A portion of the concho lands was sold to settlers from a distance.
With the idea of a town, a little camp has grown in front of the postoffice. This has been little more than a matter of hunting for a place to set up a residence, but at the present time there is more to it than that. The settlement is rapidly growing.

The concho lands
are unusually severe,
and the climate is
of a very dry
and dusty
character.

The concho
lands
are extremely shy of hunting, and only on the occasions
when they are in the neighborhood
of
the settlement
will
be seen.

Your eyes will shine
with the water,
and
you
will
feel that you
in a different
country.
