize that we have many spendthrifts, constantly setting a bad example to the young, that they are extravagant and decidedly foolish.

Money is poured out like water, as though, like Topsy, "it just grew."

There is consolation, however, in the thought that these prodigalities come mostly from the ranks of the newly rich and thoughtless inheritors. They have no idea of the stern realities of life, nor the long dragging years of incessant labor and self-denial that are necessary for a working or professional man to accumulate even a moderate competency for old age.

These people congregate where the music flows, where the tables are heaped with delicacies. They smile and backbite, puff themselves up like frogs and spend recklessly. They fall naturally into a state which is common to their kind.

If we could follow them through their improvident course to the end, we would find them in pitiable plight, repentant and likely as not homeless.

The necessity of conserving time and money ought now be impressed upon all of us with considerable more stress than it has been in the recent past, and particularly upon the inconsiderate young men and women.

Let high thinking, hard work and

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHY NOT TELL HER SO?

OF COURSE you love her just the same
As when at first you wed,
Perhaps with not so hot a flame,
But still the coals are red.
The new-made blaze is bright with heat
And ruddy with desire;
But time shall give you something sweet—
'Peace, and the quiet fire.

Of course you love her as of old,
Your love she ought to know,
New loves burn hot, new loves turn cold,
With all the winds that blow,
But time shall bring the steady blaze,
The flame that never dies;
You, time shall bring contented days,
The quiet ingleside.

Of course you love her as of yore—
The years that you have shared
Have made you love her even more
Than ever you have cared.
Of course you love her just the same,
Your love she ought to know,
For time has brought the steady flame—
But why not tell her so?

THE GIRL ON THE JOB

How to Succeed—How to Get Ahead
How to Make Good

By JESSIE ROBERTS

DO YOU WANT SUCCESS?

DO YOU want to make a success of your business life, or do you put that second to having a good time? Don't complain if you can't have both. The girl who runs around from party to party is not going to get to her work in the best state for doing it well. Her mind is not clear, her body is not alert. She is tired.

Are you willing to do the uninteresting part of your job well, or do you slur what you don't like in it? Every job has its grind side. But to succeed you must make that grind worth while by doing it well. It is part of the price you pay for success.

You must keep in good physical condition if you want success. You need proper rest, enough sleep and healthful food. You need exercise in the open air. Keeping fit is part of the price you must pay for success.

A number of girls regard an office as a sort of matrimonial bureau. Their first idea is to be fascinating to the male element. But if that is what you are after, don't say you want success in your business, and don't be surprised if you see other girls who do want success get advancement while you stay put.

Success is a big thing. The successful woman is not afraid of losing her job. She knows that her work is so good that an employer will be lucky to get her, or that, if she is in business for herself, she is sure of results. But success is not an accident.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

By C. N. LURIE

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"SPOONFULS," ETC.

IN CONSIDERING the proper form of the plurals of such words as "spoonful," "cupful," "armful," etc., it must be borne in mind that the unit considered is not the spoon, the arm, the cup, etc.; but the material that fills the spoon, etc. Thus, the unit is the spoonful, not the spoon, and as "spoonful" is the name of a thing in itself, the proper form of the plural is found by adding an "s" to the word "spoonful," and not to the part of the word "spoon."

Of course, there are times when the unit is the spoon itself; that is, when two or more spoons are filled. When, for example, you have before you two spoons filled with sugar, you should say "two spoons full," and not "two spoonfuls." But when you take a spoon, fill it with sugar and empty it into your coffee cup, and repeat the process, you have taken two "spoonfuls" of sugar, and not two "spoons full."

THE ROMANCE OF WORDS

"GUILLOTINE."

ACCORDING to history as it is popularly accepted, the instrument by which criminals are automatically beheaded was invented by Joseph Ignace Guillotine, who was also the first victim of the machine. Outside of the fact that Doctor Guillotine neither invented the apparatus nor perished by it, the general impression of the matter is fairly correct.

The original model for the guillotine was constructed by a German piano-maker named Schmitt, under the direction of Doctor Louis, a French surgeon, who in turn obtained his idea from the manaja, a somewhat similar instrument which had been used in the Latin countries for centuries. At first, the invention was known as the "Loulou," but, owing to the fact that Doctor Guillotine waged ceaseless warfare upon the barbarities of the rack and the wheel and continually urged the adoption of this more humane method of inflicting death penalty, his name was indelibly associated with it. On March 25, 1792, the national assembly passed the resolution recommending the use of the machine. In all French prisons and it was publicly used a month later in the beheading of a prisoner named Pellissier.

Far from perishing by the invention, which, despite his protests, was called by his name, Doctor Guillotine died in his bed in 1814—having achieved a vicarious fame which he did not desire and to which he was not entitled.

CHOLERA TAKES LARGE TOLL

Losses Have Been Greatly Reduced and May Be Wiped Out Entirely By Right Treatment.

August and September take the heaviest toll through hog cholera, the bane of swine keepers, which in years past has wiped out entire herds after an expensive season's feeding. In certain years the hog-cholera toll has run as high as 144 per 1,000 through the United States. Preventive measures developed by the United States Department of Agriculture have reduced the toll to 38. The experts, whose work has effected this annual multi-million-dollar saving, assert confidently that the means of absolute insurance from hog cholera losses is within the reach of any farmer who cares to take the precautionary trouble and expense.

The serum treatment, developed about 15 years ago and first put into general use within the last six or seven years, gives immunity if injected in time. This serum treatment is described fully in Farmers' Bulletin 834, which should be kept at hand for ready reference by every hog raiser.

Hog cholera is an epidemic disease; that means that it spreads from one or a few initial cases. It is carried in bedding, sty refuse, feeding troughs, loading shutes, railroad cars, farm implements, clothing of laborers, and even in running water. Sanitation will cut down the danger, but it is not an absolute preventive. Unless the farmer has taken the precaution to have all of his herd immunized with serum and virus, an operation which should be done by a veterinarian or a specially trained layman, there is always possibility of the disease breaking out unexpectedly.

The farmer's protection lies in the fact that usually only one or two members of the herd are affected at first, and he should be on the watch. One or two hogs will refuse to come up to feed with the herd. They will remain hidden in the nest, and when driven from the bed their backs may be arched and they may appear cold, and shiver. The rest of the herd may remain apparently well for several days, when others are likely to be found affected in about the same way as those first attacked. As the disease progresses the sick hogs become gaunt or tucked up in the flanks, and have a weak, staggering gait, the weakness being most marked in the hind legs.

If the lungs are affected there may be a cough, which is particularly noticeable when the hogs are disturbed. The eyes usually are inflamed and show a whitish discharge, which may cause the lids to stick together. Constipation, which is commonly present in the early days of the disease, is generally followed by a diarrhoea. As the disease reaches its height red or purplish blotches are likely to appear upon the skin of the ears, of the belly, and the inner surfaces of the legs.

Some of the symptoms mentioned may be present in other diseases, but the owner should remember that cholera spreads rapidly through a herd and no time should be lost in calling a veterinarian to diagnose the disease and administer the proper treatment. If the disease is cholera heavy losses can be averted only by prompt administration of hog-cholera serum.

Autopsy should be performed upon hogs which die of any disease. Indications of cholera are described in the bulletin referred to. The most important thing is to be prepared and to act promptly.

Locate hog lots and pastures away from streams and public highways, and do not allow hogs to run on free range or highways, nor to have access to canals or irrigated ditches.

Do not drive into hog lots after driving on public highways.

Do not use hog lots for yarding wagons and farm implements.

PE-RU-NA

For Coughs, Colds and Catarrh

Mr. E. W. Marshall, Brampton, Michigan, suffering from Systemic Catarrh involving Head, Nose, Throat and Stomach, claims a complete cure. His letter is convincing: "For the past two years I have been troubled with systemic catarrh. I used several boxes of Pe-ru-na tablets and they have effected a complete cure. I do not hesitate to recommend Pe-ru-na for all catarrhal conditions."

Mr. Marshall is just one of many thousands who have been benefited by Dr. Hartman's famous medicine in the past fifty years.

It is by stimulating the digestion, enriching the blood and toning up the nerves that Pe-ru-na is able to exert such a soothing, healing influence upon the mucous membranes which line the body. It is a wonderfully effective remedy to restore strength after a protracted sickness, the grip or Spanish influenza.

SUNSHADES FOR LUCKY DOGS

Innovation That Was Brought About by the Protracted Spell of Unusually Hot Weather.

One of the quaintest innovations of the recent heat wave in London was the introduction of sunshades for dogs. These consisted of light crepe-de-chine protections suspended over the animals' necks by light wire strands.

The "lucky" animals whose masters or mistresses bought the sunshades did not seem so pleased with them as perhaps the donors had hoped, remarked London Answers.

One dog found the heat so oppressive that he sought the shelter of a railway tunnel on the Highbury tube. Here he was, however, so frightened by the continual passing of trains that he shrank into a dark corner and remained there for two days, until his master, on the information of a railway man, fetched him.

Although sunshades for dogs made their first appearance, there was a strange absence of the straw hats that horses used to wear before the war. Have horses been so hardened by the great campaign that they do not need the consideration that dogs get?

And it is.
"Say, buddy, do you remember when we were over there, they used to tell us that when we get back nothing would be too good for us?"
"Sure, what about it?"
"Well, they told the truth."—The American Legion Weekly.

Radio Time.
How useful it would be to watch-makers and repairers to have a simple wireless telephone outfit with which to receive the daily time signals, is brought out by H. Gernsback in the Radio News, New York. He says:
"If once the jeweler sees how simple it is to work a time-receiving radio outfit he will soon become enthusiastic, and, as many of his tribe have done, will even go so far as to put the outfit in a show window in order to attract trade. We know a jeweler in the South who uses a loud talker outside his window, where everyone for half a block around can hear when N. A. A. seconds out the time at noon."

Do You Look Forward To a Good Night's Rest?

Do you regularly anticipate a refreshing sleep? Or do you dread going to bed, only to stare, sleepless, at the walls? The difference between sleeping and staring is simply a matter of nerves.

When your nervous system is in a sound condition, you are certain to sleep well. But when your nerves are worn out and beyond your control, your rest is broken and your awakening leaves you languid and irritable.

Doctors know that much of the nerve disorders result from tea and coffee drinking. The drugs in these drinks over-stimulate, often causing the serious ills which result from disturbing the regular bodily functions. It is for your health's sake that many doctors now say you should quit tea and coffee. Drink Postum, the delicious meal-time beverage instead! In flavor it is much like coffee.

Postum is fundamentally a nerve strengthener because it lets you get sound, restful sleep. Postum is a skillfully-made cereal beverage, and the secret of its popularity is its protection to health and its delicious flavor.

Ask your grocer for Postum. Drink this hot, refreshing beverage in place of tea or coffee for 10 days and see what a wonderful difference it will make in the way you feel.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in time) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

HALLOWE'EN SOCIAL

On October 29th the Gideon Band of the First Baptist Sunday School, assisted by their teacher, Mrs. Y. F. Walker, entertained the entire Intermediate department, its officers and teachers, with their wives, the general officers of the Sunday School and the High School teachers, with a Hallowe'en Social given at the Intermediate department rooms.

The rooms were appropriately decorated with witches, bats, owls, snakes and dry bones, and of course Mr. Jack o' Lantern was very much in evidence on every side.

The receiving line composed of "clown spooks, black witches and real ghosts" welcomed the guests in true ghostly style, lending much mystery to the occasion, since all were concerned as to the identity of the spooks. Various Hallowe'en games were indulged in and prizes awarded. The prize in the "Yes" contest was claimed by Prof. Jackson, who found himself the proud possessor of a miniature imp from the nether regions. Many couples engaged passage on the sea of life. Some were tossed to and fro by the turbulent waves and dashed on the rocks, while others came safely to anchor in the harbor of bliss and "lived happily ever after."

At this juncture a Gypsy appeared on the scene, promising a peep into the future to all who would buy her hand made (?) laces. For the next few moments there was a rush for laces, and many spent all their lucky pennies for a scrap of lace. By a stealthy move some sly spook tried to dispossess the lady of her jewels, when she expertly flourished a deadly revolver, about six inches long, which put to rout all intentions of robbery. The supply of laces being exhausted, the gypsy repaired to her properly decorated booth in a corner, and was followed by anxious couples desirous of having their palms read. Each couple were required to register name and age, and then with many passes for luck they were presented with a magic cigarette which, when opened according to specific directions, would reveal the future or tell of the past. A great deal of curiosity was aroused as to the real identity of this wonderful seeress who thus far had eluded recognition. At last, however, she removed the handkerchief she had worn across her face, and Mrs. Jim Green received the congratulations of her patrons.

At this point the guests were invited into the "witches den" to partake of the "witch's brew." The witch's pot was presided over by a witch who waved a magic wand about the room, calling attention to the many weird skulls, bones, black cats, and even gave a peep into the regions of fire and brimstone by calling forth one of the imps who with weird cackling laughter and jibbering sounds presented each guest with a cup of the brew, which proved to be delicious punch.

At a late hour all took their departure, declaring this to have been one of the most pleasant occasions ever.

Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

MODERN TYPE OF HOME FOR FARM

Nine-Room House Has Accommodations for Large Family.

IS CONVENIENT AND ROOMY

Homes Like This Are Rapidly Making the Farm a Place of Comfort and Pleasure—Are Equally Well Adapted to the City.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The day when the farmer will not have to take his hat off to the city dweller in the matter of homes is here. When was a time, and not long ago, when the farm home was nothing more than shelter with four walls and a roof, and little inside that would make it comfortable. In fact, most of the energies and profits of the farm were put in the barn, which was considered the most important part of the farm. But the tendency of the Twentieth century would not permit such a condition to remain. This last decade has been notable for its part in the emancipation of women. They have gained the right to vote by constitutional amendment, hold office, and are now qualified to sit on juries.

But more important than the gaining of political franchises and liberties has been the emancipation of the woman in the home and especially so in the farm home. We will not dwell on the drudgeries of the farm wife of 20 or 30 years ago. They are too fresh in the memory. The day is not far off when the last wash tub will be a fit relic for the museum of antiques and the kerosene lamp a thing to be marveled at. And the old farm pump, some people like to enthrone about and grow real sentimental and all that, but ask the farmer's wife of daughters who nearly broke their backs over it many cold mornings. Now that they have running water in their new modern home they have little time for sentiment about the "good old days."

The house shown here with floor plans is the type of farm house that is rapidly making the farm a place of comfort and pleasure. It is not a farm home because of certain deficiencies, but can be built just as well on any good city street. For it has all the earmarks of a real home.

Consider the exterior. A very attractive home from without, frame construction with artistic adornments in the way of dormers, bays, etc. The windows are well placed and numerous, insuring plenty of light to the rooms. There is a small, inviting front porch with artistically designed steps. The steps are concrete, as is the foundation. Moreover, there is a large sun parlor at the side, 9 feet 6 inches by 18 feet 6 inches adjoining the living room.

The architect has designed an attractive home of nine rooms, yet the house only measures 30 by 40 feet. The efficient arrangement of the rooms has permitted this conservation of space. On the first floor are the living room, dining room, kitchen and one bedroom, not to mention the sun parlor, which is really an additional room, and a washroom off the kitchen where the help can wash up after coming from the fields after the day's work. This room prevents the tracking up of the kitchen and consequently saves the housewife considerable labor. The living room is large and bright and is 14 feet 6 inches by 17 feet 6 inches. There is an extra toilet on the first floor next to the washroom.

Plenty of bedrooms have been provided in this house. This is necessary in the farm home to take care of the help during the busy months. Upstairs there are five in addition to the one already mentioned on the lower floor. They are all of good size and have splendid ventilation facilities afforded by the many windows in this house. A bathroom with modern fixtures has been provided for in the second floor plan. In case more room is needed, the attic can be mustered into service. There is nothing about this home to indicate that it is peculiar to the farm. In fact, it is just a modern as any city home. Running water and electric lights are no longer the exception to the rule on farms. In fact, no good farmer is without them. If he cannot get his power from some high power line near the house he installs an electric lighting plant in his cellar. Water supply systems are inexpensive comforts.

One of the best investments the farmer can make is a modern home. He is preparing for the future by providing comforts for his children that will keep them with him until the time when he is ready to turn over the work to them and their children. "Youth will not be denied," and if they find home life just as pleasant, just as modern and just as entreating on the farm as it is in the cities, they certainly are not leaving the farm and its substantial surety for the city and its uncertainties.

Most Composite Language.
It is impossible to state the exact percentage of any language entering into the composition of English, as English has become the most composite language spoken by man. The vocabulary of common life is still about three-fourths of Anglo-Saxon origin, but the vocabulary of literature and commerce contains a majority of words of foreign origin, chiefly Latin or Greek, coming in great part through the Romance tongues, and of these chiefly through French. The languages from which the next greatest contribution has been received are the Scandinavian (Icelandic, Swedish, Danish, Norwegian), the low German (Dutch, Flemish, etc.); Celtic, Hebrew, Persian, Arabic, Hindustani, Turkish, Malay, Chinese, American Indian, etc. The words derived from the more remote languages are however, in great part names of products or customs peculiar to the countries concerned, and few of them enter into actual English use.

"Fast and Loose" is the name of a cheating game, also called "precking at the belt," which appears to have been much practiced by the gypsies in the time of Shakespeare. The original name, in the phrase "to play fast and loose," has gone into the language to designate the conduct of those whose easy ethics do not forbid them to say one thing and do another.

TESTING INCREASES INCOME

California Association Is One of Old est to Continue in Successful Operation.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The Ferndale Cow-Testing association in Humboldt county, California, is the largest cow-testing association in the United States. In the organization 106 members, owning from 2 to 150 cows, finished the work last year, and the association tested 4,546 cows, according to a report compiled by the western office of the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture.

Not only is this the largest cow-testing association, but it is one of the oldest to continue in successful operation. It was started 12 years ago, and now has a successful breeder as its secretary and manager.

The history of this association gives ample evidence of the value of cow-testing associations in developing the dairy industry. The report shows that 4,014 cows finished the year's work with an average lactation period of nine and one-half months and with an average butterfat production of 334.03 pounds per cow. There are but few associations, dairy specialists of the department say, that equal this average production, and none that can approach it in number of cows and height of production.

Seventeen herds in the association averaged from 400 to 495.76 pounds of butterfat per cow; 19 averaged from 350 to 400 pounds; 38 averaged from 300 to 350 pounds; 23 averaged from 250 to 300 pounds, and 6 averaged from 213 to 250 pounds. It is interesting to note that the six low herds had been on test for the first time and the owners had not had a chance to cull out and breed up their stock.

The high cow of the association produced 728.95 pounds of fat; 17 cows in the association produced over 600 pounds of fat; 98 over 500 pounds; 628 over 400 pounds, and 1,541 over 300 pounds. The majority of the cows in the association are grade, and their large production is directly traceable to the high-class purebred sires that have been used by the members of the association and to the raising of heifers from the good cows found by the testing association work.

In 1909, 581 cows in this association finished the year's work with an average production of 251 pounds of fat. Last year, the report shows, the average of 4,014 cows was 334 pounds, a difference of three pounds of fat per cow. Based on the number of cows finishing last year's work, this difference meant a total of 333,162 pounds of fat, which, at the price of 70 cents per pound, the average paid Humboldt county dairymen in 1920, amounts to $233,213.

SALT OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Required by All Animals and Cow Should Be Given an Ounce or Two Every Day.

Salt is required by all animals. The dairy cow requires an ounce or more a day. She should be given all she needs, but should not be forced to take more than she wants. It is best, therefore, to give only a small quantity on the feed, and to place rock salt in boxes in the yard where she can lick it at will.

ONE ADVANTAGE OF DAIRYING

After Farmer Has Fed All His Crops and Sold His Produce He Still Has Machinery.

One of the great advantages of dairying over steer feeding is that after a farmer has fed all his crops and sold his produce he still has the machinery left for producing more of the same kind, while when the steer is sold a new animal or machine must be purchased.

And Secretary of State Hughes Has Worn the Required Facial Adornments Ever Since.

Charles E. Hughes, secretary of state, gave little indication to his teachers and classmates at Brown university that he was to become a leader in the nation, though it is true that he had his bachelor degree before he was twenty-one. He planned to make teaching his life work, and he did devote some years to that occupation. His first application for a job was as a teacher of Greek in a small Eastern college. The head of the department received him kindly, but evidently regarded his youthful appearance as making him an impossibility in that line.

"Why," said he, "you have no more hair on your face than an egg."

"If a beard is necessary I can raise one," said Hughes, who knew his own ability in that line, and soon was able to qualify for the job and got it. And, by the way, he has the same whiskers yet. He has never worn a clean-shaven face since.—Columbus Dispatch.

Canadian Prospector Refused to Divulge Location Where Gold Cropped Out.

A man who kept his secret end was the Canadian hunter son. Sixty years ago, when making a canoe trip up the river, the New York Evening Journal states, he struck camp for the night near what later discoveries indicate must have been a large body of gold-bearing ore. Without knowing what this ornamental stone was, he took home a big piece to use for a door weight. A while after this a geologist who was visiting Gilbertson identified the ore, and a rush to stake claims along the Wapsie ensued. But the unwitting prospector would never tell where he made his great find. In later years he became insane and died, still refusing to reveal the location. This season a systematic search of that country is being made in hope of rediscovering "the Gilbertson lode."

COPYRIGHT THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

THE CAVE.

Synopsis—Jane Harding, respectable and conservative old maid—but never too old to think of marriage—with more money than brains, is inveigled by a strong-minded spinster, Miss Higglesey-Browne, into financing an expedition to hunt for buried treasure on Leeward Island. Her niece, Virginia Harding, undertaking to stop her, gets on the vessel and is unwillingly carried along. By no means concealing her distaste for the expedition and her contempt for its members, Virginia makes the acquaintance of the Honorable Cuthbert Vane. Talking with Dugald Shaw, leader of the expedition, Virginia very frankly expresses her views, practically accusing Shaw and the other members of the party, including a somewhat uncertain personage, Captain Magnus, and a shady "financier," Hamilton H. Tubbs, of being in a conspiracy to defraud Jane Harding. Landing on the island is a matter of some difficulty, Virginia being carried ashore in the arms of Cuthbert Vane. The party gets settled. Miss Browne tells about the treasure. Virginia declares herself out of it.

Mr. Tubbs then produced a legal-looking document which I took to be the original agreement of the members of the expedition. Beneath their signatures he had inscribed a sort of codicil, by which I relinquished all claim on any treasure recovered by the party. I signed the clause in a bold and defiant hand, under the attentive eyes of the company. A sort of sigh went round, as though something of vast moment had been concluded. And indeed it had, for now the way was clear for Violet's map.

Coverly I watched the faces around me. Mr. Tubbs' eyes had grown bright; he licked his dry lips. His nose, tip-tilted and slightly bulbous, took on a more than usually rosy hue. Captain Magnus, who was of a restless and jerky habit at the best of times, was like a leashed animal scenting blood. Beneath his open shirt you saw the quick rise and fall of his hairy chest. His lips, drawn back wolfishly, displayed yellow, fan-like teeth. Under the raw crude greed of the man you seemed to glimpse something indescribably vulpine and ferocious.

The face of Dugald Shaw was content there was a slight rigidity. A pulse beat rapidly in his neck. All worldly good, all hope of power, independence, hung on the contents of the small package, wrapped in oil-silk, which Miss Browne was at this moment withdrawing from her pocket.

Only Cuthbert Vane, seated next to me, maintained without effort his serenity. For him the whole affair belonged in the category known as sporting, where a gentleman played his stake and accepted with equanimity the issue.

The dead sailor's legacy consisted of a single sheet of time-stained paper. Two-thirds of the sheet was covered by a roughly-drawn sketch in faded ink, giving the outline of the island shores as we had seen them from the Rufus Smith. Here was the cave, with the name it bears in the Admiralty charts—Lantern bay—written in, and a dotted line indicating the channel.

To all appearance the map was merely to give Hopperdown his directions for entering the cave. There was absolutely no mark upon it to show where the treasure had been buried.

Now for the writing on the sheet below the map. It was in another hand than that which had written Lantern bay across the face of the cave, and which, though labored, was precise and clear. This other was an uneven, wavering scrawl:

"He sed it is in a Cave with 2 mouths near by the grave of Bill Halliwell wich was cut down for he new to much. He sed you can bring a boat to the cave at the half Tide but beware the turn for the pull is strong. He sed to find the Grave again look for the stone at the head marked B. H. and a Cross Bones. In the Chist is gold Dubloons, a vast lot, also a silver Cross wich he sed leve for the Grave for he sed Bill walks and thins unlucky."

That was all. A fairly clear direction for any friend who had attended the obsequies of Bill and knew where to look for the stone marked E. H. and a cross-bones, but to perfect strangers it was vague.

A blank look crept into the latent faces about the table.

"It—it don't happen to say in more detail jest precisely where that cave might be looked for?" inquired Mr. Tubbs hopefully.

"In more detail?" repeated Miss Browne, challengingly. "Pray, Mr. Tubbs, what further detail could be required?"

"A good deal more, I am afraid," remarked the Scotchman grimly.

Miss Browne whirled upon him. In her cold eye a spark had kindled. And suddenly I had a new vision of her. I saw her no longer as the delectable of Aunt Jane, but as herself the deluded. Her belief in the treasure was an obsession. This map was her only way of escape from an existence which had been drab and dull enough, I dare say.

"Mr. Shaw"—Miss Browne gave the effect of drawing herself up in line of battle—"I feel that I must give expression to the thought which comes to me at this moment. It is this—that if the members of this party are to be chilled by crippling doubts, the wave of enthusiasm which has floated us thus far must inevitably recede, leaving us dotsum on a barren shore. What can one weak woman—parson, my unflinching Jane!—two women achieve against the thought of failure firmly held by him to whom we looked to lead us boldly in our forward dash? Mr. Shaw, this is no time for crawling earthworm tactics. It is with the bold and sweeping glance of the eagle that we must survey this island, until the proper point discerned, we swoop with majestic flight upon our predestined goal!"

Miss Browne was somewhat exhausted by this effort, and paused for breath, whereupon Mr. Tubbs, anxious to retrieve his recent blunder, seized with dexterity the opportunity.

"I get you, Miss Browne, I get you," said Mr. Tubbs with conviction. "Victory ain't within the grasp of any individual that carries a heart like a cold panacke in his bosom. I may be rather a man of thought than action, ma'am, and at present far from my native heath, which is the financial centers of the country, but if I remember right, it was Ulysses done the dome-work for the Greeks, while certain persons that was depended on sulked in their tents. Miss Higglesey-Browne, you can count—count, I say—on old H. H.!"

"I thank you, Mr. Tubbs, I thank you!" replied Miss Browne with emotion. As for Aunt Jane, she gazed upon the noble countenance of Mr. Tubbs with such ecstatic admiration that her little nose quivered like a guinea-pig's.

CHAPTER VI.

The Cave With Two Mouths.

Obscure as were the directions which Hopperdown's niece had taken from his dying lips, one point at least was clear—the treasure-cave opened on the sea. This seemed an immense simplification of the problem, until you discovered that the great wall of cliffs was honeycombed with fissures.

One of the boats which had conveyed us from the Rufus Smith had been left with us, and in it Mr. Shaw, with the Honorable Cuthbert and Captain Magnus, made a preliminary voyage of discovery. This yielded the information above set down, plus, however, the thrilling and significant fact that a cave seemingly predestined to be the hiding place of treasure, and moreover a cave with the specified two openings, ran under the point which protected the anchorage on the south, connecting the cove with the sea. Only the Scotchman remained exasperatingly calm and declined to admit that the treasure was as good as found.

"I'll wait till I see the color of my money before I reckon the interest on it," he remarked. "It's true the cave would be a likely and convenient place for hiding the chest; the question is: Wouldn't it be too likely and convenient? Sampson would maybe not choose the spot of all others where the first comer who had got word of the story would be certain to look."

Made a Preliminary Voyage of Discovery.

"Well, friends," remarked Mr. Tubbs, "there's them that sees nothin' but the hole in the doughnut, and there's them that see the doughnut that's around the hole. I ain't ashamed to say that old H. H. is in the doughnut class. Why, the Old Man himself used to remark—I guess it ain't news to some here about me bein' on the inside with most of the leadin' financial lights of the country—he used to remark, 'Tubbs has it in him to bull the market on a Black Friday.' Ladies, I ain't one that's inclined to boast, but I jest want to warn you not to be too astonished when H. H. makes acquaintance with Bill Halliwell's tombstone, which I'm willin' to lay he does yet."

"Well, good luck to you," said the grim Scot, "and let me likewise warn all hands not to be too astonished if we find that the treasure is not in the cave. But I'll admit it is as good a place as any for beginning the search."

The cave which was now the center of our hopes—I say our, because somehow or other I found myself hoping and fearing along with the rest, though carefully concealing it—ran under the point at its farther end. The distance was about sixty feet from mouth to mouth, and back of this transverse passage a great vaulted chamber stretched far under the land. The walls of the chamber rose sheer to a height of fifteen feet or more, when a broad ledge broke their smoothness. At high water the sea flooded the cavern to its farthest extremity and beat upon the walls. Now and again, it was to prove, even the water-worn pavement between the two archways was left bare, and one could walk dry-shod along the rocks under the high land of the point from the beach to the cave. But this was at the very bottom of the ebb. Mostly the lower end of the cave was flooded, and the explorers went back and forth in the boat.

A certain drawback to boating in our island waters was the presence of hungry hordes of sharks. You might forget them for a moment and sit happily trailing your fingers overboard, and then a huge moving shadow would darken the water, and you saw the ripple cut by a darting fin and the flash of a livid belly as the monster rolled over, ready for his mouthful.

What with the genius of Cookie and the fruitfulness of our island, not to speak of supplies from the Army and Navy stores, we lived like sycambres. There were fish from stream and sea, coconuts and bananas and oranges from the trees in the clearing. I had hopes of yams and breadfruit also, but if they grew on Leeward none of us had a speaking acquaintance with them. Cookie did wonders with the pigs that were shot and brought in to him, though I never could sit down with appetite to a massacred infant served up on a platter, which is just what little pigs look like.

"Jes' yo' cas' yo' eye on dis yere in-nahcent," Cookie would insist, as he placed the suckling before Mr. Tubbs. "Tendah as a new-bo'n babe, he am. Jes' lak he been tucked up to sleep by his mammy. Sho' now, how yo' got de heart to stick de knife in him, Mistah Tubbs?"

It was significant that Mr. Tubbs, after occupying for a day or two an undistinguished middle place at the board, had somehow slid into the carver's post at the head of the table. Flanking him were the two ladies. Everybody else had a sense of sitting in outer darkness, particularly I, whom fate had placed opposite Captain Magnus. Since landing on the island, Captain Magnus had forsworn the effeminacy of forks. Loaded to the hilt, his knife would approach his cavernous mouth and disappear in it. Yet when it emerged Captain Magnus was alive. Where did it go? This was a question that agitated me daily.

The history of Captain Magnus was obscure. It was certain that he had his captain's papers, though how he had mastered the science of navigation sufficiently to obtain them was a problem. Though he held a British navigator's license, he did not appear to be an Englishman.

The captain, as Mr. Vane had remarked, was Miss Browne's own find. Before the objections of Mr. Shaw—evidently a Negative Influence from the beginning—had caused her to abandon the scheme, Miss Browne had planned to charter a vessel in New York and sail around the Horn to the island. While nursing this project she had formed an extensive acquaintance with persons frequenting the New York water-front, among whom was Captain Magnus. As I heard her remark, he was the one nautical character whom she found sympathetic, by which I judge that the others were skeptical and rude. Being sympathetic, Captain Magnus found it an easy matter to attach himself to the expedition—or perhaps it was Violet who annexed him, I don't know which.

The strange beast of the jungle was a white bull-sterrier.

Coming of Age.

We mourn over the coming of age, but he many of us would really choose to remain young and so lose the treasures that the years bring; the varied friendships, the adventures, the garnered wisdom! Perpetual youth would leave us behind our own generation, would rob us of life's purpose and meaning.

STYLES IN WINTER COATS AND HATS FOR AUTUMN

THE ever-varying panorama of the modes brings to us our winter coats in several well-defined styles, and these range all the way from severely plain, finely tailored, mannish affairs, to ornate garments lavishly decorated. All of them are quite equal to discharging their mission of keeping us warm; they are ample, soft, and often luxurious with fur trimmings and accessories. Besides this bodily comfort their becomingness warms the heart; for there is a coat for every type of woman and for any sort of occasion.

In answer to a demand for serviceable coats, in chic models with a dis-

Furthermore purchasers are getting more for their money than for many seasons, prices having declined since last year, in fact seem somewhat lower than they should be, considering the amount of hand work that is lavished on this year's millinery.

Hats for street wear are medium in size, those for afternoon and evening larger, and still growing. The all-day frock or suit calls for an all-day hat, and four out of five of the models shown here will come under this class, the exception being the wide-brimmed pattern of hatter's plush with veil of lace falling from its under brim. This mid-winter night's dream is all in inct style of their own, great men's tailoring houses have gone into the manufacture of coats for women, using the same fabrics as are used in men's coats, sticking to mannish lines and ignoring ornament. These coats have made a success, especially with people who like simple designs and are appreciative of fine lines and workmanship or the intangible element of good style.

Fabric fur, which is the name given to those plushes that imitate natural fur, has come in for much attention on the part of famous designers, and they have used it in very handsome coats and in suits also. Natural or pelt fur furnishes the collar or collar and cuffs on many of these rich wraps. The majority of coats are those made of fashionable coatings like those shown in the picture above, and designers use both natural and fabric furs in accessories and finishing as may be gathered from the illustration. In the coat of brown bolivia cloth at the left a fur fabric that looks just like lambskin furnishes the long shawl collar extended in a falling to the hem, and the wide straight cuffs.

The dressy coat at the right in dark blue normandie cloth is cut in gores, and each gore ornamented with a design cut from beige silk and embroidered. The scarf-collar and deep cuffs are of natural squirrel.

This season is outdoing all its forerunners in the inexhaustible variety of hats with which attempts are made to suit every face and every pocketbook. Hats represent the best effort of everybody concerned in their making, from the frame manufacturer to the most talented of designer and trimmers and they are hats, like fur pieces, may be worn anywhere, at any time if good qualities are chosen in them and there is considerable variety in styles and plumage.

The jumper dress of navy blue serge is worn over a gumpie and sleeves a dull red crepe de chine; and there is a dash of the same crepe de chine.

KEEP DONLEY COUNTY FREE FROM COTTON BOLL WEEVIL

So far as we know, there is not a boll weevil in our county, and let us all sincerely hope that we will continue to be spared the ravages of this, the South's most destructive of insect pests. We must not trust in good fortune alone to protect us from this insect, but instead use every measure we can to prevent their introduction into our county.

When ordering seed in the future, let's be sure they were not grown in a district which was contaminated.

Boll weevils hibernate in old stalks, weeds, and any kind of trash, so that a very good step toward prevention is to carefully burn off all weeds and trash along the roadsides, being careful not to burn over any tillable land, as this would destroy some very valuable fertility

SUBSCRIBE FOR YOUR HOME TOWN PAPER

It is very rare that the average newspaper boosts its own business, but gives quantities of space in boosting the affairs of others.

Somebody suggested that it is time for the newspapers of the country to adopt a week in which their own business should be given precedence, and the Informer endorses the idea.

The date set is the second week in November, from 7th to 12th, including that great world event, Armistice Day.

The official title for the week is "Subscribe for your Home Town Paper Week."

Thousands of papers will join in this event, and our readers will hear more about it as time goes on.

The home town paper, large or small, is always ready to help any cause in the interest of a better community, better living conditions, and better government. We now ask the readers and advertisers of the Informer to turn in and lend a hand during "Subscribe for Your Home Town Paper Week," and boost for us.

HEDLEY W. M. SOCIETY IS ENTERTAIN'D AT CLARENDON

Several Hedley Methodists were royally entertained at the Clarendon church Wednesday, Oct 26th, the occasion being an all day meeting of the Mission Study Class of the Clarendon Auxiliary. The book studied was "The Kingdom and the Nations" by Eric M North. The relay plan was used, and from the opening song, "The Morning Light Is Breaking," we were no longer Americans in America, but God's people journeying to the far corners of the earth, to witness the needs of His other children. From Japan to China, then India, kept us from realizing the passing of time until luncheon was announced. The basement was beautifully decorated in our colors, purple and gold. Ferns and yellow chrysanthemums lent a cheerful air; but the dinner of fried chicken, sandwiches, salad, pie, fruit cake and delicious hot coffee, daintily served by the young ladies, made us glad we were in America.

After lunch we looked through a picture gallery, arranged by Mrs. Slover, the superintendent of mission study, illustrating the peoples, customs and trades of these countries.

Promptly at 1 o'clock Dr. Griswold conducted the devotional, which was very inspiring. We were again on our way, first to Islam and the near East; to Africa, where our own Ansil Lynn and several girls are working; to Europe, by a paper from the College Matron just returned from a trip over the war zone; to Latin America. Through it all was left the questions to be answered individually: "How can these people find our Christ?" "What is required of us? of me?" A College trio, accompanied by Miss Lane, sang beautifully "We Can Make the World Better If We Try." Miss Story gave a splendid violin solo. Bro. Henson was introduced and in a few words of praise for woman's work made us happy. Our own pastor, Bro. Fuller, made a helpful talk. Our leader bade each tell in 138 seconds what the day meant to her. The keynote of these talks was: This program has meant information, inspiration, deeper consecration, and a determination to do more for my Lord. The meeting closed at 3 o'clock.

Those going from Hedley were Bro. and Sister Fuller, Mmes. Crow, Pierce, Moreman, Hall, Noel and Kendall.

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

ABSENT-MINDED ALICE.

Alice was very absent minded. She did everything to make herself remember things instead of forgetting them, but nothing seemed to help her. She tied a string around her finger and a knot in her handkerchief, and then she wondered why she had put the string around her finger and the knot in her handkerchief.

But even more than forgetting things she would forget even herself at times when she should have been thinking of herself and what she was doing.

And because many times she had done this she was known as Absent-Minded Alice.

Alice was never intentionally rude. She was never anything of the sort. She liked people and she wanted them to like her. Yet often she would forget to speak to people whom she had met before.

And her absent-mindedness had become a habit. She hated that little invisible creature called Habit. Habit had such strong clutches and was so powerful and made such headway when no one was noticing.

Habit did things little by little, too, so no one was hardly aware that Habit was around until one saw that Habit had succeeded in having things so that it was almost impossible to oppose him.

Alice knew that Habit had a cousin or a brother—she was not quite sure of the relationship—who was known as Good Habit. Good Habit made it easy for people who were his followers.

"Oh Dear, Oh Dear."

For example, Good Habit made it so nice for those who were in the habit of keeping their rooms in order. He saved them so much time. They always knew where everything was, because Good Habit had helped them to make it a habit to be tidy, and it was a simple thing to be so.

In this way Good Habit was a friend of Alice's. Alice's toys were always in just such a place—her doll's house was in perfect order—her doll's clothes were always to be found just where she had put them. She never forgot these things because Good Habit had helped her in forming this habit.

But alas, Good Habit wasn't around with Alice at many other times. The brother or cousin was, Yes, and both of them were equally strong—only it depended which you made a friend of, to be sure.

The trouble with Alice was that she tried to be friendly with both.

Yes, Bad Habit was the one who laughed when he was absent minded, and who really didn't like it because Good Habit was a friend of hers in some ways. Bad Habit didn't like Good Habit to have anything to do with his friends. Bad Habit and Good Habit had started off with the same ideas and the same ways—but they had both chosen different paths after they had been adventuring through life only a little distance. And they had continued along their own ways.

"It's so silly a thing to be," said Alice to herself. "I have to spend a lot more time doing things, because I am absent minded and making up for what I've forgotten to do. Oh dear, I'm just not going to let that bad little Habit creature control me any longer."

Perhaps the fly-paper on the side table heard her. Fly-paper has never been known to have ears, but in this case Fly-paper certainly did seem to understand in a remarkable way what was going on.

At any rate Alice had walked over to the Fly-paper and, in trying to see something out of the window beyond the side table, she had put both her hands on the Fly-paper.

"Oh dear, oh dear," Alice said, as she worked and worked to get the horrible stickiness off. "If I hadn't been absent minded I would have noticed that fly-paper. I simply won't be absent minded again, ever, ever!"

Without a doubt Good Habit overheard that speech. He is a great admirer of strength of character. But the Fly-paper also deserves a great deal of credit.

Alice was never absent minded again. And whenever she spoke of the earlier days in which she had been so absent minded she always gave the Fly-paper the credit for having cured her.

"There was something about the Fly-paper," she would laugh, "that stuck to the lesson it taught long enough to make an impression!"

After Many Years

By FREDERICK HART.

It was noon—a hot, sticky noon, with the sun shining down on the lowering buildings and populous streets of lower New York as though, not satisfied with the temperature, it was malignantly doing its best to add another three or four degrees to the length of the already stretched mercury. The throngs that flooded the sidewalks and dodged in and out among the stream of street cars, automobiles, and trucks that cluttered about the intersection of Wall and Broad streets were thinly clad—the men in palm beach suits, for the most part, the girls in white filmy garments; but even these efforts could not bring about the desired coolness.

The narrow, high-walled streets caught and held the heat like ovens; each window turned itself into a miniature reflector and multiplied the power of the sun. Only in one square was there promise of relief—in the little block where Trinity church stands, its spire dwarfed by the mighty buildings that crowd it about, but sturdily guarding its sacred plot of grass—the graveyard where Alexander Hamilton and Robert Fulton lie buried, sacred among the booming thunders of commerce.

Here were winding paths and green grass for tired feet, weary of the pound of the cement pavements; and here was the cool, dim interior of the church itself, where shadows drove away the heat and sometimes the dim notes of the organ took the business-like mind away from the racket of typewriters and tickers and gave it soothing melodies to rest and refresh for a space before the afternoon, intervene me, I am not inspired by mere vulgar curiosity."

The girl looked at him a moment and then decided to speak.

"Have you read the epitaph?" she asked.

"Yes, but I don't remember all of it, except the name and the date."

"Well, it is such a little stone and so alone, and it leans over as though it were tired. And—come and read it."

They went together to the grave and, stooping, the young man deciphered the worn inscription:

HIC JACET
Janet, Daughter of Ephraim and Janet Caldwell,
Age 16 yrs. 3 mos.
1777-1793.

Requiescat in Pace.

"Think of it!" said the girl. "Only sixteen; and her little grave seems so neglected here with all the others. I was sorry for her; and I—I thought she might like the violets—and I—"

The young man was not listening. Instead he was digging in his waistcoat pocket. After some search he produced something and held it in the palm of his hand.

"Would you like to know what she looked like?" he asked.

"Oh?" The girl's face was rosy. "Do you—I mean are you—"

"Look." In the young man's hand was an ancient miniature, the cover snapped back. The girl looked long at the face on the thin plate of ivory.

"Oh," she breathed again, "how beautiful she is!"

"That was painted the year before she died," said the young man quietly. "Her father, Ephraim, was my father's great-great-grandfather. My name is Grant Caldwell and this miniature is all that is left to remember the family of old Ephraim. And you—you thought of her, while I am afraid that I had forgotten her."

The girl's eyes were bright with unshed tears.

"But you'll never forget her now," she said.

"No—not if you'll let me—"

"Let you what?"

"If you'll help me always to remember her—by seeing you again."

There was silence for a moment. Then the girl looked up at him.

"I will," she said simply, and told him her name. Over the little headstone their hands clasped. And high in the tower of Trinity the old clock boomed out the hour as though in benediction on their heads.

WHEN THEY GO TO THE PLAY

What a Young Man and His Best Girl Think of Each Other.

The young man and his best girl go to the show.

What the young man thinks and the others think:

"Say, but I gotta peach of a girl tonight; bet every guy in the house is wishin' he was here in my shoes by her side. I guess she ain't tickled with her little self to have me bring her and get seats right up in front. Maybe I ain't no Adonis, but I fit this dress suit like it was made for me. Gotta get one some day."

What the best girl thinks the others think:

"I have to hand it to Bill for knowing enough to get orchestra seats when he's got a good looking girl with him. Gee, but I bet those dames would like to have my good looks. I guess I made a big hit with Bill tonight, but I'm not going to accept him when maybe I can land a fellow with a million or two. Nobody has got anything on me in the way of looks, and they know it, too. I'll bet a lotta 'em are raving about my complexion, too."

What the audience thought about them:

Not a dawgone thing!—Charles W. Perry in Judge.

76 Kinds of Knots.

"You will often hear a person say," an old sea captain said, "that they are going to tie a knot, but few know there are seventy-six kinds of knots. The simple knot is known to everybody, but the other twenty-five are not generally known."

"Some of the knots that the public rarely hear of and yet are used daily in shipping circles are the Englishman's tie, the Staffordshire knot, the slippery hitch, the Turk's head, the running bowline knot, the harness hitch, the surgeon's knot, the clove hitch, the marnus hitch, the rolling hitch, the Spanish windlass and the wall knot."

Development of Gasoline Tractor.

The present type of gasoline tractor finds its prototype in the old steam tractor. The intermediate step was taken when owners of steam tractors took off the steam boiler and mounted a stationary gasoline engine on the old steam-running gear. There were a number of these machines built around 1890, perhaps some a few years before. The first gasoline tractors manufactured from about 1893 to 1902 were slight refinements of the combination steam-and-gasoline outfit. In 1903 a special type of gasoline tractor appeared, and from that time on the industry has had a rapid development. Probably no one man can claim the credit for having built the first tractor.

Radium Clears Through Bureau.

It is doubtful if many persons of the United States know that every bit of radium in the country clears through the bureau of standards in Washington, but such is the case. The fact that the radium presented to Mme. Curie reposed in the vaults of the bureau of standards until it was taken to the purser of the S. S. Olympic is a secret which now may be made public.

Our Fifth Annual Thanks-giving Sale

IS PROVING TO BE THE BIGGEST MONEY-SAVING SALE OF THE YEAR

WE HAVE GONE THE LIMIT IN PRICE REDUCTION; COST OR REPLACEMENT PRICES HAVE BEEN IGNORED. We have marked everything in our stock down to prices that will stagger the common-sense buyer. You all know this store and its business policy. We never allow a fictitious representation of comparison of values and guarantee every statement in our advertising—every value as represented, and we now make this statement to the people, that the sacrifice we are making in this sale, in all profits and part of the original cost, is the greatest we ever made in our mercantile career. We are not employing a slick artist and paying him ten per cent of our sales. We will not throw chickens or turkeys off our roof with money tied to their legs. We don't use circus methods to draw a crowd. No hally-hoing—THIS SALE IS DIFFERENT.

HEDLEY SCHOOL NOTES

Examinations are over and papers are graded. There are many smiles and few frowns. Report cards have not arrived yet, and we ask patrons to wait patiently for the official reports on "Young Hopeful's" work.

Watch next week's paper for the Honor Roll.

Football activities have been suspended because of ineligibility of some of the players. This condition is brought about by their failure to make passing grades in their literary work.

We have fine material for a boys' basket ball team. If these men make their work we will, when the season arrives, improve our athletic record.

Mr. Taylor, a representative of the Star Engraving Company of Houston, was with us this week. The Seniors gave him an order for class rings. The Juniors ordered pins.

From all accounts the Grammar Grades had quite a time Monday afternoon celebrating Halloween. They ducked for apples; played many games; ate fruit, candy, peanuts and popcorn. Don't you call that a good time?

Watch for Thanksgiving announcements!!

Look after those sore throats and bad colds. Let's keep scarlet fever and diphtheria out of school.

Saturday at 3 p. m. the school team and town boys played football. The score was 13 to 0 in favor of the school boys.

Annie Lee Farris has returned to school after an absence of six weeks.

Florence Card is on the sick list this week. We understand she has the scarlet fever.

PARENT TEACHERS

Parent-Teachers Association met at 3:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, with twenty one parents and teachers present. Three new members were received in to the Association.

Supt. Biggers then gave us a report from the State Inspector Mrs. R. L. Ragsdale, who was here Thursday. We were told she was well pleased with the school spirit and interest among teachers and pupils, but there was a complaint made. It was this: the equipment of the school is very poor, and unless this condition is relieved the school will lose classification. If, however, the needed equipment is provided at once, we will retain our classification, and she will recommend affiliation in the subjects on which we are asking credit. The Inspector, after making a survey of the present equipment, said it would take all of $500 to provide the school with that which must be purchased.

Seeing the gravity of the situation, the Association took up the discussion of ways and means of making this $500. The plan adopted was to see every patron of the school and ask that they pay $1 for each child they have in school. However, this does not rob those who have no children in school of the privilege of adding to the fund. The committees were appointed to make this drive.

Those present were then invited to the Annex No 2 where the pupils of Miss Temple rendered a very unique Halloween program. With the weird lights, wibes and siren's march of the ghosts, the spirit of the occasion was well portrayed.

The next meeting of the Association will be held Nov. 17th, at 3:30.

In the verses composed by our President read the explanation and get the spirit of our $500 campaign:

We are asking for this
Because we believe
The fellow who asks
Is sure to receive.
The cause is a good one;
Our school is at stake;

And we dare not fail
For the dear children's sake.

And so we start out
With faith just a-soaring,
Believing the money
Will come in a-pouring.

We are asking each patron
To give us a dollar
For each child in school.
To aid the said scholar.

For the man out of town
Who has to pay rent
With half of this sum
We pledge our content.

All in town and out,
Who have over five,
Are allowed a reduction
In making this drive.

We believe in our people,
They believe in our school,
And we know for good work
There must be the right tool.

It's for the equipment
We are asking this thing—
Up to the standard
Our school we must bring.

So let's come across
With the bright shining dollars
And stand by our teachers
In turning out scholars.
