TEACHERS INSTITUTE IN CLARENDON SOON

The public school Teachers of Donley, Hall, Collingworth and Childress counties, except teachers in Memphis and Childress Independent Districts, will convene in joint institute in the High School building at Clarendon, Monday, Dec. 19, 1921, to remain in session until Dec 23, inclusive.

The program will be most interesting and instructive, its personnel including some of the State's most prominent Educators, among them being Miss Annie Webb Blanton, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Frederick Eby, of the State University, Mrs. Phoebe K. Warner of Claude, and Miss Lillie L. Martin of Baylor University.

Supr. Biggers of the Hedley Schools will discuss the subject: What Sciences Should be Taught in Schools with Meager Laboratory Equipment?

All teachers are supposed to be in attendance, and prepared to contribute something toward the success of the meeting.

DELIGHTFUL BANQUET GIVEN BY BEREANS

The Berean Bible Class gave one of the most entertaining Banquets of the season Tuesday evening at 7:30. The officers of the class are: H. A. Jackson, president; Loyd Acard, 1st vice president; Paul Crozier, 2nd vice president; Garfield Dunn, 3rd vice president; Clyde Owens, secretary; M. M. Jackson, treasurer; Mack Sims, teacher; B. C. Chapman, press reporter.

This class was the first to reach the standard of excellence.

The general Sunday School officers were guests of honor, and there was present a very distinguished Brother, our home missionary, Rev. R. C. Baker, from Memphis, who gave a most enlightening talk on "The Outlook for the Young People of Today."

The dinner was served in six courses, consisting of pint apple cocktail, celery, roast young turkey with dressing, creamed potatoes, white sauce, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie, petit fours, demitasse.

Between each course the carefully outlined program was rendered with remarkable ability.

Horse A. Jackson, toastmaster, gave a very hearty welcome address to the Fideis. In response for the Fideis, Miss Monnie Canedy more than assured the Bereans they enjoyed the opportunity.

A reading was given by Mrs. Y. F. Walker, which everyone applauded. Then Bro. R. C. Baker gave his speech. A duet by Messrs Biggers and Jackson was listened to with intense interest. A reading by Miss Naomi Allison put over a good laugh, and she was forced to offer a second reading.

The last number on the program was "The Essentials of Class Building," by Rev. Y. F. Walker. In his speech he expressed his desire to see more social entertainments, but, first of all, a better Sunday School.

MAKES FINE HOME FOR PHYSICIAN

House Specially Designed for Professional Man.

CONTAINS SEVEN GOOD ROOMS

Office Is Conveniently Located for Visitors and Business Transacted There Need Not Interfere with Activities of Household.

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD. Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Every man who intends to build a home for himself and his family takes into consideration, when he is selecting the design, what the needs of himself and the others of his household will be. For a doctor, or any other professional man whose office is in his home, the house must be so designed that it will be suitable for his business as well as to provide a dwelling-place for his family.

This is especially true with doctors. The average doctor, especially in the smaller cities and rural communities, has specified office hours, and his office usually is in his home. That was the purpose in providing an office on the first floor of the home shown in the accompanying illustration. Here is located at the rear of the house, and adjoining the entrance next to the garage, a good-sized room that has been designated "office." This room is conveniently located for visitors, who do not have to go through the house to get to the office; in fact, the business transacted there need not interfere of the house and in the outside wall is set an open fireplace, with bookcases on both sides. Back of the living room, and connected with it by a colonnade opening, is the dining room, which is 13 feet 6 inches by 13 feet, slightly larger than the living room. A bay window with three large windows adds the extra length to the dining room and makes it a cheerful place for the family meals. To the rear of the dining room is the office already described, while adjoining this room to one side is the kitchen. How well these rooms have been planned and the conveniences that have been incorporated into them are shown by the

with the activities of the other members of the household. While this is the unusual feature of this home design, it is an exceptionally good home, either from exterior appearance or interior arrangement. The office, so-called, may be used as a den, or will make a conveniently located small sleeping room.

The house contains a full first floor and a partial second floor, making what is generally termed a story-and-a-half house. In exterior appearance it is out of the ordinary, made by the broken roof lines, the numerous gables and dormers and the outside wall treatment. The house is 20 feet wide and 30 feet long, and is set on a concrete foundation. The superstructure is of standard frame construction, with the outside walls of large, specially made exterior wall shingles. At the rear of the house, and connected with it by an inclosed entrance, is a two-car garage.

First Floor Plan.

The entrance door leads off the good-sized porch into a large reception hall, which is connected with the living room by double doors. The living room extends nearly across the front floor plans that accompany the exterior view. The stairs leading to the second floor run out of the reception hall and lead to a central hall on the second floor. Three good-sized bedrooms and the bathroom open out of this hall, one room in front, another in the center of the building and a third at the back. The plans show that both closets and wardrobes for modern wardrobe fitting have been provided.

A basement extends under the whole of the house and contains plenty of room for heating, fuel storage and the storage of vegetables and fruits.

This is a most attractive, comfortable and convenient home for a family of four or five. At the same time it is not large and can be erected at a comparatively small cost.

Planning a home is not a difficult task if the experience of expert home building designers is called into service. While this house would not suit every family, it contains many good suggestions for prospective home builders.

Can't Back Cars. "Ever notice how the galls drive a car?" inquired the garage helper. "Not particularly? Well, you'd better. The janes drives along the streets like they owned the burg, sneaks by the cops an' trolleys an' gets away wit' molder generally, but when they comes in the garage to put up the boat for the day they falls down.

"Most of 'em steps on the exhilarator an' drives in speedy, but they don't roll inter place, but leaves the car on the floor, careless like, an' says, 'you'll put it away, won't you, boy?'"

"There's a reason. Most of the dames don't know how to back up. The reverse gear means nothin' in their young lives. They usually have to go around the block when they want to go back the way they come from. Watch 'em an' see if I ain't right."—New York Sun.

Unique Wedding Certificate. On the island of Jersey there is a curious but pretty marriage custom. As soon as the ceremony is over, and when the happy couple is entering into occupation of its house, the large granite slab over the porch is inscribed with the initials of the bride and bridegroom, and between the two a rough representation of two hearts is entwined, the whole thus forming a unique marriage certificate for all the world to see.

Contrary Qualifications. "So you didn't like the jovial pncient mariner I introduced to you?" "No; I thought for an old salt, he was too fresh."

FEW OPPOSE TB ERADICATION

Cattle Dealers Who Do Not Favor Measures Are Influenced by Selfish Motives.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Only a few people are opposed to regulating traffic in tuberculous live stock, but their opposition is sometimes effective, and several cases of the kind have been traced by the United States Department of Agriculture. However, the department believes that cattle dealers who do not favor tuberculous eradication are influenced by selfish motives and do not represent the true spirit of live-stock owners and others interested in healthier and better domestic animals on American farms.

Although many states have suitable laws to protect farmers and other live-stock owners against traffic in tubercuous animals, the practice continues in some localities. Here is an instance: In Massachusetts a purebred Holstein cow, valued at $100, was disposed of as a reactor; but instead of being slaughtered or segregated she was later sold to a state institution for $300. The herd at this institution had previously been free of tuberculosis. It was being improved by the purchase of new animals, and every available precaution was taken to see that they were healthy. Recently this herd was re-tested and three reactors were found, one of which was the cow in question. All showed well-marked lesions of tuberculosis on post-mortem examination.

There is no law or regulation in Massachusetts preventing the sale or requiring the segregation of reactors. A few cattle dealers led the opposition to a bill before the last general court providing for the control and sale of animals reacting to the tuberculin test. Owing to the importance of eradicating tuberculosis from live stock, the Department of Agriculture is furnishing to the public full information regarding the nature of the disease and the way to get rid of it.

ACCREDITED-HERD CAMPAIGN

Illustration of Manner in Which Owners Are Given Protection Against Tuberculosis.

The way herd owners value protection against bovine tuberculosis is illustrated, says a specialist in the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture, by the experience of the Bonner Springs (Kansas) Bull association. Every member of the association, 11 in number, signed up for the accredited-herd campaign. They had 104 animals tested, and in 8 of the 11 herds no reactors whatever were found. Of the other three herds, each had just one animal affected by the disease.

At first sight some of the members thought the effort had been needless and not enough results shown. But when it was considered that the object sought was not merely to eradicate tuberculosis after it had appeared but to protect the herds against exposure to the disease, it was plain that the object sought had been gained.

REMOVE WARTS FROM CALVES

Small Tumor-Like Growths on Various Parts of Body Are Not Difficult to Destroy.

Calves are frequently troubled with small tumor-like growths on the lips, around the eyes, on the ears, and at the tail head. Occasionally other parts of the body are affected as well. Warts may best be removed by snipping them off with sharp scissors. A strong thread or a horse hair may be used in their removal by looping it over them and then by the application of force slowly severing them at their base. After they have been removed the roots should be cauterized with tincture of iron, glacial acetic acid, or lunar caustic.

DARLING BABY BRIGHTENS HOME

Children's Laughter a Pleasing Sound

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We had six children die almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days is all they have lived. Before my next one was born I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old, and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says 'That is a very healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show these few lines to anybody."—Mrs. C. W. BENZ, 131 3rd Avenue, Altoona, Pa.

Mrs. Janssen's experience of interest to childless wives. Millston, Wis.—"I want to give you a word of praise for your wonderful medicine. We are fond of children, and for a considerable time after we were married I feared I would not have any. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it strengthened me so I now have a nice, strong, healthy baby girl. I suffered very little at childbirth, and I give all the credit to your medicine, and shall always recommend it highly."—Mrs. H. H. JANSEN, Millston, Wis.

Mrs. Held of Marinette, Wis., adds her testimony for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says:

Marinette, Wis.—"I was in a nervous condition and very irregular. My doctor advised an operation. My husband brought me one of your booklets and asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It overcame my weakness so that I now have a healthy baby girl after having been married nine years. I am glad to recommend your medicine, and you may use my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. H. B. HELD, 330 Jefferson St., Marinette, Wis.

There are many, many such homes that were once childless, and are now blessed with healthy, happy children because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored the mother to a strong and healthy condition, as it acts as a natural restorative for ailments as indicated by backache, irregularities, displacements, weakness and nervousness.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative. It can be taken with perfect safety and often prevents serious troubles.

Therefore if you know of any woman who is suffering and has been unable to secure relief and is regretfully looking forward to a childless old age, ask her to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it has brought health and happiness into so many homes once darkened by illness and despair.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent to you free upon request. Write to The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

PLAN TO AVOID HOG CHOLERA

Highly Contagious Disease Can Often Be Prevented by Using Simple Precautions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Recently an instance was brought to the attention of the United States Department of Agriculture where hog cholera appeared almost simultaneously on the farms of six out of the eight members of a "threshing ring." The infection on all six farms was traced to the premises of one of the members of the "ring," whose hogs were sick at the time the threshing was done on his farm about 10 days previous.

The owner of the sick hogs failed to recognize the nature of the disease, and in his eagerness to care for his crop while the weather was favorable, he delayed calling a veterinarian until after the threshing was finished. As a result he lost over half his hogs and the infection was carried to his neighbors' herds.

It is a common practice for farmers to borrow and loan farm implements and exchange labor when they are threshing, shelling old corn, filling silos and hauling stock and grain to market. Farmers are advised to read Farmers' Bulletin 834, Hog Cholera, especially the discussion of modes of infection with hog cholera.

"Threshing rings" are quite popular and no doubt under present conditions crops can be handled speedily and economically in this way, but the danger of carrying hog cholera from infected hog lots should be kept in mind and precautions taken to avoid it. In the instance cited the thresher was set in the hog lot, although it was known at the time that some of the hogs were sick.

It is much safer to thresh grain in the field and avoid driving into enclosures where hogs are kept. If driving through the hog lots is unavoidable, the members of the "threshing ring" are advised to rinse their shoes in a disinfectant and remove their overalls; also wash their horses' feet and legs and the wheels of the wagon with the disinfectant before returning to their own premises, and especially their hog lots. Hog cholera is a highly contagious disease and often losses can be avoided by using the simple and easily applied precautions specified.

PROVIDE SHELTER FOR SHEEP

Animals Need Protection Against Dampness as Well as From Cold During the Winter.

For the benefit of farmers who are wintering a flock of sheep for the first time this year, the Nebraska College of Agriculture offers the following suggestions: A good well-ventilated shelter is necessary, not so much for protection against the cold as against dampness. The fleeces will keep the sheep warm if it is dry. A good shed open on the south will serve the purpose until lambing time, when a warm barn is necessary if the weather is at all cold. After the corn is shucked the sheep can run in the stalks in good weather, with corn stlage or alfalfa fed in limited quantities. A little fodder may be fed instead of stlage, but sheep seem to do better where some kind of succulent food, such as stlage, roots, pumpkins and the like is a part of their ration. Very little or no grain is needed up until a week or two after lambing.

FINISH CATTLE FOR MARKET

Farmer Will Find It Profitable to Practice "Feeding" Before Offering Them for Sale.

It is customary for the farmer who has only a few head of cattle to sell them to the local buyer, and after being shipped to some central point, and after passing through several hands, they are sometimes found on the farm of a neighbor, who makes feeding a business, being finished for market. In a series of years the farmer who feeds makes more money than the farmer who does not feed. While there are losses on the operation some years, there are big profits other years. On the average of years the operation is profitable.

FOR GIRL IN HER TEENS; BLOUSES TAKE TO COLORS

THE girl in her teens looks well in anything, but frocks of taffeta seem to suit her best of all. There is a sort of demure gaiety about this pretty fabric that accounts for the sprightliness in dresses made of it, and perhaps that is why it is written into the history of every season's styles. The simple taffeta frock is a good investment when it is cleverly made—a very adaptable and versatile possession.

We must concede cleverness to the maker of the unpretentious, but alluring, dress for a young girl as pictured here. It has a plain straight underskirt as a foundation and above this a wide tunic with tucks bordering it, finished at the edge with narrow, pointed ribbon. The neck is cut out in a other silks, with georgette holding first place.

The long waistline is favored for blouses, as far frocks, and the pleated and tie-back styles are convenient modes for exploiting it, therefore the majority of models are one or the other of these. Two examples of the tie-back blouse are shown in the illustration, and they are representative styles. The blouse at the left, made of georgette in a dark color, extends its girldie at the front into a deep scallop, suggesting a plenum. It is cut in the graceful, slip-over fashion, with kimono sleeves, and has an old and pretty decoration of braids, in which small wooden beads and long bugle beads are effectively used with embroidered silk. The round neck and deep square, revealing a vestee of lace. Straps of velvet ribbon, ending in little buckles at each side, make of this vestee a brilliant feature, and the neck is finished with a pretty lace collar. A frock like this in black, or dark shades of color, is equal to doing service for many occasions more or less formal, according to the accessories worn with it; it is at home against many backgrounds.

Another fabric that seems suited to youth is plain crepe de chine, and frocks made of it have fine wearing qualities. It is a great favorite this season, especially in golden brown, which shade makes an effective background for colored embroideries and looks well with the fashionable high colors as flame, henna, orange and certain tones of blue. Used in facings or linings for girldies and floating panels, they give the liveliness required. Another pretty color combination for young girls is found in bright, strong blue, embroidered in pinks.

A little journey among new blouses leaves two or three of their style features for the mind. The first thing to be noted is the prevalence of color and color combinations in them, and the trend toward dark shades. Colors are the same as those employed for frocks—as brown, beige, glaucous, blue and black or gray, with contrasting color in high tones to brighten them. Among these are henna, flame, orange, lighter blues, and rich red tones. It is evident that the white or flesh-colored blouse must give place to colored ones. Materials are georgette and other crepes, satin and loose sleeves are edged with a little border of the embroidery silk and wooden beads, and this decoration is repeated on the edge of the scallop at the front of the blouse.

A straight-line blouse of crepe de chine, shown at the right, has a square neck and straight sleeves that reach to the waist. Three wide tucks are introduced in the girldie at the front, and are important. A very simple but novel decoration appears at each side in the odd pattern done with embroidery silk. The sleeves have turn-back cuffs. This blouse would look well developed in satin or the heavier crepes, and is one of the best of the tailored models.

Costume blouses, which are extended into long panels at the front and back have, usually, loose-hanging metallic or composition girldies, making it easy to manage a low waistline for them. These are also made to be warm as an entire dress, the panels extending to the bottom of the skirt, which can be either a petticoat of the same shade or a slip.

Mary and her cousin Susan were placed in a room by themselves to play with their dolls and picture books. For half an hour all went well, then there was a sound of lamentation. Mary's mother opened the door to learn what the trouble was and found Susan seated on the floor loudly proclaiming her grief to the ceiling while Mary, leaning on her elbows, chin resting on her hands, was gazing nonchalantly into the back yard.

"Now, what's the matter?" mother asked.

"Well," answered Mary, turning her face toward her mother, "both of us wanted to look out at the day, and both of us couldn't."

Who cannot recall the coffee-pot Mother put on the stove early in the morning, warning us not to let it boil over?

As children, we were not permitted to drink tea or coffee, because it would stunt our growth or make us nervous and irritable. When older, however, we craved a hot drink with meals, and custom gave us our tea or coffee.

Finally upon the instructions of the doctor, Mother gave up her tea and coffee. But that meant nothing in our young lives. Our vitality was then strong enough to throw off any ill effects.

But our time came, and we learned by experience that we could not drink tea or coffee. When we had it for breakfast it put our nerves on edge. When we drank it at the evening meal, we tossed about in wakefulness most of the night.

And then we found Postum, a pure cereal beverage, free from the harmful drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee. We liked the rich, satisfying flavor of Postum—and also the better health which resulted. And, too, we were surprised to find how many of our neighbors had made the same discovery—had learned the value of "health first."

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

MY LASSIE!

Synopsis.—Jane Harding, respectable and conservative old maid— but never too old to think of marriage— with more money than minded spinster, Miss Huxtable, Brown, into financing an expedition to hunt for buried treasure on Leeward Island. Her niece, Virginia Harding, undertaking to stop her, gets on the vessel and is unwillingly carried along. By no means concealing her distaste for the expedition and her contempt for its members, Virginia makes the acquaintance of the Honorable Cuthbert Vane. Talking with Dugald Shaw, leader of the expedition, Virginia very frankly expresses her views, practically accusing Shaw and the other members of the party, including a somewhat uncertain personage, Captain Magnus, and a shady "moneyer," Hamilton H. Tubbs, of being in a conspiracy to defraud Jane Harding. Landing on the island is a matter of some difficulty. Virginia being carried ashore in the arms of Cuthbert Vane. The party gets settled. Miss Brown tells about the treasure. Virginia declares herself out of it. The dead sailor's map is produced. Virginia finds a mysterious dog, Crusoe. Virginia visits the wreck of the Island Queen. The dog saves Virginia from advances by Captain Magnus.

CHAPTER VIII.

Two or three days later occurred a painful episode. The small unsuspected germ of it had lain ambushed in a discourse of Mr. Shaw's, delivered shortly after our arrival on the island, on the multifarious uses of the coconuts. He told how the juice from the unexpanded flower-spathe is drawn off to form a potent toddy, so that where every prospect pleases man may still be vile. Cookie, experimentally disposed, set to work. Mr. Vane, also experimentally, sampled the results of Cookie's efforts. The liquor had merely been allowed to ferment, whereas a complicated process is necessary for the manufacture of the true arrack, but enough had been achieved to bring about dire consequences for Cuthbert Vane, who had found the liquid cool and refreshing, and was skeptical about its potency.

was the opportunity of all others to explore it, unhampered by any one, just Crusoe and I alone, in the fashion that left me freest to indulge my dreams.

I waited until the Scotchman's back was safely turned, because if he saw me setting forth on this excursion he was quite certain to command me to return, and I had no intention of submitting to his dictatorial ways and yet was not quite sure how I was successfully to defy him.

The retreating tide had left deep pools behind, each a little cosmos of fairly seaweeds and tiny scuttling crabs and rich and wonderful forms of life which were strange to me. Crusoe and I were very much interested, and lingered a good deal on the way. But at last we reached the great archway, and passed with a suddenness which was like a plunge into cool water from the hot glare of the tropic sunshine into the green shadow of the cavern.

At the lower end, between two arches, a black, water-worn rock paving rang under one's feet. Further in under the point the floor of the cave was covered with white sand. All the great shadowy place was murmuring like a vast sea-shell.

I wished I could visit the place in darkness. It would be thrice as mysterious, filled with its hollow whispering echoes, as in the day. From the ledge far above my head led off those narrow, teasing crevices in which the three explorers did their unwarded burrowing. I could see the strands of a rope ladder lying coiled at the edge of the shelf, where it was secured by spikes. The men dragged down the ladder with a boat-hook when they wanted to ascend. I looked about with a hope that perhaps they had left the boat-hook somewhere.

I found no boat-hook, but instead a spade, which had been driven deep into the sand and left, too firmly imbedded for the tide to bear away. At once a burning hope that I, alone and unassisted, might bring to light the treasure of the Bonny Lass seethed in my veins. I jerked the spade loose and fell to.

I now discovered the great truth that digging for treasure is the most thrilling and absorbing occupation known to man. Time ceased to be, and the weight of the damp and close-packed sand seemed that of feathers. This temporary state of exaltation passed, to be sure, and the sand got very heavy, and my back ached, but still I dug. Crusoe began to fuss about and bark. He came and tugged at my skirt, uttering an uneasy whine.

"Be quiet, Crusoe!" I commanded, threatening him with my spade. The madness of the treasure-lust possessed me. I was panting now, and my hands began to feel like baseball mitts, but still I dug. Crusoe had ceased to importune me; vaguely I was aware that he had got tired and run off. I toiled on, pausing now and then for breath. I was leaning on my spade, rather dejectedly considering the modest excavation I had achieved, when I felt a little cool splash at my feet. Dropping my spade I whirled around—and a shriek echoed through the cave as I saw pouring into it the dark insidious torrent of the returning tide.

How had I forgotten it, that deadly thing, muttering to itself out there, ready to spring back like an unleashed beast? Crusoe had warned me—and then he had forsaken me, and I was alone.

And yet, at first, wild as my terror was, I had no thought but that somehow I could escape. That these waters were for me the very face of death, sure and relentless, terrible and slow, did not at once seize hold upon my heart.

Frantically I sprang for the entrance on the cove. The floor of the cave was sloping and the water deepened swiftly as I advanced. Soon I was floundering to my knees, and on the instant a great wave rushed in, drenching me to the waist, dazing me with its spray and uproar, and driving me back to the far end of the cave.

With a dreadful hollow sucking sound the surge retreated. I staggered toward the archway that was my only door to life. The water was deeper now, and swiftly came another fierce rush of the sea that drove me back.

I fled to the far end of the cave, but the sea pursued me. Swiftly the water climbed—it flung me against the wall, then dragged me back. I clutched at the naked rock with bleeding fingers.

Again, after a paroxysm during which I had seemed to stand a great way off and listen to my own shrieks, there came to me a moment of calm. I knew that my one tenuous thread of hope lay in launching myself into that wild flood that was tearing through the cove. I was not a strong swimmer, but a buoyant one. I might find refuge on some half-submerged rock on the shores of the cove—at least I should perish in the open. In the sunlight, not trapped like a desperate rat. And I began to fight my way toward the opening.

And then a dreadful vision flashed across my mind, lighted down my feet like lead, choked back even the cry from my frozen lips. Sharks! The black cutting fin, the livid belly, the dreadful jaws opening—no, no, better to die here, better the clean embrace of the waters—if indeed the sharks did not come into the cave.

And then I think I went quite mad. I remember trying to climb up to the ledge which hung beetling fifteen feet above. Afterward my poor hands showed how desperately. And I remember that once I slipped and went clear under, and how I choked and struggled in the salt water. For my mouth was always open, screaming, screaming continually.

And when I saw the boat fighting its way inch by inch into the cave I was sure that it was a vision, and that only my own wild beseeching of him to save me had made the face of Dugald Shaw arise before my dying eyes. Dugald Shaw was still mending the boat on the shore of the cove, and this was a mocking phantom.

Only the warm human clasp of the arms that drew me into the boat made me believe in him. The boat bobbed quietly in the eddy at the far end of the cave, while a wet, sobbing, choking heap clung to Dugald Shaw. I clasped him about the neck and would not let him go, for fear that I should find myself alone again, perishing in the dark water. My head was on his breast, and he was pressing back my wet hair with strong and tender hands.

What was this he was saying? "My lassie, my little lassie!"

And no less incredible than this it was to feel his cheek pressed, very gently, against my hair—

After a little my self-control came back to me. I stopped my senseless childish crying, lifted my head and tried to speak. I could only whisper, "You came, you came!"

"Of course I came!" he said huskily. "There, don't tremble so—you are safe—safe in my arms!"

After a while he lifted me into the stern and began to maneuver the boat out of the cave. I suppose at another time I should have realized the peril of it. The fierce flow through the archway all but swamped us, the current threatened to hurl us against the rocks, but I felt no fear. He had come to save me, and he would. All at once the dreadful shadow of the cavern was left behind, and the sunshine immersed my chilled body like a draught of wine. I lay huddled in the stern, my cheek upon my hand, as he rowed swiftly across the cove and drove the boat upon the beach.

Everybody but Captain Magnus was assembled there, including Crusoe. Crusoe it was who had given warning of my danger. Like a wise little dog when I ignored his admonitions he had run home. At first his uneasiness and troubled barking had got no notice. Once or twice the Scotchman, worried by his fretfulness, had ordered him away. Then across his preoccupied mind there flashed a doubt. He laid down his tools and spoke to the animal. Instantly Crusoe dashed for the rocks, barking and crying with eagerness.

Then Mr. Shaw understood. He snatched the painter of the boat and dragged it down the beach. He was shouting off as Cookie, roused by Crusoe's barking, appeared from the seclusion of his afternoon siesta. To him were borne the Scotchman's parting words:

"Virginia Harding—in the cave—hot blankets—may be drowning—"

"And at that," said Cookie, relating his part in the near tragedy with unction, "I jes' natchally plumped right down on mah bones and wrestled with de Lawd in prayah."

June-Elizabeth's Boss

By LILLIACE MITCHELL.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

June-Elizabeth stuffed the olive bottle into the top of the box and pushed the refractory cover down tightly. She wound the string around and around as she watched the clock. Then she snatched her gloves and ran for the car.

She laughed softly to herself as she ran. "You are a great goose, June-Elizabeth, to spend 10 cents carfare and 24 cents for lunch when your dinner is paid for at the boarding house."

"I know it," answered the June-Elizabeth part of her, "but it feels so good to be out in the air and to eat thin sandwiches that are evenly buttered."

Her feet tapped the floor of the car impatiently as it wended its slow way toward the park, stopping at each block to gather more people. She, as soon as her piece was reached, left the car and strolled to a lonesome spot near the lake far from the other picnickers, who had wrapped up pickles, oranges and bananas and soggy cakes in old table napkins—the whole in huge baskets to be lugged about by the men of the parties until the women had selected a suitable spot to eat.

She found the spot to which she always went and settled down, quietly gazing far out across the lake, drinking in the fresh breeze with deep breaths. She was aware of some presence.

She glanced around quickly but saw no one except a slender young man who had a small package. He had already wandered on up the beach. He settled in a spot far enough away so that his features were indistinguishable to her. Without actually watching him June-Elizabeth knew that he, too, was gazing far out across the lake.

June-Elizabeth, like all women, had that extra sense which allows of a peep now and then under the eyelashes which makes one cognizant of all that goes on. She appeared to be gazing at the lake, but she knew the instant that the slender young man glanced at her and she knew to the second how long it was before he turned away.

She laughed gently. She knew when it was half-past 11, for at that moment all the women picnickers at the far end of the beach leaped to their feet and scurried around preparing their lunch. She knew exactly when it was 12 o'clock, for then every one sat down, and with hungry gestures began to eat.

June-Elizabeth, however, was not so bound by clocks that she felt hungry exactly at 12 o'clock, and so she sat dreaming such dreams as all girls dream in the summer day.

The young man, too, did not seem anxious to go for his meal, but sat also looking far across the lake. He watched a white cloud as it appeared in the west, nearer it came and nearer, with other little clouds following in its wake until when directly overhead it turned gray and began to let fall large raindrops. Then there were little shrieks of dismay from the picnickers and the sputter and thunder of automobiles as they made for the home-wards.

The young man without any apparent haste made his way across the road toward a clump of large trees. He saw June-Elizabeth doing the same thing and frowned slightly. June-Elizabeth when she saw him tossed her head and looked as snippy as a pretty girl can.

"They both made for the same tree and then stood glaring at each other. It was June-Elizabeth who saw the humor of it all and then she laughed. But the slender young man did not join her. He stood, on the contrary, with his hands thrust deep into his pockets and scowled at her. June-Elizabeth was surprised, but turning her neck upon him went around to the other side of the tree.

"nanny burst out, 'than to stand under a tree when its lightning?' June-Elizabeth made a face: 'What about you?' she said quickly. 'Oh—me—it doesn't matter about me. No one cares anything about me. And, besides,' he went on quickly, as though afraid she would pity him. 'And, besides, it's my tree.'

"Your tree?" she repeated. "If it comes to that I'll just tell you that it's my tree."

He laughed shortly. "Oh, well, we needn't quarrel about it. It's park property."

"I'm not quarreling about it, and I don't care if it is park property. It's mine as long as I keep my lunch things here."

"Where?" he demanded. "Here," she said, and he looked into the hollow of the tree and saw a little rubber bag which when opened out, held luncheon things for one.

"Wish I'd thought of that," he said. "Mine'll be all wet."

"Your what?" she said puzzled. "My lunch things," he answered.

Then he, followed by June-Elizabeth, made his way around to the opposite side of the tree, and there in another hollow she saw a paper cracker box with lunch things for one.

"Oh," she said, "the knife's starting to get rusty," and from her little rubber bag she took a tiny blue-striped towel and wiped it dry.

"Madam," he demurred, "my silver—" and they both laughed.

"You make a beautiful house-keeper," he said apropos of nothing.

She flushed without glancing at him. "I—I must be going," she said. "Going? Why, now that we're both here why can't we eat together?"

"Because," she answered primly, "I don't know you."

"You don't know me?" he repeated. "Well of all—"

"So incredulous did he seem that June-Elizabeth racked her brain hastily, but she was convinced that she had never seen him.

"You sit just three typewriter desks ahead of me at the Scribbling Wire Company five and one-half days out of the week. You have been sitting there eleven and one-half days now, coming as you did at noon one day, and if you don't believe me why just make me eat alone today and then look tomorrow and you'll see," he complained in a whining tone.

She immediately sat down on the ground under the tree.

"Get up," he commanded.

She jumped up before she was aware that she was going to, so sharp was his tone. Then she blushed. "You seem to be kind of bossing things around my tree, don't you?" she said pointedly.

"You evidently need some one to boss you," he answered haughtily. "Any one who has no better sense than to sit on damp ground!" and he fairly snorted as he looked at her.

"You just invited me to eat lunch with you," she said, "and you proved that we knew each other—at least that you knew me—and you didn't think I was going to eat standing up, did you?"

He looked at her strangely. "Today," he said, "we'll eat a regular dinner at the Gerald building to celebrate—"

"To celebrate what?" she said. "You know," he answered, "but I'll put it in words if you wish me to."

She blushed until her little pink ears tingled. "Never mind," she put in. "Yes," he said, "I will, too—to celebrate the day I began bossing you and the day you began obeying me."

"And the day I stop," she said hurriedly with a little laugh, but keeping her eyes down—

"We'll talk of that," he said, "at a later time."

SCIENCE WARS ON CRIMINALS

Modern Methods of Detecting Wrongdoing Have Almost Attained a Stage of Perfection.

So many and so wonderful are the methods of detecting crime that it is now almost impossible for a fugitive from justice to escape.

This fact is largely due to the invaluable help provided by science; the greatest inventive brains of the world have concentrated on the problem for many years. The methods employed by the police have now reached a high state of perfection.

Amazingly clever was the method introduced by Bertillon, the great French criminologist, whose scheme of measurements and finger prints has been instrumental in bringing innumerable criminals to book.

Since then science has gone many steps farther, for in a recent case it was shown that a single hair is sufficient clue to the tracking down of a wanted man.

Some years ago such a tiny clue would have been of very little use. Then there was little to learn from it other than the color of the man's hair. Today the investigator finds it a most important factor, providing numerous details as to the identity of the criminal.

CALOMEL GOOD BUT NEXT DOSE MAY SALIVATE

It is Mercury, Quicksilver, Shocks Liver and Attacks Your Bones.

Calomel salivation is horrible. It swells the tongue, loosens the teeth and starts rheumatism. There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel. It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can't salivate.

Calomel is a dangerous drug; besides, it may make you feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than treacherous calomel your money is waiting for you.—Advertisement.

SHERIFF'S SALE

STATE OF TEXAS,
County of Donley.

By virtue of an Order of Sale issued out of the Honorable District Court of Donley County, on the 8th day of November, 1921, by the Clerk thereof, in the case of W. H. Kimbrough, M. J. R. Jackson and R. E. Underwood vs. Mary Waller Rea and B. M. Rea, husband and wife, John A. Rea, Henry Holmes, T. M. Dickey, Mrs. P. L. Luce and husband, R. G. Luce, A. F. Luce, F. R. Carl and Charles Melter, No. 1106, and to me, as Sheriff, directed and delivered, I will proceed to sell, within the hours prescribed by law for Sheriff's Sales, on the first Tuesday in December, A. D. 1921, it being the 6th day of said month, before the Court House door of said Donley County, in the town of Clarendon, the following described property, to wit:

First Tract: Lots Numbers One (1), Two (2), Three (3), Four (4), Five (5) and Six (6), in Block Nineteen (19); and Second Tract: Lot Number Seven (7), in Block No. Eighteen (18),—both of said above described tracts of land lying and being situate in the original town of Shamrock, in Wheeler County, Texas.

Third Tract: Lots Numbers Five (5), Six (6), Seven (7), and Eight (8), in Block No. One (1), in Grant's Addition to the original town of Clarendon, in Donley County, Texas.

Levied on as the property of Mary Waller Rea and B. M. Rea, to satisfy a judgment amounting to $1,791.75 in favor of W. H. Kimbrough, M. J. R. Jackson and R. E. Underwood, and cost of suit.

Given under my hand, this 8th day of November, 1921.

J. H. Rutherford, Sheriff
Donley County, Texas.

CITATION BY PUBLICATION

THE STATE OF TEXAS.

To the Sheriff or Any Constable of Donley County—Greeting:

You are hereby commanded to summon Ulyses Jefferson, by making publication of this Citation once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day hereof, in some newspaper published in your County, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the 47th Judicial District; to appear at the next regular term of the District Court of Donley County, Texas, to be held at the Court House thereof, in Clarendon, on the 2nd Monday in January, A. D. 1922, the same being the 9th day of January, A. D. 1922, then and there to answer a petition filed in said Court on the 12th day of November, A. D. 1921, in a suit numbered on the docket of said Court, No. 1177, wherein Mary Jefferson is plaintiff and Ulyses Jefferson is defendant; the nature of plaintiff's demand being as follows:

Suit for divorce, plaintiff alleging that she and defendant were duly and legally married in Amarillo, Potter county, Texas, on July 16th, 1920; that they continued to live together as husband and wife until the month of March, 1921, when defendant deserted and abandoned plaintiff; that plaintiff fully and faithfully discharged all her marital obligation towards the defendant, but that the defendant was generally shiftless and lazy and failed and refused to support plaintiff; that plaintiff was forced to and did seek and find employment and with the money she earned support herself and also supported the defendant, buying for him both food and clothing; that defendant spent his time in drinking, gambling and associating with women of loose character and reputation; that defendant was guilty of adultery and indecent conduct with divers and sundry other colored women; that defendant would, without cause or provocation, become insanely enraged at plaintiff, and beat and strike her in the face with his hand and fist, blacking her eyes and bruising and wounding her flesh and inflicting great physical pain and mental anguish; that such conduct continued through all the time they lived together as husband and wife; that on one occasion, while plaintiff and defendant were living in Amarillo, Texas, and plaintiff was working for Mrs. W. T. Coble, defendant fiercely shook plaintiff and beat her in the face with his hand and fist; that on another occasion while they were living at 1700 Polk street, Amarillo, Texas, at the residence of one Mrs. Thomas, defendant drew and levelled a loaded pistol at plaintiff and threatened to take her life, and was prevented from doing so by plaintiff knocking the pistol from the hands of the defendant; that in the struggle that followed plaintiff knocking the pistol from the hands of defendant, defendant several times struck the plaintiff in the face with his hands and fist, inflicting great physical injury and mental anguish upon her; that there are no property rights to be settled, and that there were no children born of said marriage.

Plaintiff prays for an absolute decree of divorce from the defendant; for the restoration of her maiden name "Mary Thompson;" for costs of suit herein.

Herein fail not, but have you before said Court, on the first day of the next term thereof this Writ, with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Witness my hand and official seal at my office in Clarendon, Texas, this 12th day of November, A. D. 1921.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. Walker

"ALL IS WELL."

IN A clause in the will of Prof. George Trumbull Ladd, late of Yale university, a provision was made that his body should be cremated and that a portion of the ashes should be buried beside a camphor tree which he had planted in 1907 in the yard of the School of Commerce in Nagasaki, Japan.

Professor Ladd was an authority on Oriental matters and had lectured in universities in Japan and India. "I have lived and loved and labored, and all is well," was the impressive epitaph he chose to mark his grave. Are you living and loving and laboring so that at the end of your journey, you can say, "all is well?"

What a volume of meaning there is in those three monosyllables and the splendid words preceding them! To live and love and labor, and to do nothing more would in a little while turn arid wastes to blooming gardens, and lift from the world its burden of care, its burning hates and frightful wars. Terrible Mars with his bleary eyes would be vanquished.

And so would the thorny road you are traveling, while carrying in the pack on your back old animosities and jealousies that retard your progress at every step.

We have each of us some whimsey in the brain that keeps us from loving and laboring as we should. We have within us pent-up torrents of factious words which in sudden vents of anger we pour out and flood the smooth road ahead until it becomes impassable.

We wound the hearts of our dear ones, and sometimes the hurt remains through life. We seemingly cannot agree on anything except hostility.

In sudden bursts of passion, to live and love and labor, that all may be well is remote from our thoughts. Some of us, in moments of reflection, tion, subdued perhaps by an odd mixture of shame and self-reproach see the error of our way, and hold ourselves in check, though the bridle chafes and the bits blister.

And so should we all, for to live and love and labor ought to be our chief purpose in life, for it will take us through safely and enable us at the end to write with a glad heart and a steady hand, "all is well!"

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

STYLE.

I AM not right in style
And yet I do not care,
Though people often smile
At things I have and wear,
For I remember folks
Who once were quite correct
Who'd be the village jokes
At present, I expect.

It wasn't long ago
To win the world's regard
You always had to show
An iron dog in the yard.
Each family must possess
A scraper on the stoop,
No house was right unless
It had a Rogers group.

The whatnot now is gone,
Along with Rogers art;
The dogs upon the lawn
With iron legs depart;
And, in this later day,
New styles in style appear,
To be themselves passe
Perhaps within a year.

Who chases after style
Will go a merry pace,
Will spend a pretty pile
To keep his proper place.
And then some wintry night
The folks will yell at you,
"This furniture's a fright—
We must get something new!"

THE GIRL ON THE JOB

How to Succeed—How to Get Ahead—How to Make Good

By JESSIE ROBERTS

FOCUS YOUR ENERGIES

"I WANTED to be a singer," said a successful illustrator to the writer. "I had a pretty fair voice. With cultivation it could have been made better. But I know if I spent the time necessary for its cultivation, I wouldn't have time to learn to draw. And I had more ability at picture making than at singing."

"I didn't quit singing cold. I still sing a little. But I dropped it as a business. One business is all any man can attend to if he wants to get along."

Today this man is one of the highest paid illustrators in the country. He might have been a fair singer and a fair singer, or a good singer and a bad singer. But he chose the career for which he had the greater talent, and stuck to it.

The late Charles E. Van Loan in youth developed considerable talent for drawing. When he was fourteen or fifteen his teachers predicted that he would some day be a great artist.

But he discovered that he could write better than he could draw, and thereafter he drew only to amuse his friends and his children.

All his energies were bent toward learning to write, and learn to write he did. Many men are born with a little talent for several different activities. And many such ruin their lives by scattering their energies instead of concentrating them on the one thing they can do best.

Time allotted to man is insufficient for the mastery of even a single art or profession. Few men, however great, ever die with the feeling that they have reached anything like the standards they set for themselves.

There is always something still to learn when the summons comes to lay labor aside forever. The surest way to win the measure of success that your abilities can command is to select the profession or the trade or the business you most enjoy following, and keep at that to the exclusion of every thing else save needful recreation.

It is a poor set of brains that cannot learn to do one thing particularly well. It is a miraculous brain that can learn to do two things even fairly well.

If a man finds himself with bread in both hands, he should exchange one loaf for some flowers of the narcissus, since the loaf feeds the body indeed, but the flowers feed the soul.—Mamet.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

A RICH rice pudding for an occasion will be found most acceptable. Take a half-cupful of washed rice, drain after soaking overnight in slightly salted water. Add one cupful of milk and cook, closely covered, in a moderate oven. Add to one pint of cream the yolks of four eggs well beaten, with one-half cupful of sugar and stir in the cooked rice. Let bake, still covered, until the custard is set, then make a meringue with the whites of the eggs and pile on top. Brown lightly.

Roast Venison, Virginia Style. Let the haunch of venison hang for a week in a cold place. The day before it is to be used wash in warm vinegar and water, and then rub with butter to soften the skin. Cover the top and sides with well-greased paper and over this put a half-inch layer of greased paper. The next day put into the roasting pan and cover closely with another pan. Allow three hours for roasting a 12-pound roast. Add one pint of water from time to time. At the end of an hour, baste well. Half an hour before serving, remove the papers and baste thoroughly with a cupful of cider and a spoonful of melted butter. Dredge with flour, return to the oven. Repeat the basting four times. The oven should be hot enough to brown the meat well. To prepare the gravy, remove the meat, add a tablespoonful of flour and stir until well browned; add a glass of cider, salt and pepper to taste. Stir well; add one-half a glass of currant jelly, and when it is melted strain the gravy into a gravy boat.

Nuttid Cream. Soak one-quarter of a box of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water until softened. Whip until stiff three cupfuls of heavy cream in a bowl standing in ice water. Add one-third of a cupful of chopped nuts, three-quarters of a cupful of powdered sugar and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Add to the softened gelatin, one-fourth of a cupful of hot water and dissolve over hot water. Pour the dissolved gelatin over the cream and stir the whole until well mixed. When the mixture begins to thicken, pour into a mold and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

SNIPES-WOOD

News of a surprise wedding came to us Wednesday with the information that Miss Zela Wood of this city and Mr. Allen Snipes of Canyon had been united in marriage. The glad event occurred in Clarendon Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock, Rev. Sam J. White, pastor of the First Christian Church of that city, officiating.

The bride is a member of one of Hedley's most prominent families, being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Wood. She grew to young womanhood here, is charming and intelligent, and a prime favorite among all our people.

The groom is a stranger to the informer man, but we are told that he is a successful young business man, of flawless character, and in all respects worthy.

The happy couple will make their home in Canyon. Our hearty congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy life are herewith extended.

THOMPSON BROS.

HERBERT COLFAX REAST

The following is clipped from the Whitesboro News Record, concerning H. C. Reast, whose death was briefly noted in this paper last week. He was a son-in-law of Mrs. E. G. Dishman, and visited here last summer. We are indebted to J. R. Boston for the articles herewith reproduced and mentioned.

Mr. Herbert Colfax Reast passed away Monday, after a prolonged illness of about two months. Mr. Reast was connected with the First National Bank as assistant cashier when taken ill. He served many years as assistant postmaster. He had been serving as city alderman for about fifteen years, as secretary and treasurer of the city council about twelve years. He took great pride in keeping the city's affairs in good condition, and so great was the confidence in him that the last three Mayors have refused to run for office unless he continued in office as treasurer. His record as alderman speaks for itself.

All business houses closed for the funeral. Active pallbearers were W. W. Marshall, L. A. Crabtree, M. V. Scheid, J. S. Cravens, Calvin Jearce, J. W. Hayes. Honorary pallbearers: Geo. Wade, Frank Parks, L. R. Sloan, A. P. Caywood, Brick Barnett, H. T. Cowell, Jim Buchanan, J. H. Feild, H. M. Carson, C. D. Anderson, F. G. Jamison, R. J. Kennedy, W. F. Hartsog, J. W. McMahon, F. A. Bass, E. L. Mills, J. A. Godwin, C. L. Simpson. Interment took place in Whitesboro Cemetery, where he was laid to rest under a mound of flowers.

He leaves a wife and two children, Miss Winifred and Worth Reast; two sisters, Mesdames W. T. McNeal, Bellevue, W. D. L. McJunkins, Whitesboro; three brothers, Jim and Frank Reast, Whitesboro, and Thorn Reast of Okmulgee, Okla.

Those attending the funeral service from out of town were Mrs. E. G. Dishman and Gene Dishman, mother and brother of Mrs. Reast, from Hedley, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. McNeil and son of Bellevue, A. J. McNeil of Seymour, Mrs. E. T. Judd of Denison, Mrs. Sallie Judd of Pottsboro, Walker Martin, brother of Mrs. Reast, of Omaha, Neb.

There were also Resolutions of Respect signed by all the City Officials of Whitesboro, and a lengthy and beautiful tribute by A. B. Ingram, a prominent citizen. We would like to reprint both of these, if time and space permitted. They show beyond a doubt that Mr. Reast was much loved as a man, and highly appreciated as a citizen of the highest type.

The Informer extends its sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.
