UNITED PRESS SERVICE BRINGS LATE NEWS OF THE WORLD TO TIMES READERS

RANGER, TEXAS, TUESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 24, 1939

PRICE TWO CENTS

NO. 194

OFFICERS FOR RANGER C OF C ARE ELECTED

Directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce met at a banquet Monday evening, at the Gholson Hotel, and re-elected Ken Ambrose as president. This will make the second year Ambrose has served as head of the organization.

Pleas E. Moore, for a number of years bookkeeper at Hassen's, was elected secretary, to replace J. E. Meroney, who recently resigned to assume management of a wholesale oil agency.

W. F. Creager, who has been chairman of the finance committee, was elected treasurer.

The directors discussed a number of applicants for the position of secretary before the selection of Moore was made, with two other applicants remaining on the ballot until the last. All balloting was done secretly, and it was not announced how anyone voted, either on the president or secretary.

Plans for the year's activities were not outlined at the meeting, as discussion and election of the officers took up much of the time and reading, explanation and discussion of the yearly audit kept the directors at the meeting until after 11 o'clock.

Nazis Are Armed With Real Strength Is Still Untested

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE
United Press Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Jan. 24.—On the 6th anniversary of Nazi Germany, the Reich leaders claim they could send a fleet of more than 40 submarines into the North Sea, cloud Europe's skies with probably 19,000 war planes, and put about 1,900,000 trained soldiers into the trenches.

Six years of Nazi rule have brought a tremendous change in Germany's armed forces which were rendered impotent by the World War treaties but which today are one of the powerful factors in the shifting European picture.

The German standing army of 1,000,000 men made possible the Nazi triumphs in Austria and the Sudetenland; is the backbone of today's "March to the East" through Central Europe; and may be an ace card in any new struggle.

The German navy, with 71 submarines built or planned, is projecting an underwater fleet of possibly 125 craft. Some experts believe 160 submarines may be built, including powerful ocean-going craft such as the war-time U-boats. Only last week, Berlin officially advised Great Britain of Nazi plans to achieve equality with British submarine strength and to build five new 1,000-ton cruisers with 8-inch guns.

The German air fleet, ranked by some experts as the greatest in the world and with excellent replacement facilities, is the big question mark of Europe's international quarrels.

But it remains a fact that the Nazi forces have not been fully tested.

Changes are Urged In Communication Commission Setup

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—President Roosevelt today said that he was "thoroughly dissatisfied" with the legal framework and administrative machinery of the Federal Communications Commission. He recommended legislation to reorganize it.

The president made known his views in letters to Chairman Burton K. Wheeler of the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission and Chairman Clarence F. Lea of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

The Federal Communications Commission has been torn by internal struggles almost since it was created by congress in a reorganization of the old federal radio commission.

IS GETTING BETTER
Mrs. Minnie Love, mother of Virgil Love, deputy county clerk, was reported improving Tuesday after a major surgery in a hospital at Fort Worth.

Senators Lend Their Ears

Just a trifle bored appear veteran Senators Alben Barkley, top; Charles McNary, center; Millard Tydings, lower, as they listen to young Senator Rush Holt, West Virginia Democrat and anti-New Dealer, opens up on Harry Hopkins and WPA "politics" during Senate fight on confirmation of Hopkins' appointment as secretary of commerce. A few minutes later Barkley rose to answer New Deal-baiter Holt's charges of WPA politics in Kentucky.

District Engineer For Commission to Resign On Feb. 1st

Local oilmen have learned that A. C. Stults, district engineer for the Texas Railroad Commission, who has been stationed at Abilene since August, 1937, has announced his resignation, effective February 1.

Stults, who survived the January Railroad Commission personnel shakeup, has resigned to take a position as engineer with the Thomas Y. Pickett company of Dallas, appraisal and consulting engineers.

He formerly taught petroleum engineering in Texas Tech at Lubbock, where he received his M. S. degree. Duties of Stults while with the commission frequently took him to this city.

Boys Of Seven Sees World Topsy-Turvy

By United Press
DECATUR, Ala.—The world is really upside down to Jimmie Peebles, 7-year-old Hillsboro, Ala. school boy.

When Jimmie reads a book, a newspaper or magazine, he holds it the wrong way. When automobiles pass along the street, they seem to have their wheels in the air. He thinks persons would look natural if they walked on their hands.

At least, that's the way Jimmie explained his predicament to an eye specialist in Decatur, where he was brought for treatment.

The optometrist examined Jimmie's eyes and found vision normal. He said the lad is bright for a boy of his age. To test Jimmie, the doctor had him read a comic page. Jimmie read very well for a second grade pupil, but he held the paper upside down.

Jimmie's school teacher discovered his condition when she noticed him holding his reader upside down. It was easier to read that way, he said.

Then she tried the blackboard. Jimmie read much more readily when it was inverted.

Officers Will Meet For Aid Tomorrow

Ruth Ramey, county home agent, has announced a home demonstration officers' training school will be held Wednesday afternoon beginning at 1:15 in the courthouse at Eastland.

Officers of girls' 4-H clubs are also being invited to attend the school, purpose of which is to acquaint the officers with their duties.

Sectional meetings will be held.

Ranger Boy Makes Many Long Trips With the TCU Band

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Garland Montgomery, of Ranger, is one of the members of the 60-piece Horned Frog Band of Texas Christian University.

The band, because of its travel with the football team and with the Fort Worth and West Texas Chambers of Commerce, has attained a wide fame as one of the outstanding musical groups of the nation.

On these trips the organization, directed by Prof. Don Gillis, has featured swing music.

"The Swing Band is a part of the show," Director Gillis explains. "People listen to the jazz music because they prefer it to marches. The band is considered part of the entertainment unit on these various trips."

"But the boys can also play the standard works of the classical composers. We often play swing for 30 minutes, and then get out our arrangements of Bach for another half hour of practice."

"We have the only college band I know anything about which memorizes all of its music. Every number is played from memory in public."

On the football trips, the band often proves to be as great an attraction as the Horned Frog gridsters. In Philadelphia last October the fans booed the football team when they returned to the playing field after the half-time intermission. They wanted more music by the Horned Frog Band instead of more football!

A San Francisco sports editor wrote: "The Santa Clara Bronchos (in view of three defeats at their hands in as many years) may not want the Horned Frog football team to return, but the fans would gladly spend another afternoon listening to that music." Don Gillis and his Horned Frog Swingsters."

The band broadcast a regular program over radio station WBAP at 10:30 o'clock Sunday night called "Backstage With the Horned Frog Band." It also goes on the air on numerous special programs during the school year.

A series of five concerts of "serious" music is played each year, in which the band presents music by Wagner, Tchaikowsky, Bach, and other masters.

Garland, a senior, plays trombone with the band.

Illness of Pipkin Father's Continues

Grady Pipkin of Eastland received information Tuesday morning that his father, J. C. Pipkin, is still in a serious condition. The Eastland man returned several days from his father's bedside at Canyon after going there on notification he was ill.

PARI MUTUEL BILL OFFERED IN THE HOUSE

By United Press
AUSTIN, Jan. 24.—Rep. Bailey B. Ragsdale of Crockett, filed with the chief clerk of the Texas house of representatives today a bill to allow pari-mutuel betting on horse races in communities which vote their approval in local option elections.

The bill was signed by eight other members of the house. It would create a Texas horse-racing commission of five unsalaried members, each of whom would have to be a bonafide breeder of thoroughbred horses.

Ragsdale estimated the bill, if adopted, would provide a revenue of $2,000,000 a year. The first 25 per cent would be allocated to public schools, the next $75,000 to Texas A. & M. College for purchasing jacks and stallions to be distributed throughout the state. The remainder of the revenue would be distributed as follows: two thirds for old age pensions and one third for matching teachers retirement funds.

ALEX FAMBRO CASE MOVED FROM BRECK

ABILENE, Jan. 4.—Dist. Atty. J. R. Black was notified yesterday that trial of Alex Fambro, charged with murder, had been transferred from 90th district court in Breckridge to 42nd district court at Baird.

Black's information was received in a letter from Ben J. Dean, 90th district attorney.

Unable to agree on a verdict, jurors in Fambro's case were discharged there two weeks ago. He is charged with the fatal shooting of Dave Wagley, a farmer in the Wayland community, also Fambro's home.

Lady Seeks Word Of Missing Father

E. T. Eubank, city secretary of Ranger, has received the following letter from a woman who is seeking word of her father, who lived in this part of the country about 1919 or 1920. Any information anyone might have about him could be forwarded to the address at the bottom of the letter, which follows:

"I am very anxious to find my father and would be very grateful if you would help me in locating him. He was last heard of in Ranger about 1919 or 1920. His name is either Jack or Frank Ludwig. I am not sure which. Could you give me any address that would help me trace him?"

"If you can not help me could you give me an address to a Missing Persons Bureau and what it would cost to find this information."

My mother's name was Mabel Agnes Lawrason and her maiden name was Mabel Agnes Thompson. Could you give me any information as to when she was married to Jack Ludwig and how many children were born of that marriage. If you cannot find such records could you give me any information as to where such records are to be found?"

"I would be very grateful for any help you might give me in this matter. Thanking you for your kind consideration,
Sincerely yours,
"Mrs. Dorothy Schweiss,
"137 20th Avenue,
"San Francisco, Calif."

Investigation of Secretary is Urged

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, republican, New Jersey, today introduced in the house a resolution calling for investigation of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins to determine whether she should be impeached.

The resolution asked that the judiciary, acting as a whole, or in sub-committee, investigate the official conduct of Miss Perkins.

IS IMPROVING
F. L. Drago of Eastland, who has been in a hospital at Cisco, was reported as improving Tuesday.

Holt Hammers Hopkins

Fists crammed with newspaper clippings used to embellish his speech, Senator Rush Holt, West Virginia Democrat and anti-New Dealer, opens up on Harry Hopkins and WPA "politics" during Senate fight on confirmation of Hopkins' appointment as secretary of commerce.

Probe of Crash of British Airliner Being Conducted

By United Press
NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—A British Air Ministry official and officers of Imperial Airways, Ltd., interviewed survivors and crew members today in an effort to establish the cause of the Cavalier's crash at sea.

Passengers who survived the crash in which three lives were lost said that they had no warning of danger and that lifebelts were not handed out until the plane hit the water and began to sink.

Capt. M. R. Alderson, in a newspaper interview, said he could not explain the failure of the plane's four engines which made the sea landing necessary.

He said he had often flown through much worse weather without any trouble. Asked if ice had formed on the carburetors, Alderson said it was a technical question he could not answer.

"The equipment was in such condition that it would have prevented the formation of ice on the carburetors."

Funeral Services Held at Hamilton For John H. Brown

Funeral services for John H. Brown, 85, father of Dr. L. C. Brown, city health officer at Eastland, were conducted Monday at Hamilton.

Mr. Brown died after several weeks' illness Sunday at his home near Hamilton. Burial was in a cemetery at Hamilton.

Mr. Brown, a native of Arkansas, was a retired farmer. He had lived near Hamilton for more than half a century.

He had been married for nearly 60 years. Mr. Brown was a member of the Methodist church. He was the son of a Methodist minister.

Glenna Johnson is Heard at Meeting

Glenna Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Johnson, was heard in a violin number at the Monday meeting of the Rotary club in Eastland at the Connelley Hotel. Albert Taylor was a member of the program committee.

Difficulties Of Railroads Are Told Committee

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Seventy-eight Class 1 railroads are in financial difficulties which have taken their control out of their owners' hands, congress was informed today at the beginning of hearings on legislations to assist solution of railroad problems.

Walter M. Splawn, member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, told the house Interstate Commerce Committee that of the Class 1 roads, 39 were in the hands of courts, 11 were in receivership and 28 were in trusteeship.

"The cause of the decline in net returns of the railways," Splawn explained, "are in a large part to be explained by the loss of traffic, but this has been accompanied by the retention of a high level of wage rates and decline in the average revenue per unit of traffic, both in the freight service and in the passenger service, the reduction in average charges being chiefly the result of competition with other transport agencies."

Chairman Clarence Lea in a brief statement opening the hearing said the committee expected to hear representatives of management and labor groups and of other transportation interests.

Lea said the bill he introduced, recently and which is the basis of the hearing "not specifically endorsed by the president and this committee and the hearings will be broader in scope than the provisions of the bill."

Splawn is chairman of a presidential committee on the railroad situation. His committee made recommendations similar to those in Lea's bill, but the committee regards the Lea bill as basis for extended hearings into railroad problems including a proposal to postalize railroad fares, rather than a final solution.

Junior College To Play Weatherford In Ranger Tonight

Ranger Junior College will play Weatherford Junior College in what is expected to be one of the best basketball games of the current season, when the two teams meet tonight in the Recreation building, Ranger. The game will be called at 7:30.

The Rangers are perhaps one of the most improved basketball teams in this part of the country, starting off with little experience and gaining momentum with each game. Coach H. J. Jennings is fast whipping a good team into shape and the game is expected to be closely contested throughout.

Lotief Daughter in Hospital at Gorman

Estelle Lotief, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lotief of Eastland, was reported in a critical condition Tuesday morning at a hospital in Gorman.

SALAZAR JURY IS COMPLETED THIS MORNING

By United Press
SWEETWATER, Jan. 24.—A jury was completed today to try Frank Salazar, 23-year-old farm hand, charged with killing the father of a 16-year-old girl whom he wanted to marry.

The indictment against Salazar was read to the jury, then a recess was taken for lunch.

Salazar is accused of having shot to death Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kennedy, a farm couple who lived near San Angelo, and of beating into unconsciousness their two youngest daughters. He also allegedly forced Wilma Kennedy, the daughter he was said to have loved, to accompany him on his flight after the killing.

Two Texas Rangers and two deputy sheriffs guarded Salazar, and other peace officers were in the courtroom.

MISSING BANK OFFICIAL HELD BY FBI AGENT

By United Press
DALLAS, Jan. 24.—Agent E. E. Conroy of the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today that Grover M. Yowell, wanted in Texas for embezzlement of $75,000, was arrested today in Memphis, Tenn., while driving a milk wagon.

Conroy said that Yowell was charged with embezzlement of the $75,000 from the Security National Bank of Paducah, Texas, of which he had been a vice president. He had been sought since 1931, when he disappeared.

Yowell was vice president and managing officer of the Paducah institution from Jan. 1, 1922 until the bank was forced to close on account of his defaultations on Oct. 30, 1931, according to the FBI.

Yowell was indicted by a federal grand jury at Wichita Falls on March 27, 1932, and has been a fugitive until today. Conroy said that Yowell had signed a waiver of removal and would be brought back to Texas to be tried.

Yowell disappeared with his wife and two sons on Nov. 15, 1931. They were reported seen later in tourist camps in Houston, Brownsville and Corpus Christi. Mrs. Yowell and the two children returned to the home of her father, J. D. Wilson at Cleburne, in June, 1932, according to the FBI, but left about a month later and rejoined Yowell.

Recruits Sought For U.S. Marines

A few years ago the United States Marine Corps conducted its recruiting along either the East or West Coast, but it is now seeking replacements for its personnel far from any seaboard. Thus it is indicated that the Marine Corps is reaching out to points remote from the sea to gather its necessary quota of replacements, a policy which is fully justified by the fact that about one-third of the Corps' enlistments during the recent fiscal year were obtained from inland states.

For a while Chicago was the only centrally-located city where application for the Marine Corps were considered, but an office is now operating in Dallas.

When two battalions of Marines were authorized in 1775, Congress stipulated that "no persons should be appointed to office or enlisted into said battalions, but such as are good seamen, or so acquainted with maritime affairs as to be able to serve to advantage."

Modern conditions have greatly modified this rule, and nowadays a knowledge of the sea is not required of Marine recruits. Marines are especially trained for sea duties; all of the Corps' important posts are near the sea; and most of the Marines when they are not actually assigned to duty aboard battleships or cruisers, make numerous voyages during an enlistment.

LOYALISTS IN LAST DEFENSE OF BARCELONA

By United Press
PERPIGNAN, France, Jan. 24.—The Spanish insurgent armies of Gen. Francisco Franco crashed through the last main line of Loyalist defenses today and closed in on the great city of Barcelona.

The insurgents officially announced the capture of the key cities of Manresa and Martorell as they fought their way across the Llobregat river, within striking distance of the capitol.

Barcelona appeared to be doomed despite the rally of every resource of the republicans to defend it. The government has moved north toward Gerona and Figueras. United States, British and French officials, aided by their warships, began evacuation of their nationals from the besieged city.

Constant air raids brought a mounting death toll and nationalist artillery from the south bombarded the outskirts.

The nationalists were closing in swiftly on Barcelona on three main routes along the Llobregat river. Along the coastal highway from the southeast they went past Gava toward the river banks near the outskirts of the capitol. To the west they announced they had taken Martorell, 10 miles away. To the northwest they had captured Manresa, 25 miles from the capitol.

The insurgents dominated part of the left bank of the Llobregat river, and pounded at hastily reformed lines of the loyalists.

The government rushed the evacuation of civilians but more than 100 were reported killed by the aerial raids.

Official military dispatches from insurgent headquarters at Burgos and Lerida reported that rebel troops had smashed against the Loyalist defense lines along the river Llobregat and had broken it. The dispatches described the maneuver as resulting in the "capture of the entire Llobregat defense lines, which is Barcelona's last defense line."

Details of the maneuvers, however, indicated the line had been broken by a rebel encircling movement but was holding about the river where the defense line is only five miles from the capitol.

Reducing No Task When Done Right Speakers Declares

SAN ANGELO, Texas — Research has revealed that reducing need no longer be a hardship and that "fad" or "starvation" diets are definitely out-of-date for losing one's extra pounds, according to Paul A. Goesser of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, in an address in this city.

"A group of over-weight persons ranging in age from 14 to 67 years of age and engaged in various occupations, lost weight at the rate of from 8 to 12 pounds per month on a diet built around lean meat, in a study conducted at a leading medical college," said Mr. Goesser. "In addition to meat, these persons were allowed eggs, cheese, dairy products, vegetables, fruits, bread, butter and coffee. In other words, this was a normal diet except that it was higher in protein and lower in starches and sugars than the average diet. The persons on this diet enjoyed their meals, carried on their regular vocations, and improved in health while reducing."

Mr. Goesser stressed the fact that many of the so-called reducing diets are actually injurious to health, because they lack sufficient protein, minerals and other food essentials such as found in the above diet.

The speaker declared that because of the many new cuts of beef, pork and lamb which have been evolved, the number of meat cuts available for the housewife when she goes food shopping, is now the largest in history. There are at least 120 cuts on the market. The modern meat cuts are smaller than they used to be, he said, in line with the discriminating choice of today's housewife, who buys her meat oftener than the housewife of yesteryear, and in more convenient-sized packages.

Among the 1939 models in meat cuts, according to Mr. Goesser, are flank steak fillets, short rib crown pot-roasts, buttery round steaks, French pork loin roasts, diced hind, crown pork roasts, cushion lamb shoulders, French lamb legs, sirloin lamb roasts and lamb trotters.

A Significant Bark at Washington

It would be easy to exaggerate the importance of the recent exchange of pleasantries between the German and United States governments. Such things as Secretary Ickes' speech, the German protest and the American rebuff of the protest make interesting headlines, arouse a certain amount of national ill-will and give the diplomats something to worry about; but they don't lead great nations close to war, especially when the nations are as far apart as Germany and America are.

So no one needs to fear that this dustup is going to bring swastika-marked bombing planes or warships to American shores. After the first soreness wears off, business will go on just about as usual—except, of course, that the incident will be remembered for a long time by both sides.

But the event has a significance that should not be underestimated, just the same. For in a modest way it represents an about-face from a policy which practically all of the democratic nations have been following toward Hitler and his Nazi government.

Go back a few years in your memory and you can understand that policy very easily. After the passions of the World War had cooled, people in such countries as America and England had considerable of a change of heart about Germany. They began to feel that Germany hadn't caused the war all by herself, after all, that her inhabitants were basically a pretty fine set of people who had been unjustly treated at Versailles, and that it would be a good thing for the world in general if they could get out from under some of their troubles.

So the democracies adopted a lenient attitude. When Hitler rearmed his nation, scrapped the Versailles treaty, reoccupied the Rhineland and annexed Austria, there was a pretty general feeling that while these acts were somewhat disturbing they were, after all, more or less justified. The repressive acts of the Nazi party inside of Germany were condemned, but along with the condemnation there went the assumption that those things, after all, were Germany's own business.

The theory back of all of this was never clearly stated, but it ran along the line that the nations of the world do have to live together, and that Germany would be much easier to live with if she were allowed to remove some of the grievances which were bothering her so much.

Recently, however, the picture has changed. First came the Munich settlement, in which this policy of appeasement was carried to great lengths; on the heels of that came the incredible savagery of the anti-Jewish pogroms, along with new evidences that Hitler was planning still further adventures.

So it became clear that a new attitude was needed. Instead of going along and trying to be accommodating, it was up to the democracies to bark back a little. And the recent clash at Washington does represent a bark—a quiet little bark, maybe, but unmistakably a bark.

Viewed from that angle, as the symbol of a new international attitude toward Hitler and his methods, the affair has a good deal of significance.

NEW YORK.—Billy Conn whipped both middleweight champions, Solly Krieger and Freddie Apostoli, within 40 days. The Pittsburgh Mick would whip as many light-heavyweight leaders in an equally short space of time . . . if given the opportunity.

Melio Bettina and Tiger Jack Fox are to fight for New York recognition as successor to John Henry Lewis' 175-pound throne when Fox recovers from being stabbed in a brawl.

But Johnny Ray, who handles Conn, has been around too long to permit his youngster to waste time with the likes of Bettina and Fox, who don't mean anything. Now that he is established in New York, Conn no longer will have to seek employment. Profitable dates will come to him, and Ray, the old featherweight, knows that John Henry Lewis is the big money shot and the man Irish Billy must whip for a clear claim to the light-heavyweight throne.

CONN will be given his opportunity after Lewis is smacked out by Joe Louis at Madison Square Garden, Jan. 25, an appointment for which John Henry temporarily vacated the 175-pound title.

The Conn-Lewis encounter probably will be staged in the open air in June in Pittsburgh, where Lewis has made his headquarters for several years and is a good draw. It should gross $100,000.

The 21-year-old Conn repel Lewis with no more difficulty than he experienced against Krieger and Apostoli. Both middleweight championship claimants are corking fighters, but nobody can concede the onrushing Conn weight and get away with anything.

Conn is reminded of Jimmy Slattery in his prime. He is an exceptionally fine boxer with fast hands and feet.

He has a great left hand . . . jabs and hooks a whole lot like Tom Gibbons. He isn't too much authority in his right fist at the moment. His left hook is his pay-off weapon, and with it he scarcely can miss being a deadly puncher as he acquires poundage.

CONN showed Manhattan something it doesn't see in other warriors of today. He knows how to feint and what a feint is for.

Against the powerful and top-notch Apostoli, Conn once more . . . and on several occasions . . . demonstrated that he can take a solid whack and fight back.

The best Conn could do for Apostoli was 167 1/2 pounds at 2 o'clock. He stands 6 feet . . . has the frame of a heavyweight, which is what he will be in two years.

Conn, who scored a tremendous hit in New York, should make Solly Krieger look better as he goes along. It was the Brooklyn veteran, you know, who said that he wouldn't be surprised to see Billy Conn grow into a match with . . . and beat . . . Joe Louis.

NO TIME TO MARRY

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

Yesterday: At a party, Janet finds Lance alone on the veranda with another girl—Cynthia. She sees in terror, trips over a man coming out of the house.

CHAPTER XV

SOMEONE caught Janet and supported her somewhat awkwardly until she regained her balance.

Then Barney McKnight exclaimed, "Janet! . . . Why, Janet, you're shaking like a leaf. What—"

"Barney," Janet begged, "take me home! . . . Please take me home, Barney!"

"Wait a minute! There seems to be more here than meets the eye."

Barney slipped her hand through his arm, and moved as if to stroll along the quiet veranda. But Janet held back.

"No, Barney," she said in a stifled voice, "Not that way! I can't go back there."

"All right—this way then." He reversed their direction.

"Now, tell Uncle Barney all about it."

"No, Barney. I—can't. . . . Just take me home, please."

"Listen, honey," Barney said. "I took a lady home from a party once because she seemed to think she had to go in a hurry, and nearly got my foot block knocked off by the boy friend when I got back. This knight-errant business can be pushed too far. I'm not rescuing any more damsels in distress without good and sufficient reasons. Where's the fair-haired boy?"

"He's—I don't know."

Barney turned and stared down the veranda behind them for a long moment, and Janet felt his arm stiffen under her hand. Then he said, his voice roughening suddenly, "I get it. . . . You've finally got the layout, too. I think I knew all along, for I never did manage to kid myself about Cynthia in any big way. . . . O-kay, Jan. Wait for me at the side drive. I'll get your wrap and sign off with Leslie."

AFTER they got into the car, Barney said, "How about driving around for awhile?"

"I don't care," Janet said numbly. "Talk to me, Barney."

"All right. You asked for it," Barney said as he turned the car out upon the broad moonlit highway along the river. "The man doesn't live who needs any more excuse than that to talk about himself. How about this for a start—I've got a swell new job."

"A new job?" Janet echoed, surprised for the moment out of herself. "But I thought you liked working for the News."

"I should have said a special assignment. . . . You remember I told you the other day that I had the lowdown on the Skidmore killing? That is, I know what's back of it, but I can't prove it yet. That's my assignment. Young Billings is going to handle football and college sports, and I'm going to keep the prize-ring angle and some others which will bring me in touch with a lot of the sort of people I need to know to get my other story. I'm to have three months to work on it. If I break it, it may shake up the whole city government, and incidentally mean a whole new field for me. . . . If I don't—well I may not eat for awhile."

"But, Barney, it sounds dangerous."

"Not necessarily. No one but the boss and I will suspect what I'm up to till it's all in the bag. No one expects a sports reporter to have eyes for anything but fouls and knockouts."

"Well, I must say, McKnight," Lance began, his voice tight with anger, "you and Janet have put me in a pretty spot. Can't you imagine how I felt, after hunting all over the hotel for you, Janet, to be told that you'd gone out hours ago, with another man? And your aunt has been frantic with worry."

"I have not," contradicted Aunt Mary flatly, "been at all frantic, especially after I learned that Janet was with Barney."

Janet, who knew this was a high-handed perversion, almost smiled. Lance flushed with annoyance and turned back to Janet.

"I thought," he began icily, "that we agreed it was best just now to be seen together as much as possible. What will people think?"

"Now, that is an important consideration," Barney interrupted smoothly. "It doesn't matter, I suppose, what you do in private? Well, that ought to go both ways, oughtn't it?"

"Please, Barney!" Janet broke in before Lance could reply. Then she turned to Lance. . . . It would have been more decent, of course, to have had this out with Lance alone; but since he had raised the issue, it might as well be settled here and now.

"Lance," she asked quietly, "What difference can it possibly make what other people think about us, when all this time neither of us has seemed to have any idea what the other was thinking? I understand—now—a lot of things that have seemed strange to me these last few days. . . . You see, I was on the veranda, too, tonight; and—oh, there isn't any use talking, is there? Won't you just—go away, Lance?"

AFTER a moment Lance said in a smothered voice, "You'll be sorry tomorrow, Janet. At least we might do this thing with some dignity."

Janet even smiled a little at that—her eyes very bright and steady in her white face.

"Dignity?" she echoed. "A funny word that can be! And somehow, just now, I'd rather be honest than dignified. . . . I wish you'd go, Lance. And please don't come back."

Then Lance did go, without a word. When Barney lunged about as if to follow him, Aunt Mary quickly turned the key in the lock and planted her small person against the hall door.

"Oh, no, young man!" she said. "I'm here to see that he has at least five minutes' start. I'm not going to have you 'knocking his block off,' as I suppose you would term it, on my doorstep. This family is getting enough publicity these days without that."

"And suppose I just lift you out of the way?" Barney suggested, glowering down at her as if he were seriously considering it.

"I," said Aunt Mary, "should scream for the police as loudly and long as I could. And if you don't think I have good stout lungs, just start something."

Barney continued to glower for a moment, and then dissolved into laughter.

"Now that's being a pal!" he said. "If you knew how long I've been wanting to push that lizard's face in, you'd give me a break."

When Barney, too, finally went, Janet said, her fingers white from gripping the arm of her chair, "Of course it's better to find out now, all at once, instead of—afterwards. . . . Aunt Mary, I'm almost glad I lost my money."

"Now that it's happened," Aunt Mary said bluntly, "I'm free to suppose, what you do in private? Well, that ought to go both ways, oughtn't it?"

Late next day Cynthia came unceremoniously into Janet's room.

"Jan," she began, sitting down and nervously stripping off her gloves, "there's something I've got to talk to you about."

Group Medicine Unity Is Stressed

CLEVELAND, O. — The many group medicine plans in the United States should be consolidated into one, as proponents of these plans now are scattering their efforts too much, believes J. Donald Strawn, secretary of the National Health Service Association. Strawn, an authority on group hospitalization, group health insurance and medical care plans, said that he receives hundreds of questions about various systems of prepaid medical attention. "I think there are too many plans for medical care in the United States," he said. "We should get together and work out a plan using the best points in each program to provide care for the middle 40 per cent of the population—it's that group that is pushing the group medicine move." He explained that the upper 20 per cent group can provide themselves with the best medical care and the lower 40 per cent "get their care through charity or don't get any at all." "We don't say the charity cases get sufficient medical care, but they do get some," he said. "It's the 40 per cent between those two—the middle 40—in the lower income brackets, who want to provide for themselves and want to, but they have found they can't afford some of the care they want. "Thus the inability of people to provide themselves with medical care at reasonable rates caused the present trend toward group care," Strawn said. Strawn said that his association wants to "work with organized medicine—not opposed to it." "But inasmuch as organized medicine has done nothing about the group medical care problem, the layman has assumed the duty," he added. Russian movie directors will be paid according to the quality of their productions. Say what you like about the Soviet, it must have stopped the double bill menace.

allocated from recovery and other funds. The amounts are very great. Here they are by year: 1933-34 . . . $ 60,663,000 1934-35 . . . 176,335,000 1935-36 . . . 147,246,000 1936-37 . . . 79,004,000 1937-38 . . . 53,735,000 1938-39 . . . 77,604,000 1939-40 . . . 50,726,000 Total . . . $645,313,000 About these allocations two very significant features appear. First of all these are sums not appropriated by Congress, but appropriated by the President himself. Thus in 1935 Congress appropriated $533,596,000 for national defense. But Congress has been turning over to the President billions each year to spend as he likes. And in 1935 he appropriated another $176,000,000 for national defense. Second, the money appropriated by Congress in each year was spent out of tax moneys. But the money appropriated by the President was spent out of borrowed funds. So we have actually in the last seven years spent $645,000,000 on national defense which was never collected in taxes and which we still owe. The practice of using borrowed funds from the relief appropriations for army and navy purposes ought to be stopped. Whatever we spend on national defense ought to be paid for in cash on the line as we go. (Copyright, 1939, NEA Service, Inc.)

THE controversy which is arising about the proposed new-style, slick method of keeping the nation's books may turn out to be one of those things which will help to clear up some foggy ideas about national finance which have been persisting for six years. For one thing it will help to clarify the position of those who from the beginning have advocated spending and at the same time a balanced budget. I recall that at the beginning of the last Congress, when in this column I urged a balanced budget but at the same time warned that any serious reduction in government spending would produce a depression, many people very critically asked me to make up my mind where I stood. "You want the budget balanced but you want the government to spend and you don't even object to borrowing—what are you talking about?" It is an amazing thing how long it takes to get a simple problem of public finance understood. The key to all this lies in the difference between government investment and government spending. And the key to the present confusion about the federal budget lies in the failure to correctly distinguish between these two things. The government can balance its budget now by adopting the rule of paying for relief and recovery efforts which produce no offsetting revenues out of tax revenues. Then it may engage in whatever adventures it chooses in the field of investment and raise the money think that everybody who has studied the question is in favor of the service." That was said by Roosevelt. The first thing to do is to reorganize the entire WPA and all related agencies. It is not enough merely to appoint another administrator, with the same philosophy guiding the man who dominates it all. The men who rule the WPA should be chosen on a merit system. Promotion should be on a merit basis. Administration should be as completely divorced from the influence of the politician in the county, in the State House and in the White House as is possible. What has happened in relief has happened everywhere in the government. Thousands of men have been employed under the spoils system and then the President, with a pious gesture, has announced that they should be put under civil service. Not only are his spoilsmen put into jobs but he attempts to keep them there forever by a spurious civil service. Why does not a Senate committee send out a questionnaire to all employees of the government in Washington and ask how much they have contributed to the various campaigns since 1933, and whom the money was given to, and who solicited it? The public service has been combated and hindered for political contributions just as the relief workers have. Congress should investigate the whole subject. (Copyright, 1939, NEA Service, Inc.)

Communities Can Make Own Death Rates Much Lower

AUSTIN, Tex.—"A public health axiom, often proved, states that 'public health is purchasable and within natural limitations any community can determine its own death rate'. To no other serious communicable disease can we apply this axiom with more dramatic results than syphilis," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

In the first place no more serious disease is as widespread as syphilis. Annually we have twice as many cases of syphilis as tuberculosis, 13 times diphtheria, 28 times typhoid and 50 times infantile paralysis. Secondly the attack of syphilis is devastating. It is a killer and no part of the body is immune. Syphilis cuts off life in early adulthood at man's greatest period of productivity. Annually in America syphilis steals one million years of life from the normal life span of its victims, but before it kills, syphilis seriously wounds and tortures, bringing blindness, deafness, chronic illness, crippled minds and bodies to those it selects.

Approximately fifty million dollars in taxes are spent each year for the support in eleemosynary institutes of those blind and insane from syphilis. Fifteen percent of all blindness and 12 percent of all insanity are attributable to syphilis. A small portion of this considerable tax money spent annually for education and disease prevention would more than pay for itself through money saved in future years. This economic argument is less important when we consider that by the same efforts we simultaneously reduce the appalling total of misery and death resulting from syphilis.

"Public health is purchasable." Apply this to the syphilis problem. If we would appropriate adequate funds for syphilis control we would save not only the tax bill for institutional care but we would also save 168 million dollars in wages now lost to American male workers each year because of illness attributable to syphilis and other venereal diseases.

Funds for education and for finding and treating cases of syphilis are an insurance for future health security. Educating the public to the danger of syphilis and helping them to guard against it means fewer infections and exposures to syphilis. Individual and family health depend upon public health at large and as can be proved public health can be purchased. Its cost is never too high. Whatever public health may cost per capita outlay dwarfs to insignificance when

Tube At Mobile To Be Started Soon

MOBILE, Ala.—Preliminary work on the new $4,000,000 vehicular tunnel under Mobile river—first to be built in the South—is well under way.

The tunnel, which will be the seventh of its kind in the United States, will accommodate two lanes of traffic.

Contracts for fabrication of the tubular segments will be awarded within a month, Wayne Palmer, of the Wilberding Engineering Co., Washington, said. They may be built in a Mobile shipyard.

Palmer said data on soil and river bottom conditions were being assembled by a staff of engineers prior to awarding contracts. He estimated between 400 and 500 Mobile men would receive employment on the tunnel approaches, and said at least $3,000,000 of the $4,000,000 appropriation probably would be spent in Alabama, at the Mobile shipyards and state docks, iron foundries and steel fabrication plants in the state.

M. C. Chamberlain, who has spent 30 years building tunnels in all parts of the United States, arrived recently to supervise work. Chamberlain said the tunnel will not be bored under the river, but a huge trench will be dug in the river bottom and tubular segments placed in position and cemented in place.

Conditions here were described compared to the tremendous cost of supporting eleemosynary and correctional institutions, indigency caused by disease, misery and ill health.

Tube At Mobile To Be Started Soon

Chamberlain was engineer for the Holland Tunnel, the Detroit river tunnel, and three Harlem river tunnels. He also supervised construction of the first subway tunnels ever built in New York.

He said most of the work would not be at the site of the tunnel. The tube segments, approximately 250 feet long, will be brought to the site, then lowered into place and cemented together. Then the tube will be covered with sand and mud.

Other vehicular tunnels in the United States are in New York, East Boston, Jersey City, Long Island City, Detroit, and Alameda, California.

Ever Wonder Why You're Constipated?

Do you ever have days when you just have to drag yourself along, when you feel tired, sunk—because of that constipation? Then why not find out the real cause of your trouble?
What have you had to eat lately? Just things like meat, bread and potatoes? If that's it, you may not have to look any farther. It's likely your trouble is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.
If "bulk" is what you lack, your ticket is a dish of crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Brain for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin E.
Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
