Elks Will Show New Faces Next Monday at Fights

New wrestlers and boxers will be in Ranger Monday night at the Elks weekly athletic show. The feature will be a finish match between Doc Poole, the boy who defeated Benny Wilson in such a spectacular manner two weeks ago, and Baron Von Link of Germany. It is quite a treat to be able to see a real baron, perhaps the first occasion of this kind ever to happen in Ranger. The baron claims the middleweight championship of the Fatherland and his one ambition is to take to the land of pretzels and beer the junior middleweight belt now held by Benny Wilson.

In Poole the baron will meet a wrestler who will stop at no end to get his man. Poole is fast and clever, is always on the move and seems to wrestle better when the going gets the roughest.

The other finish match will bring back to Ranger an old favorite when Ug Moore steps into the ring to tackle Eddie Brock, the week by knocking Jack O'Brien for a loop. Brock says he is a better wrestler than he is a boxer and he does not appear to be a man who would brag of his powers unless he is capable of backing his word. He has made a great showing on the mat since coming to Texas, according to the newspaper clippings he shows, and he is rating a big favorite to beat Moore Monday night, although Moore is rated by most of the fans as the best wrestler ever to appear in Ranger.

Benny Wilson states that he is beginning a golden glove tournament and all boxers who are over 18 years may enter. A real nice silver and gold belt will be presented to the winner. There will be two fights on the card Monday night. The first is four rounds, between "Popeye" Cole and Jelly Harry of Breckenridge. These two boys are of the same weight and can and will fight and will probably furnish more action than has been seen in Ranger since the Pancake-Windham fight.

The feature fight of the evening will be a six-round battle between Cliff Wickham of Strawn and Jack Porter of Ranger. These two were matched by the request of Porter as he wants to even an old score with Wickham, as he was knocked out the last time they met. This will be a great fight and the boxing fans will see more honest, hard fighting than they have witnessed in a long time in Ranger.

All boxers who wish to enter the golden glove tournament should see Benny Wilson as soon as possible.

LONE STAR IS WINNER OVER ELKS 13 TO 6

The Lone Star team of the Ranger Twilight League defeated the Elks in a good game Thursday afternoon by a score of 13 to 6 before a good crowd of spectators.

Both teams garnered 12 hits, but five errors by the Elks compared with three for Lone Star gave the latter team the advantage and the game. Downtain started pitching for the Elks and was relieved in the fourth inning by Cox, who finished the game. Long went the entire route for the Lone Star club, hurling a good game. He had good support behind him with the exception of a few instances.

Little heavy hitting was seen during the game, two triples and four two baggers being the only extra base hits out of the 24 made by the two teams.

The first inning went scoreless and in the second and third Lone Star chalked up three and five runs to take a lead they never lost, though the Elks threatened in the last of the seventh when they ran in three runs, two of which came before an out was made. It looked for a while like a rally might tighten up the score but Curtis was doubled off second when he ran on a fly to center field, which Gholson caught and threw back to second base for the double killing, and Snyder was out, right short to first for the final out.

College President Has Big Job In Finding Positions

WASHINGTON.—Robert Maynard Hutchins, the garterless college president, is charged under President Roosevelt's reconstruction program with finding some 30,000,000 jobs for as many unemployed men and women.

Hutchins probably never will live down the fact that his socks sagged down over his shoes the day he became president of the University of Chicago. He has made whole educational system of the such a success in reorganizing the celebrated school, however, that his critics have stopped harping on his collegiate appearance.

He is known now, and respected, as an educator of the first order and as a fearless traveler on uncharted cerebral paths. He thinks clearly and acts decisively. As one of his students once put it: "When he says 'frog,' everybody jumps."

President Roosevelt believes Hutchins can turn his talents into the business of getting millions of jobs into which the unemployed may jump. Hutchins' official title therefore is "chairman of the special advisory board of the United States Employment Service."

Such a ponderous label hardly fits the 34-year-old Hutchins, who wears baggy tweed suits and brightly striped cravats, who cheers at football games and eats midnight snacks in the sculpture studio of his pretty wife.

He works in cooperation with Madame Secretary of Labor Perkins, who won't let newspapermen use her telephone, but who serves them ginger ale at her press conferences.

Miss Perkins, a dinker of ice water, holds frequent conferences with young Hutchins, who is becoming a regular Chicago-Washington commuter.

Hutchins' agency replaces the old United States employment offices which Ex-secretary of Labor Doak ran in competition with state employment agencies in cities all over the land.

Under Hutchins the state and federal labor agencies cooperate closely in the finding of jobs for the unemployed. State employment directors in many cases have been appointed federal administrators in their states.

Prof. Hutchins (he doesn't like to be called that) believes the new employment plans will make life easier for labor and business alike. He particularly approves federal machinery which contemplates the shifting of labor to any part of the nation, as conditions demand.

Pecos Is Seeking State Park Site

PECOS, Texas.—Creation of a state park around Toyah lake, 10 miles south of Pecos, with labor furnished by the civilian conservation corps is the goal of Pecos as a result of preliminary plans for such a recreation spot as drawn by A. H. Dunlap, member of the state board of water engineers.

A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

WHY WILL YE DIE?: As I live, saith the Lord God, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked. . . . Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?—Ezekiel 33: 11.

EDITOR SMITH TALKED OUT LOUDLY IN THE SEN. SHEPPARD "WITHIN HIS RIGHTS"

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, according to statutory law, designated Sen. Morris Sheppard as convention chairman of the pros (or rather anti-repealers) of the coming dry convention. Senator Sheppard accepted and in accepting he acted within the law as well as his citizenship rights. Attorney General James V. Allred made a ruling. That ruling did not disqualify senators or representatives as presiding officers of the repeal or anti-repeal state convlave.

This for all concerned—and those who are most concerned are the voters of Texas who will be participants in the special elections to come in August—Senator Sheppard is the author of the 18th Amendment. He is a lifelong pro; a sincere pro; a regular of regulars. This has been his record since he came of voting age. He participates in conventions and primaries; he bows to the wisdom of the majority. And he votes the ticket straight—for the nominees of primaries or conventions and goes all the road.

Prohibition is not partizan issue. It is a question of the regulation or suppression or attempted suppression of the liquor traffic and it has been a bone of contention in America for almost a hundred years. Just now the real important issue before all the people of Texas is that of higher prices for Texas staples, a return of purchasing power to the growers of things as well as the makers of things, and re-employment for the thousands who have been idle in recent years. It would be well for all the people to practice sanity of purpose, to control their passions and prejudices, and to settle the issue uppermost at the polls in August, according to the dictates of an honest conscience and careful consideration of the rights and opinions of their fellow men and women.

CHEERFUL LITTLE EARFUL FOR WAGE EARNERS

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor is on the job in the city of Washington. More than 495,000 persons returned to work in May, and the newspaper publication of the Federation lets it be known there is reason to believe that foundations for an upturn may be forming. Indeed, according to the survey the federation chieftain estimated that employment of 1,200,000 since March 1. This would have reduced the army of the unemployed to 10 million. However, prices of foodstuffs are reaching high levels. Jobs must be found for the jobless and the industria recovery act administrators who are cooperating with the industrialists of the country are holding the keys to the situation. Texas industrialists sounded a keynote at the Dallas conference. Employment must be found for the idle who are willing to work. There is a nifty sum of 34 million dollars coming for highway building.

PRIVATE RELIEF AGENCIES CUT OFF BY UNCLE SAM

Harry L. Hopkins is federal emergency administrator of the Roosevelt administration. He has reminded the American world that private welfare agencies will not be permitted to handle any federal emergency relief funds after Aug. 1. In other words that distribution of federal funds must be made by public agencies—individuals made public officials working under the control of public authorities. Uncle Sam, high in the lookout chair is going to keep a watchful eye on the dollars as they are passed out to the needy. And why not?

AN OFFICIAL VISIT FROM MEXICO

Austin was host Tuesday to two splendid young Mexicans, Jose Cantu and Antonio Dovali-Jaime, engineers in the department of communications. They were repaying the visit of the Texas highway commission to Mexico City recently. The two young men are fine, intelligent government officials, and their visit serves to make more happy the relations between Texas and the neighboring republic.

A prominent scientist recently stated that we cannot boast of having conquered the air so long as we are unable to emulate the mosquito by flying backward as well as forward, or to come to a stop in mid-air if we wish. According to this scientist, the mosquito is the champion flyer of all flyers and can land any place. Probably a good many people during the summer months can be found who will agree with him. It is evident that the mosquito is the only flyer that can fly at will, fly slow or fast, vertically upward and downward, and the only flyer that can always get a square meal if there are any human beings in sight.

In some towns warnings from the police to reckless automobile drivers are listened to with respect and then conscientiously ignored.

If Those Government Control Measures Work Out—

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

NORMAN H. ORR, Managing Editor of the Yonkers (N. Y.) Record, says:

"Although many merchants today could save their business from bankruptcy by a little of the proper kind of advertising, they 'save money' by hoping customers will come to their store.

"Just to advertise will not do in these days of careful spending. Keeping your name before the public went out with the idea of having an automobile for every member of the family. Today you must advertise 'price'—it is the only thing prospective customers are interested in. They will go where they are told and where the fact is proven that they will get what they want for less.

"Hense, the merchant who knows enough to take generous space, fill it with one or two illustrations, little reading matter and a cheap price in large type, will get results.

"Business is bad, but there is some being done and the merchant who goes after it in the right way is the one who will get most of it.

"Never make the mistake of thinking you save money by cutting out advertising, neither keep your conscience clear by merely advertising. Don't throw money away by just buying space. Let somebody who knows up-to-date advertising methods prepare your copy and go to it. Get the jump on the other fellow who is sitting back waiting for business to improve.

DAILY WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Many new names are being entered on the scrolls of fame here these days, but there ought to be special medals for one small group of men whose outstanding performances have caused the most widespread amazement.

Eccentricity still lives. These fellows stand out from among their contemporaries like so many geraniums in a snowbank, and it's a small and exclusive club they'll have if they ever organize one. Attention is herewith called to:

Vice President John Nance Garner, the member of the administration who turned down an offer of $32,000 a year to talk five minutes a week over the radio. Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, and boss of Muscle Shoals, whose conscience as a public servant caused him to deliver to the attorney general a statement of all property owned by himself and his wife.

President Henry W. Kendall of the Kendall Manufacturing Company, operator of northern and southern textile mills, who urged at the first industrial recovery hearing that the cotton mills be required to make minimum wages and maximum hours apply to cleaners and outside help as well as operatives and that women and minors be excluded from night work.

President E. G. Buckland of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, who refused J. P. Morgan's offer of United Corporation stock at $75 a share when it was selling at $99 simply because his road was going to negotiate a contract with a power company.

"ON land and sea," says a wall inscription crossing the auditorium above the stage where the recovery hearings are being held and surmounting a mural map of the world with all its trade routes, "the lanes of man's commercial enterprise have marked the progress of civilization."

And hundreds of sweltering people watch directly beneath it the first step in the industrial phase of America's new program of economic nationalism.

SOME jobs have been obtained in these "New Deal" emergency organizations by strangers who simply walked into offices, squatted down and went to work. In several instances the squatters soon seemed to become indispensable to the men higher up.

Most of the administration headquarters have resembled squirrel cages with the squirrels running in different directions, but sufficient order has been attained so that applicants now must command some political backing in the usual manner. (Copyright, 1933, NEA Service, Inc.)

Eastland County Printers Meet

Printers representing Eastland county newspapers met at the courthouse today to discuss the recovery act. From these county meetings representatives will be sent to the state meeting. The action simply makes the printing industry in line with the general trend of helping solve the problems of every business. Nothing definite can be determined until every industry has reported back to the president. From these reports the president will proceed to place before congress the necessary legislation. That's when the excitement will begin.

Jiu-Jitsu Expert Taught Cops Tricks

By United Press
BAKERSFIELD, Calif.—If Bakersfield police went about today, hopefully awaiting some tough thug to attack them, it was because they got that way in school.

Some time ago, the police decided they weren't tough enough. They yearned to know all about handling bigger men than themselves, and how to take care of themselves in mob fights.

So they hired Jack Carson, 68-year-old jiu-jitsu expert, to teach them.

Rats Poisoned A Ranchers Cows

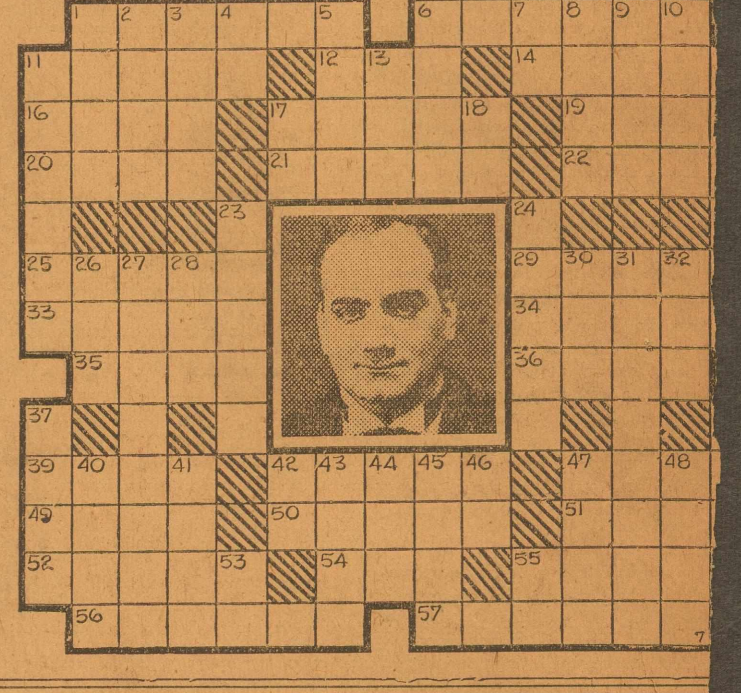

RICHFIELD, Cal.—When a rancher near here attempted to kill a family of pack rats by setting out poison meat balls for them, the rodents carried the meat balls to a grain bin. The rancher fed the grain to his cattle and two cows died.

Not content with that revenge, the pack rats carried two shot-gun shells to a nest just over the gasoline tank of the rancher's automobile. The cartridges were discovered before any accident occurred.

"Luckies Please!" of course. They please in the quality of their fine tobaccos. They please in the mildness and purity of "Toasting". They please the taste. They please the throat. DESDEMONA

Arcadia Today

When the aged or those who have been ill a long time are called the Angel of Death, it is hard on relatives and friends to give them up, but when one in only middle age and seemingly good health is snatched away it comes such a shock that it can hardly be realized that the loved one has been taken. Such was the passing of J. H. Rushing, aged 52, who was born in Llano county and who moved with his parents to Desdemona when he was four years old and resided here from that time until the day of his death, last Thursday morning, June 29, 1933. For just a few weeks he had been losing weight and not feeling very well, but kept up and attended to business all the time, but at 3 o'clock that morning he was seized with a heart attack and was gone before his wife could call their only son, Weldon. For the past eight years he had served our town as mayor, always interested in everything for the good of our community. At an early age he was converted and joined the Baptist church and served his church faithfully in various offices, being teacher of the Bible class at the time of his death. Besides his church and city government affairs, he was an active member of both the Odd Fellows and Masonic lodges. From all these varied activities of life he will be greatly missed and his place will be hard to fill. He was ever a devoted husband, loving father, kind and thoughtful friend and neighbor. He is survived by his wife and son and four brothers, one sister and many other relatives to whom sincere sympathy is being extended. His youngest brother is Roy Rushing, one of our leading business men. Funeral services were conducted Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Baptist church, Rev. Neal Greer of Rising Star, a former pastor, making the main address and being assisted by Rev. David Phillips of DeLeon, and his pastor, Rev. Z. C. Chambliss. The Masonic lodge, with N. D. Gallagher as leader, conducted their impressive burial rites at the grave. The beautiful copper casket and vault were very appropriate. Floral offerings were especially numerous and beautiful as tokens of the love and esteem in which this good man was held. Out of town relatives and friends present were: Octavius Rushing and family and Octavius Rushing and daughter, Jewel, all of Richland Springs; Charles Rushing and family of Stephenville; Mr. and Mrs. Dave Briscoe and son, Lorenzo, Arch Little and Miss Ruth Little, of Abilene; Gerry Grice and family and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Farmer and Mrs. Sroloes of Stephenville; Joel Herrington and sons, Grice and Woodrow, of Lorenzo; Mr. and Mrs. Gus Horton and little grandson and Miss Phillips of Rising Star; C. E. May of Ranger; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Blackwell, V. V. Cooper Jr., and Dr. and Mrs. P. M. Kuykendall, of Ranger; Mr. and Mrs. Dave Ramsey, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Boucher, Ira Underwood, Dr. George Blackwell and Fred Higginbotham, of Gorman; Frank Leach of Cisco; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wood of Ranger; R. For the past two weeks numbers of large trucks have been passing through Desdemona going to the farms near here for Irish potatoes, a crop that is proving quite profitable this year. The average price being paid is only $1.10 per hundred pounds, but the yield is so large that at even that price the farmer is making money at it, according to reports. Lem Keith, who lives in the School Hill community, is the champion potato grower, as he produced 80,000 pounds from 12 acres. The seed potatoes were ones he saved from his fall crop last year.

Mmes. C. W. Maltby, Fred Welder, Mattie Henry, Bill Parks, J. H. Jackson, C. E. Ragland, I. N. Williams, Cecil Williams and Roy Rushing attended the Eastern Star school of instruction at Stephenville on Tuesday of last week. "A" certificates were awarded to Mrs. Roy Rushing and Mrs. C. E. Ragland and "B" certificates were awarded to Mrs. Maltby, Mrs. Welder and Mrs. Jackson.

Mrs. Bill Thomas of Colorado arrived Monday and is visiting Mrs. C. M. Bratton. Mrs. Thomas lived here several years when she was a girl, her name being Miss Ora Lee Smith. While many of her school friends have moved away, there are still quite a number left, all of whom are delighted to see her.

They also brought with them Newby Simpson, who had finished his senior year. Newby graduated from Desdemona high school before he entered A. & M. college and his many friends still consider him one of our boys, though his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Simpson, have been living at Crane the past few years. Both Dick and Newby are receiving a hearty welcome back home.

FARMER IMPALED SELF ON FORK

WICHITA, Kan.—John Kropp, farmer of Harper county, died here recently after being impaled on a pitchfork. He was sitting on top of a load of alfalfa. Gentleman-Farmer "Dictator" Has An Important Role

WASHINGTON.—Charles Hoyt March is another of President Roosevelt's six-foot, gentleman-farmer "dictators," in charge of the vastly important administration of the federal blue sky securities act.

The security law is March's baby. He has been trying to get it adopted ever since he became a member of the federal trade commission four years ago. He wrote most of it and he thinks it is one of the best laws congress ever passed.

He likes to stand with feet planted well apart, explaining the bill in loud, gruff tones. When he makes a point he smiles so broadly that the skin crackles at the corner of his eyes and he almost shouts:

"Do ya see?" If his audience doesn't see, March explains over again. By now every clerk within earshot is familiar with all the complexities of the complex securities law.

March is a distinguished attorney, prosperous banker and one of the most progressive farmers for miles around Litchfield, Minn., his home town.

He owns there a 1,000-acre farm stocked with blooded horses and cattle.

March thinks a ride on one of his own fine horses is the best fun any man could ask. He considers a glass of milk from one of his fine cows as nectar.

His horseback riding and his milk-drinking have kept him exceptionally youthful and vigorous. He doesn't look his 63 years, except for his multi-colored hair. It is partly candy, partly gray, partly white and getting a little thin in the middle.

March has only one hate—the stock faker.

His face gets livid and he sputters angrily when he runs across the often-recurring case of the city slicker selling the widow $10,000 worth of some such shares as Amalgamated Grapefruit of Alaska, Inc.

He was equally as angry over the sale in this country of millions of dollars worth of worthless bonds from assorted revolution nations across the seas.

All that, however, is history now, thinks March, thanks to his securities control bill.

His staff, incidentally, is exceptionally busy these days telling securities houses what they can't do—and more important—what they can.

Some concerns have gone out of business because of the law. Some have laid off their salesmen. Some have quit advertising altogether. March calls that foolish. He holds that any honest seller of honest stock can stay in business and be just as prosperous under the law, as before.

Memorial Building Contains Data for Future Citizens

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas.—When and if archaeologists of future ages examine the ruins of the Sophienburg Memorial, recently dedicated here, they will find comprehensive data on 20th century life in Texas, the United States and the world.

In the cornerstone of the building, erected as a memorial to German pioneers who settled in Comal county in the 1840's, were placed papers and articles relating to many phases of contemporary life. They included:

A list of local churches and schools and their memberships, population figures for the United States, Texas, Comal county and New Braunfels; current commodity price lists; "rules" of all civilized nations and their forms of government; copies of the New Braunfels Zeitung, the New Braunfels Herald and the Texas Bluebonnet; stamps and coins, and records of local American Legion and Boy Scout organizations.

The memorial was planned and erected as a tribute to a group of Germans who came to the United States to escape oppression in the fatherland. They landed on the Texas Gulf Coast at Matagorda Bay and toiled slowly over the wilderness by ox cart and afoot, finally reaching the foothills at the head of Comal Springs. On the spot where the memorial building stands they built their first shelter, the Sophienburg, named after Sophie, the sweetheart of Prince Solms Braunfels.

THE WILD MEN By Laufer

Fighting has taken on new glamour with the world's heavyweight champion and challenger a couple of guys who would have been right at home pounding each other as they stood on the brink of some prehistoric precipice.

Primo Carnera a throwback to the dear old dipodocus, or something like that—and Max Baer, a jabberwock if ever there was one! In their last two battles, these two showed something dark from the jungle, something that the ring has lacked since Dempsey went to his doom in Chicago roaring for Gene Tunney to "come on and fight."

Ring fans who have looked too long at tameness, realized that there was a wild man close to their hearts when they saw Max Baer smash Max Schmeling under a shower of blows.

They beheld a giant suddenly converted into a dragon when Primo Carnera reverted to type in his fight with Jack Sharkey and overpowered the Boston boxer with a fusillade of fury.

The ring world is waiting for these two to bare their teeth and tear in. It should be Dempsey-Firpo all over again—or better than that.

Dog Hitch Hiked Back to Master

BOISE, Idaho.—It's a wise dog that knows enough to hitch-hike and C. H. Christensen owns such a dog. A group of picnickers parked their cars alongside a road in a canyon near Boise. When they were ready to leave, the driver noticed a dog on the running board. Orders to "scram" were answered only by a wag of a tail and a pointed nose to the west. So the autoists drove on.

About 14 miles along the road, the picnickers passed a camp where they heard commands to stop.

"What are you doing with my dog?" asked Christensen of the tourists.

"Giving him a ride," came the answer. "He asked for it several miles down the road."

The dog jumped from the car, wagged its tail, and the picnickers continued on their way.

Indian Treasure Is Being Sought In An Old Cavern

By United Press
TEMPLE, Tex.—More than a century ago, so legends say, Indian Chief San Savas stood near a fork of Salado creek and looked at the sweating backs of Indian braves who toiled with heavy rocks.

For six months the Indians had swarmed over a hillside, digging, moving boulders, and even transplanting a tree. They were weary. Chief Savas raised a hand in signal, his men gathered about him, and with a backward glance the entire party silently disappeared in the underbrush.

Behind them, so traditions say, they left 500 jack loads of gold buried in a sealed, water filled cavern.

This week a farm two and a half miles west of Prairie Dell teemed with suppressed excitement. Machinery, spades, picks and other equipment jolted across ploughed fields to the site of a large tree. Beside it was a hole that led to an unknown cavernous depth. A few persons believe it leads to the fabled $14,000,000 worth of lost gold bullion.

At least, G. C. Pope, Williamson county farmer, and his associates intend to find out the truth of the tradition. W. F. Cullen, former telegraph dispatcher at Temple, Harry Allen of Belton, T. J. Nelson, Temple and S. C. Robertson of Salado, have joined in the expensive task of seeking the treasure cave.

They propose to pump dry the water-filled cavern, and explore it.

An Indian laborer, who worked on the Pope farm, told the story of the San Savas treasure, claiming the Indian chieftain was his great grandfather. Many points in the Indian's tale have been verified, it was claimed.

1. The Indian declared two air holes leading from the top of the hill into the cavern were marked by elm trees on the north side of each. Pope said three were located.

2. A glance into one of the air holes would reveal a stalactite formation resembling a man's leg, the Indian claimed. Pope said this too was found true.

3. Equipment of the old San Savas mine included a smelter and a rock crusher, according to the tale. Pope found a crusher bearing the date 1811 stamped into the metal.

4. The Indian said the treasure cavern was flooded with water from Salado creek. Pope declared that muddying water in the cave also muddied Salado creek.

5. The Indian claimed the cavern runs beneath the creek. Pope said that smoke from a fire built in the mouth of the cave escaped from crevices in a pasture two miles on the other side of the creek.

The Indian also claimed his grandfather, Red Eagle, entered the cavern through a secret entry in 1884 and carried away $4,000 worth of gold. The entire cache of gold may have been removed.

Silver and gold from the old San Savas mission, and a 250 pound solid gold bull's head the Indians worshipped, are said to be hidden in the cavern.

Mineralogists and historians, asked to comment on the tale, acknowledged an interest in the story, but denied any conviction that the vast wealth actually lies buried in the cavern.

Now that the sunburn season is here, perhaps that noise you hear at the bathing beaches is caused by the peeling of the belles.

GEARHART, Ore.—Glass balls used by Japanese fishermen for floats for nets are frequently picked up on this and other Oregon beaches. The balls range in size from about 5 to 45 inches in circumference and are of varied color. It is impossible to tell how long it takes them to cross the Pacific. One large ball picked up had barnacles growing on the sides.

Performance Check Cards similar to the one reproduced in this advertisement were distributed to Texas motorists by Humble Service Stations. Thousands of them have been returned to the Humble Company at Houston.

When Humble Motor Fuel was announced six weeks ago, we made no exaggerated advertising claims for our new product. We said to the motorists of Texas, "Test Humble Motor Fuel in your car; compare it with any regular priced gasoline you have ever used; then tell us what you think of it." Literally thousands of Texans have tested Humble Motor Fuel. They have sent us their comments on Performance Check Cards which they secured at Humble Service Stations. Many of them say: Humble Motor Fuel develops more power than other regular priced gasolines. Many of them say: Humble Motor Fuel has a quicker pick-up and smoother acceleration than other regular priced gasolines. Many of them say: Humble Motor Fuel has eliminated the knock from my motor. Many of them say: Humble Motor Fuel gives more miles per gallon than other regular priced gasolines. And all of them say: Humble Motor Fuel definitely delivers smoother performance. The Humble Company knew these things were true when Humble Motor Fuel was introduced to the public. But they were not used as "advertising claims;" nor are they advertising claims today. They are voluntary statements from your friends and neighbors, on file at the Humble Company's home office in Houston and photostatic copies of the cards from your city are on file with the local Humble agent who will be glad to show them to you on request. They prove the definite superiority of Humble Motor Fuel over other regular priced gasolines with the only worthwhile test—the test made in your own car under all sorts of driving conditions. This unanimous acceptance of Humble Motor Fuel by the motorists of Texas leads us to repeat a statement we made earlier in this series of advertisements: The Humble Oil & Refining Company will never allow its products to take second place.

Joshua 14:6-14

By BEULAH K. HICKS

aleb, a marvelous old man; 85 years old, was the representative of the great tribe of Ash, the royal tribe. He stood there a noble specimen of manhood that day in 1454 B. C. He reviewed his life to Joshua that night claim the promise of God which was promised 45 years before. He spoke of the time when the spies were sent out and 10 of them saw the giants and impossible things and that he saw God and they followed Him. For this reason Hebron, occupied by a race of giants, Anakim, "cities great and fortified," promised to Caleb. With youthful eagerness he sought of his age and strength for as it was in the year that the promise was given. Joshua, no doubt, as he listened to him, and looked at the well preserved man, whose body and mind were as firm as steel, learned discipline under the elder in the days of bondage, again his deep experiences, in the struggle for freedom, that deep faith that came from the consciousness of God's presence with him. This comprehensive faith led to deep convictions which gave him a noble courage which knew no fear and put a spring heart in his bosom which was his young. No doubt but he said to Caleb, "Blessed is the man that maketh the Lord his God."

Joshua blessed Caleb and set him Hebron for his inheritance. Caleb stood firm and spoke of the Lord my God. We are told this is a striking word in the Bible; a pictorial word, describing a ship going at full sail. He went in for God and his cause, as a ship in full sail. In this rush of the present day many are falling victims to the anxious prostration and filling a grave, we might study more closely and wholly in his program. Truly the hills are numerous, the hills are fortified on all sides; when we, like Caleb, "go in" God's cause like a ship with full sails, we develop a "conscious unity and a conscious union with the Father" that will conquer all obstacles.

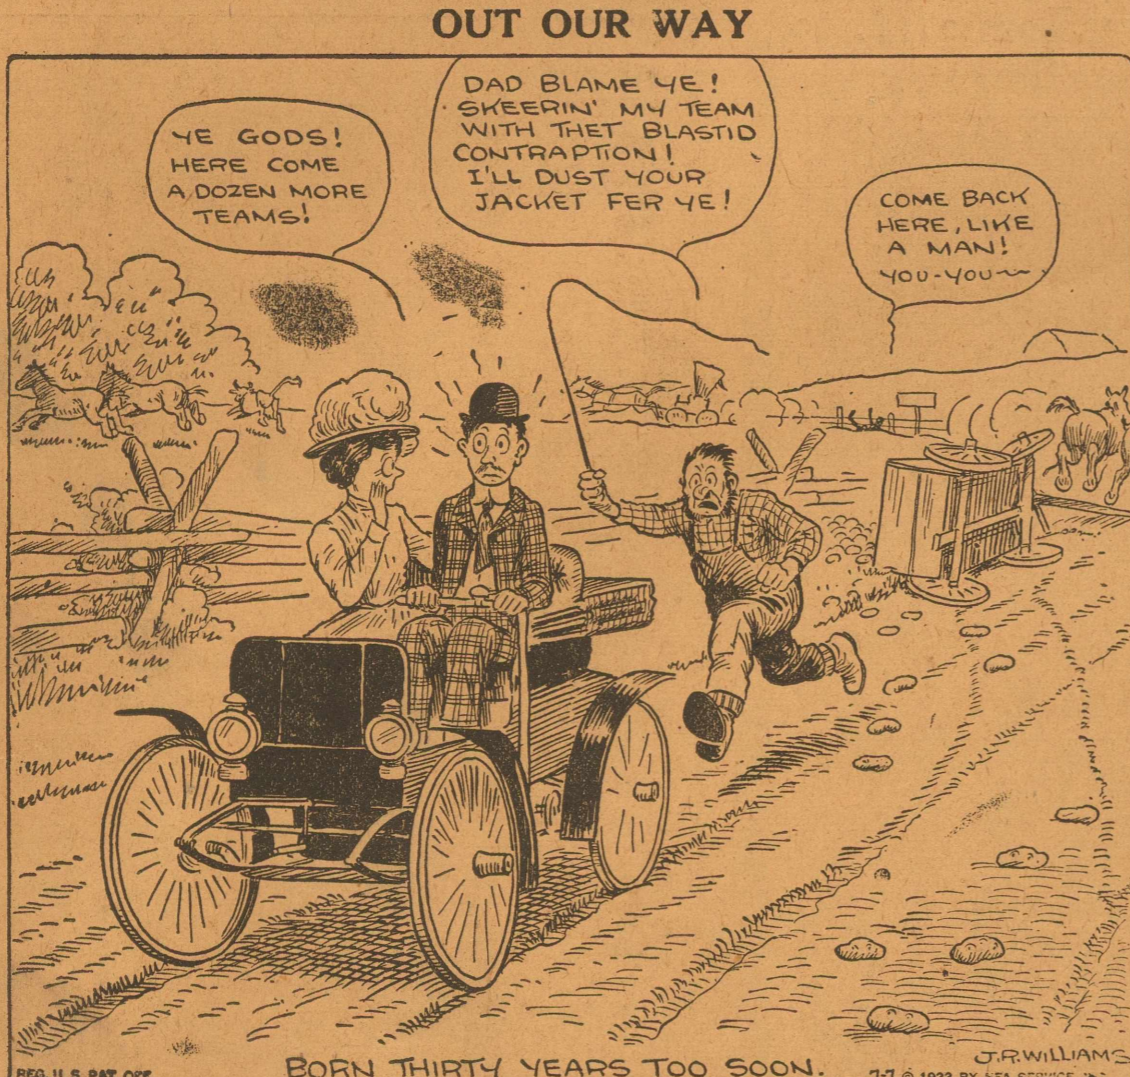

It will give "the singing heart" that shines out, and develops a personality that "will let others see Jesus in you" and leads in paths of service over Hebron's rocky hills to the valley of service in an obedience which can reach out and claim God's promises at all times. "I will lift up my eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, which made Heaven and earth." Psalm 121:1-2.

As planned by the administration, signers of contracts would organize local county wheat production control associations which would handle the relief through direct contact with regional wheat offices. It is proposed to meet the local expense of administration in the counties by levies on farmers' benefits, estimated to amount to an average of the country over of about 2 cents per bushel.

The plan in brief consists of the grower signing a three-year contract to reduce acreage as directed by the administration and to farm the remaining wheat acres in a workmanlike manner, in return for which the farmer would be paid each fall 30 cents per bushel for the portion of the expected crop that is estimated will go into domestic human consumption. Payments would be made in two installments, the first about Sept. 15 and the other after seedling time. First payments would be made this fall, which means that in exchange for a reduced acreage for 1934 and 1935 the grower would receive three yearly payments, in the autumns of 1933, 1934 and 1935.

Of vital interest to Texans is the crop insurance feature which provides that payments will be made if the farmer fulfills his part of the contract even though the crop is destroyed by hail, wind, drought or insects. On the other hand, a farmer must contract this year for three years and he may not withdraw. Failure to comply with the contract later this year or in the succeeding two years would result in the government declaring the advance payments a lien against future crops. As the plan stands now farmers who have grown wheat one and two years would have to reckon their acreages on a three year average which would virtually eliminate them. This provision is being protested by Texas and other states where new settlers have recently opened up farms.

"The plan for the relief of the wheat farmer is a formative stage and may be modified later by direction of M. L. Wilson, United States wheat administrator," states Mr. Martin.

BARGAIN BRIDIE

By KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY BARRETT COLVIN, back in New York after years abroad, falls in love with ELINOR STAFFORD. He is 35 and she is 20. Elinor returns his affection but her jealous, scheming mother, LIDA STAFFORD, breaks up the romance by convincing Barrett that Elinor was only flirting with him.

Rich MISS ELLA SEXTON, Elinor's aunt, dies and, to the despair of the relatives, leaves her entire fortune to Barrett. Lida Stafford has been flirting with VANCE CARTER. When Vance learns she will not divorce her husband, BENWELL STAFFORD, he shoots Barrett. It is uncertain whether the wounded man will live or die.

Barrett does not want Miss Ella's money but can not give it back to the rightful inheritors because of their pride. Suddenly a plan comes to him. He tells Elinor that if she will marry him he will give her in his house for a year he will give her the entire sum to divide between her relatives.

Knowing the money may save her father's life, Elinor agrees. They decide to have the ceremony next day. Elinor's voice came over the wire a trifle unsteady. "Yes, Barrett," she said. "Dearest, Art Palmer-I mean Doctor Palmer-" he corrected himself mockingly, "wants to know whether you want to be spliced-I think he said-in his church?" Her voice trembled even more. It was the way he said it. "Dearest."

"I'd like it very much if you would." "I'd like it very much anywhere," he assured her. He added, "Is everything going along as it should?" He could not deny the tenderness he felt for her. After all, the situation she was facing would be difficult for any girl. "Oh, yes!" she assured him. "Quite certain?" "May I drop in this evening? There are a few things I want to talk about."

"Please do." "Then-until this evening, dearest," he said a bit too loudly. He heard her half-whispered, "Good-bye." Arthur Palmer was studying a paper knife which he twisted in his hands. He had known Barrett Colvin for many years and now he was worried. Barrett's tone had sounded artificial and forced. Arthur Palmer wanted this marriage to be a success. They both deserved that it should be. But a marriage hadn't much chance without honesty, he had learned from hearing the troubles of the married, as he did almost every day.

It snowed during the night as Elinor lay awake. Just before dawn she fell asleep, to open her eyes at nine on a day that was clear, cold and bright. Celeste was standing at her bedside, smiling tenderly. For a moment Elinor wondered at Celeste's presence and then she smiled. Then it came back to her that this was not a dream. And with the truth came full consciousness of the ordeal before her. "It is a beautiful day, this day of your marriage!" Celeste ventured. Celeste was happy about the wedding. Only the French can blend emotion and calculation without a cheapening of either! Elinor sat up, hugging her knees.

and staring at a window which framed a square of the glittering world. She would go to the church at 12 to meet Barrett Colvin. They would be married. Then she would go with him to his house and that would start the pretense that must endure for a year. Her father would have everything he needed; her cousin, Phillip, his rightful share; her aunt and uncle, an almost-forgotten peace, and their sons, the chance they so deserved. The Thropes would accept a share of the money from her, Elinor was certain. Celeste was running her bath. An almost overpoweringly sweet scent floated to Elinor from the room that was filling with steam. Celeste had evidently borrowed boldly from one of the many Venetian glass bottles standing on the peacock blue shelves of her mother's dressing room. "Something old and something new, something borrowed and something blue," chanted Celeste, returning. Elinor laughed. "But I haven't anything that isn't old, Celeste!" she admitted.

Celeste had considered that, she confessed, nodding. She had slipped out to buy a handkerchief and if Mademoiselle would deign to carry that it would be new. Celeste then reached into a pocket of her pert, small apron. Elinor took the offering, a pretty bit of cob-web linen, broad-hemmed and embroidered with a bold "E. S." "It was sweet of you, Celeste!" exclaimed Elinor. Her mother had had no thought of her. She had been thinking only of how much Barrett would do now to make up for his "treachery" about the will. "Last night I added the letters," said Celeste. "Ah, and with love. I thought of you-thinking of your sweetheart!" Elinor flushed. True, she had thought of the one Celeste called "her sweetheart" most of the night but not as Celeste had dreamed. "I shall keep the handkerchief always, Celeste," she said. "I am so grateful to you, and I'm going to show it to Mr. Colvin." "Ah, Mademoiselle, you are so sweet! I dream that some day I may be in your service!" "I would like nothing better, Celeste. I'll remember that," Elinor promised.

DERRICK SHADOWS

By V. MARIE STEPHENS

Have been reading a lot lately from authors who aspired to journalistic fame back when romance was a mere babe in arms... back when "our heroine blushed."

Also have been delving into modern stuff, with the printer's ink still sizzling in keeping with the material used. It doesn't do to mix the two. It's like taking a combination course in Greek and Egyptian hieroglyphics with a smattering of good old North American history.

I find myself waiting for the 1933 girl-of-his-dreams to bloom forth into a blissful blush... which she never does... And urging the bused one on to get her man... which she, alas, never does... but goes through life suffering secretly as befitted one of her day.

The crimson stain spreading so delicately over the fairer one's features back when Alcott and Johnson and James dipped into fiction, was a sign of charm, culture, breeding... Today it signifies that Madame has not "been around" enough, she is not sure of herself, it marks her as uninteresting... something lacking.

And that's what a mixture of writers will do for you... put unanswerable questions in your mind; a laugh at yesterday, a worried frown at today... something definitely wrong with both of 'em. This being camping weather, it's amusing to watch the highways. Of course everybody talked a lot about Chicago and after they went and came back, continue to wonder about a vacation... according to a wearied soul I talker to the other day.

"The trip and the Fair were wonderful... but I need a rest now." And what can be more restful than lying around in the shifting shadows on a river bank somewhere... a target for poison ivy... a square meal for the most depression-struck mosquitoes? It brings out the native in one. If you never get a nibble or see a cork go under... if you return with your hair long and stringy, and your arms scratched and a jumpy sensation that you've lost some of your parlor polish...

At least you've been on a vacation... and home looks good. Your cave-man instincts have been turned loose for a few days... you've abolished all ideals and customs, and existed without the disturbing presence of electrical annoyances... all in all, you've lived. Civilization is great. But 11 months and two weeks of it... well, every red-blooded being with an ancestor to give him social rank needs a little harking back to the tree-swinging days. In case you don't know how to pronounce the name of Lieut. William H. Hurst, a Siamese who was arrested in Chester, Pa., recently, we can assure you that it is pronounced exactly as it is spelled.
