A BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
 PRAYER FOR WISDOM: So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom.—Psalm 90: 12.

IT BUILT THE COUNTRY
 Farm loan and home loan and anti-foreclosure measures are only the temporary, negative and relief side of a fundamental fact upon which Texas and the nation have based their growth.

That is the wide ownership of the soil as a prerequisite to contentment of a people and prosperity of a country.

Against the iron Calvinistic theocracy of New England that governs men's lives and thoughts as well as their souls, only the widespread ownership of land, that spread colonization, at last was able to bring democratic rule to what was then the nation.

As long as the South and West, and Texas a republic and a state, engaged in homesteading of land to citizens, there was growth, the accretion of wealth, the spread of contentment, prosperity and democracy.

Rescue measures, such as laws to protect some of the home-owners and farm-owners, are urgently needed now, to save one of the bulwarks of the nation. It is hard to comprehend, with the basic fact so plain, why a people has permitted its government so far to drift as to levy the unconscionable burdens of past years upon the owning of homes and land. Texas has seen more than half its farmers become tenants.

The billions now being spent to create work for jobless people, if spent in tying families back to ownership of homes and farms, whether the loans ever were repaid, would go immeasurably further toward stabilizing conditions than it can in luring still other thousands to overcrowded cities, and tending to make them permanent charges upon government bounty.

Of course, too much wheat and corn and cotton are grown now, one says. But those tilling their own farms would grow their own food. And the answer to overproduction is that, under past conditions, nearly all the wealth created by production has gone to others than the tenants who produced it.

NINETEEN MILLIONS ASKED FOR PUBLIC WORKS IN TEXAS

Texans speaking through the state rehabilitation and relief commission announced applications received by it for federal loans under the public works program aggregated $19,759,057. There were 127 applications including the Austin program. State Director Lawrence Westbrook said applications would be submitted to the federal regional administrator for consideration "as son as that official had been chosen." Col. Clifford Jones of West Texas is the regional director. He will boss the job for the Southwest. A state advisory board of three for Texas will be named. Secretary Harold Ickes will say the last word.

It is beginning to dawn on the American people that all the appropriations for national recovery and public works construction are not "federal or state grab bags."

A WARNING TO TEXAS CONGRESSMEN

James Shaw is state manager for the homeowners loan corporation. From his Dallas headquarters he has given the warning that unless recommendations of Texas congressmen for the appointment of county appraisers and attorneys are in his hands by Monday he will name the members of the state setup without the assistance of the aforesaid M. C.'s.

Is it possible that there is a Texas congressman who is unable to find in his district acceptable attorneys and appraisers to fill the posts? Before his departure for Dallas state manager Shaw had 5,000 letters or wires from as many individuals offering to sacrifice themselves on the altar of their state and nation and "no questions asked."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK
 By EDSON R. WAITE, Shawnee, Oklahoma

Instances of government reports achieving the distinction in the category of best sellers are as rare as rook's eggs. The ordinary man, when handed an official report of the kind mentioned, regards it with asstance. To him it is nothing but a collection of facts and figures, dry as dust and not worth a second look. For that attitude he can scarcely be blamed. Outwardly they are depressing looking things, but if the trouble is taken to delve through their unattractive exteriors, quite a bit of interesting information can be laid bare.

The trouble with these reports is that they are not presented to the public in the right way, and only reach the eyes of a few people.

The right way to reach all the people would be for the reports to be written in a way that people could understand, and be placed in the advertising columns of the newspapers. This not only should be done by the national government, but by city, county and state governments as well.

Texas U. Coach To Publish Book
 By United Press

AUSTIN. — Clyde Littlefield, University of Texas football, track and field coach, will enter journalistic fields early in August with the publication of his book, "Track and Field Athletics."

The book is to be published by a firm here.

Littlefield's book represents the first major attempt to give sports in the southwest their due respect. His work will be a textbook for the coach, for the player, and a handy reference volume for sports writers, according to comments by his editors.

"Track and Field Athletics" will vary in subject matter from a compilation of Southwest and Interscholastic league records to exercises valuable in conditioning a man for track and field events, care of injuries, and principles of coaching.

HOOKS and SLIDES
 BY BILL BRAUCHER

"Hello, McCarthy!"

ON August 27 in Yankee Stadium, there will be an opportunity for some enterprising cameraman to make an interesting picture. For, on that day the St. Louis Browns will open a series with the Yankees, and Rogers Hornsby will meet Jos McCarthy again.

Both are members of the Association of Ex-Managers of the Chicago Cubs. There was a great deal of talk among friends of McCarthy when Hornsby was named to succeed him back in 1930. It was to the effect that Hornsby, whose reputation as trouble-maker is baseball legend, had undermined Marce Joe.

The picture to be taken on August 27 would show McCarthy and Hornsby shaking hands and beaming at each other. It would clear up a lot of stories about McCarthy's rancor.

Not a Yes Man

AS a matter of fact McCarthy never has substantiated any of these rumors, whether he feels or not that it was the Rajah's ambition that opened the gate for him at Chicago. McCarthy has passed off his dismissal from the Cubs as one of the pranks of baseball in which you are a hero today and something less than that tomorrow. Joe has spoken proudly of Hornsby's ability as a baseball man.

Most of Hornsby's trouble has been the result of his brutally frank speech and his absolute certainty of his own wisdom in baseball affairs. He is a "No" man by nature. When he was acting as manager of the Giants the front office questioned one of his moves. Hornsby let go a blast that made the ceiling rattle.

of the team. There will be none of that under Hornsby. The Rajah will run the team.

Another angle that will be fun to follow is Hornsby's work with the weakest hitting team in the league. Hornsby, the great hitter, managing the puncheless Browns—a team hitting 50 points below the Senators!

Rogers the Boss

THAT means a drastic change to the conduct of the Browns' affairs. It is no secret that the front office has interfered time and again with the field management.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

ROGERS HORNSBY made the seventh place Cardinals world champions in 1926, a year and a half after he took charge of the team . . . and he faces the same opportunity with the Browns. . . . It was John McGraw's way of expressing contempt for Frankie Frisch when he traded Frisch and pitcher Jimmy Ring to the Cardinals for Hornsby seven years ago. . . . "A pitcher for good measure" Frisch had taken umbrage at McGraw and snapped back at him. . . . When Rajah was traded to the Giants, there was the matter of stock he owned in the Cards to be straightened out. . . . after Hornsby had been called into conference and agreed to sell for $100,000 Sam Breadon uttered his famous remark, "I'd rather argue with a roomful of tigers than Hornsby."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON
 WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Secretary of War George H. Dern functions under the aegis of the God Mars.

So it seemed fair enough that he should be the one to break into print with what appeared to be the first public break between a couple of cabinet members.

And it's fine to have as the Army's head a man who doesn't know when he's licked.

But Dern simply can't have that six or eight hundred billion dollars the War Department wants from the $3,300,000,000 public works fund.

He announced that he had been dissatisfied with the action which he "anticipated was about to be taken by the public works board" on the Army request for $135,000,000 for barracks and that was taken as a howl at Secretary of the Interior Ickes, chairman of the board.

Ickes simultaneously insisted that approved projects must be sane from both engineering and social viewpoints and "offer return in money or services to the community."

Dern's outburst was partly the result of sneer and partly for purpose of propaganda. Army requests for specific grants were being shoved off to sub-committees and he wanted to drum up support from the powerful "Army Lobby." He did stir up favorable pressure, but he also roused the pacifists, who marched to Ickes protesting the $50,000,000 sought for military motorization and other items for airplanes and ammunition.

The board meanwhile had studied a partial army engineers' program of $275,000,000 for rivers and harbors and flood control, lopped off about $100,000,000 and sent the balance to the White House for approval.

"Pork!" said Roosevelt of some of the projects as he sent the program back for further slashes.

Then he investigated the dispute between Dern and Ickes, since he didn't want any cabinet members fighting openly. He decided that Dern had been fairly treated.

GOVERNOR RUBY LAFFOON
 of Kentucky, who was taken for a fast ride here despite the fact that he had made "colonels" of many prominent figures in the administration, returned home convinced that he needed a "brain trust" of his own.

The powers here demanded that he should call a special session of his legislature: 1. To provide for a repeal vote. 2. To vote state unemployment relief funds, lest Washington cut off federal grants. 3. To create a satisfactory state highway administration if Kentucky wanted any public works highway funds.

Ruby apparently saw the point. He planned to draw on the University of Kentucky for his "brain trust."

By United Press

FLOYDADA, Texas. — Two Floyd county girls are having the unusual experience, that of being guests for more than 30 days at the state penal farm at Sugarland.

Mary Louise Conway, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Conway, is one of the girls and the other is her chum, Miss Imogene Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ray.

The girls are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Pierce, grandparents of Miss Conway. Pierce is superintendent of the farm. Mrs. Conway was reared at the farm, as was her mother before her.

"I have been on a furlough for the past 17 years," Mrs. Conway explained. "We told the girls that we hoped they would be better children when they came back."

Mrs. Pierce planned to return with the girls here to visit her daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Ray.

For the LOVE of EVE by Lucy Walling

BEGIN HERE TODAY
EVE BAYLESS, pretty assistant to CHARLES BARNES, advertising manager of Bixby's department store, secretly marries DICK MADEIR, a construction superintendent. Dick opposes her continued employment and pleads for a home but Eve is determined to go on working.
MARYA VLAD, fashion artist, and ARLENE SMITH, stenographer in the advertising office, see Eve's excitement but do not suspect her secret. Two hours after her marriage Eve learns that she must make a trip to New York for the store and that she must leave that night.
 She waits until she and Dick are at dinner before telling him this news. Dick takes her to the station and sees her aboard her train. From the train window she sees him join a gay party of young people.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

With fingers that shook Eve tore open the thin, yellow envelope.

EVE awoke with the dawn and lay for a long while watching the wintry Hudson river as the train sped by. She wondered about Dick—what he was doing at this hour, whether he was asleep and dreaming of her or on his way to work. She reached under her pillow for the chamomile bag. It was there and the little gold wedding ring was safe. She tried the ring on and decided to wear it until she arrived at the hotel.

Over her black pajamas she slipped a black silk robe with a great, golden dragon heavily embroidered on the back. A pair of golden mules completed her Pullman ensemble and she picked up her dressing case and made for the dressing room.

"Good morning," an uncertain voice greeted Eve as she entered. "Good morning," Eve answered with a swift appraisal of the young creature before her. An extremely plain face but one which was rapidly being transformed by the expert use of cosmetics. The other girl drew a blue wool frock over her head in one quick motion. Then she stood before the long mirror and pulled the dress tightly over her hips, turning right and left.

"There! All ready for the big adventure," she announced pertly. Eve lifted her eyebrows inquiringly. The girl lit a cigaret and confided, "I'm nervous as a cat. This is my first trip to New York. Married girl friend lives right across the river in New Jersey but she doesn't expect me. You see I've taken my life in my own hands. I want to find a husband before the bells ring 30. There's a new crop of girls springing up every year and there certainly aren't enough eligibles to go around at our four corners. My sister discovered it too late, so I'm hitting for new pastures before I'm past the age."

Eve duffed her hair with a little jade and gold comb. The girl watched her. "That's a pretty wedding ring," she said. "Well, you're one of the lucky ones—to have a husband in these days of competition!" The girl's hand was on the door knob when she turned back. "My name's Corinne Devore," she said, and paused. "Not that we're likely to meet again, of course," she hurried on when Eve remained silent, debating whether or not to return the confidence by telling her own name. "I know what you're thinking," she went on defiantly. "That it sounds made up. Well, it is! My real name is Cora Dilly. I've always hated it and I didn't see any reason for dragging it along to New York."

view Phoebe, Inc. She knows what Lake City is wearing before we know it.—Earle Barnes."
 Eve sank weakly into a deep cushioned chair. She was more than hurt. She was even a little frightened. Would this thing she had done always stand between her and Dick? He couldn't leave his work to come with her on a honeymoon trip. Why should he expect her to give up her big opportunity to spend a honeymoon at home? Oh, why had this whole miserable situation come about?

LATER however as she rode to the style advisory bureau of Phoebe, Inc., Eve's trained mind concentrated on the business of the day. Freda Carter was to meet her there. They had made the appointment in a hurried telephone conversation. Freda seldom stopped at a hotel when in New York, as she had a sister living in Brooklyn.

With Freda who was just back from Paris, her head full of fashion news and her trunks packed with French gowns, Eve made the rounds of New York's smartest shops. They spent a leisurely noon period with some advertising woman over a meal served peasant style in a quaint French restaurant. That evening Eve dressed for dinner in a new gown of pale gold lace. It represented the measure of her yielding to the temptation to purchase every lovely thing she beheld.

She found herself warming to Freda Carter. With her Eve felt none of the barrier of formality that often exists between women who are brought together by professional interests. They dined pleasantly at Eve's hotel. "About tonight," Freda said over the coffee cups, "I thought you'd like to see a musical comedy so I arranged it. I met an interesting man on the ship. Ernest Franks is his name. He's going to call for us at eight o'clock."

 Eve said she would enjoy going to the theater. She was surprised when two men instead of one met them as she and Freda left the elevator.

"I brought this lone wolf along," Franks explained after introducing Theron Reece, "because he needed company. I hope you'll like him."
 "He looks likable," Freda said as she and her escort led the way to a taxicab. Eve followed with Reece whose charms easily overshadowed those of Franks.

Judging from the applause the musical show was a great success. Eve followed its theme only vaguely. She permitted herself to lapse into lethargy, rousing occasionally to smile brightly at her companions. She was conscious of pleasing music and then the final curtain.
 Theron Reece hummed one of the song hits as he guided her through the lobby. As they joined the throng waiting for cabs outside he suggested a night club.

RECEE was disappointed when the head waiter was unable to seat them at a table in the inner circle. A smart chorus of young girls was dancing vivaciously, heartily. The applause was hearty and long. Then the dancing space was cleared for patrons. Franks did not dance but Reece apparently wanted to be on the floor all the time. Again and again he managed so that he and Eve were on the floor and the center of attention before the other dancers left their tables. Eve was not quite sure she liked this. The lights turned to a rosy glow and the orchestra played a waltz that made Eve think of Dick. Reece held her closely but Eve drew away.

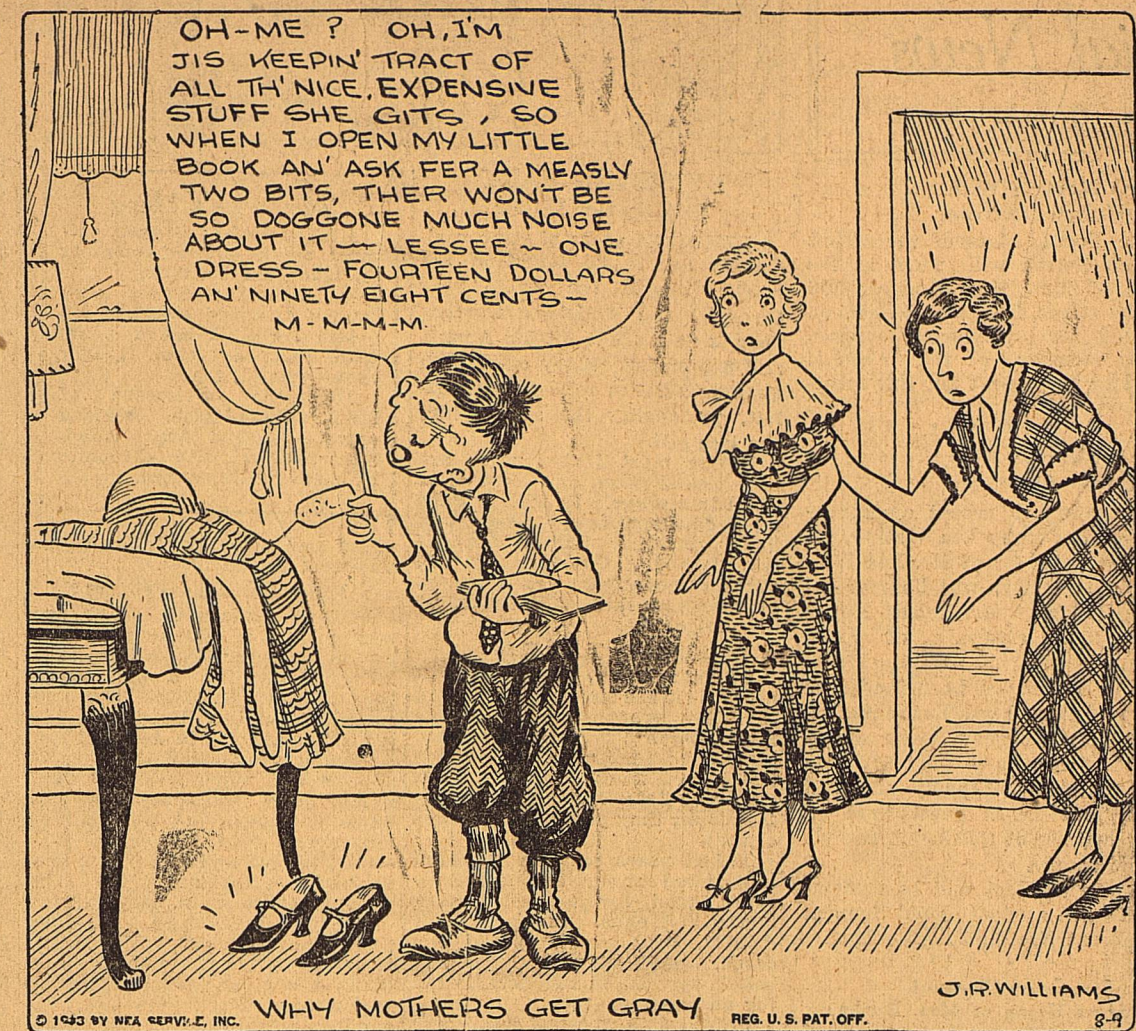

When they returned to their table Freda was displaying a new cigaret case she had purchased in Paris. She passed it around. Eve glanced at the other tables, then hesitatingly took a cigaret. Franks closed his hand over it. "Don't," he said. "It spoils the illusion." Then he added, "With apologies to Miss Carter!" Freda smiled. She did not mind. "And don't drink either," Reece added, as he poured the contents of a silver flask into three glasses of ginger ale. "We want you to keep that 'little girl' look. It's a rare thing in a place like this."
 As they left the night club Ernest Franks suggested walking a few blocks before he escorted Freda to her sister's home in Brooklyn. "Fifth Avenue is right around the corner," he said. "It's a glorious night and the windows after midnight are always worth looking at." Freda agreed to walk with him. The sidewalks were dry and her long fur coat protected her against the cold. But Reece protested that Eve's wrap was inadequate, so they separated. Reece signaled a taxicab and he and Eve drove to her hotel.

"Are you so absurdly young as you look?" he asked. Then, without waiting for an answer, he deliberately took her hand. He held it tightly and Eve did not try to withdraw it. After all, it was but a few blocks to the hotel. Suddenly the man took her in his arms and, before she could free herself, pressed his lips to hers. They arrived at the hotel and Eve, without so much as a good-night, hurried to the elevator. (To Be Continued)

Fort Worth Girl 'Learning to Hear' After Many Years

By United Press FORT WORTH.—It is a queer world to Miss Dorris Morrow, attractive Fort Worth girl, since she can hear.
 For the first time she can remember Miss Morrow is able to hear sounds. This through the aid of an instrument. She had been deaf since she was a year old.
 She is now learning to associate sounds with objects but at first the noise of a passing automobile, a factory whistle or a song meant nothing to her, other than sound vibrations in her ears.
 Her own voice even surprised her. It sounded terrible the first time she heard it, she said, and she threw her hands over her ears.
 Recognizing her own name by sound was one of her biggest difficulties.
 Words that she used in her own speech meant nothing to her orally. She is an expert lip reader and through that medium she began to associate words and sounds.
 (Miss Morrow never has used the sign language. In several years at special schools she was taught how to operate her vocal cords so that she could speak. Her language is remarkably accurate.)
 She finished her high school course in public school here in 1930 with excellent standing. Before entering school here she spent eight years in the Central Institute for Deaf in St. Louis, where she learned to use her vocal cords adeptly.
 Miss Morrow withdrew from the College of Industrial Arts at Denton last winter, after two years work, because of ill health.

ALTHOUGH pears of some variety are to be found in the market almost the whole year through, the delicious Bartlett pear is at its best during August and September. Many other high quality varieties follow the Bartlett, prolonging the season into the late fall.

Unlike most fruits, pears are best picked green and allowed to ripen in storage. In this way the fruit develops better flavor and finer, smoother texture than if tree-ripened. Consequently, in choosing pears, those on the verge of greenness rather than ripeness are desirable.

Excellent Tonic Fruit

In spite of their seeming sweetness, pears are somewhat acid and therefore are an excellent tonic fruit. Their flavor is refreshing, tending to tone up a tired appetite. Used fresh in salads, fruit cups and desserts, or as a breakfast fruit, they provide a welcome change.

Baked pears may be prepared like baked apples and are especially good for breakfast with bacon and eggs. If wanted for dessert, they can be pared and cored, sprinkled with sugar and baked, covered, in a moderate oven for an hour.

Served with whipped cream and ginger cookies, they make an inviting last course for an August dinner. Two tablespoons sugar for each pear make the fruit pleasantly sweet for the average taste. A little powdered ginger

People have come to expect Chevrolet to lead the world in automobile sales. But this year Chevrolet has done even more than that. According to the latest available figures, Chevrolet alone has sold almost as many cars this year as all the rest of the low-price field combined!

When a car looms above its field like that, there can't be any argument about it. It must be an all-round better buy. And that's exactly what Chevrolet offers you. Fisher bodies, with the new ventilation system and the strongest and quietest body construction of the day—solid steel over a sturdy hardwood frame.* A valve-in-head six engine, unapproached for economy . . . Cushion-Balanced to blot out vibration . . . full of snap and vigor—altogether the most efficient engine in the low-price field.
