SOME FACTS ABOUT A WATERWORKS SYSTEM

A good waterworks system is the town's most fundamental utility. It is the first and most necessary step in the development of a town; it is what makes it a town and not simply a rural community.

No town has ever regretted installing a good, adequate and efficient water works system. The question is not "can we afford it?" A community that has grown to 500 persons cannot afford to continue without a waterworks system, many smaller towns have excellent water systems. Without a waterworks a town faces the danger of fire and pestilence. If it has an inadequate or defective waterworks system, it is worse off, because the danger is concealed.

The value of property, vacant and improved, in a town, is ordinarily increased by a good waterworks system, to an amount about equal to the cost of the system! Land immediately becomes suitable for factory sites which previously would not have been considered by any manufacturer, for fire protection and running water are absolute essentials in industry. The influx of new industry is an important factor in a town's growth.

The cost of running water to each inhabitant will ordinarily be less than five cents a day. And the advantages of running water are immeasurable. No wonder that the famous Indian chief, Sitting Bull, when asked what he considered the white man's most wonderful achievement, pointed to a faucet and said "Running water." To say nothing of the benefits of running water for drinking, for cooking, dish washing, clothes washing and bathing, modern sanitation and sewage disposal are impossible without running water. Running water means health protection—something of even more importance than fire protection, for typhoid causes more deaths than fire.

The establishment of a good waterworks system is the first step in civic progress. With a waterworks system a town's natural advantages become assets; without it they are useless and unprofitable.

YOUR DAUGHTER'S HEALTH

Mothers of Ailing Daughters, Attention

How Two Mothers Helped Their Daughters by Giving them Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for the girl's future is largely in her hands.

When a school girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite and is irregular, her mother should have a care for her physical condition and give her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has proved a reliable aid to nature for just such conditions in so many cases.

First Bottle Helped Her

Richmond, Indiana.—"I am sending this letter to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did my daughter. She was troubled with nervousness so that she was restless at night, and then she could not sleep and she was afraid of everything. She could not work as she was not strong enough, and she had to quit school at 14 because she was ill so much. The doctor said she had a nervous breakdown and her system was all run down. She had pains in her right side and through her back, and the medicine she took did her no good at all. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's advertisement in our paper, telling all that the Vegetable Compound had done for other women, so I said, 'We will try it out and see what it does.' She had not taken the first bottle before it began to help her, and we will always say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine she ever took."—Mrs. E. DABBY, 911 N. 16th Street, Richmond, Indiana.

An Ohio Mother Reports

Columbus, Ohio.—"When my daughter became 14 years of age she was ailing very much. The doctor gave her medicine, but she was very weak, and he always had to write excuses for her as she could not attend the 'gym' classes, and I often had to keep her home from school. I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my nerves and run-down condition, so I gave her three doses daily, and also Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. Our friends are surprised to see how fine and tall she is getting and how well she is. I will gladly answer letters and give you a fine recommendation for other mothers."—Mrs. MARIE MIELKE, 814 E. 1st Street, Columbus, Ohio.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes." That means that 98 out of every 100 women who have taken this medicine have been helped by it. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Married and Jailed

It took less than half an hour for Louis Calderon and Juana Perez to get married and go to jail at King City, Cal. They were up on petty larceny charges before Police Judge Mandl. "Can't you stop the trial and marry us?" pleaded Louis, producing a wedding license. Judge Mandl did. Then he found them guilty and sent them on a 20-day honeymoon to the jailhouse.

Brought up on a Farm

As a young man Dr. Pierce practiced medicine in a rural district and was known far and wide for his great success in alleviating disease. He early moved to Buffalo and put up in ready-to-use form, his Golden Medical Discovery, the well-known tonic for the blood, which is an extract of native roots. This "Discovery" of Dr. Pierce's clears away pimples and annoying eruptions, tends to keep the complexion fresh and clear. It corrects the disordered conditions in a sick stomach, aids digestion, acts as a tonic and enriches the blood. Vim is sure to follow its use. All dealers. Tablets or liquid.

SUFFERED MANY YEARS WITH FEMALE TROUBLE PE-RU-NA LIKE A GIFT FROM HEAVEN

Mrs. Katie Scheffel, R. F. D. No. 5, Lowell, Ohio

"I have been suffering for years with female trouble. Was operated on five years ago. It relieved me some but I did not regain my strength. Two years later was taken sick and bedfast several months. I treated a long while without much relief. I was discouraged, my mind affected, so nervous I could neither eat or sleep and unable to do anything. We tried several doctors but one after another gave up my case as hopeless. Finally a good friend advised me to try Pe-ru-na. I did. It relieved me almost immediately. Your medical department said I was suffering from chronic catarrh of the system. I began taking your medicine in March, 1914, and continued until August. I took ten bottles of Pe-ru-na and three bottles of Man-a-lin and felt like a new person. Your medicine seemed like a gift from Heaven. It was like coming from darkness into light.

We have used your medicine since for coughs, colds and grip with good results. We will always keep it on hand. I weigh twenty-five pounds more than I ever did, eat and sleep well and can do a good day's work. Everybody says I look fine. Even the doctors are surprised. I cannot thank you enough and will always recommend Pe-ru-na to sufferers from catarrh."

MRS. KATIE SCHEFFEL, R. F. D. No. 5, Lowell, O.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

There has been instituted by all the denominations a "Go to Church Sunday" campaign. And why not? For if there is any one thing Protestant America is committing its greatest sin about, it is with relation to the Sabbath and the Church. There was a time in our history when the Sabbath was sacred and religious services were the center of attraction. But that day is past. As a people we are busy about many other cares, or have made the day a day of recreation and sport. And we are poorer morally, and the spiritual fountains of the soul have dried up. The world is wretched, dissatisfied, and dangerous. Men have lost their sense of reverence and love for things sacred, and religious responsibilities have been thrown off and discarded as a worn out vesture. They are not whole ready for the church to go out of business. They still desire ministers to marry their living, and to say some nice words over their dead bodies when they come to their last. Many of them care enough for the church to put a few dollars into its annual support. But as for entering into a mighty program of religious and Sabbath activity, they are not there. But there are those in every community who derive direct benefit from the church who scarcely ever darken its doors and never give a dime to its support. In fact, they are unrelenting hikers and critics of the church and its membership and affairs. There are men in every community who have influence with a lot of people who, because of their anti church and Sabbath spirit, are doing more to hinder the progress of the church than an avowed infidel. They will not go in themselves nor will they let others in.

There are church members who, by their habitual absentee attitude, are being cheated out of the spiritual uplift derivable from the worshipful program of the church. And they are as a millstone about the neck of the church. An empty church, that might be filled were it not for a lot of backsliding Sabbath desecrating members, will take the preach out of any ordinary human preacher, and will destroy the great purpose for which the church was created. When the church is forced to play a second fiddle to business and pleasure her banners will trail in the dust, her influence will be as the fading beauty of a plucked flower, and her words of warning and appeal will be a stench in the nostrils of a Godless world. What the American people need is a new and vital sense of our relation and responsibility to God. For we must all answer to Him ultimately for our lives. And this will very forcibly embrace our attitude towards His Church.

Here in Hedley are several churches. It seems to me that most people could find in some one of them a condition which would be congenial to them—a place where they could worship God and render to Him the just deserts of His Kingdom. It may not be the actual church you attended in your childhood, when as little ones you marched along the streets in your "Sunday best" on your way to the "Little brown church in the dale," holding a dear hand that is no longer quick to guide. The program of the church may have changed some from those days of yore. But God has not. He is still meeting the saints within the holy sanctuary of His church. The Gospel is still being dispensed in purity and simplicity. It is still the same church. It is your church. You need it and it needs you. You can not afford to die without its saving hope in your heart. You cannot afford to let it die because of your neglect. Why not go to church Sunday. Place yourself in contact with the mighty spiritual movement which has held this old world intact for 2000 years; feel for yourself the mighty impulsion of spirit which still sweeps the souls of saved men. Then, and not till then, have you any right to judge or criticize any of the work of the church. Go to Church!

VARIOUS USES FOR WIRE FRYING BASKET

Wire Basket for Deep Fat Frying.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If one happens to possess a wire frying basket, which of course is kept scrupulously clean, there are many daily uses for it besides the occasional deep-fat frying for which it was bought.

After washing fruit, celery or lettuce the wire basket will be found a more effective drainer than a colander. It can be set directly on the ice to keep the product crisp, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Scalding Tomatoes. All the tomatoes for a salad may be scalded before peeling by lowering them quickly into boiling water for a few seconds. Some peel peaches in the same way. Beets may be readily peeled if after cooking they are plunged into cold water merely long enough to loosen the skin but not chill the hot vegetable.

In boiling eggs for the family breakfast, fast, place the required number in the wire basket and lower into boiling water. When the eggs are done they can easily be removed all at the same time by lifting out the basket. In frying croquettes or potato chips the use of the wire basket to hold the material to be fried saves time and energy.

Frying Doughnuts. For frying doughnuts instead of placing the doughnuts in the basket use the bottom of the basket to force the doughnuts under the surface of the fat as soon as they rise to the top. This use of the basket saves time and fat, for doughnuts fried under the fat absorb less grease and can be fried in a shorter time. The basket can also be used to drain the fat from the doughnuts after frying.

Another use for the wire basket is in grating soft cheese. It is much easier to force the cheese through the meshes of the wire basket than through a grater.

DIFFERENT WAYS TO MEND RUGS AT HOME

Carpet Yarns Are Stiffer Than Ordinary Wools.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Several methods of home mending of rugs and carpets have been tested in the United States Department of Agriculture, which gives the following suggestions:

Select wools for mending to match those of the rug in color and texture. If possible, these may be raveled from scraps of carpet, or bought from carpet dealers, or if necessary heavy knitting yarns may be dyed to match. Carpet yarns are stiffer and more durable than ordinary wools and should be used if obtainable. A stout needle with a large eye will, of course, be needed, and curved scissors are particularly convenient for clipping the threads when mending a rug or carpet with velvety pile.

Darn Ingrain carpet with the over-and-over stitch used in mending stockings, and work in the design on this background.

In pile rugs, such as brussels, wilton, and some kinds of oriental weaves, replace the linen lure or cot-

TOMATO MINCEMEAT IS SOMETHING NEW

Product Left Over at Canning Season Made Useful.

A good use for green tomatoes, left at the end of the canning season, is mock mincemeat, which will be relished in winter pies, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture.

Slice up a quantity of green tomatoes and sprinkle well with salt. Put into a bag and hang up to drip all night. The salt left on the tomatoes need not be washed off. In the morning take equal weights of sugar and tomatoes and cook until the tomatoes are thoroughly done. To 7 pounds of the mixture of tomatoes and sugar add 3 pounds of seedless raisins, with mace and cinnamon to suit the taste. Cook a short time after adding the seasoning and put into jars. This will keep without being sealed and will make delicious pies, which many consider as good as those from ordinary mincemeat.

Another use for green tomatoes is in pickle making, in combination with cabbage, onions and green peppers, which are usually plentiful at the same time in the fall. The recipe below has been found very satisfactory. It may be made without the sugar if preferred.

Green Tomato Pickle.

- 1 gallon green tomatoes 1 tablespoonful whole cloves 1/4 dozen large onions 1 tablespoonful whole allspice 2 cupfuls brown sugar 1 tablespoonful celery seed (crushed) 1/2 lemon 1 tablespoonful mustard seed 3 pods of red pepper 1 tablespoonful 1 tablespoonful whole black ground mustard pepper

Slice the tomatoes and onions thin. Sprinkle over them one-half cupful of salt and let stand over night in a crock or enameled vessel. Tie the pepper, cloves, allspice and celery seed in a cheesecloth bag. Slice the lemon and chop two pepper pods very fine. Drain the tomato and onion well. Add all seasoning except one pepper pod to the vinegar, then add the tomato and onion. Cook for one-half hour, stirring gently at intervals to prevent burning. Remove spice bag to prevent darkening product. Pack in jar and garnish with slender strips of the red pepper. Process for 15 minutes.

Spoon Bread Is Always Acceptable in Morning

There are many ways of making corn bread, using part or all cornmeal. Old-fashioned spoon bread, so-called because of its soft, moist texture, is one of the most popular corn breads. The United States Department of Agriculture has tested this recipe:

- 1 cupful corn-meal 1 teaspoonful salt 1 cupful water 2 cupfuls water 1 tablespoonful shortening 1 egg 1 cupful milk

Place the meal, salt, shortening and water in a double boiler and cook for ten minutes, stirring until smooth and thick. Allow this to cool somewhat, then add the well-beaten eggs, and finally thin down to a batter with the milk. Beat well, pour into a greased pan or baking dish, and bake in a rather hot oven for about 30 minutes.

FARM POULTRY

PRACTICAL HINTS ON MARKETING TURKEYS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Turkey time is a-coming! If you want top prices for your birds, here's a few tips from the United States Department of Agriculture:

Range fattening is more satisfactory than pen fattening, the department says. Begin fattening about three weeks or a month before marketing, and proceed gradually by feeding lightly on corn in the morning and again in the evening, a short time before the turkeys go to roost. Increase the quantity of corn fed gradually until the birds are getting all they will eat. Be careful not to feed new corn too heavily until the turkeys have become accustomed to it, to prevent digestive troubles.

Good-sized, well-matured birds in good condition for fattening can often be marketed to best advantage at Thanksgiving. Small, immature turkeys should be held until Christmas, for further fattening, but if the birds are unthrifty market them at once. Sales outlets to raisers within express shipping distance of good markets are local consumers, local buyers and dealers, more distant buyers or dealers and car-lot shippers, and receivers or commission merchants of live or dressed poultry in large cities. To determine the best available outlet study shipping charges and keep in touch with both local and distant buyers as to price. Distant buyers will mail quotations on request.

Most producers market their turkeys alive. Shipping dressed turkeys to markets is justified only when making local sales or there is an unusually favorable outlet for the dressed product. Shipping coops should be high enough to enable the birds to stand up. A coop 3 feet long, 2 feet wide and 20 inches high will accommodate five or six turkeys. Overcrowding may result in bruising, which detracts from the market value; overcrowding may also cause death and complete loss.

If the birds are on the road only a few hours, do not feed before shipping. If they are on the road a longer time water and feed liberally to prevent shrinkage in weight. Ship in time to place the turkeys on the market a day or two before the holiday. Late arrivals may reach an overstocked market, and arrival after the holiday usually means lower prices.

Killing and dressing birds is simple when properly done. Hang up the turkeys by their legs and, with a single stroke, push the point of a sharp knife up through the roof of the mouth into the brain. When properly done, this operation paralyzes the bird and loosens the feathers so that they come out easily. Then sever the veins in the throat just beyond the skull for bleeding. The turkey should be dry-picked, and plucked clean. Thoroughly cool the carcass after plucking, inasmuch as failure to remove all animal heat promptly will result in early spoilage. Cool either by hanging outdoors, if the temperature is between 30 and 45 degrees, or by immersing in cold running spring water or ice water.

When thoroughly chilled, the carcasses are ready for shipment. A barrel is a convenient shipping container. Place a layer of cracked ice in the bottom of the barrel, then a layer of turkeys, followed alternately by layers of ice and turkeys, and topped off with a layer of ice. Tack burlap over the top of the barrel.

If you are building up a permanent turkey business be sure to retain as many of the finest, largest, quickest-growing young birds needed to rear the next year's flock, and send the rest to market.

Poultry Facts

Continue to cull your flock.

Caponize all late cockerels.

An abundance of shade is a help in keeping the birds thrifty.

Hens cannot produce eggs without raw materials for their making. Feed 'em well, summer as well as winter.

Avoid the thin crow-headed pullets which are rather listless and generally lacking in pep.

Retain the pullets that feather early and have plump meaty bodies. The active singing birds with good marking for their breed are the kind to save.

Provide the goslings with free range, plenty of good shade and green grass to eat. Feed a mash of fine ground grains. Also be sure that they can get plenty of grit.

A double range is often a help where the pullets are developed. Then corn and sunflowers can be planted in the spring and the birds given the range when the plants are about a foot high.

Guineas are subject to lice like all other fowl. These pests are found on the head and about the vent as in chickens, and also between the quill feathers of the wings as in turkeys. Sodium fluoride will rid them of the lice, but it is well to use a little salty grease along the base of the quill feathers as well as the powder.

Eat Sweets, Lose Weight

Stout persons, anxious to "reduce" usually make a special point of avoiding sweets. This is a mistake, for sweets offer a valuable weapon to those who would lose weight. Too much food is the usual cause of corpulence, and a slim diet offers the obvious remedy. A scant meal, though, does not seem so scant if brought to an end with dessert, and the practice of following lean meals with sweets is recommended as an aid to perseverance with a "reducing" diet.—Popular Science Monthly.

Back Given Out?

It's hard to do one's work when every day brings morning lameness, throbbing backache and a dull, tired feeling. If you suffer thus, why not find out the cause? Likely it's your kidneys. Headaches, dizziness and bladder irregularities may give further proof that your kidneys need help. Don't risk neglect! Use Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Thousands have been helped by Doan's. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Texas Case

G. H. Harvey, carpenter, Conroe, Tex., says: "There was a lameness in my back and my back ached all the time. I was weak, too, and this made it hard for me to stoop or lift. My kidneys acted irregularly so I used Doan's Pills and I was soon rid of the trouble."

INTESTINAL PARASITES

Thousands of sufferers are being treated unsuccessfully for some other disease, when their real trouble is that horrible monster, the tapeworm. Sure signs are the passing of the parasites and suggestive loss of appetite, giddiness, coated tongue, heartburn, pain in stomach, back and limbs, obstruction in the throat, frequent spitting, bad taste, bloating, crawling sensation in stomach, bowels and throat, indigestion, dizziness, headache, faint with empty stomach, emaciated, dark rings under eyes, anemia, yellow skin, loss of weight, no ambition, no desire to live or work, epileptic fits. Imagine feeding an ever-hungry parasite which may grow to 50 feet. A tapeworm crawling into windpipes may suffocate its host. You cannot pay too much to get rid of this monster. Last year for tapeworm cost only $4.00, but it does the work, it is harmless. Sold only by the J.A.H.A. Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., Box 99.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

WILDERNESS OF THOUGHT

MANY of the highest prized things in life, often through carelessness, neglect or perverted habits, are lost amid a wilderness of weeds, whose rankness had been permitted to overtop a wealthy soil.

Fenelope's flower garden, which she elected to call "her own," was beautifully laid out and gave great promise, but in an evil day, when she grew weary of pulling out the tares and watering the buds, the weeds ran amuck and ruined the plot about which Fenelope had dreamed for weeks.

When put to the test she preferred the melancholy weeds to the rose and the lily.

And so it was with William, who had planned great things while in college, but the weeds crept in among his cherished ambitions and led him far, far afield in a direction he never suspected.

Up to a given point he was a faithful worker, so long as his boyish hopes brightened his sky, but when they faded he lost interest and did not care.

Then came the day when the garden was choked with weeds.

He smiled complacently and accepted his fate because he believed in luck. He had never been taught to hold to the anchor of faith.

But William had learned some risky games of chance, and could, when suddenly called upon to do so, shut his mouth very firmly and exhibit not the slightest sign of fear or discouragement.

He meant to be good and true, and he sought to be fortunate and happy, but the weeds smothered him.

The brilliant course he had considered must wait till another season, or at least until he shall give proof of his change of heart.

He has ample ability, but even with his fine talents there springs up at regular intervals a crop of hot-headed weeds, sometimes growing in the night to present a sickening spectacle in the morning.

William is but a name for a thousand young men who, in spite of paternal advice, insisted upon sowing their wild oats.

William has won the name of being wild and reckless, which he admits.

He recognizes that he is a sort of moral cripple, too weak to strike out alone, too proud to accept advice. He is to be pitied, for he really is not bad at heart and is nobody's enemy but his own.

A MYSTERY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HAPPENED on a mystery. Anyway it was to me; On the bank I found a book Down beside a shady brook. Yes, sir, yonder by "the creek" Found a brown arithmetic. How it got there, hard to tell; Maybe put there, maybe fell. There it lay, a book of sums Bearing marks of smudgy thumbs, Looking blankly at the sky Just as though it wondered why, How it got there. That to me Also is a mystery.

Near it was a fishing-hole. I could swear I saw a pole From the bushes sticking out— It was there without a doubt, Not a split bamboo affair, Just an alder cut somewhere. And it seemed to me the line Wasn't silk, but cotton twine. On the water, seemed to me, Something else that I could see: Just a cork, a cork of brown, Slowly bobbing up and down. It's a mystery, as I say; For I'm sure there's school today.

PUDDING FOR HOT DAYS

PUDDING is supposedly the happy ending to a fine dinner. It is a broad term which may cover a multitude of desserts. A pudding to be interesting to the family need not be very elaborate for these days; one that is easily and quickly prepared is most popular with the one who has to prepare it.

Chicken Warmen.

Cook a good fat fowl in plenty of broth until tender, adding such seasoning as salt and pepper with a small onion. Remove the chicken and cut up the meat into small pieces. Set away in a warm place. To the broth add two or three cupfuls of finely-cut celery and cook until thick, remove the celery, keep in a warm place and add noodles to the soup; cook until done. To serve, place a nest of noodles on the plate, add a few spoonfuls of celery, and on top place some minced chicken. Serve very hot. A spoonful of mashed potato

Following Instructions

"Are the waiters here attentive to you?"

"Sir-r-r!" exclaimed the young woman in an offended tone.

"Oh, no offense, I assure you," replied the man. "I was only carrying out the instructions printed on the bill of fare, which say: 'Please report any inattention of waiters to cashier.' And I thought if they were inattentive to you I would report them, that's all."—Youth's Companion.

WHOLE FAMILY ENDORSE TANLAC AS BEST TONIC

"Tanlac has been our constant friend for years, and my wife and myself and eight children are all enjoying wonderful health, largely due to this medicine," is the remarkable statement of Harry H. Pistole, 310 Archer St., Waco, Texas.

"In my own case Tanlac has done what seemed to be impossible. When I began taking it my stomach was in such a bad fix that I had to live on a milk and egg diet and I was almost a skeleton. I had been flat on my back in bed and under treatment for 18 months and felt that my time was about up.

"After my case had been given up as hopeless and I thought I was beyond redemption a relative put me on to Tanlac, and the result is, I gained 20 pounds, and enjoy as good health as anybody could wish.

"My wife was all broken down in health. But now she weighs 155 pounds, and is strong and well and I am giving Tanlac credit for it. We give Tanlac to the children to tone them up and make them grow, and nobody ever had a healthier set of children than we have.

"Tanlac is certainly the greatest medicine on earth for anyone whose life is wrecked by bad health. We sure do have a great deal to praise Tanlac for at my house."

Power

WHAT makes an automobile go?
The combustion or burning of gasoline which produces power. What makes the human body go? The combustion of food by the digestive processes, which produces energy.

Of all known foods, sugar is one of the first in energy units, one of the cheapest in relative cost, one of the most quickly convertible into muscular power. From the soldier on a forced march to the arctic explorer who wants a condensed food ration, men who need strength and endurance use sugar freely as a food. This is one reason why

A WORD FROM OUR SHERIFF ABOUT AUTOMOBILES AND OUR PUBLIC ROADS

Clarendon, Texas, Sept 30 1924
To the People of Donley County:

In view of the fact that hardly a week passes without a collision of motor vehicles on the public roads of Donley county I wish to call the public's attention to the following laws and regulations relating to the driving of motor vehicles:

Provisions Relating to Licensing of Motor Vehicles

1 Every automobile or other motor vehicle must be licensed for the current year and each day's operation of an unlicensed motor vehicle is punishable by fine of not less than $10 00 nor more than $50 00.

2. The license of a motor vehicle must at all times be conspicuously displayed on the front and rear thereof. It is not enough to pay the license; the motor vehicle must have displayed on it the seal for the current year as aforesaid.

3 It is also a violation of the law to place on any motor vehicle a fictitious seal, or a seal not of the current year, or a seal which has been assigned to another motor vehicle.

Provisions Relating to Speed

1 It is unlawful to drive a motor or other vehicles upon the public highways of this State at a greater rate of speed than thirty five miles per hour.

2 It is unlawful to drive a motor or other vehicles within the corporate limits of an incorporated city or town, or within or through any town or village not incorporated, at a greater rate of speed than twenty miles per hour.

3 The above regulations as to speed do not apply to physicians answering emergency calls nor to police patrols.

Provisions Relating to Brakes and Lights on Motor Vehicles

1 The law requires that each and every motor vehicle operating on the public highway of this state during the period between one-half hour after sunset and one half hour before sunrise, and at all times when fog or other atmospheric conditions render the operation of such vehicles unusually dangerous to traffic and the use of the highways, shall carry at the front at least two lighted lamps showing the white lights visible under normal atmospheric conditions at least five hundred feet in the direction toward which such motor vehicle is facing, and shall also carry at the rear a lighted lamp exhibiting one red light plainly visible for a distance of five hundred feet to the rear.

2 It shall be unlawful for any person to operate an automobile, motorcycle or bicycle upon the public highways of this state, at night time, whose front lamps shall project forward a light of such glare and brilliancy as to seriously interfere with the sight of, or temporarily blind the vision of the driver of a vehicle approaching from an opposite direction.

3. A motor vehicle must be provided at all times when being operated on the public highways with adequate brakes kept in good working order.

4 No person having control or charge of a motor vehicle shall allow such vehicle to stand in any public street or public highway unattended without first effectively setting the brake thereon and stopping the motor of said vehicle.

5. All trucks operated upon the public highways must be equipped with mirrors so that the road behind the driver will at all times be visible to said driver through the mirror.

The Law of the Road
1. On all occasions the driver or operator of any vehicle on or upon any public highway in this state shall travel upon the right hand side of such highway unless the road on the left hand side of such highway is clear and unobstructed for a distance of at least fifty yards ahead.

2 Vehicles proceeding in opposite directions shall pass each other to the right, each giving to the other one half of the road as nearly as possible.

3 Vehicles overtaking other vehicles proceeding in the same direction, shall pass to the left thereof and shall not again drive to the right until the road is reasonably clear of such overtaken vehicles.

4 It shall be the duty of the driver, rider or operator of a vehicle about to be overtaken and passed, to give way to the right in favor of the overtaking vehicle on suitable and audible signal, given by or on behalf of the operator, driver or other person in charge and control of such overtaking vehicle, if such overtaking vehicle be a motor vehicle. (Violation of this provision often gives rise to uncalled for quarrels and affrays as where an auto overtakes a wagon, the driver of the auto sounds his horn, the wagon stays in the road although there is plenty of room to the right. At the first opportunity the driver of the auto runs by at a high rate of speed, throwing his auto back into the road so close to the horses that it throws them out. It is just as much a violation of the law to fail to give way when possible as it is to speed on the highways.)

5 All vehicles approaching an intersection of the public highways with the intention of turning thereat, shall, in turning to the right, keep to the right of the center of such intersection, and in turning to the left, shall run beyond the center of such intersection, passing to the right before turning such vehicle to the left.

6 No race or contest for speed shall be held upon any public highway in this state.

7 The person in control of any vehicle moving slowly along upon any public highway, shall keep such vehicle as closely as possible to the right hand boundary of the highway, allowing more swiftly moving vehicles reasonably free passage to the left.

8 No intoxicated person shall operate or drive any motor vehicle upon any public highway of this state.

I have not called your attention to all the provisions of the law relating to the road, but have called to your attention what I deem to be the outstanding requirements of this law, and I here and now ask the citizenship of this county to help me to keep our public roads reasonably safe for travel and free from accidents and collisions. If you are damaged while violating the law of the road, in nearly every instance you are without remedy for civil damages, besides you are placing your life in jeopardy. Be careful when approaching intersections and always look to the right, for the vehicle approaching the intersection from your right, that is, the right of the driver, has the right of way. Of course, no one has the right to willfully injure another on the highway, and no one will so do, but every driver of a motor vehicle has the right to expect that every other person who is driving or operating a motor vehicle upon the public highway know and will observe the Law of the Road.

My office is deluged with complaints, growing out of collision upon the road, hence this request from me.

Very truly yours,
H. O. Brumley, Sheriff
Donley County, Texas

A KLANSMAN SPEAKS AT HEDLEY

Mr. Wm T Arms, speaker for the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, spoke here Sunday at 8 p. m. at the Methodist church and at 7:30 at the First Baptist church. At each of these hours Mr. Arms brought a great message to crowded audiences. He is a speaker of noted reputation and of unusual ability. His messages are clear, earnest and persuasive. He is a member of a Protestant church and a Mason of high standing, and does not fail to magnify the churches of Christ as the greatest of all institutions. Throughout his addresses he held out the fact that the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan had always stood for the church, public schools and the Bible. There were present at each of these services a Holy Bible, a cross, and the American flag. These were very frequently referred to in the speaker's message. He announced that he had been affiliated with the Klan for four years, during which time he has, through the means of his lectures, led more than 2000 persons to accept Christ and unite with the various churches.

There was much food for thought in these two lectures. The speaker used as the main outline of his address the principles of the Klan, which follow with a few comments that we recall.

1. The Tenets of the Christian Religion. Here he magnified the cross of Christ, the Holy Bible, and made a plea that every one should stand by the principles laid down in the sacred book, stating that the Klan was founded on the 12th chapter of Romans. He also stated that a true klanman would stand by the American flag, the public school, read his Bible and go to church.

2. White Supremacy. Stating here that the Klan was for this nation to be controlled by the white race, and was opposed to intermarriage of the white and black races, which thing he said is being practiced in our nation and cited various examples.

3. Protection of Pure Womanhood. Upon this principle of the Klan he took time to pay his respects to the home wrecker, the petting parties, and the white slaver. He classed the home wrecker as the lowest person on earth.

4. Closer Relationship of Pure Americanism.

5. The Upholding of the Constitution of the United States.

6. The Sovereignty of Our State Rights.

7. The Separation of Church and State. Here he stated that the Knights of Columbus were organized for the purpose of bringing church and state together, and that the Klan was organized to keep church and state forever separate.

8. Freedom of Speech and Press. The speaker informed his audiences that 85 per cent of all daily papers and magazines were controlled by Jews and Catholics, thus leaving only 15 per cent in the hands of Protestants. He also stated that Catholics held 75 per cent of our public offices, largely dominated our armies and navies, and have already closed many of our public schools.

9. Closer relationship between Capital and Labor.

10. Preventing the Causes of Mob Violence and Lynchings.

11. Preventing Unwarranted Strikes by Foreign Labor Agitators.

12. Prevention of Fires and Destruction of Property by Lawless Elements.

13. The Limitation of Foreign Immigration.

14. The Much Needed Local Reformer.

Reforms

15. Law and Order, etc.
At the close of the services almost unanimously the large audiences voted heartily their endorsement of the principles above stated, and after the benediction encouraged the speaker with a glad, warm handshake in token of their appreciation of his earnest, inspiring addresses.

At first, some of us were just wondering about this Ku Klux business anyway, and did not know whether to advance too close or not, but as the speaker launched into his earnest message we forgot the Ku Klux side and listened attentively to a simple message of the Cross.

This writer has been studying the activities of the Klan for some months and forming his own opinions as to the work they were doing. Always through the daily paper we had the side to terrorize the general public with dark crimes and whippings, tar and feathers etc. but never did we read in any daily paper that the Ku Klux Klan stood for the 15 principles above stated. And to think, this man alone has had in four years 2000 persons to publicly profess Christ as their Savior and unite with the various Protestant churches.

This other statement that caught this writer was the statement that 90 per cent of the Protestant ministers belong to the Klan. This leaves only about 10 per cent of us Protestant preachers unaffiliated, and many of us are becoming more and more impressed. Now, it would be awful, in the opinion of this writer, if this remaining 10 per cent of Protestant preachers were to be so misled as to join in this "hooded mob" and leave the great gigantic task of setting this world right to such sanctimonious men as Jack Walton and Jim Ferguson. Both of these gentlemen seem to think that the Ku Klux Klan and Protestant ministers are the direct cause of their trials and tribulations.

I am writing these words on my own option, with these simple words of warning: 51 per cent of our nation now are for eigners, and this means that most of these are enemies of the Protestant religion (Roman Catholics).

We are crying down the Klan, with all these foreigners, and what will be the result if we prevail and the Klan is riddled? Will we do as we have done before the days of the Klan, and let the Roman Catholics take our nation, burn our Bibles, close our public schools and burn Christians at the stake? The Catholics have put millions of Christians to death in their time, and they boast that "Rome never changes." They only want a chance to do it again. May God arouse sleepy Protestant America to see her opportunity before it is forever gone.

ZEN OF THE

A Novel of the Foothills

By ROBERT STEAD
Author of "The Cow Puncher"—"The Homesteaders"—"Neighbors," etc.

"I know what you mean," she said. "There's too much servility in it. And yet one may pay these courtesies and not be servile. I always 'sir'd' your father, and he knew I did it because I wanted to, not because I had to. And I shall do the same with you once we understand each other."

"I think we can accept that as a working basis," he agreed. "She produced notebook and pencil. "Very well, sir. Do you wish to dictate?"

Grant found a little apartment house on a side street, overlooking the lake. Here was a place where the vision could leap out without being beaten back by barricades of stone and brick. He rested his eyes on the distance, and assured the invigilant landlady that the rooms would do, and he would arrange for decorating at his own expense.

As he was arranging the books on his shelf a clipping with the account of Zen's wedding fell to the floor. He sat down in his chair and read it slowly through. Later he went out for a walk.

It was in his long walks that Grant found the only real comfort of his new life. To be sure, it was not like roaming the foothills; there was not the soft breath of the Chinook, nor the deep silence of the mighty valleys. But there was movement and freedom and a chance to think. The city offered artificial attractions in which the foothills had not competed; faultlessly kept parks and lawns; splashes of perfume and color; spraying fountains and vagrant strains of music. He reflected that some merciful principle of compensation has made no place quite perfect and no place entirely undesirable. He remembered also the toll of his life in the saddle; the physical hardship, the strain of long hours and broken weather. And here, too, in a different way, he was in the saddle, and he did not know which strain was the greater. He was beginning to have a higher regard for the men in the saddle of business. The world saw only their success, or, it may be, their pretense of success. But there was a different story from all that, which each one of them could have told for himself.

On this evening when his mind had been suddenly turned into odd channels by the finding of the newspaper clipping dealing with the wedding of Y.D.'s daughter, Grant walked far into the outskirts of the city, paying little attention to his course. It was late October; the leaves lay thick on the sidewalks and through the parks; there was in all the air that strange, sad, sweet dreariness of the dying summer.

Grant had tried heroically to keep his thoughts away from Transley's wife. The past had come back on him, had rather engulfed him. In that little newspaper clipping. He let himself wonder where she was, and whether nearly a year of married life had shown her the folly of her decision. He took it for granted that her decision had been folly, and he arrived at that position without any reflection upon Transley. Only—Zen had been in love with him, with him, Dennison Grant! Sooner or later she must discover the tragedy of that fact, and yet he told himself he was big enough to hope she might never discover it. It would be best that she should forget him, as he had—almost—forgotten her. There was no doubt that would be best. And yet there was a delightful sadness in thinking of her still, and hoping that some day—He was never able to complete the thought.

He had never walking down a street of modest homes; the bare trees groped into a sky clear and blue with the first chill presage of winter. A quick step fell unheeded by his side; the girl passed, hesitated, then turned and spoke.

"You are preoccupied, Mr. Grant." "Oh, Miss Bruce, I beg your pardon. I am glad to see you." Even at that moment he had been thinking of Zen, and perhaps he put more cordiality into his words than he intended. But he had grown to have considerable regard on her own account, for this unusual girl who was not afraid of him. He had found that she was what he called "a good head." She could take a detached view; she was absolutely fair; she was not easily flustered. Her step had fallen into swing with his.

"You do not often visit our part of the city," she essayed. "You live here?" "Nearby. Will you come to see?"

He turned with her at a corner, and they went up a narrow street lying deep in dead leaves. Friendly domestic glimpses could be caught through unblinded windows. "This is our home," she said, stopping before a little gate. Grant's eye followed the pathway to a cottage set back among the trees. "I live here with my sister and brother and mother. Father is dead," she went on hurriedly, as though wishing to place before him a quick digest of the family affairs, "and we keep up the home by living on with mother as boarders; that is, Grace and I do. Hubert is still in high school. Won't you come in?"

He followed her up the path and into a little hall, lighted only by chance rays falling through a half-opened door. She did not switch on a comfortable sense of her nearness, quite distinct from any office experience, as she took his hat. In the living-room her mother received him with visible surprise. She was not old, but widowhood and the cares of a young family had whitened her hair before its time.

"We are glad to see you, Mr. Grant," she said. "It is an unexpected pleasure. Big business men do not often—" "Mr. Grant is different," her daughter interrupted, lightly. "I found him wandering the streets and I just—retrieved him."

"I think I am different," he admitted, as his eye took in the surroundings, which he appraised quickly as modest comfort, attained through many little economies and makeshifts. "Phyllis is a great help to me—and Grace," the mother observed. "I hope she is a good girl in the office."

At this moment Grace and Hubert came in from the picture-show together, and the conversation turned to lighter topics. Mrs. Bruce insisted on serving tea and cake, and when Grant found that he must go Phyllis accompanied him to the gate. "This all seems so funny," she was saying. "You are a very remarkable man."

"I think I once passed a similar opinion about you." She extended her hand, and he held it for a moment. "I have not changed my first opinion," he said, as he released her fingers and turned quickly down the pavement.

CHAPTER XI Grant's first visit to the home of his private stenographer was not his last, and the news leaked out, as it is sure to do in such cases. The social set confessed to being on the point of being shocked. Two schools of criticism developed over the five o'clock tea tables; one held that Grant was a gay dog who would settle down and marry in his class when Le-had had his fling, and the other that Phyllis Bruce was an artful hussy who was quite ready to sell herself for the Grant millions. And there were so many eligible young women on the market, although none of them were described as artful hussies.

Grant's behavior, however, placed him under no cloud in so far as social opportunities were concerned; on the contrary, he found himself being showered with invitations, most of which he managed to decline on the grounds of pressure of business. When such an excuse would have been too transparent he accepted and made the best of it, and he found no lack of encouragement in the one or two ineffectual amorous furies which resulted. From such positions he always succeeded in extricating himself, with a quiet smile at the vagaries of life. He had to admit that some of the young women whom he had met had charms of more than passing moment; he might easily enough find himself chasing the rainbow.

But his attention was at once to be turned to very different matters. A stock market, erratic for some days, went suddenly into a paroxysm. Grant escaped with as little loss as possible for himself and his clients, and after three sleepless nights called his staff together. They crowded into the board-room, curious, apprehensive, almost frightened, and he looked over them with an emotion that was quite new to his experience. Even in the aloofness which their staffers had made it necessary for him to adopt there had grown up in his heart, quite unnoticed, a tender, sweet foliage of love for these men and women who were a part of his machine. Now, as he looked in their faces he realized how, like little children, they leaned on him—how, like little children, they feared his power and his displeasure—how, perhaps, like little children, they had learned to love him, too. He realized, as he had never done before, that they were children; that here and there in the mass of humanity is one who was born to lead, but the great mass itself must be children always, doing as they are bid.

"My friends," he managed to say, "we suddenly find ourselves in tremendous times. Some of you know my attitude toward this business in which we are engaged. I did not seek it; I tried to avoid it; yet, when the responsibility was forced upon me I accepted that responsibility. I gave up the life I enjoyed, the environment in which I found delight, the friends I loved. Well—our nation is now in a somewhat similar position. It has to go into a business which it did not seek, of which it does not approve, but which fate has thrust upon it. It has to break off the current of its life and turn it into undreamed-of channels, and we, as individuals who make up the nation, must do the same. I have already enlisted, and expect that within a few hours I shall be in uniform. Some of you are single men of military age; you will, I am sure, take similar steps. For the rest—the business will be wound up as soon as possible, so that you may be released for some form of national service. You will all receive three months' salary in lieu of notice. Mr. Murdoch will look after the details. When that has been done my wealth, or such part of it as remains, will be placed at the disposal of the government. If we win it will be well invested in a good cause; if we lose, it would have been lost anyway."

No one knew just how the meeting broke up, but Grant had a confused remembrance of many handclaps and some tears. He was not sure that he had not, perhaps, added one or two to the flow, but they were all tears of friendship and of an emotion born of high resolve.

As he stood in his own office again, trying to get the events of these last few days into some sort of perspective, Phyllis Bruce entered. He motioned dumbly to a chair, but she came and stood by his desk. Her face was very white and her lips trembled with the words she tried to utter.

"I can't go," she managed to say at length. "Can't go? I don't understand?" "Hubert has joined," she said. "Hubert, the boy! Why, he is only in school—"

"He is sixteen, and large for his age. He came home confessing, and saying it was his first lie, and the first important thing he ever did without consulting mother. He said he knew he wouldn't be able to stand it if he told her first."

"Foolish, but heroic," Grant commented. "Be proud of him. It takes more than wisdom to be heroic."

"And Grace is going to England. She was taking nursing, you know, and so gets a preference. We can't all leave mother."

He found it difficult to speak. "You wanted to go to the front?" he managed. "Of course, where else?"

Her hand was on the desk; his own slipped over until it closed on it. "You are a little heroine," he murmured. "No, I'm not. I'm a little fool to tell you this, but how can I stay—why should I stay—when you are gone?"

She was looking down, but after her confession she raised her eyes to his, and he wondered that he had never known how beautiful she was. He could have taken her in his arms, but something, with the power of invisible chains, held him back. In that supreme moment a vision swam before him; a vision of a mountain stream backed by tawny foothills, and a girl as beautiful as ever, this Phyllis, who had wrapped him in her arms. . . . And he had not forgotten. . . .

When he did not respond she drew herself slowly away. "You will hate me," she said. "That is impossible," he corrected, quickly. "I am very sorry if I have let you think more than I intended. I care for you very, very much indeed. I care for you so much that I will not let you think I care for you more. Can you understand that?"

"Yes, you like me, but you love some one else."

He was disconcerted by her intuition and the terse frankness with which she stated the case. "I will take you into my confidence, Phyllis, if I may," he said at length. "I do like you; I did love some one else. And that old attachment is still so strong that it would be hardly fair—it would be hardly fair—"

"Why didn't you marry her?" she demanded. "Because some one else did."

"Oh!" Her hands found his this time. "I'm sorry," she said. "Sorry I brought this up—sorry I raised these memories. But now you—who have known—I will know—"

"I know—I know," he murmured, raising her fingers to his lips. . . . "Time, they say, is a healer of all wounds. Perhaps—" have told you of the time his captain found him with his arm crushed under a wrecked piece of artillery, and Grant could have recounted a story of being dragged unconscious out of No Man's Land, but for either to dwell upon these matters only aroused the resentment of the other, and frequently led to exchanges between captain and sergeant totally incompatible with military discipline. They were content to pay tribute to each other, but each to leave his own honors unharmed.

"No. It is better that you should . . ."

"First thing is a place to eat," Grant remarked, when they had been dismissed. Words to similar effect had, indeed, been his first remark upon every suitable opportunity for three months. An appetite which has been four years in the making is not to be satisfied overnight, and Grant, being better fortified financially against the stress of a good meal, sought to be always first to suggest it. Linder accepted the situation with the complacency of a man who has been four years on army pay.

"Got any notion what you will do?" said Linder, when the meal was finished. "Not the slightest. I don't even know whether I'm rich or broke. I suppose if Jones and Murdoch are still alive they will be looking after those details. Doing their best, doubtless, to embarrass me with additional wealth. What are you going to do?"

"Don't know. Maybe go back and work for Transley."

The mention of Transley threw Grant's mind back into old channels. He had almost forgotten Transley. He told himself he had quite forgotten Zen Transley, but once he knew he lied. That was when they potted him in No Man's Land. As he lay there, waiting. . . . he knew he had not forgotten. And he had thought many times of Phyllis Bruce. At first he had written to her, but she had not answered his letters. Evidently she meant him to forget. Nor had she come to the station to welcome him home. Perhaps she did not know. Perhaps—Many things can happen in four years.

Suddenly it occurred to Grant that it might be a good idea to call on Phyllis. He would take Linder along. That would make it less personal. He knew his man well enough to keep his own counsel, and eventually they reached the gate of the Bruce cottage, as though by accident.

"Let's turn in here. I used to know these people. Mother and daughter; very fine folk."

Satisfactory "So you want to marry my daughter? What is your financial standing?" "Well, sir, I've figured out every exemption possible; I've had the best legal advice that money would secure; I've done everything I could do to dodge it—and I still find that I cannot escape paying an income tax."

FARM STOCK

YOUNG PORKER WILL MAKE CHEAPER GAIN

When does a pig make its cheapest gain, and when does it sell for the highest price per pound? This is a question that often confronts the farmer who is raising pigs for the market, says Prof. L. V. Starkey, chief of the animal husbandry division at Emson college, in discussing the marketing of hogs.

Experimental data prove beyond a doubt that the younger the pig the cheaper the gains. A review of the market reveals another very interesting fact, namely, that feeder pigs sell for a higher price per pound in those which are ready for the market. If we put these two ideas together it would seem that there is more money in producing feeder pigs than there is in producing fat hogs ready for market. Of course there are many factors, says Professor Starkey, that take into consideration in producing feeder pigs. For example, fairly good litters must be raised. If the litter does not average at least six pigs, the litter there will be no money in it. Large litters and cheap pigs go together.

One reason why feeder pigs are so much in demand is that there are so many who do not keep a brood sow. Yet they want one or two pigs to fatten for pork.

The man who produces feeder pigs on a large scale must have considerable equipment. Several small lots are necessary in order that not more than two brood sows may be in a lot. Usually good results cannot be obtained by keeping several brood sows and litters together.

With the small-lot proposition there also comes the problem of fresh water. Running streams are ideal for the hogs, but hard to keep fenced. If water is piped to the lots, care must be taken so that there will be no mud wallows.

Male pigs should be castrated at from six to ten weeks of age. The younger they are castrated the less will be the shock. The best time to wean feeder pigs is when they are eight weeks of age.

The greatest demand for feeder pigs is in the fall when corn is ready to be used. At this time carlot shipments can be made.

Proper Ration for Mare Is of Much Importance

"The best time to grow foals, and the time when they will make their largest gains is when they are being carried by their dams," says N. K. Carnes of the animal husbandry division at University farm at St Paul, Minn. "Many farmers do not realize this, and begin feeding the mare a proper ration only after the foal is here. The brood mare, when in foal, should be fed a high protein ration, a ration which is rich in muscle and bone building material. This material is supplied in the form of oats, bran and oil meal, as a concentrate, and clover or alfalfa hay as a roughage."

"The most common causes for losses among foals are constipation and navel trouble. As soon as the young foal arrives, see that he gets a good drink of his mother's first milk. This fore-milk or colostrum has purgative properties and will usually clear the foal's intestines of the excrement accumulated prior to birth. If the digestive tract is not cleaned by the fore-milk, give the foal a tablespoonful of castor oil and a warm water and soap rectal injection.

"Another thing the farmer must watch out for is navel infection. If pus and disease germs get inside the body through the opening of the umbilical cord, a local infection or 'joint ill' may develop and the foal be lost. The best way to prevent this is to keep the stable in a sanitary condition and treat the cord immediately after the foal is born with boric acid powder or tincture of Iodoine."

Live Stock Hints

Avoid stagnant mud wallows. Change pastures for sheep frequently.

A pig that doesn't make a hog of himself isn't profitable. "Purebred Live Stock on Every Farm." Eventually, why not sooner?

Watch your sheep, carefully to see that they do not become infested with worms. Tip to dairymen: Proper feeding means cheaper milk and, therefore, more profit.

Cattle, horses and sheep as well as hogs are fond of hay, but they cannot be expected to eat the coarse stems. Colts, calves, lambs and pigs, all should have special feed set apart for them as soon as they can be coaxed to eat. Oats are very good.

Hogs with cholera often have diarrhea after they have been sick a short time. Pus may form in the eyes. Red or purple blotches come on the skin of the belly inside the legs.

PARENT-TEACHERS

The Association instructed about on the campus at recess.

All enjoyed the short program led by Misses Robyn and Rasco.

The next meeting of the Assoone of the most interesting programs for that occasion that Hedley has ever had. It will include every phase of the youth-

Stoves - Drum Ovens - Stove Pipe

Let us sell you that Range and Heating Stove. We have a good line of Ranges that have been tried and found to be Unequaled for Service and Economy. They're made of first class material. Are well finished and the price is right. It is economy to buy a new range or stove. They cost very little more than a second hand one, and please remember this: Repairs for unknown brands of ranges and stoves are expensive.

You find the right kind of a heating stove here. We have a circulating air heater that will give you the same service as any similar made stove that is encased in an enameled jacket and it costs but one fourth of this kind of a heater. Our circulator heater will use less fuel, give a great amount of heat, and will hold fire longer.

We have all sizes in bachelor or monkey stoves. Get our prices on this kind of a stove before you buy. You will find they are no higher than second hand stoves and they are new and will wear. Drum Ovens that are made right and priced right. Stove Pipes, Elbows, Coal Hods, Fire Shovels and Fire Pokers.
