The Minute Men of 1940

Hundreds of thousands of young Americans will soon be breaking the ties of home and ordinary life and begin learning how to defend their country.

We say, glibly, "this is the first time the United States ever conscripted men in time of peace." And that is true. But there is nothing basically new about the step that is being taken. The details, the technique, are new. The principle is old. It is simply that every able-bodied citizen has an obligation to defend his country.

It has always been so. In the frontier days, to which orators wistfully refer, it was so. When some isolated post on the edge of the western woods heard rumors of an Indian rising, what happened? Every able-bodied man got his gun and began to drill and organize defense of the stockade. True, they were not conscripted, except as the very real and powerful public opinion of their fellows conscripted them. But the danger was real and imminent, and every able-bodied man automatically looked to his powder horn and squirrel rifle.

In Revolutionary days, the Minute Men were organized. Above every man's fireplace there hung the long-barreled rifle. He was sworn to take it down at a minute's notice and assemble with his neighbors to defend their homes.

But this is 1940. The .22 target rifle or the sporting shotgun a modern Minute Man might snatch from his closet is no longer a match for bombers and armored divisions that function like clockwork. Today's Minute Man must train, long and thoroughly, to match any probable opponent.

So, to meet new conditions, we adopt new tactics. To be fair to all, we make a matter of law the obligation which the Minute Man assumed as a matter of course. The decision to do this has been debated for three long months by the people's elected representatives. It is the people's decision.

The men who go out today to learn to defend their country are today's Minute Men. The manner or organizing them and training them is one made necessary by today's conditions. But the obligation they fulfill is the same one that was fulfilled by the straggle of villagers who met that April morning on the green at Lexington and heard Captain Parker give them the instructions no American can ever forget:

"Stand your ground. Don't fire unless fired upon. But if they mean to have a war, let it begin here!"

First words heard on the telephone were spoken in 1876 and it seems as though that woman on the party line hasn't been off it since.

Councilman in a Cleveland suburb was selected from a hat, which he probably will start talking through in usual councilmanic fashion.

Work Rushed On State Fair Grounds For Its Opening

DALLAS, Tex.—To the tune of swinging paint brushes, rumbling trucks and the pounding of thousands of hammers, last minute work is being rushed this week for the opening of the State Fair of Texas on Saturday, October 5. With an outstanding calendar of events scheduled for the 16-day show, Fair officials hope to top the 1939 record-breaking attendance of 1,036,708.

The Fair will present the greatest livestock show in its 52-year history. Headlined by the National Hereford Show and Regional Holstein-Friesian Show, the finest stock on the continent will compete for an all-time high of $100,000 in cash premiums.

The amusements events of the season in the Southwest will be the Fair's giant outdoor musical revue, "Americana," to be presented on a 300-foot stage, with a cast of 150 dancers and top-name entertainers.

Topping the long list of free attractions will be the noted Mexican Mariachi Orchestra, the Swor Brothers All-Girl Minstrel, and a novel Tractor Rodeo.

With the Federal Government participating, the 1940 State Fair of Texas will present the largest Chemurgy Show ever held, including as a feature, the National Plastics Show, an outstanding exhibit at the San Francisco World's Fair.

The Agriculture Building will house more than 150 elaborate exhibits from 60 countries, 32 European Farmer groups, 26 Four-H Clubs and numerous Home Demonstration groups, paying tribute to the State's leadership in agriculture.

BULLDOGS FACE A BIG EXPERIENCED TEAM IN STEPHENVILLE FRIDAY

When the Ranger Bulldogs take the field Friday night at Stephenville against the Stephenville High School Yellow Jackets, they will be facing a heavier, faster, more experienced team than any they have met so far this season, and a team that has a reputation, gained from its first to starts, of being the fastest in this part of the country, and about the stingiest in the matter of allowing touchdowns to be made against them.

All of which looks like the Bulldogs are up against a pretty stiff proposition, and one which makes them the underdogs. The Yellow Jackets are sparked by the fast and elusive Welch, who has already had three years of experience, and who was good enough to be among the leaders in scoring for the past three years. He has ample aid in Whiteacre, who has been running, blocking and passing for the Yellow Jackets for about the same length of time. Both weigh 155 pounds. Aiding them will be the 180-pound Rushing, who lives up to his name and who is an excellent blocker. Brown, a 150-pounder completes the backfield.

At ends the Jackets have 180-pound Bill Hicks, who went to Hodges Oak Park while in Ward school, but who moved to Bluffdale and a 150-pounder named Autry. Tackles are Caudle, 210 pounds of experience and aggressiveness and Smith, who tops the scales at only 160, but who is reported to use every one of those 160 pounds when he gets into action.

THIS JEWEL IS NOT FOR SALE

Good name in man or woman, Mr. Shakespeare's Iago said is the immediate jewel of their souls.

Back of every business success, back of the smallest product that contributes to that success, is an enduring good name. This is a jewel that is never for sale.

Advertising cannot make a bad name good. Nor should it try! But advertising can carry a good name to a rich and just reward. In fact, advertising is the voice of the good name. Through advertising, the good name is able to make the promises that men live by.

This newspaper is proud of the good names in its advertising columns. You will find nothing but good names here.

NEW DETAILS CLARIFY CONSCRIPTION LAW—HERE'S WHO-HOW-WHAT-WHEN-WHY SETUP

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—If you are an American citizen between 21 and 35 (or an alien in that age-bracket, with first papers) you'll get your first contact with the new draft law on Oct. 15 when you register at the polling place in your regular voting precinct, before the regular election officials.

Catton

Then you go on about your business. A tremendous lot of paper work has to be done before your name can get called.

Under each state selective service board will be the local boards—one in each county whose population is under 30,000, and one for each 30,000 of population in more thickly settled areas.

These local boards will be your contact with the draft machinery. After the Oct. 16 registration is finished, the election precinct officials will turn all of their cards in to the county clerk, who will distribute them to the local boards.

When a board gets its cards, its first stunt will be to shuffle them thoroughly and then deal them off the top of the deck, numbering each card as it falls.

ARMY AND NAVY FIGURE QUOTAS

THEN the scene shifts to Washington. In the first batch of draftees is to be 400,000, it will be up to the army and navy to figure out the quota for each state and territory. This will be done on the basis of the number of registration cards, not of population.

The drawing will take place at Washington. In the lottery there will be numbers ranging from one up to some number equal to the highest number registered in any county in the nation. All of the numbers will be mixed in a huge bowl, and then some high official—possibly the President, or the secretary of war—will submit to a blindfold and draw out a set of numbers, one at a time.

Suppose he draws, first, number 23, and then numbers 140, 3, 281 and 79. In each of the 6500 draft areas, all men whose cards bear the number 23 will be called up; next will be called the men bearing the number 140, then those who have number 3.

IF YOUR NUMBER IS CALLED—

WHEN your number is called—which, if you happen to be among the first 400,000, will probably be around the 10th of November—you appear before the local board and get placed in one of the following classifications:

- 1—Available at once.
- 2—Deferred because of work essential to defense.
- 3—Deferred because of dependents.
- 4—Deferred by law—holders of city, state or county jobs, etc.—or deferred for physical, mental or moral infirmity.

You will fill out an elaborate questionnaire and get a physical examination. If you are placed in class one, you will be in the army or the navy before the end of the year. You cannot pick your branch of the service. For the first four months of your service you will be paid $21 a month; thereafter you will get $30.

You stay in the army one year; thereafter you are on the reserve list for 10 years, subject to short periods of training annually. How about those who seek deferment?

Army and navy men are working on exemption rules now, subject to presidential approval. As a general thing, these points will be observed:

A wife or other dependents won't necessarily put you into class 3. You must show that you contribute the major part of your dependents' support and that they don't have other resources by which they could be supported.

Should you get exemption or deferment by reason of the importance of your job to the nation's general well-being, the deferment won't last longer than six months; then you'd have to go in again and show that the reasons for your deferment were still good.

Johnson pointed to other industries in Texas that are ready to supply strategic chemicals for national defense.

Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation has a plant to make synthetic organic chemicals from refinery gases. Dow Chemical Company is building a plant from the Texas coast of the Gulf of Mexico to produce magnesium from sea water and organic chemicals from petroleum gases.

"By-product exploitation of Texas oil and gas has just been scratched on the surface," Johnson said.

YESTERDAY: Sue Mary returns to the office, finds Vera and young Clark. Vera telephones Nick, tells him the plot has worked, that they'll get the papers to frame Clark tomorrow. Joe is hurt in a fight at the factory. He is unconscious. Sue Mary is terrified by the sudden sweep of events.

VERA LOSES A GLOVE

CHAPTER XXII

IT was impossible, there in the routine work-a-day office, to forget the terror of the night before. Sue Mary mechanically typed and filed and took dictation. She listened to Babs Fleming burst forth in confidential, whispered details of her trousseau shopping and tried desperately to force an answering smile and a faint show of interested enthusiasm in Babs' wedding plans.

"Gosh, Sue Mary, I'm so excited. Only a month—but it seems ages to wait. Jim's so sweet. He's so interested in everything we're getting for the house. He was over last night and we got everything out and looked it over again: for the umpteenth time, I guess. "Sometimes I think it will be worn out before we really get settled. I mean things like linens and china and silver. Gosh—I'm so in love!"

Her blue eyes were dreamy and she went off into one of her periodic day dreams, while Sue Mary felt fear convulse her own heart. She should be able to dream such dreams herself instead of sitting here now with icy terror gripping her.

She had already called the hospital three times and each call had brought her no new information. Joe was still in a coma. There was still little encouragement to give, except that he was holding his own and doing as well as could be expected.

She closed her eyes and tried to remember how it had felt to be in his arms, with his lips close to hers; how she had put herself to sleep nights planning on what their home would be like.

She looked up and saw Kitty typing with flying fingers and casting sidelong bitter glances at Vera, cool and tailored today in a white pique sports dress. Vera was more self-possessed than usual this morning. She worked quietly and efficiently with no wasted motion.

Vera had her own course clearly outlined and she gave no hint of what she planned to do in the evening.

Sue Mary wondered if she felt any fear, sensed any possible danger. But then she, too, was in love. Natalie had pointed that out. She was in love with Nick and so blinded by that love that to do what he asked was all that mattered.

KITTY walked over to Vera's desk. Sue Mary saw her toss something on it and then heard her say, "You must have lost this when you were here last night." Vera turned, but Sue Mary couldn't see her face. "Mine?" she said in a low voice with that husky note. "What are you talking about?"

"Don't give me that business," Kitty said sharply. "You know what I mean. You should know better than to leave telltale evidence." Sue Mary swung around in her chair and looked at the girls. Vera was holding a white lace glove in her hands. And her face was a study of absorption.

"You're being melodramatic," she said, evenly. "No, you are. I know what I'm talking about. I know what you're up to. You've been trying to hook Ross Clark from the first moment you set eyes on him. And you've played this high-and-mighty lady act, too. Last night you were here with him. In his father's office. You think you're pretty clever. But you aren't. You're not half clever enough."

"Only I have my doubts if he could bear to think of hurting old Ross Clark by showing his son up before the whole city." And she wondered frantically, wouldn't the thing sound preposterous, impossible in the telling, anyhow. Who would believe her? The story sounded like a movie plot.

What if she were wrong? Or what if Nick and Vera were smart enough to prepare for just such an emergency? Surely they must have anticipated the possibility of being discovered. In that case, Sue Mary, after warning of the plot, would be left looking like an hysterical, jealous, stupid fool.

"He's collapsed again. Under doctor's care."

"I wonder how long this terrible business is going on: war, hysteria, rush production, nerves cracking." She looked tired and, for the first time, lacking in poise. Even her career-woman front seemed to have cracked, revealing the helpless feminine underneath.

It was a few moments before the clear import of her statement hit Sue Mary. All through those long hours when she had tossed in her bed last night, and while she had subconsciously gone on with her work during the morning, she had tried to consider what steps to take about Vera and her plans to get the papers young Ross Clark had on the airport site deal.

And in the back of her mind, she knew now, was the final hope that she could go to old Ross Clark and tell him what she knew. He was a business executive, competent, capable to face any emergency, but for all that, human and kind. Somehow she had felt he could handle the situation—a situation which now more than ever before left her baffled and helpless.

But now he was ill, inaccessible, incapable of advising her or of preventing what would surely happen. It wasn't his son that mattered, she told herself over and over, staring unseeing at the papers before her on the desk. It was the fact that he would be the weapon that Nick and the YP could hold over Governor Miller, bring about his defeat for re-election and the success of a man whose policies would be so opposed to all that was American.

SHE knew the whole burden now rested on herself. She felt so incompetent, so young, so unsure. To go to anyone in the office itself would mean the truth would inevitably leak out, and she couldn't bear to think of hurting old Ross Clark by showing his son up before the whole city.

And she wondered frantically, wouldn't the thing sound preposterous, impossible in the telling, anyhow. Who would believe her? The story sounded like a movie plot.

What if she were wrong? Or what if Nick and Vera were smart enough to prepare for just such an emergency? Surely they must have anticipated the possibility of being discovered. In that case, Sue Mary, after warning of the plot, would be left looking like an hysterical, jealous, stupid fool.

Rose Festival Game On Saturday To Have Many Bands

TYLER, Texas—The sixth annual rose festival football game here Saturday, Pitting Hardin-Simmons against Arizona State, isn't going to lack for music. There will be mass band concert of more than 2,000 members of 30-odd East Texas bands. And for other on-the-field entertainment the Hardin-Simmons cowboy band and 50 rope-swinging cowgirls will go through their intricate formations.

The game itself matches two teams from the west rated about equal.

Hardin-Simmons, with six straight victories including the recent 15-to-13 win over Centenary, has a fine running and passing attack, headed by Owen Goodnight, co-captain and 190-pound elusive back from Holland in East Texas.

Arizona State's star is Wayne (Rip) Pitts, 195-pound all-border conference fullback, who built up the exceptionally high punting average of 55 yards per try last season. Besides being a great punter, Pitts, is a powerful line-smasher and a brilliant defensive man.

This year Arizona Coach Dixie Howell boasts of having the fast-

Oil Fields Giving A New "War Baby" For Battlefields

AUSTIN, Tex.—Texas gas fields gave helium to the dirigibles and its oil fields now are producing the latest "war baby" from the chemical laboratories—toluene.

Toluene is a basic ingredient of TNT. Until recently it has been obtained only as a coal-tar by-product. Now two Texas plants are being equipped to produce it from petroleum.

Elmer H. Johnson, industrial geographer in the Bureau of Business Research of The University of Texas, estimated that a plant of the Shell Oil Company at Houston will be able to supply 2,000,000 gallons annually. By a supplementary process the output can be stepped up to 7,000,000 he said.

Mud was everywhere in the Burkburnett oil fields, so deep that cars sank to their headlights. The above scene, made at Newton shows a street typical of Burkburnett and other boom towns in the Burkburnett fields. Many business men abandoned their cars and rode horseback. Compare this actual photo made in Burkburnett with similar scenes in "Boom Town," M-G-M's 4 star special of the Texas oil fields, starring Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr which will be shown at the Arcadia Theatre for three big days starting tomorrow.

Women's "Build-Up"

Women's headaches, nervousness, cramp-like pain may be symptoms of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition, so often relieved by CARDUI. Principal way it helps is by increasing appetite, stimulating flow of gastric juices and so improving digestion and helping to build physical resistance. Another way you may find CARDUI helpful in reducing periodic distress: Take it a few days before and during "the time." Used for 50 years.
